Lawyer claims accused rapist is mentally ill

By Dave Sarles

The defense attorney for accused rapist Arleen L. Snowden said Tuesday that Snowden's clients have the right to present the details of the onset of mental illness at an early age and symptoms of mental illness throughout his life.

In the first day of a bench trial before Jackson County Circuit Judge Patric Riegleman, the 29-year-old Carbondale man appeared on four counts of rape, two counts of cheque fraud, two counts of distortion of sexual identity and one count of theft of firearms.

The attorney said that when the state's limitations ran out, Richman said the trial is the first in the county under a revised mining law passed by the Illinois Legislature last year which shifts some of the burden of proof in civil suits to the defense.

In pre-trial proceedings, defense attorney Harvey Welsh of Champaign, protested the new law as it was declared unconstitutional as applied to the facts of the case. Richman denied the motion, but asked Welch to resubmit it in writing.

In his opening remarks, Jackson County State's Attorney John Clemons said that the trial would "tell a tale of considerable tragedy and violence."

Among the first of Clemons' eight witnesses was the 18-year-old woman, who was raped, in the living room where she was awakened by a man entering the duplex apartment through the kitchen window.

The woman testified that the man was wearing a blue jacket over his head and face, and he threatened to, hurt her if she did not remain quiet. She said she played a tape over her head, then walked into the kitchen and opened the silverware drawer.

The second witness, an 18-year-old man, said he woke her at 1 a.m. and threatened her with a knife, forcing her into the kitchen. The witness testified that they were raped twice, and were both raped twice.

The second witness said the man's wife and her hands behind her back were raped, and she was raped at that point in the bedroom and the assailant began to rap her again.

Both witnesses said that their rooms were in the 1,000-year-old male, then arrived at the apartment and the assailant tried to keep the roommate out by holding the door shut.

The first woman then pushed the assailant to the floor and ran out of the apartment. The roommate testified that the man gathered the material on the floor and fled.

The woman said she was hit once, and the assailant said that if it ever came up again, he would be hit the man once, the assailant got the area again.

Amtrak to St. Louis may begin in April

By Rod Stone

Amtrak is expected to start new passenger service to St. Louis from Carbondale via Centralia this spring. Rep. Paul Stouffer, D-Metropolis, said Tuesday that it is the result of the Amtrak board of directors efforts to improve the service.

The actual test period would be the following six months, he said.

Carle said many of the train's passengers are SIU-C students commuting to Belleville and St. Louis. Amtrak believes there will be sufficient passengers to maintain the line, he said.

Carle said the line would use Norfolk Southern Railroad tracks between St. Louis and Centralia and Illinois Central Railroad tracks between Centralia and Belleville.

The new train is one of two Amtrak trains that will be running during the New Orleans World's Fair, he said.
EAP program in danger due to poor participation

By Jay Small

Seven SIU-C students applied for and received $100 awards for spring semester from the Education Assistance Program sponsored by the Civil Service Employees Council, but fewer students than expected have applied this year, a council member said Tuesday.

Gary Auld, a member of the CSCE Education Assistance Committee, said six students applied for and received $100 EAP awards in fall. Thus, 13 awards have been given out in the first year of the program.

"We had thought that there would be more dependents participating," Auld said.

The Education Assistance Program awards students who are dependents of civil service employees from a fund fed by employees' contributions and CSCE fund-raising activities.

While interest in the EAP is less than expected, Auld said, the program is in no danger.

"We have to get it implanted in people's minds that this is an ongoing program," Auld said.

"We're in no danger at this point. We're just going to have to build some momentum," Auld said the CSCE has plans to increase the level of funding and publicity for the program.

"We think that increased publicity is necessary. And we're going to try to hold 'no or three fund-raising events sponsored by the CSCE,'" he said.

"We hope that as we raise additional funds, we'll get the word out even farther,"

For their dependents to be eligible, civil service employees must contribute at least $60 to the fund each year. Awards are distributed equally among applicants, and the amount of each award is determined by the amount of money collected through contributions and fund-raising.

Civil service employees' dependents are eligible for five semesters of EAP aid if they pursue an associate's degree and for nine semesters if they pursue a bachelor's degree.

Auld said the CSCE has no plans to change the structure of the program.

"The application and contribution deadline for fall semester is June 30.

A Springfield man whose wife and 2-year-old son died in the Oct. 11 crash of an Air Illinois turboprop plane has filed a lawsuit against a Carbondale-based carrier for more than $50,000.

Robert J. Chantos, 38, filed a lawsuit in Circuit Court in Sangamon County Tuesday seeking damages from the company. He claims his wife, Judy, and son, Jonathan, died because the carrier did not use "the highest degree of care" in its operations.

The lawsuit is the third to be filed against the regional carrier since the crash of an Air Illinois turboprop plane is suing the company's operations.

The airline, he continued, failed to properly train its pilots and co-pilots in electrical system emergencies and did not equip the planes with adequate manuals and checklists.

Chantos also charged that the airline continued on its flight from Springfield to Carbondale despite bad weather and the availability of alternate landing sites.

The city allowed its purchase option on Cleland's property to expire when plans for construction of a downtown conference center and parking garage were indefinitely 'suspended because of financial uncertainties.'

