Progress possible, Somit says, despite decreased state funding

By Mike Anthony
Staff Writer

Decreased state funding will force SIU-C to "make further cuts in staff and service," according to President Albert Somit.

During his State of the University Address Friday, Somit told about 300 faculty members and administrators that state allocations for higher education will be "less than recommended by the Board of Higher Education and far, far less than we need."

Despite the bleak funding outlook, however, he said he intends to launch new graduate fellowships, add scholarships for undergraduates and hire more senior scholars with established reputations.

This year, the University received "considerably less than it requested" from the state, "and each successive shortfall becomes more painful," Somit said.

However, "Modest progress was made on salaries and higher education was treated fairly when the state's budget is looked at in totality. We should remember that public higher education has so far fared well compared to other state agencies and better in Illinois than in many states."

The staff must be reduced next year, Somit said, but "if these are hardly the best of times, they are not yet the worst."

Somit said he planned to continue his campaign to improve salaries for all University employees because "every study we have seen tells the same story — in all three categories, faculty, civil service and administrative-professional, yes even administrators, we lag behind peer institutions. If we are unable to recapture lost ground this coming year, we will do our best to hold our own."

The quality of faculty must be improved, Somit said. Due to budgetary pressures in the past several years, the majority of new faculty appointments at SIU-C have been at the junior level.

"We have brought some excellent young people to SIU-C, but a persistent failure to replace distinguished scholars with other senior scholars will inevitably result in a dangerous erosion of departmental strength," he said.

The University must begin to recruit a larger number of faculty with established reputations, Somit said, adding that he hopes to make a few appointments by next fall.

Somit also announced that the University is establishing a special category of fellowships, named in honor of former president Delyte Morris, that will carry a stipend of $7,500.

The fellowships should help to attract outstanding graduate students to SIU-C, Somit said, because the University has been at a "disadvantage in competing for the best of the graduating seniors."

One reason is that some of the doctoral programs are too new to have achieved national recognition. "Another reason is that the stipends we offer are

Armbands part of aid cut rally

By Doug Hettinger
Staff Writer

Students, faculty and staff are urged to wear white ribbons or white cloth armbands Monday to recognize a national protest against federal cutbacks in student aid, Debbie Brown, Graduate Student Council president, said.

"The idea is to show unity and solidarity," Brown said.

White was chosen for two reasons, she said. It symbolizes a pale outlook for higher education if cutbacks are approved, and because it resembles a bandage, it represents students financially bleeding to death, Brown said.

The GSC, in cooperation with the Undergraduate Student Organization, will provide ribbons and information about the proposed cutbacks at a table in the main hallway of the Student Center on Monday.

The GSC and USO also have organized a "1960s anti-war-styled teach-in" Monday to inform people about the origins, effects, and possible solutions to the problems facing higher education, Brown said.

The teach-in will be held at 5 p.m. in Ballroom A of the Student Center.

Several speakers — John Jackson, acting dean of the Graduate School; Toby Saken, associate director of Shawnee Health Service and Development Corp.; Don Monty, Carbondale community development director, and faculty members — will discuss the problems cutbacks will cause SIU-C and Carbondale.

Theater Department faculty members will do improvisations to dramatize the effects of the cutbacks on the fine arts. The SIU-C Folk Music Union will play Southern Illinois folk songs to emphasize the regional significance of the cutbacks, Brown said.

At the national level, Joe Sweeney, national director for the state and systems programs of the Department of Education, said that at 7:30 a.m. Monday, people will carry signs with slogans protesting the cutbacks to form a "human billboard" on Independence Avenue in Washington, D.C.

At 10 a.m., U.S. Rep. Peter A. Peyser, D-New York, a member of the committee on education and labor, and other congressmen will address a meeting of graduate students at the Canon House Office Building in Washington, Sweeney said.

"Some have come from as far away as Michigan," he said.

"Next the students will be briefed on their numbers and how to lobby," Sweeney said. "Then we will hit Congress."

According to Sweeney, the rest of the day will be spent lobbying members of Congress on Capitol Hill. "At 5 p.m., there will be a rally on the Capitol steps," he said. "We just want to have a show of strength."

As many as 3,000 students are expected in Washington for the protest, he said.

Williamson airport, Marion officials nix Air Illinois

By John Ambrosia
Staff Writer

The latest development in the "air wars" serial concerning which airline will fill a vacant service slot at Williamson County Airport could be called "The Airport Authority Strikes Back."

Officials from the airport and members of the Greater Marion Area Chamber of Commerce met Friday in Marion to reaffirm their choice of Britt Airways Inc., of Terre Haute, Ind., over Carbondale's Air Illinois as the firm to replace Ozark Air Lines, which will halt service at Williamson County Airport on April 25.

Air Illinois President Roger Street had expressed anger and disappointment after his firm was passed over for Britt, and indications had been that the local company would fight its rejection. Street said Friday that some negotiations to get the Airport Authority to change its mind were still underway, however.

Air Illinois currently operates flights from Southern Illinois Airport to Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis and Springfield. On Monday it begins service to Evansville and Nashville.

"At this point we are attempting discussions with Williamson County in an effort to get them to reconsider their decision," Street said. "Other than that, we have to take more or less a wait and see attitude."

But at Friday's meeting in Marion, the chamber of commerce said it backed Britt and the airport authority "100 percent." And Williamson County Airport Chairman Robert Duncan made it clear that the authority would not change its decision.

Before Britt's move into the airport becomes official, the Federal Aviation Administration must decide whether to allow the new flights to St. Louis from the airport and the Civil Aeronautics Board must decide on the fitness of Britt to service the community.

The first "air wars" battle began in January when Ozark Air Lines announced it was going to drop service at Williamson County Airport, citing economic reasons for its decision. Federal regulations required that a replacement firm be named before Ozark could move out.

Last month three firms — Air Illinois, Britt and Air Kentucky — expressed interest in taking Ozark's place, but the latter eventually dropped out of contention. The two remaining firms sent proposals to the airport authority, and Britt was named as Ozark's successor less than two weeks ago.

One of the reasons the two airlines had to vie for Ozark's slots is that the FAA has restricted the number of arrivals allowed at airports because of the air traffic controller's strike. Street said that when the FAA lifts those restrictions, which it is expected to do in about a year, Air

Source says investigators can link Williams to 26 slayings

ATLANTA (AP) — Investigators have evidence linking Wayne B. Williams to 26 of the 28 slayings of young blacks that cast a shadow over this city for more than two years, a source close to the case said Sunday.

And officials will meet this week to consider closing the books on most of the slayings and disbanding the task force that investigated them.

Williams, a 23-year-old black free-lance photographer and self-styled talent scout, was described by his attorney as "holding up pretty well" Sunday, one day after he was sentenced to two consecutive life terms. A jury of eight blacks and four whites convicted him Saturday night of murdering Nathaniel Cater and Jimmy Ray Payne.

