FOOD FIGHT: 280 children hurl 500 bags of puffy candy at one another Saturday.

DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

As their baby sitter watched from the sidelines, 5-year-old Kinley Coleman reared back her arm and flung a marshmallow at the face of her older sister, Kayla.

Carbondale resident Tina Neal smiled as the children hurled the marshmallows at each other on Saturday at what was billed as "Southern Illinois' Largest Marshmallow Fight."

"I thought [the event] sounded strange at first, but it sounded fun, too," Neal said. "It's like a snowball fight in June."

On Saturday afternoon, the Carbondale Park District attracted about 280 children to Evergreen Park's Giant Sycamore Shelter on Pleasant Hill Road for the region's first marshmallow fight.

More than 500 bags of marshmallows were donated for the fight by Roundy's, U.S. Route 45 in Eldorado, and Arnold's Market, 2141 S. Illinois Ave.

Organizer Sara Thompson said she heard of a similar event at the Illinois Parks and Recreation Association Conference in Skokie, and thought the event would attract Southern Illinois children.

"The event appeals to all ages and is open to every economic level," said Thompson, the recreation coordinator for the Park District.

Thompson does not know if the Park District will sponsor a similar event in the future.

Volunteers from Carbondale Community High School and the Saluki Volunteer Corps helped distribute the free bags of puffy marshmallows to the children, who received one bag each.

Children between the ages of 5 and 12 were divided into age groups and then escorted to their designated areas by the "Marshmallow Man," who was clad in cotton batting.

Miss Teen Illinois, Charistina Lam, and the Marshmallow Man began the fray by throwing the first marshmallows. Children laughed as they darted through Evergreen Park to find their next marshmallow victims.

Parents stood on the outer edges of the boundaries and ducked to avoid stray marshmallows.

After a short time, the bags began running low. Suddenly, a herd of sticky fingers began gathering marshmallows off the ground to reuse in combat.

Many of the children were anxious to begin the fight anew, but Kinley Coleman had a different strategy in mind.

"I wanna eat all the marshmallows," she said.

But during the course of the battle,

Former student designs game

ON THE RAMPAGE:

Game lets players blow up Carbondale and other cities.

MIKAL J. HARRIS
D. E. CAMPUS LIFE EDITOR

Carbondale soon can be destroyed at the push of a button while its citizens find themselves being used as fuel for rampaging villains.

A new video game designed by a former SIUC student will bring the city of Carbondale into people's living rooms across the country by Christmas.

"You'll be able to punch in and kick the entire fronts off buildings and peek inside to see the people," said Brian Colin, the game's designer and president of Game Refuge in Homewood. "Then you can pluck the people out and eat them like peanuts."

In "Rampage World Tour," players can join three radioactive villains on a quest to destroy a toxic waste recycling plant. The game hit the arcade market earlier this month, and home versions of the game will be available by Dec. 25.

The journey is half the fun of the game, as the villains can destroy Carbondale and 134 other cities.

But Colin, who attended SIUC from 1974 to 1980, says "destroying" Carbondale does not represent his feelings for the city. He says Carbondale was a factor in his decision to attend SIUC.

"I knew I wanted to go into film, and SIUC had an excellent film department," he said. "Once I actually saw the campus, I was hooked. I liked the fact that it was a stone's throw in any direction from nature spots."

More than 20 years ago, Southern Illinois' outdoors was new for Colin, who is from the

Two greek organizations face relocation

DISPUTE: Residents who didn't sign leases may be without housing.

TAMEKA L. HICKS
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Residents of two off-campus greek houses may have to find new places to stay in the fall if their houses are sold to a local rehabilitation center.

Members of Alpha Chi Omega sorority, 520 S. University Ave., and Sigma Nu fraternity, 516 S. University Ave., learned at a Planning Commission meeting on Wednesday that their landlord, Jack Baird, could sell the buildings to the Center for Comprehensive Services.

The center owns land at 306 W. Mill St. and 514 S. University Ave.

When the greek members moved into their sorority and fraternity houses on South

University Avenue, they did not sign written leases, and now they and their roommates may have to move out by Aug. 15. Eight students were planning to live in the sorority house in the fall, and 16 students were planning to live in the fraternity house in the fall. Jamie Kelley, a member of Alpha Chi Omega, and her neighbors learned about the Planning Commission's public hearing from a notice that was posted on their lawns two weeks before the meeting.

"We've had a good rapport with Jack (Baird) and to have this happen has caused a lot of hurt feelings between us," said Kelley, a senior in health care administration from Marion.

