Slippery lesson

This wasn't the first time on ice skates for 7-year-old Mike Hunter, but it could have been. With a little help from his father, Mike starts out ok...but soon discovers that when one leg goes, the other goes, too. The learning experience took place Saturday afternoon on McLafferty Pond near the University Press. (Staff photos by Carl Wagner)

IBHE approves new tuition increase

By Kathleen Takemoto
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Illinois Board of Higher Education's (IBHE) approval of a $72.3 million operating budget recommendation for SIU-C represents an increase in state appropriations and a possible tuition hike.

The budget, approved by the IBHE Jan. 6, would give SIU-C almost $4.9 million more than last year's appropriation. However, the IBHE's statewide budget plan for fiscal year 1977 includes a controversial built-in tuition increase which would raise tuition for undergraduates by $60 and tuition for graduate students by $90. The tuition increase would provide an additional $1.5 million for SIU-C.

The IBHE's budget recommendations are subject to the approval of the Illinois state legislature, which convenes Wednesday, and the governor. College officials throughout the state have predicted problems getting approval for the recommendations because of the tuition increases.

"The SIU Board of Trustees has consistently opposed attempts by other authorities to mandate tuition levels for the University," said SIU-C President Warren W. Brandt, "and they have said that tuition increases shouldn't be used manipulatively as instruments for setting budgets."

Robin Roberts, chairman of the Association of Illinois Student Governments (AISG), announced a statewide petition drive by public college and university students to prevent the proposed tuition increase.

"We are particularly concerned that the Board of Higher Education took this action while most students were away from their campuses on semester break," Roberts said.

Many students will be forced to drop out or will be prevented from ever attending college if tuitions are raised, he said.

AISG, an affiliation of student organizations at 21 public colleges and universities in Illinois, conducted a successful petition drive against tuition hikes in 1973, Roberts said.

The source of the money for the operating budget also presents problems, Brandt said. Of the total amount, $61.2 million would come from state general revenue funds, while the University's own income fund would provide slightly over $11.1 million, an amount more than double the level of two years ago.

The University uses part of its income—largely from tuition—to help pay off dormitory and Student Center revenue bonds, which by law cannot be paid directly from state appropriations.

Brandt said some student fees will have to be raised to cover bond payments because the newly-proposed budget places more of a burden on income funds for other forms of University support, such as a proposed 7 percent salary increase.

Brandt said the budget recommendation "also ignores the fact that SIU-C's enrollment increased 11½ percent last fall. The pressure it has caused isn't being recognized; for that reason, the enrollment increase is effectively being used to hurt us."

The operating appropriations include $2.3 million for salary increases, $1.1 million for support of new academic programs, $494,000 for price increases, $381,000 to cover increase utilities costs, $252,000 for operation and maintenance of new buildings, $213,400 for civil service salary adjustments and about $200,000 for new equipment and other costs.

Recommended amounts for supporting new academic programs include $750,000 for the School of Medicine, $135,000 for expanded programs in the law school, $152,000 for coal research center-associated programs and $26,000 for a new master's degree in mining engineering in the School of Engineering and Technology.

The SIU-C School of Medicine has been allocated $750,000 for program support next year instead of the $4 million originally requested. "Among other things, this means we won't be able to take the increased numbers of residents and interns we'd planned for and it will mean a slowdown in growth patterns—including service to Southern Illinois—that we have outlined for years," Brandt said.

The cutback to the School of Medicine will hurt further because the school will lose $410,000 in federal "startup" money that it received last year, Brandt said.

Master Plan public hearing set

By Kathleen Takemoto
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) has scheduled a public hearing on Master Plan—Phase Four (MP4) from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 21, in Ballroom A of the SIU Student Center.

James Furman, executive director of the IBHE, said the hearings could be extended into a second day if necessary. MP4 is the IBHE's plan for the future of postsecondary education in Illinois.

The hearing in Carbondale will be the last of six public hearings scheduled throughout the state this month. The IBHE will review and consider all suggestions and recommendations made during the hearings at its February meeting. The board will then adopt a final master plan. The IBHE has been developing MP4 for two years.

Perhaps the most criticized aspect of MP4 is a recommendation for an increase in tuition rates at public universities and colleges in Illinois.

To help decrease an expected deficit of $56 million to $96 million, MP4 recommends that tuition rates for undergraduate students attending public universities should be set at one-third of instructional costs by 1980. Graduate student and non-resident tuition rates would be set even higher. MP4 also calls for limits on the number of tuition waivers granted by institutions.

The IBHE Student Advisory Committee has voiced strong opposition to the tuition recommendations, while IBHE members are split on the tuition issue.

SIU President Warren W. Brandt has said there is "no question" that a tuition increase suggested by MP4 would create a "sizeable burden" for students.

The SIU Student Senate unanimously approved a statement in December denouncing MP4. The statement specifically contested proposed tuition increases at state universities, direct and indirect aid to private state universities through the Illinois Financial Assistance Act and the lack of requirements for accountability for private state institutions.

MP4 has also been heavily criticized for alleged interference by the IBHE with the powers of the individual governing boards. Of 116 specific recommendations contained in MP4, 37 were labeled "non-acceptable to SIU" by the staff of the SIU Board of Trustees. Several other recommendations were labeled as questionable by the board staff.

FDA approves Rubin's sex-pot research

By Peggy Sagona
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has approved the marijuana-sex research project to be conducted by Harris B. Rubin, associate professor at the School of Medicine.

Rubin received the information in a letter Friday, leaving only one step left in the final approval of the project, to be made by the Drug Enforcement Administration of the Dept. of Justice.

The FDA approval certifies the safety of the subjects participating in the research. The final approval, made by the Dept. of Justice will protect the subjects from prosecution and from being identified.

"I expect the federal grant of immunity in about one week," Rubin said. "I don't see how the Dept. of Justice could deny me the grant after all the evaluation and investigation that has already taken place by experts in the state and federal agencies."

"It would be very difficult for the department to justify a denial," he added.

It is estimated that about 60 volunteers will be used as subjects for the experiment. All must be male and at least 21 years of age.

The subjects will be given controlled doses of the drug and then will view erotic films. Electronic devices will be attached to the genitals of the subjects, measuring their sexual responses.

It is required that all participants be users of marijuana and previously exposed to erotic films.

"Very extensive" physical and psychological testing will be administered to the subjects prior to the experimentation, Rubin said.

The tests will determine the stability of the individual and avoid "thrill-seekers," he said.

Volunteers will be paid $10 to $25 depending on the nature of the experiment and the session taking place.

"We are going in with no hypothesis, but simply want to find out what the drug does—we are making no predictions," Rubin said.

The research is scheduled to last two years with an estimated funding of $121,000 from the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

Rubin has had ten years experience studying sexual behavior. An article written by Rubin, "Effects of Alcohol on Male Sexual Responding," has just been submitted for publication in Psychopharmacologia.

The project has been going on except for the use of human subjects, Rubin said.

"The most important part of the research is the results and I hope there will be as much interest in the results of the study as there has been in the fact that I'm doing it."

Free School offers ground pilot training

A ground pilot training class is among new courses offered by the Free School for spring semester, director Anne Heinz said.

The course will offer ground school instruction to students before they take actual flight training in preparation for FAA license testing.

A class dealing with women's stretching and basic figure forming exercises is another new course to be offered. Heinz said exercise classes are some of the most popular in the Free School.

