Faculty Senate elects president

By Terry Levecke
Staff Writer

Lawrence Dennis, professor in educational leadership, was elected Faculty Senate president Thursday by a vote of 21-0 with one abstention.

Dennis, who has been at SIUC since 1968, is serving the second year of a two-year term. Dennis served on the Faculty Senate from 1978 to 1980, and was president of the 1979-80 senate.

Dennis said he would like to see it determined what jurisdiction belongs to the senate and what belongs to the Graduate and Professional Student Council in the coming year.

Dennis said he also thinks the senate will be getting involved in collective bargaining, an issue that has been drawing support and attention among university faculties and the Illinois Legislature in the past year.

Donald Ugent professor in botany, was unanimously elected vice president.

Members were also elected to the Committee on Committees, a group responsible for appointing positions within the jurisdiction of the senate.

Robert Griffin, associate professor of English; Kenneth Danhof, associate professor in computer science; John Gregory, professor in mathematics; Ruth Bauner, associate professor in library sciences; Paul Yambert, professor in forestry; Gola Waters, professor of finance; and Michael Altekruze professor in guidance and educational psychology were elected to the committee.

Candidates divided on illegal alien issue

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Presidential candidates courting votes in border areas of Texas and California are being confronted with a potent election-year issue -- efforts in Congress to curb illegal immigration.

All three Democrats running for the nomination staunchly oppose the core of the administration-backed measure -- sanctions against employers who hire illegal aliens -- but from there, positions and solutions vary.

In his attempt to bring Hispanics into his "rainbow coalition," the Rev. Jesse Jackson has called for a blanket amnesty for all illegals in the country.

Sen. Gary Hart has emphasized an international approach to curbing the flow of illegals. Walter Mondale, campaigning in Beaumont, Texas, said he favored "stronger enforcement at the border, beefing up the border patrol and the immigration service." He supports a bill put forward by Hispanic members of Congress which rejects sanctions and beefs up border patrols.

CAMPAIGNING OVER the weekend, Hart told Mexican-American voters in El Paso the "real solution for the immigration problem will not occur until the Mexican economy turns back up." He called for "a much more creative bilateral economic policy for development of the Mexican economy."

Hart said "the bitter in that (immigration) legislation outweighs the sweet," contending the sanctions "discriminate very strongly and harshly against Mexican-Americans."

U.S. industries encouraged by nuclear pact

NEW YORK (AP) -- The U.S.-Chinese nuclear cooperation agreement signed Monday gives American manufacturers such as Westinghouse and General Electric an entree into an already spirited bidding war with the British, French, Japanese and West Germans.

While there's no guarantee the pact will bring new business to the American nuclear plant makers, industry experts are confident they'll get their share of work on the 10 to 12 units the Chinese will build in the next decade.

"The other countries have certainly had a head start, but we've got a good product," said Bob Szalay, senior vice president of Atomic Industrial Forum, an industry trade group.

Szalay, who accompanied about 25 American scientists and manufacturers' representatives to Peking and three other cities in October, said he's sure the other countries have been busy "trying to negotiate for the other plants."

"But I'm sure the American manufacturers will be ready to get off the starting line and get in there with the information and proposals necessary to make them competitive," he said.

General Electric, for example, has been meeting with Chinese nuclear representatives since 1979, awaiting government approval to take the process further.

Despite lagging sales in the United States, both GE and Westinghouse have been doing extensive nuclear business overseas. Both are building or have built plants or parts of plants in Japan, Spain, Taiwan and Italy.

Gus Bode says what's good for General Electric is good not only for the U.S. but for China, too.

Simon launches 'Phase II'

Bill for lost children continues

By Phillip Fiorini
Staff Writer

U.S. Rep. Paul Simon has launched a second-stage measure for "an early warning system," to help solve or prevent the thousands of missing children cases that occur every year.

The $10 million "Phase II" of Simon's bill, which will be addressed by the House of Representative in mid-May, establishes a national resource center, which would assist state and local governments in spreading the word about successful new technique and approaches to finding missing children, said David Carle, spokesman for Simon.

The Missing Children Assistance Act would create a national toll-free hotline for gathering tips on the whereabouts of missing children. The resource center would be administered by the U.S. juvenile justice office within the Department of Justice.

Simon, in a press release, said the bill addresses "a national problem that brings heartbreak and often unspeakable tragedy to the lives of thousands of children and their parents each year."

"The resource center will be where we pull information together, where we detect patterns, where we learn how we can be more helpful in finding missing children," Simon said, who is running for U.S. Senate.

Simon's measure also stresses the need for public and non-profit agencies to launch research, demonstration or service programs such as voluntary fingerprinting and "stranger awareness instruction" for youngsters, said Carle.

Problems have stymied past searches for missing children, the majority of which are runaways, said Carle, because searches are launched too late and are done with too little information.

Periodic reports would be used to gauge the scope of the problem, he said, and for the development of a national policy to help coordinate prevention and rescue efforts that have already been implemented by several state and local governments.

Annually, as many as 1.8 million children disappear from their homes. Most are runaways, which eventually return home, unharmed, said Carle. But about 150,000 are taken by estranged parents and thousands of others are abducted by strangers seeking a child.

Some children are used for prostitution, child pornography or other purposes, while 4,000 or more are later found dead, he said. Estimates show that 20,000 to 50,000 missing children cases go unsolved in the United States each year.

Last year, Simon wrote the initial legislation that broadened the use of the FBI's central crime computer in searches for missing children. That bill was co-sponsored by Sen. Paula Hawkins, of Florida.

Senate passes bill protecting abortion restraints from courts

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Anti-abortion forces Monday pushed a measure through the Illinois Senate which they said would shield state abortion restrictions from court challenges.

The measure also would add a new provision preventing a woman from having an abortion because she was unhappy with the sex of the fetus.

Final action came on a 34-14 vote, above the objections of several lawmakers who protested the bill was not fully understood and that legislators had not had enough time to review it.

