Three SIU Students Are Killed In 2-Car Collision Near Salem

Victims Reported Enroute to School
Three SIU students were killed early Monday in a two-car collision on Rt. 37, north of Salem.

The occupants of the second car were also killed, and a seventh man was slightly injured when the two cars collided head-on, jamming motorists inside their compartments.

The drivers have been identified as Robert E. William, 20, a freshman from Tuscola; Joseph Norton, 20, of Tolono, near Champaign; and Michael F. Bates, 18, of Decatur. All three students lived at Williams Dormitory, 509 South Ash St.

Maurice Fry, deputy coroner of Marion County, said there were no witnesses to the accident. Cause of the accident was not determined.

The students were enroute to Southern when the accident occurred.

The cars did not rebound more than 30 feet apart, indicating they had collided violently, police said. Some of the victims couldn't be freed from twisted metal for more than an hour, police said. The other car was driven by a man from Chicago. He and two passengers, all of Chicago, were listed in serious condition.

The lone survivor was taken to Jewish Hospital of St. Louis, Mo., in critical condition.

Mrs. Phyllis Watson of Kinmundy, a nurse who happened on the scene moments after the crash, said she tried to help, but she couldn't do anything for them. They were all wedged in their cars.

In the investigation of the accident, there was a mix-up in identifying dates because of a wallet found in the car. The wallet belonged to Dale E. Elemeny, 24, a graduate student from Chicago, who was identified as the lone survivor.

The wallet was found in the car andElemeny, who was listed in critical condition, was later contacted by Security Police and was told to call home to let his parents know that he was all right.

Despite Dull Opening Scene, Players’ ‘King Lear’ Sparkles

By Jack F. Erwin

Don’t leave after the first scene—it gets better—in fact, it gets good. Despite the dull opening scene in which King Lear divides his kingdom between two of his three daughters, the Southern Players’ presentation of Shakespeare’s play gains sparkle as it progresses.

Perhaps one of the most delightful parts of the play was watching Edgar, played by Joe Robinette, develop from a hillbilly and relatively skillful job with a grease kid. Kreft played the King of France in a pathetically likable manner. Both seemed more than a little two-dimensional.

The professional stage will be played. This exhibition will take the viewer back to this less mechanized past and allow a revealing glimpse at his forefather’s needs, skills and taste,” she said.

Zooology Seminar Scheduled Today

“Some Recent Advances in Developmental-Cell Biology” will be the topic of discussion at a Zooology Seminar at 4 p.m. today in Room 205 of the Life Science Building. Herman J. Hasso, associate professor of zoology, Robert D. Lyng, teaching assistant in zoology, and Conrad Firk, researching assistant in zoology, will participate in the seminar.

Today’s Weather

Showers continuing today with temperatures ranging in the mid 40s for the central section of the state to the upper 50s in the extreme southeast.

Record high for this date was 75 degrees in 1943, according to SIU Climatology Laboratory records.
Activities

Variety Show’s Cast Will Rehearse Today

Rehearsal for Theta Xi Variety Show will begin at 5:30 p.m. in Furr Auditorium of University School. Inter Varsity Christian Fellowship will meet at 6 p.m. in Room E of the University Center.

Sue Della Chia, professional journalistic society, will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Room C of the University Center. The University Center Programming Board will meet at 6:30 p.m., in Room D of the University Center. The Women’s Recreation Association will sponsor house basketball at 7 p.m. in the Large Gymnasium.

The Fencing Club will meet at 7:30 p.m., in Room 110 of Old Main.

The Society for Advancement of Management will meet at 7:30 p.m., in Room 323 in the Life Science Building.

Thesis in Botany

Will Be Discussed

William S. Courtis, graduate student in botany, will present the results of his master’s thesis at a plant pathology seminar at 4 p.m., today in Room 323 of the Life Science Building.

In his talk, "An Aging Pattern of Total Nuclear Dry Mass in Living Epidermal Cells of Two Monocotyledonous Plants," Dr. Courtis, after the microscopic study of living cells in monocotyledonous plant, has discovered a definite difference in the size and mass of these cells. His research is in application of his techniques to cellular death pattern and patterns in growth in stalk tissue of corn.

Ashby is Serving

On Pollution Panel

William C. Ashby, associate professor of botany, is participating in a panel discussion in Washington, D.C., today.

