Leland Lingle Elect- ed Business Manager For Next Year

Leland Lingle, Ed. B. '27, has been chosen by the Egyptian advisors to handle the finances of the Egyptian for the year 1926-27.

Mr. Lingle graduated from the Cobden High school in 1919. The following September he entered S. I. N. U. and graduated from the two-year course in 1921. After his graduation he accepted the position of principal and coach at the High school in Sikeston, Mo. He proved his ability by the success which the athletic teams had under his guidance.

At the beginning of the present school year Mr. Lingle came back to take his degree at S. I. N. U. and has been one of the prominent men of the campus all year. At the first of the fall term he was elected president of the Junior class, and when it came time to choose representatives for the Student Council, the Junior class selected him for their representative. He was chosen by the entire student body to be king of the Campus Carnival. He is a member of Zetetic Society and has a part in "Only 38", the Zetetic Spring Play.

Mr. Lingle is an excellent student and ranks high in his classes. He is held in high esteem by both students and faculty, and is certain to show himself to be an excellent man to fill the place of Egyptian business manager.

OUR FAREWELL

The school year of 1925-26 at old S. I. N. U., has now drawn almost to a close. We, the management of the Egyptian, take this opportunity to express our appreciation and give our best wishes to all who have worked for and supported the Egyptian this year.

First we express our thanks and appreciation to the Staff. It has been one of unusual ability and loyalty. They have answered our request with a smile and done their work with faithfulness. What more could be asked to make a splendid staff?

The faculty, student body, and friends of the school have given excellent support and co-operation. The merchants have contributed loyally to the success of our financial ship. We sincerely thank all of these groups for their fine spirit of support.

As we issue this last number of the Egyptian, we have a feeling of both pleasure and pain. It is a pleasure to think of the interesting work and associations that the Egyptian has wrought. It is with regret that these days are gone. But remember "Our sincerest laughter with some pain is fraught."

We trust and urge that Editor Wells and Business Manager Lingle have the same support and co-operation from everyone that we have had.

Lemen Wells To Guide Egyptian For 1926-27

When the time came for a new Egyptian editor for 1926-1927 to be chosen, the advisors began to look for someone who could fill the place. They found such a person in Lemen Wells, a prominent man on the campus during the past year.

Mr. Wells graduated from the University High school in the class of 1924 and is a member of the Sophomore class of 1926. He has always taken an active part in various activities of the campus. He played scrub on the football team of '25. During the past two years he has been a faithful worker for Zetetic Society. He has a leading part in the Zetetic Spring play this year and has been chosen as the one to start the affairs of Zetetic Society going next fall term. He is a member of the Agora Debating Club and will be one of its guiding forces next year.

Mr. Wells has proved himself to be a faithful and tireless worker in everything he takes part in. He stands high in the opinion of all who know him. With a cooperative staff working with him, the Egyptian is sure to have a very prosperous year in 1926-1927.

Senior College Growth

The first degrees were conferred by the S. I. N. U. in 1908. This was a new departure for the school and followed in consequence of a state law previously passed granting Normal schools the privilege of conferring B. Ed. degrees. In that year degrees were conferred on Lillian B. Teeter, now teacher in East St. Louis High school, and Geo. D. Wham of the S. I. N. U. faculty.

Three years later, 1911 this degree was conferred on W. T. Felts; and two years after that, 1913, on Myrtle Kenney. Later degrees were conferred as follows:

- 1914—3 students.
- 1916—1 student.
- 1918—4 students.
- 1919—1 student.
- 1922—4 students.
- 1923—11 students.
- 1924—25 students.
- 1925—29 students.

1926 has a list of about fifty seniors named for this degree, and the entire department makes a group occupying more than half of one of the sections in the auditorium.

It was in 1922 that the four seniors in the degree class, seeing that a dozen juniors were headed the same way, began to become conscious of an added factor in the school and organized themselves into what they were pleased to call the "Senior College Department." They began to ask for special concessions in the way of chapel seating and special meetings, and for recognition in the Egyptian and the Obelisk. The continual watchword for this group was, "S. I. N. U. in Class B". They were interested in that not only for the benefit which they would derive, but through their loyalty to the future welfare of the institution.

