A Student Employees Receive 10 Cent Per Hour Wage Boost

The base rate of pay for all SIU student employees has been raised ten cents per hour, effective July 1.

The announcement was made last week in a bulletin to all fiscal officers from the student work office.

The ten cent increase boosts the base rate to 80 cents per hour.

Rates of pay will range from 80 cents to $1.15 per hour, according to the bulletin. The rate increase would make it possible for some students to receive as much as a 15 cent increase, if he has worked three terms on the campus since his last pay increase.

The bulletin states that a student's rate of pay is determined according to the type of job, qualifications, work experience, and so on.

The classifications and wages listed by the bulletin are as follows: (the pay range for classifications three and four is .90 to $1.00 per hour)

Class 1. Instructional and Research Assistants, who assist in instructional or laboratory work and in "higher" technical jobs as radio technicians, accountants, architectural drafting, and program directors, are paid $1.00 to $1.15 per hour.

Class 2. Technical and Supervisory workers, who are highly skilled, assume extra responsibilities, and are able to work without close supervision, and who work at technical jobs as photographers, projectionists, accountants, student demonstrators, cashiers, junior counselors, etc., are paid from $.80 to $1.15 per hour.

Class 3. Clerical workers, who work at semi-skilled and semi-technical jobs as typists, stenographers, clerical assistants, receptionists, projectionists, machine operators, are paid from $.60 to $1.00 per hour.

Class 4. Service workers, as maintenance workers, cafeteria and food service workers, janitors, farm workers, and laborers, are paid $.50 to $1.00 per hour.

Class 5. Special workers, as students who have special skills and talents and work at jobs not included in the above classifications, are paid from $.80 to $1.25 per hour.

Class 6. Extra workers performing jobs of short duration, as assisting in assembly work, at registration, etc., are paid $.80 per hour.

The bulletin lists the following schedule by which student pay increases will be given:

student is employed if he assumes extra responsibilities or works with greater efficiency than the average student employer, provided his employer recommends the increase.

B. An automatic increase is granted at the rate of 5 cents an hour for each three terms that the student has worked on campus within the range as shown above.

C. Credit for off-campus work experience in line with the work to be performed on campus may be granted up to two years' experience, thus giving the student a higher beginning rate of 5 cents an hour for each year's experience.

SMILING THESPAINS

These four SIU coeds took time out last week from intensive rehearsals at the New Salem State Park near Petersburg to pose and smile for a photo-ographer. They are members of the Southern Players troupe presenting a summer series of plays at Kelso Hollow Theater at New Salem.

Robert Spackman Hired as Trainer

Boydston Named Athletic Director

Dr. Donald N. Boydston, chairman of SIU's health education department, has been named athletic director at Southern.

Boydston, who will remain as acting head of the health education department, replaces Dr. Carl Erickson, who resigned two months ago to take the athletic director post at Kent State (O.) University.

Another appointment, that of Robert Spackman, Jr. as athletic trainer, has also been announced.

Spackman, of Houston (Tex.), Tenn., is a former professional baseball player and ex-trainer in the major leagues. He will replace Gordon (Doc) Herwig, who resigned last month to begin private practice as a physical therapist.

An ex-Marine and former news reporter, 37-year-old Boydston headed the graduate program in health and physical education at the University of Mississippi for six years before coming to Southern two years ago. Prior to that he taught at Teachers College of Columbia University in New York and at Oklahoma A & M College

He received his bachelor's degree (1942) and a master's (1946) from Oklahoma A & M, and went ahead to receive a second master's and his doctor's degree from Columbia University in 1949.

His wife, Jo Ann, who also holds a doctorate, is on the SIU staff in the College of Education.

Thirty-nine year old Spackman, a veteran of eight years of professional baseball, served as assistant trainer for the old St. Louis Browns American League team.

He worked in the physical therapy departments of St. Anthony's Hospital and the Veterans' Hospital in St. Louis before moving in 1955 to a similar position at St. Mary's Hospital in Knoxville, Tenn., where he is employed at the present time.

