Shaw's 'enemy' remark sparks protest

By Mike Anthony
Staff Writer

Asking "Are we the enemy within?" about 20 students conducted a peaceful demonstration at Chancellor Kenneth Shaw's office in Colyer Hall Friday and scheduled a meeting Monday to ask him about it.

After a political science class, the students went to Colyer Hall "to see Shaw's $4,500 carpet," and to talk with Shaw about his remarks regarding "the enemy within," said Todd Jezisek, sophomore in political science.

Shaw said in a speech recently to the SIU-C Post-Doctoral Academy of Higher Education that institutional autonomy must be protected from threats by "the enemy within" — legislators, the governor, the Illinois Board of Higher Education and student groups.

Shaw's remarks represent "an infringement of First Amendment rights," Jezisek said.

The chancellor was not in his SIU-C office Friday. According to Bonnie Long, a secretary in Shaw's office, he was at SIU-E.

One student asked Tom Britton, executive assistant to the chancellor, what Shaw meant by his remarks concerning "the enemy within," and Britton said he didn't know, adding, "You'll have to ask him."

Long said, "Do you people have permission to come in here? We have meetings in here and I don't think it's very nice of you" to come in unannounced.

Dave Deming, senior in political science, replied, "It's not nice for us to do this, but it's nice for Shaw to call us 'the enemy within'?"

After the students examined the carpet, an appointment was made for them to meet with Shaw at 2:30 p.m. Monday in his office. Long asked the students, "Will it be the whole group" that wants to meet with the chancellor?

Jezisek said, "It will probably be more people. We don't know how many, but at least this many."

Todd Rogers, Undergraduate Student Organization president, and Debbie Brown, Graduate Student Council president, said Friday they would attend the meeting.

After the demonstration, Jezisek said, "We want to talk to Shaw Monday regarding his remarks about 'the enemy within' because we'd like to know what he meant by that, and if he feels that's an infringement of the First Amendment. We'd like to know what he does — what he justifies his $83,000 salary with."

The Illinois Public Interest Research Group is also behind this," Jezisek, associate director of the campus IPIRG chapter, said. "We feel that students have a right and obligation to question those in authority about decisions that affect the whole student body."

John Dunning, who described himself as "a concerned citizen," said, "The chancellor's remarks that there is an 'enemy within,' that he would be able to squelch it and keep it quiet and that the Legislature should only listen to what comes out of his office, is an attempt to deny 25,000 students their First Amendment rights to be heard."

Dunning said he feels that the chancellor is acting more like a dictator than a leader. Jezisek agreed saying, Shaw's comment was "a dictator remark."

Deming said, "This is supposed to be an institution of higher learning where we're supposed to learn new ideas, and here we've got Shaw, who is

Easing rental problems is union's goal

By Lyndall Caldwell
Staff Writer

The goal of the Landlord Tenant Union is to create an attitude of educated self-advocacy among renters of Carbondale, said Mark Philbrick, student welfare commissioner.

Philbrick said the union, which has been approved by the Undergraduate Student Organization and Graduate Student Council, must become visible "to become a viable force in solving some housing problems."

Planned projects for the union include a rental rating survey of off-campus housing, compiling a checklist for before and after inspection by landlord and tenant, establishment of a complaint service to help solve rental problems, and distribution of a "Tenant Survival Manual."

"I don't think we're going to be able to stop people from knocking holes in the walls, but what we are trying to do is make it fair for the landlord and the tenant," Philbrick said.

Before and after inspection of property with a checklist should help preserve more damage deposits, Philbrick said. Items listed to be checked before and after the tenant moves in and out would include large appliances, plumbing and any existing damage.

The union along with off-campus housing will distribute 5,500 copies of the "Tenant Survival Manual" once they are available, which is expected to be in the middle of May. The manual will be available in the offices of the USO, GSC, off-campus housing, student attorney, international studies, veteran affairs and the University ombudsman.

The manual, which Philbrick said is "jampacked with information on everything you'd want to know about renting but had no one to ask," includes material on leases, damage deposits, repairs, city codes and renter's rights and responsibilities. It also has sections on evictions, legal processes, roommate selection and a map of Carbondale.

The manual is specifically directed toward first time renters, Philbrick said, but much of the information would be of interest to experienced renters.

Philbrick said plans are under way for the union to conduct a rental rating survey. The union would evaluate various trailer parks, apart-

200 hear speakers rap apathy

By Doug Hettinger
Staff Writer

Although smaller than organizers had anticipated, an energetic crowd turned out for the Southern Illinois Solidarity Day rally, Saturday.

About 75 chanting, sign-carrying people marched from the Free Forum Area to the Carbondale Federal Building where, at noon, a rally was held to protest Reagan's budgetary and civil rights policies.

They were joined at the Federal Building by another group, which had marched from the Eurma C. Hayes Center.

The rally was staged by various labor, church, community and University leaders to bring together, educate and mobilize regional, University and community groups to fight cutbacks in several federal programs.

By 1 p.m. about 200 people had gathered in a parking lot of the Federal Building to hear keynote speakers U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-24th District, Wylvetter Younge, D-57th District and Harl Ray, secretary-treasurer of the state chapter of the AFL-CIO, address the issues.

Some of the speakers directed their comments at the apathy displayed by people in the past and called for action in the future.

Younge said, "If I don't have the guts to stand up and fight, I am not entitled to the benefits. We need a revolution in our values. How revolutionary are we on this Solidarity Day?" she asked.

Ray, citing the lack of student-voter turnouts in the past, said, "People have no right to criticize the government unless they vote. You should go to the polls," he said.

Simon said national priorities in the United States need to be re-examined. He said children are the most important resource of the United States.

Simon looked into the front row of the crowd and asked what the name of one of the children was and said, "Three-year-old Nicol in the front row, here, is what this is all about," he said.

Janet Rivers, a graduate student and member of the Solidarity Day Committee, said her organization expected about 3,000 people.

"On Friday people were ready to go," she said. "We should have had the rally then."

Another event held Saturday, the SIU-C Cardboard Boat Regatta, drew about 1,500 people to Campus Lake. Several student leaders said the low turnout for the rally may have been partly due to the boat regatta and other activities.

Argentine cruiser torpedoed

Bulletin
LONDON (AP) — A British submarine torpedoed an Argentine cruiser off the Falkland Islands Sunday night, causing severe damage, the Defense Ministry announced. It said the cruiser General Belgrano was hit by a number of torpedoes and the submarine was not damaged in the encounter.

By The Associated Press

Fears that the Falkland Islands fighting will escalate rose dramatically Sunday as Argentina refused to surrender and Britain warned it would increase military pressure until the islands are back in British control.

Argentina's president, Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri, told his cabinet in Buenos Aires that "Argentina is not going to raise the white flag."

Argentina's official Telam news agency quoted air force sources in Buenos Aires as saying the British carrier Hermes was "seriously damaged and inoperable" as a result of Argentine attacks Saturday.

But the British Defense Ministry denied the Hermes was hit. It said a British frigate and a jet were slightly damaged in the battle. Spokesman Ian MacDonald said in London, "I would stress that in the last 24 hours, we have lost no aircraft, fixed wing or helicopters."

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher met with her "War Cabinet" outside London for nearly four hours Sunday. Afterward, an aide said: "Britain will keep turning the screw. Anything can happen at any time."

The Argentine junta said five British Harrier jets and two helicopters were downed during Saturday's action, and two more Harriers and four unspecified aircraft were hit and probably lost at sea.