Also offered are classes in magic, video production, beginning drums, mime and clown makeup, Hare Krishna and tarot. Courses in metaphysics, pattern alterations, harmonica and landlord-tenant relations are tentatively planned, Heinz said.

Free School at SIU is one of eight such programs in the state, and according to Heinz, SIU has one of the best.

"We have some of the best instructors in the particular fields," she said.

All teaching at Free School is voluntary. "All of the money we spend goes for supplies needed for the classes," she said.

Heinz said nearly 700 people participated in the 30 classes offered during fall semester. She said this is about the average enrollment of other free schools in Illinois.

"When we published our recent magazine many more students became aware of the Free School and inquired about what courses were offered," Heinz said. "Interest in particular classes varies often."

Ogilvie tour promotes Ford

By Dana Henderson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie stopped in Carbondale Monday evening on a tour of the state promoting President Ford's bid for re-election.

Speaking at a press conference at Southern Illinois Airport, Ogilvie said that Ford has the support of most Illinois Republican officials and 10 of 11 Republican Congressmen from Illinois.

Ogilvie predicted Ford would beat challenger Ronald Reagan in the Illinois primary by a 2 to 1 margin. "The larger the voter turn out, the more he will win," Ogilvie said.

Arriving at 7:30 p.m., 30 minutes late, Ogilvie spoke for only 10 minutes before leaving for a dinner engagement with Southern Illinois Republican county chairmen at the Carbondale Holiday Inn.

In his seventh appearance of the day Ogilvie said 94 Ford delegates have filed for the March 16 Illinois primary and predicted that the maximum number will have filed by the cut-off date.

Accompanying Ogilvie on the tour was Bill Celeni, Ford's campaign coordinator for Illinois. Celeni said that at the moment Ford has no definite plans for visiting Southern Illinois but will be in Springfield February 12 for Lincoln's birthday.

Bo Callaway, Ford's national campaign manager, will be in Carbondale Feb. 18, Celeni said.

Ogilvie thinks the major issues in Illinois will be the state of the economy, especially unemployment, and farming issues.

Ogilvie told newsmen that he "couldn't understand how any farmer could vote for Reagan over Ford." Because of Reagan's stand against detente, he said, grain deals with Communist countries would become impossible.

Machines to be lifted

All vending machines will be removed from Morris Library Jan. 15 because of numerous problems caused by the machines, said Sidney Matthews, assistant library director.

Matthews said there have been continued problems caused by persons buying food and drinks at the vending machines and carrying their purchases into other parts of the library. Library material has been damaged in some cases because of food and drink spillage, Matthews said.

"We also had a case where someone bought soft drinks on the first floor and then sprayed the drinks all over the walls and floor on the third floor. And if you've ever tried to remove Coke from a carpet, you know that it's a tough job," said Matthews.

Matthews indicated that framed prints and books had been damaged by the apparently deliberate attack.

Problems of spillage and vandalism have continued despite earlier warnings that the machines might be moved if the problems weren't corrected, Matthews said.

"We also had cases where signs warning of the problem and asking for cooperation were ripped down," said Matthews. "All this translates into dollars."

End Angolan strife

By Cathy Tokarski
Editorial Page Editor

At a recent peace summit conference of the Organization of African Unity (OAU), leaders of Western-backed factions in the Angola civil war criticized the U.S. for their lack of military support, calling it an "abdication of American responsibility."

The Western-backed factions, the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA) and its ally, the National Front for the Liberation of Angola (NFLA), feel the recent Senate vote refusing military support will result in an increased advantage for the Soviet-backed Popular Movement.

While the UNITA and NFLA forces cite the obvious danger in allowing an unchecked build-up of Soviet forces in Angola to continue, the U.S. must approach this foreign policy question with extreme caution.

Most importantly, the U.S. should oppose giving military aid to Angola if it means becoming trapped in an ironclad commitment for years to come. The lessons of Viet Nam are not that far behind us so, we must view the situation realistically from the beginning.

Also, the U.S. should remember that neighboring Angolan countries (Zaire and South Africa) are also backing the anti-Soviet movement. Hence, should the U.S. decide to challenge the Soviet Union's threat by sending military aid to the anti-Soviet forces, the two superpowers of the world would be arming Africans to kill fellow Africans.

Fortunately, the OAU is currently attempting to find a way to bring an end to the fighting in Angola. The only way the newly independent country will achieve this peace is when the factions join together in a coalition to create a unified government.

Hopefully, the OAU will employ some amount of patience and compromise in these peace summit meetings and bring an end to the civil war in Angola

UN debate stifled

By Diana Cannon
Editorial Page Editor

On the diplomatic level of international relations, the possibility of peace in the Middle East increased this week as the Palestine Liberation Organization proved it officially exists to the United Nations.

On the street level of warfare, the Palestinians further demonstrated their reality when 5,000 of them attacked a Christian blockade to reach two cut-off refugee camps in Lebanon. The dead numbered about 50.

The PLO's path from the dirt floors of refugee tents to the speaker's floor in the UN Security Council debate has been long and bloody. This first recognition of the group as a representative of the Palestinian people is an implicit event.

Israel implies anger by boycotting the debates. Asked to confront the battlefield enemy in a political arena, the Israeli delegates refused "to negotiate our own suicide."

The United States implied it would not cooperate by threatening to veto before the debate even began. Ford administration officials said diplomatic steps had been taken to ensure that the Arab countries would not misunderstand the American position.

Three pipe bombs planted near the UN library implied that despite diplomatic insensitivity, the situation is deadly. The bombs, discovered and deactivated, were timed to explode shortly before the afternoon session. No group has yet claimed responsibility.

The resolutions up for debate call for direct peace talks and withdrawal from Arab lands captured in the 1967 war. The U.S., however, pledges to veto any resolution that dictates that the PLO participate in the Geneva talks or that sets new conditions for an over-all settlement. The U.S., in other words, would deny a voice in the search for peace and would refuse to recognize the reality of a growing war, unsolved by any previous negotiations.

The PLO resents the wording of a UN resolution, concerned with the "interests" of Palestinian refugees. They would change it to refugee "rights." The U.S. considers that a humanitarian, not a political distinction, and continues to defend Israel's interests unflinchingly.

If peoples' lives aren't the strongest concern at the United Nations, then American interests should notice that Israeli interests do not unconditionally coincide with their own.

In the long run, it is not in American interests to alienate millions of Arabs and members of the Third World over the question of Palestine.

The purpose of diplomacy is to reach a better understanding of everyone's grievances, and if the world knows more about the PLO after the UN debate, that is progress. How can we learn anything by refusing to talk about it?

The purpose of diplomacy, the PLO should remember, is also to prevent terrorism.

Carbondale bankers take advantage of youthful and unaware student client

By Dana Henderson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Students of Carbondale beware. There lurks in this burg a creature so low as to take advantage of your youthful innocence and leave you facing the expenses of survival penniless. Residing in their air-conditioned and carpeted fortresses ready to pounce upon the unsuspecting and uninformed are the keepers of the money, the bankers.

For the sake of what the banks advertise as convenience, I was lured into one of these carpeted halls recently. Because of a recent move off-campus, I found that one needs either cash or a local checking account to buy necessities.

