Nationals bring no problems, police say

By Carolyn Schmidt
Staff Writer

The DuQuoin State Fairgrounds will be the site of the Car Craft Street Machine Nationals next year, fairground officials announced Monday.

Mike DuBois, DuQuoin State Fair manager, said the minimal number of traffic arrests and major security precautions last weekend influenced the decision.

DuBois said police and SIU football players did an "excellent job" in handling security for the event, which was attended by an estimated 62,124 people.

State Police Lt. John Richter said there were no problems police did not anticipate.

"We're very pleased with the way things turned out," Richter said.

Most of the 184 citations issued were for traffic violations and 30 were alcohol related, he said.

State police issued 458 warnings and about ten accidents were reported. Richter said very few criminal arrests were made, but one arrest was made for resisting a peace officer.

Richter said 290 state police officers came to Southern Illinois to help control traffic and the overall security helped the event go smoothly.

USO to sue publisher of 1985-'86 directory

By JoDe Rimer
Student Writer

The Undergraduate Student Organization plans to sue the publisher of the 1985-'86 student telephone directory — if it can find him.

Shari Rhode, SIU-C attorney, said Ronald Gross, president of Information Publications, last year's publisher, "flew the coop."

After requesting accounting figures from Gross, which were never delivered, Rhode said she sent a certified letter threatening legal action. The letter was returned without a forwarding address, she said.

"You can't sue somebody if you don't know where they are," Rhode said.

Conflicts involving Information Publications, a St. Louis company, and USO began after the company defaulted on its contract.

Of 10,000 student directories promised in the contract between Information Publications and USO, approximately 2,300 were not delivered, according to Phil Lyons, USO president.

USO has taken a different direction on the 1986-'87 directory. In an effort to put out a high-quality directory and turn it into a money-maker, Lyons said, the USO has hired the student chapter of the American Marketing Association to sell ads.

Information Publications was in charge of selling ads last year, according to Joseph Greenspan, president of AMA.

Greenspan said there were many mistakes in the directory's ads because advertisers were not able to see the ads before they were printed.

Greenspan said that in order to eliminate errors, AMA is making sure that this year's advertisers will be able to see copies of ads before they are printed.

Greenspan said that AMA also is offering advertisers a free ad on a "note board" which will be distributed to students during the first two weeks of school.

Because of the Oct. 15 deadline of the directory, advertisers felt they would not get exposure soon enough, Greenspan said, so AMA offered the advertisers an early "bonus" and incentive to buy ads.

Lyons said the USO has negotiated a contract with William Ebbert International, Jonesboro, Ark., to print the directory.

With the change of the publisher, Lyons said, this year's directory should be of a higher quality.

Richmond to evaluate utility of 2-percent plan

By David Sheets
Staff Writer

The University's 2-percent internal reallocation plan has drawn the attention of at least one state legislator — thanks to the SIU-C Faculty Organizing Committee for the Illinois Education Association-NEA.

Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro, said he would hate to see a few University faculty released from their teaching contracts in order to keep other faculty members on the payroll.

"If that's the only reason they're being laid off then the issue should definitely be looked into," Richmond said, "and I will look into this."

Richmond said the plan first came to his attention at a dinner meeting in May with Faculty Organizing Committee representatives in Springfield, arranged by the IEA's Springfield office.

Richmond is sponsoring the SIU Appropriations Bill for Fiscal Year 1987 in the House.

The Faculty Organizing Committee resurrected legislative attention to the 2-percent plan June 18 before the House Appropriations Committee reviewing higher education funding bills, said Lionel Bender, Department of Anthropology chair.

Bender delivered a statement that day on the plan, drafted by the faculty committee, to the appropriations committee, although he said he had intended to testify before the committee instead.

Bender said the faculty committee wants to make the legislators aware of the 2-percent plan before when they meet next year to review the

OPEC fails to agree on production curbs

BRIONI, Yugoslavia (UPI) — OPEC's divided oil ministers ended their six-day summit on this Adriatic island Monday without reaching an agreement on production curbs to shrink the global oil surplus or halt the relentless price collapse.

OPEC experts warned that the cartel's second failed attempt this year to unanimously agree on reigning in production could drive down oil prices below $10 a barrel later this summer. The 13-nation cartel, which deadlocked over the critical issue of how much each member should be allowed to produce, adjourned the meeting until July 28 in Geneva to give the ministers time to consult with their governments on proposed national quotas.

Ministerial sources said OPEC decided at the last moment to eliminate any reference in the final com-unique to an accord reached Friday by nine moderate members to limit the cartel's average production to 17.6 million barrels a day this year and to raise oil prices to between $17 and $19 a barrel.

The sources said the oil ministers struck a paragraph on the pact from the draft communiqué to avoid further antagonizing price hawks Iran, Libya, Algeria and Gabon. The four countries refused to go along with the majority decisions and are still holding out for a price target of $28 a barrel.

World oil prices have plummeted to around $13 a barrel range from $28 in December, when the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries — led by Saudi Arabia — launched a pricing war against outside producers and raised its production to a two-and-a-half year high of 19.1 million barrels a day in June.

Last American companies cease Libyan operations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The last American companies ceased operations in Libya Monday in what Treasury and State Department officials called a successful attempt to bring economic and political pressure on leader Moammar Gadhafi. A senior State Department official said that Libyan revenues, partly because of the American and Western European actions, dropped from a rate of $11 billion a year in 1985 to a rate of an estimated $4 billion this year.