"He was coherent. He told me he definitely wants the case appealed," attorney Alvin Binder said after spending 40 minutes with Williams at the Fulton County jail.

Binder said, "We're hearing that all the cases are closed. That's upsetting to Wayne. He had hoped the investigation would continue because if any one of the pattern or any other murders was solved, that would tend to exonerate him."

"What is going to help Wayne Williams is finding or solving a murder in that pattern which would completely blow the wraps off this thing."

A source close to the investigation, who asked not to be identified, said authorities had collected evidence to link Williams to as many as 24 victims in addition to Cater and Payne. The source declined to discuss the nature of the evidence.

The two not thought to be linked to Williams are the only female victims on the list — Latonya Wilson and Angel Lanier.

Williams, still maintaining his innocence, remained Sunday in an isolation cell at the Fulton County jail, where he has been held since his arrest and is likely to remain throughout appeals.

Sheriff Leroy Stynchcombe said under Georgia law Williams would be eligible for parole review in seven years "no matter if he had one life sentence or 30 life sentences."

During the sensational nine-week trial, prosecutors presented witnesses, blood stains and fiber evidence linking Williams to 10 additional deaths in an attempt to prove a pattern to the slayings.

Binder said the focus of Williams' probable appeal will be Superior Court Judge Clarence Cooper's decision to allow the presentation of the "pattern cases."

"We were put in a position where we were charged with two crimes and had to defend ourselves against 12," said defense attorney Mary Welcome.

Authorities from the seven police jurisdictions involved in the 22-month string of slayings will meet this week to decide the status of the remaining cases, said Robbie Hamrick of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation.

Hamrick said Atlanta Public Safety Commissioner Lee P.

Brown would have an announcement after the meeting about the pending cases. Brown could not be reached for comment Sunday.

The Atlanta Journal quoted unidentified officials as saying the task force will be disbanded and that Williams probably will never be indicted in the other cases.

The newspaper quoted Fulton County Police Chief Clinton Chafin as saying the 28 cases would be re-evaluated "to see which ones are definitely linked" by fiber evidence, physical characteristics, cause of death, and location of the bodies. Chafin severed Fulton County's involvement in the task force shortly after William's arrest.

The newspaper said police also intend to close the books on the slaying of John Harold Porter, who was never added to the list but was investigated by the task force. Porter was among the 10 uncharged cases that prosecutors contended were linked to Williams.

Jurors took only 12½ hours to deliberate after hearing from 197 witnesses and examining dozens of exhibits from both sides.

One juror, who asked not to be identified, said that at least three jurors believed Williams was innocent when deliberations began, but that unanimity was reached in the Cater case after 9½ hours, with the Payne verdict coming shortly thereafter.

News Roundup

Study: Budget would cut services

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 3.3 million people would be cut from social service programs ranging from day care to family planning under the consolidated block grants outlined in President Reagan's 1982 and 1983 budgets, a new study estimates.

The National Association of Social Workers also found that 4.3 million fewer people would be treated at community health centers and 119,000 fewer children would get foster care and adoption services because of cutbacks or consolidations proposed or executed in the Reagan budgets.

UAW accepts concessions with Ford

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers members overwhelmingly ratified a historic concessions contract with Ford Motor Co. that guarantees them more job security while promising Ford savings of up to $1 billion, the union announced late Sunday.

The tally from the week-long voting in the 56 Ford locals was 43,683-15,933 — a 3-1 margin — in favor of the contract with the No. 2 U.S. automaker. UAW president Douglas Fraser and vice president Donald Ephlin said. About 170,000 UAW-represented Ford workers were eligible to vote.

Hijackers surrender jet in England

STANSTED, England (AP) — Four armed hijackers peacefully surrendered a Tanzanian jetliner Sunday by sending two small children from their own families off the aircraft with their weapons, ending a three-day takeover.

Police said all 76 passengers and six crew members were "safe and well," although four passengers were taken to a hospital in shock. Police earlier had estimated there were 100 people on board.

Their ordeal began Friday in Tanzania when the hijackers, all in their early 20s and with their families in tow, commandeered the plane and forced it to fly to Kenya, Saudi Arabia, Greece and finally England.

Recycling firm awaits final OK from council

The City Council will consider final approval of a city-wide recycling franchise Monday night when it meets in City Council Chambers, 607 E. College St.

Hank Dews, manager of Waste Not Paper Recycling of Makanda, was awarded the recycling contract earlier this month after submitting the only bid for the three-year agreement.

The recycling program, which is scheduled to take effect May 1, calls for Dews to pay the city 5 percent of the gross revenues he collects for recyclable materials.

All Carbondale residents, except those who are physically unable, will be required to separate newspapers from other refuse and tie them up in bundles of not more than 25 pounds each.

The newsprint will be collected the first week of every month on the day normal garbage collection takes place in each area of the city.

Residents will also have the option of separating other recyclable materials, such as glass, aluminum or tin, for special collection. Dews will be responsible for picking up such materials if they are separated and clearly marked.

Residents will not be charged any additional fees for the service.

The council will also consider approving a 10 percent increase in rental rates charged at the Eurma Hayes Center.

The rent hike, which would raise rates to $4.94 per square foot, would allow the city to build up the funds necessary to replace the center's roof. The roof replacement would cost $60,150.

Engineers win big in week of games

By Randy Rendfeld
Staff Writer

If it were real, Mike Chase would be $12.8 million richer after Friday's Engineering Economics Competition.

In a computer-game contest, he parlayed his imaginary $1,000 stock investment into $12.8 million. The winning faculty member was Curtiss Dodd, of electrical science and systems engineering, with $7.1 million.

The investment game was one of five events in the third annual Engineering Pentathlon sponsored by the College of Engineering and Technology as part of National Engineers Week.

Other winners in the pen-athlon included Darryl Leftwich, a senior in engineering mechanics, and James Craddock, assistant professor of engineering mechanics and materials.

They won the "Mouse Trap Marathon," in which miniature vehicles competed for longest distance propelled by a push of a mousetrap's spring. Leftwich's vehicle, made of cardboard wheels, popsicle sticks, string, wire and a mouse trap, went 48 feet 1 inch. Craddock's winning vehicle managed 28 feet 10 inches.

They also won the "Compression Structure Competition" in which structures were built from ten computer cards and machine-tested for strength and compression.

In another event, paper airplanes competed for longest flight time and distance. Winners were graduate student Hal Zintel and instructor Steve Schneiderman, both in thermal and environmental engineering.

In the "Engineering Packaging and Shipment Contest," (an egg drop) each contestant built a container that carried an egg from the fourth floor of the Technology Building to the pavement below. Mark Schmitz, junior in thermal and environmental engineering, and Kenneth Tempelmeyer, dean of the College of Engineering and Technology dropped their eggs closest to a masking tape "X" to win the event.

not notably more attractive — and sometimes less so — than those available at other universities" and the new fellowships are being offered to deal with those problems. Somit said.