Spackman received his B. S. degree from West Chester, Pa., and completed his physical therapy work at the University of Pennsylvania.

SIU Board of Trustees Approves Residence Office in E. St. Louis

Southern's Board of Trustees recently approved establishment of a Southwestern Illinois Residence Office in East St. Louis and named Dr. Harold W. See executive dean.

The board also approved employment of full-time directors for newly established residence centers in Alton and East St. Louis.

Heading the SIU educational program at Alton will be Dr. Eric R. Baber, former associate professor at Kansas State Teachers College, former superintendent of Rush Township High School at Park A. Fives, near Chicago, and now administrative director of Waukegan Township Secondary Schools. Director of the East St. Louis Residence Center will be Dr. Carlisle C. Ring, former president of Jamestown (N. Y.) Community College.

Purpose of the SIU Residence Office, located in the Broadway Hotel in East St. Louis, is to provide "an all-university agency for the general administration and direction of residence centers and all other educational and community service programs offered by Southern Illinois University in Madison and St. Clair counties and adjacent areas," according to an addition to the SIU statutes which the board approved.

The two residence centers will offer undergraduate and graduate degree courses culminating in such degrees as may be authorized by the Board of Trustees. The program which has been in operation at the Belleville Residence Center since 1955 at the University of Southern Illinois at Carbondale, Ill., for the past few years, through residence center and extension program.

For the past two years, Dr. See has headed the SIU Residence Center in East St. Louis. Before joining the faculty at Southern, he taught at the University of Cincinnati and Evansville College. During World War II, he was an educational specialist for the Navy. Married and the father of a daughter, he lives in Belleville.

Prior to serving as administrative director for Waukegan Township schools, Dr. Baber was high school superintendent at Park Forest from 1951-56 after having been in the faculty at Kansas State Teachers College. He has had 29 years of experience in school teaching and administration in Kansas, California, Michigan, and Illinois.

Dr. Ring, a former lieutenant commander in the Navy, serving both in the Atlantic and Pacific.

'Friendly Hour' Starts Today at Student Christian Foundation

The Student Christian Foundation has announced a series of "Friendly Hours" to be held each Wednesday at 4 p. m. in the lounge of the Foundation, located at 907 S. Illinois Ave.

In an article titled "Shall Joe's Car Go To College?" the Chicago Outlook points out that student automobiles are presenting serious problems for college administrators. Among these are lack of parking space on campuses and excursions by students to areas outside the reach of campus authority.

"The coefficient of correlation of classroom performance to student car ownership has not yet been determined," according to the SIU professors. "A safe inference, however, greatly understood, is that the car contributes nothing to sound scholarship."

During the coming academic year, freshman students will be prohibited from bringing autos to SIU. The ban will be extended to cover other classes in succeeding years until only the physically handicapped and students commuting will be permitted to park cars on the campus.

The article, in the quarterly publication of the American Association of University Professors, was written by E. C. Coleman, SIU-I. Clark Davis, acting director of student affairs, and E. G. Lenz, emeritus professor.

Community officials worry about the utilization of expensive streets for off-campus parking, and about the traffic control problems which Joe and his car create, the article says. Campuses themselves are already overcrowded and more automobiles are being added each year.

"Should expanding facilities for rapidly increasing college enrollments make provisions for greatly increased parking space?" the article asks. "A beautiful greenwashed between stately buildings, most of necessity be limited if increased storage is devoted to motor vehicles."

On the other hand, students with cars miss out on many advantages and slight their studies in favor of weekend joy rides. Such trips often lead to taverns, night clubs, and other resorts located beyond the reach of campus or city administration. Dr. Ring has served as superintendent of the New Britain, Conn., and Jamestown, N. Y., public schools and was a lieutenant colonel in the Army in World War II. He was president of Jamestown Community College in 1950-51. He is married and has four children.

Shall Joe's Car Go to College?

Gas consumption is a poor substitute for the midnight oil of the scholar, say three SIU faculty members in the summer issue of the AAUP Bulletin.