The junta admitted the loss of two Argentine Dagger jet fighters and a Pucara counter-insurgency aircraft but it said losses of men and equipment "were not significant."

No new fighting was reported Sunday, and Argentina's joint chiefs of staff said the British "lacked the capacity and force to continue the attack." It said if the British struck again they would be "totally repelled."

There was no independent confirmation of any of the claims since all reporters except those from the Argentine government news agency, Telam, are barred from the disputed islands.

Haig, Pym discuss Falklands; request of U.S. aid to wait

WASHINGTON (AP) — British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym said Sunday that his country probably will ask the United States for "logistic support and other kinds of support" in its struggle with Argentina over the Falkland Islands.

But after four hours of talks with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., Pym told reporters that Britain has not yet made an official request for U.S. assistance. That will come later, he said.

He said he and Haig discussed U.S. aid "in general terms," adding that "it will be greatly appreciated and of course it will assist us."

A diplomatic official said Pym, who also was scheduled to meet with Defense Secretary

Casper Weinberger, did not come to Washington with "a shopping list" for U.S. aid. Haig said only that the kinds of aid that the United States will give Britain "remain to be seen."

But Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said that actual U.S. help to the British military is being limited primarily to supplying fuel and communications aid.

Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., the chairman of a House Foreign Relations subcommittee on Latin America, said, "It is clear that we are prepared to provide material support to the British."

Asked on the CBS "Face the Nation" program if the administration would provide Galaxy C-5 transport aircraft to ferry materials to the British in the Ascension Island, Barnes replied: "I think the United States ... would be prepared to do that (but) we have not yet been asked ... But we expect the British to request some assistance shortly."

In throwing its support to Britain, the Reagan administration said Friday it would respond favorably to British requests for material support.

With Haig at his side, Pym publicly thanked the Reagan administration for siding with Britain in the crisis.

Pym said Britain has not given up hope of a diplomatic solution, and that he discussed this with Haig.

News Roundup

Defense request to go before Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $180.2 billion defense authorization bill marking the second installment in President Reagan's campaign to rearm America goes before the Senate this week, accompanied by a secret "threat briefing" intended to convince members that all that money is needed.

The bill that emerged from the Senate Armed Services Committee a month ago is just $3.2 billion below what Reagan sought and $50 billion above what was approved last year for producing and developing weapons and day-to-day military operations.

Because the huge increase has become a fat target for members of Congress trying to cut projected $100 billion-plus budget deficits, four defense-minded senators asked Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., to schedule a secret session for a briefing on the threat posed by a Soviet arms buildup.

Global arms referendum considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the peace movement are considering a call for a global referendum in which every adult in the world would have a chance to vote for an end to the arms race.

The idea is that such a vote would be an expression of the universal hunger for peace and would convey a message from the people of the world to their leaders.

Some leaders of groups promoting a nuclear freeze are thinking of working for a vote at the United Nations on the issue. The United Nations would ask member states to conduct referenda asking their citizens if they favor general and balanced disarmament.

Poles warned as curfew relaxed

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Martial-law rulers relaxed the curfew and some other edicts Sunday, but warned Poles not to repeat illegal rallies like the previous day's May Day counter-marches when protesters screamed abuse at the Communist government.

The warning came on the eve of a new rally planned by underground leaders of the suspended independent Solidarity union and pleas for calm from Poland's influential Roman Catholic Church, which apparently feared the state would retaliate against more protests.

"Recommending the proclamation of these relaxations, the Martial Law Council of National Redemption simultaneously ordered state organs to firmly counteract the violation of existing martial law regulations," said an Interior Ministry communique broadcast on nationwide television.

The communique said all marches, rallies, lectures and speeches must still be officially sanctioned, and violators would face jail under summary procedures with no appeal.

Union sources said an estimated 30,000 Solidarity sympathizers marched through the northern port of Gdansk without incident.

4 plead guilty in drug case

By Anita Jackson
Staff Writer

Four Carbondale residents involved in what police have described as one of Carbondale's largest drug operations ever, have pleaded guilty to cocaine charges in federal court in Benton.

At a press conference Friday, Carbondale detective Don Strom said the drug ring, which used a northeast side pool hall as its operation base was probably the biggest police have ever dealt with. Strom also said the ring was making an annual profit estimated in the "hundreds of thousands of dollars."

Buford Lewis, Jr., 33, of 415 E. Fisher, identified as the drug ring's leader, pleaded guilty to five of the 16 counts to an indictment handed down by a federal grand jury in February. Lewis pleaded guilty to counts charging him with conspiracy to distribute cocaine from January 1978 to last February, distributing cocaine to undercover agents, using a telephone to aid in the cocaine distribution and carrying a firearm, which was illegal since Lewis was a convicted felon. He could face up to 51 years in prison, a $115,000 fine, or both.

Herbert Speller, 28, of 309 E. Elm, pleaded guilty to one count of using a telephone to aid in distributing cocaine. He faces up to four years in prison.

Others in the ring, Cleatus Cole, of 1195 E. Walnut and Terry Jones, 24, of 100 N. Gum pleaded guilty to one count each of the indictment alleging they conspired with Lewis and Speller to distribute cocaine. Both Cole and Jones face a possible 15 year prison sentence and a fine of up to $25,000 or both.

Sentencing dates have yet to be set. Lewis, Jones and Smith were arrested on Feb. 24 following an 18-month investigation by Carbondale police, the Illinois Division of Criminal Investigation, the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration and the Southern Illinois Enforcement Group.

Blacks in media advised to speak up

By Karen Gullo
Staff Writer

Local and network television news programs should offer a more accurate reflection of America, says Max Robinson, co-anchorman of "ABC World News Tonight." Blacks, and to a lesser extent, women often get left out of the news today, he said.

"Since more women are in broadcast news, you hear less sexist terminology on the air. There has been a dramatic shift toward a more accurate reflection of women's issues in the news," Robinson said. "Women tend to speak out in the newsroom."

"I don't think the same thing has happened in dealing with racial issues," he said. "I am a little concerned that black people in media don't raise those questions often enough."

Robinson gave an informal speech Sunday afternoon in the Student Center. The event was co-sponsored by the Student Programming Council and the Black Affairs Council in cooperation with the Radio and Television Department, which is observing its 25th anniversary.

"We can't just blame black reporters," Robinson told a crowd of 200. "They are very threatened in some newsrooms because quite often if you raise legitimate concerns about treatment and perspectives, the news director is not sophisticated enough to appreciate what's going on and might fire you. You may be viewed as a trouble maker."

Robinson said that blacks in the media need to express themselves more in the newsroom to balance the news.

One of the essentials of successful broadcast news anchoring is a little bit of insanity, according to Robinson. "There's one thing driving you at all times," said Robinson of the hectic and often chaotic preparation of network news programs. "You have to be crazy enough to believe you can do it."

Robinson said that the routine calm of nightly news programs is deceptive. The planning and scheduling of the news is subject to spur of the moment changes and last minute mishaps, he said.

Robinson said one of the problems in television news is lack of time to prepare and cover all the news. He said he would like to see network news programs expanded to an hour.

Another problem is in the content of news programs, Robinson said, which can sometimes be too narrow.

"Americans tend to be a lot more provincial than they realize. We tend to project how we feel as being a world view, which it is not," he said. "And we really don't know much about how other people in the world think, which is very flawed. I'd like to see media deal with that a bit better."