To boost undergraduate enrollment, Somit said 50 more scholarships are being made available for freshmen next fall. This year the University awarded about 300 scholarships to undergraduates.

"Three hundred scholarships are grossly inadequate considering that we have an on-campus undergraduate population of some 17,000 and that incoming freshman students alone number 3,000," Somit said.

The new programs Somit said he is launching will entail additional expenditures and will be funded in several ways.

The University "will try to secure, where possible, additional state support," he said, and "some of that money will come from operating a bit more efficiently."

But "given the bleak budgetary outlook," funding for the new programs must come from two sources, Somit said. "One is via reallocation — necessarily slow, increasingly tortuous and invariably unpopular."

"The second source will be non-state funds — overhead from funded research and private giving," he said. "A vigorous fund-raising effort can contribute significantly to continued progress."

But the successful development of a fund-raising effort, Somit said, "requires an initial investment in skilled staff, and we will have to make that investment. We should plan and act now in light of where we want to be not just next year, or the year after, but also in 1985, 1986 and conceivably 1987."

Somit also said he believes the University's undergraduate admissions policy should be reviewed. He asked John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs and research, and the Faculty Senate to consider the matter and make recommendations on whether separate enrollment limits should be established for individual colleges instead of setting enrollment limits for the entire University.

He said the policy of admitting students as they apply should be examined, saying, "Should we admit students only after we have had a chance to study the entire pool of applicants?"

Somit said he hopes "that we can act speedily enough so that any changes can be in effect when we make our admission decisions for fall, 1983."

Illinois could move into Williamson and the airport authority could do nothing to stop the firm.

"If there were enough slots open in St. Louis, we could just start operating service out of Williamson County," Street said. "But that's a long time for us to wait. We will continue to do what we can to change the decision before that time."

Street said he was "hurt and disappointed" at being turned down because Air Illinois is a local firm. He said that because the airline was based in Southern Illinois, it would bring more jobs and tax revenue into the area than Britt, which is based in Indiana.

But Duncan said that when Ozark cut back its scheduled flights and then announced its intention to close down operations, Air Illinois benefitted by gathering new customers who flocked to Southern Illinois Airport.

Duncan said Britt was chosen over Air Illinois because it offered three more stops in Marion daily, and three to Evansville, Ind., and it proposed cheaper fares.

Reagan will listen if students make a racket

EDUCATION IN AMERICA is under attack. The federal government, led by Ronald Reagan, is backing away from the nation's commitment to providing wide access to education. Students as a group have the potential to stop this ominous new development, but they have been largely silent.

In an attempt to stimulate a new student activism about education, the Undergraduate Student Organization and the Graduate Student Council have organized an "Education for Everyone Campaign." They are convinced they can make Ronald Reagan and other legislators hear them, and they're right. But it will work only if students as a whole recognize their interests and get involved.

The extent of the Reagan administration's assault on aid to learning is staggering. Aid to students is scheduled for overall cuts of about 25 percent in the proposed budget. The plan includes a complete ban on Guaranteed Student Loans to graduate and professional students. Pell Grants, which are now given to over 9,000 students at SIU-C, would be reduced by an estimated 45 percent.

THE STUDENT UPROAR about the cuts has been, so far, less than deafening. To politicians, this makes it appear that there is no political risk involved in cutting aid to students. Student aid and education, in the absence of opposition, become safe targets for every politician who says he wants to balance the budget.

The "Education for Everyone Campaign" would be a step toward making education less vulnerable to politicians with budget knives. It calls for extensive letter writing campaigns by students and their parents. It calls for rallies and demonstrations against the cuts. Most importantly, it calls for cooperation with student organizations at other schools.

That is vital. Students, to be effective, must act en masse. The plight of students all over the country will be the same if the cuts are approved, and students have to recognize and act for their common cause.

THE WELL-WORN argument of apathetic students that their actions won't make any difference is without foundation. If there's anything that is certain about Ronald Reagan, it's that he is sensitive to political activism and popular opinion.

The case of the proposed tax exemption for schools which practice racial discrimination is evidence of Reagan's persuasibility. He proposed the exemption, he heard massive protest and indignation, and he retracted his proposal, calling it all a big misunderstanding.

Students need to raise the same kind of protest. They need to make Reagan hear their indignation, and recognize the error of his ways. Maybe then he'll retract the student aid cuts, and call it all a big misunderstanding.

Letters

Student economists mistaken

It is interesting to see the economic theories being espoused by such an unlikely group as a design major at Daily Egyptian. Martin Lolich, Feb. 23: What Lolich regards as a "necessary function of government" is actually a typical example of the transfer payments run amok. I quote from a recent Wall Street Journal editorial:

"In 1980, a family with an annual income of $100,000 and three children attending Harvard could have borrowed $10,000 through the Graduate Student Loan program and paid no interest or principle while the students were in school. The family could have invested the $10,000 in a money market fund paying 16 percent over the next 12 months. As a result, in one year the family could have made $1,600 at a cost to taxpayers of $1,960."

Of course, the majority of beneficiaries are not in this category, but it doesn't take much of a memory to recall the inflation rates that prevailed throughout the last decade that were eroding everyone's standard of living. What you and many other students fail to realize consistently is that wealth must be produced and is not the result of an overactive printing press or Congress.

I would also like to point out that most Wall Street experts are predicting a rebounding third and fourth quarter and a strong year in 1983. But then, they are just economic analysts and don't have the grass-roots insight of an SIU-C student. — Jay Cook, Senior, Finance.

Police should guard crosswalk

Do you go to the Recreation Center? If you do, do you value your life? I don't know about the rest of you, but I do!

I'm sure the rest of you can relate to the problem I have of crossing the street going into the Recreation Center at the caution lights. I have often been scared by inconsiderate people driving cars who try to scare pedestrians walking across the crosswalk.

Will someone have to get killed before campus police start watching the crosswalks more carefully? The campus police should spend more time watching crosswalks and other serious matters rather than handing out parking tickets!

Are we students asking for too much? I don't believe so — all we want is a safe campus. If we students pull together, we can make this campus safe for us! — David Mueller, Junior, Electronics Technology

Nuclear waste is hard to swallow

By Michael J. Mickow
Freshman, Journalism

IMAGINE, as you walk to class today, that you have a pound of powder somewhat resembling Kool-Aid mix in your backpack. Except this powder, when scattered into the environment, would be capable of inducing 600 cases of cancer over a 50 year period. That would be a strong batch of Kool-Aid! So, what would you do with it?

It seems the officials at the Atomic Energy Commission are having the same problem with their own lethal powder mix — a radioactive "Kool-Aid" with plutonium 239 as a preservative. However, this "preservative" will remain deadly for approximately 500,000 years — longer than previous human habitation of the Earth itself.

