Furlough illegal, F-Senate VP says

By Phillip Florski
Staff Writer

Any faculty and staff furlough would be a breach of contract, and therefore illegal, according to William Gregory, vice president of the Faculty Senate. President Albert Somit announced last month the possibility of calling for a furlough over spring break if Gov. James W. Thompson orders a second budget recall of over 2 percent. Somit said Thompson may possibly address the recall Wednesday night when he is scheduled to present his fiscal year 1981-82 budget.

Gregory said Monday that furlough would be "vicious" to make a point, stating that checking the legality of the situation is not true. He said members of the faculty were not aware of the contract, and that it is the administration's responsibility to sue the University for breach of contract if a furlough was imposed.

According to the handbook, tenured and non-tenured faculty are subject to annual adjustments regarding salary, rank and conditions of appointment. For non-tenured faculty, all conditions of appointment are subject to annual adjustments regarding salary and conditions of appointment.

Women's Center receives portion of Schumake fund

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

The Rape Action Committee of the Carbondale Women's Center has received $1,750 from the Susan Schumake Memorial Fund.

The fund was established as a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Schumake, a Carbondale student who was raped and strangled in April. Her body was found Aug. 18 on a path between the Highway 51 and the Illinois Central Gulf railroad tracks known as the "Ho Chi Minh Trail.

The fund was established by the campus radio station WDCB where Schumake, a senior in radio and television, worked as a sales representative. Schumake was last seen alive around 5:30 p.m. Aug. 18, leaving a meeting at WDCB.

Nancy Harris, director of the Student Development Center, said that after the fund was established, the student committee in charge of the fund decided that if an arrest was made by now, all the money would be given to the Women's Center and be used for a scholarship.

Harris said that because no arrest has been made in the case, the money is now being distributed as planned.

Joyce Webb, president of the Women's Center, said that the money will be discussed at the Women's Center Board of Directors meeting Thursday night. She said the center, which is a non-profit organization, appreciates "the very generous gift.

Harris, the WIBD Board of Directors, said that the fund will be established through the Student Development Center, which hopes that the foundation will be established through the University, and that it is hoped that the foundation will be distributed in the form of a scholarship for female undergraduates in the Radio and Television Department.

She said the scholarship is being established through the Student Development Center, and that the money can be invested and generate funds for an ongoing award. She said such an arrangement will also make it possible for the University to distribute the scholarship fund.

The student committee in charge of the fund drive which took place from September to December received $1,000 from Schumake's friends, and Harris said the money will be used to get every SIU student in double figures.

Reagan seeks money for El Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan asked Monday for $60 million in military aid to El Salvador and a senior White House official said the administration is eying an expansion in both military and non-military aid to the Salvadoran army to cope with the growing conflict.

A senior White House official said the administration is eying an expansion in both military and non-military aid to the Salvadoran army to cope with the growing conflict.

Reagan said the aid would be used to help build up the Salvadoran army to cope with the growing conflict.

The president made it clear there is a serious problem in the Central American region, that the national interest of this country is deeply involved in the outcome of that struggle.

Reagan said the aid would be used to help build up the Salvadoran army to cope with the growing conflict.

The immediate problem, he said, is whether or not the government of El Salvador will be able to survive.

Reagan at odds with governors on defense spending cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) - An angry President Reagan "came out swinging" at a meeting Monday with 46 U.S. governors and rejected their appeal to consider scaling down his plans for increasing the defense budget.

"He took strong issue with that part of our budget recommendation which suggests a decrease in the growth rate of spending for defense," said Rep. John H.潥pholm of Illinois.

On the eve of the one-hour meeting which insisted on anonymity quoted the president as saying "the most serious problems with your calls for excessive cuts in defense spending:"

"He came out swinging on the matter of his defense position," said Gov. Scott Matheson of Utah, a Democrat who is chairman of the National Governors' Association.

The governors, in the capital for their annual mid-winter meeting, are calling for a resolution calling on Reagan and Congress to consider reductions in the proposed defense budget deficits.

The resolution would set a goal of reducing the deficit to $90 billion by 1998. The Congressional Budget Office forecasts a $267 billion deficit in that year, while the White House goal is to get it down to $167.6 billion.

Over the period, the president has projected a 10 percent average annual increase in defense spending. The governors want it held to an average annual increase of between 3 and 5 percent.

The bipartisan coalition that has been working to persuade the resolution the official policy of the governors' association has been threatened by some Democrats. They want language condemning the Reagan budget cuts because of the impact they have had on schools and local government.

Thompson said if Democrats press for a resolution that "starts talking about rich and poor and all those things, it's not going to pass."

The call for trimming the rate of growth of the defense budget got support Monday from Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

"I agree with them on defense spending," Dole said in a speech to county officials who also are meeting in Washington.

