Argentina surrender reported

By The Associated Press

Argentina's military government said yesterday that the command of Argentina's 2,000 soldiers in the Occupied Falklands in the South Atlantic had agreed to a cease-fire Monday. British forces suffered about 800 in their final assault on the port-town of Stanley. The United Nations Department of Peacekeeping forces in Washington said that the Argentine commander was not. They said the cease-fire report had been directly checked with British officials in London, who said the Argentine forces were indeed. The process of surrendering. There was an immediate official confirmation in London of a cease-fire or surrender.

The communiqué from the Argentine Joint Chiefs of Staff and the cease-fire was arranged in a face-to-face meeting in Stanley between Menem and British prime minister. Gen. Jeremy Moore, who led 3,000 troops in the successful offensive against the Argentine stronghold.

It said Argentina's military president, Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri, would address the nation later on television and radio. The communiqué said the cease-fire was the latest in a series of events that had taken place over the past 20 hours.

Federal, state help streams into Marion in wake of tornado

By Ginny Lee and Mike Newton Staff Writers

The tornado descended from the sky in the early afternoon of May 23, touching down near Crab Orchard Lake and a 15-mile path of destruction through the city of Marion and Cranmoor.

Southern Illinois residents have witnessed tornadoes before — the area has averaged a tornado a year in the past 20 years — but not since 1988, when a 50-mile path of destruction through the city of Marion and Cranmoor.

The tornado hit the area of a tornado a year ago that caused more than 35 million dollars in damage. Damage to homes, businesses, and trees has been estimated at the loss of a tornado a year ago.

Two weeks after the tornado struck and one week after President Reagan issued a federal disaster declaration for the area, the people of Marion are looking to rebuild, trying to put the pieces of their lives back together. The homeless, the unemployed, and the injured have been offered help from federal, state, and local agencies, as well as the business community.

The presidential declaration will bring much needed relief to Marion, according to Stephen E. Peck, director of the Southern Illinois Emergency Management Agency.

"Once the president declares a disaster area, then a considerable amount of federal assistance money becomes available," he says. "But we have to jump on this bandwagon and try to prevent any more damage.

Individuals, families, and businesses will also be eligible for grants from the federal government. However, the need for assistance will continue to be a major issue for the next several weeks.

Staff Sen. Gene Johns, D-Marion District, said Monday that a relief bill SB 1291, which he sponsored, had been passed in the Senate 6-4. If approved by the House, the bill would provide more than $35 million in state funds to the Marion area, Johns said.

The funds can be used to help pay local governments for services rendered in the cleanup, as well as for repairs to damaged homes, businesses, and other property. However, there were no estimates for the cost of the repairs.

NEW YORK AP - Police said Monday that more than 1,600 anti-nuclear arms protesters from the doors of United Nations missions Monday in the biggest mass arrest ever at a demonstration in New York City.

The demonstrators, mostly singing, "We Shall Not Be Moved," were arrested when they tried to force their way into the United Nations building. They were protesting against the testing of nuclear weapons.

The arrests, part of what organizers called a "nuclear disarmament campaign," followed Saturday's peaceful demonstration in Central Park by about 250,000 anti-nuclear protesters, the largest political demonstration in U.S. history.

There were no arrest disturbances in Central Park.

Until Monday, the largest mass arrest in this country's history occurred Oct. 29, 1967, when more than 1,200 anti-war power demonstrators were arrested in New York in an attempt to close the New York Stock Exchange.

Organizers of Monday's demonstration claimed victory as their followers were rounded up by many west limps and had to be dragged or carried to police buses.

The demonstration was organized by a loose coalition of anti-nuclear groups, but no serious clashes were reported.

Israeli land, sea and air forces tightened their noose around PLO guerrillas and their top leadership is expected to convene Monday in a decisive drive of the nine-day invasion. PLO chief Yasir Arafat was quoted as declaring he would not surrender.

"There is no power on earth that can force us to lay down our arms," Arafat told guerrillas on a tour of west Beirut, according to the Palestinian agency.