AEC officials, however, are having trouble fitting this radioactive powder into their eroding backpacks — they're full of it! The nuclear power program will involve about 130 million pounds of plutonium, according to the AEC current projection of power production. If only one millionth of this material were to escape into the atmosphere while circulating through the environment, some 78,000 cases of cancer would result, or about 1,600 cases per year.

Yet plutonium fission still provides about one quarter of the 40 percent of energy that the nuclear industry supplies Chicago.

NO UNIFORM solution for handling radioactive disposal exists. But the AEC persistently chooses to defend this form of energy even though it will generate enough radioactive waste during the next 20 years to cover a four-lane coast to coast highway one foot deep. Furthermore, we still don't know where to put the poisons that have already been generated — some of it dating back to the manufacture of the nuclear weapons in the 1940s. The typical nuclear power plant produces 2,500 tons of radium. If it were to be released into the environment, it would be sufficient to kill an average city's population 100 times.

As if a waste problem did not exist, the AEC insists on supporting the nuclear industry, which in 1978 generated only a little more electrical power than that derived from falling water.

Westinghouse argues that waste disposal is not an unsolved technical puzzle, but a political and bureaucratic problem with 16 federal agencies bickering over 23 scientifically feasible options. But are these options safe, permanent and reliable?

ONE OF THESE options — breeder plants — is so hazardous that few will ever be built. The byproducts of these waste recycling plants are some of the most dangerous substances known to man and will remain a perpetual hazard.

The use of salt mines for storage of radioactive wastes is another popular solution. But this could result in contamination of water supplies. Meanwhile, the large steel and concrete containers currently used by the AEC for interim storage are leaking.

So let's build more nuclear power plants? The U.S. reserve of uranium will supply our current reactors for merely 20 or 30 more years of output. The billions of dollars foolishly invested into nuclear energy should instead be funding research of solar and other energy sources. The use of nuclear energy cannot be justified until a single permanently safe method of waste disposal has been proven feasible.

Until then, Washington, D.C. will be drinking a lot of Kool-Aid.

Rec classes serve few with our fees

On Jan. 28 I read an advertisement in the Daily Egyptian for an aqua exercise class. Two classes were offered for Tuesdays and Thursdays and sign-up was required. I went to the Recreation Center to sign up for the group only to discover that the classes were both filled with the maximum number of participants, which was 12. Already a reserve list had been formed for both classes and that too was filled to capacity with seven people listed on reserve. The girl at the desk gave a number of reasons why no other such class will be offered. For one she said that the Recreation Center did not have the funds needed to pay the instructor for more classes.

SIU-C has an enrollment totaling about 25,000 students so it seems rather a shame that a class should be offered that can only accommodate 24 persons. I am sure more people are interested enough to warrant more classes of this sort being opened. What are our fees going toward? Last semester the same thing happened in regard to the closing of the dance exercise classes.

I do not consider myself an exercise fanatic. But when I want to have a fun way to exercise and discover that the classes serve such a small number of persons, I become very angry. Again I ask, what are our fees going toward when classes are geared to serve such a small number. — Joyce Jones, Graduate, Radio & Television

Weather bureau cannot be replaced, Cairo chief says

By Jay Small
Student Writer

Closing of the National Weather Service bureau in Cairo will adversely affect many people in the Mississippi and Ohio valleys. Don Semancik, bureau manager, believes.

The Cairo bureau, slated to close April 30 takes weather-related calls from Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky and Tennessee daily, plus occasional calls from as far away as Pittsburgh, Semancik said.

"This office is used by such a wide spectrum that it's hard to pin down who will be hurt the most," Semancik said.

The shutdown of the Cairo weather bureau was announced last year as part of President Reagan's budget-cutting package. Annual operating cost of the bureau is about $22,000, according to Semancik.

"This station deserves to be open," Semancik said. "It isn't really costing them that much...it's the cheapest-run station in the country."

The bureau's location near the junction of the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers is important to river traffic and climatological studies, Semancik said. The facility is also used to monitor severe storms in the four-state area.

"There are several ways they could try to replace our services," Semancik said. "Some of them will be more costly. Most of them will be less adequate."

He said closing the station probably will bring about increased use of VHF weather radio. However, weather broadcasts on VHF radio are often inconsistent in scheduling, according to Semancik, leaving listeners uncertain about when they should tune in.

Semancik also said there are inadequacies in the weather service teletype network.

"The transfer of data between states over the weather wires leaves something to be desired," he said. "We often don't get important weather information until one hour later."

The Cairo weather bureau has a severe-storm forecasting and tracking responsibility for five counties in southernmost Illinois, Semancik added.

Efforts to save the facility culminated in late January at a public hearing in Cairo. About 150 persons showed up to hear testimony in favor of keeping the station open. U.S. Rep. Paul Simon (D-24th District) called from Washington to pledge support, along with representatives of Sen. Charles Percy and Sen. Alan J. Dixon. State legislators Gene Johns, C.L. McCormick and Bob Winchester also attended the meeting, as well as representatives from the governor's office and local industries.

If sufficient need is established, Congress may vote to extend the Cairo office's operation. Semancik said the decision would be made before March 31.

Semancik was still uncertain about the budget's chances in the wake of new budget cuts.

"I would've said after the hearing that our chances were pretty good," he said. "But I received a new communique a few weeks ago. It listed 25 more stations for closure -- and some of them would astound you."

Among those bureaus listed were Chicago O'Hare Airport, Washington Dulles Airport, San Francisco, Rockford, Ill. and Lansing, Mich., according to Semancik.

Semancik is the only paid employee of the Cairo office. He has been bureau manager since 1975.

He handles 40-50 calls a day, plus radio broadcasts for several local stations. He said the workload increases during floods or severe storms.

The Cairo weather bureau has been in operation since 1871.

Mime's act is reward for crowd's wait

By Tom Travin
News Editor

Sometimes things just don't work out like you'd planned.

Such was the case for Marcel Marceau last Friday night. Due to a wrong turn on Route 3, some bad directions, having to wait for a long freight train and being stopped by one of Illinois' finest, Marceau made it to Shryock Auditorium at 6:05 p.m., only two hours before he was to go on stage.

A sellout crowd waited about 40 minutes after certain time to see the mime master practice his craft. And judging by their reaction, it was well worth the wait.

Obviously tired after his long journey from St. Louis and all the problems he encountered on the way, Marceau still proved that he is the best in the world in the art of mime.

He started the show with a series of five- to 10-minute pieces, showcasing a variety of disciplines. First on the bill was "The Amusement Park," in which Marceau went through various activities that one would do at a carnival — eating cotton candy, shooting ducks at a shooting gallery, and visiting a house of mirrors.

Marceau was so precise in his routines that the crowd was either laughing at his humorous interpretations or left speechless by his skill. Next he portrayed "The Sculptor," in which he embodied the temperamental artist perfectly — struggling over his creation until he worked it down to nothing, only to begin again.