A brief Senate staff analysis of the measure circulated to members said it could not offer a recommendation because the legal staff had not been able to review the bill, approved by the House last Thursday.

"I would suggest we do something that makes a little sense," said Sen. William Marovitz, D-Chicago, urging that consideration of the measure be put off for another day. "You're going to pass it when it comes up, anyway," he said, referring to the strong anti-abortion sentiment among lawmakers.

"We ought to be ashamed of ourselves for continuing to pass legislation that is struck down," Marovitz said.

The General Assembly regularly passes measures to fine-tune the omnibus abortion law enacted in 1975, in reaction to court decisions gutting parts of the law. Gov. James Thompson usually vetoes such measures and his veto usually is overridden, leading to more court challenges.

Thompson last year vetoed a bill requiring both parents to be notified when someone under age 18 seeks an abortion, but the veto was overturned. The law was blocked by a federal court in Chicago and final resolution of the challenge is still pending, said Nancy Bothne of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Ms. Bothne complained the measure sent to Thompson Monday "is almost entirely unconstitutional."

Mondale criticized employer sanctions as "a very bad idea" and said "employers who would be subject to criminal penalties would be very reluctant to hire people with accents, Hispanics or others, for fear of getting into trouble."

Mondale said that he backed "some form of amnesty," but that he feared the proposed legislation would lead to some form of identity card.

The alternative would also provide more resources to enforce existing labor laws, with the idea that employers hire illegal aliens because they can be exploited.

THE LEGISLATION - the first overhaul of U.S. immigration law in three decades - is of particular interest to the nation's 16 million Hispanic citizens. They are the country's largest growing minority and a voting bloc of key importance to the Reagan administration and to Democrats desirous of holding onto a traditional ally.

The overwhelming majority of illegals are believed to be Hispanics. Estimates vary, and no one knows for sure how many are in the country, but illegals are believed to number anywhere from 3 million to 13 million.

A recent Census Bureau report estimates that the legal U.S. Hispanic population numbers nearly 16 million, and that over 50 percent reside in California and Texas, with sizeable concentrations in New York, Florida and Illinois. In the fall, those states will provide more than half the electoral votes needed to elect a president.

Rep. Martin Frost, D-Texas, says "there is a lot of concern" in his states over the immigration bill. Frost is a member of the House Rules Committee, which is considering how the legislation will be handled when it is expected to reach the floor in May.

HISPANIC LOBBYING organizations fear its penalties might encourage employers to discriminate against Hispanics, even if they are legal citizens, and that some provisions of the bill calling for worker certification could lead to a national identity card.

News Roundup

State court will hear botulism suits

PEORIA (AP) - Lawsuits stemming from last fall's botulism outbreak, the third worst in the nation, must be heard in state court, a U.S. Bankruptcy Court judge ruled Monday.

Bankruptcy Judge Max Lipkin said he didn't want a reorganization plan filed by Skewer Inn, the restaurant where the outbreak occurred last October, to get bogged down with simultaneous arguments in the civil damage suits.

An attorney for the inn said business had fallen sharply since the incident and had requested that more than 21 suits filed in the inn be transferred from state circuit court to the federal bankruptcy court. The inn has gone to bankruptcy court seeking protection from creditors.

Economic indicators fall 1.1 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government's main gauge of future economic activity turned down sharply last month after 18 consecutive increases, signaling slower growth but no recession, economists said Monday.

The Commerce Department reported that its Index of Leading Indicators dropped 1.1 percent in March, ending the longest string of advances for the index since the end of World War II.

The Reagan administration sought to minimize the significance of the decline, blaming much of it on bad weather. Analysts said it was further proof that the nation will see much slower economic growth for the rest of the year.

High court libel ruling favors media

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court, in a decision that could save news organizations millions of dollars annually, ruled Monday that appeals courts have broad power to second guess trial courts in libel cases.

The 6-3 ruling, greeted with a sigh of relief by news media representatives, killed a $210,905 award to a stereo loud-speaker manufacturer that had sued Consumer Reports magazine.

Public input sought on new county jail

By Debra Colburn
Staff Writer

The Jackson County Jail has been a part of the courthouse in Murphysboro since 1929 and it's time for a change.

Jackson County is one of several counties in Southern Illinois that must make its jail conform with the state's jail standards by Jan. 1, 1986.

The main violations are lack of space and exercise facilities, said William J. Kilquist, Jackson County sheriff.

The state sets standards for jails that include guidelines on almost all aspects of the facility. For example, standards are set for the preparation and serving of food, mail delivery, security, medical care and even educational needs, especially for juveniles.

Kilquist, in describing the ideal jail facility, listed several specific needs. One is the need to segregate prisoners according to the offense. Kilquist pointed out that it wouldn't be good to put a person charged with a driving offense in the same cell with someone who is suspected of murder.

Other needs he listed include an exercise facility; good interview rooms; adequate facilities for the preparation of food; storage areas; a room for medical examinations; a conference room; and a place to house juvenile offenders that is out of sight and sound of the general population of inmates.

Each of the 16 jail cells has four bunk beds as well as toilet facilities. Up to 64 inmates can be housed there at one time, but Kilquist said he is hesitant about filling the jail to capacity.

On the average, about 30 to 35 people are in the jail each day. Some only stay two to three days while others may stay as long as a year, depending on what happens with their trial.

The jail doesn't have minimum and maximum security areas, but Kilquist said some areas are more secure than others and the high-risk people are housed in those areas. Two cells with four bunks each are reserved for female inmates.

Kilquist said that the new building might cost about $4 million, but that the price may vary depending on the needs of the jail.

He said the Jackson County Board has been working on the project for about four years and hasn't been able to devise a plan to renovate or replace the present jail in a way that is acceptable to the general public.

A community meeting will be held May 24 at the Carbondale Ramada Inn to discuss planning of the new jail. Kilquist said the board is trying to get the public involved.

"There are a lot of people out there with expertise that we can tap to build the best building we can," he said.