Cleland said he will proceed with plans to renovate the former Das Fass tavern at 507 E. Illinois Ave., which he purchased as the new home for his jewelry business.

Cleland also disputed City Manager Bill Dixon's statement that Cleland is partially responsible for being in the position of paying for the new building while continuing to pay for his current place of business.

Dixon said that a more practical business approach would have been for Cleland to have waited until the city was committed to purchasing his property before he purchased the Das Fass property.

Cleland told the council that he would purchase the Das Fass property for about two years and had to move ahead with the purchase on the understanding that the city would purchase his current property.

Councillor Keith Tuxhorn said that the council should consider purchasing Cleland's property at the time Councilman Keith Tuxhorn all said that purchasing Cleland's property at this time could be precedent for dealing with property owners in similar situations.

Snowden immediately confessed to the crimes and a recording was made of his statement. Brandon said that Snowden appeared very remorseful, was aware of what he did and was willing to accept the consequences.

The officers said Snowden told them he had been drinking the night the rapes occurred and that alcohol and marijuana caused him to "sometimes lose control of himself." Welch said that Snowden had been under psychiatric treatment for the problem.

Both officers said they concluded from their observations of Snowden during four days of questioning that he was "cooperative, articulate, well oriented," and, in both officers' opinions, "a sane man."

The trial is scheduled to resume at 9 a.m. Wednesday when the four defense witnesses will give testimony.

Chief should speak softly on allegations

The column titled "Vietnam veterans must again show folly of intervention by Colman/" appeared in the Daily Egyptian, February 3. Colman must again be read as a description of the behavior of a person or group. The author believes that the current situation is being handled properly and that the public is well aware of the facts. However, the author also states that the situation is being handled improperly and that the public is not well aware of the facts. The author suggests that the public should be made aware of the facts through a series of public debates. The author also suggests that the Department of Education should be involved in the debate.

Town kicks TV dependence

FARMINGTON, Conn. (AP) — This town’s month-long experiment in kicking the television habit ended Tuesday, with backers claiming that up to a third of the residents went cold turkey and that many permanently reduced their dependence on the tube.

Incredibly, the sponsors said a major contributor to the success of the project was all the publicity it got — from television.

TV news coverage of the program “immediately brought national and international attention on this community and virtually everyone in town was aware of it,” School Superintendent William Streich said.

Streich estimated that at least one-third of the families with school-age children participated in the TV turn-off that started Jan. 1 in this affluent Hartford suburb of 20,000 people.

“In one elementary school 72 percent were still involved at the end of last week,” he said.

Many who went along with the blackout said they made an exception for the National Football League playoff and Super Bowl games.

Continued TV restraint could be challenging for the participants of the Winter Olympics this month.

But Betty Kelly, librarian at Wallace Elementary School, said most residents have been so happy that after a month without television they are not going to watch as much in the future.

“They’ve found that they have survived,” she said. “Not many people have gone cold turkey, but a lot have cut way down.”

Nancy Delavalo, president of the Farmington Library Council, which sponsored the program, said it would be “naive” not to see a correlation between heavy television watching and the performance among students.

“I see the pre-school children who are looking at 30 hours a week. They are not speaking in more than two sentences and are not asking questions,” she said.

“When I tuned off the TV, I could do many more exciting things,” Wallace Elementary fourth-grader Mary Grace Vendela wrote in a school essay. “I would do my homework without rushing. I made several get-well cards for my aunt.”

She said she is not permitted to watch TV on school nights, so quitting cold was “not so hard to do.”

“I really think TV is a bad habit,” she said.

Mrs. DeSalvo said the council will soon start tracking the TV habits of 25 to 40 families in Farmington for four or five months.

Streich said he will measure the success of the program by the number of children and adults in this community that will turn on their televisions in February and be more discriminating.

Those among the town’s 2,600 schoolchildren who charted their families viewing patterns since the beginning of January will turn in their data this week, with results to be announced by Feb. 9.

The Library Council is planning an awards ceremony for children and adults whose pledge cards show they blacked out their TVs for the entire month.

Caterpillar Tractor Co. is rebounding, its president said Tuesday, but the manufacturer’s booms, don’t won’t return “within the decade or within the century.”

Caterpillar President Robert Gilmore told a Pekin Chamber of Commerce breakfast the Peoria-based earth-moving manufacturer doubted it would repeat the past two years record $225 million in losses.

But Cat’s recovery will be slow, and will depend heavily on a successful sales campaign overseas, especially in Europe, said Gilmore, the second-ranking executive of Caterpillar.

He said the company for the past three years has been studying the possibility of diversifying its product lines, but would not elaborate, saying Cat’s strategy would be revealed in time.

Caterpillar earlier this month reported it lost a record $245 million in 1983. After a $180 million 1982 loss, it marked the first time the company posted a consecutive two years in the red.

The two years of losses followed Cat’s record $729 million profit in 1981 on global sales of $16.95 billion — also a record.

Public may get peek at supernovas

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago will be the first city in the world where the public will be able to routinely observe what astronomers see, through a computerized hook-up with a remote-controlled telescope to be built in New Mexico.

The 200-inch mirror on the Sacramento Peak, which planners say will be able to see further into space than any other current astronomical instrument, will be seeking one of astronomy's most unusual phenomena — supernovas, or exploding stars.

