Charlotte West, women's athletics director, said Wednesday that Swinburne believes the decision would have no effect on athletic programs.

"I am a little reserved in my view," West said. "The Grove City College case has nothing to do with athletics and anything that might affect Title IX would be a fiasco."

Local residents have the law that mandates that if sex discrimination is found in a program that receives federal financial aid, funds may be cut off for that program, not for the college as a whole.

A snow emergency in Carbondale was cancelled at 5 p.m. Wednesday, although residents were urged to stay along designated snow routes. City refuse pick-up should resume Thursday, and regular schedules should begin Monday, according to the city's refuse manager.

Boston: Title IX ruling won't affect SIU-C

By John Racin Staff Writer

The Supreme Court decision Tuesday that the federal government may not cut off aid to a college because of sex discrimination in a particular program will not affect SIU-C athletics, according to Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs.

Swinburne was too soon to predict how the ruling may affect other University programs, but said he thinks "it will have zero effect.

Another concern was the law that mandates that if sex discrimination is found in a program that receives federal financial aid, funds may be cut off for that program, not for the college as a whole.

New Hampshire win sparks interest in local Hart campaign

By Rod Stone Staff Writer

Sen. Gary Hart's resounding victory over former Vice President Walter Mondale in the New Hampshire Democratic primary has stirred interest in Hart's local campaign.

"The phones are ringing off the hook," said Haims, Hart's campaign organizer for the 22nd Congressional District, said Tuesday. "People are interested in Gary's schedule and how they can get involved."

Haims said donations to the Hart campaign have also increased.

"People are offering money in small amounts," he said.

Haims added that Hart's local campaign does not have the large expense of the state and national campaign because it is staffed with volunteers, not paid workers.

Haims said he was not surprised that Hart defeated Mondale 27 percent to 2 percent. He said Hart may campaign in Southern Illinois before the primary.

Joyce Deet, a member of the Mondale campaign office in Springfield, congratulated Hart on his victory, but said that 90 percent of the voters in the primary were independents and not Democrats. She said that Mondale carried all the Democrats in the primary.

Deet also said the turnout was down one-third over 1980 and that many traditional Democrats, such as senior citizens, were unable to get to the polls because of inclement weather, which hurt Mondale in the election.

She said the Mondale campaign has taken nothing for granted from the beginning.

Elimination of the master's degree programs in French, German and Spanish at SIU-C has been recommended to the Illinois Board of Higher Education by the board's staff.

If the recommendation is endorsed by the IBHE, SIU-C's undergraduate Russian studies program had the lowest enrollment in the state. The program has had an average enrollment of two students per year and an average of 75 program majors have been generated, according to the IBHE, which said this was one reason the program was found unacceptable.

The IBHE staff said that elimination of the program would allow the University to focus on offering essential courses in Russian that support other majors, and could allow statewide efforts to be concentrated on those remaining programs that provide the best potential for serving students interested in pursuing a bachelor's degree in Russian.

Although enrollments in French, German and Spanish in the state have been stable over the past five years, according to the IBHE there are insufficient numbers of students in the programs to justify the resources to support strong, curricular and advanced work at the graduate level in language, literature and culture civilization.

If the University takes a statewide perspective, the staff said, program consolidation is needed at the graduate level in the foreign languages to assure the quality and viability of master's degree programs that are to be continued.

The possibility of eliminating the bachelor's degree program in Russian arose last fall when it was learned that one of the two faculty members of the Russian language program would be retiring next year and would not replace.

At that time, "President Albert Semitic suggested elimination of the program because of low enrollment and lack of funds to maintain it." said James Light, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, Tuesday. "We had not seen the IBHE's staff recommendations and could not comment on the specific elimination of degree programs."

City negotiating for downtown land

By Bruce Kirkham

Carbondale may be back in the downtown acquisition business as the City Council unanimously voted Tuesday to allow City Manager Bill Dixon to negotiate with property owners on a purchase of property in the downtown redevelopment area.

City officials would not disclose which properties are being considered for purchase, but Dixon said that more than one property and more than one owner are involved.