The discussions are part of a seminar held at the National Academy of Sciences, National Research Council. They stem from a 1962 report of the NAS-NRC Committee on Natural Resources which urged a study of pollution.

The study is concerned with the knowledge, sources, behavior, transport and effects of pollutants in air, water and land.

Ashby is a member of the panel to consider geography, migration and the hydrology and geology of the United States. His areas of study include the ecological impact of environmental pollution and the health of biotic communities.

Educator to Speak

To Recreation Club

George S. Counts, visiting professor of education, will be the speaker at a lecture sponsored by the SIU Recreation Club at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Room 208 of the Whit Building.

Counts’ discussion will be on such topics as, “The Soviet School System,” “A Trip Through Russia in an American Automobile,” and “How the Soviets and People of Other Cultures Use Their Leisure Time.”

The meeting is open to the public.

Rehearsal for Theta Xi Variety Show will begin at 5:30 p.m. in Furr Auditorium of University School. Inter Varsity Christian Fellowship will meet at 6 p.m. in Room E of the University Center.
IRVING BILLIARD
Frankfurter Impetus to Last

One of the most controversial figures of our times was the American jurist and commentator Felix Frankfurter at the age of 82. The retired Supreme Court justice first came to national attention in 1892 when he made a study of the problem of the Negro in America. Born in Somerville, Mass. and educated at Harvard, Frankfurter has been a prominent figure in American legal circles. He was appointed to the Supreme Court in 1939 and served until his death in 1965.

In a series of books, Frankfurter evaluated the problem of the Negro in America and found it to be a "radical" issue. He felt that it required an overhaul of the legal system in America to ensure justice for all citizens.

Speaks Out for Individuals

On the Supreme Court, the dynamic jurist voiced his opinions with such pioneering magazines as the New Republic and the Survey Graphic. Frankfurter was both a "laboratory" and a "spokesman" for the Communist Party in the U.S. of All. He was himself a student at the University of Illinois and was a member of the "Blackshirts," a group of radical intellectuals who advocated a Marxist ideal.

Frankfurter's contribution to the field of law is evident in his writings on the civil liberties of the American people. He believed in the importance of protecting individual freedom against the encroachment of any government or institution.

Robert M. Hutchins

The bankruptcy of American foreign policy is now so clear that even the administration must be ready for a new start. The essential element of the old, tested policy was the "containment" of communism. If the United States is to survive as a great power, the American people must be willing to accept the responsibility of leadership in world affairs.

Robert M. Hutchins

ROBERT M. HUTCHINS
Or African continent knows that communism is worse than death and that he shall be destroyed in the effort to repel it. Our foreign policy of the United States has not been built on justice; it has been based on the supposed selfish interest of this country. But "containment" is not in the interest of this country. It puts us into every situation anywhere in the world in which there are alleged to be any Communist elements. There is no situation in which this cannot be alleged. And, in fact, there is no solution in which the allegations cannot be proved. If the Communists are not to start with, they will appear sooner or later in response to appeals from elements opposed to those we are supporting.

Hence we are committed to fight against any regime, the great domino theory, the handmaid of containment, is invoked. We are told that we cannot stand up such a regime, the great domino theory, the handmaid of containment, is invoked. We are told that we cannot stand up.

The display we have put on to South Vietnam must have alienated the people of Southeast Asia. By going into the Congo we alienate the people of Africa. How we strengthen our hand abroad and not with the force of arms, but with the force of words, is the problem we face.

The obvious substitute for "containment" is the United Nations. Still new and not sure of the methods—and they must even now be tried out—by which the United Nations may maintain order during revolutions we may obtain peace with justice. That should be the aim of the foreign policy of the United States.

WASHINGTON Debates Viet Nam: Views Clash on Aim, Solution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Praise for President Johnson’s “ restraint and perseverance” mingled with blunter calls for stronger action as Congress debated the war in South Viet Nam Monday.

The President was trying to keep the lid on a highly dangerous volcano in Southeast Asia, asserted Democratic Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana in leading off another round of Senate debate.

His administration policy is “to try and prevent a great war in Asia and to keep a commitment to the South Vietnamese government,” Mansfield said.

But the United States is playing a “cat and mouse game” when “we’ve got the strength and the power to conclude” the war, argued Sen. Mitford Simpson, R-Wyo.