The location for the new jail hasn't been decided yet. Kilquist said some of the things to be considered before the decision is made include transportation, security to and from the jail and staffing.

"We need to be able to have a facility that can be expanded if we need to do that. We need to look into the possibility of housing federal prisoners for money. We're not in the business of making money, but I don't feel we should be losing anything either," he said.

A date for the beginning of construction hasn't been set yet because the project is still in the planning stage.

Storm rips Midwest; 3 dead

By the Associated Press

A killer storm tore into the Midwest with hurricane-force winds and up to a foot of soggy snow Monday, closing roads and cutting power lines to tens of thousands of homes and businesses.

The winds, which gust to 81 mph at Waukesha Wis. — and almost as strong in many areas of Michigan, Iowa, Illinois and Indiana — were caused by the same storm system that spawned twisters Sunday from Oklahoma and Mississippi into Wisconsin, killing one person, injuring more than 60 and leveling scores of homes.

At least three people were killed in the powerful winds Monday.

In northeastern Ohio, an 82-year-old Amherst man was killed when high winds toppled a tree onto his car, and a 21-year-old Crown City man was killed when a power line fell onto his coal truck in the southeastern part of the state.

In Holland, Mich., a 27-year-old man on a motorcycle was killed by a falling tree limb in the downtown area.

A single-engine plane trying to land Sunday night at the St. Paul, Minn., airport during heavy snow and high winds hit a wire supporting a radio tower and crashed in Woodbury, killing all four people aboard.

The National Weather Service said the sky over central and northern Ohio had a brownish tinge Monday from dust blown up from Oklahoma and Texas, and visibility was reduced to about two miles. Pilots reported the dust extended as high as 6,000 feet, and forecasters said "many surfaces such as cars and patio furniture may be coated with a thin layer" of Texas and Oklahoma.

The winds were clocked at 75 mph across southern Michigan, and officials of that state's two largest utilities said power was knocked out to more than 140,000 homes and businesses, mainly in Battle Creek, Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids and Detroit.

Northwest Wisconsin was plastered with up to a foot of heavy, wet snow Monday that snapped power lines. Southern and central Minnesota and northeastern Nebraska also got about a foot of snow.

HOW TO GET A JOB FOR $6.49

1. THE ENHANCED RESUME. The employment Catch-22 is you can't get a job without experience and you can't get experience without a job. If this applies to you, a padded resume may be the answer. Be careful. Claiming you were once President of IBM is a common mistake made by novice job seekers. Be imaginative. Claim to be the deposed leader of a South American country. There's plenty of them around and it's very difficult to trace.

2. THE PERSONNEL OFFICER. This person is starved for affection. You don't make a lot of friends saying "You're over-qualified," or "You're under-qualified," or "You're just right but there are no openings." Help this person. Slip him a copy of "Heartbeat City" by The Cars. Every time he plays it he'll think of you and your outstanding attributes. Your resume moves mysteriously to the front of the file.

3. THE INTERVIEW. Let's say you majored in Pottery and now you're applying for the job of Supreme Court Judge. Try dazzling your interviewers with your intimate knowledge of the music industry. Casually drop references to "The Go Go's 'Talk Show'" or "Into The Gap" by The Thompson Twins. With luck you'll confuse them into believing you're an expert in entertainment litigation. Congratulations. Your Honor.

4. THE BIG BUCKS.

In your new judiciary status, you'll be moving in pretty exclusive circles. So it might be a wise move to show you haven't lost the common touch. Be photographed listening to Steve Perry's "Street Talk" in your chambers. As Supreme Court Judge, you'll be earning considerably more than you made as Fry Chef at Burger Barn. But you won't have to spend more than $6.49 for any of the Top Twenty albums at the Record Bar. They're still just $6.49 each.

Make USO senators earn their victories

THE UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT Organization, which seems to take such delight in debating voting procedures and constitutional amendments, should consider fine tuning its election laws

Throughout this year's campaign season, student government leaders bemoaned the fact that there is little interest among students about the USO. Reasons given for this apathy ranged from lack of student leadership to insufficient coverage of USO events. Whatever the cause, the student body proved the USO candidates correct by staying away from the polls in droves.

The USO needs to generate more interest in its elections. Turnout has been steadily decreasing in recent years and this year less than 10 percent of the undergraduate students voted.

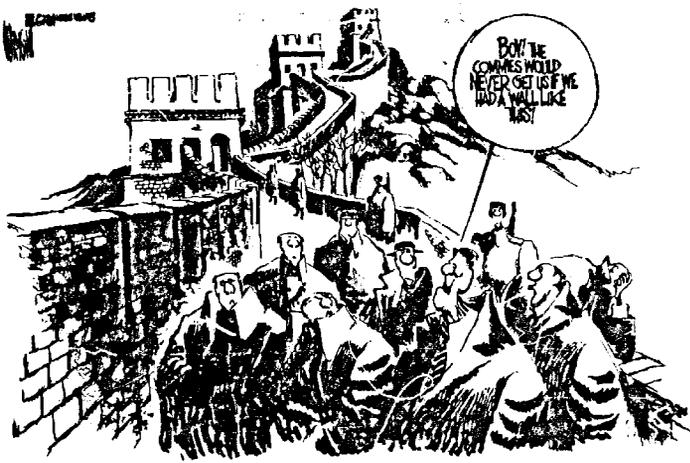

ONE WAY TO GENERATE interest in the election would be to make it tougher for the candidates to win and to make winning mean something. Under current elections laws, any student receiving more than five votes can be elected. As a result, two candidates were elected this year with eight write-in votes from the East Side geographic district in which 200 students voted.

Garnering 4 percent of the vote hardly constitutes a mandate and allowing representatives to be chosen by so few votes further damages the USO's credibility.

A system should be devised to prevent candidates from rounding up a few of their friends on election day to get into the Student Senate. In geographic and academic districts where there are more seats available than candidates on the ballot (such as the East Side district this year) candidates should be required to get at least 10 percent of the votes cast.