Dixon said that details of the negotiations could not be released until further negotiations were completed between the city and property owners. Offers to sell the properties were originated by the property owners, he said.

Dixon said that all property owners will be given 90 minutes of closed session, mark the first City Council action on downtown redevelopment since Dec. 12, when it voted to allow property owners to sell property at or near appraised values.

Railroad Relocation Director Eldon Gossell said that for every $1 spent on the project, $1.10 will be returned in benefits. During the four to five year construction period for the depression, 1,200 jobs will be created, he said, with personnel come from Southern Illinois. Carbondale was named in the 1972 Federal Aid Highway Act as one of 10 downtown cities to study the feasibility of eliminating railroad-highway conflicts in urban areas. The U.S. Department of Transportation will pay 95 percent of the project costs, with Carbondale paying 5 percent, the state 2 percent and the ICG and SIU-C each paying 0.5 percent.

The depression would be difficult to police and potentially dangerous, Tuxhorn said, and high school and college students wanting to be daredevils may decide to climb into the ditch.

"On a drunken Friday or Saturday, our chances for disaster go up," he said. On Halloween weekend, I'd rather not think about it."

Eliminating three 10-minute daily waits at train crossings isn't worth a $90 million "big ditch," City Councilman Keith Tuxhorn says.

Responding to a report to the City Council Tuesday on the Railroad Relocation Project, Tuxhorn warned that the city should be prepared to respond to lawsuits from downtown businesses that will be harmed from the plan to depress north-south Illinois Central Gulf railroad tracks to clear six intersections from Grand Avenue to Oak Street. Several business owners have contacted attorneys and are prepared to sue, he said.

"When that train rolls by 15 feet from a building, you're shaking an awful lot of private property," Tuxhorn said.

The plan calls for a temporary trainway to be built west of existing tracks and used for 80 years, he said. Tuxhorn co-owner of Campus Comics, 223 S. Illinois Ave., estimated that six businesses would close as a result of the project, which he called "little more than an overblown pork barrel project." and 15 others are likely to see the same end.

"Economic times are radically different from when we started the project," he said. "The project has 'already had a significant impact' on downtown redevelopment, "Dixie" said. About $2 million has been invested downtown through the purchase of rights-of-way and construction of a 61 million depot that was completed in 1981, he said.

"Stairs and an elevator will be built from the depression to the depot.

Mondale challenges Hart for South

By the Associated Press

Walter F. Mondale may have tripped on "Heartbreak Hill" in New Hampshire but he was running hard again Wednesday, challenging Sen. Gary Hart to a "head-to-head" competition in the upcoming southern primaries.

At a news conference in Atlanta, Mondale noted that more than 60 percent of all southern delegates to the national convention will be selected during the next three weeks.

Trade deficits hit record high

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit hit a record $8.5 billion in March in what one analyst called an "economic disaster," as a flood of foreign imports and increased demand for oil darkened an already gloomy trading picture.

Economists said Wednesday's bad news bolstered fears this year's trade surplus of $1.8 billion will shrink to a more modest $1.5 billion.

The poor foreign trade situation, which is sure to lend support to growing protectionist movements in Congress, contrasted with some bright economic news as the government's march toward a generally gloomy future economic activity showed a strong increase.

Council considers $139,251 in agencies’ funding requests

By Bruce Kirkham Staff Writer

Funding requests totaling $139,251 from seven social service agencies were reviewed Tuesday by the Carbondale City Council, as part of its year 1984-85 budgeting process.

Last year, six of the agencies requested funds totaling $139,463. Eventually, five received a total of $75,690.

The Attucks Community Services Board Youth program requested $71,794, which was later decreased to $60,794. Eventually, five received a total of $75,690.

The Attucks Community Services Board’s Social Services program requested $71,794, which was later decreased to $60,794. Eventually, five received a total of $75,690.

Said Robert H. Kapp, attorney and spokesperson for the Johnson said the program generates $18.75 for each dollar contributed by the city.

The Women’s Center, a non-profit organization primarily funded by the Illinois Coalition Against Domestic Violence, requested $10,000 from the city.

Barbara Colina, president of the Women’s Center, said that 30 percent of the program’s walk-in clients are from Carbondale.