South Viet Nam’s will to fight, a United States willing to take on any and all Communist aggressors there, and the calls for a negotiated settlement were all topics as the President’s policy questions in South Viet Nam were reviewed, argued and scored.

In the House, Rep. Melvin D. La Follette of Wisconsin, said that the conflict in Viet Nam will end in the nottoo-distant future in some sort of compromised settlement, but he said that if an eventual Communist take-over was enforced, he respected that. His remarks were in a prepared speech.

But Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the Senate Democratic majority whip, disagreed with this view on NBC’s “Meet the Press” radio-television program Sunday night, saying, in his judgment:

“People in this Congress are saying that it is better for the United States to continue to try and prevent a great war in this area, even if there should be a ‘status quo’ for 5, 10, or 15 years. Please declare, because the Red Chinese doctrine calls for ‘to stop a United States presence in the whole world.’

“Senators, who disagreed on the President’s policy in South Viet Nam, and Sen. Wayne Morse, contended the State Department’s White Paper issued Saturday to Johnson’s advisement because he said it was full of holes.

Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, said there was nothing surprising in finding North Viet Nam, D-Viet Nam, and the Viet Cong guerrillas because the United States has been the South Viet Nam on a larger scale.

Gruening contended South Viet Nam is now trying to go outside fighting earnestly and fiercely and South Korea in that action.

Long disputed this, claiming that he had never said they had “killed two Viet Cong for every South Vietnamese slain.”

Viet Cong Hunted Near U.S. Base

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. helicopters and two battalions of government troops killed 10 Viet Cong and captured 10 more in a sweep southwest of the Da Nang base, 350 miles north of the Capital.

This was one in a series of strikes to keep the Red guerrillas off balance and out of central range of the base, a route of U.S. jets and long-range Hawks missiles 80 miles from the frontier of Communist North Viet Nam.

The effectiveness of the Viet Cong were freed in the sweep.

Job Interview Tips

Be Neat, Natural, Honest, Personnel Officials Advise

Phonies, femmes fatales and fancy dahn need not apply, is the word for job-seekers from Southern Illinois personnel managers.

There are too many street cars coming along, and if you don't make the right first impression we'll let you go by and catch the next one, in the way Gails Waters, personnel manager for R.R. Mallory and Co., of DuQuoin, put it to persons attending a "Meeting on Employment Techniques" at Southern last week.

Co-sponsored by the BSU Placement Service and Division of Technical and Adult Education as an opportunity for students and alumni to meet with personnel managers and learn what is expected in a job interview, the session featured talks and a question-and-answer period.

Participating were Waters, Marion Nash, director of personnel and facilities, and participating in a "Meeting on Employment Techniques" at Southern last week.

Waters, Nash, and Fred Nash, director of Personnel, put it to persons attending a "Meeting on Employment Techniques" at Southern last week.

Co-sponsored by the BSU Placement Service and Division of Technical and Adult Education as an opportunity for students and alumni to meet with personnel managers and learn what is expected in a job interview, the session featured talks and a question-and-answer period.

Participating were Waters, Marion Nash, director of personnel and facilities, and participating in a "Meeting on Employment Techniques" at Southern last week.

The group is particularly interested in those having mechanical ability, welding experience, and those of foreign background or capable of operating large equipment.

Employment will begin at the end of spring quarter and would last approximately eight weeks, and some students may work until Sept. 20.

Anyone interested in obtaining more information should go to the Student Work Office and make an appointment with Harold L. Reents or Jerry A. Snider for an interview with a company rep., sentimentation, or Ordill plant; and Remo Cazallar, superintendent of the Johnston City Community School Unit.

These points came out of the discussion:

The job applicant will probably not get farther than the written application if it is not complete, concise and neat. Even the handwriting is important.

If you are called for a personal interview, be straightforward and act naturally, without talking too much of claiming qualifications and experience you don't have.

"Just be you, because you are the most important asset you have, and if you do lose out on a job by laying your cards on the table it's better than getting the gate later because you covered up a shortcoming," in the way one interview put it.

Know something about the company you are applying to, "Women should be conservative in cosmetics, necklines and hemlines," Nash advised. "We appreciate an attractive woman, but not heavy, in business.