Notwithstanding the difficulties encountered by some of this group in securing the desired standing in universities, eleven of the class of a dozen came up for their degrees the following year, and the next year, 1924, the number more than doubled; and in 1925 the number increased to twenty-nine.

Early in 1926, the prevailing watchword became a reality, for the administration had built up the curriculum of the school so wisely that when the committee of investigation came from the University of Illinois to consider

ANTHONY HALL

Miss Martha E. Layman of Benton, Ill. was a week-end guest of Miss Mary Tedrow. Saturday night Miss Tedrow entertained her with a slumber (?) party and spread.

Miss Dorothy Prawl and Mr. Orville Morgan motored down from Granite City last Saturday to visit Miss Florence Murphy. Miss Kathryn Bramley, Mr. S. Bramley of Granite City and Mr. Nobel McKnight of McKendree were also guests of Miss Florence Murphy on Sunday.

Ruby Ice and Mary Virginia Linder entertained twelve guests with a Senior-Sophomore-Sob-Supper Friday evening.

Gladys Zapp was a guest of her sister, Mrs. Edna Young. Sunday.

Miss Hardin entertained the Anthony Hall girls with a dinner party last Thursday night. The dining room was decorated with red and white roses and the tables looked very attractive with their red and white favors. The girls graduating received a diploma with "Anthony Hall's congratulations." It was a delightful party and darkened only by the thoughts that it was the last one.

KAMPUS KAPERS

We understand that some people are praying for grades.

The midnight oil is being burned.

The fourth hour class is having glaciers all striated and everything.

Oliver McIlrath is the future baritone. He specializes in songs about gold streets.

School is no more. Boo hoo!

The seniors and sophs kapered around to get their slips signed.

READ 'EM AND WEEP

—SENIOR 1946

The Senior class of 1926

Will leave us now so soon;
And we expect by 1946

Great futures they'll assume;
So to them we know so well
The following we foretell:

Miss Steagall—Still searching with a microscope for a class as good as the class of '26.

Oren King—President of Bookydell U. and assistant professor in home economics.

Ellis Crandle—Dog catcher and cat embalmer and dissector in Hot Springs, Alaska.

Maude Bratten—Sole owner and chief dictator of all that she surveys, including Marvin.

Clarence Sanford—Only the husband of the mayorette of Springerton, Elizabeth Garrison.

Bertha Clark—Waiting for Harry to propose.

Pauline Crossman—Mr. Bailey's assistant. Still gathering and classifying her 200 specimens.

Burtis Trees—assistant business manager of the Trees household. Hazel Jennings Trees, manager.

Ruby Ice—Vice president of Bookydell U. and head of the home economics department.

Clyde Deering—The idol of one matinee fan.

Elladean Korando—Foot of Geology department of S. I. N. U.

Willard Gersbacher—Chief piano tuner of Socratic society and typewriter expert for the Egyptian office.

Verna Gent—Brains of the Brush school.

Clyde Stewart—Official orator and special representative of the "We Slick 'em Hair Oil Co."

Eunice Thompson—Inventor and interpreter of the Lepidodendron Leap.
Harry Tapprich—Has just chased the alligator out of the fountain of youth.

Roy Leevy—The only man who ever made a success of matrimony.

Thebna Hartwell—Teaching French in a home for the feeble minded, deaf and dumb.

Ralph Krupp—Still trying to figure out why they put the ocean close to the shore.

Russel Merkel—Still wondering why he and ducks have big feet.

Elizabeth Smith—Has changed from Miss Smith to Duchess Castironiski.

Miskel Pierke—Chemist for the international glue works.

Madys I. Smith—Leading geographer in a recent North Pole expedition.

Sadie I. Smith—Still the devoted wife of Ben.

Ben Smith—Still Sadie's devoted spouse.

Edward Fosse—Chasing Queen-bees and peddling honey.

Adlai Eddleman—Living skeleton for the I Fool 'Em side show.

Herbert Davis—Still grading Miss Bowyer's English papers, and in his spare hours, chasing Cinderellas, hoping they'll lose a slipper.

COMMENCEMENT

Last Tuesday evening at 8:00 the Gorham High school held its commencement exercises. The audience was very pleasantly surprised upon seeing the beautiful decorations. The color harmony was green and white. The audience was impressed by the entrance of the graduating class, officials of the school and teachers as the orchestra played the grand march. The Socratic orchestra consisting of eight members from the S. I. N. U. gave several numbers.