The library was denied a request for the same amount last year. The library was unrepresented at Tuesday’s meeting.

The Jackson County Youth Services program requested $4,580 from the city to be used for a locally-funded court diversion program. Program Director Ed Chapman said that 70 percent of the youths served by the program are from Carbondale.

Synergy, a crisis-intervention service located on South Illinois Avenue, applied for city funding for the first time, requesting $4,396.

Said Pugh, city finance director, said in a memo to City Manager Bill Dixon that $75,690 was allocated for outside agencies in the current fiscal year.

Any additional allocations above that level will have to come from reductions in the city’s operating budget ceilings or the FY 1984-85 Capital Improvements Program budget, Sorgen said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court was told Wednesday that the federal government is giving its approval to segregate private schools by failing to withdraw their tax exemptions.

The grant of tax exemptions - "an illegal equivalent of operating a dual system" - said Robert H. Kapp, attorney for the parents of 35 black school children in seven states, none of them in segregated schools.

The high court is being asked to decide whether private citizens have the legal "standing" - the right to sue - to prod the Internal Revenue Service into denying or restoring tax breaks to schools that discriminate because of race.

Solicitor General Rex E. Lee, the government's top appeals lawyer, told the court the black parents lacked standing because they did not claim to have been hurt by discriminatory schools. According to the government brief, the parents "stand as mere disappointed observers of the governmental process."

Said Lee: "Here, the suit is against the revenue collector and not the discriminator. It is wrong to employ the machinery of the IRS.

Segregated schools' tax breaks face review by Supreme Court.
Appalachian women fight for survival

Positioned in the calm, reasoned and firm center of feminism, amid the eloquent words of Betty Friedan and Marie Cirillo are two of America's strong women. They are Appalachians. For three decades, they have been working in the coal-eat-coal families of the Clear Fork Valley on the Tennessee-Kentucky line, a place older than the nation, about 60 miles north of Knoxville.

I met Kemplen and Cirillo in 1966 when I made the first of many visits to the region. Stories were plentiful, from the obvious ones about the coal camps of the 1940s to the ongoing struggle of the coal industry to the hidden patterns of mental depression that haunt the children of the hollows. On every visit, Kemplen and Cirillo still have only 10 dedicated delegates to frostbitten Mondele's 110 and Sen. John Glenn's 36. So it was that they surprised the victory prompted Mondele to view his Double missile campaign.

Whether he wins or not, by putting up a fight for the nomination many of us believe he is helping to see the eventual victory. And as he goes before the vote Tuesday evening, a battle for the top spot in the party will make that position seem a little sweeter and the candidate more credible. As was pointed out following the vote Hart's candidacy may, in the long run, help his party in its effort to represent the eventual voter.

As a resident in the region, help his party in its effort to defeat another candidate who is considered by many to be a show-

Alpha Gamma Rho stresses studies

In reference to the article which appeared in the Feb. 21 issue of the Daily Egyptian about fraternity and sorority grades, we, the brothers of Alpha Gamma Rho, would like to point out some of the items that these groups do on a daily basis that were brought out in the article. They host numerous community service activities: the campus blood drive, Open Up Day, the muscular dystrophy dance-a-thon, the Harold McClaran fund drive, and put on the Theta Xi variety show. Not only do they put on the day-to-day running of a fraternity or sorority like the time-consuming educational experience, similar to the day-to-day running of any business, which must be financially supported by its members. As an example of scholastic achievement we will use our own fraternity, because we know these facts.

This spring, the Alpha Gamma Rho chapter has won the 1983 and the 1984 SIU Inter Greek Council Scholar- ship Award for the highest average Greek organization GPA. The award for 1983, which is based on 1982 grades, was awarded for a house average of 3.03 GPA. Alpha Gamma Rho has the 1984 award for having the highest GPA in the house, which with the highest GPA combined with the highest GPA, the Alpha Gamma Rho chapter is proud of our achievements here at SIU - both in our scholastic areas and in our activities. - Bob J. Hunger worst effect of poverty, Catholic university head says

By Dean Jones

The major problem in the world today is poverty, according to Father William J. Byron, S.J., president of the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. and director of Bread for the World. And Byron says, there is no doubt about poverty’s primary effect on people.