Spring co-op was savable

This letter is in response to the article about the book co-op that appeared in the April 22nd issue of the Daily Egyptian. This article implied that the Student Center was going to charge the Undergraduate Student Organization to have a book co-op for this spring. As John Coker, director of the Student Center, pointed out in the article, this is just not true. All that Student Center officials said was that there might be a charge for the book co-op in the future, not that a co-op for the spring would be charged.

We mention this because the USO could still have held a book co-op this spring if it were not for the USO administration's focusing on getting re-elected as opposed to initiating a second book co-op. Todd Rogers, USO president, should have been working on the co-op instead of actively campaigning for the Maverick Party.

Even though we personally favor having a book board (which would not have run into these problems) as opposed to a book co-op, the students of SIU-C elected the Maverick Party with the promise of continuing the book co-op. Maybe the Maverick administration should focus on keeping promises more than on making promises. —Glenn Stolar and Lambert Brantley, former Sting Party candidates.

SIU-C Model U.N. helped study world

The traditional Model United Nations event at SIU-C performs an extremely essential, educational role. This organization operated for 17 successive years at SIU-C. In the past, this event could almost be compared with Homecoming.

As a graduate student at this University, I think the recent decision (via steering committee) to cancel this beneficial, meaningful and integral student event was a regrettable action. Moreover, it only demonstrates the level of ignorance and apathy concerning international or foreign affairs on behalf of most students.

Furthermore, the cancellation reflects the general attitude prevalent in the real world today. We have the "say-doe" who say one thing and do another. They have all the quick solutions to all the difficult problems, but they never share them with anyone else. It is this very apathy which has torn nations apart, and shed the blood of millions through conflict and war.

I am certain that I speak for many other, particularly the international students who have expressed to me an interest in participating in this worthwhile student event. After all, they do represent their own countries, and can shine more light on these international problems.

Poland, El Salvador, Afghanistan, the Middle East and Africa all represent only a portion of volatile volcanoes in the world, soon to erupt. If students truly wish to diligently challenge the forces of aggression, carry signs of protest in demonstrations and express their peaceful intentions, then they should be interested in participating in the Model United Nations at SIU-C.

In view of these troubled waters the world now faces, one may look around himself and ask the old question, "why?" Like the late George Bernard Shaw once said, "I look around myself and ask, why not?" Well, why not? Well, why not Model United Nations at SIU-C, on a scale more grand than we had in the early 1960s and 1970s. Speak now or forever hold your peace. —Steven M. Kappel, Former Chairman, SIU-C Model U.N. Security Council.

Nixon library makes good academic sense

IN THE ACRIMONIOUS reaction to the proposal to bring the Richard M. Nixon library and museum to SIU-C, many people seem to have forgotten that this University is first and foremost an institution of higher learning. As such, the Nixon papers would be a valuable asset to it.

The proposal to bring the Nixon papers here came from Gordon Wayman, president of the Campus Republicans. Wayman has met with Kenneth Peterson, dean of library affairs, to discuss the project. Peterson will report to President Albert Somit on the meeting.

The proposal prompted several letters from members of the University community to the Daily Egyptian opposing the plan. Most of the writers said Nixon was corrupt and dishonorable and would be best forgotten. A Nixon library at SIU-C, they said, is unthinkable.

Such a view is shortsighted, however, and has no place at an institution dedicated to pursuit of truth.

IN THE FIRST PLACE, whatever view is taken of his performance in office, Nixon was President of the United States for six very important and eventful years. He presided, for instance, over much of the conduct of the Vietnam War.

He opened a new era of diplomacy, after a quarter century of estrangement, with the world's most populous country, the People's Republic of China.

Nixon also initiated a relatively cordial detente with perhaps the world's most powerful and dangerous country, the Soviet Union.

Under Nixon, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger made significant progress toward finding peace in the Middle East.

Much of Nixon's conduct of foreign policy was indubitably brilliant. These triumphs are overshadowed in the eyes of many, however, by his failures.

They remember not detente, but the suspicion and corruption of the Watergate era. They remember not the trip to Peking, but the barbaric secret bombing of neutral Cambodia. They remember the savage Christmas bombing of Hanoi, and the mining of Haiphong harbor.

Nixon's papers are as important for these failures as they are for his successes, however — perhaps more so.

FUTURE GENERATIONS of Americans will look at Nixon with a different, more objective view than we can have. They will not be interested in passing judgment on him as we are, with the scars of Watergate and Vietnam fresh in our minds. They will be more interested, instead, in why he did what he did.

To find the answers, they will want to look into his mind, which is revealed nowhere as permanently, clearly or without bias as in his personal papers. That is why SIU-C, if it gets the chance, should take the archives — for the service they will perform to the scholars and historians of the future.

If there is any legitimate reason to oppose locating the library here, it is a far more practical one — money. Someone must pay for the library, and it cannot be SIU-C. This University is just too hard-pressed now to give money for any program that is not absolutely necessary to maintain programs at, and access to, its facilities.

The Nixon library is not absolutely necessary to that goal.

If no-strings-attached grants can be found for the facilities, however, the proposal is worth pursuing. Perhaps some of Nixon's well-heeled associates would be interested in funding such a memorial to their friend.

Wayman has mentioned that Carbondale stands to benefit from the tourist traffic generated by a Nixon library. More important than this, however, is that the opportunity to study the ex-president's papers would bring scholars — the established and the aspiring — to the campus, enhancing the University's academic reputation.

IN THE MEANTIME, though, the idea should not receive knee-jerk opposition from a University community supposedly dedicated to the advancement of learning.

SIU-C already has papers of one president, Ulysses S. Grant, and of philosopher-educator John Dewey. The University also possesses an important collection of the papers of James Joyce.

The Nixon papers will, in the future, have historical value at least as great as that of these other collections. It would be a dismal reflection on the academic values of the University to turn them down because Nixon is currently a political leper in the view of some people.

SIU-C should not make the mistake made by Duke University, which turned down the library. As a repository of knowledge, the University has an obligation to preserve as much of the history of our times as it can. Nixon helped shape our times, and his papers can help future generations understand how.

Coverage of gay community builds positive relationships

I would like to thank the Daily Egyptian for printing the recent articles concerning gay students on campus and in the community.

It has been long overdue that gays in the community stand up and take the risk of submitting articles of this nature, and that a newspaper like the Daily Egyptian print such controversial material. It is indeed rare to see or read positive material on being gay in the Carbondale community. Because of this and other reasons, a poor sense of self and community-identity has arisen.

It is important for gays and "straights" to realize that there is much more to our lifestyles than the local "hangout," sex and drugs. Unfortunately, this fact is not truly recognized and accepted. Given what remains — the sex, drugs, etc. (which have their good sides also) — it is no wonder we are so feared, discriminated against, misunderstood and considered "different" or "queer." The only way to remove this malignant stigma is to stand up and let the world see who we are — show our differences and at the same time our many similarities. We are human, too, and want to understand and be understood.

Most gays know only too well that to be gay today means to be constantly aware that one bears a stigma. Despite a recent upsurge in open discussion, support groups, etc., there is still little acceptance of the gay lifestyle as a valid sexual and social lifestyle.

Like most gay people, I know myself to be part of a minority feared, disliked and persecuted by the majority. This gives my life a complexity and dimension unknown to most straights.