A REQUIREMENT SUCH as this would make candidates work harder and, it is hoped, generate interest in the campaigns. If no one received 10 percent of the vote and the seats were not filled, it would be no great loss to leave them that way. In fact, several senate seats currently are unfilled. If students from an academic or geographic areas aren't interested enough in student government to vote, they don't deserve to have representatives in the USO.

Requiring candidates to receive at least 10 percent of their constituents' votes would strengthen USO's credibility and might make the elections a bit more exciting.

Conscientious objection a legitimate act

The recent Daily Egyptian editorial on war tax resistance raises the age-old question of how citizens should respond when government pursues a course which to them seems unconscionable. We agree with the editorial contention that concerned individuals should protest directly to Congress against the ongoing nuclear buildup and against military involvement in Central America. We hope that those among your readers who cannot accept a federal budget which accords "defense" a higher priority than constructive social programs (63 percent for the military and 37 percent for all other purposes) will protest immediately and often to elected officials.

While public and congressional awareness grows with disclosures connecting the CIA with illegal activity in Central America, we believe that we must go on withholding tax money from the IRS. How can we in good conscience pay the administration to act in ways which we consider dangerous to peace and which, if war results, actually endanger the national security? For those who appreciate this dilemma, we ask that you join us or that you at least support our contention that conscientious objection is a legitimate and constructive response in a democratic society. After all, we simply seek the freedom to direct our taxes away from uses dangerous to peace and to promote as best we can the hope that involved people can still encourage peaceful solutions to world problems.

The withholding of taxes in this spirit does not, in our opinion, undermine the ability

DE coverage of lifters scanty

On April 5, the Weightlifting Club of SIU-C sponsored a powerlifting meet which took place in the Student Recreation Center.

The turnout was much better than had been expected. Approximately 50 lifters competed and at one point nearly 100 spectators seemed to be enjoying watching their fellow students move massive amounts of iron.

However, there were no world record breaking lifts by any lifter. There weren't even any world record attempts. Perhaps this is why the Daily Egyptian had no interest in printing a story concerning the meet. Five lifters did shatter numerous of government to finance its legitimate activities, nor does it allow taxpayers to itemize any expenditure not consistent with their private interests. We think that friendly critics need not fear that conscientious objection will subvert the process of representative government or the right of Congress to legislate and to make appropriations. - James Murphy, Associate Professor, History and Steve Lobacz, Director, Wesley Foundation.

school weightlifting records which will probably stand for many years.

The SIU-C powerlifters trained vigorously for many months before this meet, only to get a picture of a record-breaking dead lift with a two-second television station even had a 20-second story concerning the meet on the 10 p.m. news. Daily Egyptian, you're really on top of things.

On April 8, there were numerous SIU-C powerlifters who were winners in the eyes of many, but not in the eyes of the Daily Egyptian. - Brian Webb, Junior, Commercial Recreation

German shepherd lost and missed

On Wednesday night, April 25, my dog apparently broke his leash and wandered away. I have been out every night looking for him and still cannot find him. I have contacted the animal shelter, animal control and the police to keep an eye out for him. I am offering a reward to anyone who can return him to me. My dog is a 7-month-old male German shepherd who was last seen near the 200 block of North Springer Avenue wearing a silver chain and partial blue leash. The dog has an obvious problem in his right eye which needs attention. All those who have ever spent time and effort training and caring for a dog must know how important it is to me to find my pet. Please call me at 529-4841 if you have any information. Thank you-Paul Caccippio, Carbondale

Jesse's 'rainbow' dividing United States

JESSE JACKSON is not the first to use a rainbow metaphor to sell something controversial to this pluralist nation. When America went to war in 1917, someone suggested forming a division from many states' National Guard units. A young Army major said, "Fine, that will stretch over the whole country like a rainbow." Thus was the Rainbow Division—the 42nd, officially named by Douglas MacArthur.

That division was a unifying force. Jackson's monochromatic "rainbow coalition" is an instrument of division.

Clearly Jackson's candidacy is partially responsible for increased black registration. However, that may not mean a proportional increase of black votes in November. And given Reagan's unpopularity with blacks, the idea that but for Jackson blacks would be apathetic is like the idea that but for Edison we would be watching television by candlelight.

INDEED, JACKSON, may yet be another example of Reagan

George F. Will
Syndicated Columnist

luck. More importantly, his candidacy has, as the New Republic says, aspects of an American tragedy.

The New Republic is currently the nation's most interesting and important political journal because it is engaged in a lonely battle for the soul of the Democratic Party, the world's oldest party and, because it is this nation's majority party, the world's most important. The New Republic seems equally dismayed by what it considers the unfairness of Reagan's domestic policies and the unreality of Hart's and Mondale's foreign policies. Regarding Jackson, the New Republic is the voice of traditional liberalism, speaking against the intellectual hijacking of that tradition.

THE MAGAZINE SAYS Jackson's candidacy is another badge of black isolation, and is threatening the dream that made it possible: the dream of a nation no longer obsessed with race. It says Jackson has no experience building interracial coalitions and practices a politics that depends on keeping blacks separate as a bargaining unit. He offers "a vision of democracy as a spoils system, of rhetoric as arousal without persuasion, of politics as an exercise in the cultivation of false hopes, and of policy as sterile marginal posturing beyond the fringes of the national consensus."

Strong words, but not too strong for a candidacy that began squalidly, in collaboration with Syria's blood thirsty regime, and has gone downhill. Jackson, who brims over with righteousness and wallows in the overflow, tolerates a supporter who threatens murder, who dilates on Hitler's greatness and who, surpassing himself, criticizes Michael Jackson.

JESSE JACKSON complains that his thoughts are not getting the attention they deserve. He is right. But the New Republic's Morton Kondracke has cast a cold eye on Jackson's pronouncements and has found "persistent toleration of terrorist groups around the world."

Invited to condemn the Irish Republican Army, Jackson refuses: "I feel an identity with the mission." Nicaragua's Sandinistas? They "are on the right side of history" and "moving toward" democracy and the elections they keep promising will be more free than some of the Democratic Party's caucuses. Khmer Rouge genocide in Cambodia? "Unfortunately...Sometimes the best of people lose their way."