Syria supports the return of U.S. hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian President Hafez Assad promised a U.S. congressman Monday he would press efforts to free five American hostages held by pro-Iranian Moslem fundamentalists in Lebanon, state-run Damascus radio said. The radio said Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., gave Assad a letter signed by 247 congressmen "appealing for his excellency's help in freeing the American hostages in Lebanon" before returning to the United States.

NASA deems shuttle replacement as crucial

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — NASA Administrator James Fletcher said Monday a new shuttle to replace Challenger is crucial to keeping the space station program on schedule and the agency has no plans to operate unmanned rockets once current programs end. "It's a little difficult to see how we can go ahead with the space station with only three orbiters, especially in the event we might have problems with one of the other of them," Fletcher said at a news conference to announce management changes for the space station project.

CNN, CNN Headline News start scrambling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cable News Network and CNN's Headline News will scramble their satellite TV signals starting Tuesday, shutting out home dish owners — including Cuban president Fidel Castro — who previously snared the programming free. At 12:01 a.m. EDT, July 1, the two networks become the nation's fifth and sixth cable program services to scramble. To receive the networks, the nation's estimated 1.7 million home dish owners will have to buy a special decoder for $395 and pay $25 a year, officials of the Atlanta network said Monday.

Law prohibiting sodomy passes court test

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, in a major defeat for homosexuals seeking sexual equality, ruled Monday the Constitution does not include a fundamental right to engage in sodomy. The narrow 5-4 ruling brought a storm of protest from homosexual groups already beleaguered by fears about the spread of AIDS. As a result the Georgia law which applies to all people and makes oral and anal sex a crime remains valid.

Labor federation blasts Pretoria government

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South Africa's largest labor federation accused the government Monday of launching a "direct and considered assault" on trade unionism and it scheduled a secret meeting Tuesday to discuss the detention of union leaders. In Pretoria, a government official told a news conference eight blacks died Sunday in political violence, including clashes between moderate and radical blacks.

New AIDS treatment test units established

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fourteen medical centers have earned contracts to test anti-AIDS drugs in a new program that has the largest chunk of federal AIDS research money for fiscal 1986, government researchers said Monday. The centers will be able to begin immediately, testing six drugs that have shown promise against the virus, said Dr. Anthony Fauci, director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases.

Playboy closes key clubs in style after 26-year era

CHICAGO (UPI) — Playboy's three key clubs in Chicago, New York and Los Angeles threw one final bash Monday before closing their doors, ending a 26-year era that made the Playboy Bunny a sexual fantasy for millions of American men. After a six-hour, invitation-only party for guests and former bunnies, the clubs were to close their doors for the last time at 2 a.m. Tuesday. The clubs lost $3.5 million in the company's last quarter.

Renovations to make Giant City a 'mini resort'

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

Renovations under way at the Giant City Lodge promise to provide more than just a boost to tourism in Southern Illinois, manager Richard Kelley says.

Kelley said when the lodge's revamping is finished next spring the region will have "something it's never seen before."

The improvements promise to make the lodge more like a mini-resort than a weekend getaway spot which many view it as now, Kelley said.

The renovations, which include doubling the seating capacity of the lodge's dining rooms to 400 and adding 22 cabins and a swimming pool, are being funded by Build Illinois, a massive public works program initiated by Gov. James Thompson.

BOB KRISTOFF, site manager for the Department of Conservation, which manages the 3,794-acre state park, said the renovations will cost about $4 million. The renovators are trying to duplicate the work of the Civil Conservation Corps, which built the lodge in 1939, by using only materials from Southern Illinois, he said.

Kristoff also said he expects the lodge improvements to draw more than the current average of 900,000 people to the park in coming years.

Kelley said he was "just lucky" that remodeling the lodge and building more cabins was included in Build Illinois projects. Kelley and his son, Mike, both Carbondale natives, have held the concession from the state to manage the lodge for six years.

HE SAID THAT last year the restaurant at the lodge served over 80,000 meals between March 1 and Nov. 15, its operating season. That number will likely double next year, he said, which may prompt him to stay open year-round, or to close only during January to give the place a thorough cleaning. He said the payroll of 35 people also could double.

Work on the main building of the lodge is set to be finished by the end of August, Kelley said, but 12 cabins that were also built in 1939 and are now being torn down and refurbished will not be completed until March.

KRISTOFF SAID that in addition to the 12, one-room cabins, the lodge will boast nine duplexes and four "executive" cabins that include fireplaces, patio decks and wet bars. All the cabins are furnished and include central heat and air conditioning, two double beds, satellite TV and telephones. The lodge already has its own laundry service.

Rates for the new cabins have not been set, but Kristoff estimated that the four larger ones will cost about $75 a night while the others could cost anywhere from $40 to $50 a night.

KELLEY SAID that besides added dining space, improvements to the main building of the lodge will include adding a lounge and beer garden. Also, weight and game rooms, a sauna and a hot tub will be added under the new dining room wing, and a swimming pool is under construction just north of the main building.

The lodge already attracts guests from as far away as Massachusetts and Virginia, Kelley said, though he has never made any effort to advertise. He said he expects the improvements to draw more visitors to Southern Illinois year-round, increasing the region's revenue from tourism.