Our society, of course, stigmatizes other groups — non-whites obviously (being black, I'm acutely aware of this fact) and women, at least in some circumstances. Yet the stigma of being gay is near unique in one central sense. Our gayness is not something, like skin color, sex or infirmity, which is immediately apparent to us and others. We have to discover our gayness and homosexuality. Once we have discovered it, we have a wide range of options, as to how far to reveal our stigma, hardly available to others who are stigmatized. Unfortunately, the fear and risk can be so threatening that we don't let others, including ourselves, know who we are inside.

I made a distinction earlier between gay and homosexual. Many fail to realize that the word homosexual is simply a name or description of a sexual behavior — not spiritual, emotional, psychological which altogether make up the "whole" person.

Homosexuals engage in sexual acts with another of their same sex. If they have sex with both men and women, then they are bisexual. What could be simpler?

Yet a moment's thought will show the inadequacy of the purely behavioral approach. Human beings are distinguished by a capacity for experience as by their behavior. Gays often discover their homosexuality before any overt sexual experience. Yet they are no less gay for that. Equally, many men or women have engaged in homosexual acts without being, in any experimental sense, homosexuals — for example, in prison, at schools, as prostitutes.

As we each, gay and straight, examine our own sense of identity, we realize how much more complex is the question of homosexuality than mere Kinsey-like computations of orgasms. — Ronald L. Younger, Sessler, Psychology.

Taxes on lodging and food take effect

By Bob Bondurant
Staff Writer

Giving in to a Big Mac attack might cost a penny or two more from now on, if you're buying your burger in Carbondale.

On Saturday, two city taxes went into effect — a 1 percent tax on the gross receipts of eating and drinking establishments and a 4 percent tax on hotel and motel room revenue. The taxes were passed by the City Council in January.

The taxes were passed to fund the expected $566,000 per year debt service of the planned downtown parking garage. Bonds totalling $4.25 million were sold last year to finance the garage, to be located across Walnut Street from the proposed convention center. It will be built by Stan Hoye and Associates.

Under the original tax proposal submitted to the council in November, 1981, by the city administration, a 1 percent tax on restaurants and bars, 2 percent on hotel and motel rooms, and 2 percent on "amusements" such as movies, coin video games, and other items was suggested.

The "amusement" portion of the tax was eliminated from the plan by the council after it decided that the tax would not produce enough revenue to make collecting it feasible.

The eating and drinking tax will add one cent more to each dollar spent in a restaurant or bar, in addition to the 5 percent sales tax charged by the state.

The city has provided for a half-time tax collector of the revenue generated by the tax in the city's Fiscal Year 1982 to '83 budget, which also began Saturday.

Such a survey could allow students to compare rental units rather than rely strictly on what the landlords tell renters, Philbrick said. Good ratings on the survey should

Part of the revenues from the tax will be used to help finance a proposed Carbondale Tourism Council, a joint venture by the city, the Carbondale chamber of commerce and the Division of Continuing Education.

The tourism council, to be an outgrowth of the chamber's existing tourism committee, will work towards attracting conventions and tourism to Carbondale.

Although a contract between the city and the chamber to create the tourism council was reviewed by the city council in March, details of the contract are still being negotiated.

Philbrick learned last week that there is a landlord organization in the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce that the union could establish communication with.

Student-produced films to be shown

A collection of films made by SIU-C students will be shown at the Student Center Auditorium beginning at 7 p.m. Monday. Admission is free.

Most of the films were completed during the past 1½ years, according to Steve James of the Department of Cinema and Photography. Included in the list of films to be shown are a relatively ambitious documentary, "Florida Trip," by Joe Oliver and "Chicago 1981" by Mike Dwaas, an award-winner at a film festival in Ann Arbor, Mich., this spring

A student filmmaker can spend from $780 to $1,000 out of his or her own pocket in the process of making a film. James said, adding that if the same film were produced through private industry, without access to the department's equipment, the tab could run as high as $15,000 to $20,000.

Student-made films differ from Hollywood in another way, James said. "It's much more of an individual effort, more akin to an art form. It's film with a much more personal vision of the filmmaker rather than the assembly-line production seen on TV" because the student sees the project through from the idea stage to the finishing details.

Most of the films are also experimental, he said, and critique the ground rules underlying conventional filmmaking and viewing.

The film show is sponsored by the Cinema and Photography Student Organization.

Milsap shines despite flashy show

By Laurie Landgrat
Entertainment Editor

Country music star Ronnie Milsap's unassuming charm breathed a glimmer of honest brilliance into a show that was otherwise incredibly glossy at the SIU Arena Friday night.

Backing up the award-winning artist was a five-man combo playing bass, electric and acoustic guitar, electric piano, synthesizer, drums and harmonica, as well as a trio of young female vocalists whose visual impact considerably outweighed their auditory contribution.

Milsap's solid keyboard skills, honed sharp by years of stumping around playing rhythm and blues clubs in the South, were also occasionally evident when not camouflaged by the instrumental overkill.

His version of "America" made throats lumpy and brought several patriots to their feet. But spotlighting a huge American flag high above the center of the auditorium seemed to be overdoing it a bit.

And his medley of fire-oriented songs, which included the Johnny Cash hit "Ring of Fire," Bruce Springsteen's "Fire" and Jerry Lee Lewis' "Great Balls of Fire," was accompanied by booming flares of flame and smoke — pyrotechnics becoming as trite as an Olivia Neutron-Bomb headband.

Rescuing the show from the label of Cliche with a capital C was Milsap himself. Leading off with his hit, "What a Difference You Made In My Life," the blind artist performed with zestful confidence, moving about unhesitatingly on a stage cluttered with equipment.

He interspersed his numbers with jokes, frequently referring to his handicap with a wry sense of humor. After unleashing a string of his more popular tunes, including "I Wouldn't Have Missed It For the World,"

"Stand By Your Woman Man" and "Why Don't You Spend the Night," he lifted his dark glasses and seemed to peer out at the audience as he exclaimed, "What a lovely congregation."

And he delivered a medley of Eagles tunes with relish, but then admitted, "If you really want to catch me at my best, you should see me at an Easter egg hunt."

Milsap was at his best doing the simple, soulful songs that, due to his unique personable style, still maintain a vestige of freshness after AM radio has practically worn holes in them. Moving to electric piano, he sailed through the Grammy-winning "Ain't No Gettin' Over Me" and the melodic "Smokey Mountain Rain."

The family-type crowd of about 3,000 did not go wild at this show. But the enjoyment was evident as heads of carefully-sprayed hair bobbed and boot-toes twitched en-

ACLU lobbyist says liberties threatened by abortion laws

By Juli Lawrence
News Editor

Civil liberties are threatened in Illinois and throughout the country, according to Nancy Bonthé, an American Civil Liberties Union lobbyist in Springfield.

Bonthé, speaking Saturday on "Civil Liberties in the Thompson Administration" at the annual meeting of the Southern Illinois ACLU at the Carbondale Ramada Inn, brought gasps of surprise from the crowd of about 30 when she said she believed that Gov. James Thompson had done a lot for abortion rights.

"Not all Republicans are bad," she said, "and not all Democrats are good."

Bonthé said Senate Bill 941, which dealt with abortion, would have required informed consent from either a woman's parents or her spouse. The bill, which was killed last week, also would have outlawed in vitro (outside the womb) fertilization.

"For the first time," Bonthé said, "a bill of that kind was defeated. We won on Bill 491. It is now a dead bill."

But the issue will come up again in June, she said.

"The Legislature year after year keeps re-introducing those bills and keeps passing them even though they know they'd be unconstitutional."