"The Creation of the World" was a long, beautiful piece, utilizing elements of both mime and modern dance at which Marceau was equally adept. It was accompanied by music from the late Romantic period which sounded like one of Strauss' waltzes.

The next two pieces were both humorous and moving. "The

A Review

Public Garden" showed Marceau admiring the greenery in a park and walking his dog, only to have the dog relieve itself in a bad place. In "The Trial," Marceau played the parts of judge, jury, attorneys and defendant, with both funny and sad consequences.

The first half of the show ended with "The Maskmaker," one of his most famous pieces. Marceau plays a man who alternates between happy and sad masks, until the happy one gets stuck. When he finally gets it off, he realizes he wanted it that way in the first place. Marceau showed amazing facial control in this piece, which perfectly complemented his skills of body control.

The second half of the show contained routines featuring Marceau's famous "Bip," a hapless descendant of Charlie Chaplin's Little Tramp. Marceau created Bip 35 years ago while a student of mime in France, and Bip has become his most famous character, portraying episodes in the life of a downtrodden Everyman.

"Bip as a Lion Tamer" and "Bip as a Great Artist" started off the second half of the show, and were noteworthy because they showed Bip as the kind of character who has everything going wrong.

"Bip Commits Suicide" showed Marceau trying every means of suicide he could think of, only to have them all backfire, which convinced him that maybe it wasn't all that bad to be alive.

Two other "Bip" pieces were his funniest. In "Bip at a Society Party" he perfectly embodied the trite, meaningless conversation that goes on at parties (while managing to get falling-down drunk), and in "Bip Plays David and Goliath" he alternately played David and Goliath while darting out from behind a screen, bringing some of the best crowd responses of the night.

His last routine, "Bip as a Soldier," was his most moving. Marceau portrayed war and death in a very sobering manner, and left the crowd in a state of shock after all of his humorous pieces.

All in all, Marcel Marceau was simply magnificent. The muscle control that this 59-year-old man showed was nothing short of amazing, and his facial expressions conveyed the impression that he is the true master of his craft.

Marceau is another triumph for the Celebrity Series. Shryock Director Bob Cerchio and his staff should be congratulated for bringing yet another fine show to SIU C.

Students treated after apparent suicides fail

Two 18-year-old SIUC students apparently attempted to commit suicide in separate incidents Friday morning.

A female student, who lives in a dormitory, was taken to Memorial Hospital at about 1:20 a.m. Friday by the Jackson County ambulance after she apparently swallowed an unknown amount of prescription pills.

SIUC police said the woman was transferred to St. John's Hospital in Springfield. A spokesman for St. John's declined to reveal the condition of the patient, if she had been admitted, or if she was still in the hospital on Sunday.

A male student was taken to Memorial Hospital at about 3:30 a.m. Friday and was treated for 16 cuts and a stab wound to the neck.

SIUC police said the wounds were apparently self-inflicted with a safety razor, a knife, and the claw end of a hammer head.

A spokesman for Memorial Hospital said the man was released from the hospital Saturday.

German Measles treatment available

The Health Service has seen several possible cases of German Measles and warns that the disease may cause serious birth defects in babies born to women exposed to the disease in the first 14 weeks of pregnancy.

Women planning to become pregnant are urged by the Health Service to have blood tests to determine susceptibility.

The Health Service reports immunization may be received at Jackson County Health Department by calling 453-3311.

Mona, I've finally decided where I'd like to make my career: State Farm!

State Farm? Great Plowshares! You're going to be a soil tiller. Living an agrarian lifestyle!

Come on now! State Farm is an insurance company.

Virgil, you're going to be a salesman? How could you? Even if they'd have you...

Mona, there's more to insurance than selling policies. Insurance is opportunity. State Farm is looking for people interested in a data processing career. I don't have a computer science degree but I do have six hours of data processing courses. So I qualify!

Virgil, you're putting me on.

No way, Mona. State Farm is looking for men and women with any degree and six to nine hours of data processing courses. Of course, you've got to be interested in a data processing career.

Good grief! They're omnivorous. No, but they're also interested in people in mathematics, accounting, law and actuarial sciences.

Incidentally, the pay is great!

Uh, Virgil, wear a clean pair of jeans to the interview.

For information on career opportunities at State Farm write Ron Prewitt, Assistant Director, Home Office Personnel Relations, One State Farm Plaza, Bloomington, Illinois 61701, or contact your Campus Placement Director, or visit the State Farm Recruiter on campus March 2, 1982.

Land deal for mining rights in conservation area heard

By Eric Larson
Student Writer

Legislation proposed by the Illinois Department of Conservation would allow surface mining for coal in the Rice Lake conservation area in Fulton County, according to Director David Kenney.

The legislation would allow mining by the Freeman United Coal Co., Kenney said. In return, Freeman United would turn over to the state nearly $9 million worth of land in the nearby Banner Marsh area and in land adjacent to Rice Lake, he said.

In the deal, the state would get nearly 5,000 acres of land on Banner Marsh. Freeman United has estimated that approximately 1,370 acres of Rice Lake's 2,638 acres were underlain by 4 million tons of 1- to 2-percent sulfur coal.

The plan is an effort to solve long range management problems of two Illinois conservation areas, Kenney told a group of over 50 people at a meeting in Carbondale co-sponsored by chapters of the Audubon Society the League of Women Voters and the Sierra Club.

Backwater marshes along the Illinois River are rapidly being destroyed by excessive silting caused by heavy barge traffic on the river, Vogel said. Banner Marsh is protected from silting by a levee which the coal company has agreed to repair as part of the proposed agreement, Kenney said. Freeman United would also build a levee on the Rice Lake site, he said.

Kenney, a former SIUC political science professor, said that recreational use of Rice Lake has decreased drastically in the past several years. Attendance in 1979 was 55,000, about one-half of the 1977 figure, according to Department of Conservation statistics.

Rice Lake and Banner Marsh are located next to each other along the Illinois River in Fulton County, south of Peoria.

Ideally the two areas would be managed together, Kenney said. This would be possible only if the state acquires the land in Banner Marsh now owned by the Freeman United Coal Co., he said.

The conservation department has been trying to get the Banner Marsh lands for nearly a decade, Vogel said.

The mining would take from 15 to 20 years to complete, and the coal company must post a substantial reclamation bond guaranteeing it will return the land to conditions set forth by the department, he said.