The events of the evening were as follows:

- Grand march Socratic orchestra
- Invocation Mrs. Sweckard
- Music Socratic Orchestra
- Salutatory Iva Parkison
- Music Socratic Orchestra
- Valedictory Mae Reames
- Quartet—Mrs. Worthen, Holder, Hogenmiller and Cowser
- Address—Harry M. Thrasher, Asst. State Supt.
- Music Socratic Orchestra
- Presentation of diplomas H. N. Cupp
- Class Song Graduating Class
- Benediction Rev. Sweckard

DEFINITIONS OF AMERICANISM

What is Americanism? The monthly magazine, The Forum, is offering prizes for the best definitions. The editor of the Forum have selected twenty definitions of Americanism which, in their opinion, "best cover the whole ground." These are printed in the June number. Here is one by W. S. Pitts, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Americanism is the heart of the typical American as evolved in a century and a half of American independence. Its roots are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; its fruits satisfaction and service, progress and peace."

The following definition is offered by Patrick J. Shelly of New York:

"Americanism consists in knowing America intimately, loving her passionately, and being ever ready to ward off the attacks of her enemies from within as well as from without. It is a sacred work denoting sympathy and helpfulness and a willingness to forego self-interest in order to promote the welfare, happiness and contentment of others. It is synonymous with genuine patriotism which is founded upon staunch, robust, sterling, self-sacrificing moral character.

It means obedience to and respect for our laws and ordinances, and a deep appreciation of our national principles. It is service "For God, for home, for country."

The following definition was submitted by Ivan C. Hall of Denver, Colorado:

"Americanism: An idea of loyal patriotism, religious tolerance, righteous freedom, fearless courage, honest integrity, abiding faith in the commanding destiny of the U. S., and a fathomless love for the principles which led our forefathers to found this commonwealth."

Here is the definition given by Henry Fairfield Osborn, of New York:

"Hardy sons and daughters of Britain, truthful, loyal, adventurous, resourceful, sea-loving, seek new lands and new freedom in America, subdue Indians, cross rivers and mountains, fell forests, till farms. With faith in God and love of home they build churches, schools, colleges. In honor of law, of property, of equal duties and rights. From stockades and settlements arise well-ruled towns and states. In the break with the motherland they renew the older choice of their best manhood, their strongest and wisest counselors—Washington, then Lincoln. Free yet controlled, independent yet united, slow to war, yet ready to fight for righteousness."

NEWS ITEM

Prof. George D. Wham, dean of the faculty, is to be one of the principal speakers before the Illinois Bankers' Association at Springfield June 17 and 18. Mr Wham appeared before the association when it met in Carbondale last year and was very urgently requested to be one of the principal speakers at Springfield.

Mr. Wham gave a high school commencement address at Taylorville on Thursday, June 3, and at Mt. Carmel June 8. He is to give the grade school commencement address at Murphysboro June 11, and at Herrin June 18.

A SCENE FROM "ONLY 38", GIVEN LAST NIGHT BY THE ZETETIC LITERARY SOCIETY

ONE MINUTE LATE

We all of us know the people who are too early for everything, who have all their preparations made for every contingency long before it arrives, and who thus waste innumerable preparations for contingencies that never arrive at all. Who has not among his relatives the anxious old lady who packs her bag the night before a journey and sits waiting in the station for an hour before she can get aboard the train? She is often a lovely lady, but she wastes a great deal of life.

We all know the other kind, also—the persons who drift along without much thought of time, or of tardiness or promptitude. They do not care whether you are ready and waiting, or whether meals are. They come when they please. They often cause huge inconvenience to other people, but they themselves seem to live very contentedly—so contentedly that they make you wonder whether the world would not be much happier if free from the thorny consciousness of clocks.

But there is a class of persons born with a pressing, driving sense of punctuality, yet apparently never quite able to live up to it. They know their duty, but cannot do it. They are quite aware of the meal hour. They are never absent or seriously late. Yet even with the most desperate struggle they are somehow never quite on time. You are equally conscious of the struggle and of their tardiness. So are they. It is not a question of others' convenience merely, but of their own. They mean to be prompt, but they simply cannot be. The delay may not be more than five minutes, may not be more than one minute. Or if, by a super-human effort, they are for once on time, they still give the impression of being late. These unfortunates seem to be too late for life.