Believing this was no problem, I took $45 in cash from my home town bank, a $200 check from my parents and an $81 check from a summer employer and went to open an account in Carbondale.

The army of underlings in the back of my choice were all smiles. "Happy to be able to serve you. Glad to have you as a customer," they said. "Oh—by the way, unless you want to pay us a dollar to call the bank these checks are drawn on, you won't be able to write checks for more than the $45 cash in your account for 10 days."

I was stunned. I hesitated and then lamely said that 10 days was okay and no I didn't want to pay a dollar. After I got outside I started thinking of all the things I should have said, like hell no, it's not okay and where does this place get off taking $326 of my money and then asking me for a dollar to call and find out if it's real.

Kicking myself for not telling them where to go and getting my money back, I went back to my apartment to figure out how I was going to buy food, books and get a phone installed on $45, plus why it took 10 days for a supposedly efficient organization to mail in inquiry and process a reply to find out I wasn't a swindler.

In the next 10 days $20 went for food and $25.04 for books, making me four cents overdrawn on the $45 my bank said was still mine. The same day as my transgression, I called the bank asking if the $25.04 check would bounce if it came in before the ten days were up and was flatly informed "of course."

Wondering what kind of insensitive monster I had given my money to and more than slightly steamed, I scraped together exactly four cents, and with an extra amount of flare plus deposit slip, went to my bank.

On the morning of the tenth day, I made my way to the keeper of my money with a check for $16.

Shoving the check through the teller's window I said in as calm a tone as I could muster, that I would like to cash this check. With an indifferent "one moment please" the teller took the check and retreated to the record books. After a moment she returned with her pasted-on smile and said, "I'm sorry sir but I can't cash this. There is still a hold on your account."

I stood at the teller window sure that there was some mistake. But it's been 10 days. That's how long it was supposed to be, I stuttered. I tend to stutter when enraged.

With the same pasted-on smile—maybe even slightly bigger she said, "Oh I'm sorry sir, that's 10 working days or two weeks."

What could I say? Should I shout to all the customers that in this age of automation, supposedly speeding everything up, it's disgraceful that this bank can't send an inquiry 150 miles to another bank and receive a reply in less than two weeks? Instead, I grabbed my check, and trudged out the door.

Four days later I tried again and was finally rewarded for my allowing them to serve me with $10 of my money.

One of my older friends, a veteran of three semesters of off-campus living and three years of local banking, explained, "The banks trying for student business, by extending bank hours and offering checking accounts that can be opened for small sums of money and some type of free checks, use extra safeguards to prevent bad checks and raise the minimum balance required for free checking to a level impossible for most students to meet because of small budgets," he said.

My friends warned me, too late. Now I'm warning anyone thinking of dealing with local banks. Beware.

"I DON'T UNDERSTAND IT. I SPENT TWELVE DOLLARS ON A NO HAIRCOT HAIRCOT, FIFTEEN DOLLARS ON PRE-FARDED BLUE JEANS, THIRTY-FIVE DOLLARS ON EARLY SHOES, FORTY CENTS ON BREATH TABLETS, AND SHE STILL THINKS I'M SUPERFICIAL!"

Study trip series for SIU-C set

A new course series called "Adventure 1976" will give SIU-C students a chance to travel and earn graduation credits at the same time.

Barbara Litherland of the Division of Continuing Education announced trips scheduled during the spring and summer will take students to the western United States, Mexico, Europe and Scandinavia.

The first of the courses will begin May 13 with a one-month stay in the western United States. Students enrolling in Zoology 496 will travel in vans to Phoenix, Ariz., San Diego, Calif., and Boulder, Colo., where they will study the desert, mountains and marine ecology. Cost of the three-credit hour course is $340.

Spanish language, literature, anthropology and history will be offered during an eight-week stay at Universidad Veracruzana in Xalapa, Mexico. Students will live in private homes while in Mexico. The cost of the trip, beginning June 9, is $719 which includes transportation by van. European schools and educational programs will be studied in a four-week tour beginning June 7. The program will include trips to Holland, England, Germany and Switzerland. Cost of the trip is $1,178.

A two-to-three week travel study session to Copenhagen, Denmark, will begin June 17. It will allow participants to compare and contrast adult and continuing education of Denmark with that of the United States. The course will offer three credit hours under Secondary Education 430-Workshop in Adult and Continuing Education. Cost of the course is $688.

West Central Europe will be the site for students interested in studying various earth sciences. Beginning June 14, they'll travel to Germany, Great Britain, Iceland, Switzerland, Austria and other countries. Cost of the trip is $1,678.

Ms. Litherland said package prices will include travel, lodging and one meal a day. Some prices may vary because of airline fare increases. Students will also be required to pay $18 per semester hour.

In colleges or industry... does "big" mean "bad"?

You go to a big college, because it offers you certain advantages you want and need. You may have a brother or sister who prefers a small college—and for their own very good reasons, too. Shouldn't we be as open-minded when we weigh the merits of big vs. little (or medium-sized) business? Realizing every citizen has "a need to know," The Business Roundtable sponsors messages on how our American free enterprise system works. This month they will reason with the country's largest reading audience, in Reader's Digest.

ADVERTISEMENT

★ Too Big or Not Too Big? ★

A FUNNY thing happened to John Hertz's little rental lot in Chicago... to Roland H. Macy's "fancy dry goods" store in New York... and to the Hoover people, in Ohio, once they started making that tin and wood "electric suction sweeper."

Their small businesses became big businesses.

Why? Because they filled a need. They did the job. People liked the way they did business, and their businesses grew.

Such growth, a logical and even necessary phenomenon in the private-enterprise system, seems sorely misunderstood today. "A growing volume of criticism equates bigness with badness," says Randall Meyer, president of Exxon Co. U.S.A. "Big business" is portrayed as a monster born full-grown, determined to snuff out little competitors and run roughshod over consumers.

Neither the historical record nor the economic and social realities of America today support such a view. Big business has not "cornered" the U.S. marketplace and work force. Bureau of Census statistics show that only 12,169 of more than three million U.S. businesses are "big"—that is, employ more than 500 people—while there are 1,722,250 small businesses with one to three employees. The "big" businesses employ 15.6 million workers out of a total work force of 86.6 million.

Nor has big business cornered the nation's wealth. The approximately 5 percent of American wealth (property, plant and equipment, and inventories) held by U.S. manufacturing corporations with assets of $1 billion or more is slightly less than those companies had a decade ago.

Fears of big business often stem from lack of understanding of the basic economic reasons why some businesses grow big and others stay small. Big jobs, like the production of steel, chemicals or great quantities of such complex products as automobiles or television sets, require huge investments of capital, raw materials and managerial and technical skills. Indeed, looking to the world problems of energy, natural resources and the environment, one must conclude, as has noted historian C. Northcote Parkinson, that big business must grow bigger because "the research that underlies the discoveries, whether geophysical in Alaska, or chemical in West Germany, demands a scale of investment that is beyond the reach of the family firm."