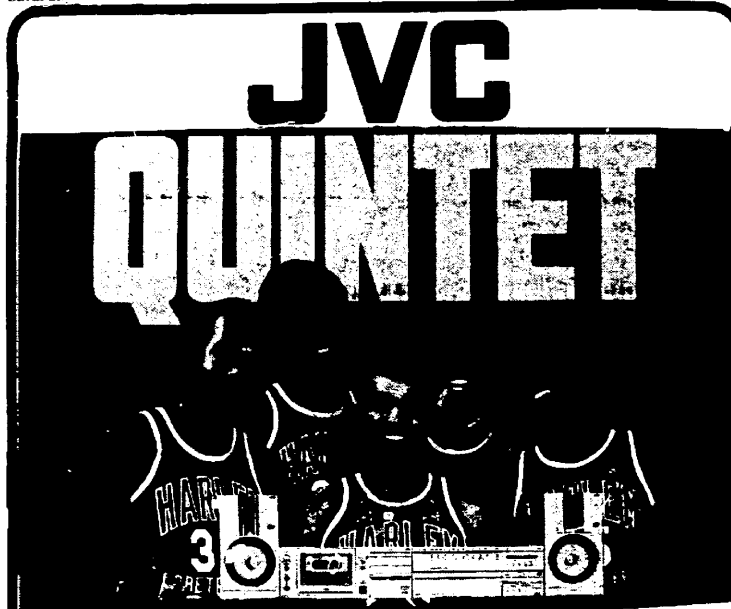

Several members of the audience said they were afraid that such a program might set a precedent for mining of public lands in the future. However, Kenney said every case must be judged individually.

Office's window broken by vandals

A chunk of concrete curb, weighing five to seven pounds, was thrown through a window Friday night or Saturday morning at the Holt, Patterson, and Thompson accounting office, 522 F. Main. About $400 worth of damage resulted. Neil Thompson, an accountant with the firm, reported to police Saturday.

If SIU-C police have anything to say about it, pedestrians will soon be able to use campus crosswalks with less fear of being mowed down by vehicles. Lt. Marvin Braswell said SIU-C police will soon begin giving tickets to drivers of vehicles that whizz through crosswalks without yielding the right-of-way to pedestrians.

"We don't want to have to issue tickets," Braswell said. "We just want to do something about the situation before someone gets hurt or killed." Bond for the moving violation is either $50 or a the motorist's driver's license.

of traveling. Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle said after Saturday night's victory. "But I'm not unhappy to be playing at New Mexico State either."

And although playing on the home floor of the Arena - where the Salukis were 9-3 this season - would probably be advantageous to the Salukis' postseason cause, Van Winkle hopes to catch the Aggies on an "off night" in order to advance in the tourney.

"Maybe if we can catch them on an off night and control the tempo and the ball, we could have a shot at knocking them off. We had them on the ropes here," he said. SIU-C lost to the Aggies 65-63 in overtime at the Arena earlier this month.

A continuation of Saluki success could depend on the availability of forward Ken Byrd, who spent most of last week at home visiting his terminally ill mother. Byrd was able to return for the game against Drake and came off the bench Saturday night to lead SIU-C in scoring with 18 points, most of which came from the outside.

"It's a real tribute to Kenny to come back and play. If he can be with us in the tournament, that's fine. But if he can't be there, certainly everyone understands," Van Winkle said. "Nobody had any right to expect him to play tonight, let alone play as well as he did."

After the Saluki victory, despite his problems at home, Byrd reflected upon the game and unselfishly gave a lot of credit for the win to team-mate guard Dennis Goins, who once again provided the spark to a sputtering offense with key assists and hard-nosed play in the second half.

"Dennis always give us a lift," Byrd said. "He sticks his nose in there and just digs in." Goins stuck his chest in there, too, when Drake's Donnie Earl slammed the ball on Goins' chest as Goins lay on the floor. Earl then was slapped with a technical foul.

The Salukis' first half was unspectacular and sloppy as they could only hit 37 percent of their shots from the field. Forward Charles Nance woke the 4,523 fans, however, with a thunderous slam dunk at the 12:00 mark of the half three times this year pretty handily, and just didn't think they could beat us."

One of the big guns Sunday belonged to freshman Mike Franks, who romped to a pair of wins, running a 6.40 in the 60 and 30.4 in the 300-yard dashes.

The Salukis scored well in the pole vault, with Andy Geiger leaping 16-4 for first place, Ken Sullivan capturing third with 16-0 and an injured John Sayre finishing fourth.

John Smith, Ron Marks and David Featherston combined for 13 points in the shotput, Smith winning it with a toss of 57.1. Marks finished fifth and Featherston sixth. In the long jump Terry Taylor jumped 24-3 to take first place.

Karsten Schulz and Tom Ross teamed up for 32 points in the middle distance events. Schulz won the mile in 4:05.22, while Ross finished second in 4:05.52. In the 1,000 Ross placed second and Schulz came in third.

Hurdler Parry Duncan took second in the 50-yard high hurdles in 7:55 and third in the 60-yard intermediate hurdles in 7:37.

In an unexpected turn of events to everyone except Hartzog, freshman Gary Munson took second in the 800-yard dash with 1:53.7, and Mike Ciocchin recorded a 1:56.5 to finish sixth.

By that time the Salukis were well ahead with three events remaining. SIU-C had 126 points to second-place Illinois State's 68.

In those events the Salukis put the icing on the cake. Stephen Wray took first place in the high jump at 7-1.5, Mike Keane placed third in the two-mile in 8:51, and the mile relay team of Duncan, Randy Geary, Franks and Adams won.

Salukis hear 'play ball' call early

By Steve Metsch
Sports Editor

Thanks to the recent pleasant weather, the baseball team will open its 1982 campaign 11 days ahead of schedule.

The Salukis will travel to Arkansas-Fayetteville to play a doubleheader against the Razorbacks Tuesday. Their original season opener was to be against Columbus College at Tuscaloosa, Ala., on March 13.

"It's kind of unexpected, but we've started earlier than planned in the past," said Coach

Ichty Jones. "There's nothing wrong with an early start."

Jones said the Salukis are well-prepared for the season. The team has been "doing the things we normally do" in spring training, he said.

"We've had nice weather the last four or five days and have had the opportunity to work outside at McAndrew Stadium," the Saluki coach said. "Our hitting and pitching are about equal in effectiveness. Last week, the guys made the adjustment from hitting inside pitching to outside pitching."

Jones said since the Razorbacks have an artificial-grass field, the weather shouldn't be a concern.

Each game will last seven innings, Jones hopes to use as many players as possible in the doubleheader.

"We plan to use each pitcher for about three to four innings," he said. Jones expects to throw senior hurlers Rob Clark and Jerry Halstead as well as juniors Ken Klump, Rick Wysocki and Tom Caulfield against the Razorbacks. The coach said he'd probably take about 12 players to the season opener.

Jones hopes the games will serve as a learning experience.

"We're going to play to win, but we're also going to see what we can do," he said.

The twinbill Tuesday will mark the 12th season opener for Jones as head coach of the Salukis.

"You can't compare seasons, each one is different," he said. "Each player is excited about the new season, and the coach should be, too."

Sports wrap-ups

Editor's note: The following stories will be covered at greater depth in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian.