THE CONSTRUCTION work began in December and is being done by Korte Construction of Highland. Kelley said the work is three months ahead of schedule. "This is one state project that is flying," he said.

In addition to the attractiveness of the lodge, Kristoff said the 18 miles of hiking trails and 12 miles of horseback riding trails in the park helped draw 1,050,000 people to Giant City in 1985. There are also hunting and fishing areas and a horse back riding stable near the park, which is surrounded by the Shawnee National Forest.

HE SAID THE increasing popularity of the park has created a demand for more cabins and dining space at the lodge over the last ten years.

While lodge visitors may come from near and far, Kristoff said most visitors to the park are local residents.

Kristoff attributed the upswing in park attendance to a "stay-home type attitude" among vacationers.

Joblin to continue work on convention center

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

Although a preliminary development pact between the city and convention center developer Robert Joblin expired Monday, city officials are indicating they will continue to work with Joblin on the project.

City Manager Bill Dixon said Monday that Joblin has not requested that the City Council extend the preliminary memo of intent signed by Joblin in March. Joblin, contacted at his office in Little Rock, Ark., said that although he intends to eventually request an extension of the agreement, he does not feel such a move is necessary at the moment.

JOBLIN SAID he does not consider the expiration of the agreement a significant issue in his continuing negotiations with the city. He noted that the agreement is not legally binding and indicated he would continue to work with the city under the terms of the memo.

A draft of the proposed development contract reviewed by Joblin was to be returned to city officials June 24, but Joblin failed to deliver the draft.

Joblin, citing the complexity of the contract, said he and his attorneys were continuing to study the draft. "If I'm lucky, I'll have it finished today," he said Monday.

DIXON SAID HE was not overly concerned about Joblin's failure to deliver the draft. He suggested that the absence of City Attorney Patricia McMeen, who was out of town last week, had slowed down Joblin's pace of work on the draft. He added that city officials expect the report to be delivered in the "near future."

The city's main concern over the project is still the lack of a clear equity commitment. Equity is a developer's own financial commitment to a project.

Unless Joblin can show proof of personal net worth of $5.445 million between himself and equity partners, he will fail to meet the requirements for a $2.071 million federal grant for the project.

JOBLIN HAS said he will seek one or two partners for the project but has refused to provide details of his negotiations with possible partners to city officials.

Dixon said the city would not conclude an agreement with Joblin "unless and until there is evidence of an equity commitment."

Although it appears that the city's ability to issue industrial development bonds for the project will continue to the end of the year, Dixon said, the city may be facing a Sept. 1 deadline for issuing tax-exempt general obligation bonds that would be used to finance the building of a parking garage for the 175-room hotel-convention center.

DIXON CALLED the dates "key concerns," but added that he was confident the city could conclude an agreement with Joblin before the deadlines.

Dixon said a "related concern" of city officials is Joblin's continued involvement in a foreclosure lawsuit involving Joblin's hotel in Racine, Wis.

Collection tactics enter new phase

STUDENTS HAVE HAD UNIVERSITY debts charged to their bursar's bill for years. If you owe money to the school, you will pay, one way or another.

And student debts can mean anything from tuition to library fines to parking tickets. The price for not paying these bills can be delayed graduation, withheld transcripts and canceled registration.

Another popular way to collect student debts is to deduct the owed monies from financial aid funds or student loan checks. Student loan checks can be withheld until the delinquent fees have been paid.

Until recently, these measures have applied only to students, leaving out a major part of the SIUC population — the University employees. But the University now has a policy to collect delinquent debts from employees by deducting the owed money from paychecks if some other manner of payment cannot be worked out.

IN THE 1970s, HERBERT DONOW, former president of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers, led the opposition to a garnishment policy, holding that it was improper use of authority by an employer to withhold wages for repayment of outstanding debts, saying that the garnishment of wages for parking fines would set a precedent allowing for the collection of all debts owed the University by this process.

The CFUT and several faculty members filed suit against the Board of Trustees in 1970 and 1982, charging that the University had no legal right to deduct parking fines from employee paychecks. The first ruling, in 1974, by the Illinois 5th District Appellate Court resolved the suit in favor of the faculty. The second ruling, also in favor of the faculty, was reversed in 1983 by a three-justice panel of the Illinois 5th District Appellate Court of Mt. Vernon.

IN A STATEMENT ISSUED ON Oct. 11, 1985, the Faculty Organizing Committee objected to the collection policy on the grounds that University administration is "presuming that faculty members in general cannot be counted on to pay their debts." Judging from the amounts some faculty members owe the University, this assumption is not without substance.

On Feb. 25, the University had $32,527 in delinquent accounts from its employees, which breaks down into $9,800 in library fees and $7,000 each for tuition and housing fees. Current figures are not expected to differ much from the February totals.

The policy will go into effect July 1, when letters will be sent to all University employees who owe the school money. The letter will say they have until Sept. 1 to get their affairs in order, at which time their debt could be deducted from their paychecks.

EMPLOYEES WILL BE ALLOWED the chance to work out an individual payment schedule for each case, and there is an appeals process for each person to contest the fines, if need be.

A maximum of $50 per paycheck can be garnished from employees on a bi-weekly pay schedule until the debt is paid. Employees on a monthly pay schedule can have up to $100 garnished from each of their checks.