The reason for this, Bonthé said, is the strong anti-abortion movement.

"I predict Illinois is going to have probably the most restrictive abortion legislation in the country because of the organized anti-abortion forces," she said.

Legislators do listen to their constituents, she said. "They want to know how the folks back home feel."

In the last year and a half, 6,000 pieces of legislation were introduced, according to Bonthé. Of these, there are probably about 20 bills that each legislator knows about

Legislators have their mind made up on those bills, "but on the other 5,800 we can have some real input."

"They do listen to us. When they get a letter or a couple of letters on a bill, they pay attention. Every vote is a vote their way."

A new concern of the ACLU, she said, is the revisions in juvenile court. The ACLU expects a bill, which would require mandatory transfer of juveniles to an adult court when the crime is murder, rape or armed robbery, to be passed out to a Senate Judiciary Committee on Tuesday. The juvenile court would have no say in what happens to the child.

"Juvenile court is a protection court. Some of these revisions undermine the whole concept of juvenile court," she said.

Another bill that concerns the ACLU, according to Bonthé, is the ethnic intimidation bill, which makes an assault made on a person because of religion, race or ethnic background a more serious offense than simple assault.

"Legislators who introduced the bill felt it would be a way to get at the Klan," she said. "However, it makes a new crime of an old crime."

Bonthé said she didn't consider the ACLU a self-interest group because "we have nothing to gain individually. Any activity the ACLU is in is for the gain of all."

Jan Susler, outgoing chairperson of the ACLU in Southern Illinois, said at the meeting that the ACLU provides an educational function.

"We encourage other people to acquire information and make intelligent decisions," she added. "Hopefully they'll be decisions that align with the ACLU."

Mike Shields was elected at the meeting to succeed Susler as chairperson. Philip Milk, Betty Fladland and Robert Hunter were elected vice-chair persons. Pat Cullinane was elected treasurer and Ruth Perk was elected secretary.

Benefit to feature comedy and music

A benefit featuring several local acts is scheduled to begin at 9 p.m. Monday at Hangar 9. Proceeds will aid the Jackson Community Workshop.

Monies will be used to organize Special Olympics teams, according to Lucretia Stoelzle, workshop acting director.

Sapphire, a group of six SIU-C students who are members of the Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia national music fraternity, will play jazz music, featuring original compositions by Sapphire member David Henderson. Also performing will be 4AM, Sportin' Life and comedian Gavin Wilson.

Electric co-op members fail to elect new board candidates

By Kathy Kamienski
Staff Writer

Two busloads of dissident members of the Egyptian Electric Cooperative were beaten in their attempt to elect two new board members.

But allegations from the group that some persons casting votes used phony names to obtain ballots brought the promise of "a look into the election process" from Harold Dycus of Carbondale, board president.

Some 650 co-op members, most residents of the rural Steepleville area, filled the steamy Steepleville High School gym for the marathon five-hour meeting.

Dale A. Smith of Cutler and John E. Steele of Campbell Hill each were re-elected with 329 votes. Hubert Chapman of Carbondale kept his seat with 280 votes.

Challengers Mike Durr and Larry Broker of Carbondale got 107 and 85 votes. Broker became a write-in candidate when J. Michael Braun had to withdraw. Even so, Braun collected 12 votes.

The protest group formed several weeks ago and campaigned to get people to attend the co-op annual meeting to complain about increasing rates and what they called "excessive spending" on the part of co-op directors.

Co-op officials claimed during the session that "we're doing all we can to hold down the costs of electricity." James Holloway, co-op manager, said the wholesale cost of electricity and interest rates are the two biggest expenses the co-op must pass on to its members. Holloway complained that the co-op had no control over many increased costs.

A dispute broke out after the voting when Tom Beebe of Carbondale claimed he saw at least one couple register, with the wife using the name of another member, to obtain two ballots. Co-op rules allow one vote per family membership.

Beebe said his suspicions were further aroused when the winner of a door prize, selected at the start of the meeting, wasn't present to accept the prize.

"What I think happened is they signed in under someone else's name and were too embarrassed to come forward when that name was called," Beebe said.

He sought to have an identification check instituted at next year's meeting, but the move was overwhelmingly voted down.

Holloway said that members signed in and presumably used their correct name. "It's not proof, but it's all we've got to go on," he acknowledged.

Despite the election losses, John Ham, an organizer of the protest group and owner of University Heights mobile home park, said the group would continue to press for improvements from the co-op.

"At least now they're aware there's a group of us concerned about what they do," Ham said, vowing to continue "a watchdog" function over co-op operations.

Solar law faces formal council vote

An ordinance establishing guidelines for the Carbondale Municipal Solar Utility's energy conservation grants and loans will be before the City Council Monday for formal approval.

The council will meet in the council chambers at the Community Center, 607 E. College St., at 7 p.m.

The council will also consider an ordinance which would change the city's parking code to permit reducing the size of parking lot spaces for smaller cars. The spaces would be reduced from the standard 9 feet wide by 19 feet long, to 7 feet, 6 inches wide by 15 feet long.

The ordinance would permit 30 percent of the spaces on any parking lot be designated for small cars.

A resolution opposing proposed federal legislation which would establish an experimental enterprise zone program will also be considered by the council.

Under the proposed legislation, if an economically depressed area of a city were designated an enterprise zone by the federal government, business investing there would be given special investment incentives, such as federal tax breaks, relief from federal, state and local regulations and local zoning control.

America is beautiful to visiting Nepalese radio-TV instructor

By Miriam Adolphson
Staff Writer

She's gone, "from the land of Sornit to the land of summits." Like her fellow Nepalese project members, Sushila Sharma will not forget her stay in "your beautiful country of America."

Miss Sharma was part of a radio education teachers training project, which was aided by the U.S. government, in the mountainous country of Nepal.

Miss Sharma said she's learned a lot about "the land of the free" in the three months she spent studying at SIU-C.

"We are very much impressed here with the freedom, especially of the girls," said Miss Sharma. "We are a very different culture. When we try to do something, we are crushed. We are so dissatisfied with ourselves. We can't do anything. We can't leave our country."

But Miss Sharma did leave the country. At the age of 16, she founded a school in Nepal. Now, 16 years later, the school has over 1,300 students and has changed from an all-girls primary school to a coeducational high school.

The school was founded when female education was very far behind the boys, according to Miss Sharma. "For that, I had to fight a lot of parents because they thought there was no reason to educate them."

"I had to go village to village, sometimes making requests, sometimes fighting them," she recalled. "And when I went to remote villages to talk to parents, sometimes I would not eat for days. I wasn't so courageous then. I was only 16."

The school, and what Miss Sharma had to do with it, wasn't so unusual, according to Kathleen Goodman of the office of International Education at SIU-C, but "what was unusual was that she did it as a woman."

"To have a young girl come knocking at your door, educated and unmarried is not good," Miss Sharma said.

Miss Sharma was educated in India where, she says, she became "much interested in the study of revolution and history of India."

Miss Sharma arrived in Carbondale three months ago as part of a team of five project members to learn all the techniques of the latest television and radio studios.

"We're going to write scripts for radio education with the skills we've learned here," Sushila said. "We think we can aid our country through broadcasting new teaching methods to teachers."

The program is a kind of training given to the teachers of the family schools. This way, teachers won't have to go to any college or school to learn teaching techniques, according to Sushila.

"In Nepal, there are so many teachers who haven't passed high school, and we have a lack of well-educated teachers," Miss Sharma said. "These teachers will be provided with new education and teaching materials."