WRESTLING - Jerry Richards, 118-pounds and Tim Dillick, 142-pounds, saw their bids for national honors come to an end at the NCAA qualifying meet at Louisiana State this weekend. Richards lost two three-point decisions, and Dillick, hampered by an ankle injury, was 1-2.

TENNIS - Despite the injuries of Lito Ampon and David Desilets, both of whom played over the weekend, the men's tennis team captured two dual meet victories. The Salukis beat Indiana 6-3 in Belleville on Friday, and took Illinois 5-4 in a comeback victory Saturday in Danville.

Women cagers split 2 games

By Keith Mascitti
Staff Writer

The women's basketball team ended its regular season by splitting a pair of road games. The Salukis lost to MVC leader Drake 84-72 Friday and defeated Northern Illinois on Saturday 88-76.

The loss to Drake means SIU-C will be seeded third and play Tulsa in the opening round of the MVC tourney at the Arena Wednesday.

In the Drake defeat the score was much closer than the game. The Bulldogs opened up a 34-point lead midway through the second half and used substitutes the rest of the way. Coach Cindy Scott said her team never got on track.

"We just didn't play well," Scott said. "Nobody played a good game, we were real flat. It was just one of those games."

The Bulldogs, 23-6, have been one of the nation's top teams all season and will be seeded in the top spot in the MVC tourney.

Guard Sue Wright led SIU-C in scoring with 12. Forwards Sue Faber and Char Warring scored 10 apiece.

Drake was led by forward Jan Kreiger with 20 points and center Lorri Bauman, who added 19.

On Saturday, Warring scored 21, while center Connie Price and guard D. D. Plab threw in 16 each as the Salukis pumped in 59 second-half points against NIU.

"We played real well in the second half against Northern," Scott said. "We were able to bounce back and play with intensity. We were able to work the ball inside like we wanted to. We needed a game like that before going into the tournament."

The Huskies' Doreen Zierer, the nation's seventh-leading scorer with a 33.9 points per game average, led all scorers with 23.

SIU-C finished the season at 16-11, an improvement over last year's 14-18 mark.

Swimmers place second at NICs

By Paul Lorenz
Associate Sports Editor

The women's swim team took second place against a powerful field Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the National Independent's Championship at Columbia, S.C.

Florida State lived up to advance billing as the meet favorite, scoring 334 points to take first place, while SIU-C finished second with 474. South Carolina took third place with 430 points and Cincinnati fourth with 374 at the nine-team meet.

The Salukis swam AIAW National qualifying times in 17 events while placing first in eight events.

Amanda Martin and Barb

Larsen each placed first in three events for the Salukis. Martin took firsts in the 50, 100 and 200 breaststrokes, with times of 29.94 in the 50, 1:04.49 in the 100 and 2:20.18 in the 200.

Barb Larsen placed first in the 500 freestyle in 4:51.96; the 1,650 free in 16:36.08, and the 200 butterfly in 2:03.93.

Pam Ratcliffe won the 200 individual medley in 2:07.0 and Tracey Terrell took first in the three-meter diving. The Salukis qualified for the AIAW Nationals in all of their winning swims.

The 200 medley relay team of Paula Jansen, Sue Harkness, Martin and Larsen qualified for the AIAW Nationals while placing second to Florida State in 1:47.5. The 400 freestyle relay of Janie Coontz, Laura Brown, Maureen McLoughlin and Ratcliffe took second with an AIAW-qualifying time of 3:32.2.

Other AIAW qualifiers for SIU-C were: Ratcliffe, fourth place in the 50 breast in 30.4 and second in the 100 IM in 59.08; Larsen, second in the 100 fly in 55.92 and second in the 50 fly in 25.58; Brown, sixth in the 200 IM in 2:09.74; Coontz, ninth in the 200 IM in 2:10.00, second in the 400 IM in 4:29.45, and second in the 200 free in 1:52.30; and Jansen, third in the 200 backstroke in 2:08.39, seventh in the 50 back in 28.02, and fifth in the 100 back in 59.85.

Painton's 8.85. As a result, Turner, Painton and Erickson finished first, second and third in the all-around competition. All three were named to the 1982 all-state gymnastics team.

Turner scored 35.50 points to capture the top spot. Painton scored 35.15 for second and Erickson ended up with 35.10.

Turner had to overcome a poor beam outing to win the all-around crown.

"I got all shook up on the beam," said the sophomore. "I got nervous when my foot slipped, and I wobbled the rest of my routine." Turner fell off the beam twice and received just 8.15 points for her effort.

Erickson took first on the beam with a 9.2.

"It seemed to me that I might have lost the all-around after my beam," said Turner.

Turner, who celebrated her 18th birthday Friday, said the crowd of over 600 didn't hinder, but rather helped, her performance.

"This crowd was the best we ever had," she said. "It takes the pressure off you when you know they're all backing you up."

Vogel said the close finish proved what he's been saying all season — the Salukis are a vulnerable team whose routines in certain areas lack the degree of difficulty necessary to score points.

He felt the judging was typical of what the Salukis will encounter the remainder of the season.

"We are now getting more experienced judges," Vogel said. "Judges at dual meets tend to be more lenient. The more experienced judges won't give credit for something you don't do."

Lady tracksters improve at EIU

For the second time in three meets, the women's track team didn't have the benefit of team scoring to measure its performance.

But Coach Claudia Blackman figured the Salukis scored 15 points at the Eastern Illinois Invitational Saturday, a marked improvement over its four-point performance at Illinois State the previous weekend.

The distance medley relay team placed third with a time of 13:22.4; Patty Plymire-Houseworth took fourth place in the two-mile run in 11:12.4; Julie Leeper placed fifth in the high jump at 5-0; Debra Davis took sixth in the 440-yard dash in 1:00.3; and the four by 200 and four by 400 relays each placed sixth.

Gymnasts win state with 'little difficulty'

By Steve Metsch
Sports Editor

Prior to the Illinois AIAW gymnastics meet, Coach Herb Vogel said the women's gymnastics team "shouldn't have any real problems" and should capture the state title for the sixth time in seven tries.

Vogel was correct on one count — the Salukis won the state championship. However, he didn't anticipate the problem the team would encounter. No, the Salukis didn't trip over their feet or do headers into the vault. Rather, they ran into what Vogel called "accurate judging."

The Salukis led second-place Illinois 103.95 to 103.00 going into the final event Friday — the floor exercise. They tallied just 33.35 points to the Illini's 34.25 on the floor, but escaped with a slim 137.30 to 137.25 victory.

Illinois State finished third with 137.60 points. Western Illinois was next with 130.25 and Northern Illinois brought up the rear with 128.55.

"Our floor was not a failure. It was scored accurately," Vogel said. "We got caught by the judges for passing up the more difficult movements. At these bigger meets you get scores for what you earn."

