APO Time Capsule Dedicated; To Be Opened in 1974

Students and officials at Southern made preparations Thursday Dec. 14 for a program that will take place in 1974.

Preparations were made in the form of the dedication of a time capsule which will be opened on the occasion of the University's centennial celebration. The capsule is a 600 pound shell casing which was obtained from the Navy during the summer.

The project is sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity at the university.

FOLLOWING THE unveiling of the shell by Doris Wade, senior from Vandalia and Charlotte Tucker, sophomore from East St. Louis, representatives of the student body, the faculty and administration, Alumni association, and 75th anniversary committee officially accepted the capsule.

Tom Sloan, a senior from West Frankfort and president of the student council, accepted the shell for the student body, and James Walker, a senior from Marion and president of Alpha Phi Omega, revealed the methods used in the preparation of the capsule.

Meal Ticket System Started at Canteen

A meal ticket costing $2.50 with trade value of $3.75 may now be obtained at the University Canteen, according to Miss Caroline Van Mason, director.

The tickets, which can be bought at the Canteen between 3 and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, are good for anything bought at the Canteen except at the fountain and in vending machines.

The tickets, which can be obtained only by Southern students, are good indefinitely.

The University cafeteria last fall began a meal ticket system which enables a person to obtain $7.50 in food for $5.

Meal tickets obtained at the Canteen will not be good at the cafeteria and vice-versa.

SIU Senior Gets Scholarship from Knights Templar

LaDonne Rhymer, SIU senior from Rosebud, was recently awarded the first scholarship to be awarded by the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of the State of Illinois, according to Leah Farr, dean of women.

The award, presented by Charles Pardee, assistant professor of history, and E. G. Lentz, university professor emeritus, was made available through the Knights Templar Educational Foundation. During the last convocation of the organization held in September, arrangements for the scholarship program were established and plans were made for the awarding of four scholarships in Illinois during the present year. To be eligible for the scholarship, a student must be a junior or senior, and possess high scholarship, qualities of leadership and a need for the award.

Miss Rhymer, a graduate of Golconda high school, is enrolled in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, and is majoring in English and minoring in geography.

Area Has Call For Livestock, Dairy Courses

Recent reports from the agriculture department at Southern Illinois University indicate that although Southern Illinois is especially noted for its fruit production, non-credit extension courses in livestock and dairy production are requested many times more often.

Alex Reed, assistant professor of agriculture, pointed out that the demand for the courses actually parallels the production in the area. "Southern Illinois is better known for its fruit production," he declared, "because the areas of production are more concentrated. In reality," he continued, "livestock and dairy products bring several times as many dollars to the southern 16 counties as does fruit and vegetable production."

LAST YEAR, the agriculture department offered nine non-credit courses in eight communities with a total enrollment of 425 persons. So far this year two courses have been completed and two are now in progress. The courses now in progress are held at West Frankfort and Metropolis. The two which have been completed were held in DuQuoin and Ashley. Enrollment for the four courses is approximately 200.

The classes meet for two hours one night a week for a period of six weeks. They are open to anyone who is interested in the courses.

Egyptian Tries An Experiment

The Egyptian this week is publishing an experimental issue by the offset method instead of the more expensive letter press method as it has in the past.

This issue was printed at the University Duplicating Service, headed by Warren Adams. Next Tuesday the Egyptian will resume publishing at the Carbondale Herald.

Press limitations have forced us to cut this paper to four columns instead of the usual five.

Offset printing is a process of printing from a flat surface in which the impression is first received by a rubber-surfaced cylinder, from which it is transferred to the paper.

Art Department Plans Move To Allyn Building

FTA To Have Rally Tuesday

About 1,000 letters have been mailed to all students in the College of Education urging them to attend a rally meeting of the Future Teachers of America Tuesday Jan. 9 in the Little Theatre at 7 p.m.

Wendell Kennedy, public relations director of the Illinois Education office, Springfield, will be guest speaker at the meeting.

The Southern chapter, which has a motto of "The only campus organization designed to make you a better teacher," has set as its goal "Beat Iowa State."