Miss Sharma was working as headmistress of her school in Nepal when she was called by the Ministry of Education to work at the radio education teachers training project in Nepal.

The project members also did a series on women's legal rights, trying to educate women in the rural areas regarding the laws that existed but weren't being taken advantage of."

Goodman said. Women have a right to refuse to let their husbands take another wife, and many women didn't know that, she said.

Miss Sharma, in a trembling voice, said "Your beautiful country, I don't know if I'll be able to come back or not."

CREDIT FOR CANOEING IN CANADA?

V is a place known as the "Acapulco Beach of the North". Travel to a secret lake where the fish are so plentiful they actually follow the canoes, and experience a solo on your own wilderness island during a canoe expedition worth 2 credit hours, in the beautiful and wild White Otter region of Northwestern Ontario.

The White Otter region is a vast wilderness of interconnected lakes, rivers and evergreen forests, rich in wild life, geology, and history. A trip through this area offers the opportunity to develop canoeing and camping skills, along with pursuing other interests: sketching, writing, photography, plant identification.

Paddling a canoe requires you and a partner to work together in harmony, portaging the canoe requires you to divide up responsibilities, and the adventure is a powerful experience of self-discovery and growth.

1982 cardboard boat races have air of major sports event

By Joe Walter
Staff Writer

The Ninth Annual Cardboard Boat Regatta again proved that you can don't need wood, expensive sails or an outboard motor to chart a course on the Lake-on-Campus. All you need is some corrugated cardboard, ingenuity, wax, perhaps a lot of tape, and a certain degree of luck.

Over 1,200 spectators gathered Saturday afternoon at the Campus Boat Docks to watch the over 60 contestants either glide across the water or sink like a stone.

The competition, sponsored by the SIUC Design Program and the International Paper Company, took on the air of a major sports event and even included splash-by-splash coverage by WIDB radio sports announcer Rick Rainville and taping by the University Exhibits for possible use on the ABC television show "That's Incredible."

Roger Brummett, an Odin High School drafting and woodworking teacher easily took first place in the Class I competition, for prebuilt craft propelled by oars or paddles.

Brummett, a Centralia resident, won three out of seven heats in three different kayak-shaped crafts which were sponsored by the high school, Centralia Container and Central City Lumber. Brummett's partner Gerald Lively, an Odin resident and math teacher at Salem High School, took second place. Tawni Myers, an Odin High School senior, took third.

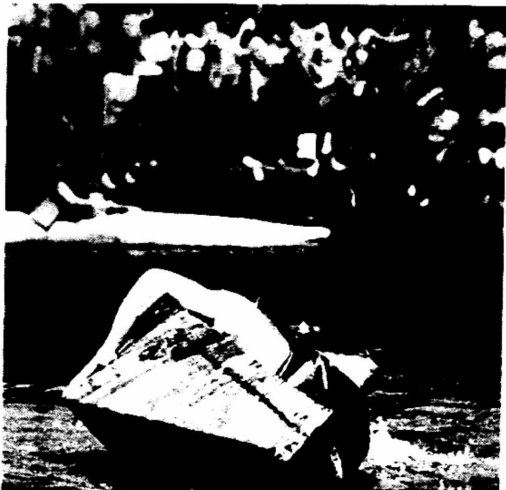

Brummett also took first place in the Class III competition, for built-on-the-spot craft of materials supplied by the sponsors. Brummett credited his victories to his kayaking and canoeing experience. "It has a lot to do with balance, technique and timing," he said.

Aldon Addington, an associate professor in the Art School, won first place in the Class II competition with his boat, coated with wax and blue enamel paint and topped with a hamburger-shaped ornament, and sponsored by Mary Lou's Grill. His son, Aaron, took third with his boat, Mighty Mite, sponsored by Arnold's Market. Class II was for boats propelled by muscle-powered mechanical means.

Both entries, designed by Addington, used paddle-wheels propelled by footpedals, and used a cord attached to the rudder to steer.

The Titanic Award for the most spectacular sinking went to the Floton II built and piloted by Joe Brown, Jeff Miller and Willard Smith all of whom teach art at the College of DuPage.

Chuyuan Kuo, captain of a boat sponsored by China House of Carbondale, got help Saturday after tumbling into the water during the Card-board Boat Regatta at Campus Lake.

In one of the closest races, Jose Castillo's foot-peddled chain-driven paddle boat struggled alongside Joe Cram's entry in the third heat of the Class II competition. Cram's cylinder-shaped craft was powered by Cram foot-peddling a belt-driven propeller.

Castillo, a senior in design, took an early lead until his vessel's chain fell off. Castillo progressed intermittently along the course, replacing the chain each time it fell off the drive. As the other boats floundered, Cram, a sophomore in design, inched his way past Castillo. Cram, for a moment, appeared to be the winner, but Castillo refastened his chain in time to tie at the finish line.

An interesting Class I craft that didn't quite make it to the finish line was the Hairbrains-sponsored entry piloted by David Jones, sophomore in computer graphics, who was assisted by Marcia Martin, sophomore in computer design. Jones and Martin resembled a new wave dynamic duo as they came to the starting point with purple-dyed hair and dressed in leotards, masks and capes. But the boat didn't prove dynamic failing to make it five feet from the shore.

The U.S.S. Out of El Salvador, piloted by Glenn Wilson, sophomore in design did not make it to the Class I finals either. Wilson said the boat, covered with slogans like "Anarchy," "Save the Dolphins" and "Nuke the Whales" was painted by Sue DeGeeter, sophomore in graphics and Becky Sievers, sophomore in photo technology to say something political.

supposed to coordinate two campuses, saying, "No, we're going to suppress constitutional rights. You guys can't criticize the administration or anything that displeases you."

"Shaw told the Legislature in the appropriations hearing, 'Don't worry, I'll take care of things.'" Deming said. "It sounds like suppression in Nazi Germany."

In an interview Friday, Robert Roper, political science faculty member, termed Shaw's remarks about "the enemy within" reminiscent of the McCarthy era.

"As a researcher and teacher in civil liberties, I found Chancellor Shaw's remarks exciting from a teaching perspective. Rarely does a teacher get an opportunity to provide his or her students with a re-enactment of history, but Chancellor Shaw's remarks are an ideal re-enactment of the mentality used during the McCarthy era," he said.

"Although that's exciting from a teaching perspective," Roper continued, "it is frightening from an intellectual perspective that the head of an academic institution which encourages dissent, critique and personal growth would make that statement regardless of whom he perceives that enemy to be."

Rogers said in an interview Friday, "I don't think students can be considered the enemy. If the institution is here for the reasons of serving the student body and educating the young people of this state, providing a forum for ideas opposing those of the chancellor is essential."

Brown said she hopes Shaw will take advantage of the meeting Monday "to explain to students what his priorities are and how he can defend his priorities."

Derby party

Some of the crowd of 141,000 horse-racing fans gathered on the infield at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky., Saturday to eat, drink, catch some sun and, incidentally, watch the 108th running of the Kentucky Derby. Gato del Sol won the main event.

of 51.26, followed by Brent Barth's 51.6. The energetic Barth also came through in the 110-hurdles, finishing third in 14.63.

Harrisburg native Duncan, who placed third in his first-ever competition at 200 meters in 21.63, was second in the 110-hurdles at 14.1.

For Nwosu, who was injured and missed half of the outdoor season last year, things are starting to turn around. Especially his confidence.

