Chou invites Senate leaders

Congressmen approve China results

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon won congressional leaders' support Tuesday for the results of his mission to China. And he disclosed that the two top Senate leaders have been invited to visit Peking in a continuation of Sino-U.S. contacts.

The White House said Nixon received substantial support from the bipartisan leadership of House and Senate on his historic journey. This was borne out by comment from the Congressional leaders who were briefed at the White House.

It was announced that Nixon feels he already has adequately filled in the American public on his accomplishments and impressions after summit meetings with China's leaders and seven days in that country.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President was on nationwide television-radio with his statement Monday night and will have "no further report as such to the nation."

The big news at the White House Tuesday was Nixon's announcement to Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and Minority Leader Hugh Scott, R-Pa., that Chinese Premier Chou En-lai plans to invite them to visit China at a time that will be mutually convenient.

Both Mansfield, who served as a U.S. Marine in China in 1921-22 and was a professor of Asian history, and Scott, a collector of Chinese and other Oriental art, have previously expressed an interest in going to mainland China.

Ziegler said that at the last meeting with Chou in Shanghai, when the question of people-to-people contacts and exchanges between the U.S. and China was discussed, the premier said he knew of the interest of Mansfield and Scott in coming to his country.

He told Nixon he would invite them, Ziegler said, and the President passed along the invitation at the White House Tuesday.

In response to questions from reporters, the presidential spokesman said that there was nothing substantively new in the briefings Nixon gave to 21 congressional leaders.

Nixon followed up the 95-minute meeting with the congressional leaders with an 80-minute meeting with his Cabinet. No details were given on this.

After his return to the Capitol, Mansfield told newsmen the response among the bipartisan leadership group "was unanimously in favor of the President's trip and what he accomplished."

As for Taiwan, the Montana Democrat said reductions in U.S. troops already were being made on the island before the President's trip.

Scott told reporters U.S. troops would not be wholly withdrawn from Taiwan prior to a settlement between its government and Peking, but the present force level of about 8,000 would be reduced to a pre-Vietnam level of some 2,000 as American forces are phased out of Vietnam.

Indian sites, billiards get council's attention

By Barry Cleveland
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A depleted Carbondale City Council met Tuesday night to review routine city business and discuss items ranging from regulation of billiard parlors to excavation of ancient Indian sites.

Meeting for the first time beneath a yellow, blue and red "All-America City" flag, the council in formal session approved weekly bills and a bid for storage buildings.

Mayor Neal Eckert and Councilman Clark Vineyard were absent from the meeting which was presided over by Councilman George Karnes.

In informal discussion, the council considered the possibility of revising a 1964 ordinance banning the location of billiard parlors "in any area not on street level."

The ordinance also prohibits more than three parlors in the city at one time and operation of parlors between midnight and 7 a.m. It also requires a $5 license fee per table.

Acting City Manager Bill Schwegman told the council that the ordinance should be revised, because "someone would like to open a parlor now and cannot under this ordinance."

The council also discussed a proposed contract between the city and the University providing for city financing of excavation in the Cedar Lake area.

Under the terms of the contract, the city would provide up to $39,633 to assist the University Museum in the excavation of ancient Indian sites.

Sites to be excavated are located in the area to be inundated by the 1750-acre Cedar Lake reservoir. The work will be done by the North American Archeology Division of the SIU Museum, and must be completed by May 30, 1974.

Derge launches study of faculty resources

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU President Daved R. Derge Tuesday night revealed a five-part plan which will review the allocation of faculty resources in order to improve the teaching, research and public service functions of the University.

Derge revealed his plan at the monthly meeting of the SIU chapter of the American Association of University Professors. His speech was entitled "The Building of Academic Excellence in the University."

Under the first part of Derge's plan, a careful and continuing review of individual faculty performance regardless of academic rank and tenure will be made. No mention was made of who will make the review.

The second part of the plan will be the establishment of a presidential advisory group made up of faculty members to review the patterns of allocation in order to determine if resources are being used efficiently.

The advisory groups would also review and make recommendations concerning rewards to faculty members. Specifically, the groups will try to find new paths and options in the areas of promotion, tenure and salary.

A careful review will also be made in the area of the teaching-learning environment. A presidential committee will be established which will review and make recommendations dealing with the teaching aspects. This committee would seek input from both students and faculty.

The final part of Derge's plan concerns the "campus brain drain." He did not explain his meaning of the term. According to Derge, no plan has been formalized in this area.

In the case of all five parts, Derge did not reveal any names of the people who are going to take part in the plan.

Prior to announcing his plan, Derge cited the Illinois Board of Higher Education's (IBHE) Master Plan Phase III as the reason for the review. "From what is outlined in Master Plan III, there is going to be educational growth in quality, not quantity," Derge said. "SIU is no longer a baronial estate, if we do not do the review, someone else will straighten us out."

Derge also made some reference to the management task force which will review the allocation of resources in the administration. "The task force will try to make recommendations concerning efficiency and streamlining," Derge said.

After outlining his faculty plan, Derge listed three other concerns in which some work and some consideration has been made. He referred to the request he has made to Issac Brackett, vice president for academic affairs, to establish an Affirmative Action program for black and women faculty members.

Derge also mentioned his concern for special academic programs for incoming freshmen who need special assistance. He did not reveal any specific plans.

The final concern Derge mentioned involved the depersonalization of the University. He said he will try to establish a program in which there would be more faculty and student interaction.

Derge appoints task force to study SIU's management

By Sue Roll
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

President David R. Derge said Tuesday that the members of a task force to study management at SIU-Carbondale should be named some time this week.

The three-man task force will analyze the entire administrative structure of the University, Derge said, and will make recommendations on possible reorganization and improvement of the administrative system. "We want to make sure we're getting the most for our administrative dollar," he said.

Derge disclosed his plans for the task force Monday night on the WSUI-TV program, "President's Report."

All members of the task force will be chosen from the faculty of the SIU Department of Business, Derge said. Derge said he had decided against calling in an outside professional consulting agency because drawing on SIU resources would be economical and efficient.

The three men on the task force will be working full time on the review with their other duties at the University, such as teaching, assigned to other individuals, Derge said. There will be no increase in pay for the task force work.

Derge said he could not specify how long the review would take, but expected the entire report would be prepared inside of six months.

All University offices and administrators will be asked to make their files and procedures available to the task force.

Derge said there will not necessarily be a freeze on all appointments and changes within the administration pending the review. "We can't freeze everything in mid-stride," said Derge. "The administration is constantly changing and must meet the continuing needs of the University."

Senate reverses anti-busing vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, with most of its absentees back in town, reversed itself Tuesday and rejected the Griffin amendment to strip the federal courts of power to issue busing orders in school desegregation cases.

The vote against it was 50 - 47, which compared with the 43-40 tally last Friday to adopt the proposal of Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich.

Three of the five Democratic presidential contenders who had been absent Friday returned for the test and furnished the margin of victory for civil rights advocates to reject Griffin's amendment.

The victory was not final, however. The Senate will continue to debate the higher education-school desegregation bill up to 2 p.m. Wednesday and another version of the Griffin rider or other stringent antibusing amendments still could be offered.

After rejecting the Griffin amendment, the Senate voted 63-34 to adopt again the plan offered by the Senate leaders, Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and Hugh Scott, R-Pa., as a compromise. Later it sealed this into the bill 66-29.

It contains some mild restrictions on busing but does not challenge the power of the federal courts to continue to issue busing orders where the judge decides these are required to end state-imposed school segregation.

The three Democratic hopefuls who voted were Sens. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and George S. McGovern of South Dakota. Each voted against Griffin and for the Mansfield-Scott compromise.

Henry Jackson of Washington, campaigning in Florida, said the Griffin amendment is unconstitutional and Mansfield-Scott ineffectual. Sen. Vance Harke of Indiana, who has opposed the Griffin amendment, campaigned Tuesday in New Hampshire. The other absentee was Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., who has been absent because of a stroke.

Opponents of the Griffin rider had described it as an unconstitutional attempt to deprive the courts of the right to use an important remedy for school segregation.

The rider had a second provision which would have killed a key section of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

This provision would have forbidden federal officials to withhold or threaten to withhold federal funds to induce use of busing in a desegregation effort.

Southern senators continued to describe the Mansfield-Scott compromise as meaningless. Some said it actually would produce more busing.