Group seeks temporary tax plan

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - A state bounty hunters' lobby said Monday it favors a temporary income tax increase rather than the permanent $1.5 billion income tax increase proposed in the state gasoline and liquor taxes. and boosts in the governor's call for a vehicle license fee.

Douglas Whitley, federation president, said the bill doesn't believe a permanent $1.5 billion income tax increase is justified and will support a surtax. But the group has decided not yet to lobby for a surtax should be or how long it should be in effect.

Democratic House Speaker Michael Madigan of Chicago said he was pleased with the state programs -- and he's not yet convinced it is "a temporary tax hike probably is the way to go."

In a meeting of the State Address last month, Thompson proposed the permanent income tax rate by 60 percent, from 2 percent to 4 percent. The Whitley group also wants to lift the corporate rate by 40 percent to 5.6 percent.

Thompson also asked for a $50 million-a-year hike in liquor taxes, a 31-cent boost in the state's 71-cent a gallon gasoline tax, and substantial raises of annual license plate fees.

Altogether, the governor asked for more than $2 billion a year more from higher taxes and fees.

Whitley said the bill expresses a concern for a revenue "now, but not in the long run."

"Given the outstanding obligations, Thompson can't spend the state down to zero on any day he chooses," Whitley said, adding that other states have done that "to prove a need for higher taxes."

EPA shakeup helpful, adviser says

CHAMPAIGN (AP) - A state Environmental Protection Agency should improve the troubled agency by making a university of Illinois professor who advises the Reagan administration on EPA problems said Monday.

David F. Linner, who had been considered by President Reagan to head a special commission to recommend changes in the EPA, has participated in this approach and organization, said he believes an agency's top officials will be able to help improve the troubled agency by making a university of Illinois professor who advises the Reagan administration on EPA problems.

Reagan named the new team last week and a White House official said Sunday the idea of the new team was to give the agency more time to correct problems. Craig Fuller, secretary to Reagan's Cabinet, said White House of officials talked to Linner, but then rejected the plan.

Linner, the Boonechips on Economy and Public Policy at the university, said he participated in discussions with administration officials which led to a "set of extraordinary resignations of three top level EPA officials."

"They came to me some time ago, for discussions," said Linner. "I was involved with them before it started healing up."

News Roundup

Court upholds AT&T breakup

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court upheld the settlement Monday that broke up the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and ruled separately that cities may fight local unemployment by insisting that jobs on public construction projects go to city residents.

The court affirmed the Justice Department's deal with AT&T without even waiting to hear oral arguments in the case. The justices rejected by a 6-3 vote an appeal by 13 states that said the settlement infringed on states' regulatory powers and may leave phone users with inadequate service.

By a 7-2 vote, the court said Boston did not violate the Constitution in requiring bidders in half the jobs on taxpayer-financed projects within the city.

Cease-fire called for pope's visit

MEXICO CITY (AP) - El Salvador's leftist guerrillas on Monday declared a cease-fire for Pope John Paul II's visit to their war-torn homeland on Sunday. Marion, Defense Minister Fulgencio Ungo, the spokesman for the Democratic Revolutionary Front, ended the cease-fire at a news conference in Mexico City. He called on the government "to make the same decision" and said the guerrillas of the Farabundo Marti Liberation Front would defend themselves if attacked by government forces.

There was no immediate response from the U.S.-supported conservative government in San Salvador. Earlier, Defense Minister Jose Guillermo Garcia said it was up to the guerrillas to offer a truce because they "imposed" the 40-month-old civil war on the government.

Discrimination case discontinued

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court on Monday threatened a Chicago area woman's complaint against two medical schools in a battle that already has strengthened sex bias.

The court, without comment, let stand a ruling that the University of Chicago and Northwestern University met a legitimate, nondiscriminatory requirement.

The court said the case should be remanded for application. They also said they refused applications with better academic qualifications.

Pentagon plans Israeli protection

WASHINGTON (AP) - Military planners are working on a proposal that would help Israel safeguard its northern frontier against terrorists trying to undermine the peace talks because of the ongoing conflict.

President Reagan has been considering the proposal for several weeks. The Israelis are also said to be discussing the idea with other countries.

New TV station begins broadcasting

By James Derk
Staff Writer

Southern Illinois has a new television station WCVE-TV, transmitting on Channel 13, began broadcasting Monday with a limited schedule.

Station owner Bill Varecha, as SIU-C alumnus, said "I wasn't sure when a full 5 a.m. to midnight programming schedule would be implemented. "It will be a little while until we have a full schedule," Varecha said. "A lot of the things we have lined up are tentative. I think we will offer a very strong sports schedule." Varecha said the station has already secured Chicago Cubs and Chicago White Sox baseball games and will also show prime-time basketball games from the Big 10 and Big 8 conferences, as well as tournament play.

Varecha said he is talking with SIU-C about broadcasting SIU women's basketball games. "We would like to get the Saluki games," Varecha said. "It is still tentative, but we will work toward that goal, if not this year, then within the next year."