Bush declines ERA faster's invitation

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Seven women at the end of four weeks of a hunger strike for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment asked Vice President George Bush for help Monday - and were turned down.

The seven, who began their fast here May 13, said they sent a telegram at a cost of $111 to Bush at his Washington, D.C., residence. It asked him to visit the group in Illinois' capital by next Sunday, and meet with Gov. James Thompson and other GOP leaders on the ERA.

Bush's deputy press secretary said the vice president's schedule was "full and he will not be able to come to Illinois."

Bush was to leave the United States late Monday for Sudan, Arabia, to attend a funeral service for King Khaled, who died Sunday at 69.

After his return early Thursday to the nation's capital, Ms. Green said Bush had a full resume of events through Sunday.

Zoe Ananda of Newport Beach, Calif., one of the seven fasters, said the group asked Bush for help because he favors the ERA and he "is the most powerful American who seems to understand what fasting is."

"The vice president supports the position of the president and the Republican platform, which does not support the ERA," she said.

Suit against Bowen Closing refiled

SPRINGFIELD - A suit aimed at preventing Illinois from closing the Bowen Mental Health Center in Hammington was refiled Monday in Sangamon County Circuit Court.

A Cook County judge had dismissed the suit Friday, saying Chicago was not the place to hear the case because the Bowen Center was so far Downtown.

J. Dale Berry, an attorney for parents trying to stop the closing, said the suit charges Gov. James R. Thompson is placing the county's mentally ill patients at a facility without proper facilities.

Kajari declined to comment on the number of suspects in the latest investigation. Seventeen defendants have been ordered to appear for arraignment June 30. The 11 police officers were indicted on charges of trafficking in heroin, cocaine and marihuana.

60 percent rate hike asked for by GTE

By Anita Jackson
Staff Writer

General Telephone Company of Illinois has filed a general rate increase request with the Illinois Commerce Commission which, if approved, would increase residential rates by 60 percent. The company filed the request June 11, its first rate hike request since 1976.

Larry K. Henry, General Telephone's vice-president and general manager, said the company is requesting an additional gross revenue of about $37.5 million in order to obtain the $81.6 million needed in additional net income. About half of any increase received by the company goes toward state and federal taxes. Henry said the company has been able to hold off on rate increases since 1976 because of improved technology and productivity, cost-cutting programs, reorganization and consolidation, according to H.C. Boozer, service office manager for General Telephone's Carbondale office. However, inflation, deregulation and loss of revenue have made an increase necessary, Boozer said. The proposed increase would affect basic monthly rates, extended area service rates and installation charges, according to Boozer. He said the company doesn't expect the new rates to go into effect until May 1983. Rates in CARBONDALE would increase from $7.40 to $12.50 for residential urban one-party phones and from $16.25 to $22.10 for business urban one-party phones. Residential urban one-party rates for Murphysboro would go from $7.60 to $12.80 while business urban one-party phones would increase from $16.45 to $22.40. In areas such as Murphysboro, where usage sensitive service rates have been applied for, the USS rates would go into effect instead of the new rate hikes, if USS is approved by the ICC, Boozer said. Under the USS method of billing, residential customers pay a $3 monthly charge and businesses pay $9. Then customers pay only for the number of local calls they make instead of paying a flat monthly rate.

City sends Reagan resolution stating anti-nuke position

By Andrew Zinner
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council has officially hopped on the anti-nuclear bandwagon, and while no delegation from the council was sent to last weekend's rally in Central Park, the panel's feelings have been expressed.

The council has sent to President Reagan a resolution, adopted May 17, stating that they are "opposed to any further and additional escalation of nuclear weapons by the United States and the Soviet Union." According to Carbondale Mayor Hans Fischer, "We wanted to express to the president and the federal government the attitudes that this community have regarding the proliferation of nuclear weapons.

The resolution also states that the United States and Soviet Union "should immediately and jointly stop the nuclear arms race and should adopt an immediate, mutual freeze or all further testing, production and deployment of nuclear weapons."
Tornado shows need for warning systems

The disaster that struck Marion on May 28 points to the need for tornado early warning systems in Southern Illinois, particularly the area known as Tornado Alley, in which Carbondale, Carterville, CRAVILL, Herrin, Marion and other small communities are located.