Under the present circumstances, the employee debt collection policy is a fair, reasonable and equitable process, but one the University should not have had to resort to. Timely payment of debts is an individual responsibility, one that the University shouldn't have to resolve in the courts or through a collection agency.

Money could be better spent

In regard to the June 26 article dealing with the amount of money spent on renovating President Albert Somit's home, I, as a student, am particularly appalled by the outrageous sum of money put forth to reassemble this "Humpty Dumpty."

Obviously, you could find better things to spend $188,352 on, and I think one place to start would be to improve the conditions in the dormitories known as Brush Towers.

As a previous resident of Schneider Hall, there were many things I saw there that needed work. One of these areas was the elevator system, which is 20 years old and slow to operate. This can be most vexatious if you live on the 16th floor and are in the process of moving property in or out of the building.

Also, the elevator buttons are heat sensitive, which means in the summer and spring months when it is warm, the buttons will activate and the elevator will stop at every floor.

Not even the elevators in the Student Center or Faner do that, much less any modern elevator system.

Also, there is a desperate need for an improvement in maintenance in these dormitories. One day, I had to take the stairway due to the "snail's pace" of the elevators, only to find somebody's vomit on the stairs. I almost fell ill at the sight and smell of it.

Things like this can be resolved by having more people on the maintenance staff working more days in the week. How can these people be motivated to work more hours and feel better about their work? Why, with higher salaries, of course, because they probably aren't being paid what they should be.

I'm not saying that Al Somit can't have a nice place to live, but he should have taken into consideration the conditions of some areas of the University, before he spent large sums of money renovating one house. — Dave Slinger, senior, Radio and Television.

Violence only begets violence

This letter is in response to Harold G. Richard's letter in the June 24 DE. To answer the question raised in the first paragraph of his letter: yes, I condemn violence, whether it is used in the cause of anti-apartheid, anti-war or anti-abortion.

Violence only begets more violence. Richard might agree that this is what is causing the violence of some of the anti-abortionists, but doesn't he realize that when the discussion turns to the uses of violence, the discussion is no longer on the substance of the original topic?

In his last paragraph, Richard claims that pro-life means just that. I can make no claims on Richard's behalf, but why is it that a large segment of the pro-life people are also pro-capital punishment?

No human can safely judge the innocence or guilt of any other human. — Don Redmond, associate professor, Mathematics.

Correction

Editor's note — The June 27 editorial contained an error in that there were seven political parties in the 1984 Nicaraguan elections, not one, as stated in the editorial.

The election saw 93 percent of the population 16 years or older register to vote. This translates into roughly 1,560,000 voters, considerably more than the expected turnout.

Of the seven parties registered for the election, three stood politically to the left of the Sandinista party and three stood politically to the right. All parties received equal government funds and materials for their campaigns.

Doonesbury

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

The Coordinora party refused to enter the election process. This party was politically linked to the opposition paper La Prensa and the U.S. government-supported Contra rebels.

Opposition to the Sandinista party manifested itself through abstentions, null votes and in the 31 percent of the votes garnished by opposition political parties.

Opposition candidates hold 36 percent of the seats in the Nicaraguan National Assembly.

Page group buys Sun-Times

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Sun-Times President Robert Page Monday announced he and a group of investors will buy the newspaper from publishing magnate Rupert Murdoch for $145 million and tone down Murdoch's bold style of journalism.

"The newspaper has to be more serious, committed to quality journalism," Page said at a Monday news conference. "We have to get back to basic graphics that frighten people away."

Murdoch, chief executive officer of News America Holdings Inc., purchased the newspaper for $90 million in 1984 from Field Enterprises.

Murdoch also owns WFLD-TV in Chicago and was forced to sell the paper under Federal Communication Commission rules banning cross ownership of television stations and newspapers in the same city.

Among the Australian-born Murdoch's holdings outside the United States is The Times of London, as well as other newspapers in Britain and Australia. In the United States, he owns the San Antonio Express, Boston Herald and New York Post newspapers.

Murdoch, who was given until March 1988 to sell the newspaper, was not present at the announcement.

The purchase price includes the newspaper and its assets plus various real estate holdings that include the Sun-Times building, Page said.

Page said the sale could be final by Wednesday.

"The Sun-Times is one of America's great newspapers and the purchase reaffirms my personal commitment to maintain the paper's journalistic integrity and editorial independence," Page said.

Page also said the newspaper was out of the games and promotion business.

"There will be no more car giveaways, no more games," he said. "And Wingo is dead. I believe it's dead everywhere else."

Wingo was a giveaway game promoted by the newspaper.

Page, who will continue to serve as president, publisher and chief executive officer of the newspaper, spent most of the morning going from department to department explaining the sale to the Sun-Times' 1,800 employees.

When Murdoch took over the paper, many employees quit, including Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist Mike Royko. Many of the ex-employees, like Royko, landed at the Chicago's other major daily paper, the Chicago Tribune.

Page said he had not talked to Royko since he resigned, but would talk with anyone.

Court restricts gerrymandering

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled Monday that glaring forms of gerrymandering are unconstitutional, but set stiff standards for political parties trying to prove reapportionment plans infringe on the right to vote.

In an opinion by Justice Byron White, the court held for the first time that election maps can be challenged in court on the ground they discriminate against the minority political party.