Beyond the obvious pointers of clean nails, haircut and shining shoes for men, it was pointed out that the man applying for a job on the factory floor would hardly be expected to appear in a suit and a chemist or metallurgist will not create the desired impression if he's dressed in the latest continental styles for men. "There are degrees of neatness, and you don't expect a technician to dress like a salesman," Nash said.

Don't show too great an interest in money. "You can blow the whole interview with one question: 'What do you pay?" Hall said. "We like to think your primary interest is in the company and doing a good job,'"
Gigantic Problem

Food for Six Billion Sought in SIU Study

The population of the world will double during the next 40 years if present trends continue. How these six billion people can be adequately fed is the gigantic problem American mycologist John W. Gray of the University of Illinois, who is working on the project in the motel field. Millions of people around the world live in areas where a protein-deficient diet makes them "hungry" even after they have eaten.

Gray's work, in which a group of international students play an important role, has shown that it is possible to produce a protein-rich food supplement from waste products in forms of waste plant materials. Through further study, he hopes to prove the possibility of a readily available protein-diets, which there is no real shortage in the world food supply, can be produced for the critically needed protein through simple methods. Simply stated, a readily available plant material is used to grow a fungus which can be used as a food. A pound of the fungus, 20 to 38 per cent protein, can be produced with two pounds of sugar, corn, potatoes, manure, and molasses from beets and cane, citrus residues and many other such materials also have been used in the process.

Most of the production time for a batch of the fungus has been four days, minimum 30 hours. Gray says even a small plant, using equipment already installed, could produce 350,000 to a half-million pounds of protein annually through the fungus conversion process.

The end product is tasteless, odorless and colorless and could be produced in various forms: dry powder, pellets, cakes. Gray, Staff and others associated with the project are not so optimistic as to believe the fungus plant will be accepted as an immediate dietary supplement which will cure protein deficiencies of the world's hungry millions. Acceptance will take time.

Meanwhile their work is far from complete. The next step in their research plan is a pilot plant to demonstrate feasibility of quantity production of the protein from various materials economically available. There also is much to be learned about precise nutritive values of the product, and the most practical forms it should take.

"We feel the ultimate solution to the world's population pressures is in population regulation," Gray explains. "But until this is done, we need a stop-gap. An adequate protein diet for all the world's people is one such measure. And the problem is one in which all mankind has a stake."

Students residing in SIU dormitories will be the first priority on the Army list. Rendleman said SIU College of Business will talk to the University and the University will have first priority on kitchen and dining hall equipment, vehicles and maintenance equipment made available by closing of numerous defense department established.

The Job Corps training center will be equipped with about 100 of the 1,500 buildings at 36,000-acre World War II Army training camp located at the Varsity Theater has been placed on disciplinary probation through the spring quarter.

The student, Craig Glenn, a junior from Chicago, must also maintain a 3.0 average for the next three quarters or he will be suspended, according to a spokesman from the Office of the Dean of Students.

Three other students who were involved in the incident were given an official reprimand.

Glown was fined $50 and $15 in court costs in Jackson County Circuit Court.

National Laboratory Chemist To Give Two Lectures Here

James A. Ibers, of the Department of Chemistry at the Brookhaven National Laboratory, will give two lectures here on March 4 under the Visiting Cryographeer Program.

It is sponsored jointly by the American Geological Institute and the United States National Committee on Crystallography.

"Five-Coordinated Transition Metal Complexes" is the subject of his first talk to be given at 10 a.m., March 4 in Room 111 Pilkington. It will be sponsored by the Department of Chemistry.

That evening he will present a program introducing to crystallography at 8 in Room 154 of the Agriculture Building. This talk will be sponsored by the Departments of Geology and of Material Science.

Ibers' interests embrace all areas of experimental structural chemistry, a field in which Illinois has made important contributions. He will assume his new position as professor of chemistry at Northwestern University in late March.

Businessman Set To Talk Tonight

Willard Bixby, president and chairman of the board of directors of Automatic Devices, Steelville, will speak at a meeting of the Society for Development of Management at 7:30 p.m. today in Room 208 of the Wham Education Building.

Bixby is also a prominent member of the Southern Illinois Personnel Managers Association besides his association with Automatic Devices, which is the world's largest manufacturer of mailboxes and similar products.

James D. Hlavacek, vice president of the society, said a regular business session will follow the speech. All students interested in business are invited.