Baird would not comment.

The Center for Comprehensive Services are corporate and clinical offices that house and rehabilitate brain trauma and spinal-cord injury patients. It serves patients from Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Kathleen Fralish, president of the center, would not comment on the possible purchase.

Tom Redmond, director of Development Services for the city of Carbondale, said Wednesday's public hearing was conducted so city officials could learn the center's plans for the two houses.

Redmond said the center's application to Carbondale states that its facilities need more room, and the area on South University Avenue is the best place for rehabilitation. The Sigma Nu house would be demolished, and the Alpha Chi Omega house would be remodeled.

At a Carbondale City Council meeting on June 17, council members will approve or deny the purchase and development.

"Part of rehabilitation is to be in the real world and integrated into society," Redmond

Death not enough for McVeigh

Our newspapers and popular journals have been festooned with messages of self congratulation ever since that Denver jury brought in a guilty verdict against Timothy McVeigh, the Oklahoma City bomber. The verdict rescued the jury system from the disrepute in which the initial O.J. Simpson and Rodney King trials had left it, they said. A killer can be convicted after all; that's the story line.

What, you were expecting maybe an acquittal? Let's face it, folks, there was no way in hell McVeigh was going to beat this rap. He was accused, after all, of killing 168 citizens who reminded us of ourselves, and there was all manner of circumstantial evidence linking him to the crime. He was in all the wrong places at all the right times, and he uttered not a word in his own defense. His own sister testified against him — and she liked him. Perry Mason could not have gotten him off.

So let's not pat ourselves on the back too much. Mass murderers have always had a hard time beating our legal system, and McVeigh proved no exception. Among the advantages the McVeigh trial had over the first King and Simpson trials was a strong, no-nonsense judge and a competent prosecutor, both of whom moved things along without confusing the jury. Some would say it also had the advantage of not being televised, but I'm not so sure that was all to the good.

In any case, a trial like Simpson's — charged with celebrity, sex and race, against a backdrop of Southern California dolce vita — is not one from which to draw great conclusions about the American judicial system. The McVeigh case would have been a better test of the fairness of letting television cameras report a trial of national interest, and I'm sorry it didn't happen.

More interesting is the question of what they're going to do with McVeigh now.

Guest Column

There is a great temptation, even for those of us opposed to capital punishment, to say "Kill him." The man is a creep. He killed scores of innocent people and shows no remorse. He doesn't deserve to live. Of course.

On the other hand, there are those who say that killing is too good for him, too quick. He should be allowed to spend the rest of his life rotting in jail, contemplating his sin. That's not a bad argument, but I guess I go a third way. It is precisely the magnitude of McVeigh's crime that renders killing him for it futile.

If a man kills someone and you kill him back, there's a certain rough, vindictive justice in it. But if a man kills 168 people, you can't even the score by killing him too. He is beyond retributive justice.

Alive, he remains a kind of warning against a madness that seems to be growing in our society, the conviction that government is the mortal enemy and must be opposed, with arms if necessary; an anti-militia poster boy, if you will. Dead he becomes a martyr.

About that madness; it has been said that McVeigh was inspired to his desperate act by a series of government outrages, mainly the 1992 government raid on a white supremacist's cabin at Ruby Ridge, Idaho, and the federal raid on the Branch Davidian compound at Waco, Texas in 1993, in which more than 80 cult members died.

Perhaps, but they were as much excuse as cause. McVeigh and all like him — militia yokels, Internet commandos, storm trooper wannabes — tend to be deranged cuckoos whose murderous instincts are at the whim of a change in barometric pressure.

I wouldn't defend government actions in either Ruby Ridge or Waco; both were criminally stupid foul-ups. But to use them to justify mass murder?

That's sick. And so, in its way, is using the Oklahoma City deaths to justify the killing of even so monstrous a villain as McVeigh.

Teens welcome

Bar-entry age change requires responsible behavior to work

ON JULY 1, 19-YEAR-OLDS ONCE AGAIN will have free reign in Carbondale's bars. But while Carbondale's two-year noble experiment with a higher bar-entry age has been repealed, the legal drinking age has not.

This age overlap has some residents, police and city and University officials worried about inebriated minors (tearing up the city, especially during Halloween).

Students, bemoaning the lack of social forums, and business owners, reeling from financial woes, were so adamant about repealing the old entry-age ordinance that, in April, they replaced two stubborn Carbondale City Council members with members amenable to their cause.