200 deaths at hospital spark probe of 'doctor'

ELGIN (AP) — Law enforcement authorities awaited a report Tuesday on the deaths of 200 persons at a state mental hospital where a man worked as a doctor, although records show he flunked his Illinois licensing examinations three times.

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie also ordered an investigation.

Ricardo Munoz-Valez, 48, who worked at the Elgin State Hospital since October 1968, was suspended Monday after an announcement by William R. Ketcham, Kane County state's attorney, that the deaths were being investigated.

Ketcham said he ordered the investigation after the Chicago Tribune said it "uncovered overwhelming evidence that Munoz had talked his way into a position of trust..." although "he apparently never completed medical school."

Dr. George Leroy, professor of internal medicine at the University of Chicago, said Tuesday he forwarded his report on the deaths to Ketcham. He declined to discuss the report, but said he is prepared to testify in court.

Munoz was not available for comment. He was not charged.

The Tribune said the deaths occurred between April 1969 and August 1971 while Munoz worked in the hospital's geriatric section.

Ketcham and Douglas Norcross, administrative assistant at the hospital, said that Munoz was removed from medical practice at the hospital to a clerical position in October after complaints by several members of the hospital's staff.

Munoz worked as a doctor at the hospital under a permit granted by the Illinois Department of Registration and Education. A law was modified in 1966 to allow graduates of a medical school to work in state hospitals, although they are not licensed.

U-Senate members to discuss role of student government

Several members of the University Senate have been invited to address the Student Senate at an informal senate meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Mississippi River Room in the Student Center.

The speakers will discuss with the senators the role of student government in regards to University governance.

Other senate business is expected to include a request from the Student Advisory Committee (SAC) of the Illinois Higher Board of Education for the senate to withdraw its support of the SAC, thus making effective the resignation of the three SAC members from SIU.

The three members are reportedly disillusioned with the IBHE's attitude towards the committee, which is composed of students from state schools throughout Illinois.

Several senators will submit a bill calling for the resignation of the members of the SIU Board of Trustees who voted to deny tenure for Douglas H. Allen, instructor of philosophy.

The meeting is open to all interested students.

Will board purge SIU faculty ?

To the Daily Egyptian:

If the things I hold to be important were contingent upon my being granted tenure at this reactionary institution I might not say what I feel to be the truth in the Douglas Allen tenure case. I know as a fact that many of my colleagues who share my opinion as to the real issues and the pertinent facts in this case are prevented by a number of real considerations from speaking out publicly. While I do not wish to belittle my colleagues, who, for fear of economic retaliation or of strained working conditions in conservative departments, hesitate to speak out—I would like to speak for them.

In the first place, I believe that the question as to Allen's professional competency is no longer a central issue. Apparently a majority of his peers in the Philosophy department believe that he is competent, and a majority of his students seem to feel that he is at least "better than the average instructor at SIU."

At this point for a layman to insist on the superiority of his own particular contrary opinion is both outrageous and absurd.

The central question in the Allen case is now whether the Board of Trustees may claim the right to act irresponsibly. A person who cannot or need not answer (respond) for his actions acts irresponsibly. When the board answers objections to its decrees by making statements which insult the intelligence of every member of the academic community and which do violence to the very ideals and ideas of their institution—"To become a center of order and light...ever promoting freedom with responsibility"—they act irresponsibly.

To be specific on this last point: The board argues that in Allen's case there is "insufficient evidence of excellence in teaching, research or service." If this is the board's real feeling on the subject, and not just a ruse for sweeping an obvious "trouble maker" under the rug, they have their work cut out for them, decimating the faculty of this University. If to be consistent in their actions one would expect them to start by weeding out the philosophy department, where, judging from the board's respect for their professional opinion, incompetency must be a way of life.

Recently, in a public statement, President Derge remarked that no faculty member would be intimidated by the University for taking a stand against the board's decision. Of course not! But when such a faculty member receives his walking papers it will be of slight consolation for him to hear that he is being let go for reasons of "insufficient evidence of excellence in teaching, research or service."

Allen refused debate

To the Daily Egyptian:

I wish to state my complete agreement with the views expressed by Mr. C. Kumararatnam in his letter of Feb. 24. The heavy-handed tactic of threatening legal action to silence opposition must receive a firm rejection by all who truly support the values of a free university. As Kumararatnam indicates, I have indeed invited Douglas Allen to a public debate on the issues of academic freedom and faculty responsibility in the classroom. Allen has refused. Perhaps he believes that my basic ground rule that placard waving, slogan shouting goon squads not be permitted to disrupt such a debate would remove his most effective debate tactic. He probably feels that he has more to gain by deliberate obfuscation of the issues.

In the same issue of the Daily Egyptian John F. Gadway's contribution will receive an honored place in my growing collection of Campus Comedy Capers. I was certain that this kind of histrionics went out with the fainting couch and basso renditions of "On the Road to Mandalay." It appears to me that those faculty who claim to feel intimidated by the board's decision are generally those who have taken class time to vent their political hostilities, not just in passing, but systematically. They may now feel constrained to teach their subject and to try to teach it well.

Turnout pleasing

To the Daily Egyptian:

Voters for Responsive Government was very pleased at the response to the call to register to vote. Our data indicate that approximately 4,200 voters have registered since the initial drive in mid-December.

We would like to thank all the organizations that paid for advertising to support the drive, the local radio stations, particularly WIDB, which supported us through free public service announcements and news coverage, the Daily Egyptian and Carbondale Cablevision.

We are especially indebted to the League of Women Voters, whose members donated countless hours to ensure the success of the voter registration drive, to Student Government, which arranged for facilities, and the Dan Walker campaign, whose members devoted many hours to the drive.

We feel that the increased citizen interest in government that the results of this drive indicate will prove beneficial to the area. We urge all locally registered voters to vote in the upcoming primary, county and school board elections.

'Straw Dogs' reclassified

To the Daily Egyptian:

With the thought in mind that Sam Peckinpah, director of Straw Dogs, is one of my favorites I would like to offer further observations that hopefully will correct its "fascinating" but "flawed" classification received in a Daily Egyptian review.

Straw Dogs takes place in rural England, not in the American West. Instead of concerning oneself with speculation as the reviewer (Glen Amato) did, one must accept the location and examine why and how this location is employed. This is Peckinpah's first non-western attempt and the hunt for this location occupied him for a longer period of time than it did for his previous films. With the selection of a rural location in England he is able to present the viewer with a stereotyped environment of peace and serenity. Through the introduction and interaction of various characters in the opening scene tension is created by playing on our preconceived notions the environment serves to contrast and thus intensify the action which forms this tension. The West cannot provide this contrast for geographically and historically it is embodied with an air of hostility and violence.

The countryside does not maintain a passive role. As the film progresses, this visual element takes on a character of its own. The shot following the discovery of the dead cat, where the house is surrounded in black, and the closely framed sequence of Dustin Hoffman hunting gives the feeling that he is being 'held' from his wife.

Contrary to the assertion of the reviewer that Straw Dogs exists for its violence, it is rather violence that serves a thematic purpose. Peckinpah is extending his examination of noncommittal innocence that he began in The Wild Bunch to include the rituals one goes through to reach maturity whether this maturity is adulthood or an animalistic sense of community. Every character is involved with violence as an element of life or as a solution to the fulfillment of his role. The so called teenage slut is actually a young girl trying to grasp adulthood by attempting to gain Hoffman's interest; when she fails she immediately turns to the village idiot who is innocently (he has never been kissed) and unknowingly involved in achieving a similar goal.

As the young lads later search for this girl, the men steadily drink at the pub in silent ceremonial anticipation of the bloodletting necessary "to protect their own."

After the preliminaries of the battle for Hoffman's house, there is a scene in which two of the attackers ride around on tricycles they have found. It is this act of drunkenness that serves as a cinematic means of reintroducing the idea of innocence as a prelude to a battle involving the primitive role of the male as protector. The violence is concluded by Hoffman's childish wife who matures through her first kill.

Some films exploit violence, but with Sam Peckinpah it is used as a thematic consideration. His skillful and graphically explicit use of it may cause some to consider this is all he has to offer; he does however deserve more than the simple reputation as a director who makes bloody westerns.

Hitching helps

To the Daily Egyptian:

Our fair Carbondale is busting with automobiles. At 4 p.m. one can walk down Illinois Avenue faster than he could drive. While walking, one inhales a gross amount of toxic pollutants. The fewer autos we have cluttering our streets the less pollution we are creating; therefore, people hitchhiking are performing a service to everyone else, including our planet.