WHAT WILL JACKSON condemn? The United States. He has grown rich and powerful, but, he insists, he has had "a Third World experience" living here. Kondracke asked: Wouldn't you be in a psychiatric prison or internal exile if you tried to organize a civil-rights protest in the Soviet Union? Jackson answered: "This superpower isn't so good either." (He currently is feeling persecuted because the federal government wants his organization, PUSH, to repay $708,431 - $708,081 more than the value of Ed Meese's cuff links - that was spent without proper accounting.)

Many of the New Republic's liberal readers are incensed because it is not participating in the general silence about Jackson's extremism. The silence trumpets the cowardice of other Democrats, black and white. And the silence is another form of condescension toward blacks. It says that blacks are not expected not to talk rock.

She has served on the Graduate and Professional Student Council executive board, the Student Health Policy Board, and is the immediate past president of the local chapter of Eta Sigma Gamma.

Humanities studies important at Marion, former inmate says

By Belinda Edmondson
Staff Writer

A former Marion Penitentiary inmate says the study of the humanities in the prison is important, and called the literature now available to prisoners "garbage."

Akioshiju Ola, who served four years in Marion, said the closest thing to humanities in the prison were the triple-X-rated films and pornographic books funneled into the prison by officials for the prisoners' viewing. Ola spoke Sunday at a day-long lecture series titled "Prisons and Alternatives" at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Carbondale.

While serving time in prison, Ola — with the help of the church's minister, Ted Braun, and a John A. Logan College professor — spearheaded the now-defunct Marion Prison Humanities Project, which was the first program of its kind at the penitentiary. Ola said the project was important to the prisoners because it injected "a bit of humanity" into an otherwise brutal existence.

While pornography was made available to the prisoners, any type of "social commentary" material was kept out, Ola said. He theorized that the reason for this was to keep the prisoners' attention focused to prevent them from organizing into groups and causing trouble for officials.

Prisoners deemed troublemakers were put in "the hole," small cellblocks where they would be held 23 hours a day. Ola said that other methods of punishment included stints in the "boxcar," where there is only enough room to sit down, and an attack by the "goon squad," a team of six or eight guards who rush a prisoner with plastic shields and billy clubs, said Ola.

newsletter Black Pride, Ola said he learned a lot about newswriting, experience which earned him a job on The Guardian, an independent left-wing newspaper based in New York. He said that the prison administration paid little attention to the newsletter until it had developed a readership of 500 outside the prison. After that, Ola said prison officials cut down the number of issues produced a month from four to two.

Speaking before a group of about 36 people, Ola said finding people who cared about prison conditions was like "finding water in the desert."

Persons interested in microcomputers and their uses are invited to attend the meeting.

GLPU tries to provide support network for gays

By Terri Queen
Student Writer

One fall evening during his senior year of high school, Michael and three friends were driving home after a basketball game when their car was suddenly forced off the road by another car. As he got out, Michael told his friends to stay in the car, that he was the one the young men in the other car wanted.

The youths from the other car began calling Michael names and then assaulted him. His friends did not come to help until after the ordeal. Michael was in the hospital for two days with bruises and two cracked ribs.

"He told his parents he had 'smartered off' and 'got what was coming' to him. He refused to discuss the incident and tried to forget it."

Michael is gay. "Faggot" and "queer" were two of the many words shouted at him during the beating.

Michael later was attacked and hospitalized again because of his sexual preference.

Michael's situation is a common one. The National Gay Task Force cited 1,562 verbal, physical and emotional acts of violence against gays in the first six months of 1983 alone.

"WHAT WE'RE probably seeing is the tip of the iceberg," said Steve Geiger, a psychologist at the Counseling Center and adviser to the Gay and Lesbian People's Union at SIUC. "You could probably multiply that by 10 and get a more accurate number."

The gay and Lesbian People's Union is a registered student organization that tries to provide a network of support for people who are attempting to develop or maintain a gay or lesbian lifestyle.

A survey cited by GLPU member Kay Bradford suggests that 35 to 40 percent of Carbondale residents are other than heterosexually oriented, and that the GLPU is an accepted organization.

"The support isn't visual," said Bradford, a sophomore in computer science. The GLPU has about 90 members on its active roll and usually draws from 250 to 300 people at a picnic it sponsors every semester, now called Gayfest.

"The reason we're calling it Gayfest this year is because we wanted to give it a more positive atmosphere," Bradford said. "We can celebrate our lifestyles and be proud as a group."

THE GLPU also sponsors Gay Awareness Week, including the controversial "Blue Jeans Day," which is intended to educate the public about gays and their issues. Held in the fall, Gay Awareness Week provides talks and lectures related to homosexual lifestyles.

Blue Jeans Day asks that people wear jeans to demonstrate their support for gays. Arguments arose this year from people who interpreted it to mean that anyone wearing jeans was a homosexual.

"Last October, the Daily Egyptian editorial staff accused the GLPU of gimmickry and they're absolutely correct," Bradford said. "It is gimmickry because everyone has to think about it on Blue Jeans Day. It is effective."

Kevin, GLPU president and a senior in art, said, "Our main point is that they have to decide. 'If I put on blue jeans, am I going to be harassed?'" In this way, GLPU members hope that the public may see some of the pressures put upon homosexuals through stereotypes.

The GLPU is developing a discrimination clause it hopes will be added to the University's constitution. The clause is intended to stop unfair practices in classrooms and residence halls, places where the group says gay students regularly face prejudice.

that harassment in residence

GLPU MEMBERS believe halls is extreme for gays, but that solutions can be found. One student was continually tormented by other residents to the point that they finally broke down his door and vandalized the room.

"They say it can't be that bad, that you're bringing it on yourself," Michael said about attitudes among housing officials. The GLPU's goal is to "inform housing officials and resident assistants about gay issues and gay lifestyles and that it's not easy living in the dorms," he said.