During last month's charged City Council meeting when the repeal was considered, students, Undergraduate Student Government leaders, City Council members and business owners who supported the repeal attempted to ease their opponents' concerns with pledges of "responsible" behavior on the part of students and bar owners if the age was lowered.

NOW THAT THE CHANGE HAS BEEN MADE, we will see just how responsible repeal supporters are. If this change is going to be meaningful and lasting, underage students are going to have to make good on their vows, and not drink alcohol in bars. The temptation will be great, but the upshot will be improved credibility.

But underage students are not alone. USG leaders supported the repeal and pledged to encourage students to be more responsible. So USG leaders must be held accountable if problems arise.

Responsibility is not just a student issue. Bar owners must develop techniques and train their staffs to prevent underage patrons from buying liquor and older patrons from sharing it with their younger friends. If bar profits were higher before the bar-entry age was increased, it wasn't entirely caused by increased cover-charge revenue and soda-pop sales. Lax enforcement of the legal drinking age will increase bar owners' incomes, but at an enormous social cost to the community.

ULTIMATE RESPONSIBILITY FOR ENSURING safe and legal bar activity and allaying the community's concerns about misbehavior spilling into the streets will fall on the City Council: For councilman John Budtslick, taking responsible action may be difficult because he owned a bar until election rules forced him to transfer its ownership to his two sons. But despite Budtslick's seeming conflict of interest and his and fellow councilman Larry Briggs' pandering to the desires of teenagers and young adults to get elected, City Council members must be prepared to be responsible leaders and amend the ordinance if things go radically awry and the community's fears are realized.

The lowered bar-entry age will work only if the entire community acts together; if a particular group fails to act responsibly, it is up to the rest of us to remedy the problem before it becomes a crisis.

"Our Word" represents the consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Board.

Overheard

"This is going to kill recruitment. It just wouldn't be the same."

Sean Pechan, a 22-year-old SIUC advertising major, doubting that sober fraternity brothers would be willing to dress in togas or grass skirts, as quoted May 15 in the New York Times in a story on Select 2000.

"Carbondale is dying right now. We have to take a modern look and a modern stance and ask ourselves where we want to take ourselves."

Larry Briggs, Carbondale City Council member, discussing why he voted to lower the bar-entry age.

Flag not a racist symbol

Dear Editor:

As a proud Texan, imagine my surprise and dismay to learn from George Schedler, a professor of philosophy at SIUC, the current Texas flag contains symbolism comparable to the Confederate battle flag, which conveys a "symbolic message of hatred toward African-Americans" (DE, May 5). Of course, the reason I have never heard anyone make this claim before is IT IS NOT TRUE!

The Texas legislature (then a republic) embraced what is now the state flag on Jan. 25, 1839. Except for the Civil War, when a different flag was adopted by Texas (1861-1865), the "Lone Star Flag" has flown over Texas since 1839. It is a simple design with a blue perpendicular stripe one-third the length of the flag. A white five-pointed star adorns the center of the blue field. The remaining two-thirds of the flag consists of two equally divided horizontal stripes, the upper being white and the lower being red in color.

According to the 1996-1997 Texas Almanac, the colors of the Lone Star Flag "represent the same virtues as they do in the United States flag: Red means courage; white, purity and liberty; and blue, loyalty." Neither the design nor the colors can be interpreted as racist.

My question to Schedler is how could the Lone Star Flag be a symbol of the racist Confederacy when it flew over Texas more than two decades before the Confederacy existed? Perhaps in your overzealousness to paint the entire South as racist, you failed to check the facts before you conducted your "study." If this is an example of the quality of your research, perhaps it would be prudent for you to stick to your native field, philosophy, since the sequence of historical events in the United States clearly eludes your grasp.

Coleman was just as enthralled as the rest of the children, fighting her way through the marshmallows.

When the whistle blew signaling the end of the 10-minute fight, the final marshmallows sailed through the air.

Children with gooey fingers stood covered in white, puffy spots, with marshmallows surrounding their feet.

The smell of revenge was in the air as Thompson announced that the parents would be the next to fight.

The children circled the field, and an adult marshmallow fight began to take shape as the parents pelted each other with marshmallows.

Again, the whistle blew and nearly 100 "children" stood splattered with marshmallows.

Thousands of marshmallows scattered the fields of Evergreen Park. As a result, a new contest emerged.

the event was given recycled bags by The Kroger Co. The children then were instructed to gather as many marshmallows as possible.

As quickly as the marshmallows had been released from the tiny hands, they were gathered from the grass.