We fail to comprehend why an individual with a sufficient amount of space in his car cannot stop to help a fellow human being. After all, who knows when one of our present drivers might need a ride? Please don't pass by our brothers and sisters with their thumbs out.

WHO SAYS NOBODY WANTS YOU WHEN YOU'RE OLD AND GRAY ?

Where are books?

To the Daily Egyptian:

One of the most talked about books of last year was Miss Edith Efron's News Twisters. Giving evidence before a Senate subcommittee, she complained that CBS was trying to suppress the book. Was that one reason why the firms that supply books to our library failed to send the book?

One of the more controversial and refreshing personalities of the last three years in the American political scene is the former governor of Maryland. His speeches were criticized by people who never read them in full; and a published collection was never acquired by the University.

Knowing the top two people of the library and appreciative of their unquestioned professionalism and unimpeachable integrity, one can only conclude that there must be a goof-up in the middle echelons which one hopes will soon be rectified and those books be acquired, and also that important right-of-the-center journals like Human Events will adorn Morris Library.

Governance is a stair-step system

Editor's note: This is part two of a four-part series

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

In order to understand how the University Senate operates, one should look at the complete governance system which was approved early in 1971.

According to the campus governance document, the governance system is concerned with those matters of educational policy which are not assigned to a single department, school or college and matters of nonacademic policy which are of concern to one or more segments of the campus community. The system forms the principal legislative and policy-making structure in matters of general concern to the campus community. The Board of Trustees, however, still has the final decision—making power.

The system is made up of four sectors—faculty, students, staff and administration. The four sectors are divided into constituencies: general faculty, graduate faculty, undergraduate students, graduate students, administrative and professional staff, nonacademic employees and administrators.

Each constituency has its own council or senate to determine its internal structure and rules of procedure. The councils and senates have original power over academic policy matters and those nonacademic matters which significantly involve only a single constituency.

The U-Senate is a 50-member organization composed of 14 general faculty, 7 graduate faculty, 12 undergraduate students, 5 graduate students, 4 administrative and professional staff, 4 nonacademic employees, 2 administrators and 2 alumni.

The U-Senate has original power in reviewing and modifying existing policy and making new policy in those areas of campus affairs which are primarily nonacademic and of direct concern to faculty, students, staff and administration. The principal function of the senate is to resolve differing viewpoints between the various constituency councils and coordinate the different segments of the campus community.

The members of the senate are chosen by the individual councils and senates. The University President is an automatic member of the senate. The constituency councils can select their members of the senate anytime they wish.

There are three senate officers—president, vice president and secretary—who must be members of the senate. The president and vice president cannot be from the same constituency. Provisions are made for removing an officer. Candidates for the offices are nominated at the regular meeting in November and are elected at the next meeting.

The senate meets regularly once each month, and special meetings can be called upon request. A majority of the members must be present for the senate to conduct its business. People who are not members of the senate can participate. The senate can amend the governance document.

Much of the work of the governance system occurs in committees. There are three different types of senate committees. These types are the structural committees, standing committees, and ad hoc committees. The constituency councils are allowed to form standing and ad hoc committees. A kind of a crossbreed between the senate and the constituency councils are the joint standing committees. The structural committees are the executive, the governance and the screening.

The executive committee has seven members, one from each constituency. The president and vice president of the senate automatically sit on this committee and serve as their constituency's representative. The executive committee selects the members of all joint standing committees. The committee also sets the senate's agenda. Committee members must be senate members.

The governance committee consists of nine members. Of these, three are faculty, three are student, two are staff and one is from the administration. All must be members of the senate. The members are appointed by the executive committee. The governance committee is assigned the task of monitoring the governance structure. It also acts as an election and credentials committee. The committee has the power to resolve any jurisdictional question involving the appropriate classification of any suggestion or proposal.

The screening committee is a seven-member committee which has a representative from each constituency. In fact, the president or chairman of the constituency should be the constituency's representative. The function of the screening committee will be discussed later.

There are seven standing committees of the U-Senate. These are the campus planning committee, the campus management committee, the external relations committee, the judiciary and grievance committee, the crisis prevention committee, the ombudsman panel and the men's intercollegiate athletics committee.

The first four committees consist of seven members, one from each constituency. The members of the committees come from the senate and are selected by the executive committee. The prevention committee has 17 members. Four faculty, four students, three staff, three administration and three community residents compose this committee. The members need not be senate members.

The ombudsman panel has nine members. The panel has the same make up as the governance committee. The panel members need not be members of the senate. The intercollegiate committee has 15 members appointed by the executive committee. The members need not be senate members.

Ad hoc committees can be formed by any senate committee. They deal primarily with only one issue. The members of these committees need not be senate members.

There are 10 joint standing committees. Half the members of these committees must come from a list submitted by the constituency council. The members need not be senate members. The committee is responsible for a certain area. Each committee is responsible to a certain constituency. The committee is also responsible to the senate.

Suggestions for legislative proposals can originate with any organization or person. The proposal can be sent to the senate or to one of the joint standing committees. If the proposal is sent to the senate, all that is necessary for acceptance is the senate's approval. If the legislative proposal is sent to a joint standing committee, the committee must approve the proposal and send it to the screening committee. The screening committee then must decide which constituency councils must approve the proposal. If two or more constituencies disapprove the proposal, it fails. If one disapproves, the proposal goes to the senate. Legislative proposals need the approval of the presidents. Resolutions are recommendations which can be ignored by the president. The president can veto any legislative proposal made by the senate by a two-thirds vote, the senate can override the veto.

Abortion story needs corrections

To the Daily Egyptian:

Re a Daily Egyptian article on Saturday, Feb. 26. The article was on a meeting held by a local abortion coalition on Thursday, Feb. 24. Although we want coverage of our plans and activities, we regret that several inaccuracies and misunderstandings were evident in the article.

First, the group is the Southern Illinois Abortion Repeal Coalition. We are an autonomous group working for the repeal of anti-abortion laws, not merely a local chapter of the Women's National Abortion Action Coalition. Although we endorse WONAAC, hold the same three basic demands and agree with many of its ideas, our coalition determines its own activities and aims and has not been organized simply to be an arm of the national group.

Secondly, the article, in stating our aims, said we wanted "the repeal of anti-abortion and restrictive contraceptive laws, plus forced sterilization by the state..." Because of the phrasing, it may be concluded that we are for forced sterilization by the state. We are unequivocally against forced sterilization. We are working for the right of each woman to decide how she wishes to use her reproductive functions—whether her decision is to have a child, to use contraceptives, to have an abortion or to be sterilized.

Thirdly, the coalition is not planning to open a library ourselves, but we are drawing up a bibliography of materials on abortion.

Fourthly, the 15 abortion referrals per week mentioned in the article come from only one of the legal referral services in the area.

Fifthly, we are concerned about the availability of contraceptives from the Health Service, but we have not yet officially asked for a clarification from the service on its policy. We did not intend to imply that the service has withheld such a clarification, as might be construed from the article.

Again, we do want coverage of our activities, but we urge that articles be written more clearly to avoid possible misunderstandings about our aims and activities.

Why expand SIU?

To the Daily Egyptian:

On the front page of Feb. 23's Daily Egyptian, President Derge states that SIU has the potential for growth. Some of the factors that have led him to this conclusion are: physical facilities, faculty and the warmth and support of community groups and organizations. It seems very possible that some of this warmth may have turned into small fires under the chair of the Board of Trustees to raise enrollment. The realtors, landowners and businessmen of Carbondale keep putting up housing projects as if they soon expect the student population of Carbondale to reach 30,000.

Derge should be required to state clearly whose interests would be served best by expansion—those of the community and its businessmen or the students already enrolled here.

We should not allow ourselves to be led blindly like sheep. We must ask these questions and demand concise and honest answers.

No more drivel

To the Daily Egyptian:

I picked up my copy of the Daily Egyptian—and lo! Another letter from the illustrious C. Kumararatnam. What prompts you to print such drivel? Does his flamboyant language blind you to the fact that the man is saying absolutely nothing? Inanity is inanity no matter how artfully it is disguised.

Confused priorities

To the Daily Egyptian

As everyone who has walked over or driven under the pedestrian overpass on Highway 51 has noted, construction has begun on another protective enclosure for the overpass which reportedly will cost some $36,000 in "previously allocated" funds. For the fall term, 1971, the entire College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (comprising several hundred classes) was allocated $18,000 for teaching materials, equipment and other supplies.