The high court found, however, that Indiana Democrats failed to prove they had been hurt so much by Republican-drawn voting districts for the state legislature that a scheme adopted after the 1980 census should be thrown out.

"An equal protection violation may be found only where the electoral system substantially disadvantages certain voters in their opportunity to influence the political process effectively," the court said.

The ruling was viewed as the court's most significant on voting rights since the early 1960s when it set the "one-man, one-vote" standard for election districts.

Soviets want special talks about SALT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration is considering a call from the Soviet Union for special arms talks in July to discuss President Reagan's decision to scrap the unratified SALT 2 agreement, an administration official said Monday.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes confirmed that the Soviets have asked for an extraordinary meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, to discuss Reagan's announcement the United States is no longer bound by the pact.

"We have not replied and have not decided what to do," Speakes said, without comment on when the proposal was made.

Reagan, asked about the issue Monday as he boarded Air Force One at Point Mugu Naval Air Station, Calif., to return to Washington, said only: "Too much salt isn't good for you."

The New York Times, citing anonymous administration sources, reported Sunday that disagreement within the administration on the Soviet offer's significance would prompt discussions this week before any response is made.

The newspaper said some senior officials favor a positive response while others, notably in the Pentagon, are critical of holding such a meeting.

With the latest round of arms talks in Geneva recessed until later this year, the Soviets asked for a special July 22 session of the Standing Consultative Commission to discuss the 1979 Strategic Arms Limitation Talks accord.

The treaty never was ratified by the Senate, but both sides have agreed to honor its arms limits.

Lascelles Gumbs, native of St. Kitts, works in the electronics workshop of STC.

Caribbean native chooses to live, study in Carbondale

By Stephen Kennedy
Student Writer

For many people, leaving a Caribbean island to study in Carbondale during the summer months might seem strange. But for Lascelles Gumbs, it is something that he has wanted to do for a long time.

Gumbs is a 29-year-old native of St. Kitts, a 68-square-mile sovereign island located in the Leeward Islands in the eastern Caribbean.

Gumbs is studying electronics as part of a student exchange through the U.S. Agency for International Development. He attends one class and one lab each day at the School of Technical Careers and works under the supervision of Deborah Greenhouse of the Electronics Technology Department.

The academic program is designed for Gumbs' personal and professional needs. The classes will have practical application when he returns to St. Kitts because he will be the only government maintenance technician who repairs electronic office equipment.

William Shupe, coordinator of the electronic technology program, says foreign students who participate in the program are evaluated and the academic program is tailored to the needs and goals of the student.

Gumbs is studying computers and computer repair, which will add to his basic electronics background. He said he has always wanted to be a technician and fix things.

Gumbs said he is enjoying himself in the United States, but it isn't exactly how he thought it would be.

"I thought it might be like New York or Miami with many more people from the West Indies living here. But so far, I have met no one from the Caribbean," he said.

Gumbs said he likes watching sports on television and wishes he had a television so he could watch the world cup soccer matches. Soccer and cricket are popular games in St. Kitts.

Gumbs will be at SIU-C until he returns to St. Kitts on Aug. 25.

He said he would like to return to the United States to study for another two years if he can get a sponsor.

Two candidates remain in running for Graduate School dean position

By Janet Anderson
Student Writer

John Yopp, botany professor at SIU-C, and Ronald Barr, associate provost for Graduate and Research Programs at Ohio University, are the remaining candidates in the search for a Graduate School dean.

John Guyon, vice president of academic affairs, is expected to name the new dean sometime this week.

The former dean, Barbara Hansen, was the first woman to hold a position as a dean or above at SIU-C. She was named vice chancellor at the University of Maryland in December 1985 after serving as dean of the Graduate School since December 1982. Michael Dingerson has served as acting dean since January.

No women were in the final selection. Originally, three candidates were chosen, including Yopp, Barr and Kenneth Templemeyer, dean of the College of Engineering and Technology. Templemeyer withdrew from the running shortly before interviewing began.

Several positions open at Obelisk II

Application deadline for positions at the Obelisk II Yearbook and the Monolith New Student Record has been extended to 5 p.m. July 8, said Steve Warnelis, general manager.

Positions open on the yearbook and Monolith New Student Directory include editor-in-chief, associate editor, art director, photo editor, design or illustration artists, photographers and writers. A number of business staff positions, such as those dealing with marketing, accounting, public relations, advertising and secretarial and office specialties also are open.

For information, call or visit the Obelisk Office at 900 S. Forest St., 536-7768.

Fundraiser optimistic about Saluki athletics

By Steve Merritt
Assistant Sports Editor

When Paul Bubb, SIU-C's athletics fundraiser, came to Carbondale, he says he was more than a little concerned about what he had gotten into.

"When I was introduced to everybody, all I kept hearing was 'I don't envy you,' and 'You've sure got you're work cut out for you,'" Bubb said. "It was kind of scary but it made me realize there was a lot of work to be done."

But now that Bubb has been here for a year, he feels he has made progress toward the goals he set when arriving on the scene as the chief money raiser of the Saluki athletics department.

One goal Bubb feels he can meet is the $300,000 that the athletics budget has proposed for 1987. Even though the $300,000 represents an 82 percent increase over what was raised last year, Bubb feels it is within his reach — with some hard work.