Residents of the city will be able to "see" through the telescope by gazing at an electronically-linked video screen at the Adler Planetarium here, officials say.

The public never had a chance to peek over the astronomer's shoulder," said James Sweitzer, Adler's assistant director.

Eight other telescopes worldwide are larger than the 140-inch Sacramento Peak telescope planned for completion by mid-1987, but all reportedly suffer from urban "light pollution" or deficient instrumentation.

Conventional telescopes take hours to stop what they are doing and focus on something new, but the Sacramento Peak instrument will be the world's fastest, able to focus as fast as 10 minutes on rare events like supernovas.

Supernovas have been seen before, but never before studied through a large telescope. The peak of the explosion lasts just two hours, and older telescopes are cumbersome to be turned quickly enough to study this scientifically crucial phenomenon.

The Sacramento Peak location, about 100 miles north of El Paso, Texas, has extremely clear air and low water vapor, providing one of the best possible viewing sites in the world, said Don York, an astronomer at the University of Chicago.

York was elected first director of the telescope at the first meeting of the project's board of governors last week.

GTI to realign field operations; will close office, add computer

By Terry Levecke
Staff Writer

The Bell System telephone company has announced plans for realignment of its communications organizations reorganizing their operations and services to meet the demands of the nationwide field operations, scheduled to go into effect next October.

In Southern Illinois, the GTI office in Olney will be eliminated. All customer service for the region will be handled from the Carbondale office, 214 W. Monroe, according to Sharon Wittkus, service office supervisor in Carbondale. Administratije offices will remain in Marion.

The realignment will cost $6 million to $7 million in Carbondale, but eight positions will be added in Marion, Wittkus said.

The realignment also includes additional computerized systems for faster and smoother service to customers, Wittkus said.

The new computer system will eliminate various paper forms currently being used by customer service clerks. The system will allow each request to be directed to the specific service at about 20 times simultaneously with the customer's request, Wittkus said.

Billing will be moved from Bloomington to Plymouth. Wire: A toll-free number will be available to customers for inquiries on long distance calls and disconnections.

However, Wittkus said all these changes aren't scheduled to go into effect until October. The Phone Center stores won't be affected by the company changes, said Sandy Vaughn, supervisor of retail sales in Carbondale.

"With the deregulated and competitive marketplace for communications equipment and services, we must continue to develop even more efficient and economical ways to run our business," said Charles Merritt, the company's state director.

Boyhood home awaits Reagan visit

DIXON (AP) -- Ronald Reagan's boyhood hometown hopes the president's birthday visit will bring a national portrait of small-town "warmth." The only concern we have is over extreme cold -- outside," said Mary D. Redebaugh, who is matching homes with guests.

"One task is baking lots of sweets so White House guests will have something delightful to eat," Redebaugh said. "We also have to get whitewashed Dutch shoes ready in case the president ever had, Dux said."

Reagan, who will be 73, lived in this Dixon hometown of 15,800 after his family moved here from Tampico, the town 25 miles southwest of here where the president was born.

Neil Reagan, the president's older brother who lives in California, also is to be on hand, said Martin Munster, chairman of the foundation overseeing the $180,000 restoration of Reagan's boyhood home.

"I didn't think there was any way in the world they could get the house restored in time for Monday, but it looks like it will be done," Munster said.

Curator Lynn Knights said the house's interior, from wallpaper to furnishings, was restored to the style it had when Reagan lived in it from 1920 to 1924. As many as 15,000 people are expected to line the route through downtown for a parade with more than 66 entries, Knights said.

The president's reviewing stand was to have been the balcony of the nearly 100-year-old Nachusa House hotel on Main Street. But organizers scrapped the idea when they decided the angle for television coverage might put Reagan in the shade if it were sunny.

A reviewing stand was erected at another downtown corner.

At the high school gymnasium, another 3,000 people with admission tickets will throw a birthday bash for Reagan and hear him speak.

"There's a big debate going on right now. Do we want to know whether to sing 'Happy Birthday,' Mr. President or 'Happy Birthday, Dutch,' (Reagan's nickname). But with 3,000 people singing, he won't be able to tell the difference anyway."

Jobless rate increases, still lower than year ago

Unemployment increased in 25 Southern Illinois counties in December, reflecting seasonal layoffs, especially in construction, according to figures released Tuesday by Illinois Labor Commissioner Jerome Muller.

But despite the increase in the region's jobless rate, unemployment is still significantly lower than a year ago in all areas, said Daniel J. O'Hara, head of the Bureau of Labor Market Economics.

Jackson County's unemployment rate increased to 5.6 percent from 3.3 percent in November. The December 1982 rate was 10.1 percent.

In Williamson County, the jobless rate for December increased to 17.1 percent from 15.2 percent in November. This was down over 2 percent from the December 1982 figure of 19.6 percent.

Perry County experienced a slight increase from 12.8 to 13 percent. The figure in December 1982 was 17.7 percent.

Randolph County's jobless rate increased nine-tenths of a percent to 12.9 percent from November to December. The December 1982 rate was 22 percent.

In Union County, December unemployment was 14.9 percent, up one percent from November.

AERho to inform public, raise money for Tourette Syndrome

By Joyce Vanderheide

A seven-year-old Mike suffers from a neurological disorder called Tourette Syndrome. Mike suffers from a muscular movement and unwanted vocal sounds.