SIU Graduate 'Americanizes'

A Michigan school-teacher who was graduated from SIU seven years ago is helping "Americanize" newcomers from foreign countries.

Miss Johanna Deters, who received a bachelor's degree in education at SIU in 1950, is teaching basic English to immigrants in evening classes at Wyandotte, Mich., according to an article in the Wyandotte Tribune.

Part of the city's public schools dual education program, the classes include new arrivals of all ages from such countries as Greece, Italy, Japan, France, Germany, and Italy.

Among her pupils are a few Hungarian refugees.

In the article, Miss Deters is quoted as saying, "I try to teach them, above all, to consider themselves just Americans, and forget their prejudices."

tentative grade with an "8" indicating the number of weeks attended, should be recorded by the instructor. The final examination may be given at a later date with a year.

Post Military Analyst to Give SDX Lecture

Brig. Gen. Thomas B. Phillips, military analyst for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, will deliver the second annual Sigma Delta Chi lecture at SIU July 18.

The St. Louis professional chapter, the Southern Illinois professional chapter, and the SIU undergraduate chapter of the national journalistic fraternity will sponsor the lecture.

Phillips, a retired Army officer, is the author of several books on military tactics and famous military leaders, and he has been contributing articles to magazines and newspapers since 1923. He works out of the Post-Dispatch's Washington bureau.

Among those attending the lecture will be delegates to the National Conferences of We-U-Us Newspaper Editors which will be held at SIU July 14-19.

Last year's SDX lecturer at SIU was Luther A. Huson, Supreme Court reporter for the New York Times.

The Editors' Opinions

A Welcome Wage Increase

A long overdue wage increase for all SIU student workers was announced last week.

The increase was sorely needed. The cost of living in Carbondale, as everywhere else, has risen steadily for years.

Room rent has increased from $1.00 to $2.00 in the last three years.

And SIU students, with the exception of those living in residence halls or Greek housing, must buy their food at restaurants, making the food expense greater than that of the average householder.

The wage increase will mean the difference between hamburgers and hamburger steaks for the SIU student.

We doubt if another increase in wages will come for at least another two years, coinciding with the biennial appropriations from the state legislature.

Even in view of the current increase, another could not come too soon.

One minute a fellow tells you it's too hot to stay inside and the next minute he shucks his clothes and lays down in the hot sun next to a beach and absorbs several hours of 100 degree heat.

If the Carterville beach gets any more crowded, someone could make a fortune with a parking lot, not to mention pop corn, peanut and lemonade concessions.

The "dog days" are here. The many seasons in southern Illinois seem to have passed, at least for the present, and students and faculty alike are sweating in the classrooms.

Everyone seems to be doing everything but studying. Masses of students flock to the lake every afternoon, the drive-in stands on the fringes of town are doing a landslide business, not to mention the cocktail lounges and restaurants selling iced tea.

In short, everyone is doing everything possible in an attempt to keep cool.

But has anyone forgotten that we are in the midst of the fourth week of the summer term? We hope not.

With mid-term exams staring students in the face, term papers probably as yet not started, and even more "dog days" ahead, it might be a good idea to take time out from that summer romance and other hot weather excursions to open these "dog days" to some term reports, and ask yourself, "Why did I come to school?"

Books Filmed on Microcards

Library Gets 1,000 Volumes From Thomas Jefferson Library

One thousand photo-reproduced volumes from the personal library of Thomas Jefferson have been acquired by The SIU library.

The books, many of which were personally brought from Europe by President Jefferson, have been filmed on microcard (3 by 5-inch photographic print) that contains from 30 to 50 pages of the average size manuscript.

John Cook Wylie, curator of the books at the University of Virginia, selected the volumes from a total of seven thousand in the Jefferson library, which was purchased by Congress after the British burned the first Library of Congress during the war of 1812.

The library, which contained the best rounded collections of books about America and some of the finest works in government, literature and philosophy available in the 18th century, formed the beginning of the present national library.