"Hunger is the most urgent form of poverty," he said. "If we want to do something about poverty, let’s start working on hunger." Byron, a teacher and author whose publications include more than 70, is discussing two books, delivered the spring lecture Sunday at the St. Louis Newman Center.

But rather than lecture, Byron began discussion of his topic, "The Causes of World Hunger," by inviting audience members to contribute causes that they believed resulted in world hunger, while he kept a running list on a blackboard.

Through this process, Byron sorted out what he called secondary and aggravating elements from the "primary causal elements." Heeding the list is poverty, he said, which results from what he called "the maldistribution of the world’s resources." Byron said there is "an imbalance of wealth and influence in the world, and with that imbalance comes an imbalance in power. Efforts to correct or bring that imbalance in power is the only way to leave smaller and smaller parcels of land.

We have to be sensitive to tradition," he said, "but there is a need to bring tradition forward in the best sense." "Theological underdevelopment and ethical insensitivity," also result in hunger, Byron said. The problem is that we fail to recognize our moral and ethical obligations to others, he said. "There is complexity to agricultural development," Byron said, "and you have to apply technology in a way that is going to help overcome the difficulties encountered in environments less conducive to production of food."

The cause here, he said, is the failure to recognize that complexity and there is a consequent neglect of agricultural development. "The arms race, the misuse and abuse of resources, as well as geography and climate are causes," he said, "as are trade barriers and a world economy that favors the developed nations. Economic conditions also lead to "cash cropping," where people are producing food or other crops for export when "the supply of food to their own tables is short," he said.

"We have the ability in the developed world to feed and make possible the production of feed throughout the world," he said, "There is no reason for anyone to go to bed hungry in this world or for the absence of will to do something about it." The meeting is open to the public.

The Rev. William J. Byron, at the Newman Center Sunday, writes down possible causes for world hunger.

Meeting scheduled at Baptist Center

The Baptist Student Center will open with a meeting at 7 p.m. tonight after being closed for one school year.

The meeting is open to students, staff, and the public and will include a tour of the building. The concept of Christian living on a college campus will be discussed.

The center will open for the fall semester and will continue as a Christian living center, sponsored by the Illinois Baptists.
GPSC to consider pay guidelines

Resolutions proposing new guidelines for merit salary increases and opposing hindrances affecting research productivity will be considered by the Graduate Council at 4:00 p.m. Thursday in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

The merit salary distribution proposals suggest that all departments develop a merit plan, which would define goals and relate them to faculty job descriptions. The guidelines provide that each plan would set a timetable, and faculty would have input to and knowledge of materials on which merit increases decisions would be based.

The council will review a 1981 report verifying claims by the directors of SIU-C's three research centers—coal, archaeological investigations, and cooperative wildlife and fisheries—that support services, facilities, and proper faculty and administration attitudes toward research were lacking.

An accompanying resolution urges President Somit to confront the problems and states that the University must create conditions for significant research productivity. The council will also consider a resolution in support of the Russian language studies program and will review the policies on mandatory leave of absence without pay for contractual employees and involuntary pay reductions for all employees.

Applications for membership in the Sphinx Club, SIU-C's oldest honorary organization, are available in the Office of Student Development. The deadline to submit completed application is March 27, said Sphinx president Angie Cler. Applicants must have a minimum 2.5 grade point average, and selection for the group is based on participation and leadership.

Hearing slated on housing needs

A public hearing on Champaign's housing and community development needs will be at 7 p.m. Thursday in the City Council Chambers at 607 College St.

The hearing has been set by the Citizens Community Development Steering Committee in preparation for application for a Community Development Assistance Program grant from the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs.

It has been several years since the city's housing and community development needs have been re-examined and the city's needs have since changed, Donald Monty, community development director, said. Some of the needs previously identified have been met and others may have arisen, he said.

The CDAP can provide up to $250,000 per year for economic development, improvement in housing deficiencies, and inadequate public facilities and services.