Motel Operators To Meet at SIU

Problems of today's motel operator as seen by an editor will feature a session of the Southern Illinois motel management Clinic March 11-12 at SIU.

James Saul, editor of Hospitality Magazine, will talk March 12 on the subject, "I'll start by building his comments around information gleaned in editing the publication, a major magazine in the motel field.

Other speakers during the second day session include Jack Feffer, acting regional director of the Illinois State Commerce and Community Development Service at St. Louis, and John Rut, director of the Small Business Administration, who will discuss small businesses in loans and financing, and Ken Bayliss of the Southern Illinois Telephone Co., who will speak on "Advantages of a Protean Business Plan," plus building initiatives in the motel field.

Our Wayward Shot Was Their Ace-in-Hole

An all-important shot by Southern bounded off the rim with seconds remaining to give Evansville a breath-taking 68-67 victory over the Salukis. Trail ing by the final margin, the Salukis got the ball with less than a minute remaining. Joe Ramsey missed a one-hander from the side with 40 seconds left, and Evansville grabbed the ball but failed to score. Southern had the ball once again with 18 seconds showing on the clock, but George McNeil's jumper bounced off the rim seconds before the buzzer, to give Evansville its second one-point victory over Southern this year.

The excitement generated at the close was climactic to a game which was exciting for its entire 40 minutes. The second meeting of the two small-college cage powers started and ended close. Neither team could build up a sizeable lead in the nip and-tuck first half as the score was tied seven times and the lead switched hands 18 times. Southern enjoyed the widest lead in the first 20 minutes when Dave Lee and McNeil each dropped in a pair of goals to put the Salukis ahead 1.3-17. But the margin was short-lived as the powerful Aces closed the gap and took the lead less than two minutes later. From then, the lead juggled back and forth until the Salukis rallied from a 38-38 tie to move ahead 42-40 at the intermission. Southern began to move early in the second half. Led by Dave Lee, the home team took the biggest lead of the game at 53-46 less than five minutes after the start. The wild home crowd met the Salukis with a thunderous standing ovation when they came off the court for a time out seconds later.

Evansville began to chop away at the margin, and midway through the half tied it at 58-all. The top-ranked Aces took the lead for the first time in the half with seven minutes left at 60-59. Trail ing 67-65 with 1:22 on the clock, Walt Frazier stole the ball, raced the length of the court and dunked the ball to knot the score again. But seconds later, Evansville's Larry Humes ended the scoring with a free throw and set the state for the wild ending.

Both teams shot well in the game as Southern made half of its shots compared to 4'2 percentage for the visitors. The Salukis did control the boards total was far below his usual average of 33 points, and Sloan was only able to manage five rebounds—far below his usual number.
Regionalists Start Friday; 12 Cage Teams to Vie

Coach Jack Hartman's Salukis and Arad McCutchan's Evansville College Aces go back to the less exciting life this week. Both teams don their practice suits and try to forget about last Saturday's second "game of the year." They'll also be trying at least to shove to the back of their heads the thought of a third meeting. Both have plenty else to concentrate on.

The NCAA College Division regionals begin Friday. A stumble there and you're out. Whether you've won 24 games in a row or 16 of 21.

Both Hartman's and McCutchan's cagers will be favored to advance to the Aces home court for the national tournament a week from this Wednesday. But there is less certain than basketball.

The Salukis for the first time this season will have the home court advantage in their bid for a spot in the coveted eight-team national field. That ingredient has been more than enough to shake 13 invaders of 21.

The tall Tennessee outfit has the same team back that won the regional and the unbeaten hosts won every on their way to the season. It's a longer than usual season.

The representative of the Southwestern Athletic Conference is a team to take lightly. It carried a 20-5 record into its duel last night with UPI's No. 8 ranked small college power Grambling, a team it had earlier defeated 102-101.

Concordia is the Salukis' first tournament opponent Friday night. While they aren't likely to be the toughest team to play in the Arena they must be dealt with first or the Salukis won't have to worry about tall Jackson State or deliberate playing Central Michigan.

Evansville won't can't stand'on past performances as they travel south to the South Central Regional at Louisville. Little-hung of Dethune-Cockman College of Dayton Beach, Fla., will provide their first opposition.