Some children had acquired an appetite and ate a few of the grassy marshmallows recovered from the pick-up contest.

When the final count was in, one child had collected 297 marshmallows, winning a $10 gift certificate from Kerasones University Place 8, 1370 E. Main St.

Evergreen Park was spotless. The children had gathered all of the marshmallows in matter of minutes, leaving the volunteers with little to clean up.

Tabitha Matuska, 16-year-old high school volunteer, said she had a great time with the children. Matuska also joined in on the fun.

"I had six kids hitting me with marshmallows at once," she said. "I love interacting with kids. It was a lot of fun."

said.

"Because the area is closer to downtown and the college, CCS felt that it was a good site."

Redmond said the city will not be involved in Baird's notification to his residents.

"There are two separate issues here," Redmond said. "Plans are to start the project in the fall, and [the plans] have nothing to do with the fraternity, the sorority and the landlord."

Both groups of residents said they did not sign a written lease but had a verbal agreement.

Some students who planned to occupy the space until May 1998 will return in the fall with no more notice," Kelley said. "All our girls had intentions to stay until May, and now we have to find new places. Some people will come back without a place to live."

Matt Studnicki, a member of Sigma Nu, has no problem with the house being replaced, but said students should have been notified sooner.

Because they were not, Studnicki said his fraternity's relationship with Baird has changed.

"We have no problem with CCS," said Studnicki, a senior in accounting from Pontiac. "CCS has been totally cooperative and understanding with us. Our main grudge is with Jack [Baird]."

Studnicki said that at Wednesday's meeting, the center and the commission agreed to allow the students two weeks after Aug. 15 to move out and offered housing alternatives.

DE tracks local news from intersession

UPDATES: DE relays news that happened while students were gone from area.

Children find corpse

A group of children found the body of a Carbondale man on May 27 in a wooded area south of Carbondale Mobile Home Park. Foul play is not suspected.

The Jackson County Sheriff's Department responded to the call late in the evening. The night search turned up nothing, but the next morning, authorities located the body.

The severely decomposed corpse later was identified as Tracy Wallace, a 32-year-old man who was reported missing in February. He is believed to have been dead since mid- to late February.

The Jackson County Coroner performed an autopsy, but results have not been released.

Communications Building courtyard dedicated

The College of Mass Communications and Media Arts celebrated reaching one-third of its $333,000 fund-raising goal with the May 9 dedication of the new courtyard located outside the Communications Building.

The money will provide scholarships and equipment for radio-television, journalism and cinema and photography students.

In the courtyard, three benches surround the "Obelisk of Honor," which is the centerpiece for more than 200 engraved bricks from alumni and faculty, who gave donations ranging from $100 to $500.

Japanese Garden dedicated outside Faner Hall

The friendship between SIUC and its sister campus in Nakajo, Japan, now is rooted in a Japanese garden at the north end of Faner Hall.

SIU President Ted Sanders and his wife oversaw a groundbreaking ceremony with Nakajo Mayor Nobuo Kumakura and other Japanese dignitaries on May 9.

The garden was named after Kumakura because he was a leading force in establishing SIU's campus in Nakajo.

Kumakura also received an honorary doctor of humane letters degree during the May 9 Graduate School commencement exercises.

Incubator named to honor Dunn and Richmond

SIUC's small business incubator now bears the name of two retired local legislators who helped create the building.

The Dunn-Richmond Economic Center, 150 Pleasant Hill Road, honors retired state Sen. Ralph A. Dunn, R-Du Quoin, and retired state Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro. The SIUC Board of Trustees approved the change on May 8 at its monthly meeting in Springfield.

Dunn served in the House for 12 years and then served in the Illinois Senate from 1985 to 1994. Richmond served in the House from 1975 to 1993.

The two men helped secure a $50,000 planning grant for the incubator and the remaining $6 million to build the 55,000-square-foot facility. The building opened in 1990.

In the next few months, the building will receive a $29 million steam plant addition that will cleanly burn high-sulfur Illinois coal.

Edgar to decide on student trustees vote

Student trustees will have a vote on the SIUC Board of Trustees if Gov. Jim Edgar signs a bill allowing them to do so. Currently, the two student trustees can cast an advisory vote in board matters.

The bill was passed by the Illinois General Assembly two weeks ago.

If Edgar signs the bill, he will choose either the Edwardsville or the Carbondale student trustee to have a binding vote. The trustee who is not chosen will continue to cast an advisory vote.