Microcards of the thousand volumes, which can be housed in two showboxes, must be read by means of a special device which magnifies the print of normal page size. The cost of the microcard is only a fraction of the price that the original collection would bring if it were available for sale.

The Jefferson collection is one of a number of large and important collections that SIU intends to purchase on microcard as a means of enlarging its research library.

The Southern Players, campus drama group, had been on the road each spring since 1953 until this year. The tour was moved to the fall quarter to avoid campus and high school activity conflicts.

McLeod said either "The Importance of Being Earnest" or "The Glass Menagerie" will be scheduled for the high school adult audiences. The children's play usually performed matinee, will be either "Flibbertygibbet," "The Sleeping Beauty," or "Little Red Riding Hood."

Students participating in the tour are responsible for all technical and production aspects, ranging from costume and makeup preparation to setting. In return they receive from two to 12 hours of college credit.

This summer the Players will present a six-play bill at the New Salem Theater, New Salem State Park.

OF WOMEN, AND STUFF

Someone is forever chaffing us for our invariable mention of the female sex in this column. Some claim we are derogatory, some say we "just have girls on the brain."

The fact of the whole matter is that we like Women.

We like women of all sizes, shapes and ages. We like little Women because what there is of them is so wonderfully feminine.

We like big Women because they have been Women so long, and young Women because they have so long to be Women.

Writing of females always reminds us of the question that Women so dogmatically love to discuss—the natural superiority of Women.

We will admit that, on the whole, Women are prettier than men. They make better wives, mothers, and sisters than men. But "superior"! Shudder, shudder.

One of the major premises used by Women is that they can have babies. Now, then, this is a right down admirable feature, but we don't envy them that privilege. And just how many Women do you know who have had babies without the help of a lovely male????

We were glancing through a book the other day entitled "The Art of Salesmanship for Women" (written by a Woman of course).

We expected to find such timely tips as "always keep your seams straight," or "be sure your fingernails are clean" and such.

But instead, we read that every saleswoman should welcome a male customer because "women take time to think about what they are buying, and the male hasn't the sense enough to do so." "A male will almost always insure you a quick and easy sale," the book stated.

We were shocked, to say the least. To invalidate the lady school's theory, let us set up a hypothetical situation.

Suppose a man goes into a store to buy a pair of shoes. Usually he has a pretty good idea of what size, color he wants. He makes up his mind to buy a pair of shoes. She is usually hasn't the slightest idea what sort of shoes she has in mind. In fact, nine times out of ten, she doesn't even want a pair of shoes. She is simply buying a pair because there is a sale on, or she saw the "daringest little chatreusse dress in the window next door that would just match the pair of purple pumps in your window."

And, if the month happens to be June or July, she will be just as likely to walk one with two pieces of cardboard with straps attached that the manufacturers, for lack of a better name, call "shoes."

All of which may leave you with the impression that we like Women after all. Suffice it to say that Women (God bless 'em), superior, inferior, or just equal, are here to stay, and we are very pleased with that little fact.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

"I SAID—IF I'M TO BE THE FACULTY CHAPERON FOR THIS DANCE I'D LIKE THE LIGHTS TURNED UP A LITTLE."

CUTTING UP the GOOD and the BAD

Something happened which caused me to have to walk around with my arm in a sling for several days. I have heard so many stories about what happened to me that it is about time I give my version.

I was walking home a few minutes before the last issue of the newspaper. There is only one place on the new walkway in back of the Library and Life Science that is not completed. The little spot was muddy. Rather than walk around I decided to jump over the muck.

When I picked myself up, a small board was attached to my hand. It didn't take long to realize there was a nail in my hand and it had to come out. I bent over and put one foot on the board to hold it down and with my free hand pulled my left hand off the board.

The doctor did a good job of protecting me from whatever it is that could happen to a hand that had a temporary nail in it through it. I say he did a good job because he gave me a total of seven shots and wrapped my hand up twice.

Before it was all over, the results of the shots hurt worse than my hand. This was a good thing I suppose, because it almost made me forget my hand. But not quite.