SALUKIS OUT-SWIM OKLAHOMA, Lose to Southern Methodist

SIU's varsity swimming team ended its season on a high note over the weekend, edging Oklahoma 52-49 on Saturday in a two-meet road trip. SIU lost the other game, 71-24 at Southern Methodist Saturday.

SIU's freshmen also closed out their campaign, only with less productive results, as they lost to SMU 60-29 and Oklahoma 66-29. The fresh- men did win in 1961.

The Saluki varsity found the going much easier Sat- urday than they did Friday against the powerful Mustangs as SMU won 8 of 11 events. The lopsided Friday loss was the worst of the season for the Salukis.

Only Kimo Miles, Thom Mc- Aneney and Gerald Pearson managed to salvage wins as the unbeaten hosts won every event but the 200-yard butterfly, the 200-yard freestyle and the 200-yard breaststroke. Miles took the butterfly in 2:01.4, clocking. Pearson won the breaststroke in a 2:19.1 and McAneney had the best effort of the day in the free- style with 1:45.5.

Saturday it was different though as the Salukins won 8 of 11 events en route to their season-closing 7th vic- tory against two setbacks.

Big winners were Don Shaffer in the 400-yard indi- vidual medley, 3:38.4; Mc- Aneney in the 200- and 500- yard freestyles, 1:48.1 and 3:03.5; Miles in the 200-butter- fly, 2:00.3 and Pearson in the 200 breaststroke, 2:20.4.

Gymnasts Defeat Chicago U. of I. Saturday, Wind Up Third Year With Record of 38-0

The SIU gymnasts completed their third straight undefeated season by beating the University of Illinois in Chicago 81-2-30 1/2.

The Saturday afternoon victory was the 38th in a row for the Salukis.

Southern, as in most of the meets this season, won six of seven events, losing only the side horse to the Chicago team.

Frank Schmitz kept up his winning ways, earning three firsts in free exercise and trampoline and tying teammate Brent Williams in long horse with the score of 93 1/2.

The close battle between the two Salukis was carried over to the trampoline where Schmitz edged Williams 91-90.

Southern Frosh Cagers Lose

Southern’s freshman basketball team dropped its final game of the season to the Evansville frosh 106-81 in the preliminary to the varsity tilt.

The loss was the tenth in 13 games for the frosh and their second of the year to Evansville. The earlier game was much closer with the Aces taking it 70-63.

The Salukis fell behind early Saturday night and trailed 49-39 at the half. Southern’s defense collapsed in the second half as the visitors tallied 62 points in the final 20 minutes.

Although the Aces couldn’t get a sustained rally going, they built on to their margin throughout the final half. Much of Southern’s trouble came from fouls which put five of the nine-man team on the bench. The Salukis played the last 1:22 with only four men on the court.

Bill Wolf turned in his best performance of the year on the parallel bars with a winning score of 89 1/2. He also added a first on the high bar with a 93 and tied with teammate Tom Cook on the rings with the same score of 93.

Larry Lindauer, Southern’s all-around performer, added three seconds, two thirds and a fifth on the side horse. Schmitz edged Williams 91-90.

The Salukis are in the best physical condition of this year and five of his victories have been by falls, Amone Kuzma, who earned the only fall in the Indiana State meet, is expected to start against the Cyclones.

The Saluki marmen are in the NCAA regionals.

Matmen to End Home Season Against Iowa State Thursday

The SIU wrestlers will end their home season on Thursday night when they face one of the top ranked wrestling teams in the country, Iowa State University.

The Salukis and the Cyclones are both in the NCAA basketball regional tournament that will be held this weekend in the Arco Center.

Iowa State is currently the winner of 38 straight meets, but must face first Oklahoma State tonight. No. 1 ranked team, before they meet the Salukis.

The Cyclones will boast a lineup that includes six men with undefeated records so far this year. Gordon Hassman, last year’s NCAA champion, will be the best physical condition of the season and the post-season for the Cyclones.

Captain Dan Devine will be at 133 pounds, Larry Baron at 130, Dave Pfeil at 137, Dan Dwyer at 147, Kuehn at 157, George McGreevy at 167, Bob Herkert at 177 and Alf Haerem or Chuck Kressel at heavyweight.

This will be the last varsity competition for the wrestlers before they compete in the NCAA wrestling finals. The finals will be held this year in Laramie, Wy.