Obviously there is no monopoly on the ability to confuse and misuse priorities.

Allyn remodeling bids well below estimate

By University News Services
 Apparent low bids totaling $450,613 have been received for renovating the 64-year-old Allyn Building.

figures do not include various alterations which will be examined by SIU architects before final contract recommendations go to the board of trustees.

The project will add an elevator-stair wing and will include new plumbing, heating, ventilating and electrical facilities.

The building formerly housed SIU's School of Art, parts of which will move back in when the project is finished. Eventually, Allyn Building will become a general classroom structure.

J.L. Simmons and Co. of Decatur, apparent low bidder on general construction work (at $248,700), stipulated a 300-day working schedule to completion.

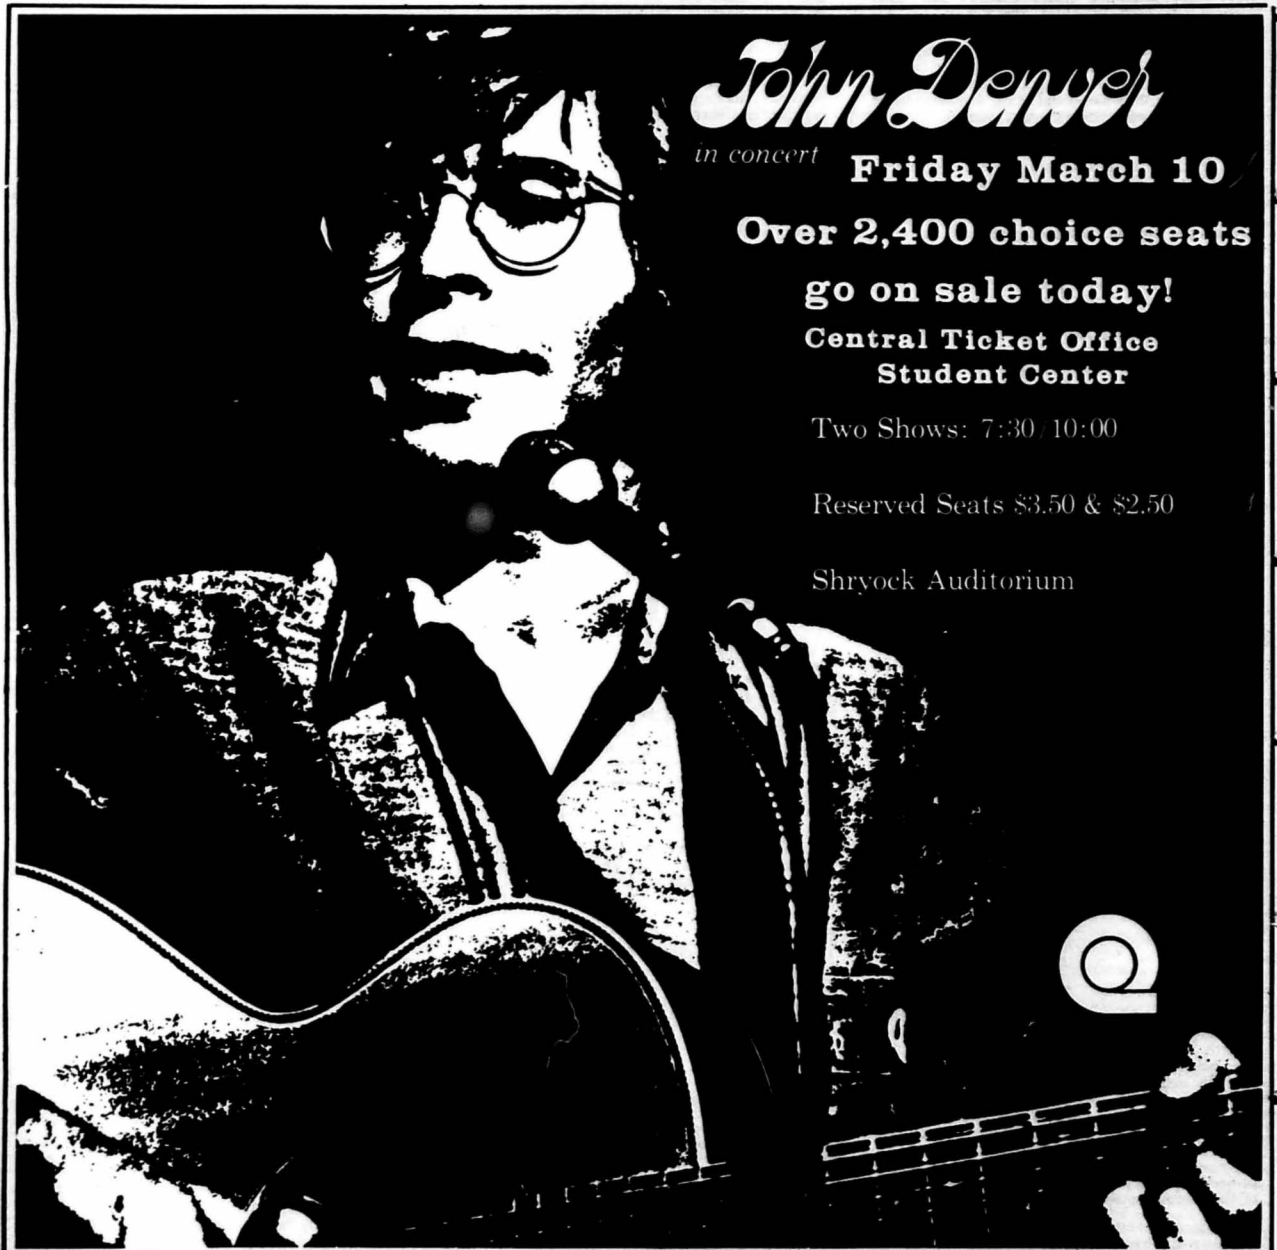

Republican club officers elected

Cathy Whiteside, retiring vice-president of the SIU College Republicans, has been elected the club's president for the coming year. Miss Whiteside, of Georgetown, is a senior in social studies.

Other officers elected at a meeting of the club last week, according to retiring President Nancy Colonius, are Chuck Lewis, of Chicago, a junior majoring in accounting, external vice-president; Don Guinnip, of Marshall, a junior majoring in agriculture, internal vice-president; Mike Moorman, of Metropolis, a freshman government major, secretary; and Mike Trout, of O'Pdyke, a freshman in general studies, treasurer.

Nowlan tries to make name known as running mate for Gov. Ogilvie

By David L. Mahsman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

James D. Nowlan

developing the office of lieutenant governor.

Commenting on his opposition in the November elections, Nowlan said both Carbondale Mayor Neal Eckert and Neil Hartigan, a Chicago ward committeeman, have good credentials. Eckert and Hartigan will face each other in the Democratic primary.

Who is James D. Nowlan? That's the question Nowlan is trying to answer in the minds of Illinoisans before the November elections.

Nowlan is Gov. Richard Ogilvie's running mate. He was in Carbondale Monday trying to reach at least a few students with that information. And the fact that Nowlan was interested in meeting only a few students is what makes his campaign style somewhat unique in the current frenzy of political activity.

The 30-year-old state representative from rural Stark County admits that his approach to campaigning is unconventional. In an interview Monday, the candidate for lieutenant governor said he hopes his style will cause people who meet him to talk to friends about his interaction "whether in good or bad terms."

Nowlan's visit to Carbondale marked one step in a series of one-day visits he hopes to make in at least 40 Illinois counties by the March 21 primary elections. While at SIU, Nowlan talked to three or four dozen students in the Thebes Room and cafeteria of the Student Center.

"I asked their views and told them mine," Nowlan, who was dressed in brown bell-bottom slacks and boots, said of his talks with students. "This is the only meaningful way to express oneself. Talking to a small group is more satisfying than standing on a street corner shaking hands. I just hope it's effective."

Nowlan said he was surprised at the feedback he got from SIU students, because many of the student concerns were unrelated to the University and higher education. He said topics ranged from highways and property taxes to the Army Corps of Engineers' plans for a lake near Mt. Vernon.

"This reinforces the point that the so-called new voter has the same concerns as the veteran voter," he contended, fingering his sideburns. He stopped, and as an afterthought added, "Let's change that to say older voter rather than veteran."

Nowlan was conscious of the slight nuances of meaning in various things he said, then changed. He was a weekly newspaper editor in his home town of Toulon, population 1,200, and still writes for the newspaper occasionally, though he seldom has time. Being a newspaperman of sorts, Nowlan also realizes the value of publicity and the necessity of making his name known.