The symptoms vary in magnitude, but the problem is not mental illness. Mike suffers from a neurological disorder called Tourette Syndrome. Mike suffers from a muscular movement and unwanted vocal sounds.

Reagan attacks critics of tax plan

CHICAGO (AP) — President Reagan, in an indirect attack on Democrats in general and Walter Mondale in particular, said Tuesday that Democrats in general and Mondale in particular served as vice president. They gave us economic hand-wringers of today were beyond his control but his problem is not mental illness. Mike suffers from a neurological disorder called Tourette Syndrome. Mike suffers from a muscular movement and unwanted vocal sounds.

Reagan is an economic reformer who calls for enactment of a comprehensive program. He called for congressional leaders to see the concrete and gravel during February, which is National Tourette Syndrome Awareness Month.

Reagan said in a reference to one of the worst moments of his presidency, "Not that much. A cheap trip." Reagan, who campaigned in 1980 on a promise of balancing the federal deficit, said he has attempted to keep the issue of red ink.

"My only caution is to watch out for those offering easy answers," Reagan said. "We'll never say, 'Hey, everyone! We need to get the economy back on track.'"

Speakers told reporters aboard Air Force One that the trip was considered non-political because Reagan was not meeting with political leaders. "He doesn't have any 're-elect me' in his speech." He said the decision to bill the trip as such and pay for it with government funds had been made by White House and campaign lawyers. Asked how much the trip cost, he said, "Not that much. A cheap trip.

Hazing illegal in Greek system, but still continues at SIU-C

By Sheila Rogers
Staff Writer

In the spring of 1981, Mark was pledging a fraternity on SIU-C's Greek Row. As part of his initiation into the group, Mark couldn't eat or sleep for four days. In another initiation rite of the same fraternity, Mark and his fellow pledges were lined up facing each other with cold water and pudding. The activities are known as hazing. Hazing is illegal in Illinois, part of the Greek system and at SIU-C, but is still practiced by some fraternities and sororities on campus.

Last September, the Inter-Greek Council passed a resolution condemning and outlining possible penalties for hazing.

Fraternities and sororities on campus were given a copy of the resolution, which gives examples of hazing, such as paddling or striking a pledge, causing a pledge to be in bed for three days. The Inter-Greek Council suggested in the resolution that these questions should be "asked and answered before you forcing or humiliating a pledge to sign his or her will, said IGC Chairman Bob Craig.

"It's a kind of activity that is mentally or physically abusive to an individual," he said. "The way to draw the line is if the person involved feels they are being hazed."

One fraternity member, who asked not to be identified, said that these questions should be asked to determine whether the activity is hazing. Would you do it in front of your mother? Would you do it yourself? Are you forcing or humiliating another member?

Craig said he wishes hazing was a problem at SIU-C, but regretfully, it wouldn't be truthful to say it isn't. There's too much opportunity behind closed doors.

SIU-C fraternity members say that pledges have been hazed as recently as last semester. One member said that pledges to his fraternity were locked up in the basement, going blindfolded one at a time. They were given Alka-Seltzer and vinegar and were told to put it into their mouths. The Alka-Seltzer dissolved in their mouths and was unbearable, he said.

Some fraternity members said that some sorority members are guilty of hazing, too. They accused sorority members of having their pledges refrain from talking to anyone for a week, act as slaves and stay in the basement of the house. However, sorority members who were questioned about the allegations denied being involved in the accusions.

"I've never come in contact with hazing or anything that causes mental or physical stress," said one sorority member.

"It would be ridiculous if any of our members reported to hazing," another member said.

The IGC will investigate any hazing accusations brought to its attention. When a report of hazing is received, an advisory board will be set up and both sides will be heard, Craig said. Recommendations will then be made to the Office of Student Development. Craig said he knows of no reports of hazing since he has been IGC chairman.

Craig said that hazing is carried out because of the "they did it to me, I'm going to do it to them" tradition. He added that groups haze to "make men and women" out of their members.

Most organizations are realizing that these traditional activities are really useless, Craig said.

Mark said he put up with hazing hoping that someday he could stop it.

"Other members wanted to get their chance to do it. I couldn't see any reason for it," Mark said. He said that hazing doesn't exist in his house now and that most of the hazers are gone. Another member of the same house said that hazing is being done away with because present members are "more intelligent" than previous ones and wouldn't tolerate hazing.

"Part of pledging is to grow with the fraternity. The fraternity is supposed to be a bunch of brothers. How can that be if a week before they were shaming you?" one frat member said.

Two of the fraternities have had in-house battles about whether hazing should continue, according to one member, who commented. "It's kind of an endless battle because people are basically cruel. It's just like at war when people make other people play Russian roulette and don't feed them for days. It's really pointless. What's the purpose?"

Craig said if fraternity or sorority members feel they are being hazed, they should contact the IGC. He added that the way to eliminate hazing is to educate all members of the organizations about the dangers of it and to give them constructive alternatives.

One fraternity member said he doesn't see a way to end hazing.

"I don't see how any frat could," he said. "For one, there will always be people who get their kicks out of torturing other people, and two, it's hard to draw the line as to what hazing is."