Iowa State, with 500 members in the FTA, is the nation's largest chapter. If only half those eligible join the local FTA, then Southern will become the nation's largest chapter, according to chapter president Marjorie Mason.

Dues, which entitle the member to membership in the NEA and the IEA together with subscriptions to the magazines of these organizations, are $2.50. Faculty sponsor is Roy V. Jordan.

Require Graduate Students

To Take Aptitude Tests

Aptitude tests will be given to beginning graduate students for the first time this year at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday afternoons, Jan. 6 and 13 in room 314 of Old Main. The tests are three hours in length and students are required to be present at both test sessions.

Graduate students who have not had the tests before or who are registering for the first time are required to take the aptitude tests. The examinations show achievement in the field in which a student is majoring and measure the student's ability to do graduate work. Graduate students taking the tests pay a fee of $3.

Within a few months, art students at Southern Illinois University are going to be in a position to develop their artistic talents to a greater degree than in the past. Plans have been made to convert one of the main campus buildings into a new and modern art department, according to Burnett H. Shryock, new art department chairman.

The Allyn building, which was constructed in 1907, and is serving as a training school, will house all studios, classrooms, and offices of the art department under one roof. With this new space and new additions to the art department faculty, the University will be better equipped to turn out qualified personnel in the advertising, industrial art, and art education fields.

USE OF THE building is being made possible by the completion of a new and much larger training school at the northwest corner of Southern's campus. Although the structure will be known as the Art building, some of the lecture rooms will be shared with other departments since University classroom space remains at a premium.

At present, the art department is located in three different buildings about the campus, and classes are taught in space that serves for storage and offices as well.

It is planned to use the basement of the Allyn building for classes in ceramics, sculpture, graphic arts, design, and drafting. It will also serve as a solution to the storage problem for valuable paintings, art equipment, materials, and supplies. Planned also for the basement is an experimental pigment laboratory where students can learn firsthand the mixing and makeup of colors.

THE FIRST floor will be made up of offices, painting and drawing studios and education work shops. The second floor will have a modernly equipped amphitheater style auditorium. Space in back of this will be used as a filing room for the large slide collection.

All space will be utilized with the halls used for exhibition galleries and the entrances to the building used as display areas.

Name Turner Acting Head Of SIU's Police Force

Leonard Turner has been named acting head of the university police force to replace John Thornton, Carbondale, a campus policeman here for several years, who died Christmas.

Another policeman, Robert Isham, suffered a broken ankle when he fell in the Canteen here last week.

This leaves the campus police with a force of four full-time policemen and five students.

Dark Horizon

As much as we hate to say it, the outlook for 1951 is the dimmest it has been for several decades.

The Korean conflict has brought us to the brink of a third World War—a war which undoubtedly would cripple the entire world and would set the United States standard of living back many years, even if we win. We are beginning to be plagued with shortages of materials and manpower.

OUR RECORD-BREAKING national debt is climbing higher and higher and even now threatens our entire economic system. Already we are beginning to lose many of our freedoms as the government imposes more and more controls on us to further regulate our complex life; censorship is being imposed more and more on newspapers and radio. If this trend keeps up (and it seems to have no end), then we may win a war, but in the process lose the basic freedoms for which we are fighting. Then what have we won?

War or no war, universal military training is on its way to take a couple of the best years from all able-bodied males.

DIVORCE RATES and crime rates are going up; our insane institutions are overcrowded. 1951 will bring us one step nearer the "Age of Fear" in which everyone mistrusts everyone else.

Perhaps the magazine which recently placed a clock on its front cover with the hands at one minute until 12, indicating that the world would not exist much longer, was right.

We agree with an Associated Press business writer who last week wrote that 1951 would be a good year just to sleep.

Pleasant Dreams

This "lost generation" which claims to live in the "Age of Fear" might do well to take another look at the prospects for 1951.

No, Grandpa didn't have to worry about the atom bomb—but, in the winter of 1918-19 a Spanish influenza killed seven times as many people in the United States as were killed in the Hiroshima atom blast.

Our sturdy pioneer ancestors didn't have a couple of years of their life used for universal military training—theirs was a constant and perpetual struggle with the Indians.