But sometimes even relatively simple products, like razor blades or chocolate bars, require "bigness" because of the enormous markets that exist for them. Then, too, we are living in an age when the efficiency of bigness, the "economy of scale" as it is called, is vital if companies are to remain competitive. This is especially true where the competition consists of huge foreign combines backed heavily by their governments' treasuries. General Motors may account for 43 percent of U.S. auto sales, but it has only 22 percent of the world market. U.S. Steel is a domestic giant, but it has a tough time against such foreign concerns as Japan's Nippon

It's time for facts—rather than illogical fears—about "big" business

Steel, the world's largest steelmaker. This same situation is faced by big American companies in other fields as they compete in a global market against giants such as Royal Dutch Shell, in petroleum and chemicals; Unilever, the huge British-Dutch food and detergent firm; Nestlé, the vast Swiss corporation. The enormous research and development required to compete in such markets is simply beyond the means of small companies.

On the other hand, there are innumerable tasks—the sale of consumer goods and services, home and automobile repairs, restaurants, to name a few—that can be handled efficiently by both small and large businesses in a local area.

It is important to realize that businesses big and little carry out their tasks in a vital atmosphere of interdependence. Small businesses, for example, would be much less prosperous without the tools, raw materials, finished and semi-finished products they purchase from big firms. As Leo McDonough, executive vice president of the Smaller Manufacturers Council (comprising 575 companies), says, "If there weren't a U.S. Steel or a Jones & Laughlin spitting out fantastic amounts of steel and keeping prices down, our basic-materials costs would be out of reach."

But big companies need little companies, too. In a typical year, 3M Co. uses products and services from more than 30,000 small businesses—such as Gopher Electronics Co., in Minneapolis, and Calumet Screw Machine Co., in Chicago. Hewlett-Packard Co. deals with 600 small American companies in its electronics business.

But what about competition? Aren't the big boys stamping it out and virtually dictating prices? No. There are many energetic, clever people making a success in business despite the presence of "big guys" in the same field. Robert Cuff, president of Entron Controls, Inc., in Carol Stream, Ill., proudly points out that his industrial-controls manufacturing firm can and does compete with the giants in certain areas. It has even sold control devices to some of General Electric's own corporate divisions. Says Cuff, "They buy from us—even though GE makes a similar product—because we can build it at a lower price and give faster delivery."

Remarks Irvine Robbins, of giant Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream Co.: "Sometimes when we get big, we get a little lazy, a little complacent." When his company grew big by concentrating on "walk-in, walk-out" ice-cream stores, Farrell's of Portland, Ore., moved profitably into the same market as BR with sit-down soda-fountain parlors. "They woke us up," says Robbins. "So we started concentrating on the fountain end of our business. The result was that we improved a little, and Farrell's is doing fine, too."

As to the charge that big business artificially keeps prices high, the facts again rip apart the rhetoric. A study by economist J. Fred Weston, of the University of California, Los Angeles, reveals that the heavily concentrated industries (big business) have held prices down better than smaller and less concentrated ones. In industries where the top four companies had at least 75 percent of the business, prices rose an average of 47 percent during the inflationary period 1967-1975. But in the least-concentrated sectors of industry, prices rose 70 percent in the same period. Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers, admits: "The old anti-trust notion—that, if you break things up into small competitive units, you will have lower competitive prices—may be wrong. General Motors, the biggest car producer, is without question the most efficient and most able to hold down the cost of its products."

Whatever their size, in the end, businesses in America must pass the test imposed by the most affluent and sophisticated consumers in the world. Any business must affirmatively answer those old questions: Does it do the job? Does it deliver the goods? Does it satisfy you?

HEW to block funding due to Amoros case

By Ken Temkin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU has received notice from the Department of Health Education and Welfare (HEW) that official actions by that office to bar SIU from receiving over $5 million in federal funding may begin soon.

The action is a result of charges made in 1971 by Marissa Canut-Amoros, a former SIU professor of applied sciences, alleging that SIU denied her equal pay, research awards, teaching assignments, changes in sabbatical leave and that her resignation from the School of Engineering and Technology was used to deprive her of SIU employment—all because of her sex.

SIU Legal Counsel John W. Huffman said Tuesday that in discussions regarding the case held approximately one month ago between his office and HEW, SIU was unofficially informed that it would soon be receiving disbarment notice from HEW—the first step in a process which could lead to the removal of over $5 million in federal aid to SIU.

The University has not yet received the disbarment notice although Huffman said Tuesday that he is expecting it to arrive within the next two to three weeks.

A spokesman for the HEW Civil Rights Division, Barry Anderson, refused to comment on the status of the disbarment notice nor any other aspects of current negotiations saying "such disclosures would impair successful negotiation of the case."

Huffman said Tuesday that the issuance of the disbarment notice does not automatically mean that SIU will lose the $5 million in federal funding. Rather, he said, the disbarment notice will give SIU a chance to schedule a hearing with HEW on the facts of the Canut-Amoros case. "Something," he said, "we have never had the opportunity to do on the federal level."

Huffman said, upon receipt of the disbarment notice, SIU will have 14 days to appeal to HEW for a hearing. If SIU does not appeal it would stand to lose the $5 million in federal funding without further hearings. But Huffman said

Tuesday that his office will request a hearing from HEW. "We feel the University's position throughout has been correct," Huffman said.

In late October SIU received notification from HEW that the department had rejected the University's defense in the sex bias case.

The University had based its defense, in part, on a settlement offer made by SIU to Canut-Amoros and approved by HEW in 1973—HEW having later withdrawn its approval of the settlement.

The University has contended that this initial settlement offer and approval by HEW shows that the University has complied with HEW rulings and has made an acceptable offer in good faith.

WSIU nets $9,271 in fund-raising drive

A fund-raising drive staged in mid-December to collect money for public radio and television programming in the Southern Illinois area netted $9,271 in pledges from more than 600 viewers and listeners of the WSIU broadcasting system.

SIU-C's television stations WSIU-TV (Ch. 8, Carbondale) and WUSI-TV (Ch. 16, Olney), along with WSIU's radio station (FM 91.9) are benefactors of the money pledged during SIU-C's second television telethon.

Virginia Mampre, program production manager at WSIU-TV, said that although the goal of $10,000 was not reached, station personnel were delighted with the outcome.

"We were very happy with the results," she said. "The money pledged shows that our audience is growing and that people out there are interested in what we're doing."

Those pledging $10 or more received a membership in the Friends of WSIU organization, a group formed to support SIU's public broadcasting stations. Members receive a monthly television listing and quarterly radio program schedule.

"We actually doubled the number of Friends members we recruited last year during the telethon and were quite pleased about that," Ms. Mampre said.

She said the money pledged will be used to purchase new programs from the Public Broadcasting System, to better existing programs and to purchase equipment.

Wheels give Timmy a look at new world

By David Rieder
Student Writer

Timmy (not his real name) was at the Archway School for multiply disabled children last spring. This five-year-old was born without any bone structure in his back. He was unable to sit up, except occasionally when he was supported in a

How, why of gadgets due study

Study of why the car won't start, the toaster won't toast, and fuses constantly blow will be part of the course content of Design 103.

"People no longer control their gadgets, their gadgets control them," says Rich Archer, instructor of "The Way Things Work."

"This will be a non-technical course not aimed at repairing things, but understanding how they work," explained Archer, former appliance repairman.

The course will be for the average person without extraordinary skills. Archer said the course probably won't cost more than $10 and at least that much could be saved the first time someone takes their hair-dryer apart and finds a hairpin inside. During the class, actual appliances will be taken apart and discussed.

When a person knows how to find what is wrong, Archer says, he can save money by not paying for an unnecessary work. For example, the refrigeration unit of air conditioners usually doesn't need repair, he explained. The switch or the fan motor usually wears out, but both can be replaced easily and rather inexpensively.