Academics, finances cited as major causes of student stress

By Margaret Callcott
Student Writer

That headache may mean that something is bugging you, that you may be depressed. If you’ve had a lot of them lately, you may have signs of a common student malady — stress.

The Wellness Center will sponsor a free workshop on stress management from 7 to 9 p.m. tomorrow in Student Center’s Illinios Room.

Stress has three principle causes, according to David Elam, coordinator of wellness and program services at the Wellness Center — problems with academics, relationships and finances.

Workshops are designed to help students deal with stress by concentrating on the physical, mental and emotional effects.

“People are most likely to recognize stress when physical symptoms show up.” Elam said. Students can experience fatigue, difficulty concentrating, headaches and upset stomachs.

Physical symptoms of stress may develop if a person finds that problems with relationships, academics or finances could be solved by trying to control thoughts or events.

A second method involves building resistance to stress. This can be done through relaxation techniques, attention to good nutrition and adequate exercise.

“Some of these habits are very hard to change on our own.” Elam said. “But it is important to try to keep exercising, trying to eat foods that are good for the body.

Elam explained that some people search for single solutions to treat stress, often end up treating only the symptoms.

“One of the keys to stress management is taking responsibility for your own health. Elam said. “If long term change will occur until you decide to do something for yourself and practice it.”

According to Elam, stress management services are the most requested of all the Wellness Center’s services, which he said indicates the amount of stress students are under.

There are several stress management programs to accommodate the large interest. In addition to the workshops, which typically are filled to capacity with about 65 students, three group sessions are planned this spring, each meeting for three consecutive weeks and featuring smaller groups for greater interaction.

South African forces to ‘disengage’ in Angola

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — From South Africa announced Tuesday it was “disengaging” its forces in Angola, calling it a first step toward a cease-fire in the 17-year-old war in South West Africa.

Prime Minister P.W. Botha said the disengagement was based on assurances received from the United States during two visits last week by Chester Crocker, assistant secretary of state for African affairs.

Botha would not disclose these assurances and would not define the “disengagement” precisely.

South African troops conducted a six-week invasion of southern Angola in December and January, pushing more than 270,000 miles into the country. South Africa said it killed hundreds of Angolans and SWAPO soldiers.

In London, the SWAPO office said South Africa must negotiate any cease-fire directly with SWAPO leaders, and anything short of that was inadequate.

Man to be charged in death of baby

ROCK ISLAND (AP) — Murder charges will be lodged later this week against a Rock Island man who already has asked to die for his alleged role in the death of his girlfriend's 4-month-old baby, a judge said Thursday.

Robert J. Box, who turned 29 Monday in Rock Island County jail, was charged with aggravated battery after allegedly shaking 4-month-old Shawn Rackman six days ago. The infant suffered cerebral and eye hemorrhaging and was declared clinically dead by hospital staff.

Seven Democratic candidates
hash over issues face to face

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale favors swift implementation of a nuclear freeze, but he's confident that Percy will support it.

Sen. John Glenn shies away from setting a date. Atwood said, is to "get people out to vote."

Saying "The hard part is to unite the people at the freezer because of his failing support for the freeze. We're for convincing the Soviets to attempt a build-down on nuclear arms," said Atwood. "He wants to go one step fur- ther" than those supporting the freeze.

The key issue facing the Southern Illinois senator, he said, is to "get people out to vote."

There are votes to be had in Southern Illinois. We just have to go out and get them," said Atwood. "The primary task, though, is bringing the message and getting it out for Percy on campus and in the surrounding campus towns.

"We need to make it clear that Percy has a helluva lot more to offer than any of the Democrats," he said. "That the senator supports the President's initiative."

New Percy endorsers next to the four Democratic candidates is what Atwood said he fears the most. He said that "Percy is not a viable candidate." outside of the inner circle of the primary is not winning or losing. It's winning big," he said. The senator would be vulnerable in the general election if we get bleed-ed-up in the primary.

Percy is an "international" politician, while Simon has been more "domestic office-holder," he said.

Simon is more visible in his district than Percy has been in the state, but Simon knows how to use print and electronic media well," said Atwood, who pointed out that Simon was a part-owner of a newspaper chain before he went into politics.

Atwood said that Simon has done a lot for SIUC, but that Percy has contributed "heavily" with his support for Reaganesque, which has created many new jobs for people, including students.

Atwood also said state Comptroller Roland Burris stands a chance in the Democratic nomination since he won a statewide election in 1980 by such a large margin.

He also said it's important that Percy be defeated because he would have the second-most seniority of his party in the Senate.

CASTRO NO DICTADOR A CUBANOS

MINISTER SAYS SOCIALISMS WORKS

By Dean Jones
Staff Writer

Socialism works for the people of Cuba—it has been a force for change and remained a successful system. The doctrine of socialism, which is based on the idea of common ownership of the means of production, has been implemented successfully in Cuba, where the government owns all the land and businesses. The Cuban government has been able to control the economy, ensuring that resources are distributed fairly and efficiently. The Cuban people have benefited from this system, with access to basic necessities like food, healthcare, and education. However, critics argue that socialism stifles individual freedom and innovation. Despite these criticisms, Cuba remains a model of social justice and equality. The Cuban government has been able to reduce poverty and inequality, and the Cuban people have a high standard of living.
Crane, Coffey revealed few clear-cut differences in debate

CHARLESTON (AP) — It was billed as a debate, but it sounded more like a polite encounter.