Senators join Simon in discussion

Retired U.S. Sens. David Pryor, D-Arkansas; John Danforth, R-Missouri; and Alan Simpson, K-Wyoming, joined former Sen. Paul Simon, an SIUC journalism and political science professor, on May 22 at the Paul Simon Public Policy Institute to discuss Social Security.

The retired senators then drafted recommendations to Congress calling for Congress to correct the Consumer Price Index, or the cost of living factor, to reflect the real cost. They also called for Congress to remove the cap on the amount of taxable income covered by Social Security.

Recount denied for Barb Brown

On May 15, the Illinois Senate voted to deny Barb Brown, a Chester Democrat, a full recount of votes at the recommendation of a special committee controlled by Republicans.

In November, Brown lost to incumbent state Sen. Dave Luechtefeld, R-Okawville, by 127 votes in her bid for the 58th District seat.

Brown, an SIUC political science professor, could challenge the Senate's decision in court but has said that she will not.

SIUC budget passes legislature

The SIUC fiscal year 1998 budget, which passed the Illinois General Assembly last week with a $667,000 cut for travel services and auto replacement, awaits Gov. Jim Edgar's signature.

If signed, SIUC will receive $199.9 million in state appropriations, a 3-percent increase over last year's $194 million. The legislature approved the budget on June 7, the last day of its legislative session.

School of Social Work relocates

In an effort to increase student enrollment and help student interaction, the School of Social Work has moved from Quigley Hall into the College of Education in Wham Educational Building.

SIUC's Board of Trustees approved the move on May 9 at its monthly meeting. The School of Social Work officially will become a subset of the College of Education on July 1.

Nancy Quisenberry, dean of the College of Education, said the decision to move the school was recommended by the School of Social Work.

Quisenberry said the move gives Social Work students access to enhanced technology and allows students and faculty from both units to interact.

FEE

views the students expressed at the SIUC Board of Trustees meetings in April and May.

At Monday's meeting, both parties agreed that the $20 per year increase for fall 1998 remain because the Athletic Department needs funding. They also agreed that the administration should study increasing the fee beyond fall 1998.

Jim Hart, director of Intercollegiate Athletics, said he will continue to talk to students and administrators to convince them that athletics is worth supporting.

He said that unless the Athletic Department receives more funding, its Division I-AA status could be in jeopardy. He said that status depends partly on the number of scholarships the department offers.

"With athletics, we are into recruitment, and we can't be going year to year trying to determine what division we are in," he said. "If there is any doubt what division we will maintain, then incoming students will bail out on us."

Beggs said he will conduct student focus groups in the fall to determine how SIUC athletics should compete and how to fund that level of competition.

"We have to determine if we wish to compete, what is the cost of that and how do we meet that cost?" he said.

The athletic-fee increase and a plan to limit tuition, fees and housing increases to the U.S. Consumer Price Index will be voted on at the Board of Trustees meeting, scheduled for 4:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Dunn-Richmond Economic Development Center, 150 Pleasant Hill Road.

Chicago suburb of Homewood. While enrolled at SIUC, he specialized in animation as a cinema and photography student and created ads for the Daily Egyptian. He eventually did more advertising until fate decided otherwise.

"After leaving SIUC, I continued doing ads at other places," he said. "Then I sort of backed into a job with a video-game company where someone had seen one of the films I had done at SIUC."

"I didn't know they were even a video-game company. I thought they made pinball machines or something."

But immunity to "Pac-Man Fever" almost kept him out of the video-game industry.

"This was back in the days when video games were on the 'Pac-Man' level, and I really wasn't excited about drawing a chomping circle," he said.

"I almost didn't take the job, but I changed my mind. I've been into video games ever since."

In 1986, he teamed with a co-worker to design "Rampage," a game that he says broke sales records at the time. Comparing his earlier effort with his newer game, Colin is modest.

"It was a three-player game with low-resolution graphics — pretty cartoony, at the time," he said. "There was nothing fancy about it, just that it was one of the first games where players could be the villain."

He included Carbondale in that version, but technology kept him from adding his special touches to the city.

About a year ago, he and his partner designed its sequel, "Rampage World Tour," and the new technology pleased Colin.

"In the original, all that lets you know the city was Carbondale was a giant screen with 'Carbondale' on it," he said. "It looked like virtually any town."

"The sequel was fun because we put in a national forest meant to represent the Shawnee (National Forests)."

We put some bars and businesses in front of it, so it's not lifelike. The main thing for us was to have Carbondale represented."

Also, Salukis with a grudge against the University of Illinois are using destroying Champaign.