According to the Illinois State Police, the twisters, which battered Marion, were five minutes to seek shelter before the tornado hit. According to Steve Pilz, Carbondale's director of Emergency Services, and any mangled to reach a shelter or safety, the funnel cloud started its path of destruction. Pilz said eight of the 16 people killed took shelter in a one-story Vineyard Apartments, a government subsidized housing project criticized afterwards for its poor construction.

Since the Marion disaster, many Southern Illinois towns have re-evaluated their early warning systems. Herrin officials have been working on implementing a system, as Herrin does not presently have an early warning system. Carbondale Mayor Frank Samuels said his town is updating its warning system to include a new siren, and possibly to include the use of "ambersired" fireworks, which are loud, highly visible bombs used in fires, works, and mobile sirens mounted on vehicles to warn outgoing areas.

Pilz said Carbondale is fairly well-equipped to cope with an approaching tornado, as the city owns four large "Thunderbolts" sirens, and four smaller sirens are in place in the SIU-C campus. He said Carbondale is updating its system as well, after plans to work out a radio network with the news media, nursing homes and area businesses to assist in warning residents of tornado danger.

Perhaps the loss of life in Marion could not have been avoided, even with an extensive early warning system. The residents were warned as much in advance as was possible, and it is for that reason that more lives were not lost.

But if there is a lesson to be learned from this experience, it is that success of a system depends on the knowledge and alertness of the people served, worth whatever a warning system may cost. Perhaps a federal or state-assisted funding program for implementing a warning system in high-risk areas would be the answer to a nagging question: How safe are people in "Tornado Alley" without early warning systems?

Site of seven of the 10 deaths.
More than 1,000 people had received assistance from the agencies, said Chuck Jones, public information officer for the Illinois FSIDA.

The majority of the homeless are staying with family or friends, according to Barbara Pinszka, public relations officer for the Red Cross. Others have been moved to federal housing areas or motels.

Federal authorities are planning to bring in mobile homes for the homeless, but it is not yet known when they will arrive, Pinszka said. In the meantime, disaster victims are being encouraged to look for housing in towns nearby.

"They are probably going to have to make a lot of sacrifices," Pinszka said, "because there is almost no housing available in Marion. But the Red Cross can provide people with rent or rent deposits."

While those out of work wait for federal unemployment compensation, the Red Cross has been helping many of them financially. Ironically, last month's tragedy has left in its wake job openings in construction. Other employers have already reopened their businesses, Pinszka said.

As crews of salvagers retained by insurance companies sifted through the remains of the Town and Country Shopping Center, one of three shopping centers that were heavily damaged, some of the luckier business owners were open for business or getting ready to open.

While the Medicare Glaser drug store has already reopened, the Town and Country IGA is set to open June 21. Ten stores located between Glaser, on the north end of the center, and IGA, on the south, weren't so lucky. All were completely destroyed.

Jerald Kohler, Williamson County sheriff, was at his home and saw the tornado coming. He then went directly to Shawnee Village to begin rescue operations. After a meeting with local authorities, the National Guard was called in, he said.

While two looters were arrested the first night, looting did not pose a very big problem because of all of the help that officials received in the wake of the disaster.

More than 400 local volunteers were recruited and trained by the Red Cross, and an additional 40 volunteers came from around the country, Pinszka said.

"We were very impressed with how strongly and how well the town has come forward to help in the relief effort," she said.
Mellow Fellows have come a long way, but they cling to Carbondale 'roots'

By David Murphy
Entertainment Editor

Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows don’t forget their roots, musically or geographically. Musically, those roots are in rhythm and blues. Geographically, they’re in Carbondale.

"Playing in Carbondale is like coming home for us," Larry "Big Twist" Nolan said in a recent telephone interview. "We always look forward to going back there. It’s where we started."

"Absolutely, Carbondale is home. We got our initial concept for this band there, and we got the initial encouragement to help us realize this band was special," Twist. Special and the rest of the Mellow Fellows are coming home to their Carbondale roots for two concerts this week. They will open the Carbondale Sunset Concert series Thursday, June 17 with a free concert on the steps of Shryock Auditorium, and they will play the next night at Hangar 9 on the Strip.