IT'S TRUE that divorce rates are going up. Grandad and Grandmom didn't get a divorce if they hated each other. It just wasn't done, and so they lived the rest of their lives making each other miserable.

It has been pointed out that our institutions for the insane are becoming overcrowded. In Grandpa's day, each family locked their insane members in the garret to live an animal existence with no chance of treatment and possible recovery.

Grandad likes to say that the younger generation is going to the dogs. In his day only about one out of every 2.4 persons was a registered member of any church. Now the ratio is up to one out of every 1.9, according to the "Christian Herald."

THE AMERICAN DOLLAR would buy about 3.2 times as much in 1900 as it will in this year of 1951. The young man of 1900 worked 42 hours to earn a suit of clothes. The average-income man of 1951 only works 27 hours to earn a better and longer lasting suit of clothes.

Grandpa didn't have to worry about so many government controls. Grandpa didn't have old age pensions, social security, weather bureaus, and modern sanitation.

Cancer and heart diseases cause more deaths than in former times, but those are diseases of old age and Grandad only lived to be 48.

If 1951 would be a good year just to sleep—"pleasant dreams!"

Another Feather

Mark up another advance for Southern! Following similar action taken by the university cafeteria last fall, the Canteen announced this week that a meal ticket worth $3.75 can be obtained for $2.50.

Although the meal ticket can't be used at the fountain, it is good indefinitely.

We think the university cafeteria plan is working out very satisfactorily. We see no reason why the new system at the Canteen should not, also, be successful.

Racial Tolerance Improves in 1950

By ROY L. CLARK

Since I've had time to think soberly (no pun intended) about it, 1950 wasn't such a bad year after all. I hate to appear inconsistent in my views, but I'm taking back most of the bad things I said about the old year. Though the Korean "Uprising" turned into a full scale war and the attempt on President Truman's life was a failure, all is not lost.

1950 brought Americans just a little closer to tolerance and racial understanding than they were when the year came in. It has been a long, slow uphill process all the way, but a lot of little things and a few big things indicate that some of us are still working towards the goal of racial harmony.

FOR THE FIRST time, in 1950 Negro soldiers were given front-page credit for a job well done on the battle field.

Negroes were allowed to vote in Arkansas without restrictions for the first time in the state's history.

The color line was successfully crashed in Washington, D. C.'s swimming pools.

Negroes were admitted to a couple of universities that before 1950 were lily-white.

Dr. Ralph Bunche, grandson of slaves, was awarded the Nobel peace prize.

THE RACE TAG was removed from blood plasma (incidentally, the process of converting blood into plasma was discovered by a Negro doctor.)

Nevertheless, the Talmadges and the Folsom's are still with us. Civil rights and FEPC are still "just around the corner," and there was very little if any progress made in Carbondale. There still isn't a restaurant or soda fountain downtown where a Negro can eat. We are still enclosed in the "Crow's nest" at both theaters. Skating and bowling (unless university sponsored) is still for whites only.

Maybe in 1951 the situation will improve—Let's hope so, anyway.

Sing and Swing Club

Elects Luber President

The Sing and Swing Club held its regular meeting Thursday, Dec. 14 and elected the following officers for winter term: president, Leon Luber; vice-president, Irene Persell; secretary, Rosanna Giltner; and treasurer, Jim Hart.

The Sing and Swing Club meets every Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Most of the winter meetings will be held in the Little Theatre. Anyone interested in folk dancing or folklore of Southern Illinois is invited to attend the meetings.

Anna Kloepper Receives Award

Anna Lou Kloepper, a sophomore from Cora, has recently received the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers scholarship which is awarded annually at Southern Illinois University.

To be eligible for the award, a student must possess one of the highest averages in the sophomore class and be a graduate of a high school that is affiliated with the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers. The student must also be preparing to enter the teaching profession.

MISS KLOEPPER is a graduate of Gorham high school and now possesses a grade point average of 4.85.

While in high school, she received four honor letters, the Balfour citizenship award, and the normal school scholarship award.

At SIU, she is majoring in mathematics with minors in English and social studies. She is working the maximum number of hours allowed by the university.

