S. T. A. MEETING WILL ATTRACT FIVE PROMINENT SPEAKERS HERE
Contingent Is Headed By State Supt. John A. Wieland
CONVENTION ON MARCH 26, 27
Dr. J. A. Naismith and Rabbi Isersman Also On Program

A variety of prominent speakers will appear before the Southern Illinois Division of the Illinois State Teachers Association when it meets here on March 26 and 27. Included among these are State Superintendent of Public Instruction, John A. Wieland, his assistant, T. A. Reynolds, and Rabbi Ferdinand Isersman, Dr. James A. Naismith, and Fred A. Keller.

The second speaker of the Friday afternoon program has not yet been selected. Mrs. Franklin Dolozog Rogers was at first considered, but was unable to accept the invitation. Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, was also invited, but due to uncertainty in her plans, she was unable to accept.

Mr. Reynolds has had fifteen years of administrative experience as superintendent of schools in the State of Illinois. He was graduated from DePaul Teachers College with an S. E. degree and from the Loyola University Institute of Law with an LL. B. He received his masters' degree at the University of Illinois. Mr. Reynolds is at present assistant State Superintendent of Schools and assigned to the LaSalle Department.

Rabbi Isersman of the Temple of Israel, St. Louis, holds many important positions and offices in various Hebrew and Inter-denominational organizations and movements. He has been a close student of international affairs and has made frequent trips abroad to perfect his knowledge. The Rabbi is the author of "The Jewish People," the social message of the prophets of Israel, and "Sentenced to Death," concerning the Jews in Nazi Germany.

PROBLEMS CLUB TO JOIN AMERICAN STUDENT UNION
The Modern Problems club met last Thursday to discuss the proposal to affiliate with the American Student Union. After a long discussion of the principles of the Union, the club decided to join it and the secretary was instructed to contact the details.
 Earlier this year the Modern Problems club decided to join the League for Industrial Democracy, but this organization amalgamated with the National Student League to form the American Student Union. No further action was taken by the local club until last week in joining the new Union.

The chief impelling purpose in taking this action is to bring a liberal aspect of national reputation to the campus. Students have investigated demands for a liberal speaker and the Modern Problems club has taken upon itself the responsibility of bringing one.

A committee composed of Evelyn Miller, Ralph Higginson, Lowell Hill and Marion Lippson was appointed by the president, John A. Naismith, to investigate the possibilities of securing the services of a speaker. An other committee consisting of Jenn Saba, Edward Sklar, Robert King, Virginia Spitzer and Eugene Kling is to plan a program for a peace day demonstration in April.

'The Bishop Misbehaves' Proves To Be One of Best Dramatic Productions of Recent Years
Crowd Enjoys Little Theatre Play As Frank Samuel, Ann Langdon, Euel Johnson, and Frank Elders Carry Off Honors
 By GEORGINA LOCKIE

Little Theatre presented its annual production Wednesday night at Shryock Auditorium, performing "The Bishop Misbehaves," a recent Broadway comedy success. The excellency of the setting, plot, and settings made the play one of the best dramatic productions to be given on an S. I. T. C. stage in several years.

The attentiveness with which the audience followed the six Bishop's deceptions in unravelling the jewel their mystery evidenced its approval of the cast's rendition of the play. Immediate response to the best dramatic features, by the construction of the Bishop's sister, and the common spools of the socially ambitious couple, Mr. and Mrs. Waller, indicated the crowd's appreciation of the humorous lines and situations.

Possessing a unique plot, the comedy did not display the sharp contrast present in English social life. In the first act, the quiet, sheltered life of Lady Emily Lyon and the cheap, gaudy existence of Mrs. Waller emphasized each other to the conversation between the two women in the act.

The entrance of the Bishop and his sister, following that of Mrs. and Mrs. Waller, was very impressive and also produced a distinct contrast. Fleeting bits of humor, such as the incongruous position of the Bishop behind the pub-room bar in the first act and his telephone conversation with a parishioner in the third, flash at frequent intervals before the observers.

The cast was very skillfully made up. The appearance of the Bishop and his sister greatly impressed the audience on their first entrance.