The station will also air University of Illinois basketball and football games and Illinois High School Association basketball championships.

Varecha is former owner of WTSF-FM radio in Murphysboro. He and his wife Debbie sold the station in 1981 to raise money to finance the television station purchase.

It took Varecha seven years to secure the license to broadcast on Channel 13.

All mayoral, council candidates to debate

By James Derk
Staff Writer

All of the mayoral and City Council candidates have agreed to participate in an upcoming debate to be held March 31. The debate, which will be sponsored by the Undergraduate Student Organization and the Student Programming Council, will be held at 8 p.m. in Student Center Ballroom D.

Joy Schallie, a Murphysboro lawyer, will moderate the debate and 8:10 President Jerry Cook will introduce the candidates.

Questions for the debate will come from the audience. Cards will be distributed to each audience member when they enter the ballroom. Questions will be screened by a committee consisting of one faculty member, one student and a representative from the League of Women Voters. The committee will select questions asked most frequently and those that deal with direct issues.

Each mayoral candidate will be given time for an opening statement. The candidates for City Council will be sequenced during the mayoral debate in order to prevent them from hearing the issues presented by the mayoral candidates, according to Cook.

The sample was taken from a new water line not yet accepted by the district or connected to customers, according to Mary Crowell. Charles B. Field, Jr. of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency said the sample contained 11 coliform bacteria colonies per 100 milliliters of water. 10 colonies more than the legal limit. Coliform bacteria are found in intestinal tracts of warm-blooded animals.

The violation and the district's failure to notify customers of its occurrence are violations of the Federal Safe Drinking Water Act and the state Pollution Control Board's rules and regulations, but Bell said, "It was just an oversight" by the district and no further action will be taken by the EPA. Subsequent samples have been within legal limits, Bell said.

Crowell said a public announcement of the violation was not made because it posed no health threat to district customers.

the government of El Salvador can sustain itself" based on the current level of U.S. support. The president's view, Baker said, is that "it would have a difficult time doing that."

The senior official who later joined Reagan aboard Air Force One promptly on condition he not be identified. He said Reagan had ordered the policy review four weeks ago and that no decision had yet been reached.

He said the review "is far broader than just funding" and could include raising the self-imposed limit of $5 million American advisers in the Central American nation and expanding their role, which is now limited to training.

The official said Reagan was considering increasing the number of advisers "in the face of the Soviet threat" in the region. He said about one-third of Soviet military aid to Latin America while only about 2 percent of U.S. aid. Said the official, "We need more in this area." The official, however, gave the U.S.

Governor Reagan's decision to order the review corresponded with stepped-up attacks by leftist guerrillas throughout El Salvador one month ago, including the capture of the U.S. ambassador in the capital, and the insurgents held the city for several days and then withdrew.

Administration officials have publicly downplayed the seriousness of the guerrillas' four-month offensive, but revised the Salvadoran army for reacting slowly and with insufficient tactical instead of small patrols considered better at combating a guerrilla threat.

I'm going to miss MASH

By James Derk
Staff Writer

IT'S ALL over except for the reruns. After 11 years, 14 Emmys and 251 episodes, there will be no more 'MASH.' A nation mourns the loss of a truly great television show.

There must be a secret why "MASH" is so popular. It's not only because it's funny. Sure, we laughed watching it, but unlike other situation comedies, it made you think, think as well. "MASH" was a welcome break from some of the mindless drivel on television these days. People who say they don't watch the show can remember several favorite episodes. Some are unforgettable, like the day Henry Blake was killed, the day Radar O'Reilly went on leave to Iowa and, now, the day they all went home.

THE SHOW was special because of the actors themselves. They loved the show, and passed that love on to television and in showing it in their acting. It was the actors themselves who decided to end the show while it was still a hit. Other shows have shot themselves in the foot, but they were driven into the

Chicago race coverage slap in face of blacks

I was shocked and appalled at the Daily Egyptian's coverage of the race riots in Chicago this past weekend. It was disgusting and embarrassing to read about my classmates' reactions to the riots. I was surprised to find how little most of them knew about the riots and how many of them were willing to accept the minority's viewpoint.

The Daily Egyptian's coverage was sorely lacking in objectivity and fairness. The minority's viewpoint was presented as the only valid one, while the majority's was ignored. The headline of the story was, "Race rioting in Chicago," which suggests that the riots were a simple matter of race, when in fact they were a complex issue involving many factors. The article itself was biased and one-sided, favoring the minority's viewpoint.

The Daily Egyptian's coverage of the riots was a slap in the face of all Chicagoans. It was a failure to understand the complexity of the issue and a failure to present a fair and balanced view. It was a failure to understand that the riots were a result of many factors, including poverty, lack of opportunity, and discrimination.