If gays don't find much support for their lifestyles from traditional sources, where do they turn? Mainstreet East, a Carbondale bar which has mainly a gay clientele, gives gays the opportunity to socialize, and the newly formed Metropolitan Community Church provides spiritual support.

New ISC officers elected for next year

By Belinda Edmondson
Staff Writer

Heydari.

The International Student Council elected new officers for the 1984-85 school year at its last meeting of the semester.

Aris Kotsioris was elected Thursday for a third term as ISC president, defeating opponent David Thien, president of the Chinese Students Association.

Lewis Chang defeated John Abulagi for vice president of student affairs, while Mosena Horton defeated Ebejia Eyembe to win the vice president of finance seat. Chang and Horton will replace outgoing vice presidents Tarun Edwin and Ahmed Reza Kotsioris stressed the achievements of his administration at the meeting, citing the new student-student grant for international students, the elimination of the 1-20 fee for visa processing and the serving of international food in the Student Center. He also outlined the goals of the ISC for next year, one of which is to increase international women's involvement in the organization. Currently, all the top administrators in the ISC are men, said Kotsioris. The ISC will also attempt to increase student participation by increasing the role of the Advisory Committee - a student grievance body - and by recognizing outstanding international students, he said.

Laughter is 'tears put to better use'

Comic writer tries to make people cry

By Belinda Edmondson
Staff Writer

Bill Lewis likes to make people cry. That's why he writes comedies.

"Comedy is the sad stuff you have to laugh at because you can't do anything else," he says. Lewis, a visiting assistant professor in English, believes that laughter is a form of tears, just put to better use.

His recent one-act plays, "The Graves Insult of Them All" and "Living the Straight Life Up in Connecticut," bear the stamp of his philosophy. In the former, a man has a stroke because he thinks his lawn is a 19-year-old woman. In the latter, a group of teachers at "a little failure of a school" live lives of comic inanity, having affairs with each other's spouses, taking drugs and pulling down their pants at staff meetings. Both plays are being performed this week by The Original Cast, a fledgling company based in New York, as an off-off Broadway production.

An off-off Broadway production houses 77 to 93 people, in comparison to an off Broadway production, which seats 100 to 500 people, and a Broadway production, which seats 500. However, Lewis is quick to say some of the worst productions come out of Broadway (he cited the musical production "Cats" as proof of this), and some of the best productions from off-off Broadway. This is his first major production out of Southern Illinois.

Lewis' works, because of their unusual nature, invite extreme reactions. "Most people either like my plays very much or hate them, find them disgusting," said Lewis frankly. "That's all right, though. I work on a key emotional edge—I try to make people scared, I try to make them cry. I want to make people frightened of what they are, of what they can become, of how insecure everything is."

Though a comic writer, Lewis finds no mentors in the current slew of comic material seen on television and in the movie theaters. "Comic writing today is horrible," he said. "It has no real substance." He cites the ever-popular comics Eddie Murphy and Richard Pryor as proof positive. "All they do is play around with dirty words," Lewis said.

Lewis demigrates Murphy's and Pryor's use of the language, has a profound respect for obscene material. "Probably the most civilized thing humans ever did was to tell dirty jokes," said Lewis, who hails the custom as a "sophisticated" form of communication and a humanizing trait in man. His view of comic material is somewhat unusual—he finds Sophocles' dramatic character Oedipus (lately of Freudian fame) "very funny." "Most people don't see the humor in 'Oedipus' yet it was one of the first plays dealing with the individual taking a risk and losing, that's the thesis of life. That's comedy," explained Lewis.

Lewis advises budding campus playwrights not to be discouraged if their productions do not attract a campus audience. "The audience for college plays — I would say 80 to 85 percent of them — have no relation to the college," said Lewis. He believes that while the Carbondale populace is "starving" for good theater, SIU students do not care one way or another. "Students tend to see their world in terms of campus only. Many of them wouldn't go to see a play with a gun at their head," Lewis said.

Lewis, in addition to teaching creative writing, is the regional chairman of the Playwriting Award Committee of the American College Theater Festival and a member of the Jackson County Stage Company.

"What makes this room different is that it is filled from wall to wall, floor to ceiling with live, breathing furry cats. Each cat fits into the others like a piece of a jigsaw puzzle. IF YOU'RE NOT going to take your summer, it would be cheaper in the long run to rent the house and let it go empty.

Having a summer house saves you the expenses of:

1. Furniture storage
2. The expense of coming back to look for a place (travel) and from the city and lost money from time off from work.
3. Lost work from coming back a week early to get your house set up. (If you have a summer house, you can start your work until the last day of your summer break.)
4. Add Travel, Storage and lost work time and it more than equals your share of the rent.

Arbogast wins golf honor

SIU-C senior Sue Arbogast was named the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference's Player of the Week in golf on Monday.

Arbogast won the individual title in the Gateway tournament last weekend with a 238 mark, just edging out Illinois State's Julie Baxter, who carded a 240.

Arbogast had to birdie the last two holes to overtake Baxter. The Salukis won the four-team GCAC tournament. For Arbogast, it was her second collegiate win in her career, and her first this year. Arbogast made the all-GCAC team, along with teammates Lisa Bremer and Lisa Kartheiser.

Bears deal for quarterback

CHICAGO (AP) - The Chicago Bears acquired reserve quarterback Steve Fuller from the Los Angeles Rams for a pair of draft choices, a spokesman for the National Football League team said Monday.

Spokesman Ken Valdeserri said the Bears gave Los Angeles an 11th-round pick in the upcoming draft and an undisclosed draft position in 1985.

Fuller, 27, shared the backup job last season with Jeff Kemp behind passer Vince Ferragamo, but didn't see any action.

The Bears have been seeking another quarterback to back up starter Jim McMahon since Vince Evans jumped to the United States Football League at the completion of last season. Fuller will be battling eight-year veteran Bob Avellini for the No. 2 job.