Bubb came to SIU-C from Monmouth College in Monmouth, where he played a major role in increasing contributions to an annual giving program. He helped kick off a $15 million fund drive in November of 1984 that had netted over $11 million by the time he left in July of 1985. "I was recently announced that the drive had exceeded the $15 million goal by $800,000."

Bubb graduated from Monmouth College, an NCAA Division III school, and taught and served as the head basketball coach and the assistant football coach at Meredosia High School for one year.

Bubb then returned to his alma mater to work in the student development office and serve as the assistant basketball coach. He moved to the director of annual giving for his last two years at Monmouth before being hired as the athletics fundraiser at SIU-C.

"I was at a point where a decision had to be made," Bubb said. "I was torn between coaching and development, and athletic fundraising gave me the best of both worlds."

"Fundraising takes a fair amount of creativity and energy, two things I have plenty of," Bubb said. "I just felt I would be good at it."

Bubb compares fundraising to coaching. When a team wins, everything is pretty much okay — but when the team loses, the coach starts to think of how he might have done things differently.

"It really is like coaching," Bubb said. "If I fail to do something, it will be taken personally and then I'll try to figure out what I did wrong. And I'm just like a coach in the sense that if I don't do my job, I won't be here for a return performance."

Once hired at the SIU-C Foundation, Bubb went to work in an athletics department that had no director following Lew Hartzog's retirement. Bubb had to answer to the president of the Foundation and an interim athletics director, but he knew all along that changes would be coming when personnel and a new structure were put into place.

"I really didn't think it would be productive to make too many changes without the new director being here," Bubb said. "We spent most of the first few months making internal changes...that would give us a solid internal structure."

Bubb said he set several goals when he arrived and now that he's been here for a year, he feels almost all of them have been accomplished in good fashion.

Building a data base of potential donors, past and present, was his No. 1 priority, and the base has been built and computerized. Bubb said a data base was essential because it brings all the donors names together at one place, making it much easier to see who has contributed.

A second goal was to expand the local data base and a third was to develop a case statement for athletics fundraising. Both goals were accomplished.

The fourth goal, one Bubb considers very important, was developing a rationale for athletics fundraising that would be within the guidelines for fundraising at SIU-C as set up by President Albert Somit in November of 1981.

Another important goal that Bubb obtained within the first year was the securing of a $5,000 gift for the Saluki endowment fund and a $50,000 deferred gift.

Bubb will begin his second year as SIU-C's athletics fundraiser Tuesday — July 1 — and he has set his goals for fall 1987. He said he would like to expand the volunteer base for getting people involved in helping raise money for Saluki athletics because "people respond to people."

"We really need people to get involved and do things like join the Booster's Club and come to our special events and ballgames," Bubb said. "People respond to people — it works so much better than phone calls, much better than letters."

Another goal for his second year is obtaining the $300,000 that is called for by the fall 1987 budget.

Even though the $200,000 contributions goal that was set by the previous administration was not met, SIU-C's top athletics fundraiser is not discouraged by the even loftier goal of $300,000 set by athletics director Jim Livengood.

"The first year was a little frustrating with all the organizational work that had to be done," Bubb said. "I want to be out more this year, out contacting people — and that's what I should be doing."

Bubb said he feels that SIU-C's 20 intercollegiate sports for men and women are "terribly underbudgeted," compared to similar schools across the nation.

"I believe in a broad-based program as much as possible," Bubb said. "I want to see as many sports as possible."

Bubb added that the University's fiscal officers "have tough jobs and thank goodness we have someone like Jim Livengood to make those decisions."

Bubb said he would like to have the contributions part of the athletics budgeting squared away and on its feet in a three- to five-year period. And although he can't deny that he may move on after those goals are obtained, he loves the Southern Illinois area, the people and especially the University.

Webster's single sinks Cubs in 11

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mitch Webster's third hit of the game — a two-out RBI single to right — snapped a 3-3 tie in the top of the 11th and gave the Montreal Expos a 4-3 victory Monday over the Chicago Cubs.

The Expos' rally started with two out when pitcher Dan Schatzeder, 3-1, walked on four pitches off Lee Smith, 4-6. Tim Raines singled Schatzeder to third and Webster followed by hitting the first pitch for a single to right to score Schatzeder.

Bob McClure, who pitched the 11th inning, earned his fourth save.

Chicago tied the score 3-3 in the ninth. Thad Bosley led off with a single off Jeff Reardon, was sacrificed to second by Jody Davis and scored on a single by Jerry Mumphrey.

Mumphrey advanced to second on a throw to the plate and moved to third on Shawn Dunston's groundout to second. Leon Durhan was walked intentionally and went to second without drawing a throw from catcher Mike Fitzgerald, but Reardon struck out Davey Lopes to end the inning.

Intramural sports heats up in summer

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

The Beach Bums defeated the Schmagies Saturday to win the three-on-three beach volleyball competition in intramural sports.

Buddy Goldammer, the assistant coordinator of intramural sports, said that he would like to run three-on-three beach volleyball in the fall when more students are available.

Indoor six-on-six volleyball will start on Wednesday night. With 12 teams signed up, the participation level has increased 50 percent, said Goldammer. Volleyball teams will play from 6-9 p.m. on Mondays through Thursdays.