What was most disturbing was the lack of understanding and empathy that was evident in the Daily Egyptian's coverage. The minority's viewpoint was presented as the only valid one, while the majority's was ignored. The article itself was biased and one-sided, favoring the minority's viewpoint.

Massacres taking place in all spots of the globe

A couple of weeks ago in Afghanistan, a massacre took place that is said to have cost 1,800 lives. It is reported to be one of the worst massacres that took place many months ago in the Palestinian refugee camps of Lebanon. But, there is one glaring difference. After the Palestinian massacre, for which the Israelis were only indirectly responsible, there was massive international condemnation denouncing Israel and suggesting that its Prime Minister was a terrorist. For weeks in the editorial pages of the Daily, there have been whole articles and editorials denouncing the massacre, but apparently the same governments whocondemned the massacre did not condemn the massacre of 1,800 people in Afghanistan. In fact, there has been little media coverage and no TV coverage to point out the massacre.

In Israel, following the massacre, there were peaceful mass demonstrations calling for an inquiry into the actions of the Israeli military and government. Following the commission's report the defense minister, under pressure, has resigned and the government is said to be considering talking to Lebanon where the people are being asked to choose the killing go free and un denounced. - David Assis, Senior, Speech Communication, and signed by 150 other people.

If Social Security plan is so great, let's make lawmakers take part in it

The recent bipartisan compromise on Social Security demonstrates the continuing double standard being applied by the government and its employees, both inside and outside of government. The compromise excludes current federal employees, including our Congressmen, Senators and bureaucrats from gaining into the Social Security system. If the lawmakers believe Social Security is such a good system, why do they not contribute to it? I am asking because Social Security is not a good investment, otherwise they would have taken the opportunity to get a piece of the rock that has been left from those who have, or 60 years away from retirement, they will deserve the collapse of the system. I propose a four-year trial period for this proposal merely postures. Why should current federal employees be exempt from helping shoulder the burden of Social Security? They are the ones who write the laws. - William Paul of Madison, Wisconsin

Speaker stresses high-tech research

By William Joren Yong
Staff Writer

The success of high-technology development depends upon advance planning, enduring patience and comprehensive involvement. According to George B. Sloan, director of research development at SIUC, the St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association, Sloan was the keynote speaker at the Annual Engineering Club Banquet held Friday night at the Holiday Inn. He spoke on "Research Universities: A Breeding Place for High Technology Development." The banquet concluded SIUC's observance of National Engineering Week, Feb. 21-25. Guests included faculty members and students from the College of Engineering and Technology, SIUC President Albert Sommer and business men from the Carbondale area.

Sloan, an alumnus of about 70 people he believed university-based research is critical to the nation's high-technology future. His research experience in high technology is largely a result of his involvement at five research parks across the state: the University of Utah, the University of North Carolina and the University Science Center in Philadelphia.

Gold medal winner promotes Olympics

By Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

Wilma Rudolph could do it all over again, chances are she wouldn’t change a thing.

She’d call Clarksville, Tenn., home. Tennessee State University alumni and former triple gold medal winner in the 1960 Olympic Games in Rome.

And that, says Rudolph, is good enough for her.

It was more than enough for those who got a chance to see her over the weekend at the University Mall.

Rudolph, who was in Carlisle and part of a coast-to-coast effort by Budweiser beer to help promote and finance the U.S. Olympic Team for the 1984 games, signed autographs and spoke to those who showed up.

"Believeable lady," said Rick Rodg’s-HU student and former Olympian from Canada.

Rudolph is one of six Olympic gold medalists who have diversified their skills from athletics into the tools of their athletic trade. Others are Bill Russell, Al Oerter, Mike Erzunie, Frank Shorter and John Naber.

Rudolph is quoted about the art exhibits and won’t hesitate when asked if they enjoy painting. She’s a free spirit,” she said. “Free to be creative and innovative with no restrictions. I wanted to show that in my paintings. The painting, like my life, heads in different directions and makes new challenges.

Rudolph has her share of challenges. After retiring from competitive track in 1962, she spent seven years teaching at various levels. She did "lots of things" for several years after that, notably lecturing, writing books and becoming technical director of her own movie, "Wilma."

Now she says she’s a bona fide businesswoman. "I love it, it’s as challenging as running," Rudolph said of her two ventures. Wilma Rudolph and Associates and the Wilma Rudolph Track and Field Foundation.

"It’s more than a full-time job," Rudolph said. "The foundation is something special. It gives those athletes who have the potential a chance to develop."

"I love it," said Rudolph. "If I were to arrange personal appearances, etc.

Rudolph’s other challenge is her family. It’s hard being on the road and away from her family. She said, "I love it, I love it.," she said about leaving Djuana, 18, Robert, 17, and Xurry, 12, at home in Indianapolis, Ind., a few months ago.

"Spending time with my children is my top priority. But it’s hard. I’m constantly on the road and the older they get, the more they need me here.," Rudolph said.