The 6-foot-4, 198-pound Fuller played his college ball at Clemson and was picked in the second round of the 1979 draft by the Kansas City Chiefs. He completed 57 percent of his passes while starting in 31 of 52 games during his stay in Kansas City.

That wasn't enough in the second game, as the Salukis' comeback attempt fell short. SIU-C trailed 2-0 heading into the sixth inning and then threatened to rally for another win.

Kathy Freske started the inning with a drive to center field that carried over Mia Smith's head and went for a triple. Kelly Nelis followed with a bunt single that rolled into foul territory before rolling fair. Freske had to stay at third, but she scored when Kathy Richert singled to left field.

Nelis had stolen second and went to third on the hit, and Richert went to second on the throw into the infield. That put runners on second and third with nobody out, but the next three hitters popped up, struck out and grounded out.

singled with one out, but was doubled off first when Toni Grounds lined sharply to the shortstop.

Flens had five hits in the two games, and Brewer had three hits and two runs batted in. Maloney surrendered 19 hits in the two games, but didn't allow more than one run in any inning.

Brechtelsbauer got a scare in the fifth inning of the second game, when a hard line drive struck Maloney in her pitching hand. Without Clark, SIU-C has only one pitcher, but Maloney was able to continue.

Brechtelsbauer said her team is in good shape for the Gateway tournament. "The team is starting to jell," she said. "Now is when we're starting to come together. I said all along that this is a better team than the record shows."

Taylor expects to be 2nd-round draft pick

By Jim Lexa
Sports Editor

Terry Taylor, the SIU-C All-America cornerback who last year helped lead the Salukis to the NCAA Division I-AA championship, is a nervous and excited man.

The National Football League draft begins Tuesday and Taylor thinks he will be picked in the second round, possibly in the first round.

"If I go in the third round, I'll be pretty disappointed," said Taylor, who is staying at his grandmother's house in Youngstown, Ohio.

"I wish it was over. I'm getting kind of nervous."

The Dallas Cowboys, St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Steelers are the teams that have been in contact with Taylor the most.

"Everybody is saying about the same thing to me," Taylor said. "Everybody says I'm not that big, but that I'm the best cover guy in the draft."

Taylor is 5-10, 178 pounds and runs the 40 yard dash in 4.33 seconds. Last season, his playing weight hovered in the 165-pound range.

"I'm getting kind of fat," Taylor said with a laugh, "but I'm still as fast as ever. I'm eating pretty good now, not the dorm food at Grinnell (Hall)."

Taylor said he would like to play for Pittsburgh. Pittsburgh is about 30 miles from his home and the Steelers are a playoff contender every season. He met the team's coaching staff and checked out the team's facilities two weeks ago.

"I don't know where I'll go. You never know. Your guess is as good as mine," Taylor said.

Jack Mills, of Boulder, Colo., is Taylor's agent. Mills represents John Harper, the former Saluki linebacker who was drafted by the Atlanta Falcons in the fourth round of last year's NFL draft, and Irving Fryar, the Nebraska wing-back who is being touted as the No. 1 selection in this year's draft.

Former Saluki Coach Rey Dempsey recommended Mills to Taylor. Dempsey was supposed to call Taylor Monday night, but otherwise Taylor said he hasn't been in contact with Dempsey.

Taylor said he'll be seeking a four-year, $1 million contract.

"They're going to have to give up that much," Taylor said, "especially if I go in the first round."

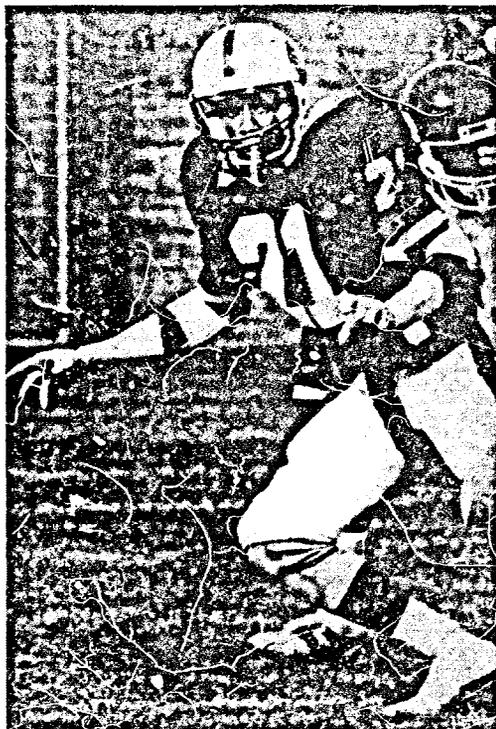

"I'm not getting out there and breaking my neck for no pennies."

After being drafted in the second round of the United States Football League draft in January, Taylor said the Chicago Blitz offered him a four-year, $300,000 contract. He turned it down because he wants to play in the NFL.

Last season, Taylor intercepted eight passes for 96 yards and one touchdown. In the playoffs, he recovered five interceptions, recovered a fumble and led SIU-C's 23-7 semifinal win over Nevada-Reno.

Within a 15-second span late in the fourth quarter, Taylor intercepted two passes, returned one for a touchdown and the other down to Nevada-Reno's 2-yard line.

"With us winning the I-AA title, that definitely helped a lot," Taylor said. "My playoff games helped me a whole lot."

Softballers' double-header split marked by late-inning rallies

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

The SIU-C softball team first won a heart-stopper and then lost a heart-breaker Monday in a double-header at home against SIU-E.

SIU-C rallied to score two runs in the seventh to win the opener 4-3 but left the tying and winning runs on base in the sixth inning of the nightcap, which it lost 2-1.

Saluki Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer was encouraged by her hitters, who rapped 38 hits and four extra-base blows; by her defense, which made only one error; and by pitcher Eileen Maloney, who wiggled out of several jams and kept the Salukis in both games.

SIU-C's top pitcher, Sunny Clark, is still out with a strained lower back and may not be ready to pitch Thursday, when the Salukis open Gateway Conference tournament play. Brechtelsbauer said she expects her senior ace will be able to see some action.