Archer said his experience as a repairman was that one-third of all refrigerator service calls were for blown fuses. A service call costs about $15, he noted.

The course, which was almost entitled "Survival in Today's Environment," will meet from 3:35 to 4:50 on Tuesdays and Thursdays in Lawson Hall, Room 131. Three hours of credit will be given.

Pharmacy in new location

The SIU Health Service pharmacy and administrative offices have been moved into newly renovated space at 112 Small Group Housing, formerly a fraternity house.

Samuel McVay, director of the SIU-C Health Service, said the expansion move will provide more room in the present building for laboratory and x-ray service plus additional space for physicians' examining rooms which will occupy most of the second floor.

The former fraternity house, renovated at a cost of about $152,000, will also provide space for four of five Law School faculty offices, office space for the law review and administrative space for the law library.

Fee deferment forms available

Tuition and fee deferments for students who have pre-registered for spring semester will be available at the Student Life Office until noon Jan. 17.

The office will be open Jan. 14, 15 and 16 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. It will be open from 8 a.m. to noon Jan. 17.

Tuition and fee deferments for late registering students will be available until February 6.

wheelchair. He couldn't move the wheelchair himself and was known as "poor little Timmy."

An advanced design student from SIU covered a piece of plywood with carpeting and fastened casters to the bottom. He attached Velcro adhesive strips to the device and across Timmy's waist and shoulder blades. Timmy was laid face down where he found he could propel himself with his hands and legs on the "crawler."

"Once he found he was mobile, he found there was a whole world there," said Larry Busch, assistant professor of design. "Now they call him 'Timmy the terrible,' because he terrorizes the place. This device radically changed his life," Busch said.

This is one of over 100 devices the design department has created in the past two and a half years for the Archway School and the Hurst Care Center.

The Archway School, located on Tower Road in Carbondale, is a children's education center which works with the multiply disabled up to about six years old, according to Busch. Hurst Care Center is located in Hurst, about nine miles northeast of Carbondale, and works with children from six to eighteen years old.

The size of the device varies. Rich Archer, instructor of design, said. Some are small enough to hold in hand. A special spoon for multiply disabled children is currently being developed.

The action of lifting food into the mouth is a very complicated motion," Archer said. The new spoon is larger than normal and designed to prevent food from spilling out as the child brings it to his mouth.

One of the larger projects was also constructed for Timmy. After staff members at Archway observed Timmy's response to the crawler, they realized that he had a greater learning capacity than they had anticipated. The staff and design students decided that an electronically controlled folding bed and moveable table were needed for Timmy's learning environment.

If the bed and table were bought, it would cost about $4,800 and have to be adapted to Timmy's needs, Busch said, so an alternative was sought.

The bed and table were built and a convertible top motor was found in an auto-wrecking yard and converted to raise and lower the bed. The table utilizes a six-way power seat motor control.

"It has increased his world tremendously," Busch said. "He's highly active and curious about his environment."

Very little equipment is commercially available for multiply disabled children. This is partially because each child has a different set of disabilities, so equipment that can be used must be adapted to each child, Busch explained.

Only two books are available that cover this type of construction, and the designs only work in a few cases, he added.

These projects began about two and a half years ago when five design students came to Archer requesting a real project that would accomplish some good, Archer explained. One of the students' friends worked at Archway and suggested they try to design something for one of the children. The first few projects were constructed from the students' own money. After the Southern Illinois Association for Low Incidence Handicap found out what was being done, research grants which are still continuing began to come in.

The students and staff have solved some problems that "the doctors didn't think were possible," Archer said.

Campus Briefs

The SIU Cycling Club will hold a reorganization meeting at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 22 in Student Center Activities Room A. Michael Jenkins, club president, said all cyclists, not just racers, are invited. Plans for spring semester include weekly rides, three long tours and a complete racing schedule.

Brockman Schumacher, professor and coordinator of rehabilitation counselor training in the SIU Rehabilitation Institute, has been appointed to the Citizens Advisory Council to the Illinois Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities by LeRoy P. Levitt, department director. The council reviews community agencies' requests for grant and aid funds and advises the director on grant and aid awards and on the department's five-year plan.

Walter Danliker, of the Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation, La Jolla, Calif., will speak on "Fluorescence Polarization Studies of Hormone Receptors" at 4 p.m. Friday in room 218c Neckers Building. Danliker's talk is sponsored jointly by the Departments of Chemistry and Physics and Astronomy.

Edwin C. Galbreath, professor of zoology, has been invited to contribute a paper as part of a Nebraska State Museum memorial volume to be published in honor of C.B. Schultz, a leading researcher in the field of vertebrate paleontology.

Works of art by first-year graduate art students will be exhibited at Mitchell Gallery from Jan. 19 to Feb. 13. The exhibit, which opens with a public reception from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday, will feature a variety of works by more than 30 students. Mitchell Gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

W.D. Klimstra, director of Cooperative Wildlife Research, has been appointed to the Advisory Council on Reclamation by Gov. Dan Walker.

Walter Borst, assistant professor of physics and astronomy, presented a paper on long-lived excited mercury atoms at the Atomic Physics meeting of the American Physical Society, held in December in Tucson, Ariz.

An article by David M. Vieth, professor of English, appears in the current issue of Huntington Library Quarterly. The article is entitled "Psychological Myth as Tragedy: Nathaniel Lee's Lucius Junius Brutus."

Four faculty members from the English Department attended the annual convention of the Midwest Modern Language Association held Nov. 6 to 8 in Chicago. They are Herbert Donow, M. Byron Raizis, Hans H. Rudnick and Howard W. Webb Jr.

Frank Konishi, chairman of the Food and Nutrition Department, joined the editorial board of the "Journal of Nutrition" Jan. 1. The monthly publication is the official publication of the Society of Nutrition Education.

Lynn Walsh, senior in interior design, has been named as one of five winners in the Institute of Business Designers third annual student design competition. Walsh received a gift and a certificate for her project along with a special invitation to the institute's student rally scheduled for Feb. 4 to 6 in High Point, N.C.

SIU site for U.S. coal lab

Plans for a $1.5 million federal Bureau of Mines coal research center to be based at SIU-C were announced recently by Joseph Yancik, research director of the Bureau of Mines.

The center will be separate from the SIU Coal Extraction and Utilization Research Center but the units will have a close working relationship, he said.

The new center is expected to rank in size with four other centers operated by the bureau. It is expected to be fully operational in about five years.

"We'll assemble a small staff at first and they'll work out a five-year plan. There is an awful lot of work involved in setting up a center of this kind," Yancik said.

Yancik said that the SIU-C-based station will deal with research and development problems linked with coal mining in the Illinois basin area (Illinois, southwestern Indiana and western Kentucky).

Yancik cited exploration, mine development, extraction problems, reclamation, health and safety techniques, and mine technology as some of the studies that figure in long-range plans for the center.

Funding of $1.5 million for first year operation of the new facility was part of a Department of the Interior appropriations bill that President Ford signed on Dec. 23.

Sidney Marder, director of the Illinois Department of Business and Economic Development's energy division, said that the first year's funding will be for equipment and personnel. Funding for permanent construction is expected later.