But her biggest challenge was her fight against crippling childhood diseases, which kept her out of school to the first eight years of her life.

But by high school, she was an athlete who was mobile as anyone, earning all-state basketball honors and polishing off all corners in track. Now, she speaks freely about her remarkable track club. And brought her acclaim as one of the best female athletes ever but would rather talk about what Wilma Rudolph is doing today.

"It’s the past," she said. "I should’t live in the past."

The research program at the University of Utah was established 12 years ago, he added. Today, 27 businesses and research institutions are part of the program which employs 1,000 people with an average of $400,000 spent on salaries a year.

"Smoke-producing factories are being replaced by high technology," Sloan said. "That is a transition represents a fundamental and structural change in our society."

He believes the trend is going upwards.

"If you’re not a part of it, you will be left behind," said Sloan. "I hold graduate of West Point."

"It is predicted that by the year 2000, we will reach the post-industrial era."

In addition to a degree from West Point, Sloan holds a master’s degree in international affairs from George Washington University. He did graduate study at the U.S. Army’s War College, Heidelberg University, and Washington University at St. Louis. He was an adjunct professor of management sciences at St. Louis University and Webster College.

 contests. For audience questions for a toss-up question and 2 bonus question worth a possible penalized example. one question 10 points. could team that cabin.” Where War of 1812. did blacks serve in the army blacks identify as a book. Another aspect of African knowledge of American Studies Department council sponsored by the Black Affairs Council and the Black American Studies Department Saturday night in Quigley Hall. treated the participants for knowledge of a variety of aspects of black life spamin eras of slavery to modern African politics. Three matches were played and each competing team played two games. The winning title was given to the team that accumulated the most points after the three matches. Each toss-up question, what could be answered by the first team that signaled was worth 10 points. If the team answered correctly, it was awarded a bonus question worth a possible 20 points. But if a team signaled for a toss-up question and answered incorrectly, it was penalized by losing five points. Some questions were mind-boggling to the audience as well as to the contestants. For example, one question asked was “Where is Uncle Tom’s cabin?” something that most blacks identify as a book. Another question was “In the War of 1812, did blacks serve in the army but not in the navy?” In the first round SIU-C faced SEMO. The SEMO team often had the audience laughing after frantic guesses for answers while SIU-C took on some of the tough questions with little trouble. SEMO’s team eventually lost with 15 points to SIU-C’s 190 points. Each team was to be represented by four members, but because two of John A. Logan’s members didn’t show, the second game of SIUC against John A. Logan was played with two participants multiple major senior in the College of Business, and George Hall freshman with a special major in communications, won over John A. Logan’s Jacqueline Saunders and Pamela Fayre by a score of 190 to 65. “I think we would have done a lot better if our other team members had shown,” Saud said. “We did our best, but our other team members were better prepared.” Foster and Hall won applause and commendation for their abilities to answer some of the harder questions. In the third round SIUC defeated Logan again. Just as Logan began to pick up some points, 20 minutes allotted for game play ran out and Logan was defeated again 16 to 65. At the end of competition, SIUC had accumulated 380 points as opposed to SEMO’s 240 points and Logan’s 85 points. SEMO’s team accepted defeat, but vowed they would return next year to take the trophy to Missouri. Duncan Smith from SEMO said “It was a good idea to have this. I think SIUC has an edge on us because they have a Black American Studies Department and we don’t. But that’s no excuse I’ll be back next year to win.”

Maria Mootry and Luke Tripp, faculty from the Black American Studies Department, judged and chose the questions and Chet Sisk, senior in radio and television, moderated the quiz.

Hoesa Johnson, freshman in cinema and photography, and Roger Dickson, freshman in computer science were also members of SIUC’s winning team.

 Theta Xi Variety Show to offer talent from SIU-C, community

By Phillip Milano
Student Writer

The 1983 Theta Xi Variety Show promises professional talent and a wide variety of acts according to Dave Gorsage, producer of the show. "We have a lot more professionals in the show this year. Every act contains at least one semi-professional," he said. "We're drawn from the cream of the crop." The show will be performed at 8 p.m. Saturday in Shryock Auditorium.

Guitar soloists, singers, magicians, jugglers and the group performances are several of the acts scheduled to appear. The show is divided into three segments: small, intermediate and large groups. The large groups are comprised mostly of chapter members, while the smaller groups and soloists contain chapter members, fellow SIU-C student faculty members and community members.

"We've really tried to incorporate students from all the different technical fields," Gorsage said. "Members of the community will join with faculty from the Music School and Theater Department in judging the acts and awarding first and second place trophies, the technical segments: groups, soloists and community groups.

A hired orchestra, formed especially for the production by conductor Kenneth Leffard, will be accompanying acts. The nine-member orchestra, with the versatility to play up to 16 different instruments, is made up of students, faculty and community members.