Intramural sports is also running a Student Affairs Fun League for the volleyball players in the departments of Student Affairs. Administrators and student workers in the office of the vice president, the Health Service, the Financial Aid office, University Housing and others, will begin playoff competition on July 8 in the volleyball courts in front of Brush Towers.

The most popular intramural sport this summer is softball, according to Goldammer. There are 26, 12-inch softball teams and 11, 16-inch teams. Goldammer theorizes that 16-inch softball is not as popular as 12-inch because the former is played often in Chicago-area summer leagues and many of the students from Chicago have gone home for the summer.

Another popular sport in intramural competition is three-on-three basketball. Fourteen teams have signed up and will play from 7:30-9 p.m. on Mondays through Thursdays.

Racquetball, tennis and badminton singles are underway and two of the three sports have enjoyed a 25 percent increase in summer participation, Goldammer said. Thirty tennis players and 18 racquetball players are competing, an increase from last summer. Only four people are involved in badminton play.

The four teams that signed up for ultimate frisbee begin play on July 8 in the east end of the playing fields in front of the Towers. Games will be played from 6-8 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Goldammer added that members of SIU-C's Full Tilt Frisbee Team often split up and form teams. They compete for the practice and the fun of playing, Goldammer said.

Due to expressed interest, open soccer games are now being offered by intramural sports on the playing fields in front of the Towers every Tuesday and Thursday. The World Cup final, which was held Sunday, helped boost interest in the sport, according to Goldammer.

He estimated that almost 90 percent of the participants in intramural soccer would be international students who could not return home for the summer. A soccer tournament will be held on July 12-13.

Soccer has not been offered as an intramural sport in recent years, said Goldammer, because of the numbers of participants needed and the difficulty in obtaining officials. Although soccer is the world's most popular sport in terms of attendance, it is not very popular in the United States, so competent officials are scarce.

Autopsy says Rogers died from ingesting too much cocaine

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The body of Cleveland Browns standout Don Rogers contained five times the amount of cocaine needed to kill him, the Sacramento County coroner said Monday.

Charles Simmons reported Rogers had 5.2 milligrams of cocaine per liter in his blood. Assuming that analyses of tissue samples taken from Rogers' body are consistent with findings of the lab tests conducted Sunday, "the cause of death will be due to cocaine poisoning, and the mode of death will be accidental," Simmons said.

Rogers, 23, a defensive back, was with friends Thursday night at a party celebrating his planned Saturday wedding to a college sweetheart. On Friday morning, he collapsed in his mother's home and was taken to a hospital. He died a few hours later.

He could have ingested a large dose of cocaine in an as-yet-undetermined form before he had a seizure that preceded a coma, Simmons said.

"It could have been cumulative or another answer is that he did take it right before he collapsed. We just don't know," Simmons said.

Rogers' death came just eight days after the death from cocaine of basketball star Len Bias of the University of Maryland, the Boston Celtics' pick in the National Basketball Association draft.

"We have thought about the Bias case because there are a lot of similarities," Finney said. He noted that Bias had 6.3 milligrams of cocaine per liter in his blood, compared with 5.2 in Rogers' case.

Intramural sports heats up in summer

By M.J. Starczuk
Staff Writer

The Beach Bums defeated the Schmangies Saturday to win the three-on-three beach volleyball competition in intramural sports.

Buddy Goldammer, the assistant coordinator of intramural sports, said that he would like to run three-on-three beach volleyball in the fall when more students are available.

Indoor six-on-six volleyball will start on Wednesday night. With 12 teams signed up, the participation level has increased 50 percent, said Goldammer. Volleyball teams will play from 6-9 p.m. on Mondays through Thursdays.

Intramural sports is also running a Student Affairs Fun League for the volleyball players in the departments of Student Affairs, Administrators and student workers in the office of the vice president, the Health Service, the Financial Aid office, University Housing and others, will begin playoff competition on July 8 in the volleyball courts in front of Brush Towers.

The most popular intramural sport this summer is softball, according to Goldammer. There are 26, 12-inch softball teams and 11, 16-inch teams. Goldammer theorizes that 16-inch softball is not as popular as 12-inch because the former is played often in Chicago-area summer leagues and many of the students from Chicago have gone home for the summer.

Another popular sport in intramural competition is three-on-three basketball. Fourteen teams have signed up and will play from 7:30-9 p.m. on Mondays through Thursdays.

Racquetball, tennis and badminton singles are underway and two of the three sports have enjoyed an increase in summer participation, Goldammer said. Thirty tennis players and 18 racquetball players are competing, an increase from last summer. Only four people are involved in badminton play.

The four teams that signed up for ultimate frisbee begin play on July 8 in the east end of the playing fields in front of the Towers. Games will be played from 6-8 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Goldammer added that members of SIU-C's Full Tilt Frisbee Team often split up and form teams. They compete for the practice and the fun of playing, Goldammer said.

Due to expressed interest, open soccer games are now being offered by intramural sports on the playing fields in front of the Towers every Tuesday and Thursday. The World Cup final, which was held Sunday, helped boost interest in the sport, according to Goldammer.

He estimated that almost 90 percent of the participants in intramural soccer would be international students who could not return home for the summer. A soccer tournament will be held on July 12-13.