"I think I can run in the lower 50s by the end of the year," Nwosu said. "I think if I go to the nationals, I can run in the 49s."

In the distances, where the Illini scored most of their points, Mike Keane, Tom Ross, Bill Moran and Karsten Schulz made things as frustrating as possible for Illinois.

Ross had an outstanding weekend, placing second in the 3,000 steeplechase and third in a 1,500 run which saw teammate Schulz trip and fall while crossing the last turn.

Ross' 8:41.4 in the steeplechase broke the IIC record, placed him a solid No. 1 on the Salukis' all-time best list, and qualified him for the NCAA meet. Tom Breens had a personal best in that event, lowering his time by 11 seconds, but failed to place.

After trading pacing duties with Illinois' Pete Ffitch, Keane ran away from the pack and won the 10,000 run in 29:15.26.

In the 5,000, which proved to be one of the more exciting events, Moran and Illinois'

Davis leads tracksters at Illinois State

Debra Davis took second in the 400-meter dash to lead the women's track team at the 20-team Illinois State Invitational over the weekend.

The sophomore ran a 55.7, a half-second off her best time of the season.

Two Salukis placed fifth at a meet, Karen LaPorte in the 400 hurdles in 1:04.0 and Sharon Kerry Dickson seasawed back and forth until the remaining 300 yards, when Moran made a move for the finish. Streaking for the tape, with the crowd on its feet, Dickson pushed past Moran and nosed him out for the win. Moran finished in 14:13.4.

Kevin Baker, Dan Jeffers and Terry Taylor all scored in the long jump, grabbing first, third and fourth, respectively.

Baker's leap was 24-1. And in the high jump, Stephen Wray cleared 7-1 to upset favorite Gail Olson of Illinois.

Leidy in the heptathlon with 3,733 points. Leidy was the first Saluki heptathlon entrant ever in the two-year history of the event in Illinois.

Patty Plymire-Houseworth, with a time of 10:14.9 in the 3,000 run, and Cynthia Joy, with a toss of 129-6 in the javelin, both took sixths for SIU-C.

Netters finish second in state

By JoAnn Marciszewski
Staff Writer

The women's tennis team won't wear the title of state champion this year after losing 6-3 to Illinois in team competition in the final match of the AIAW state meet in Champaign. The Salukis faced the Fighting Illini after a strong 9-0 victory over Illinois State.

In the competition for the singles title, Lisa Warrem was the lone Saluki to advance to semi-finals. Warrem was 2-1 in the meet.

Before the trip to Champaign, Coach Judy Auld had predicted her Salukis would face Illinois for the state title if they could get past Illinois State. She did not, however, expect such an overwhelming victory over the Redbirds.

"I was really surprised," she said. "We were really ready. I was optimistic before the match, but Illinois State usually gets up for tournaments and it could have been closer."

The 1-5 mark singles players' against the Illini did not show how well the Salukis played, according to Auld.

"Most of the matches we were in there all the way," she said. "Only two were decided early, and those were Alessandra's (Molinari, 4-6, 1-6) and Maureen's (Harney, 1-6, 1-6)." Warrem defeated Kelley Rickard for the only singles victory in the team competition.

Heidi Eastman, after losing the first set 3-6, fought back to win the second set 7-6. But she lost the third, 0-6. Both Amanda Allen and Stacy Sherman played close matches, but lost in two sets.

The doubles teams of Warrem-Molinari and Sherman-Mona Etchison contributed the two additional Saluki victories.

Four singles players and two doubles teams from each school played for individual titles after team competition. Warrem won her first two matches before losing 4-6, 4-6 to Sue Uranich of Illinois State, whom she had defeated in team competition and in the Edwardsville Tournament last week.

Tulsa edges Valley golf foes

By the narrowest of margins, Tulsa won the team title and Tulsa's Ted Brodzik took individual honors at the Missouri Valley Conference men's golf tourney over the weekend.

SIU-C, in fifth place after the third round at Rend Lake Golf Club, shot a 313 Saturday to close out the tourney in seventh among the nine teams. One bright spot for the Salukis was the play of freshman Mark Young, who tied for 10th with a 72-hole total of 300 to earn the last spot on the All-Valley team.

Tulsa scored a four-round total of 1,179, only a stroke ahead of Wichita State at 1,180. Brodzik beat out Wichita State's Greg Kopf for the individual title.

Softballers strike out at state meet

The softball team was quickly eliminated from the double-elimination AIAW state championships at Macomb, by losing 5-1 to host Western Illinois and 7-2 to Northern Illinois.

In game one on Friday, the Salukis played "tough" against WIU for five innings, according to Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer, but a lack of run production cost them the game.

Down 2-1 in the bottom of the fifth, SIU-C came to bat and with one out loaded the bases. But two popouts crushed the Salukis' scoring opportunity and the team never recovered mentally, explained Brechtelsbauer.

"The score is misleading,"

Brechtelsbauer said. "The first five innings were played like a championship game. When we loaded the bases and didn't score, some of our players got down and kind of fell apart."

"We didn't recover from the fifth inning," she said. "We lost our confidence and our mental toughness."

"We had the bases loaded with one out and the batter worked the count to 3-2 before fouling out to first. Then the next batter popped out to third," the Saluki coach said. "We were one pitch away from tying the game. A hit could have broken it open."

In the following two innings, a couple of Westerwind hits and several Saluki errors built Western's lead to 5-1, ensuring a WIU victory.

Against the Huskies in game

No. 2 the same day, the Salukis were never in the game, said Brechtelsbauer. She said her team had trouble rebounding from the fateful fifth inning against WIU.

The two losses ended SIU-C's season with a record of 15-24. But Brechtelsbauer said that record also is misleading, because the Salukis lost eight 1-0 games and 17 of the 24 losses were by two runs or less.

"I'm disappointed with the way we finished because we have come on strong lately. We have made extreme progress from the first day to the last," she said. "We have the skill; now we need to develop mental toughness."

"We have some good young players, but we need to bring some people in to strengthen a couple of positions."

"It was really me who called that play. In a normal game situation I would not have called for a pass, especially if we were in the lead," he said. "But I wanted to give every quarterback a chance to throw the ball."

Rick Johnson, the Salukis' No. 1 quarterback and starter for the Maroon team Saturday, connected on 16 of 28 passes for 131 yards, including a 16-yard TD strike to Rich Blackmon. Johnson also threw two interceptions, the last of which ended up in the arms of White defensive end Ashley Sledge, killing the Maroons' last-gasp effort.

"Johnson did okay," his coach said. "But judging from past experiences he only looked fair. All the quarterbacks didn't take the time to dump off passes to their running backs, which caused them to get sacked a lot. But that will happen when you different-string players on the same line."

One of the more exciting and confusing plays of the game occurred in the third quarter. With the Maroons ahead 7-3, the Whites drove down inside the Maroon 15-yard line.

But Maroon defensive end Dan Dobbs picked off a

Williams' pass intended for wide-receiver Herman Jett and chugged his 217-pound frame toward White territory. However, with Jett in hot pursuit, Dobbs was stopped at his own 25-yard line, where Jett stripped him of the ball.

Jett did an about-face and raced down the sideline for a touchdown, giving the Whites a 9-7 lead.

The intrasquad contest brought to a close the Salukis' spring training. And judging from the pre-season drills, Dempsey said he is still "concerned" with the rebuilding of the offensive line.

Tracksters burn foes for tenth state crown

By Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

It must have been Cham-paign.