New Reporter Takes Over Egyptian During Holidays

(Editor's Note: The Egyptian acquired a new writer over the holidays! We welcome new writers and as is evidenced below, writing on the Egyptian is not limited to journalism majors and minors.)

BY SQUEAKY

Southern became a "ghost town," almost, during the holidays. The campus offices were even maintained by skeleton crews, and all the existing students agreed that as a whole the campus was a mere shadow of its former self.

Two lost week ends and what chance does a lowly mouse, left behind in a cold, forsaken Egyptian office, have to keep from falling into the evil ways of those gone before him? But I have always wanted to be a reporter. Or even an editor.

Last year J. Paul Sheedy agreed to spend the vacation with me, but he failed me miserably. I think perhaps he switched from Wild Root Cream Oil to Hadacol and went on to greater things ahead.

AS I SAID before, I was terribly lonesome during vacation. I particularly missed the Brenda Starrs of the Egyptian staff. Another reason why I have turned to reporting...a mouse must eke out a living one way or another.

A mystery was solved during the holidays. The "thing" is a mirror. There may be those who think nothing could be more horrible than seeing oneself in a mirror, but I, personally, believe I have the most beautifullest short ears and the longest whiskers in all mousedom!

Last week I went over to the Student Center to visit the mouse in the Obelisk office.

THE OBELISK mouse stood me up, so I visited around in the Center. Very nice place with all the comforts of home for the students who will take advantage of such luxuries...magazines, games, records, radio, cards, etc. Two Saturday Evening Posts and a Life later I decided to return to my office. Still nothing newsworthy to report.

Maybe I should write an editorial. The students of Southern are being misguided! This would make a beautiful headline on the front page. And the story would be all about the clock on the "beacon to guide us" which is now running, but isn't keeping the correct time yet. Probably wasn't set by the clock in University Drugs.

It's 1951 now, so I hereby resolve to stick to being just a mouse. A reporter's life isn't an easy one and anyhow the typewriter keys are too hard to hit. New Year's resolutions are nice. Wonder if the chemistry and English departments made any?

First Color Film Of Southern Made

Southern's first sound-technicolor movie, depicting life on the SIU campus and the value of the university to Southern Illinois, has recently been added to the audio-visual aids film library.

The color film, which is entitled, "From Normal School to Regional University," was produced by Donald Inqli, director of audio-visual aids, Gordon K. Butts, also of that department, in conjunction with the speech department.

The movie was written and directed by Wayne Mann, director of the alumni service, and Dr. C. Horton Talley, chairman of the speech department and is narrated by Buren C. Robbins, also of the speech department.

A NEW movie-making technique was employed by Inqli and Butts in the filming of the movie. Instead of recording the sound on the customary sound track of the film, a tape recorder was used. In showing the picture, the tape recording is synchronized with the movie projector, and the effect is, more or less, the same.

The film emphasized the importance of three elements, coal, oil and education, to the Southern Illinois area. It also traces the history of Southern's past presidents and the expansion of the school during their administrations, and follows four typical students through four years of college life, both social and academic, down to the day of graduation.

First showing of the film was at an alumni board dinner, and it has since been shown for several school organizations, as well as other interest groups in the area.

My Darling Jim,

You have only been gone for one day, but I miss you terribly already. This was the most wonderful Christmas that has ever been, and I needn't tell you that it was wonderful because of you.

Mother and Dad said to tell you hello, and that you're not to work too hard at school. Dad still can't understand how you beat him in that last game of chess.

I have played the records that you gave me for Christmas over and over again. You seem to be very near to me while I am playing them. "My Heart Cries For You" by Dinah Shore hits me exactly tonight. "Orange Colored Sky" by King Cole and "Harbor Lights" are records that I've been meaning to get ever since I first heard them.

My Little Brother would like for you to get "Hot Rod Race" by Jimmy Dolan, and "The Thing" by Phil Harris the next time you are in Williams store in Carbondale. He hasn't been able to find them here, and I told him that you would get them for him. He'll buy you for them.

Tell everyone at Southern Hello for me. Dad just wandered in and said that as long as you were getting those records for Donald at Williams store you might as well get him the "Dennese Waltz" by Patti Page.