Settings Well Done
 The two unusual subjects for settings, one representing an English pub and the other the drawing room of the Bishop's home, were well done. The quiet charm of the English drawing room and the lower-class air of the pub showed the careful planning and the skill of the stage crew. The specific lighting effects were good.

Frank Samuel's characterization of the Bishop was outstanding in the cast—his performance sustained the action throughout the play and was responsible to the greatest extent for the success of the production. In the lead, a strong character role, he was admirably consistent with the accent and mannerisms with which he portrayed the jovial Bishop of Broadminster, who had a yen for detective stories. Mr. Samuel's acting displayed his versatility and more firmly established him as one of Little Theatre's most capable members.

Ann Langdon, also in a character role, turned in the second best performance of the evening. Her role of an old lady was a trying part, requiring exceptional talent. Miss Langdon's smooth characterization displayed without doubt the excellent quality of her ability.

Euel Johnson and Frank Elders, two new Little Theatre members, also fulfilled expectations in different roles. Mr. Johnson's part as a bartender was enough to require good acting. Mr. Elders' role as the elderly secretary to the Bishop also made skillful character study necessary.

Only Four Outstanding Players
 Excepting these four members, the performance of the rest of the cast was not as usually remarkable. Edward Mitchell and Carolyn Williams as the thieves were adequate in small roles requiring little ability. Ernest Brashear and Mary Bell Allen also presented stereotyped parts as the social-climbing married couple of doubtful honesty. Mr. Brashear was passable but not especially commendable as the husband. Miss Allen, however, overacted her role of the temperamental wife.

In the romantic leads, Frank Thoms and Kate Burkhardt failed to do justice to their parts. During the entire play, Mr. Thoms failed to put himself into his role and thus never realized the possibilities of his part. One of Miss Burkhardt's faults was her inability to control her voice, which assumed different pitches in the various scenes in which she appeared. She did her best bit of work in the last act in her scene with the Bishop, when her voice acquired its normal tone and her acting became more natural and acting.

THE CURSE OF SPRING
 At last the beautiful spring weather that we have hoped and cried for for weeks has arrived—but, alack and alas, at entirely the wrong time. Just when those 2500+ pages of outside reading have to be done and fifty seasons of French must be learned, the most beautiful weather possible comes to the scene. The only time now that it is possible to keep awake when one is outside with all the time in the world and no place to go. And then there also comes the urge to travel in a bicycle and roller skates—both of which first had tire and lopsided wheel.
 Yes, the worm has turned, and now we are praying for one week more of that cool, invigorating weather with its accessories of ice and snow.

 Tonkawa, Oklahoma
 For ten years, the students at Tonkawa Junior College have been planning for school dances. They wanted more social life. For ten years, the administration has heard their pleas, but always the answer to the demands was "no" because it was remembered how badly the students had abused the privilege when they had had it. Now after ten years, the administration has relented. They set a date for a dance and asked that the supporters of the affair register in the office. Only six students had registered on the eve of the dance.

"Moulpin" was the ancient Greek word for the art form which includes rhythmic movement, instrumental music, singing, poetry, and drama. The dance interprets the yearning of the body to express the emotion for which words, harps, and singing are not enough. This one dance constituted one-fourth of the program.

MOVIEING AROUND WITH RADIO NOTES

By Anthony Venevoni and Virginia Cummins

How anyone can say that the movies are cheap after having seen "The Life of Louis Pasteur" is beyond me. Undoubtedly in the past, the movies have put out some rather awful things, but after all, the movies are comparatively young and must, of necessity, go through the awkward stage in the last few years, they have been emerging from this adolescent period, slowly but surely.

"The Ten Commandments," "The Birth of a Nation," "The Big Parade," and other movies have been indicators in the cinematic progress.

Now, Paul Munis' "The Life of Louis Pasteur" is the masterpiece. His characterization of the beloved French scientist, Pasteur, is his best, and he has done good work.

"If You Could Only Cook?" Sounds like a student in search of a roommate here at S. I. T. C. But, no-it's the title of a rather mediocre picture which starred Herbert (Pitt) Pat Marshell and Jean Arthur.

The Gen. Theatre slipped a little in Sunday's picture. "King of Burlesque" had made all the neighboring towns some time ago.