"The band today, though, has come a long way from its beginnings in Carbondale bars in the early 1970s. Big Twist’s rumbling vocal magic, combined with the blues savvy of the six-member band, have earned the group praise as the "hottest rhythm and blues band in the country."

'It hasn’t always been that way for the Twist, however. He spent years as perhaps the only black man playing redneck bars in Southern Illinois, earning little money and, sometimes, lots of abuse from the not-so-liberal white patrons. Paying his dues, in other words.

It was at one of those bars—Lion's in Buckner, that Carbondale was—plucky Terry Ogilvie and his friend Special first heard the Twist. That meeting led to the formation of Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows.

After playing college towns for years, the group moved to Chicago in 1976. Since then, they've played in concerts with the likes of Muddy Waters, B.B. King and Southside Johnny. They released their first album, "Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows," to rave reviews, and they have just released another, "One Track Mind."

Twist and Special talked about their success, their recording careers, where their music is going and where it comes from.

"I hope success hasn't changed our style," Twist said. "We still try to get the same feeling now, in concerts, that we did with smaller audiences in smaller bars. The same feeling, only bigger."

Both Big Twist and Special were reluctant to single out any single musician or sound as the primary influence on the Mellow Fellow's style.

Special emphasized the broad range of influences on the band, saying it is hard to point to any one sound and say that was the one.

"We've been affected by everything from the Beatles to Smokey Robinson and the Miracles. Almost anything you hear influences you, even the things you don’t like. You might tell yourself you never want to sound like something you just heard, but that’s an influence.

Recording in the studio has presented new problems for the band. Achieving the level of energy you get in a live performance, for instance. For a band that was born and bred in front of an audience, that was a new and difficult problem.

"It’s hard, very hard, to get that energy in the studio," Twist said. "You get so much from the audience. It takes a lot of psyche to go in and watch the band and listen in head-phones and get that energy.

Special agreed, saying that recording in the studio has a very, original atmosphere.

"It’s like someone threw you in a bathroom with a bright light on you and told you to play your ass off.

While he’s happy with the band’s studio sound, Special feels the best is yet to come.

"I’m very proud of our work so far. I don’t think we’ve achieved as we’re capable of on vinyl yet, though," Special said.

"I think that’s yet to come.

The group has been tagged repeatedly as rhythm and blues revivalists, a title that has its good and bad aspects according to Twist and Special.

"Well, I don’t mind the label," Twist said. "We’re showing folks a lot of music they never heard before. Great music. We’re showing this generation a lot of great music from an earlier one.

Special, too, was not exactly uncomfortable with the label. He did feel it was incomplete, however.

"It’s an honor to be called leaders of a rhythm and blues revival. But I see us more as a top, original group of contemporary musicians. We’ll always have that basic element of rhythm and blues, but that doesn’t mean we can’t be different.

The future looks promising for Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows. A live album with some never before recorded material is being planned, as well as a new studio album with, according to Special, more original material. And there may be a European tour. But both men agree the Southern Illinois will always be on their list of stops.

"Always. We’ll always play Southern Illinois," Special said.

"You just don’t forget the places you came from.

SIU asks 12.5% pay hike in 1984

By Steve Metz
Staff Writer

SIU system's faculty staff and civil service employees will get a 12.5 percent salary increase if the fiscal 1984 budget is approved by the state government.

John Baker, SIU-C President Semi's special assistant for planning, explained why the salary increase is needed.

"The 12.5 percent increase is if there isn't one this year. Our assumption is our employees will need it since it takes a big bite out of their income," Baker said.

The Illinois Senate has approved a $158.2 million budget for the SIU system for fiscal 1983. The budget is now in the House Appropriations Committee and is expected to be heard sometime this week. SIU-C's share of the budget will total about $108 million.

Baker said the University will have to cut spending by about $1.6 million if it is to "exist with such a low budget."