I've got to prepare the lessons if I want to be able to teach the children anything tomorrow. Write soon!

All my love,

Mary

WHOT HOPPENED here? An unidentified Millikin university player distorts his mouth in reaching high for the basket while Southern's Tom Millikin (No. 38) plunges through like a hard-driving fullback. Meanwhile the basketball seems to run down the Millikin university player's arm. You figure it out; we're tired.

Kahmann Korner with Jim Kahmann

During the yule season, old Mr. Claus is supposed to be kind to everyone, but the basketball version of the aged gentleman was anything but kind to the Southern Maroons, as Lynn Holder's cagers lost four out of five roundball contests.

However, the Maroons played anything but pushovers over the holidays. In fact, they met some of the toughest opposition they will meet all season long. Evansville, Millikin, Wesleyan, and Murray State are all heralded as top cage contingents by prognosticators throughout the small-college Midwest. And apparently, these teams lived up to their reputations.

Southern eked out over Millikin here, 68-65, but dropped a heart-breaker to the Steagall men at Flora in a benefit game, 65-60. Evansville then romped over Holder's crew, 77-56 for the local boys' defeat of the current campaign.

However, probably the toughest defeat of the duet was the Maroons' 62-56 loss to Illinois Wesleyan here on the home court. This loss broke the Southern home winning streak. It was the first time a Southern basketball team has been beaten in Carbondale in two years. Murray State of Kentucky rated 30th in the nation, rounded up the Christmas record with a 76-61 defeat of Southern.

But as long as Southern was to have a losing streak, it is far better that it took place now, rather than later on in the season, with practically nil but conference games ahead. The Maroons take on Northern this Saturday at DeKalb, and will then embark on a long conference tour, meeting all teams of the IAC. Let's hope there are no more sustained losing streaks ahead for Lynn Holder's Maroons.

SIU Exposure Can Grades Set Standards?

(Editor's Note: This is first of a series of articles in which Reinert surveys faculty-student relations.)

By HARRY REINERT

The recent editorial in the Egyptian concerning grades has raised quite a bit of dust in various circles on campus—both pro and con. Surprisingly enough, the faculty and student body are not completely opposed on the issue, some faculty members agreeing at least in part with the editorial, and some students disagreeing. In the next few issues, we shall attempt briefly to review the field of faculty-student relations on campus. The topic of grades has already been pretty well worked over, so we shall not spend too much time on this particular ticklish question.

HOWEVER, THERE are some comments which might be made in connection with grades as a whole. The expressed purpose of a harder grading is to raise the standards of the university. No student worthy of the name is opposed to this. The question which has been raised, however, is whether lower grades alone will raise the standards. Rather, many students feel that a higher grade of teaching will solve the problem.

By this is meant, to a certain degree, somewhat more difficult courses. But it should be understood that this does not mean that the courses should be made harder only for the sake of difficulty. Rather, some subjects should be more condensed, the exams perhaps more comprehensive. But, the subject should be taught as clearly as possible, with ample opportunity for the student to ask questions and receive concise, clear answers. Many of the gripes of the students concerning their professors will be aired in the next column.

ONE OTHER point should be mentioned in direct relation to grades. This is the flagrant abuse of the present grading system employed by many departments at present, in which the majors get the highest possible grades, despite the quality of their work; and the non-majors are discriminated against, despite the quality of their work. Of all student complaints, this is undoubtedly the most justified. It will be mentioned in more detail later.

Claude Pickens, a former missionary to China, was guest speaker at a meeting of the International Relations club. The topic of his speech was Chinese-American relations.

Jan. 6 Deadline for Spring Student Teaching Forms

Formal application for spring term student teaching must be made by Jan. 6, according to Dr. Charles D. Neal, director of teachers training. Failure to do this will mean the student may not receive an assignment for spring term. Application blanks may be obtained from the teacher training office, administration barracks, Harwood Avenue.

Students wishing to teach must also have fulfilled prerequisites as listed in the university bulletin. These requirements include a physical examination which will be given by the health service during February. Each student must have completed this physical examination before he will be given a student teaching assignment.

Assignments of student teachers will be made one week prior to the pre-registration week for spring term.