The debate between incumbent Republican congressional candidate Dan Crane and challenger Max Coffey, conducted before a crowd of about 200 Monday night at Eastern Illinois University, revealed few clear-cut differences between the two key issues.

But Crane has to strive to win with the embarrassing questions about his 1980 sexual affair with a 17-year-old Congressional page, which caused him to be censured by the House of Representatives.

He said he was sorry and had asked for forgiveness, but conceded there was "no way I'll know" whether voters accepted his apology until the GOP primary.

While most of the arguing that did take place centered on Crane's three-term record in Washington, "negative voter" was about the most serious charge Coffey hurled at the three-term incumbent.

And that was a label Crane was proud to wear.

Coffey, a 44-year-old Republican state senator noted his GOP colleague had not had a single hill passed by the House and called Crane a "negative voter." He suggested Crane might be more effective if he cooperated with his colleagues who have hills to pass.

But Crane, describing himself as one of the "biggest penny-pinchers" in Washington, said he was proud to vote "no" on highway spending measures sponsored by liberal Democrats.

"You're right, Max. I don't compromise. I don't believe in tax increases," said Crane, a 48-year-old Danville dentist. "I voted for one."

Coffey countered that as a "more moderate" thinker, he saw the needs of the state and voted for a temporary tax increase last year.

Crane, on the other hand, made little advantage of Coffey's reluctance to discuss foreign policy questions, most of which appeared to take him by surprise.

asked about the recent Kissinger Commission recommendations on Central America, Coffey said: "I'm not familiar with the report."

He also admitted, "I do not have a position on U.S. relations with the Soviet Union, the People's Republic of China, and Taiwan, and Israel."

Crane, one of the most conservative House members, said the U.S. should provide economic and military aid to El Salvador. Otherwise, he added, communism would spread quickly through Central America and into Mexico, and millions of Mexicans would flee across the Rio Grande to the last bastion of freedom."

One key difference in policy emerged over the presence of U.S. Marines in Lebanon. Crane said they should not have been sent there as peacekeepers, because of the danger of terrorist attack, but Coffey said he supports President Reagan's use of the Marines because "sometimes we have to defend ourselves ... on someone else's shores."

fresh talent.
Now, halfway through the season, most coaches have labeled the Salukis as one of the two most improved teams in the MVC, along with Creighton.
Perry, after sitting out last season, is improving with each game. The 6-11 center has proven he can mix it up inside with the other giants of the MVC. "He's come to the forefront of the conference along with (Creighton's Benoit) Benjamin as one of the two best centers in the league," said Bradley assistant coach Tony Barone.
Perry is leading the Salukis with 13.8 points per game, but has averaged 18.6 in Valley games. Exempt for SIU-C's 73-63 loss at Wichita State, when he was held to 11 points, Perry has taken fewer than 17 in each MVC game.
Perry is holding his own on the backboards as well. With Blackman out, the team rebounding lead with 7.4 per game.
Perry, with 10.6 points per game, is one of five Salukis averaging double figures. The balanced scoring attack has been a Saluki trademark. Buford, 13.1; Campbell, 11.8, and Birch, 11.9, round out SIU-C's leading scorers.

Buford trails only Perry in field goal percentage. He is shooting 56.5 percent from the floor and 90 percent from the free throw line. He leads the team with 28 steals.
Campbell, who switched from forward to second guard when George moved in, leads the team in assists with 65. He shot well over 30 percent in the first half of the season, but has been fighting a shooting slump of late. But he plays hard and with enthusiasm, and Van Winkle likes that.

Space starting four games ago at Bradley, George scored eight, 11, and 16 points before getting shut out at Illinois State. An outstanding defensive player, George is adept at going to the basket, too.

"He adds a dimension to our offense," Van Winkle said. "He got to the basket and draws people, and that creates good things for us." With Blackman gone, 6-3 sophmore forward Dan Weis has seen more action recently. He was the first forward off the bench at Illinois State.

"We're improving each week," Van Winkle said. "With the exception of the Illinois State game, our progress has been good."

Purdue's defense, free throws help tie up Big 10 lead

CHICAGO (AP) — An emphasis on defense right after the tip-off and free-throw shooting down the stretch catapulted Purdue, 13-4, from pre-season depths to a share of the Big Ten lead, Boilermaker Coach Gene Keady said Tuesday.

But a look at conference statistics at the midway point show other strengths as well.
Purdue, seventh in scoring defense (62.7 points a game) but second in free-throw accuracy (76 percent), also tops the league in scoring offense with 72.5 points a game.

The 16th-ranked Boilermakers picked to finish eighth or ninth in the Big Ten by preseason Pundits, are tied with No. 5 Illinois for the lead with a 6-1 record.

"We really tried to come out and dominate people with our defense to help get the early lead," Keady said at the weekly telephone conference. "With the lead in this league you can control the tempo. Then you have a pretty good free-throw shooting team, which helps us keep it in control down the stretch."

Salukis garner two GCAC honors

SIU-C's Denise Blackman (track) and Wendy Irick (swimming) were named Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference Athletes of the Week for their performances last week.