Although he is running unopposed in the Republican primary, Nowlan is trying to get his name to as many people as possible by March 21. He is campaigning six days each week and trying to keep up with his legislative work at the same time, looking toward the upcoming legislative session in Springfield April 10 to June 30.

"I'm totally unknown in the state, so I must campaign full-time," Nowlan said, toying with his wire-framed glasses. Although he has a meek appearance, Nowlan speaks forcefully and seldom smiles, even though he tells some amusing anecdotes. One story illustrates Nowlan's reason for campaigning long and hard. He said that early in the campaign, one newspaper referred to him as "James D. Toulon, of Nowlan."

In spite of his lack of opposition in the upcoming primary, Nowlan contended that the Republican Party "has provided a healthy intra-party contest in recent years. It's traditionally less organized than the Democrats."

As for his selection by Ogilvie to run for lieutenant governor, Nowlan said he felt it "vitaly important" for the incumbent governor to choose his running mate, because the two will be teamed up in the general election.

"This didn't preclude other candidates contesting the governor's choice," Nowlan, who actively sought Ogilvie's endorsement, said. "If he (Ogilvie) had selected some other running mate, though, and I or others opposed him and were successful, I would suggest that the nominee would be less valuable in

"Because of what will probably be low interest in the lieutenant governor nomination, it's difficult to tell who (Eckert or Hartigan) will win," Nowlan said, running his hand through his thinning hair. "It depends on how clear the Cook County Democratic organization makes it that their choice is Hartigan."

Nowlan said that in spite of what Chicago Mayor Richard Daley would like to see, the forces of Eckert and Dan Walker seem to be making points with students. He said students he has talked to are impressed with Walker's and Eckert's independence from the party organization.

But Nowlan isn't worrying about which Democrat will oppose him in November at this stage of the game. He is a busy man trying to make himself known. What's more, he appears to be a man on the rise—a winner of the "Outstanding Freshman Legislator" award, which he said doesn't mean much to him but sounds good.

With that background, does Nowlan have aspirations for higher office, maybe even the governorship?

"That's the first time anyone has asked that. I've never given it any thought," he said with a rare grin. Let's just say that seeking this office (lieutenant governor) is a challenge, and any other would be, too."

Grad school's operating paper accepted by members of faculty

The Graduate Faculty accepted the Graduate School's operating paper Tuesday following a vote to include the director of the University Museum as an ex-officio member of the Graduate Faculty.

The Graduate Faculty met for the first time this year, in Davis Auditorium to discuss revisions of the draft of the operating paper.

The operating paper details the functions and operations of the Graduate School, the duties of the dean, membership and powers of the faculty and the composition and powers of the council. The paper has been reviewed and accepted by the Graduate Council.

Shortly after the meeting opened, Basil C. Hedrick, director of the University Museum, made a motion that the director of the museum should be an ex-officio member of the Graduate Faculty.

He said that "both the past and present museum directors hold membership on the Graduate Faculty because of academic rank, teaching and/or research duties."

"Regardless of the situation of an individual director," he said, "we feel that the principle of including the head of the unit as an ex-officio member of the Graduate Faculty should be incorporated into the new operating paper."

After some deliberation a vote was taken and the motion passed with ten in favor, three opposed and six abstentions.

Lon Shelby, chairman of the Graduate Faculty, said that the "ad-hoc committee had spent a great deal of time" working on the operating paper and that he would refer their recommendation to the committee for further study.

Shelby asked the faculty members if they found the document sufficiently clear and if they had trouble understanding the changes that had been made. When they answered "yes," he asked if there were more recommendations for changes.

Silence ensued.

"Can I take this silence to mean that you are generally happy with the results of these changes, then?" he asked.

Members nodded in agreement and Shelby dismissed the meeting. "It's a pleasant day and I don't want to keep you if there's no reason to be here," he said.

Frisbee freethrowers fling freely, frantically

The fast flying flash of the frisbees as they flew and flickered fairly fanned the flock of fans who fancied the flight far more than that of flamingos or fireflies.

That's the way it was at the first annual intramural frisbee tournament Sunday in the SIU Arena.

Randy Dick, junior from Cambria, defeated his roommate, J.B. Schwiderski, also a junior from Cambria, by winning the first two rounds in the finals.

This final two-out-of-three contest concluded the single elimination tournament for the 28 men who entered the tournament.

They were the only two girls who entered the competition. "We expected more people to show up," said Jim Evans, intramural graduate intern.

"Next year we may have more events such as accuracy and distance contests if the student interest is good enough," said Larry Payton, another intramural graduate intern.

All of the frisbee events were run according to the official rules of the International Frisbee Association.

"The idea for this contest came from a suggestion in the suggestion box," said Payton. Students are invited to drop suggestions for the intramural (IM) program in the suggestion box at the IM office.

NIU fans get whiff of gas at Arena basketball game

Northern Illinois University basketball fans got a taste of Southern hospitality Saturday night—in reverse.

A canister or pellet of Mace, tear gas or another offensive gas was apparently released in section JJ of the Arena during the second half of the SIU-NIU basketball game.

Fans sitting in that section, most of them from NIU, were temporarily evacuated, while police searched the area in vain for a canister. Police said many of the fans were coughing and some had watery eyes.

The noxious odor was eliminated by the Arena fans (the electric type, not human) and the Northern spectators were able to return to their seats about five minutes after the stench was noted, police said.

Undaunted by their supporters' problems, the NIU squad "gassed" the Salukis, 97-93.

Petition period opens today for student election in April

By Randy Thomas
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

John Conlisk, Student Government election committee chairman, announced Tuesday that petitions for candidates in the April 28 election will be available Wednesday in the Student Government offices.

The deadline for filing petitions is April 5, Conlisk said.

The positions of president and vice president of the student body and 20 seats in the Student Senate will be filled.

Conlisk, eastside dorm senator, explained that petitions for senator must have at least 50 signatures of eligible student voters and petitions for the executive posts must have at least 200.

Conlisk said that students seeking office must be full-time students and have at least a 3.0 overall grade average and maintain it while in office. Potential office holders must also plan on living in the district from which they are elected.

The number of senate seats open in each district are Brush Towers, 1; Thompson Point, 1; University Park, 2; small group housing, 1; eastside dorm, 1; westside dorm 1; eastside non-dorm 3; west side non-dorm, 4; VTI 1; commuter, 4; University City, 1.

The executive positions, according to Conlisk, are open to juniors and seniors. He said the president receives a $2,200 salary and the vice president receives $2,000. The executives must remain in Carbondale over the summer, though they need not be enrolled in summer school.

Also open, Conlisk said, is the position of Student Government Activities Council chairman. He said the job, which is a paid position, is filled by appointment. Interested students should contact Tom Kelly, the present chairman, in the Student Government offices in the Student Center. Conlisk said campaigning may begin immediately but no posters are allowed on or off campus until April 5.

The topic for the evening is "Evaluation of treatment programs for homosexual behavior." The talk will be followed by a question and answer period.

Everyone is welcome to attend.

'62 Chevy taken Monday

SIU security police Tuesday reported thefts of an automobile and two rear wheels from another vehicle.

A light blue, two-door 1962 Chevrolet was stolen between 7:20 p.m. and 8:40 p.m. Monday while parked on Lincoln Drive between the Agriculture Building and the Technology Building.

Stephen D. Penninger, 24, Carbondale, owner of the car, told police it has a cracked windshield and a board in the place of the right front window.

Two whitewall tires, wheels and wheel covers were stolen from a car parked in the Wilson Hall parking lot Saturday.

David Long, 20, Carbondale, told police the theft occurred between 2:30 a.m. and 8 a.m. The 1970 Pontiac Tempest was discovered Saturday morning with the rear jacked up and the wheels missing.

Award-winning 'Home' to play in Washington

By Glenn Amato
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Southern Player's production of "Home," directed and designed by Darwin Reid Payne, has been selected by The American Theater Association as one of the ten outstanding college productions in the nation. The David Storey drama will be presented in Washington, D.C., on March 29 at the John F.

Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

The production was selected from more than 300 entrants, according to Jo Mack, University Theater manager. The Southern Players won a similar honor last year when "The Caretaker," also directed by Payne, was invited to Washington. "Home" has already been performed at the regional contest at the University of Illinois, where Dan Crane won the $500 Irene Ryan scholarship for his performance as Harry. Crane will receive an additional $2,000 if his performance is similarly judged in Washington.