"One of my game designers went to both schools," Colin said. "He insisted that we trash U of I, too."

The "Rampage" games are not the only ones that Colin has designed with a Carbondale reference. His "Arch Rivals" basketball game has a WIDB "television crew" on the court at halftime. At SIUC, WIDB is the campus radio station.

"Rampage World Tour" is a game Jeff Duke, assistant director of the Student Center, would not mind seeing in the Student Center game room.

"I wouldn't have a problem getting it in here now if our distributor ever purchases it," he said.

Colin also hopes his game eventually will find its way back to his alma mater.

He is pleased that he can bring back some of his college-town memories in his work.

"It's all a nod to Carbondale," he said. "It has a place in my heart."

AGE

from 19 to 21 in 1995, after the 1994 Halloween riots in which two cars were overturned and about 130 arrests were made.

Both Flanagan and Briggs said students are responsible enough to handle a lower entry age.

They said if problems develop because of the new entry age, it could be raised again.

"This is like the second chance for those students who are committed and responsible citizens," Flanagan said.

"The students all along have been the ones who have said, 'We can do it.'"

The 1995 Mayoral-Presidential Task Force on Halloween, which was comprised of Carbondale citizens and city and University representatives, recommended that the bar-entry age be raised from 19 to 21 in one-year increments.

On July 1, 1996, the entry age was raised to 21.

City Manager Jeff Doherty said he recommended that the council maintain the task force findings on Halloween.

"Access under the age of 21 means people under 21 have access to alcohol," he said.

"As long as the 21 is the legal drinking age, underage drinking should be discouraged."

Briggs, however, said the lower entry age will encourage more foot traffic downtown and let students of all ages socialize.

"Carbondale is dying right now," he said. "We have to take a modern look and a modern stance and ask ourselves where we want to take the city.

"There's always a danger, but we have to take a chance. It can always be revoked if students aren't responsible."

Neill said he was elected to the council two years ago in part because of his desire to raise the bar-entry age, and that the reputation of the University could be hurt if the lower entry age results in crime.

"As long as there is no destruction or vandalism like in the past, it won't bother me," he said.

Flanagan said the lower entry age could improve the relationship between students and residents.

"Students who are 19 years old have the reason and ability to be able to go into an entertainment establishment and behave themselves," she said.

"This is certainly not the only option of entertainment for students, but this contributes to the modern-day student lifestyle."

David Vingren, Undergraduate Student Government president, stated at the May 6 meeting that student leaders would encourage students to act responsibly in bars and to participate in city affairs.

He said city officials and student government want to schedule a town meeting before the lower entry age goes into effect in which Carbondale citizens, students and SHU employees can discuss the bar age and Halloween.

"Students have been given an opportunity to feel that Carbondale is partly theirs and not just a place they go to school at," Vingren said.

"The bar age issue and Halloween are two completely different situations."

Jazz beat lulls Bulls; series tied

STOCKTON: Assist leader keys fast break; Mailman delivers win.

NEWSDAY

SALT LAKE CITY—If you went just by his appearance, John Stockton would be picked last in most pick-up games.

But Sunday, in the crucial minutes of the NBA Finals' pivotal game, Stockton all but picked up the Utah Jazz on his skinny, 35-year-old frame and carried them to victory over, and equality with, the defending champion Chicago Bulls.

With Michael Jordan (22 points) firing at will and poised to send the Jazz to the brink of elimination, Stockton, the smallest man on the court, stepped in.

Apparently, Jordan isn't the only miracle-worker in this series.

"I don't feel I'm that kind of player," said the modest Stockton, after leading the Jazz to a 78-73 comeback victory that tied the best-of-seven series two games apiece.

Things weren't working out at all for the Jazz when Jordan, with only two points since the first quarter, began his usual fourth quarter rampage.

Jordan hit a fallaway jump shot over 7-foot-2 Greg Ostertag, then had a breakaway dunk to give the Bulls a 71-66 lead with 2 minutes, 38 seconds left.

The Jazz's fainthearted fans quieted down considerably, as if they were preparing to meet their doom.

Until Stockton almost single-handedly won the game.

From 25 feet, he swished a three-pointer to cut the Bulls' lead to 71-69 with 2:23 to go.

It was the Jazz' first field goal in nearly six minutes.

"That was the play that hurt us the most," Bulls coach Phil Jackson said. "That got them back in the ballgame. We had all the momentum at that time."

Stockton hit another big shot less than a minute later, after a Jordan fadeaway gave the Bulls a 73-69 lead.