I never had the duplicature of having an arm in a sling before. And being a left-hander with the left in a sling made it worse. It is simply amazing the number of things that are almost impossible to do with one hand.

Opening a can, riving shoelaces and combing your hair with your one hand is quite a trick.

The worst thing about having your arm in a sling is having to explain to everyone you meet why your arm is all wrapped up. No one seemed to believe the simple true story of falling on a nail.

I got tired of telling the game story, so I told one person a fantastic account of the accident. When I got through with the story my friend told me that my account was just like the one someone else told him.

Now the handicaps are all off and the hand feels as good as new again. It is a wonderful thing to have two hands. I never really appreciated them before. I suppose you just sort of take certain things for granted until something happens.

There will be construction work going on around campus for a long time to come. Nails and boards seem to go hand in hand with progress. There are enough walkways around. It is silly to try and save a few minutes by walking through or jumping over a maze of nails and boards.

The next time you see construction going on, steer clear. This also applies to mud. Mud is usually harmless, unless you happen to pull a nail out of it. I did. I don't think I'll ever trust mud again—or my ability to jump over it.

Illinois House Praises Dr. Orville Alexander

The Illinois House of Representatives unanimously adopted a resolution of appreciation to Dr. Orville Alexander, chairman of the SIU Government Department, before the legislature adjourned Saturday (June 29).

Alexander, director of research for the Illinois School Problems Commission for the past six years, was cited for "giving a full measure of skilled direction to helping solve problems of school life."

Alexander also was praised for additional services to the legislature as a special counselor and adviser on school and governmental matters.

Gus' Bode Says:

Editors' note — It was very hard to persuade Gus Bode to blurt out with his wildness this week after an overheard graduate student say recently that he didn't think there was such a person as Gus, and that the staff probably wrote his sayings. We must request that everyone refrain from muttering such retaliatory remarks. It makes Gus very angry.

Gus wore his sunglasses in the cafeteria the other day and thought he was drinking water before he took off the glasses and discovered it was iced tea.

Gus says everyone was so excited about the All-Star game at Busch Stadium they nearly forgot the real all-star classic at Soldiers' Field in August.

Gus says he sure was glad that all the student workers got a 10-cent wage increase. Now, says Gus, if they would get a 10-cent increase each term for the next three years, they could approach the cost-of-living index in Carbondale.

Gus says if there weren't so many people who went back for seconds at the Student Union watermelon parties, everyone could have a slice.

Gus says there is a discrepancy between the starting time of movies in area drive-ins and the 11 o'clock hours for women on the SIU campus, seems he had to to make a girlfriend climax the other night in order to get his girl in on time.

Eighth Householders' Workshop Tomorrow

The eighth annual workshop of the SIU Householders' Association will be held in the SIU Library auditorium, tomorrow.

Mrs. Mabel Pulliam, supervisor of off-campus housing at Southern, has announced that the workshop, at which students and householders discuss their needs in relation to living conditions and regulations, will be divided into morning and afternoon sessions.

The morning program will be featured by a welcome from Dr. George Hand, SIU vice president for business affairs, and an address on "Living Together," by Dean John Eric Gennell of the College of Education at Southern.

A discussion of "The Functions of Student Living Centers," with Dr. Ruth Haddock, supervisor of off-campus housing at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, acting as chairman, will highlight the afternoon session of the workshop.

Trustees Approve Appointments of Four Department Chairmen

Four department chairmen and two residence center directors were approved by the Southern Illinois University Board of Trustees.

Included are replacements for faculty members who have resigned and appointments for new positions both on the main campus and in the residence centers.

New department chairmen are: Alfred B. Caser, Phoenix, Ariz., as professor and chairman of the Plant Industry Division in the School of Agriculture; Miss Betty

Stratton Assistant Calls Southern 'Center of Progress' in Area

Encouraging the growth and development of Southern Illinois University was termed "one of the greatest accomplishments" of the present state administration by Edward G. Pree, administrative assistant to Governor William G. Stratton, recently in a talk at the University's annual Rehabilitation Institute banquet.