The center will be set up at one of two campus sites, said Frank Horton, vice-president for academic affairs and research at SIU-C. Either a building in the Small Group Housing area or a former residence on South Washington Street near the edge of campus.

Joseph Brennan, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, said Southern Illinois can expect an increase in coal production during the next decade.

"It will be a microcosm of the coal industry of the United States, an industry which is just now coming into its own after almost a half century of gross national neglect," Brennan said at a meeting of the Illinois Basin Coal Mining Manpower Council at SIU recently.

During the council's meeting, Charles Harrison, council chairman, gave SIU President Warren Brandt a $2,000 check from the Amax Foundation to support coal mining-related education programs.

Betty Boop creator to appear

Pulitzer Prize-winning poetry, the Bard and Betty Boop, and a couple of nights filled with dancing and a lot of jazz have been scheduled for spring semester by University Convocations. Other events may be added later.

The performances will be at 8 p.m. in Shroyck Auditorium. They will be free and open to the public.

Gwendolyn Brooks, poet laureate of Illinois, will read from her works Jan. 26. Her visit is being co-sponsored by Black American Studies. She won the Pulitzer Prize in 1950 for "Annie Allen," a volume of poems.

Jazz Impact, under the direction of trumpeter Harold Lieberman, will lead a musical exploration of the history of jazz, Jan. 30. The six-man group will emulate the styles of Jelly Roll Morton, Dizzy Gillespie, Charlie Parker and Miles Davis, among others.

Leonard Maltin, author of several books on films, will speak Feb. 20 on the American animated cartoon, specifically Max Fleischer, creator of Betty Boop, Popeye and other characters. The films committee of Student Government Activities Council is co-sponsoring his appearance.

The Don Redlich Dance Company

is scheduled to spend a half-week of residency at SIU-C in early March, and will appear in concert at Shroyck on a date to be set later. One of the members of the contemporary dance company is Barbara Roan, daughter of Herbert Roan, lecturer in the Design Department.

The residency is in collaboration with the Theater Department, Academic Affairs, Graduate School, Graduate Student Council, SIU Foundation, the College of Education, Southern Repertory Dance Company, Student Government, Illinois Arts Council and the National Endowment of the Arts.

"Dandelion Wine," Ray Bradbury's haunting memoir-as-novel, will be presented in a new theater version April 13. The work is Bradbury's ode to the summer of 1928 when 12-year-old Douglas Spaulding awakens to the possibilities of life and the inevitability of death. The play is presented in collaboration with the Illinois Arts Council.

San Francisco's New Shakespeare Company will lose "The Tempest" on the traditional birthdate of the playwright, April 23. The company has performed twice before at SIU-C.

Bus to haul returnees

Free bus service will be available from the Amtrak Station to SIU residence halls Jan. 17 and 18, Harvey Welch, dean of student life, has announced.

The buses will shuttle new and returning students from the station to Brush Towers, the Wall Street Quads, Wilson Hall, Thompson Point, Small Group Housing and Stevenson Arms.

One bus will operate at 2:30 and 11:30 p.m. Jan. 17, and three buses will be used at the same times Jan.

18. Welch said free coffee and food will also be available at the train station for the students.

"The idea of the program is to make the busing service available to the most students possible and to provide a very useful and needed service to the students," Welch said.

Welch said the program, under the direction of Nancy Harris of the Student Activities Office, was also used following Thanksgiving break last semester.

Scholarships granted

Columbia professor to lecture

R. Freeman Butts, professor emeritus of Columbia University, will deliver the fourth annual George S. Counts Lecture Jan. 29.

Butts, who recently retired from the prestigious William F. Russell Professorship of the Foundations of Education at Teachers College, served on the faculty of Columbia University for some 40 years.

The George S. Counts Lecture series was begun in 1973, soon after Counts' retirement from SIU-C. He served as distinguished visiting professor in the SIU-C College of Education for nine years after a long and distinguished career at Columbia University. He died in November of 1974.

Like Counts, Butts traveled extensively and established a reputation in the fields of comparative education and the social foundations of education. He is the founder of the American Education Studies Association and has served as president of both the Comparative and International Education Society and the National Society of College Teachers of Education.

Counts, perhaps best known as an expert on comparative education, spent considerable time in Russia and his book, "The Challenge of Soviet Education," received the American Library Association Liberty and Justice Award as "the most distinguished book of 1957 in contemporary problems and affairs."

Other lecturers in the series have been Joseph A. Lauwerys, professor emeritus of the University of London; Harold Taylor, former president of Sarah Lawrence College; and Lawrence Cremin, president of Teachers College.

Butts' lecture is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Jan. 29, in the Student Center Auditorium. It is free and open to the public. A dinner honoring Mrs. Counts and Butts will precede the lecture, beginning at 6 p.m. at the Student Center.

Program expanded for refugee tutoring

A volunteer tutoring program for Vietnamese refugees will be expanded spring semester according to Keith Pharis, instructor in the University's Center for English as a Second Language (CESL).

About 38 refugees were tutored during fall semester by nine unpaid volunteer teachers, said Pharis. "We'll have two more volunteer teachers, and we'll have at least three classes instead of the two we had in fall semester. The tutoring will start again Jan. 19."

Most of the refugees are older than 25, he said, and have special problems in learning English that youngsters don't. In addition, Pharis said, only seven or eight of the students in the program attend public schools.

"There's a definite need for the program," he said. "The only other facility in the area equipped to do the job is CESL itself—and it has to charge tuition." He said all of the students are members of Vietnamese families. "Most of them cannot afford to spend all of their time learning a language. Most are working. Some of the people are responsible for families. Even most of the young kids have full-time jobs."

The classes met Monday through Thursday nights at Pulliam. SIU-C allowed the volunteers to use classroom space without charge, said Pharis.

"In the class I've been teaching—for those who are highly motivated—there's been a tremendous amount of progress," he said.

Nine of the students who are interested in attending SIU-C plan to take language tests required before foreign students can be admitted to the University. "If a couple of the kids get into the University that would be a real success story."

Club plans bird lecture

Frank C. Bellrose, wildlife specialist with the Illinois Natural History Survey, will present a lecture at the Giant City Lodge on Jan. 30 at 7:30 p.m.

Bellrose's lecture on Taking the Mystery Out of Bird Migration is being sponsored by the Southern Illinois Audubon Society.

The lecture will be preceded by a family style chicken dinner at 6:30 p.m. Reservations for the dinner are needed by the society before Jan. 19. No reservations are needed for the lecture.

Auditions for plays scheduled

Auditions have been set for the first two Calipre Stage productions of the spring semester.

Auditions for "Chester The Concert Cricket," a children's show, will be held in the Calipre Stage on Tues. Jan. 20 from 3 to 5 p.m. and Wednesday, Jan. 21 from 7 to 9 p.m. The show, adapted and directed by Kim Brewster, will be presented Feb. 13, 14 and 15.

Open auditions will also be held for Ray Bradbury's "Fahrenheit 451" on Thursday, Jan. 22, from 7 to 10 p.m. and on Friday, Jan. 23 from 1 to 3:30 p.m. at the Calipre Stage. This Chamber Theatre adaptation, directed by William DeArmond, will be produced March 4, 5, 6 and 7.

Other Calipre productions for the semester include a two-part bill entitled "Your Word Against Mine" which includes a compiled script "ACROSTIC" directed by Karen Mitchell and a Chamber Theatre production of Flannery O'Connor's "The Comforts of Home" directed by Judy Yordon. Production dates are April 1, 2, 3 and 4.

