The Editors' Opinions Closing Out The Year

With this quarter another school year draws to a close. Whether it has brought your desires its another matter. ## Is SIU Judicially Mature?

Will SIU students have a part in making judicial decisions next year? Probably not.

years rrobably not.

Placing a Campus Judicial Board like Southern's in a student constitution is an insult to the principle of student government. It would probably be best cescribed as a faculty-administration board.

The Director of Student Affairs (add another point for the administration) will select as many as three from the faculty to advise the board — another negative point for students.

The board will not have the ver to make final decisions power to make final decisions— just recommendations BACK TO THE OFFICE OF STUDENT A bit of advice to students:
Save your time and effort. Although you have the perrogative

Why all the power for the faculty and administration?
On the topic, an administrator has said: "Southern's students are not ready to accept the responsibility of a judicial board."
In effect this is saying that

It's a well-known fact that it.

It's a well-known fact that the same quatters go faster than others. Students well vouch for this strange occurrance. It ian't that the same number of seconds, minutes, and hours don't click cree the board. No one will deny these figures don't vary-regardless of the weather. But some quatters vanish before they start while others seem to streeth on and on.

This quatter has been of the "phantom" nature for me. It has really "vanished." An al I'm not sure I wanted this to this quatter. The spring quatter seems to pack more fun, happen—at least not to this quatter. The spring quatter quatters combined. Perhaps this accounts for its quick disappearance.

The student body has seen a new form of government passed. It promises a completely different method of representation for organizations. The rapidly expanding student population made the new government a necessity. Perhaps so me thought that it was still years away but events proved this incorrect.

The embryo senators moved into their positions following the election. It will probably be some time before a complete understanding of their various jobs and responsibilities become clear but they have given strong indication of a willingness and etermination to learn. It will also require a period of time before the student body as a whole begins to understand the functioning of their new student government. STUDENTS INITIATED INTO HONOR SOCIETY
