FAIR EMPLOYMENT PRACTICE COMMITTEE PREVENTS PREJUDICE

The Crimean Conference was the answer to many of the questions of the average American citizen in regard to the war and the peace which is to follow. Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin's meeting in Malta gave evidence not only of the solidarity of the three great powers in their prosecution of the war but in their determination to work together in peace.

One of the most important committees created by President Roosevelt during the FEPC is the Fair Employment Practice Committee. It was organized on June 25, 1941, and was designed as a practical step toward the bringing into the production line a million of skilled or semi-skilled workers whose place in the war effort was hampered by an undemocratic racial and religious discrimination.

Second, the Big Three announced that the post-war policy toward Germany had been decided. While the terms will not be made known until the final defeat, the following general plan was made public. The forces of the three great powers and France (by later invitation) will each occupy a separate zone of Germany. The administration of this plan will rest on a central commission made up of the Supreme Commanders of the three powers located in Berlin. Through this control, the United Nations plan to wipe out the Nazi party and to end the Militarist influence. To allow the denazification of Germany by a United Nations Committee was significant concession by Russia.

To bring the existence of the work of the committee is to prevent this committee exists to defend the economic rights of minorities, through the Federal Government and then some 11,000,000 foreign born. It is a well known fact that such groups have been subjected to varying degrees of hostility by individuals, groups, and communities, but such practices have reached an extreme phase in the existing of these groups from war work.

Third, the Crimean conference brought an end of uncollateral action toward liberated areas and agreed upon joint action in this responsibility. This will mean the solution of such problems as have arisen in Greece and Italy. The Crimean Declaration states that the three great powers will act together to restore order in liberated countries, in recognizing provisional governments and in assisting in having free elections in such countries.

This committee has been headed by a very prominent careerist. The FEPC is under the auspices of the Office of Production Management, then six months later in the War Production Board and then last winter the War Relocation Commission. This last transfer brought such a cry of protest that the President announced that the move was designed to strengthen the organization, but it proved to be a vain intention. The hearings that were scheduled were indefinitely postponed. In late March was the scene of a possible riot.

Fourth, the leaders made a great step toward the general security organization by calling a conference to meet in San Francisco April 25 to prepare a charter for such an international organization. The outcome of the San Francisco conference will determine the post-war policies of the Big Three in regard to war and peace in future years.

The FEPC has established:

WHAT ABOUT THE JAPANESE-AMERICAN PROBLEM?

In the Spring of 1942, 110,000 persons of Japanese descent were removed from the West Coast inland. Of this number two-thirds were American citizens.

This committee has been headed by a very prominent careerist. The FEPC is under the auspices of the Office of Production Management, then six months later in the War Production Board and then last winter the War Relocation Commission. This last transfer brought such a cry of protest that the President announced that the move was designed to strengthen the organization, but it proved to be a vain intention.

The explanation given for this mass movement of people was a "matter of military necessity." The evacuees were shunted off to assembly centers. Secretary Stimson at that time pointed out that "grat credit is due our Japanese population for the manner in which they responded to and complied with the order for exclusion." They were then transferred to 10 relocation camps established by War Relocation Authority in Utah, Arizona, California, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado and Arkansas.

The FEPC has established:

In the relocation centers, food, shelter and medical care were provided without charge. In addition, evacuees received a cash allowance of $12 to $19 a month for services or work done for the W.R.A. However, the centers are overcrowded and there is no privacy. Evacuees are housed in barracks with one family per room and in many instances more than one family is housed in a single room. Community washrooms have been set up for each block and evacuees are fed in community messhalls at a cost to the government of between 24c and 42c per person per day. Moreover, the relocation centers are not national communities. They are, according to CAREY McWILLIAMS, institutionalized and they are a type of "prison complex."

The FEPC has established:

Since 1942, the W.R.A. has been releasing evacuees throughout the Middle West. Over 19,000 have been relocated outside the centers. In Chicago alone 3,500 have found jobs. These mass exactions have caused a host of problems, hence a national re-possibility. One of the questions facing the national authorities is "What are the prospects for relocating this minority group?" Many evacuees fear the "outside." They are uncertain about the type of treatment they will get. Some hope to return to the West Coast, where $200,000,000 worth of their property had to be disposed of. The most constructive step taken by the government in dealing with the Japanese-American problem was the decision in 1943 for an All-Japanese-American combat team. Previously they were declared ineligible for military service. The 100th Battalion, which participated in landings at Salerno and aided in the capture at Cassino, have done a splendid job as attested by Lt. Colonel Farrant L. Turner, who commanded them. "Never had I more whole-hearted, serious-minded cooperation from any troops."

The FEPC has established:

The 42nd Combat team which likewise participated in the Italian campaign, was highly praised by U. S. staff officers and war correspondents. Three American soldiers of Japanese ancestry have been decorated for bravery in action.

The FEPC has established:

These Japanese-Americans proved on the battlefields of the world the truth of President Roosevelt's declaration that Americanism is not a matter of race or ancestry, but a matter of mind and heart.

The FEPC has established:

STUDENTS, ARE YOU CONCERNED ABOUT YOUR FELLOW AMERICAN STUDENTS?

Write letters to students in relocation centers. Address them to: Mrs. Harriet Cavahery, 12-5-9 Topp, Frank, Mr. Ken Dyo, 73-1-8 Rivers, Arizona, Mr. Yosh Kodama, Heart Mountain, Wyoming.