"The real problem," Baker said, "is that we will have to operate on the same number of dollars in 1983 as we did in fiscal year 1982."

He said the University has few areas from which to cut funds and the University must also contend with operating and maintenance cost increases, and utility increases. Baker added that SIU-C also has six months remaining on the 2 percent salary increase which went into effect in January.

Baker said the university needs $1.6 million to pay for the above programs and as a result he "liosn'share" of the needed money will come from savings garnered from unfilled positions.

SIU-C will have about 120 fewer positions next year than this, according to Baker. He said that most of those positions now vacant are due to resignations and retirements.

Additional vacant positions may occur when appointments which ended May 15 are not renewed for next year.

Baker said the University doesn't plan to fill any position now vacant due to the fact that the Senate-approved budget is 120 fewer positions.

proposals include a 4 percent salary boost effective July 1, 1982.

Thompson's recommendations in the budget differ from Gov.

The Senate's version of the budget differs from Gov.

Thompson's recommended budget, as to that Thompson wouldn't permit a salary hike in fiscal 1983. However, Baker said the two proposed budgets aren't radically different.

Baker said the Senate sought money from the State University Retirement Fund for the salary hike "so the total is no different from the governor".

The Senate plan to approve $1 million for the retirement fund money slightly less than 60 percent of the grants to those already retired ac­ which the University of Illinois Board of

According to Baker, the other 40 percent will result from state retirement system investments.

Baker said the practice of appropriating from the fund should have "no effect on retirement" and conceivably could affect future employees.

He said the state would exhaust its entire budget if it voted the Senate's version of the retirement fund.

The Senate's proposed budget—which is $4.2 million more than Thompson's, according to the governor—is not enough to meet the funding needs of the University of Illinois Board of Education—now revised with the House and Thompson.

The House isn't sure whether the House or Thompson will OK the bill, but added that if the bill is still under consideration on June 30—the date the Legislature's current session ends—the university will continue normal operations.

"We will continue to spend for July as if the governor had signed that bill," said Baker.

"We normally don't plan our final internal budget until after the governor signs the appropriation bill," he added.

In the interim, the university will operate on a resolution calling for the SIU-C to limit spending to equal or less than the old budget according to Baker. The SIU Board of Trustees authorized the resolution at its meeting at the medical center in Springfield, May 24.

The SIU finance committee also got its first look at the budget by the Chancellor's office for fiscal 1984.

Included in the proposed budget—what the board will use as a guideline when formulating appropriations proposals—is a 12.5 percent salary increase for SIU's faculty staff and civil service.

"The 12.5 percent increase is if there isn't one (an increase) this year. Our assumption is our employees will need it since inflation takes a big bite out of their paycheck," Baker said.

"The guidelines are suggestions for us to use when we develop our appropriations requests," he said. The first planning documents will be presented at next month's Board meeting. The 1984 proposed budget request totals $105,768,206. The SIU system would also request a 9 percent general price increase, 15 percent increase for library materials, and 6 percent increase for fire protection. SIU-C would receive a 14.7 percent increase for utilities cost, according to the proposed budget request.

A salary catch-up plan which calls for a 2 percent increase for faculty and staff and a 3 percent for Civil Service Employees based on 95 percent of the present budget is also included in the 1984 plan.
Hunt for escapee reaches to Kansas

Authorities believe a Marion federal penitentiary prisoner who escaped from a Clinton County Jail cell June 1 has left the St. Louis area and is moving east after being identified as having been in restaurants along I-70.

The search will be "shaken up" in St. Louis and expanded in eastern counties of Missouri and in Kansas, according to Fred Meyer, an investigator with the U.S. Marshals office.

Lawrence D. Caldwell had been serving a life sentence for killing a Washington D.C. policeman, bank robbery and three attempted prison escapes, two from Marion, according to authorities. He was awaiting transportation from the Clinton jail to a court appointment in East St. Louis when he slipped out an unlatched rear door.

The largest disarmament gathering in the nation’s history.

The rally was sponsored by the group “Rally Committee,” an umbrella organization of religious and secular groups which has been planning the event since April. The rally was to mark the beginning of the United Nations Second Special Session on Disarmament, which began today.