Such people often have the same slight tardiness mentally that they have in practical affairs. They may be intelligent, even brilliant; but they are liable just to miss the thoughts of others, the thread of conversation, the movement of the world. Good ideas and bright suggestions come to them, but come always too late to be of any use. Such a desperate struggle to keep up, such a pathetic effort, such a hopeless battle against the sternest destiny of all, character, sometimes makes it seem as if those unhappy persons had been born a minute too late.

THE COLLEGE GRADUATE

Another college year is at an end at S. I. N. U. At colleges all over the country seniors stand ready to be graduated. From our school over fifty people will be granted degrees and over three hundred and fifty will graduate from the junior college. What has the individual derived from college life? Is it a fair question to ask?

Has it brought friendships that neither time or space will never sever. Has it been time well spent?

If college life has taught the individual to appreciate life's value, to think for himself, and to search for facts, it has achieved a great thing. If it has taught the individual to live with others, to co-operate, and to do his part in building the wall of time, it has accomplished its greatest aim. Remember he who is truly educated considers not only himself but all his fellowmen. Selfishness should not be in the vocabulary of the college graduate.

To the ones who are graduating, go forth to conquer. Let not the spark of ambition and desire for progress be dimmed. Work with a patient determination and a hopeful trust in the future. So make your lives that every act will be a step nearer to the ideal toward which you strive.

"For all your days prepare,
And meet them ever alike,
When you are the anvil, bear—
When you are the hammer, strike."

DANGEROUS CAVE IN ILLINOIS

Have you ever stopped to think of the real places of learning, excitement, pleasure, thrills, and what-not you are missing here in Southern Illinois and living so close to them? They are unknown to many of us, but if some one calls our attention to it we are glad to have the privilege of going there for a day of recreation. Here in Southern Illinois we have many such places and one least known but of great importance is found near here. About thirty miles from Carbondale back in the hills of Southern Illinois, near Ava, this cave is found.

It is one which nature has made after the fashion of many with its darkness and dreariness. Twelve hours can easily be spent in roaming through the different passes of this cave of wonder and amazement.

To get to this cave we climbed a steep hill, then descended to the valley on the opposite side. We approached the mouth of the cave which was recognized by a sign reading: Danger! Bears, lions, wildcats and wolves inhabit this place!

On entering the cave with its many subterranean passages one must get down on his hands and knees and crawl for some distance. Along this small entrance canal which usually has flowing water, one finds many things of interest in true nature such as old buggy wheels, rims, rocks of many colors that glisten in the shining light of your lamp, and small caves within a cave caused by the washing away of the limestone. After crawling through the one and only entrance, the main cavity abruptly ends in what is known as a "jumping off place." Turning the light here and there we could see spacious rooms filled with huge boulders which had fallen from the roof, and many passages leading in various directions.

Each turn of a spacious hallway was so remarkably different from the others we had previously passed and ledges of rocks were the only means of passage as we strayed from the main course.

Our voices seemed hushed. It was with a feeling of wonder and amazement that we ventured through those numerous winding passages.

Examining the walls we found names, dates, and carvings done by people in days gone by.

After a few hours of pleasure in the catacombs of Southern Illinois we returned to our homes thinking of it as one of Southern Illinois' secluded spots.

FORUM CLOSURES WORK FOR YEAR

The work of the Forum closed on last Monday evening with its annual graduating exercises.

The address to the graduates of the Forum was given by Mr. W. T. Felts. Mr. Felts chose as his talk an excellent theme, "Man's Exponent." He divided one's life into four phases. First, the physical. Second, the moral. Third, the social minded, and fourth, the spiritual phase. In his talk he emphasized the fact that if one wished to grow in his work in a community that he should operate his business with more than just a zero exponent. For every one was given certain talents by God to use, and it was up to the young men to use them in a way that would serve himself and the community best. For the community to which you were going takes the person as a leader at 100 percent. He said no leader could last in a community who was not social minded because he would not be a part of the community if he thought his ways were best and thought the people of the community knew nothing.

He spoke of the opportunities given to the young man who was a member of some debating society, saying that he got something from such a society that he did not get from books and was something that would help him in his work when he went into a community.