Soccer has not been offered as an intramural sport in recent years, said Goldammer, because of the numbers of participants needed and the difficulty in obtaining officials. Although soccer is the world's most popular sport in terms of attendance, it is not very popular in the United States, so competent officials are scarce.

Autopsy says Rogers died from ingesting too much cocaine

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The body of Cleveland Browns standout Don Rogers contained five times the amount of cocaine needed to kill him, the Sacramento County coroner said Monday.

Charles Simmons reported Rogers had 5.2 milligrams of cocaine per liter in his blood. Assuming that analyses of tissue samples taken from Rogers' body are consistent with findings of the lab tests conducted Sunday, "the cause of death will be due to cocaine poisoning, and the mode of death will be accidental," Simmons said.

Rogers, 23, a defensive back, was with friends Thursday night at a party celebrating his planned Saturday wedding to a college sweetheart. On Friday morning, he collapsed in his mother's home and was taken to a hospital. He died a few hours later.

He could have ingested a large dose of cocaine in an as-yet-undetermined form before he had a seizure that preceded a coma, Simmons said.

"It could have been cumulative or another answer is that he did take it right before he collapsed. We just don't know," Simmons said.

Rogers' death came just eight days after the death from cocaine of basketball star Len Bias of the University of Maryland, the Boston Celtics' pick in the National Basketball Association draft.

"We have thought about the Bias case because there are a lot of similarities," Finney said. He noted that Bias had 6.3 milligrams of cocaine per liter in his blood, compared with 5.2 in Rogers' case.

Charles Parham of East Prairie, MO., eyed an Nationals in Du Quoin. The weekend event Excalibur Saturday at the Street Machine drew a crowd of 62,124 people.

"We took an approach that emphasized deterrence. We had police very visible throughout the region," he said.

Richter described the crowd as "very well balanced," both at the show and afterwards.

"The things they were doing were in the spirit of revelry. They were just having a good time," Richter said. "Most of our officers had a good time and they enjoyed the work they were doing."

There was more traffic through Carbondale and bigger crowds on the strip, but nothing unusual, said Neal Jacobson, executive assistant to the police chief.

"We had a relatively normal weekend," he said.

"Things were pretty normal on campus. We were prepared for it this year and we will be next year," said Harris.

University system's appropriations request.

"Our representatives do what they can to match the budget requests submitted by SIU," he said. "But they are totally unaware of allocation decisions made on the local level" that are harming University program quality.

Gary Kolb, acting chairman of the Cinema and Photography Department and FOC member, said in an IEA-NEA news release that the faculty committee agrees with the legislature on the importance of "flexibility in the allocation process" at the University level.

"But we ask whether the elimination and downgrading of faculty positions in the colleges is being carried out in a reasoned and insightful manner," Kolb said, "rather than through a 'cookie-cutter' application of the 2-percent tax."

The plan, two years into its five-year lifespan, is designed to increase University faculty salaries by reapportioning 2 percent of the money allocated for faculty wages in each school and college, explained John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs and overseer of the plan, in an earlier interview.

Guyon said that money for the 2-percent tax is supposed to come from the salaries of retired faculty members, attrition — faculty members who have moved to other jobs — and wages from vacated faculty positions.

The FOC statement Bender presented before the House committee stated that 2-percent funds also coming from "a combination of attribution and termination of non-tenured faculty."

Kolb said that a non-tenured continuing faculty member could also be affected.

Thompson pleased with Street Nationals

By David She Staff Writer

Mingled in with the roar of the crowd and the scream of the engines was Gov. James Thompson's proclamation of self-satisfaction with the Street Machine Nationals at the DuQuoin State Fairgrounds.

"It's better than I had hoped," he said Saturday.

Thompson, who arrived by helicopter shortly before 2 p.m., said he made the trip from Springfield to DuQuoin not only to see the car show, but also to see the progress made on renovating the grounds since the state bought the fair in April.

Thompson was scheduled to announce both the fair's admissions policy and slate of entertainment during his visit, but did neither, insisting that he wanted to dispense with the current legislative session first "then turn more attention toward the DuQuoin fair."

"We want to make sure we're on track for the fair," he said.

A key reason for the delay on both announcements was the undetermined status of a $3.5 million funding request by Thompson for the fair. Thompson said a Senate committee reduced the appropriation to $3.2 million.

"We're going to need that whole $3.5 million," he said. "It's got to be here to make the fair successful in its first year" under the state's control.

Thompson also took his first close look at the mansion of former fair owner Saleh Jabr, the place he will call home during the fair.

"We will also use it for weekends and conferences," he said. "It's going to get a lot of usage."

Thompson braved high humidity and flying dust to examine some of the more than 3,000 car show entries. He focused his attention on a handful of 1955 Chevrolets dispersed throughout the fairgrounds, waxing sentimental at times over his first car, a 1957 Ford.

After seeing the show, he said he would be more than happy to volunteer DuQuoin as a permanent site for future Street Machine Nationals.

"The show is a good start for more tourism in this area," he said, referring to the 60,000-plus attendance for the show. "This gives me some idea of what we're capable of during the fair."

Thompson said he would encourage other festival organizers to consider DuQuoin for their conventions as soon as the state finishes the majority of its improvements on the grounds.

"We're going to put on a first-class show for the people of Southern Illinois" in late August when the fair opens, he said. "Then we will just make improvements on the grounds from year to year. But we want to get that first year under our belt."