President Reagan is scheduled to address the session on Tuesday.

New York Police estimated that three-quarters of a million people participated in the march, which culminated in a music festival and rally at the Great Lawn of Central Park. The Carbondale marchers, mostly students, gathered Saturday morning at the corner of 39th Street and Second Avenue in a demonstration of the size.

"I was in marches in Carbondale before, but never anything this big," said Reed Fillmore, a 25-year-old SIU-C senior. Fillmore is a member of the group called “Carbondale Change.” She said she has been interested in the anti-nuclear movement for about a year.

"President Reagan says we have to build up arms before we can cut back, but that’s not the way to do it. We have to make a decision if we want to reduce nuclear arms and we have to act now," Fillmore said.

Ed Taggart, a 42-year-old Carbondale resident, said he had never participated in a demonstration of this size. "I didn’t have been in marches in Carbondale before, but never anything this big," Taggart said.

Although the march was scheduled to begin at 5 p.m., some marchers, including the Carbondale delegation, started to march about 4:30 p.m. When they arrived at Central Park, they were met by a large crowd of people who had been assembling for the march.

The Carbondale delegation took the lead in stride, passing the time by watching and reading newspapers and letters that were handed out by hundreds of political groups from the marchers.

"I came to the rally because I’m never been to New York before," said Mark Philbrick, a student at Harvard University.

"I’ve been to rallies before," he said. "I felt it was important to show support for nuclear disarmament because if we’re not going to be part of the solution, then you are part of the cause.

"The group began to march about 5 p.m. The marchers sang peace songs and chanted anti-nuclear slogans along the way.

At the rally in Central Park, the speakers addressing the crowd included black and Hispanic community leaders, labor and union leaders, and members of Third World and Central American organizations.

Entertainment was provided by the huge stage area over the crowd was stopped on the lawn. Among those who sang were Springsteen, James Taylor, Linda Ronstadt, Chaka Khan and Bette Midler.

"We need you. For the biggest and the best that life has to offer," said the speakers. "And for the college rug that will cause ecumenical arguments about who—your advisor for whom.

"Where there—you can afford it. A chance for a good time you can order from the entire Articard catalog of rock, gold college rings and 10K. Cool stuff at surprisingly low prices—everything from the classic to the contemporary. And choose the ring and custom options that most accurately express you.

"Now is your time to get what you deserve. That’s never been as true as it is right now. And because of a great new discount, we can save you up to 20% on what you buy. And that’s not all.

Camp for disabled faces fund cuts

By Rebecca Stalovich Staff Writer

A unique summer camp for physically disabled high school students will fall victim to recent budget cuts by the federal government following this summer's sessions.

The National Science Foundation (NSF), which provided a grant for the SIU-C Summer Institute in Environmental Science, has canceled most of its science education programs.

Parking lots to be unlighted to reduce campus utility bill

In an effort to keep SIU-C's utility bills down, about 30 university parking lots and classroom buildings were unlighted during the summer. According to Harri L. Larré, superintendent of building maintenance, Lot 108 on South Wall Street will remain unlighted until Aug. 16. Two-thirds of the lights will not be lit in Lot 14, near the pedestrian overpass by the East Campus Residence Halls, and Lot 63, next to the Law School, until Aug. 16. Larré said all of Lot 6's overhead lights will be in for a period in July when people attending two national conferences are on campus.

Larré also said that campus parking lots were unlighted before the decisions concerning parking lot lighting were made. Larré said lighting cutbacks in parking lots have been done for at least the last three years.

Bowel Center suit to be rescheduled

A lawsuit attempting to block the transfer of patients from the Bowel Developmental Center in Harrisburg, that was dismissed out of a Cook County court will be rescheduled for Sagamon Circuit Court, according to authorities with the Illinois Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities.

The Sagamon Circuit Court's office reported Monday afternoon that the case had not been filed but was expected to be that day.

It was first reported that the suit, brought on by parents of Bowel patients, would be rescheduled for Union County Court near Jonesboro, according to Dick Battles, a public information officer for the Department.