The cast of "Home" includes Bob Kimber as Jack, Lynn Leonard as Marjorie, Eileen Fair as Kathleen and Jim Glavin as Alfred.

SMC sponsors evening movie

The film "No Vietnamese Ever Called Me Nigger" will be shown at 7 and 8:30 p.m. Wednesday in Ballroom C of the Student Center.

The film is sponsored by the Student Mobilization Committee (SMC). A donation will be asked at the door. All proceeds from the film will go for the SMC and the Committee to Defend the Right to Speak.

Tax service offers help

Students having difficulties filling out their tax forms can be relieved of the task Thursday from 5-7 p.m. at absolutely no cost.

The Free Tax Clinic is being sponsored by Beta Alpha Psi, a national accounting fraternity. John Rodenkirch, representing for the group, said Beta Alpha Psi decided to offer its talents in accounting in hopes of saving SIU students some time and frustration.

He said anyone deciding to make use of the service should bring his 1040 and W-2 forms. The group will also answer any questions students may have about their tax returns if they don't have these forms.

Minister uses movies to communicate Gospel

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Use of movies to communicate the Christian message is similar to Jesus' use of parables, says G. William Jones, who teaches fine arts at Southern Methodist University.

He said in a lecture at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary here that movies, like parables, apply ideas to life rather than leaving them as cold abstractions.

Drug rehabilitation plan up for approval

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

George Mace, assistant to the president for student affairs, said Monday that a proposal asking for the creation of a self-help drug rehabilitation home for ex-felons on the SIU campus has been sent to various people on-campus for evaluation.

Mace said the proposal was sent to approximately 17 people in various areas of the campus community. The proposal, written by the Narcotic Addict Rehabilitation Coordination Organization (NARCO), asks that the facility be established at SIU beginning September, 1972. The facility would be known as the "Whole Way Home." NARCO is a group of inmates from Menard Penitentiary. It is a therapeutic program originated by the inmates and maintained by the inmates to help correct the convict's behavior relative to drug use and social rehabilitation.

The objective of the proposal is to demonstrate that ex-convicts with crime and drug addiction histories can make major changes in their life style. A possible location for the home, if the proposal is approved, could be in one of the Thompson Point dormitories.

Mace said he expected to receive the evaluations in about two or three weeks.

Back-to-the-Land festivities begin Wednesday in Student Center

By Daryl Stephenson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Back-to-the-Land Festival, sponsored by the Student Environmental Center, will get underway at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Ballrooms with an introductory slide show explaining the purpose of the festival.

Ray Lenzi, festival coordinator, said that the slide show will also discuss "the development of a new awareness of the future of environmental planning in Southern Illinois and the role that communal farming will play in that future."

Workshops, symposiums and guest speakers are planned for the festival, which will run through Friday in the Student Center Ballrooms.

The purpose of the festival, Lenzi said, is to help people adjust to the difficulties of moving back to the country by using the services of people who have already overcome the problems of living in the rural areas of Southern Illinois.

Following the slide show, three workshops will begin at 3:30 p.m.

The first will deal with "Organic Gardening and Farming" and will be held in the Ohio River Room. Participating in the workshop will be Ruth Paprocki, Toni Roan, Dan Vasey and Jeff Ware.

All either live on farms in the Southern Illinois area or have had experience in organic farming, Lenzi said.

Also participating in the workshop is John Reeves, director of the SIU Arboretum. "Reeves has had considerable experience dealing with pesticides," Lenzi said "and will provide technical information on pesticide use."

The second workshop is "Building Domes and other Shelters" which will be held in the Kaskaskia and Missouri River Rooms. The workshop will be led by Jeff Graet, a former SIU student who has had experience in building domes, and Dale Klaus, a former assistant to Buckminster Fuller.

The third workshop is "Blacks and the Land," which will meet in the Illinois River Room. It will be led by Leon Paige of the United Front of Cairo, who will also speak on the same topic at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Ballrooms A and B of the Student Center.

Paige's evening address is being cosponsored by the Black Student Union.

Wednesday's activities will conclude with a symposium on "The Back-to-the-Land Movement in Southern Illinois" at 8:30 p.m. in the Student Center Ballrooms.

Participating in the symposium will be Ware, Roan, Norville Haines, Steve Miller, Tim Comiskey and Ronald Braithwaite. All are either owners or are part owners of cooperative farms in the Southern Illinois area, said Lenzi.

The Student Environmental Center, Lenzi said, is a project designed to involve students in environmental problems.

In addition to publishing a newsletter, he said, the center has surveyed dam and channelization projects to determine their effects on the environment and has been involved in the recycling of waste materials.

2 students shot on WIU campus

MACOMB (AP) —One student was killed and one was wounded Tuesday in a shooting in Seal Hall, a residence on the Western Illinois University campus. Authorities were hunting two assailants.

The name of the dead student, from Chicago, was withheld pending notification of his family.

Clyde R. Johnson, a freshman from St. Anne, was wounded but expected to recover.

The gunfire occurred on the third floor of the hall before noon.

Frat to stage marathon for Easter seal funds

As part of the 1972 Easter seal campaign some 40-50 members of Delta Upsilon fraternity will participate in a bicycle marathon from Carbondale to Chicago starting at 8:30 a.m. Friday, according to Charlie White, chairman of the marathon.

The marathon will consist of two bicycles. One will be ridden by a member of the fraternity at all times while within the city limits of a town, while the other members of the fraternity are passing out leaflets and soliciting funds.

While the group travels from town to town on Interstate 57 the cyclists will pedal an exercise bike on the bed of a truck with a mileage counter attached. There will be someone pedaling the bike at all times during the day. By the time the group arrives in Chicago on Sunday it hopes to have around 300 miles on the bike.

The riders will carry a giant Easter lily baton symbolizing Easter Seals and the marathon ride.

The group will spend Friday night in Effingham and Saturday night in Kankakee. All of the funds raised in a town will be turned over to that town's Easter Seal Fund.

Dean of student affairs position probably to stay vacant until fall

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

George Mace, assistant to the president for student affairs, said Monday that the position of dean of Student Affairs will probably remain vacant until the beginning of fall quarter.

Mace said the position would remain vacant until an organizational study of the office of student affairs can be made. The study will be part of the general administrative audit announced by President David R. Dege.

"The study will reevaluate the office of student affairs and try to establish the goals and objectives for student affairs," Mace said.

The study is planned in four parts. The first part, which is nearing completion, deals with input made by staff members of the office. The other phases deal with input from students, evaluation of this input and the creation of recommendations and new structures based upon the input.

The search for a new dean began in mid-October when Wilbur Moulton was reassigned. His duties were assigned to one of Moulton's associate deans, Emil Spees. Mace formed a screening committee to recommend people for the job.

In early February, the committee recommended four people for the job. Those recommended were Jefferson Humphrey, dean of students

SIU needs scholarship applicants; reps in Center to help students

By Sue Millen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A strange phenomenon is going on at SIU—the University is trying to give away money, and students aren't making much of an effort to get any of it.

Charles E. Gray, assistant director of Student Work and Financial Assistance, said student applications for the Illinois State Scholarship Monetary Awards have been much slower than had been expected.

He said that so far only about 1,000 applications had been taken out with 3,500 scholarships being available.

Last year there were 5,783 applications, out of which 3,449 students received the monetary award. "This year we were hoping for more than 7,500 applications. I know we have pretty close to that many students who could qualify," Gray said.

Gray said that Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie pledged he would try to get $59,000,000 appropriated to the Illinois State Scholarship Commission.

"If he does, there is a possibility that SIU would get $2,000,000 instead of its present $1,000,000," he said.

However, if this doesn't occur, students may find that all the money may be gone by the June 1 processing deadline, as was the case last year. With this in mind, the Student Work and Financial Assistance office will be in the River Rooms of the Student Center Thursday and Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

"The next processing deadline for the scholarships is April 1—our office hopes to have as many applications in by that date as possible," Gray said.

He explained that most students will be going home over break and at this time parents will also be filling out tax forms. "We figured that if students could get their parents to fill out the forms while they were at home, it would be better for all concerned parties," Gray said.

Students who apply by the April 1 deadline will be notified by June 1 if they will receive the scholarship, while those who apply by the June 1, deadline will be notified by July 1.