The show, which may be videotaped for WSUI-TV's "SIU-C Today," will include performances by James Barnes of 'James and the Flamingos' and fakir and John Kleeman, a fine guitarist featured in the on-going SPC Spotlight series. "We're trying to give students an opportunity to display their talents," Gorsage said.

The purpose of the show, according to Gorsage, is "to raise funds, provide a unifying element to the Greek system, and benefit the community." Gorsage said he wants the community to see what the University can do. "After all, we don't just party," he said.

All proceeds from the production go to a scholarship fund. According to Gorsage, two scholarships are presented by the Inter-Greek Council. One, the Service-to-Southern Award, recognizes an outstanding undergraduate for participation in various fraternal, campus and community activities.

The other scholarship, the Kaplan Memorial Scholarship Award, is presented to an outstanding undergraduate student in the biological sciences.

Production planning for the show began last February, Gorsage, a 25-year-old senior in finance and member of Tau Kappa Epsilon, said announcing auditions began immediately before Thanksgiving break.

"All small groups were required to audition. Large groups were automatically put into the show," he said.

Selection of the acts depended on talent and variety, the producer said. "Each act has different technical needs, and they have been placed in the most conventional order to suit those needs," he said.

One act will contain "dry-ice, smoke effects and a flying soloist," Gorsage said.

All 500 members of the Inter-Greek Council participated in planning of the show, some are included in this year's all-time high cast of 270.

To handle the many effects for the show, the technical crew at Shryock Auditorium, where the show will be held, was used. "We've really put them to the test, and they have been very cooperative," the producer said. SPC is co-sponsoring the event. "It's the first time they have. They came to us and offered their help."

The Theta Xi Variety Show originated in 1947. Theta Xi folded in 1973, with the IGC taking over sponsorship, but retaining the original name of the show.

Tickets for Theta Xi are $2.50 and can be purchased up until the night of the show at the Student Center Central Ticket Office, and on the night of the show at Shryock. Information concerning the production can be obtained by calling the Office of Student Development at 653-5714.
Mother Lode’ adventure-filled film

By James Derk
Staff Writer

“Raiders of the Lost Ark” is back, except this time the Lost Ark is a gold mine.

“Mother Lode” is a new adventure film that is a lot better than the ads make it look on television.

The film stars veteran actor Charlton Heston as Silas McGee, an old miner stuck up in the mountains of British Columbia and Nick Mancuso as Jean DuPre, a pilot searching for a lost friend.

The film centers around DuPre’s search for his friend that eventually turns into a search for the mother lode of gold high up in the mountains. McGee has been searching for the gold for 30 years, and miners tend to be a rather possessive bunch, so here lies the conflict.

McGee mutters “stay the hell out of my mine, laddie” a number of times with a thick Scottish accent, but like any good gold miner, DuPre doesn’t listen. DuPre also drags along Andrea Spaulding (Kim消极), a pilot who is missing airplanes.

Simply put, the plot surrounds a pilot who is missing after going off to search for a mother lode of gold. DuPre and Spaulding fly off in a beat up old float plane to find him. Spaulding is a little worse for wear, and even less pleased with DuPre, who makes a little joke of scraping the bottom of the plane on trees as he flies over them. They find themselves stranded on a remote lake when DuPre manages to flip the plane trying to land a “crosswind” he says. Fortunately, for un-fortunately as the case may be, they happen upon McGee and hear the tale of the mother lode.

At this point, the movie is very exciting and often frightening. It manages to be scary and funny at the same time. The mine scenes are eerie and dark, with skeletons and rats and rats and all that good stuff thrown in for color.

In all, “Mother Lode” is a very good film. It is amusing, scary and very well made. The plot keeps the viewer guessing until the very end of the film. It is directed by Charlton Heston and written and produced by his son Fraser. The film may not be as successful as “Raiders”, but if it certainly as good “Mother Lode” is definitely worth seeing.

Physical fitness coordinator to lecture on injury avoidance

By Jennifer Noble
Student Writer

If you're a runner, you may have already experienced the pain of shin splints, a splinting, or Morton's toe. Robert "Doc" Spackman, coordinator of physical fitness at the Student Recreation Center, will explain these and other injuries associated with running.

The lecture will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday in Room 158 of the Chaffee Student Union. Those planning to attend should wear comfortable clothing and bring running shoes.

"There are 31 million runners in the United States," Spackman said, "and 10 million of them drop out of running every year while 10 million new runners take their place."

For more information, please call 549-1411, or check the Campus Recreation Center.

"Every time your foot hits the ground, you generate three times your body weight," Spackman explained. "A runner will take anywhere from a thousand to 1,500 steps every mile, depending on his stride."

Injuries may be caused by the type of running shoes. Spackman explained people need to be better educated on what shoe is best for the runner and how to get the right fit.