He said the case was being rescheduled for the "convenience of trying the case," and that attorneys for the parents group were trying to keep the case in Cook County.

Women, minority grad students to get federal grants

The University has received a $42,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Education to support five graduate fellowships for minority and women students.

The funds, from the Graduate and Professional Opportunities Program, will finance three graduate fellowships in the Department of Psychology and two in the Rehabilitation Institute.

The one-year stipends will be at $4,500 each, according to Dennis W. Leitner, associate dean of the Graduate School. The fellowships will begin in October.

The GPOP grants are awarded on the basis of a school's commitment to helping minority and women students, as well as the strength of its academic programs in the areas under consideration.

"Officials at the Department of Education look at your recruitment programs for minority and women students, as well as the support services available to students after they have enrolled," said Leitner.

"I think programs like our Black Graduate Student Organization and other support efforts made a big difference. The fact that we already are providing many of the support services they look for had to help," said Leitner.

Leitner said the GPOP fellowship would aid efforts to attract top-notch graduate students.

"The Department of Education gives participating schools a lot of exposure nationwide, and this is bound to help our recruitment efforts," he said.

Part of the grant funds are earmarked for expanding recruitment programs and support services.

The GPOP application effort was coordinated by Leitner, who received the assurance from Clifford L. Shinier of the Office of Research Development and Administration. James H. McFrose, chairman of psychology, and Rehabilitation Institute director Jerome R. Lorenz.

Deadline nears for ERA push

By Bob Debney
Staff Writer

Supporters of the ERA will begin pressing the Illinois Senate again Tuesday and the House Wednesday in an effort to get the amendment passed in Illinois before the end of the legislative session on June 30. ERA supporters are also hoping for action to reduce the three-fifths vote needed for passage — considered a stumbling block to passage of the ERA in Illinois — to a simple majority.

The House voted 97 to 4 last week not to override a House-passed ERA and allow a rules change amendment to be inserted onto a House bill. Mary Jean Collins, executive director of the National Organization for Women's Illinois campaign, said the vote was "another sign of the Senate's commitment," and that most legislators favoring the ERA were not outvoted by the opposition. Rep. C.L. McCormick, R-58th District, said after the vote that the ERA is dead in Illinois, but Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-58th District, said he wouldn't be an umpire battle, there is still time to pass the proposed federal amendment.

Richmond said he was worried about the Senate's decision to override the ERA. The ERA has been defeated, not the ERA itself, and that there were more than 57 votes for ERA on the floor. Seventy-one legislators voted "present" to protest the motion, made by Rep. Thomas Haman, D-3rd District, but Richmond, one of four who voted to override Ryan, said "yes" was the proper vote.

"I am pro-ERA, I am anti-three-fifths rule," said Richmond. "I wanted to make it clear what my position is." He said Ryan has "used the authority of the Senate to force his will on the House." McCormick said after the vote that the Senate had "just picked their heads out there. ERA is dead in Illinois."

He said ERA supporters were "despondent" and that "the people of Illinois are sick and tired of these people."

Richmond, however, said that support for ERA had been on the rise and that a Harris Poll showed 66 percent of residents in the Midwest favored the amendment, up from 48 percent.

McMinn's has been lobbying opponents of the ERA, according to McCormick, who said proponents expect the governor to veto the law.

Add scuba class to summer list

A course in skin and scuba diving, GSE 101D, which can be used for certifications by the National Association of Underwater Instructors, has been added to the summer course schedule.

Peter Carroll, the instructor, said the class will meet at 6 p.m. each Monday and Thursday with an additional meeting time to be arranged.

Carroll said equipment will be provided and that these requirements must be reasonably good for scuba

Baseball owners' lawsuit anger Miller

UP (HOMER) - Major league player's association director Warren Miller and Darrow say he will fight an owner and union at the time he plays out of money generated in the baseball.

Miller also predicted an organization will emerge out of the legal battle.

I'm confident the owners will go on the same as the issues
resolved.

Miller's comments followed an announcement by Ray Darrow, director of the owners' player relations committee, that the owners will meet.

If the players win, the owners are the same owners of all seven league conference.