At the Indiana Quad Saturday, Blackman, a sophomore from Barbados, West Indies took third in the 60-yard dash. Her time of 7.1 tied the school indoor record.

Blackman pulled her hamstring in the last 10 yards of the event and was unable to compete in the 300-yard run and the 1,600-meter relay. Her performance was one of the few bright spots for the Salukis, who finished last in the meet.

SIU-C's women's track coach Don DeNoon said Blackman might have finished better than third if she had not suffered the hamstring injury.

"Denise is probably the fastest we have from the 60- to the 300-barrirs and is quick as Debra Davis in the 400-meters," DeNoon said.

Irick, a freshman from Knoxville, Texas, placed third in the 300 free with a time of 5:04.6 and fifth in the 200 fly with 2:11.63. Irick recorded personal bests in the 200 breast, 100 breast and 100 free.

Irick has qualified for the U.S. Olympic trials in the 100 individual medley and for the NCAA nationals in the 200 backstroke, 2:05.56; 200 IM, 2:07.26; and in the 400 IM, 4:29.95.

While the Saluki swimming team has claimed the No. 6 ranking in the country, according to the Collegiate Swim Coaches Association and Swimming World poll, Irick has climbed into the nation's top 14 in four different events.

She is ranked 15th in the 400 IM, ninth in both the 200 IM and the 200 backstroke and 16th in the 100 backstroke.

Conditioning was treatment for netters after shutout loss

By George Pappas

After a devastating 9-0 loss to Vanderbilt last two weeks ago, what has Saluki tennis coach Dick LeFevre been doing with his men?

"Conditioning," LeFevre said. "We have to get in shape. That's why we lost to Vanderbilt."

LeFevre said his team "ran out of gas" against Vanderbilt. He has the evidence to prove that too. In that match, the Salukis lost the first set in five of the nine matches. Then they lost the rest of the sets and matches after that. But he blames no one.

"They played off for 35 days during Christmas break," LeFevre said. "Plus, we can only get actual tennis practice on Mondays and Wednesdays for two hours at the Egyptian Sports Center. The other practices are conditioning. Honestly, I was astonished we won those first sets."

LeFevre said that there is no way that any tennis player could be that good with so little practice.

"Even Jimmy Connors works out for three straight weeks before a big match," LeFevre said.

The Salukis don't have Connors, but they do have some very talented players. Playing No. 1 and 2 singles are Swedish players Per Wadmark and Lars Nilsson, respectively. That Swedish one-two punch is also the No. 1 doubles team.

"The two of them are playing OK together," LeFevre said.

Three wins keep Tar Heels No. 1

NEW YORK (AP) — It was supposed to be a tough week for the top-ranked North Carolina Tar Heels, who had to play three teams ranked in the Associated Press Top Twenty. But by week's end, the Tar Heels remained unbeaten — and still No.1. — as they disposed of No. 18 Georgia Tech and still No.1. — as they Tar Heels. who had to play for Detters after shutout loss disposed of No. 20 basketball poll.

The Heels remained unbeaten the three teams spots. respectively, but the new wrinkle in the Top Ten was caused by Notre Dame's upset of previously fifth-ranked Maryland.

In losing to the Irish 22-47 in its only game last week, Maryland slipped to No. 10. In two games, Houston and Texas-E tvailed the Illini, meanwhile, advanced each to a ranking at Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8, respectively.

The new entrants in the Top Ten are Memphis State, which burst out No. 12 Oklahoma 69-45 Saturday, and comes in at No. 9. This week's poll features three newcomers. Re-entering at No. 16 is Purdue, while Georgia Tech (No. 18) Auburn (No. 19) are ranked for the first time this season. The casualties were Arkanas, formerly No. 16, and Virginia and Victoria 18 and 19 respectively.

In the second Ten, No. 11 Tulsa and No. 12 Oklahoma swapped places from the previous week. And this week's No. 13 is Syracuse, which showed the most marked improvement.

The Orangemen, who entered the poll last week for the first time at No. 30, defeated Big East rivals Pitt and St. John's to move up seven places.

Previously unranked Louisiana State, which lost to Auburn and North Carolina, saw its record drop to 1-5 and its ranking, to No. 16.

"These people are David's yachtstick that help measure his improvement as well as his weaknesses. He has the talent, and is now building up his confidence to be a plus all around," Meade said. "Plus, he's a dean's list student which makes any coach happy and satisfied.

Lutterman said he has no plans after college. He also said, though, that he is not really worried about it right now. After all, he still has two years, not counting this one, to be a gymnast.

Lutterman a team hit with all-around debut

By George Pappas

Sophomore David Lutterman has emerged as one of Saluki Coach Bill Meade’s leading gymnasts this season.

"He’s not right from the start," Lutterman has proved he should go. Last year at the World Championships at Budapest, Hungary, he scored a 10.1 on 1.1 points better than the Olympic requirement.

Lutterman said that he can score better than that after a year of practice with the Salukis, but for now he’ll just have to wait until he’s in New Zealand.

In the meantime, he has helped spark the Salukis toward a possible berth in the NCAA championships. Lutterman, a sophomore in business, said he feels this year’s team is better than last year’s, which finished ninth in the NCAA championships.

"Coming into this year, I never thought we’d score as high as 1.4-2 points without Brian [Bachok]," Lutterman said. "But we’re looking good on each event."