"Not all shoes are sized the same," Spackman pointed out. "What's a size 8 in one brand of shoes could be a size 10 in another."

exemption. We should have a national championship by Christmas, if we're not favored winning a national championship by the NCAA doesn't mean they'll get a favorable ruling from the NCAA."

Martino added that the conference will be gearing up for their respective first round games. "I think it's safe to say that the Salukis will entertain Indiana State tomorrow. Assuming that history repeats itself and SIU-C manages its third straight away with as many true losses to the Sycamores this season, they would advance to the conference semifinals, which, barring a majority upset in the first round, will be held in Normal.

"I think our game will be the closest of the four first round games," Scott said. "Indiana State's a good team. They scare me because they're very capable. We struggled and couldn't catch them."

his team misses the plane, I can't see them losing."

"As for the rest of the field, Southern Illinois is matched up with South Carolina (Cincinnati and Vincennes Tech). That's probably the closest of the four second place finishers."

Rugby squads sent packing by Vanderbilt

by George Pappas

Staff Writer

An enthusiastic and optimistic rugby team went to Vanderbilt last week but returned with that enthusiasm dampened by three losses. Vanderbilt's A.B. and underclassmen almost whitewashed the Salukis' A.B. and squad, winning 20-11, 140-140 and 100-100 respectively.

"Our back line didn't perform well," said back coach Mike Marian of the A.B.'s squad.

"We made three silly mistakes in the beginning of the game which put us down 11-0, and we couldn't catch up."

Training 114, the Salukis did attempt a comeback. Jim Trotter kicked the first try (four points) for the Salukis late in the first half. And just before halftime, Mike Kerr scored on a three point penalty kick.

The best play of the day for the Salukis ended in a successful try by Mike Kerr. But by this time, late in the game, Van­ dertbilt was ahead 11-1. Van­ dertbilt added a penalty kick and the Salukis had lost their season opener.

The Salukis are rebuilding their back line because three key players graduated from last year's triumphant team.

"We need more time to work together," said Marian. "But I feel we're going to put on a good show, and we're going to win boys this coming Saturday."

The Salukis will host Springfield Saturday at 1 p.m. at the rugby pitch behind the championship building. They could use your fan appreciation day.

WHAT ARE THE BACKPAIN ODDS?

More than 25,000,000 Americans suffer from severe pain in the back. Each year more than 2,500,000 back injuries occur in the United States. More than 1,000,000 (40%) of the back injuries are due to lifting, while at work and these injuries cost our national economy over $1,000,000,000 per year.

In that four out of ten back injuries occur at work then six out of ten back injuries are experienced "off work." Ourfindings? The most common causes of back pain and persistent back pain is misaligned vertebrae in the spine with the subsequent development of nerve irritation. What causes these problems? Poor posture, lack of exercise, mental stress and lack of knowledge on how to lift are all contributors but by far away the greatest cause of back injuries is accidents. Leading the list are auto accidents, slips and falls around the home or on over exertion at work. Today's accidental injuries to the back are the areas that respond most readily to Chiropractic care.

You can avoid the need for an intense program of Chiropractic by practicing good posture, exercise and periodic Chiropractic spinal examinations, but, if you have suffered a back injury, go to the first line of defense for back problems—your Chiropractor. Remember, the five dangerous words are: "MAYBE IT WILL GO AWAY!"

Gymnasts look for high score to raise rank

By: Sherry Chisholm
Staff Writer

Coach Herb Vogel's gymnasts find themselves with a tall order to fill when they travel to Southeast Missouri Tuesday to tangle with the Otahkians. Vogel's squad is carrying a 167.26 meet score they need to erase to move up in regional rankings and ensure themselves a spot in the regional meet. The Salukis secured sixth place in the central region when they scored 173.75 points Sunday against Missouri, the second-ranked team in the region. Before that meet, STU hung precariously on to the number seven cut-off spot for regional qualifying, but they can move farther up than sixth if they finish higher against SEMO.

SEMO is ranked second in NCAA Division II and has compiled a 20-4 record against Division I opponents this year, but was dumped by STU 166.30 to 161.05 in a double dual meet with Ohio State earlier this season.

Despite a severe lack of depth in this lineup, Vogel said he is not disappointed with his team's performance this season and he feels he has seen improvement in individual performances.

Junior Margaret Callcott has improved steadily since stepping into the all-around lineup.

"She has the only 10.0 on the beam, and she's getting better all the time," he said. "I think her floor routine is better right on that, but Margaret still needs to clean up her balance routine." Vogel said Callcott is more of a team player and has a better all-around performer and counts on getting her score by hitting her tricks. He said she still needs more on this front and needs to work on her floor routine, primarily cleaning up her tumbling and dance.

Callcott scored her best mark this season on the uneven bars in the meet with Missouri. A 9.9 Vogel said her 8.50 on vault would have been higher if she had not gotten too eager and overspun her second vault.