"Statistics from last year show that 80 per cent of the scholarship recipients came from families with incomes of less than $12,000," Gray added. "715 recipients, though, were from families with incomes of $12,000 or more."

Recipients for the monetary awards are decided on by financial need as determined by parental income, assets, number of dependents in college, etc. Other requirements include Illinois residency of parents and full-time undergraduate enrollment in good academic standing in an approved Illinois college or university.

I.P. Brackett, vice president of Academic Affairs, issued a memo to all teaching faculty, asking that they announce in their 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. Thursday and Friday classes that financial assistance representatives will be available in the Student Center on those days.

Researcher will talk on schizophrenia

Larry Stein, from the Wyeth Institute of Medical Research, Philadelphia, will talk on the "Neurochemical Aspects of Schizophrenia" at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Room 240 of the Neekers Building.

The lecture is co-sponsored by the Society of the Sigma Xi, the psychology department and the Lectures and Entertaining Committee of SIU.

According to C.D. Schmulbach, chemistry professor at SIU, Stein's biochemical theories "figure prominently in the development of treatment of schizophrenics and serve as models for the investigation of biochemical cause of other mental disorders."

The lecture is open to the public.

The articles deal with various aspects of economic growth, and contributors include Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago, Colin Clark of Oxford University, P.T. In his article "Freedom and Economic Growth," Wiegand says that "millions go hungry in Asia, Africa and Latin America, not because the world cannot produce enough rice and grain, but because the leaders of mankind are blinded by ideologies." Wiegand has visited India a number of times during the past 10 years, has lectured extensively in the country and has published numerous articles in Indian journals.

GYMNASTICS

Early to rise and a free breakfast for Salukis

By Jim Braun
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Despite the record-shattering victory over Illinois State in the SIU Arena Saturday night, the Southern Illinois gymnastics squad received no added rewards.

Except maybe for a free breakfast from the coach at Golden Bear restaurant.

For it was the following Sunday morning that the gymnasts had arisen bright and early for a morning workout on the upper course of the Arena.

One reason for the early morning workout (10 a.m.) was due to a conflict with an intramural tournament in the afternoon.

Another reason, according to assistant coach Jack Biesterfeldt, was that Coach Bill Meade felt his boys should get used to the same conditions that will prevail this Friday at the conference meet in DeKalb.

The Midwestern Conference affair is slated for a 10 a.m. starting time Friday. Two sessions will be run on Friday, compulsories in the morning and optionals at 7:30 in the evening.

Meade would like the gymnasts to get used to rising earlier than normal for Friday's compulsories.

The Saluki coach also indicated that by the end of optional routines on Friday, team and all-around results will be tabulated. First-place team finisher and top three all-around performers automatically advance to the national meet on April 6-8 at Ames, Iowa.

The same lineup that worked against Illinois State will get the assignments for conference action.

"We've been tuning up this week," Meade said, "we're ready to go."

He feels that the only barrier to the gymnasts' second consecutive conference crown is Indiana State, a team which the Salukis defeated Friday night by less than two points.

That's why Meade has been drilling his boys on compulsories since the beginning of the year. "We saw Indiana State work Friday but we don't know that much on how they perform compulsories."

Southern took a commanding seven-point lead over the Sycamores after compulsories in last year's conference meet, 148.35-141.15. They eventually won with 310.80 points while Indiana State was runnerup at 301.95. Rounding out the field was Illinois State (273.90), Northern Illinois (252.85) and Ball State with 152.95 points.

This year, compulsories are looking much better for the SIU gymnasts. "I think we're capable of getting between 156-158 points," Meade said.

Add about 164 more optional points that the team has been averaging with a full squad and one finds almost a 12-point improvement over the 1971 conference team score.

Meade thinks that his top all-around men, Tom Lindner and Gary Morava, are shoo-ins for the top two all-around places. Jeff Farris has an outside chance finishing third in that category.

Judged on dual-meet performances, Lindner and Morava stand better than average chances of qualifying on parallel bars and horizontal bars. Morava also boasts strong optional routines on floor exercise and vaulting.

Benchwarmers stun other coed gymnasts

You might say that the SIU women's gymnasts unleashed a couple of secret weapons Saturday at Central Michigan University.

Because it isn't often a freshman and a performer lacking proper training can come off the bench and surprise the rest of the field.

That's what two of Herb Vogel's girls did last weekend as SIU defeated a host of other schools in winning the Midwest Championships. SIU had a final total of 103.15 points to runnerup Indiana State's 97.30. Kent State was third with 94.30.

All three schools qualified for the national meet set for March 25 in Des Moines, Iowa.

Val Fugali, a freshman from Chicago, won the all-around competition, edging Indiana State's Lori Amwake 34.80-34.70. Southern gymnasts Carolyn Riddell and Juliette Mayhew placed third and fifth, respectively, with scores of 34.45 and 33.35.

But that wasn't all for Ms. Fugali's heroics. She was the event champion on balance beam with a routine of 9.15, edging Ms. Amwake. Ms. Fugali also placed second on floor exercise and tied for second on uneven parallel bars.

The second "secret weapon" unveiled by the Saluki women was Carole Donnelly. The fourth member of SIU's "mini-squad" Saturday, Ms. Donnelly finished in ties for third on floor exercise and balance beam. That's especially outstanding, according to Vogel, because she's only had three weeks of practice. Ms. Donnelly has served as a substitute for her roommate, Terry Spencer, who is out for the rest of the year with a back injury.

Southern won the nationals in 1970 but was ineligible last year.

All-America

Carolyn Riddell, one of several SIU women gymnasts who boast All-America status, performs on uneven parallel bars during a recent home meet. The Springfield, Mass., junior finished third in all-around in last Saturday's Midwest Championships and qualified for this month's nationals. (Photo by Jay Needleman)

They are George Tyms and Rich Bilder, who have been making a habit of dominating shot put events lately.

"The thing I'm happy about," commented NIU coach Hal Morris, "is that they're both competing for Northern. Right now they're about equal in ability and I look for both of them to have a good meet."

Tyms, a senior from Chicago's Lane Tech, is the defending conference champ by virtue of a 57-8 toss in last year's indoor clash.

The other half of the dynamic duo is Rich Bilder, a junior who also arched the iron for Lane Tech.

He set a school record at the Central Collegiate Conference indoor meet this year with a 59-10½ toss.

Both weightmen have already qualified for the NCAA indoor meet.

Dan Jaques, NIU's record-setting high hurdler, will also be defending his conference championship in Muncie and driving for a place in the NCAA meet on March 10. He took the top spot in both the 60-yard intermediate and high hurdles at 1971's Midwestern meeting.

The senior from Milwaukee is Northern's leading point man with 41.

Jaques describes his hurdling style as "driving hard all the way," and he holds the school record of 7.3 for the 60-yard high hurdles and is co-holder of the 70-yard version at 8.5. He also put his name in the NIU record book in the 300-yard run with a time of 31.4.

Other swimmers seek No. 2 spot

Editor's Note: The following is the first in a two-part series dealing with the Midwestern Conference Swimming Championships.)

By Ernie Schweit
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Swimming coaches around the Midwestern Conference might not agree with one another on everything but one item they are all in accord with is Southern Illinois should walk away with the conference swimming title when the league meet opens at Indiana State Thursday.

All league coaches have said, in one way or another, that the Salukis should make a shambles of the loop meet and walk away with the trophy for the second straight year.

But while everybody is looking up at Southern, a tight race might develop for second spot between Indiana State and Ball State with Illinois State and Northern Illinois also battling it out.

One coach who is aware of the tight second-place battle is the Sycamore head man Duane Barrows. His Indiana State team finished second last season with 427 points with Illinois State third followed by Ball State and Northern Illinois.

"I think Ball State is really going to give us a run for our money for second," Barrows said. "They've been swimming some good times lately."

The Cardinals sport the best record in the conference at 8-1 with their only defeat coming at the hands of Purdue, 68-54. Included in their eight wins is a 68-45 triumph over league rival Illinois State.

Ball State draws a great deal of its strength from its diving team consisting of Jay Ettl, Ed Brown and Jim Alexander. The Cardinal trio makes up three of the top six divers point wise in the conference. Ettl and Brown are running one two in three meter diving, while Alexander is sixth.

BSU is also strong in racing events. Junior Phil Stevens and senior Bob Talbot are the Cardinals best chances for point scoring.

Stevens is ranked third in the 200-yard individual medley behind SIU's Rob Dickinson and Dale Korner while Talbot is third in the 50-yard freestyle.