The Jazz missed a shot, and Jordan, shaking and baking on Bryon Russell at the free-throw line, was about to put the Jazz out of their misery.

Then Stockton snuck in and stole the ball.

Stockton went busting down the court for a layup, only to have Jordan, another guy who never gives up, block it from behind.

But Jordan was called for a foul on the block and Stockton made one of two free throws to cut the Bulls lead to 73-70 with 1:31 left.

"There are going to be games," Jordan said, "when I can't live up to the fantasy people want to believe."

Sunday was a Jazz fan's fantasy. When the Bulls gained possession, the 6-1, 175-pound Stockton — who had only one rebound in the first 46 minutes — rebounded Scottie Pippen's miss.

He was fouled immediately, and made both to cut the Bulls lead to 73-72 with 1:03 left.

It was then that Stockton painted his masterpiece.

Jordan got the ball, got some open space and took a short shot in the lane, but missed. Stockton got the rebound.

With the 6-7 Pippen all over him, he flung the ball the length of the court to Karl Malone, who was running like a wide receiver for the goal line, or basket.

The ball went over Jordan's head and into Malone's grateful hands.

He laid it up with 45 seconds left to give the Jazz a 74-73 lead.

The Bulls never scored again.

Midwest regions names Dettman to second team

Junior infielder Matt Dettman was named to the American Baseball All-Midwest Region second-team. Dettman hit 14 homers this season, two behind the all-time season high of 16 that Gerry Miller set in 1980. Dettman drove in 57 runs while batting .310, and he was second on the Salukis in doubles, hitting 17.

Frasor wins 'Itchy' award

Jason Frasor pitched a 7-2 record and posted a 3.59 ERA to win the 1997 SIUC Baseball's Richard "Itchy" Jones MVP award. The sophomore right-hander had one shutout, 82 strikeouts and pitched 87.2 innings. His college record is 11-5.

Jones earns honors on and off the diamond

First-baseman Aaron Jones was named to the GTE/CoSID All-America Baseball second-team. The senior from Newport, Mich. earned a 3.63 cumulative grade point average in mechanical engineering. Jones has the highest GPA of any male athlete graduating at SIUC this year. He finished the season, batting .330 and hit 13 homers while driving in 49 runs. Jones also was named to the 1997 Academic All-Missouri Valley Conference Baseball first-team.

Phoenix hires fourth new coach in four years

The Phoenix Coyotes signed Jim Schoenfeld as the new head coach on Tuesday. Schoenfeld has a record of 182-180-54. He is the fourth coach in four years for the Coyotes. John Paddock, Terry Simpson and Don Hay held the job before Schoenfeld. Schoenfeld was fired by the Washington Capitals after the team missed the playoffs for the first time since 1982. He coached there for 3 1/2 years.

GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

HERRIN REMEMBERED: Coach leaves imprint on men's basketball team during long SIUC association.

TRAVIS AKIN
DE SPORTS EDITOR

Saluki basketball lost a giant in Southern Illinois sports with last month's death of assistant coach Ron Herrin. Herrin died of a brain aneurysm May 11 at the age of 67. He is survived by his wife, Mary Lou, and four children. About 1,500 people attended his May 13 visitation, which lasted for more than six hours. Herrin joined the SIUC basketball staff in 1991 to help his younger brother, Rich Herrin, SIUC's head basketball coach. Ernest Reynolds, a former high school and college game official, considers himself fortunate to have been one of Herrin's friends. "It is hard to understand why a good person like that was taken away with a lot of good years left," Reynolds said. "One of the bright spots of my life was to be able to spend time with Ron Herrin. I just wish people had the opportunity I had to get to know him. I am going to miss him."

SERIOUS SALUKI: Ron Herrin (left), former SIUC assistant men's basketball coach, assists from the bench during a Spring 1997 home game at SIU Arena. Herrin, 67, died May 11 of a brain aneurysm.

But while many mourn Herrin's death, Reynolds said the good times he had with Herrin never will fade from his memory. He said he used to give Herrin a hard time about an absent-minded mistake Herrin made at lunch one day. "We used to kid him and call him 'Chief Big Bucks,'" Reynolds said. "We would go out to eat, and he was always saying that it was his turn to buy lunch. "One day someone else got the bill and he said he would get the tip. He put down a $100 bill because he thought it was a $1 bill. Later he called out to the restaurant and the waitress said, 'Coach, you left a $100 bill, but I kept it here for you.' That is when we started calling him 'Chief Big Bucks.'" Reynolds said he always was amazed at how much Herrin knew about sports.