Lewis Carroll's "Alice Through the Looking Glass" directed by Lynn Bradley, will bring the season to a close with productions set for April 29 and 30 and May 1 and 2.

In addition to the major productions, student reading hours will be presented on Jan. 30 and May 7. Undergraduates and graduate students in the Department of Speech will perform. The reading hours are free and open to the public.

Cagers keeping pace with Joe C. & Co.

By Dave Wleczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

At this time last year, the basket ball Salukis were 7-4. All-America Joe C. Meriwether, Tim Ricci and several other seniors were playing for SIU.

This year's record after 11 games was 6-5. Not much change from the previous season except that there is one senior on the team, Mack Turner, and he's not playing because of an injury.

Five freshmen are on the roster and many times four of the five can be found in the lineup.

It was a rough holiday season for coach Paul Lambert and his young team. With SIU playing what is probably its toughest schedule ever, Lambert has asked a lot of his freshmen and returning veterans. So far they have cooperated.

From the time school let out for the holidays, the Salukis played six games (not counting New Mexico State). With games against a couple of the best teams in the nation, SIU came out of the action with three wins and three losses. That wasn't considering several Salukis were nursing injuries. In three of those games, two of them losses, junior guard Mike Glenn did not play because of a foot injury.

Here's how the Salukis scored during break, starting with the Michigan Classic Dec. 19-20:

SIU was out-matched going into the game with Michigan. The Wolverines were rated in the top ten in the country and when Glenn did not make the trip to Ann Arbor the odds were against the Salukis even staying close.

Michigan easily beat the Salukis 79-49 before 6,865 fans. That put SIU into the consolation game with Princeton in which was beaten by Miami of Ohio. Freshman Al Williams led SIU in scoring with 10 points. Another freshman, Gary Wilson, had nine points and junior Corky Abrams had eight.

Mel Hughlett was the top Saluki rebounder with eight.

Things didn't improve in the consolation game. SIU scored nine more points than it did in the opener but the Salukis' total of 58 was not good enough to beat the Princeton Tigers' 69. SIU had two men in double figures, Hughlett with 14 and Abrams with 12. Abrams had eight rebounds.

"Those were two outstanding basketball teams," Lambert said at the conclusion of the tournament.

"Michigan is one of the top ten teams in the country and Princeton showed its experience and why it won the NIT last year. We knew they would be good and they were."

For the second game in a row, senior Mack Turner was sidelined with a knee injury. He also missed the game with Roosevelt, Dec. 27.

The Salukis returned to the friendly confines of the SIU Arena. The Roosevelt Torchbearers became the Salukis' 19th victim in a row in the Arena.

Over 3,000 fans watched as SIU outclassed the Chicago team 89-55. Six Salukis scored in double figures. Freshman Dan Kieszkowski, a Michigan City, Ind. native, scored 15, junior Tommy Harris and walk-on Jim Bolden each had 14. Hughlett and Wilson each had 11 and Abrams scored 10. Hughlett again led the team in the rebounding with 14.

Bringing the new year and introducing the Salukis to their first competition in the Missouri Valley Conference was the University of Tulsa Golden Hurricane.

SIU traveled to Oklahoma for this one on Jan. 3. The Salukis knocked off the Hurricane 63-62. It was a big one to win considering it was a road game.

Glenn got back in the lineup and whipped up a storm that outdid the Hurricane. Glenn hit on 12 of 20 field goals and had a season high 25 points. He also received support from Gary Wilson who connected on his first seven shots from the field and had 16 points for the game.

All the happiness died in sorrow four days later when SIU traveled to Evansville to meet the Purple Aces. It was there that the Salukis' two-game winning streak came to a halt, 81-76.

SIU had won the last three games against this interstate rival. Glenn was held to 12 points, but Abrams and Wilson combined for 36 points, 18 each.

An early Valley test for the young Saluki squad was Saturday night's contest with Wichita State, the preseason pick to win the conference title.

The Salukis rose to the occasion and whipped the Shockers 61-59 before an SIU Alumni crowd of 5,247.

Despite a sore left foot, Glenn poured through 20 points. Freshman Richard Ford grabbed 10 rebounds.

The key man for SIU was Hughlett. The shorter and lighter Hughlett had to guard 6-foot-10, 245-pound Robert Elmore, an All-America candidate. Hughlett did a superb job of containing the big guy. Incidentally, the two centers were not strangers. They played together on the Missouri Valley team that toured Brazil last summer.

Gymnasts hold off No. 2 LSU

Going into the final event of the night, the horizontal bar, the Saluki gymnastic team held a slim .55 point advantage over the Louisiana State University Tigers.

SIU scored 35.45 and LSU 34.50 in the event, giving SIU a 206 to 204.50 win over the team that was No. 2 in the nation last year.

The Salukis hosted the Tigers following the SIU-Wichita State basketball game Saturday. At the start, it did not look as if the gymnasts would fair as well as the cagers did.

Steve Shephard scored 8.95 in floor exercises for the Salukis, but LSU scored a team total of 35.80 to SIU's 33.80 Tiger Ron Reznick won the event with a 9.25 average.

Following Shephard for SIU were

Kevin Muenz 8.45 and Kim Wall 8.3. One of the judges was former Saluki star Jim Ivick.

The Salukis grabbed the lead after the pommel horse. SIU scored 35.05 on the strength of Rick Adams' 9.25 and Tony Hanson's 9.45. LSU tallied just 31.90.

Adams, a freshman from Louisville, won the all-around competition.

Shaky performances in the still rings resulted in SIU's lowest event total of the night, 32.90. The Tigers picked up more than two points in the team race with 34.95.

LSU's Greg Lewis won the event with a 9.35 score and Adams was tops for SIU with 9.0.

Despite a well-balanced SIU attack in vaulting, LSU edged the Salukis 35.95 to 34.75. Dana Corsley won individual honors with a 9.1. SIU's Lance Garret and Tiger Lewis tied for second with 9.0 averages.

LSU faltered badly on the parallel bars as the Tigers scored their lowest total of the day, 31.60, while SIU recorded 34.25. Steve Bonham finished first with 9.05 and Adams again was top man for SIU with 8.85.

Crosley took another first place with a 9.25 in the horizontal bar and Wall finished a close second with a 9.05.

The Salukis had the holiday season off and do not compete again until Jan. 21 when they travel to Arizona State.

Jan. 22 they meet New Mexico and return home Jan. 24 for a contest with Oklahoma.

Holiday season a busy time for SIU grapplers

Saluki wrestlers were the busiest SIU athletes during the Christmas break. Including matches Monday and Tuesday, coach Lynn Long and his grapplers were involved in nine matches starting with the Ball State Tourney in Muncie, Ind., Dec. 10.

No team standings were kept in the meet which included Indiana State, Illinois State, SIU-E and Rider College, but SIU had three individuals crowned champions.

Jim Horvath, who until Monday night had the best winning percentage on the team, 14-1-1, won the title at 167 pounds.

Clyde Ruffin won the 150-pound crown and before Monday's match with Northern Colorado, had a 16-2 record, the same as Mark Wiesen, who took first place at 177. Wiesen had the most wins on the team last year with 22.