RELIGION IN THE NEWS

By VIRGINIA CURTIS

EDUCATION IN THE CHURCH OF THE FUTURE

Education is a process whereby a person becomes aware of his world, its most prominent features, his possibilities, and the kind of life he just possibly may be most useful to himself and his community. This process has no age limit. It is lifelong. True education is more than the cramming of facts from the mind. It is the ability to make distinctions between right and wrong, to enjoy life, and to use knowledge effectively. The church of tomorrow must be prepared to meet this challenge.

Christians must pledge themselves with renewed vigor to the fundamental concepts of the church. It is the church that is to lead, to guide, to inspire, to reward, to sacrifice, and to love for one another. We can do this if we will close our eyes on the things that are passing before us. Religion education should begin in the home. Children must be taught daily worship and the meaning of prayer so that they turn to their parents. It is not hard to understand that one hour a week in church is not enough. With seven days a week in a home or school where the attitude is such that religion is a part of life, some people do expect the minister or struggling Sunday school teacher to work miracles with the children. It is the duty of the church to work in that length of time. In the future we must work together to unite the teachings of the home, the school and the church. This can be accomplished in a large measure by weekday education.

In any religious community the people who do not believe in the church are the most important. In any religious community the people who do not believe in the church are the most important. In any religious community the people who do not believe in the church are the most important.

No notes have been received from Hampton concerning the matter.

Overture to The Wasps by Willhelm begins another program of classical music presented by the General Motors Symphony of the City. This composition is a lively and charming essay in the old form of the overture and has been included in the repertoire of the General Motors Symphony of the City. It was written at the invitation of the conductor to the performance of a Greek chorus by the Greek chorus.

The Symphony No. 1 in E Minor, by Brahms, consists of four movements and displays the writing of tone, melody and technical expression. Brahms makes a successful attempt to portray wind in the storm, ripple of water, and the melting of icicles in the first movement. The symphony is a masterpiece of composition and is a masterpiece of composition.

IS HE KIDDING?
A letter from H. BYRON BRICKE, S. 270 (Idem) states, and I quote: "It will be one of the happiest times of my life when I can walk through that weary old registration line again. I mean that, though the fact is really nothing to them, men for anything. But his work and study in a radar school is probably harder than anything we ever knowed up against. Your letter is being preserved. Byron, the registration office is using it as a morale booster."

He has been overseas since last July and during that time has flown the Air Medal and three Bronze Oak Leaf Chesters. Good luck, George!

CAMPUS HIGHLIGHTS:
Two V-12 men show on the campus were RODNEY KRAATZ and CECIL BROWN. Both took part in their "blues" and will be around for a while longer. Another Southerner who is moving had the chance to "fly through" in a battered yellow car was DON PAROLE, fighter pilot in the Navy, and took an instructor. He has been stationed in England and during that time has flown the Air Medal and three Bronze Oak Leaf Chesters. Good luck, Don!

SOUTHERN FIVE PREP FINALS TONIGHT

MAROONS LOSE CAGE TITLE TO NORTHERN STATE COLLEGE IN FINAL GAME 42 TO 40

SOUTHERN DEFEATED BY CHARLESTON FIVE 55-51

By TED CAIN, Staff Sports Writer

The Maroons made the longest trip of the season last week-end to play their two most powerful hardwood rivals, Charleston and DeKalb. On Friday night's crucial contest, Coach Martin's hard fighting quintet lost 55-51.

In this game Charleston hit exceptionally well in the first half; their men made five long shots in a row just before the gun sounded to end the first half. At this time the score read 31-17 in favor of the upstate team. Southern staged a second half drive to lead their opponents two points at the end of sixteen minutes of play.

It was the all-around playing of Captain Sullivan that was largely responsible for Southern's defeat. Sullivan scored 22 points.

Don Sheffer, hounded by a knee injury, got into the game a few minutes and scored nine points. Sheffer hadn't worked out with the team since January 12; therefore, he wasn't able to fit into the of-

Regional Finale To Be Held In S.I.N.U. Gym

The final game of the Illinois State prep basketball regional tournament will be played in the University gymnasium tonight beginning at 8 o'clock.

The regional tournament opened last Tuesday night in the University gymnasium as Herrin Township High School defeated Charleston 32-22. Throughout the game Herrin's excellent man-to-man defense held Charleston's offense in check.

The midnight Carterville five trained the winners only six points at the end of the third quarter after several scoring rallies. It was during the final stanza that the tournament contest actually began to run individual honors went to Paul Eckert, sum of the Herrin quintet, who scored 24 points. BASKETBALL TROPHY TO BE AWARDED BY IIA.C. COACHES

The Harry Seal trophy for the most valuable player to his team will be given this year by the coaches of the Illinois Intercollegiate Athletic Conference after each team has picked its outstanding player.

The trophy will be presented in the same manner as the Charles E. Harris basketball trophy award. It is presented to the player who is voted by the coaches of the conference.

There is a move under way to award a similar trophy in football in honor of the late General Will M. Anderson, for 20 years director of Southern.

W. A. A. NEWS

The House Tournament progressed very nicely in the past week and Thursday night Anthony Hall and the Tri Sigma playing of the championship game. Where over two stone walls meet one usually has to give way and that is exactly what happened in the Anthony Hall-Tri Sigma game. Both teams were very strong and one would deny that. Gorse you might call it "my man's game" for both teams were evenly matched. Anthony Hall seemed to have their "stone wall" reinforced with an "other stone" wall for they were really on the beam and the team played a beautiful game. It was Anthony Hall's careful they will be losing "the spark plug" of the Harry Seal trophy.