"He had a great recall. He even corrected me when I said I worked the state finals in 1962," he said. "He told me it was in 1961, who played in it and what the score was."

Herrin was born in 1930. He graduated from Bridgeport High School in 1948.

In high school he was All-Conference in football, and he also played basketball and ran track.

Herrin graduated from McKendree College in 1952, where he received 10 letters for his achievements in sports.

He spent two years in the U.S. Army after graduation. After his military service, he coached basketball at Lebanon Junior High School for one year.

As a coach, he was involved in many different organizations, including the Illinois Basketball Coaches Association.

One of his friends, Billy Dixon, an SIUC associate professor in curriculum and instruction, said Herrin always was busy.

"Ron had a lot of things going on at one time," Dixon said. "He wasn't as concerned about himself as he needed to be. He always wanted to be busy. You knew he would get the job done if he said 'yes.'"

Herrin coached five years in Freeburg, and started his 25-year coaching career in 1960 in Olney, where the high school gymnasium is named in his honor.

When his brother, Rich Herrin, was named the SIUC men's head basketball coach in 1985, Herrin took the job Rich Herrin left behind at an High School.

Herrin coached in Benton for five years before coming to SIUC to help his brother.

Rich Herrin said his brother did many things for SIUC's program, including arranging the team's traveling and the behind-the-scenes work.

"It will be different without him, but I have to go on," Rich Herrin said. "There is no turning back. He did a lot for our public relations, which is important during a time when we need students."

Rich Herrin said his brother always was nice, and the players had immense respect for him.

Herrin was among the first inductees into the McKendree College Hall of Fame and was a member of the Illinois Basketball Coaches Association Hall of Fame. He finished his high-school coaching career with a record of 581 wins and 364 losses.

While his name is still on his door, things are not the same at the SIUC basketball office.

Rich Herrin said it has been hard, but he is amazed at the support he has received from the community.

"The last 12 years we have been very close because he has only been a half hour away," he said. "I used to call him at night and talk about things. He is my one brother. I don't have any sisters. It will be different, and it already has been."

Saluki spring teams come up short

SEASON-ENDING: Softball coach gamers honor; Track places fifth in MVC; men's rally late in Wichita.

SHANDEL RICHARDSON
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Softball

The Salukis finished the regular season 39-14 with a 14-4 Missouri Valley Conference record, which earned the team a second-place seed in last month's Missouri Valley conference tournament.

During the three-day tournament in Cedar Falls, Iowa, SIUC won the first two games over Northern Iowa (4-3), and Creighton (7-3), on May 8.

The Salukis lost 4-3 to Southwest Missouri State on May 9, dropping them to the loser bracket. On the final day of the tournament, SIUC finished the season with a 3-0 loss to Drake University.

Despite finishing 41-16, and though the team received no bid into the NCAA tournament, coach Kay Brechtelsbauer was not disappointed with her team's effort.

"After getting down early in a couple of games, the team never quit," she said. "It was not so much we lost the games, but that the teams just beat us."

Brechtelsbauer capped off her 30th season coaching by winning her second Missouri Valley Conference Coach of the Year award.

Baseball

After finishing the season fifth in the conference, the Saluki baseball team made an ill-fated run for the MVC title at the May 14-17 Wichita, Kan., tournament.

Wins against second seed Northern Iowa (7-3), and third seed Southwest Missouri State (5-4), put the Salukis into the semifinals. Coach Dan Callahan was pleased to see his team win its first two games.

"The first two games we had good pitching, timely hitting and zero errors,"

Callahan said. SWMSU avenged the earlier loss to SIUC 17-11. The loss put the Salukis in a must-win situation against No. 1 seed Wichita State. SIUC was outlasted by WSU 17-8, ending the team's season.

Track and field

The Saluki men's and women's track and field teams both finished fifth at the May 14-17 MVC Outdoor Championship at Illinois State University in Normal, Ill.

Senior Heather Greeling was named female Field Athlete of the Year. She was the MVC champion in the heptathlon (4,811 points) and triple jump (40-11 3/4). Greeling also was named All-Conference in the 100-meter hurdles.

The only other female first-place finisher was junior Mindy Bruck, who won the 800-meter run in 2-minutes, 9.85 seconds.

The Saluki men had two first-place finishers. Stelios Marmaris won the 10,000-meter run in 30:41.72, and Orlando McKee in the long jump (24-7 1/4).