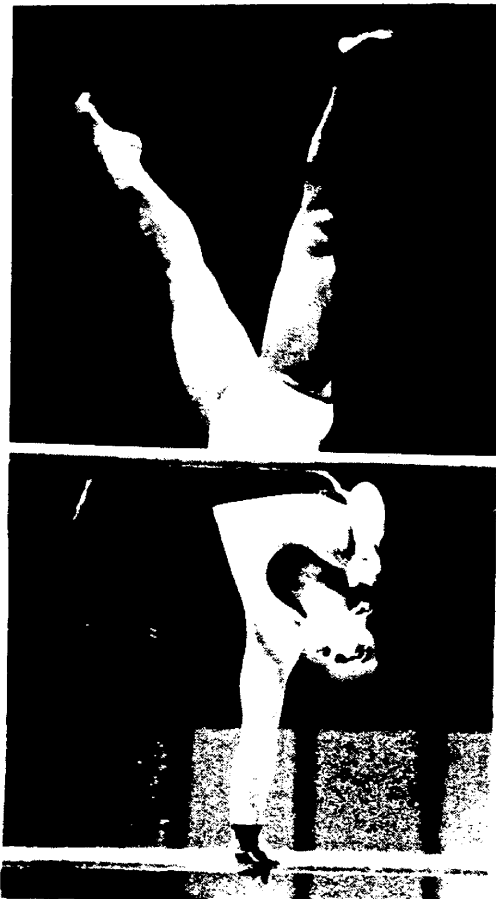

Vogel was disappointed with junior Lori Erickson's floor routine. She had entered the floor exercise, leading Saluki teammates Pam Turner and Val Painton in all-around competition.

"Lori had to know she was in first," Vogel said. "She has been the No. 3 fiddle behind Turner and Painton all season, and she had the chance to say 'Damn it, I'm as good as they are,' but she gave it away."

"Lori had her best meet of the year, if not of her career. She vaulted very well, her bars routine was the best she could do and she had one of her best beam performances of the year. She passed up some tumbling in her floor routine and got caught by the judges," Vogel said. "She showed she wasn't really the third girl. I'm disappointed she let it slide away."

Erickson scored just 8.05 points to Turner's 9.05 and

Tracksters capture MVC title

By Ken Perkins

NORMAL - The men's track and field team did what was expected here Sunday as they captured six first and four second-place finishes to secure their fifth Missouri Valley Conference indoor championship in six years.

"We just ran like a track team. It's as simple as that," said Coach Lew Hartzog, who saw his Salukis score 151 points to second-place Illinois State's 102.

The Redbirds were followed by Wichita State, 81; Drake, 53;

Indiana State, 48; West Texas State, 33; and Bradley, 26.

After a "horrendous" opening day Saturday — one which Hartzog called the "worst ever" in the conference by a Saluki team — SIU-C returned on Sunday with its artillery loaded and literally blew away their opponents.

"I was a little worried after the first day but we came back and competed. We got with it," Hartzog said. After the first day the Salukis had qualified just nine runners to Illinois State's 11 and Wichita State's 10.

"Every runner who ran Sunday did his utmost. We had nine individuals going into the finals and they just simply ran like SIU-C track men," Hartzog said.

After the Saturday session, Illinois State Coach John Coughlan felt that the Redbirds had a chance to legitimately battle the Salukis for first place even though the Redbirds trailed SIU-C's 43 points with just 13. Wichita State was second with 24.

"I think we just kind of lost respect for Illinois State," Hartzog said after Saturday's competition. "We beat them

Defending champions top men gymnasts' bests

Defending national champion Nebraska displayed the depth and quality of its team in a 278.10 to 266.10 victory over the men's gymnastics team Sunday at the Arena.

Even without the services of two top performers, Jim Hartung and Steve Elliot, the Cornhuskers, led by all-arounders Phil Cahoy, Jim Mikus and Mike Bowers, took an early lead and increased it throughout the meet.

Hartung, defending NCAA champion in the all-around and rings, was planning to compete against SIU-C until just before the meet. The senior will compete in the American Cup in New York City this weekend, and Nebraska Coach Francis Allen said "ABC called, wanting him there Tuesday for interviews."

"We traveled to a meet on Thursday, and we thought it was better for him not to do all that traveling," the Nebraska coach said.

All-American Elliot, the national tumbling champion, did not compete because of an ankle injury.

Cahoy, winner of the all-around competition with 57 points, also won the pommel horse and parallel bars with scores of 9.65. Mikus won the floor exercise with a 9.55 and vault with a 9.6.

Mikus, Cahoy and Saluki John Levy tied for first on the high bar with 9.6, and Saluki Tom Slomski was first on the rings with 9.6.

The highest event total for the Salukis, a 46.65, was scored by the five vaulters, Lawrence Williamson, Murph Melton, Dave Hoffman, Kevin Mazeika and Levy. Coach Bill Meade's gymnasts were psyched up for the meet against Nebraska, with several reaching personal high scores.

Scores of 9.0 on the parallel bars and high bar were the result of practice and "putting it all together for the meet," said sophomore Murph Melton of his new highs. Williamson scored his best on the vault with a 9.25.

A personal best was scored by Scott Schuler on the high bar, whose 9.2 came a few minutes after a disappointing performance on the parallel bars. Schuler said being mad with that performance helped him to do better on the high bar.

Being unhappy with earlier event scores also helped John Levy, who scored a 9.6 on the high bar, just under his personal high of 9.65.

"I didn't do well on the parallel bars and rings, and I felt I had to pay the team back," Levy said.

Slomski continued to do well, scoring 9.6 on his specialty, the rings. His performances throughout the season, including a high of 9.65, have both the junior and his coach "confident" that he will qualify for the NCAA's.

Herb Voss scored a 9.55 on the pommel horse, tying him with Nebraska's Frank Hibbits for second behind Cahoy in that event.

Cagers beat Drake 67-64; to face Aggies in tournament

By Bob Morand
Staff Writer

It will be off to balmy Las Cruces, N.M., for the men's basketball team Monday to play the Aggies of New Mexico State in the first round of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament.

The Salukis earned their flight plans Saturday night when they closed out the regular season by beating Drake 67-64 at the Arena. The win pushed the Salukis into a sixth-place tie with the Bulldogs in the MVC with identical 7-9 records and forced a coin flip to decide who would own fifth place. The Bulldogs won the flip and will play fourth-place Illinois State at Normal Tuesday.

Fifth place wasn't the only Valley spot contested over the weekend. Bradley beat Tulsa 82-79 in overtime at Peoria Saturday afternoon to claim first. The Braves will host Indiana State Tuesday. The Sycamores tied West Texas for the last place in the Valley, but won a coin flip to send them to the tournament. The Golden Hurricane will play eighth-place Creighton at Tulsa in the fourth first-round pairing.

Wichita State's 12-4 record in the Valley was good enough for a second place tie with Tulsa, but thanks to MVC sanctions prohibiting them from postseason competition, the Shockers' season is over.