The men's track and field team could do no wrong at the 14th annual Illinois Intercollegiate over the weekend. The Salukis literally blasted the 15-team field by scoring a record 275 points, well ahead of second-place Illinois' 130 total. Illinois State placed third with 84 points.

SIU-C heated up early, scoring 68 points on the first day of competition to lead the field and advance 13 qualifiers to the finals Saturday. The Salukis caught fire on Saturday, burning the field with 13 first- and nine second-place finishes to assure them of their 10th IIC win. Illinois had won the title the last two years.

"The only thing I can say to you guys is that you are all super," Coach Lew Hartzog said to his tracksters moments after the meet. "You did some things today. You did some unreal things today. What else can I say?"

Most of the smoke came from the heels of Mike Franks, the arm of John Smith and the versatility of John Sayre. The trio combined for 78 points, capturing seven firsts and three seconds.

Franks was awesome. The 18-year-old freshman was near perfect, winning the 100-meter dash in 10.45 and the 200 in 20.83, and anchoring both the 400 and 1,600-relay teams to victory.

In the preliminary heat Friday, Franks, running his first 200 in almost a month, was clocked at a sizzling 20.82. That time was good enough to qualify him for the NCAA Championships and erase former Saluki great Ivory Crockett's record set in 1972.

In the 1,600 relay, a weary Franks, after running three races earlier and five the day before, still managed to complete a 48.3 split, despite "footsteps" that were fast approaching.

"I heard him on the back stretch, but I couldn't see him," Franks said of the Western Illinois anchor, who was gaining with about 50 yards left. "But I knew I had enough strength left. It was no problem."

Despite two new faces, the Saluki 1,600 relay still won. Mark Hill and Javell Heggs replaced Tony Adams and Parry Duncan and came away with a 3:11.12. Hill, Heggs and Geary all ran splits of 47 seconds.

John Smith continued his domination in the weights by placing first in the hammer throw and grabbing a pair of seconds in the shot put and discus. The Saluki junior, who had chalked up 28 points by the end of the meet, said though he was a little weary, beating Illinois was worth the sweat.

"It's so nice to beat these guys as bad as we did in the weight events," said Smith. "I was pretty tired after the hammer, but I'm used to it. I do it every day in practice."

John's cousin Tom Smith and Ron Marks placed in the hammer, while David Featherston grabbed an unexpected fourth in the shot put.

In the individual point department, John Smith was topped only by Sayre, who defended his decathlon title by scoring 7,538 points and establishing himself as one of the top 10 decathletes in the nation.

Sayre earned his meet-leading 28 points with first-place triumphs in the decathlon and the javelin and a second in the pole vault. Teammate Andy Geiger won the pole vault with a leap of 16-2, while Jim Sullivan placed fourth.

Saluki quarter-miler Adams, who vowed he'll be in the 45-second range by the conference meet, had an "easy" day. He won the talent-rich 400 dash, where most of the competition came from teammates Randy Geary and Mark Hill. Adams qualified for the NCAA meet in the 400 while dropping former Saluki Terry Erickson's eight-year record with a 46.1.

Geary, who was so far ahead in his preliminary heat that he literally trotted in, was second in 46.4, and Hill finished fourth in 47.4.

Salukis split series to earn playoff spot

By Steve Metsch

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. — The Salukis split a double-header against Indiana State here Sunday to assure themselves a spot in the Missouri Valley Conference's Eastern Division playoffs.

SIU-C won the first game 6-3 and lost the second game 3-0. The Salukis and Sycamores split a double-header Saturday, with ISU winning the first game 6-5 in nine innings and the Salukis taking the nightcap 4-2 in eight.

The Salukis ended their Valley schedule with a 7-5 record and can finish no lower than second place. Indiana State and Illinois State are tied for second at 4-4. Bradley is 5-7.

Illinois State will play Indiana State in a four-game series next weekend in Terre Haute. Depending on the outcome, the Salukis either will be tied for first or have sole possession of first. If either Illinois State or Indiana State wins three games, that team will have to face the Salukis in a one-game playoff in Carbondale.

The Valley tournament will be held May 14-17 at the Eastern champ's field.

"I'm not disappointed. We did what we had to do," said Saluki Coach Itchy Jones. "This division is always like this."

The Salukis got off to a quick start in game one Sunday, scoring three runs.

Corey Zawadzki led off with his first career homer, and Mike Mesh tripled in two runs to give SIU-C the early lead.

The Salukis added three more runs in the fifth when Jim Reboulet singled home Zawadzki, who had tripled to left center. One out later, Kurt Reid belted a 390-foot home run.

Although starting pitcher Rick Wysocki said he felt better in the late going, he had to leave in the seventh inning when he was touched for three runs. Jerry Halstead relieved Wysocki with two out and two men on and got Sycamore Dave Browning to ground out to end the game.

Wysocki improved his record to 4-3 and Halstead earned his fourth save.

"My goal was a shutout," said Wysocki. "I really wanted these guys after we lost Saturday's first game."

Tom Caulfield started for the first time in 11 days, but was on the short end of the score in game two.

"I don't think the layoff hurt me," Caulfield said. "They just hit the ball hard."

Caulfield allowed two runs in the fifth and one in the sixth to see his record drop to 3-1.

The Salukis, despite hitting the ball well, managed just four hits off Sycamore starter Mark Walberg. Walberg, in his first start of the year, struck out five and walked two to improve his record to 2-1.

"Walberg just threw well," said Jones. "Indiana State knew they had to win this one."

Overall, the Salukis are 28-18 and the Sycamores are 36-18.

Tennis team places fourth at MVC meet

The men's tennis team, weakened by the early elimination of three singles players, placed fourth at the 10-team Missouri Valley Conference Championships over the weekend in Wichita, Kan.

Three-time defending champion Wichita State had no trouble winning the title, capturing four singles championships and all three doubles contests. The Shockers ended with 72 points, followed by Tulsa at 55, New Mexico State at 46 and the Salukis at 45.

Coach Dick LeFevre said three players, David Filer, Lito Ampon and Gabriel Coch, were the only singles players to make it to the semi-finals for the Salukis. None could get past their semi-final contests.

Gridders play 'heated' squad game

By Bob Moran
Staff Writer

Even to the some 500 casual observers at sun-baked McAndrew Stadium Saturday afternoon, the football team's annual Maroon and White game was more than just a spring training scrimmage.

It was a close-knit contest, something Coach Ray Dempsey planned on, which saw the White prevail 16-14 on a Rich Williams to Mike O'Day touchdown pass in the waning moments of the fourth quarter.

"I thought for awhile that the heat would get to get to the players," Dempsey said. "We haven't had the chance to practice in such hot weather, but both teams did well despite the heat."

Moments before the winning strike, Maroon reserve quarterback Pat Reitmeyer came in for his first set of downs, which didn't last too long. On the first play of the series the sophomore fired an errant pass that landed in the hands of White defensive end Dan Wetzel at the Maroon 35-yard line.

Wetzel returned the ball to the 21, and three plays later Williams lofted the winning pass to wide-open O'Day, who rambled into the end zone untouched.

"The teams were evenly matched, so it turned out to be a competitive ballgame," Dempsey said Sunday.

"Even though the teams were evenly split, it also provided for some of the errors," he said. "There wasn't the consistency you'd normally see because first-teamers and second-teamers were playing together on both sides."

Dempsey took responsibility for the Reitmeyer pass that wound up a Maroon turnover.