Gina Hey, another freshman, has also developed steadily according to Vogel and needs one good all-around score to start marking in the 36 point range. Hey has the highest level of difficulty of anyone on the team in floor but has been hampered with minor injuries throughout the season.

Two Salukis who are sidelined with injuries have made rapid progress in recovering. Vogel said Freshman Jeannine Nieto, who injured her knee, has worked in the training room beyond pain limits, according to the coach. He said Maggie Hoffer has also been working well and may soon have full range back in her dislocated elbow. He said when she returns in the rotation she will only be lacking the experience of having competed the entire season.

Despite a dislocated finger, freshman Lori Steele competed in the Missouri meet in floor, beam and vault. Vogel said she isn't sure whether Steele will return to the all-around lineup if Nieto and Nieto return soon.

In vault she's been turning in the scores she's capable of, but otherwise she just hasn't been training effectively," he said. "I've hinted before that I'd like to see her train harder, but that hasn't happened. She could be our strongest bar performer, but she hasn't developed like everyone else.

Runner sets indoor mile mark

NEW YORK (AP) - Evan Ros Coughlan, the first runner to break the 3:50 barrier for the indoor mile, said Monday he could have run faster, while Ross Donoghue, the "rabbit" in the race, assumed authorities that he had intended to cross the finish line.

"I feel of (Steve) Scott, (Ray) Flynn or (Jose) Abascal of Spain had challenged me over the last bag of a mile and a half. I think I could have run even faster than the outdoor record," the 38-year-old Donoghue said at a luncheon of the Metropolitan Track Writers Association.

"I set out to break the record and I did," exalted the runner who finished in 3:49.78. The outdoor record is 3:47.33.

But Coughlan might not have done it without the help of Ross Donoghue's friend, his University of York Athletic Club teammate.
Baseball Salukis open season with two games at Arkansas

For men's baseball mentor Terry Jones, there's only one thing better than whipping Arkansas in its opening game of the 1983 season.

And that's to whip them twice.

The Saluki nine, who came within a whisker of winning its second consecutive Missouri Valley Conference title, will face the Razorbacks in a doubleheader Tuesday at Geomilie. Field in Fayetteville.

Jones said his defense is sharp and pitchers confident, but there's no reason the Salukis shouldn't be in the thick of things by regular season end.

"But just as good as we were last year," Jones said, whose Salukis posted a 22-20 record and runners-up honors in the MVC.

"But the thing that sets this team apart is its depth. They want to win and they know they can win. They are doing the different things necessary to be a successful ball club."

That success may rest on the arms of young pitchers. Out of 16 returning letterwinners, only three are hurlers. Pitching coach Jerry Green said it may take awhile before he knows just how well the crew will perform. Right now, Jones is at a standoff.

"Well, it is a concern," he said. "But somewhere along the line we've got to establish who the number two and three pitchers are." Senior Tom Caullfield, who had a 3-1 record and 4.62 ERA last year, and Rick Wysacki, 4-3, 3.85 ERA return. Others include Jay Bellissimo, a sophomore, junior college transfer Rob Ellis and freshmen Gary Bohckorn and Brian Gribble.

The rest of the way the Salukis are tough. Jim Boyd監t will lead the infield and senior centerfielder P.J. Schramm will lead the outfield. He's been designated hitter Jay Burch, third baseman Mike Gellinger and right fielder Robert Roberts.

Gellinger and Jones both came to SIU-C with mighty impressive credentials. Both were all-state performers in high school and represented the North at last summer's National Sports Festival.

Jones was one of 40 members selected by the US Baseball Federation to represent the United States this summer in competitions in Japan, Belgium and Venezuela.

According to Coach Jones, the team will complete four of this summer's final 10 games this weekend with the third annual Korea-U.S. All-Star Series slated for June 12-20 in St. Louis.

"The outfield should be strongest with Robert there," said Jones. "We'mill speed in the outfield and center, we can compensate with his hitting."

The Razorbacks' only loss against Texas Wesleyan College. Since then, they have reeled off five straight victories.

The Gateway Collegiate Athletic Association seedings have been determined, and each team is now fully aware of who its first round opponent will be. Thanks to a complicated NCAA rule, one team may be eliminated before it even steps onto the field.

Eastern Illinois Coach Barbara Mike, Dade Coach Drayton Baugum and SIU-C's Cindy Smith headed up a conference call at 4 p.m. CST on Sunday and took little time to establish the conference order. Illinois State, defeated in conference games this season, was the unanimous top pick as easily at Western Illinois was the cellar choice. Here then, the order.

1. Illinois State
2. Drake
3. SIUC
4. Wichita State
5. Eastern Illinois
6. Indiana State
7. Bradley
8. Southwest Missouri
9. Northern Iowa
10. Western Illinois

No sooner had the pecking order been released than controversy reared its ugly head. Northern Iowa is currently petitioning the executive committee of the conference to see if they can use the tournament as their one...