Nearly 100 persons attended the banquet, which was held at the Elks Club in Carbondale.

Pree called the University "the center of progress that is being made in Southern Illinois."

Turning to the University's role in rehabilitation, the speaker said every group or department which has a field or department in which it specializes.

"It may well be," he said, "that this Rehabilitation Institute will achieve pre-eminence in its field which will bring the acclaim of the nation as one of the outstanding accomplishments and endeavors of this University."

Pree praised the rehabilitation workers for their service to the handicapped.

"There is no worrier service than to help those less fortunate than oneself to succeed in this competitive society," he said.

The governor's assistant was impressed by the "scope and comprehensiveness" of the Rehabilitation Institute program, which closed June 28 after two weeks of lectures, demonstrations, and discussions. Only two similar institutes, according to Stratton, exist in rehabilitation, are conducted in the nation.

In introducing Pree, SIU President Delyte W. Morris cited the University's services to the handicapped. Among the programs and departments mentioned were the Child Guidance Clinic, Department of Guidance, Department of Special Education, Rehabilitation Counselor Training Program, and Speech and Hearing Clinic.

A mass of ceremonies was held by Guy A. Renzaglia, SIU coordinator of Rehabilitation Counselor Training and coordinator of the Institute.

Cotton got its name from the Arabic "Kutum" (Cut in), which means "a plant found in conquered lands." Cotton was grown in India as early as 3,000 B. C.

Ailing Reptile

Peering at the features of a sick turtle is Dr. Harold Kaplan, SIU physiologist who has isolated a common soil organism as the cause of an infection rampant among captive turtles. The disease - which Kaplan fears could destroy whole colonies - causing skin ulcers and "complete wreckage" of red blood cells.

New Agriculture Building Nears Completion

Main Entrance

This closeup of the main entrance was gained only after backing up some forty feet or so. The top wing consists of sliding glass windowed rooms. The barely visible lines on the tile supporting the top wing are counterparts of growing grain, embedded in the tile.

A Dream Come True

"Five years of effort and planning on the part of the agricultural staff and many other people," said Dean W. E. Kepper, "has resulted in this new building." This view of the new structure was taken from the southwest end. The two men on ladders are working near the main entrance. Their size in the picture denotes somewhat the enormity of the overall building.

Protected Greenhouses

Greenhouses have been installed between the central section of the building and the south wing, and lie directly west of Thompson Woods.

Modern Lockers

Plant Industries, located in the South Wing of the building, includes the study of soils, field crops, forests and fruit and vegetable crops. The lockers shown here are in this division. They are temperature controlled steel cabinets and will be used for such things as vegetable storage and to break the dormancy period of seeds.

Soon . . . A Conference Room

The main conference room lies south of the central section of the building. This view is through the doors of the adjoining library. The central section will house general agriculture which includes agricultural engineering, agricultural economics and agricultural education.

Auditorium Nearly Complete

The auditorium lies directly on the north side of the central section of the building. The projection room appears completed and some of the equipment has already been installed. On the stage end of the auditorium is a sliding door.

Incubators Ready

Two members of the agriculture staff inspect the new incubators that will soon be put into use. The room houses two incubators and two hatching trays. The incubators have a capacity of 1,800 eggs each. The units will enable research and classes to accomplish practical studies as well as maintenance of University flocks.

Dry Lab . . . Green Background

This is a view of one of the many dry labs, located in the north wing of the building. Animal Industries, which includes poultry, dairy, animal husbandry and animal nutrition, will house this wing. There are also wet labs, which have equipment and floors that can be washed down. The geography and geology departments will be housed in the new structure for the time being. Many classes from many departments will be held in various parts of the building for some time to come. All in all the building is very modern, functional and business-like. According to Dean Kepper, the impression of the new building upon present and prospective agricultural students and the present as well as prospective staff members is great, and can only lead to better work and greater accomplishments.