Those graduating were as follows: Marvin Owen, George King, Willard Gersbacher, Roy Leevy, George Bracewell, James Blades, Oliver McIlrath, Howard Bosley, Leo Barker.

New officers for Fall term were elected:

President—Oliver McIlrath.
Vice-president—Arthur Trammcl.
Secretary-treasurer — Richard Asselmeir.

Don't fail to join the Forum when you enter school next Fall.

PRINCE OF THE POPLARS
By E. D. Osborne

There's a place I love to go,
Where a group of poplars grow;
Tall brave trees, with leaves of laughter—
Singing in the winds that blow.

Long ago—ah, long ago,
Told my mother this to me;
Once—down by the silver brook;
Once—there never was a tree!

Come a man—a kindly soul—
Walking with a willow pole
Slung across his stooping back,
Carrying a meager pack.

With no shoes upon his feet,
But his smile was grave and sweet;
And the children, far and near
Came his wonder-tales to hear.

Then from out his magic pack,
That he carried on his back,
Tiny seeds with care he took,
Planted them beside the brook.
Slender saplings planted he—

Willow—birch—and poplar tree!
Saw them growing, every one,
Then, when all his work was done,
Said farewell one soft Spring day
And at sunset went away.

Nobody has seen him since,
But I think he was a Prince,
And his courtiers may be these Laughing, singing poplar trees!

the school for Class B, the rank was granted with scarcely a condition. The class of 1926 may now enter any School of Education ranking as graduate students, while at least half the class will have the added foreign language requirement for entrance into the liberal arts department of any university. This is a forward step gratifying to all interested in the school, and profitable to all immediately concerned. The next forward movement takes us into Class A. Shall we delay the step or shall we keep moving?

LEADERS OF MEN

The real leaders of men, who alter the fate of nations and mould the destiny of mankind, must be thinkers, must have some sort of high conviction, some far-envisaged purpose, even if it be only that of their own lofty mission to carry out the will of fate. A frock coat, a pleasant smile, a kindly and sympathetic word for everyone, even an abundant and un-falling flow of platform eloquence, although they may give temporary political success, can never insure lasting glory or permanent accomplishment. Those come to the man of ideas and ideals. On the other hand, if the great statesman must have convictions, he must not be too set or fixed in the pursuit of them. He must be ready to yield, to adapt himself, to adjust himself. He must consult others, defer to others, at least in non-essentials; be able to see the good in the ideas of others as well as in his own. The road to success, even to ideal success, in this complicated world is rarely direct and forthright; it often leads through obscure and winding ways to final and entire achievement. It is noble to resist compromise, when compromise is base; but compromise is often far from base and may be essential. Opportunism is an unpopular word, but it is a word that in many cases represents a valuable and useful thing. We need not approve the profoundly ironical remark of the comic opera statesman. "It is by never thinking where I was going myself that I have learned to lead others." But it is true that a leader who has his eye always on a high and distant goal will sometimes appear to disregard it or forget it, for the sake of taking advantage of paths that momentarily turn in another direction. There are two essentials of the very highest leadership; a real belief that humanity is capable of advancing farther and farther toward ideal good, and a magical, magnetic, inexplicable power of conveying that belief to others.

JUNE

O June! delicious month of June,
When winds and birds all sing in tune;
When in the meadows swarm the bees
And hum their drowsy melodies;
O June! the month of bluest skies,
Dear to the pilgrim butterflies,
Who seem gay-colored leaves a tray,
Blown down the amber tides of day
O June! the month of merry song,
Of shadow brief, of sunshine long;
All things on earth love you the best,
The bird who carols near his nest,
The wind that wakes, and, singing,
blows
The spicy perfume of the rose;
And bee who sounds his muffled horn
To celebrate the dewy morn;
And even all the stars above
At night are happier for love,
As if the mellow notes of mirth
Were wafted to them from the earth.
O June! such music haunts your name,
With you the summer's chorus caters.
—Frank Dempster Sherman.

FRIENDS

Make new friends, but keep the old.
These are silver, those are gold;
New-made friendships, like new sins,
Time will mellow and refine.
Friendships that have stood the test
Of time and change, are surely best;
Brow may wrinkle, hair grow gray,
Friendship true knows no decay.
For, 'mid friends, the tried and true,
We once more our youth renew,
But old friends, alas may die,
New friends must their place supply.