Boat show to be held at mall

The University Mall's 1984 Boat Show will begin Thursday and will run through Sunday. Area boat dealers will display their newest lines of fishing, skiing, sail and paddle boats and motors, along with accessories and literature on boating.

The boats and related exhibits will be on display during regular mall hours.

Army ROTC scholarships offered

By Mike Pennock
Staff Writer

Students may compete for a two-year national Army ROTC scholarship at basic camp this summer. Ten slots for SILC students are still available. The deadline to apply is March 15. However, there will be other times to apply after the deadline, said Capt. Paul Raffaeli, assistant professor of military science.

The two-year scholarship pays for tuition, fees, a book allowance and spending money up to $1000 a year, tax free. In addition, about $700 is earned by attending summer camp, Raffaeli said.

To qualify for the scholarship, students must have at least two years of school left; have a grade point average of at least 2.5, for all majors except engineering, physical science and nursing, for which a 2.5 is required; must be at least 17 years old; be under the age of 25 on June 30 of the year scheduled; be of good moral character, physical standards, and be judged of good moral character.

Students interested in joining should speak to their counselor or visit the Student Center for persons interested in joining USO activities.

Space center planned for Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — The Museum of Science and Industry is planning a $10 million space center that will provide visitors with a "first-hand impression of what it's like to be an astronaut," says museum director Victor J. Danilov.

There has been "nothing quite so impressive as this space center" since the museum opened in 1933, Danilov says. "Even the Smithsonian doesn't offer the range of experiences that we hope to plug into this system," he said. "We'll show where humankind has been, where we are and where we're going."

Also, we want to give visitors a first-hand impression of what it's like to be an astronaut. There they're trained, what they see, what they feel.

Danilov said the Crown Space Center, which is to open by June 1986, will include an Omnimax theater similar to that at the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum, plus hands-on exhibits that include a simulated voyage aboard a NASA space shuttle.

Visitors will be able to climb aboard a chair that will let them feel the effects of a gyroscope in motion, and will be able to experience weightlessness in a circular centrifuge ride. They also will be able to test their reaction time, dexterity, depth perception, balance, hearing and even beat and compare them with those of the astronauts.

The center will be housed in a 31,000-square-foot domed limestone building to be built east of the museum.

Danilov, who announced plans for the new facility Monday, said NASA rockets and other hardware will be displayed in the center. The Omnimax theater will have bleacher seating under a domed screen 76 feet in diameter, designed to seem to wrap around viewers for exhibitions on astronomy, space science, oceanography, biology and meteorology.

Danilov said the museum will display such artifacts as rockets and launch vehicles, satellites, orbiters, industrial and technological speculations and future hardware from the Mercury, Gemini, Apollo and Skylab projects.

The Minneapolis firm of Hammel, Green & Abrahamson Inc. will design the theater and building. Danilov said construction will begin early next year.

four-meet average. The Salukis have scored about 2.25 points higher at home than on the road.

Illinois is ranked No. 7 in the Central region, with an average in the 175s. Illinois has been scoring about 2.75 points higher at home than on the road. Only the top six teams in the Central region, based on scoring average, will make the Central regionals. Therein lies the problem, Vogel said.

"I expect to see the scores held kind of close," Vogel said. "If we have a good meet, our performances might be used to help elevate the scores."

"If we have a problem, in any event, then we could be upset."

That problem could occur in the balance beam, which has plagued the Salukis throughout the season. In the ICC, the Salukis scored 42.80 points on the beam, averaging just an 8.56 score per gymnast. Last week in the squad's triangular, SIU-C scored just 41.56 points, again with seven falls.

"It's a matter if we've gained a little more confidence on the beam or not," Vogel said. "Last week we'd miss, but we wouldn't fall apart."

Lori Slees broke the 29-point barrier last week for the second time in her career, winning the triangular all-around honors with a 36.30. SIU-C will need another good all-around performance from her if the Salukis are going to pull out a win. Michelle Spillman scored just 30.50 last week, but Vogel said her low score was just a matter of her getting extra pressure on herself.