Barrow's own Indiana State squad isn't about to take a backseat to anybody else in the conference for second place. The Sycamores are 6-3 on the season including a one point loss to Southern Illinois.

The Sycamores are led by freestyler Tom Becker, Dave Cooper and freshman standout Con Largely. Largely is second in the conference by five seconds to Dickinson in the 200-butterfly.

Indiana State might be even stronger if Gary Thomas hadn't quit the squad after Christmas break. Thomas was a second place finisher in last year's meet in the 200-yard individual medley.

At Northern Illinois meanwhile, first year coach Orville Kersten has been looking to the conference meet with eager anticipation.

"One of my goals at the start of the season was to get out of the cellar in the conference," he said.

One NIU swimmer who might help Kersten reach that goal is Greg Jeffers. The (NIU) sophomore owns the best time in the conference in the 50-yard freestyle at 22.2. Jeffers also ranks third in the 100-yard freestyle.

Also having good chances of scoring are Brian Voissard who is entered in the maximum of three individual events and two relays.

The 200 free is led by two Salukis, Rob McGinley and Bill Tingley with freshman standout from Illinois State, Rick Roberts, holding down third.

Roberts, who SIU Coach Ray Essick rates as being one of the finest swimmers in the conference, is also ranked second in the 500-yard freestyle, two seconds behind Pat Miles. Roberts is second to Miles in the 1,000-yard freestyle by seven seconds.

Northern trackmen get snow job

Note: This is the second in a series of articles on other teams in the Midwestern Conference track championships this weekend. Today Northern Illinois is featured.)

DEKALB—The snow has been piling up here over the past week and has forced the Northern Illinois track team to work out on the field house's concrete floor in preparation for the Midwestern Conference Championships, which will be hosted by Ball State Friday and Saturday in Muncie, Ind.

The Huskies normally practice on a grass-turf outdoor track facility whenever possible during the winter months. The Northern fieldhouse doesn't have a real track surface and the runners can't wear their spikes inside.

Two of Northern's most successful trackmen don't seem to be hampered by the foreign surface.

Arena finale against Evansville tonight

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The magic moment has arrived for Southern Illinois to assemble those war plans strewn about the SIU Arena. Or strangle itself with SIU's second losing basketball season since Hirohito and Hitler.

Southern Illinois posted back-to-back losing campaigns in 1941 and '42. That dry spell ended until 13 years later when the Salukis finished 10-13 in 1955.

Now, Paul Lambert's disappointed team must close with four consecutive victories to finish 13-13. Lambert's second SIU team stands 10-13 after Monday's 98-86 triumph over South Florida.

Attaining respectability won't be easy. But possibly, the Salukis are in their best "mental shape" of the season. Their past weekend performance against Northern Illinois was superb. And after a dumpy first half Monday, the Salukis scored 61 points to blow the Golden Brahmins home.

Now for a bad omen. There isn't a "weak sister" among SIU's remaining foes, beginning with Evansville at 7:35 p.m. Wednesday in the Arena. Southern travels to Illinois State Saturday for an afternoon game, then concludes its season next Tuesday night at Creighton.

"It'll take an effort like we had Saturday against Northern every night," said John "Mouse" Garrett, one of six seniors to make a final home appearance tonight.

"If everyone gives 100 per cent," Garrett said, "we're capable of beating any of them. But if we don't take the game to them, it'll be tough to beat anybody."

In earlier meetings, the Salukis defeated Creighton in one overtime (89-83) but lost to Evansville (74-67) and Illinois State (90-83).

Garrett and Greg Starrick were honored Tuesday with selection to an All-Star team that will play March 13 at Bradley University in Peoria. Further details were unavailable.

Evansville, tonight's final home opponent, is pursuing a repeat national championship. The college division Purple Aces have been invited to participate in their own regional—the Great Lakes. Arad McCutchan's Aces have appeared in the post-season tourney 13 times since 1957.

Another Purple Aces' advantage is Evansville's continual selection as site for the national finals.

McCutchan, who always wears red socks on game night, had his Aces streaking along at 20-5 before Tuesday night's game at the University of Missouri-St. Louis.

Southern Illinois holds a 28-23 edge in the 45-year old series with Evansville.

Garrett, Starrick, Marvin Brooks, Steve Wilson, Mike Molnar and Bill Perkins will make their final home appearance tonight.

SIU's Lambert indicated he'll start the first three plus Eddie James and Nate Hawthorne.

Detroit-bound

You won't see these guys running beside each other very often. They're SIU's mile relay team of (l-r) Terry Erickson, Eddie Sutton, Gerald Smith and Ken Scott. The quartet has qualified (3:16.9) for the NCAA meet next week in Detroit. But first there's the Midwestern Conference meet this weekend in Muncie, Ind. when the Salukis defend the indoor track title. (Photo by Jay Needelman)

Frosh finale against Aces

Call it bewitchment, luck or coincidence, but the SIU Arena appears to have done wonders for the Saluki basketball record.

Now 7-6 overall and 7-1 in the Arena, the young Salukis wind up the toughest frosh schedule in the school's history Wednesday night in a rematch with the University of Evansville junior varsity.

There may not be an incantation or witch casting spells from the rafters of the eight-year old facility but, if the season can be an indicator, the game outcome may be different than the results of the Aces-Salukis encounter on Jan. 13 in Evansville.

The Aces pulled out an 97-95 overtime win in a game that may have had a couple of Evansville witches casting spells from the roof of Robert's Stadium.

Southern, then undefeated with a 3-0 mark, lead at halftime, 54-37.

Now the two teams meet again at the end of a season that has seen the Salukis go winless on the road. However SIU has gotten revenge on two of the teams in the Arena. First against Murray State, breaking a 27-game win streak and then a 84-57 mauling of once defeated Missouri this week.

Frosh coach Paul Henry is still talking about that win.

"It was an outstanding defensive effort," he said Tuesday. "In the past, we had great individual efforts but we haven't been able to play good team defense."

This is something a coach hopes to attain early in a season, but when you see it jell," he continued, "you get a feeling of gratification."

Top cage teams wait for NCAA call

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Marquette, beaten for the first time last Saturday but still ranked No. 5, heads the list of eligibles as the National Collegiate Athletic Association prepares to award at-large berths Wednesday for its University Division basketball tournament.

Officials at three other Top Ten schools—eighth-ranked South Carolina, ninth-ranked Marshall and 10th-rated Florida State—also will be waiting by the telephone for calls from NCAA headquarters here.

Nine of the 25 starting spots in the tourney go to at-large entrants.

Aside from the four most prominent candidates, at least 12 clubs are rated possibilities for NCAA selection.

They include No. 11 Southwest Louisiana, No. 13 Houston, No. 15 Hawaii, No. 17 Oral Roberts, Providence, Duquesne, New Mexico State, Villanova, Syracuse, Jacksonville, Niagara, and Marquette's only conqueror, Detroit.

Meanwhile, the scramble for many of the other 16 openings in the tourney field remains wide open, amid an unusual number of tight conference races. In the Southwest Conference, for instance, five teams are tied for the lead.

In the Southeastern Conference, where three teams remain in contention, the issue probably won't be decided until March 9, when Kentucky, trailing as of Tuesday by half a game, must meet Tennessee on the Vols' home court.

Only three squads—Long Beach State, Brigham Young, and Weber State—had locked up berths by Tuesday by clinching their conference championships.

Entrants from several conferences won't be known until post-season league tourneys are completed. Third-ranked North Carolina, for instance, must get through such a tourney before it can claim a spot in the national tournament.

With Marquette and Southwestern Louisiana in the Midwest region with Northern Illinois, it appears that an invitation to NCAA regional play is unlikely for the 20-4 Huskies. However, it was learned Monday that NIU has received feelers from the National Invitational Tournament.

The Midwestern Conference champion isn't automatically given a berth in the NCAA regionals because the league only has five members.

NIU can win title tonight

Northern Illinois can lock up its first Midwestern Conference basketball crown with a victory Wednesday night at Indiana State.

But should they lose, the NIU Huskies will have to depend on Southern Illinois upsetting Illinois State Saturday in Normal to leave the conference championship in DeKalb.

As the regular season campaign draws to a close, NIU and Illinois State can still tie for the Midwestern Conference top spot.

Should the Huskies lose tonight and Illinois State win Saturday, each team would finish 6-2. Tonight, Northern Illinois will take its 20-4 overall record against the 11-13 Sycamores.