The split Monday gives the Salukis a regular season record of 10-19. They finished conference play at 3-10.

Third baseman Chris Brewer was the hero of the opening game, as SIU-C rallied for four runs in the last two innings to overcome a 3-0 deficit. Brewer started a two-run sixth inning, and then capped the comeback in the seventh, when she tripled home the tying and winning runs.

In the sixth, Brewer singled to left field and then came around when Pam Flens tripled. The next two batters failed to score Flens, but then Kelly Nellis singled sharply to center field.

In the seventh, Nancy McAuley singled to right field after one out, and then gave way to pinch runner Susan Jones. Tonya Lindsey followed with an infield hit, and then Brewer launched a long drive to left field. It bounced off the glove of the left fielder and both runners scored easily.

Until their late-inning heroics, the Salukis had been hand-cuffed by pitcher Sandy Montgomery, who started brilliantly before fading in the later innings. Montgomery struck out the side in the first, induced three weak pop-ups in the second and struck out two more in the third before allowing her first hit, a fourth-inning double by Pam Flens. Montgomery had entered the game with a 17-1 record. The Cougars, a Division II team, are 32-6.

Brechtelsbauer said the key inning in the first game was not the SIU-C sixth, or the SIU-C seventh, but the Cougars' sixth inning. SIU-E loaded the bases with two out, but Maloney escaped with only one run scoring.

"She got out of it and gave us a chance to win," Brechtelsbauer said. "I thought she pitched well. She kept us close."

Men golfers win tourney

By Jim Lexa
Sports Editor

The SIU-C men's golf team gave Coach Mary Beth McGirr a going away present by winning the Gus Doerner Collegiate Classic, which was hosted by the University of Evansville, on Monday.

McGirr had announced her resignation as SIU-C men's and women's golf teams coach earlier in the year. She will take a job at a private club in Greensboro, N.C., she said.

SIU-C outshot Austin Peay State 631 to 634 to win its first tournament of the year, on the 6,700-yard, par-72 course. SIU-C's Scott Briggs led the field of eight teams. The Saluki senior carded a 143, one under par, as he posted low-round totals of 69 and 74 to win first place by nine strokes.

"It was kind of a good way to end a frustrating season for Scott Briggs," McGirr said. "It was Scott Briggs' show."

Briggs ended the season on a hot note. He took third at the Drake Relays Golf Invitational last weekend.

SIU-C had three golfers post scores in the 160s. J. D. Tomlinson shot a 160 (80-80), Jay Sala a 163 (83-80) and Tom Jones a 165 (83-81). Bobby Pavelonis shot a 171 (87-84), but only the team's top four scores counted.

Senior John Schaefer, the Salukis' top golfer this season, did not make the trip to Evansville for "academic responsibilities," McGirr said.

"Since he has a job already, he wants to graduate," McGirr said. "I thought we would win with John there. Without him, I thought it would be close."

McGirr said the experience gained by freshmen Sala and Pavelonis and by junior Tomlinson will benefit them and the team next year.

"The nucleus of next year's team will be formed around them," McGirr said.

Martin named top female athlete

Amanda Martin, a three-time All-American in swimming, was named SIU-C Female Athlete of the Year Sunday at the annual All Sports Banquet hosted by Intercollegiate Athletics for Women at the Student Center.

Martin, a junior from Marlton, N.J., and the school's only national champion in women's swimming (1982), recently sparked the Salukis to a seventh-place showing at the 1984 NCAA Division I Nationals. Martin turned in the highest individual finish of any Saluki swimmer in Indianapolis, copping sixth in the 200-yard breaststroke and eighth in the 100 breaststroke. She also swam on the medley relay teams that shattered school records as SIU-C splashed to a top-10 finish for the third consecutive year. SIU-C Coach Tim Hill, who saw one of his swimmers pui down the top award in the SIU-C women's program for the second year in a row, said Martin was deserving.

"Amanda's performances in major meets have been solid time after time," Hill said. "She's had outstanding swims at Nationals but didn't quite achieve her goals this year. She will only get better and that's saying something with the level she's at already."

Martin currently holds school records in every breaststroke event, as well as a pool record in 50 breast (30.00) and Gateway Conference marks in 50 and 100 breast. She ranks 12th all-time in the U.S in 100 breast (1:03.28) and sixteenth in the 200 breast (2:16.35) according to historical listings by Swimming World magazine. Moreover, the magazine has her ranked in the top eight in 1984 in two events (100 and 200 breast).

Martin will participate with three Saluki teammates in the U.S. Olympic Trials, June 25-30, in Indianapolis.

"Amanda has a shot at the Olympics," Hill said. "Her extraordinary physical strength makes her a solid competitor. Between now and then, she needs to keep working to improve her long course (meters) training."

Sharon L. Sady, a field hockey and track standout, was the recipient of the Virginia Gordon Award, a tribute bestowed each year in memory of the Saluki great of the late '60s who died in 1974 of cancer.

Leidy is SIU-C's first heptathlete and was the Saluki's top-scoring field hockey player last fall. She is the president of SIU-C's Student Athletic Advisory Board. She has received the President's Award for academic excellence from the Gateway Conference the past two years and was the 1984 recipient of the Delyte W. Morris Award.

Dore Weil, also a field hockey standout, was cited for scholastic achievement by the SIU-C Alumni Association. Weil, a senior from Elmont, N.Y., received the Alumni Scholar Athlete Award for being the graduating senior with the highest GPA (3.77) in the SIU-C women's intercollegiate program.

Mary Maxwell, a senior outside hitter on the SIU-C volleyball team, was named Outstanding Leader-Athlete by the 150 female participants in the Salukis women's program. A co-captain who made the All-Tournament team at the Illini Invitational, Maxwell led SIU-C this past fall in kills (277), total spiking attempts (899), digs (336) and service aces (51).

"Over the past four years, Mary has been our most consistent player in virtually every phase of the game," SIU-C Coach Debbie Hunter said.