"Last year, the team relied heavily on Brian’s all-around performance, as well as Tom’s (Slovakia) and Herb’s (Vermont) horse routine. But now, we have six or seven guys that are trying for each apparatus. If someone is injured, it is no problem to replace him."

Lutterman said the Salukis have the routines to score 200 points.

"No one on the team has to add anything to their routine, that’s why we have our right to be there."

Lutterman said he came to college in the United States to improve his gymnastics. He said the frozen winters when he practiced by himself in New Zealand.

"I never expected to motivate me," Lutterman said. "Here, I have someone that can give me the help I could ever need."

Saluki Coach Bill Meade said that "Lutterman and Lawrence Williamson help on the floor"

Cleveland Bibbens is one of five juniors who start in Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle’s lineup.

By Daryl Van Schoewen

Staff Writer

When Saluki basketball Coach Allen Van Winkle drew together a starting lineup of junior transfers in November, one question in the minds of many Saluki fans centered around Sh-IU-C’s ability to juggle three stars.

After all, the Saluki roster consisted of eight transfers from numerous schools around the country. For two of them, SIU-C was the third college in which they had enrolled. In basketball circles, the brand "jill" is commonly heard, especially from coaches who speak of the importance of team play and a growing sense among players of how their teammates react to certain game situations.

For a team that has played together for less than one season, the Salukis have jelled quite well. They’ll take a 1-4-2 record, 4-3 in the Missouri Valley Conference, into Thursday’s conference game with Bradley at the Arena.

"They look like a team that has put together for a couple years," said Drake Coach George Hunter, "when they maybe had more talent walking around campus (as red-shirts) last year than they had on the court."

Van Winkle did not have to experiment much during the first two games of the season, finding his best combination. He used the same starting lineup in the first nine games. Since then, only Pie Walker and Chris George have cracked the starting five.

George, a 6-6 forward, has replaced team captain and point guard Marcus Dupree, a transfer who left the team after four games, giving the Salukis added size on the front line.

Walker was lost last week for academic reasons, leaving the Salukis with less depth up front.

That’s one of four other starters, Cleveland Bibbens and Nate Bufford, who have received the starting nod from Van Winkle in every game. Ken Perry has started all but two games and "Bernard Campbell has started all but one."

"It appears now at the quarter of Perry, Bibbens, George, Bufford and Campbell, with Birch usually assuming the role of No. 1 bench player, form the heart of SIU’s basketball team."

"Next to the fact that these players have major roles in lifting the Salukis from the depths of mediocrity and below, probably the best thing about them in Van Winkle’s eyes is that they’ll be back next year."

"Van Winkle hinted earlier in the season that Walker, the only senior except for Harvey Hunter and Dupee, would have started at forward, if he preferred going with the juniors instead to build toward next season."

"The juniors Van Winkle has relied on have come through. Before the season, the Salukis did not expect to be able to count more than two starters from the MVC, because of SIU-C’s influx of non-Villians, for the SIU-C’s influx of non-Villians."

Dupree leaves college behind—again

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) —

Talented running back Marcus Dupree, barred by the NCAA from playing football until 1985, has dropped out of college for the second time this year, this time from the University of Southern Mississippi.

"He is dropping out for financial personal reasons," Kenneth Fairley, a Hattiesburg businessman and longtime friend of the former-University of Mississippi star, said Tuesday. "He wants to get a job for this semester and to work out these personal problems."

Fairly said Dupree had not contacted professional teams before making his decision, and spokesmen for several pro leagues said they were unaware of any plans by Dupree to turn pro.

"He’s not right for the draft and he was one to be an all-star grad class graduate," (1987), said Jim Jeffries, National Football League director of public relations. "We have our rules and we have no plans to change them."

Doug Kelly, coordinator of information for the United States Football League, which signed Herchel Walker last year after his junior year at Georgia said "any statements or questions regarding his future would be purely speculative on anyone’s part."

After Dupree dropped out of Oklahoma, USF Commissioner Cheif Simmons said the league would adhere to its policy of signing no more underclassmen. Kelly said Dupree’s USFL rights belong to the New York Generals and the league’s territorial system.

"We’re highly recruited after a standout career at Philadelphia, Miss., High School, crew nationals, his freshman year at Oklahoma, gaining 653 yards. He was heralded before the 1983 season as a leading candidate for the Heisman Trophy but walked away from Oklahoma after the Sooners lost to Texas 28-16 on Oct. 8.

"Dupree had been plagued by injuries and had been criticized by Sooners Coach Barry Switzer."

He spent several days at his home in Philadelphia before enrolling at Southern Mississippi on Oct. 19. "Marcus has had difficulty coping with the fact he cannot play college football until 1985, and has talked of the possibility of playing professional football," Southern Mississippi Coach Jim Carmody said in a statement. "He is not sure of his plans at this time but it is obvious he will not be playing football at USM."

But Fairley said he had talked with Dupree and that he decided to leave Southern Mississippi had nothing to do with any plans to play in the professional ranks.

Carmody had hoped Dupree would be able to play for Southern Mississippi next season. But the NCAA, in response to a query from school officials, told the school that rules require that an "injured" sit out a year after transferring from one school to another.

Dupree, as he did after leaving Oklahoma a, dropped out of sight Monday.