The Salukis took a two-week break from competition after the Ball State Tourney and then entered the Louisiana State Triangular on Jan. 3. Saginaw Valley College was the third team in the meet. Once again no team scores were tabulated, but each school wrestled a dual match against the others. SIU won both of its matches.

There's no place like home, as the wrestlers found out when they returned from Baton Rouge. SIU hosted three matches in the Arena Jan. 5-7 and won all three.

The University of Wisconsin at Platteville was the first victim, falling to the Salukis 39-6.

The next night, SIU pinned Slippery Rock to the mats in a closer decision, 21-14. Slippery Rock was rated 25th in the nation last year.

The final match of the homestand proved to be the toughest for the Salukis, as they barely edged Illinois 19-17. Long chose to forfeit the heavyweight match because SIU did not need the points for the victory.

After a few days rest SIU took off on a five-day road trip to Colorado. The Salukis' first stop was the University of Colorado for a dual match. SIU handed the Big Eight school a 19-14 loss. The next day Colorado hosted an eight-team invitational. Last year's Pacific Eight champion, the University of Oregon, won the meet with 77½ points, followed by Colorado with 68 and SIU 50.

Once again SIU had three individual winners. Dale Eggert won at 126, Horvath at 167 and Wiesen at 177. Ruffin lost 5-3 in overtime.

After meeting Northern Colorado and Colorado Mines earlier this week, the Salukis team return to the Arena Friday, Jan. 16 to host Lehigh, the fifth ranked team in the nation last year, at 7:30 p.m.

SIU's dual meet record, not including action Monday and Tuesday, is 8-1.

New coach jumps right into war zone

By Dave Wiczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

There's no vacation for a new man on the job—especially a head football coach.

With the high school recruiting war already underway, Rey Dempsey, the Salukis' new football mentor, had little leisure time. After leaving his job as an assistant with the Detroit Lions of the National Football League (NFL) this past season and making his way to Southern Illinois, Dempsey got right into the thick of the recruiting war.

"Recruiting is the biggest thing," Dempsey said. "If people are winning, they have the players. And you only get players by recruiting. We have already started recruiting. I can promise you we will be good recruiters."

Then the new coach made a statement that will take a lot of work to fulfill. "It's a real challenge and I want to beat schools like Ohio State and Illinois in the recruiting game. The campus and academic structure here is second to none and we want to motivate young men to come to Southern Illinois."

No coach at SIU has ever mentioned beating the Buckeyes in a game of jacks let alone recruiting. Dempsey's optimism may be a sign of things to come. Dempsey has faced adversity in the past and succeeded in turning things around, but he won't have an easy time here where bad times overshadowed the few happy days on the football field in the last few years.

This will be Dempsey's second head coaching assignment. He was in charge of the football program at Youngstown State in Ohio in 1973 and 1974. He had a two-year slate of 12-7, including 8-1 the second year. The Penguins had not enjoyed a winning season since 1966.

Dempsey took the club to the NCAA Division II playoffs and finished the season ranked eighth in the nation by the Associated Press and 13th by United Press International.

His record led to the job with Detroit under rookie coach Rich Forzano. Dempsey coached the specialty teams as the Lions finished 7-7.

The 39-year-old Pitscairn, Pa., native worked his way up through the ranks as a high coach in Pennsylvania and Ohio schools. Dempsey landed his first college job with Bowling Green in 1971. There he was assistant coach in charge of recruiting and the academic program.

Now entering his 19th year as a football coach, Dempsey says he misses college action, although he was away from it only a year.

"I really like college football," he admitted. "Not everyone can play professional football, so it is important to get our people to get a good education and prepare for their life after they leave Southern Illinois University."

"I truly missed college football while I was coaching in the NFL," Dempsey continued, "because I feel I can do a better job helping freshmen and sophomores prepare for life."

Athletic Director Doug Weaver, whom Dempsey succeeds as head coach, also has recognized Dempsey's ability to work with people.

"Rey is a proven head coach and someone who has coached young people on the 15- and 16-year-old level as both an assistant and a head coach. He has also been a college assistant in a successful program. We are thrilled to have him," Weaver said.

Under Weaver this past season, the Salukis ran the wishbone offense because Weaver thought the Saluki personnel was best suited for that offensive alignment. Dempsey, however, may junk that entirely.

"When speaking of offense, it depends on the personnel you have," he said. "We would like to run out of the I-slot and the I-pro. We believe you can throw the ball on first down, but we won't throw the ball all over the place if we don't have the quarterback."

The SIU football program has lacked a lot the last few years and its record couldn't sink much lower. Dempsey has the reputation of turning programs around and filling stadiums. He'll have the opportunity to prove the accuracy of that reputation.

SIU is the perfect test case.

At a recent press conference, SIU's new head football coach Rey Dempsey talks about his plans for the future. The man replacing Doug Weaver has a reputation of building winners out of losers. He'll have another opportunity to prove himself. SIU has won only three games in the last two years. (Staff photo by Bob Ringham)

Every game an uphill struggle in the Valley

Whew!

Southern Illinois basketball fans have finally gotten a taste of Missouri Valley basketball. With each conference game the Salukis play victory comes a little tougher. Monday night coach Paul Lambert and his Salukis nipped New Mexico State in overtime 70-68 for SIU's 20th win in a row in the Arena.

Saturday night the Salukis beat Wichita State 61-59. Earlier in the week, SIU edged the Tulsa Hurricane by a point, 63-62. All were Valley opponents.

The Salukis play another conference game Thursday at Bradley. They will go into that game at the top of the Valley with a 3-0 mark and 7-5 overall. West Texas State is the only other undefeated Valley team with 1-0.

Most of the time three freshmen and two juniors are on the court at the same time, and sometimes four freshmen.

"These kids have done a super job," praised Lambert following the team's victory Monday. "New Mexico did the best job of anyone of taking advantage of our inexperience." Lambert was quick to add that the team had the composure to fight back after being down by as much as nine points in the second half.

Lambert said, "In the last eight minutes when we made our comeback, it doesn't look like it, but we made some clutch free throws."

The guys Lambert was lauding so much were the freshmen Al Williams, Gary Wilson, Richard Ford and Dan Kieszkowski. Each made significant contributions to the win, but it was probably Williams who put on the biggest show of the night. With junior Mike Glenn still ailing from a foot injury plus being double teamed most of the game, someone else had to pick up the offense. Williams hit on 10 of 20 shots from the field and one of two free throws for 21 points—19 coming in the second half. He threw several 20-foot bombs with everyone swishing through. "They were on Mike so someone had to shoot," said the smiling Williams outside the locker room after the game. "When I got warm it felt like I was back in high school. I felt looser." "I tell this club every night that everyone had to pick everyone else up," Lambert remarked.

Everyone certainly got into the act Monday, especially on defense. With a little over nine minutes left in regulation time, SIU was still down eight points. But the next five minutes may have been the best defense the Salukis have played all year. Each guy on the court took his turn blocking a shot or stealing a pass or snaring a big rebound.

SIU grabbed the lead with 5:02 to go, but New Mexico's Richard Robinson hit a 25-footer to send the game into overtime. Williams put SIU on top in overtime with a three-point play and the Salukis never trailed after that. Glenn, Corky Abrams and Mel Hughlett all added clutch free throws during the overtime to ice the win.

Lambert said, "We did not underestimate New Mexico State."