Saluki Pam Turner, after missing the uneven parallel bars last week, will be back in the all-around lineup against the Illini, Vogel said. Gina Hey, still suffering from an ankle injury, will not be back in the all-around lineup, though, missing the vault.

"If she lands badly on her vault, we're changing re-injuring her for the other three events," Vogel said.

Hill's attitudes and values play into the way he recruits his swimmers. He recruiting not only good swimmers, but also good students who are "motivated to improve," he said.

"If people don't care about school and lack motivation, then they might just give up on swimming," Hill said. "People with the wrong kind of attitude just don't fit into our program."

Hill said along with swimming, he tries to help his swimmers with other problems.

"If one of my swimmers is having problems in school, I still make them come to practice, but I'll give them time off to study. I know how hard school can be, because I have a rough time with it. I just like it to think they can depend on me for anything." The strong drive to improve is also important to Hill.

"I look for people who want to accomplish things," Hill said. "You can derive a lot more out of things if you look beyond your potential, to what you want to accomplish."

"I'm just lucky that most of my people are over achievers and the majority of them are hungry to do well. They have a lot of drive."

"Swimming is a very demanding sport. Coupled with the demands of school, it can take up a lot of time. If you can handle the pressure put on you here, then you can make it in the real world."

The Saluki Open Racquetball Tournament will be held this weekend at the Recreation Center. The men's division will consist of four groups — advanced, upper intermediates, lower intermediates and beginners. The women's division will consist of advanced, intermediate and beginners.

Fifty-five people are entered in the single-elimination tournament, which begins Friday and concludes with the finals Sunday, starting at 3 p.m. Awards will be presented to the top three finishers and the consolation winner in each division.

"This is the first tournament held in the Southern Illinois area this year, so we will draw some good talent," said Greg Smolens, tournament director. "Nobdy should be going for blood to win a trophy. If a participant is not going to have fun, they shouldn't be competing."

Area radio, television and newspaper representatives will compete Saturday in the "Championship of the Media." The eight-team field will begin quarterfinal action at noon, with WIDB vs. WTAD, WCIL vs. WSIL, KPVI vs. WPBD, and The Southern Illinoisan vs. the Daily Egyptian. Semifinal matches will begin at 3:30 p.m., with the final scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

Smolens said Sunday's "Hot Shot" competition is canceled because the radar gun will not work inside the Recreation Center.

Shoulder still hurting Cards' Stuper

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — John Stuper's sore right shoulder is being sent to London, England, for further diagnosis, the National League team said Wednesday.

Stuper will be examined by Dr. Stan London, team physician, on Friday morning and returned to camp Friday night. Until otherwise identified, the problem is referred to as an inflammation.

"We're to the point of where we don't want a repeat of what happened last year," trainer Gene Gieselmann said. "We're going to take some diagnostic work to make sure we're not dealing with a (model) tear."

His strongest stretch came between Aug. 9 and Sept. 21, over which he compiled a 1.53 earned run average in 12 games. The remainder of the St. Louis Cardinals' hurler is being sent to the Canary Islands for training before pitching in only his second rehabilitation assignment of the year.

"Nobody wants to go through that kind of experience again," Stuper said Sunday. "It's not fun."

Stuper suffered from a similar ailment a year ago, missing three weeks of spring training before piching in only four exhibition contests.

Salukis to lean on Perry against Drake

By Daryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

When the Saluki men’s basketball team heads south to face Drake, the Illini may be the most likely team to lean on Perry against Drake. For Fred Perry, who is now in his 11th year as a member of the Saluki squad, he’s been a leader for his team this season.

Perry has been a leader for the Salukis, leading in scoring (22.1) and rebounds (8.3) this season. He was named to the All-MVC first team and was also named to the MVC All-Defensive team. Perry has been a consistent performer for the Salukis, and his leadership has been crucial for his team.

Perry’s leadership has been recognized by his teammates, who have named him the team’s captain. His teammates have praised him for his leadership and his ability to lead the team on and off the court.

Perry’s leadership has been a key factor in the Salukis’ success this season. With Perry leading the way, the Salukis have been a formidable team, and they have been able to compete with some of the best teams in the MVC.
