State court sets $100,000 bond for Dotson

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Illinois Supreme Court set a $100,000 bond Tuesday for Gary Dotson while the justices consider his 1979 conviction for a rape his accuser now says never occurred.

In a two-page order, the high court granted a request that Dotson be freed from prison pending the appeal of his conviction.

Attorney Warren Lupel made the unusual request during a brief hearing before Justice Seymour Simon and also asked the high court to intercede in the case and bypass the Illinois Appellate Court process.

Dotson, 28, of suburban Country Club Hills, has served six years of a 25- to 50-year prison term for his conviction for raping and kidnapping a 16-year-old girl.

The alleged victim, Cathleen Crowell Webb, now a 23-year-old New Hampshire homemaker with two children, recanted her testimony earlier this month, claiming she had lied because she feared she was pregnant after having sex with her boyfriend.

Lupel petitioned the Appellate Court after Cook County Judge Richard Samuels, the original judge in the rape case, refused to believe Webb's new story and ordered Dotson back to jail April 11 after granting him one week of freedom.

Lupel originally asked the Appellate Court to overturn Samuels' ruling and set bond for his client. But he moved his fight to the higher court when the appellate panel rejected Dotson's bond request last Wednesday.

The Cook County state's attorney's office opposes Dotson's release on bond, but does not oppose the appeal to the high court.

Reported investments protested

Divestment is demanded by protesters

By Justus Weathersby Jr.
Staff Writer

Chants of "free South Africa," "divestment now" and "United the people, we'll never be defeated," rang from a group of about 100 people Tuesday as it circled Anthony Hall several times after an anti-apartheid rally.

People inside Anthony Hall looked out the windows and saw waving posterboards and a thick line of bodies nearly 30 yards long marching and shouting slogans. The march was headed by the SIU Student Coalition To Free South Africa.

Rae Lewis, spokeswoman for the group, said President Somit must know that SIU has $1,308,642.50 in South African investments. The march "is a statement to University officials that we want SIU investments out now," she said.

Prior to the march, Darold Wright, Black Affairs Council assistant coordinator-elect, brought the audience to a roar. "We're here today to add fire to a government called apartheid. Me and my friends call apartheid, apart-hate," he said.

"In 1981 President Reagan allowed 25,000 (cattle prod) shock patrol guns to be sold to South Africa to control the people there."

He said, "We can't go on and do business as usual. SIU must divest now," he said.

The racially mixed group of marchers carried the line around Anthony Hall about a dozen times before proceeding to the Student Center where they began at the north end and marched through.

Apartheid draws fire from speakers

By Justus Weathersby Jr.
Staff Writer

An anti-apartheid rally protesting reported SIU investments in South Africa Tuesday in the Free Forum Area near Anthony Hall attracted attention from passers-by and concern from University officials as several speakers presented ideas on local and national U.S.

divestment from South Africa.

The rally was sponsored by the SIU Student Coalition To Free South Africa, and about 30 people were there at its start, however, the audience continued to enlarge as moderator Rae Lewis introduced a succession of speakers.

Stanley McAnally, president of the SIU Foundation, said late Tuesday he presumes the foundation does not have investments directly in South Africa or in American companies that invest in South Africa.

"NOBODY AT that rally has any knowledge whatsoever of the SIU Foundation's investment portfolio," which since 1983 has been in the hands of Centerre Trust Co., a professional investment firm in St. Louis, McAnally said.

McAnally said he receives monthly investment reports from the firm, but could not say specifically whether the investments are in South Africa.

Though McAnally said he has not seen the figures

Shaw says quality faculty, students needed

By Thomas Mangan
Staff Writer

Changing economic conditions require that SIU-C pursue ways to attract better faculty and students, SIU Chancellor Kenneth Shaw told the SIU-C Faculty Senate Tuesday.

The state and the country are in a phase of "economic transition" that will continue through the next five years, Shaw said. Illinois has fallen from fourth to eleventh place nationally in per-capita income since 1979, he said.

ALTHOUGH ILLINOIS' economic growth is lagging behind the national average, Shaw said, polls show Illinois residents favor spending more for education. The major problem is that they seem unwilling to pay for it through higher taxes, he said.

Quality can be improved at the faculty level by recruiting senior faculty and offering better salaries, Shaw said.

Shaw said the key to improving the SIU-C learning environment in the face of falling purchasing power and continuing fiscal austerity is to improve the values held by faculty and administration.

VALUES SUCH as caring.

Gus Bode

Gus says "economic transition" probably means more students standing in unemployment lines, as opposed to the ones at the Bursar's Office.

Reagan budget receives tentative Senate approval

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, with only two Republicans defecting from the GOP majority, Tuesday tentatively approved President Reagan's budget to cut $52 billion from the deficit by slashing domestic programs, including Social Security. More than 50 amendments were pending to the package, most of which would restore money to programs cut by the spending blueprint.

House vote urges Reagan to reconsider trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House voted overwhelmingly Tuesday to urge President Reagan to reconsider his controversial plan to visit Bitburg cemetery, where SS soldiers are buried, during his trip to West Germany. The Senate passed a similar resolution last week. Reagan, opening his 10-day European journey, said Tuesday he is determined "to carry forward the spirit of peace and reconciliation" of World War II foes.

Assistant secretary of state Motley resigns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz announced the resignation Tuesday of Assistant Secretary Langhorne Motley, whom he called "the architect" of the administration's embattled Central American policies. In his second top-level personnel shift in as many weeks, Shultz said President Reagan would nominate Elliott Abrams, assistant secretary for human rights and humanitarian affairs, as Motley's replacement.

Raw farm products prices fell during April

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prices farmers receive for raw farm products fell 1.5 percent during April, the largest monthly decline so far this year, to a level 9.6 percent lower than a year ago, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday. The department's Crop Reporting Board said lower prices for cattle, hogs, milk, eggs and tomatoes led the decline. The drop was partially offset by higher prices for potatoes, corn, grapefruit and sorghum.

Reagan to press for accounting of Viet MIAs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the 10th anniversary of the fall of Saigon, President Reagan promised intensified efforts Tuesday to press the countries of Southeast Asia for a full accounting of all Americans killed in the Vietnam War. Resolution of this issue lies in cooperation of the governments of Vietnam and Laos, Reagan said in a report to Congress on the 2,477 Americans still missing or unaccounted for in Southeast Asia.

Judge approves UPI interim financing plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal bankruptcy judge Tuesday approved an interim financing agreement for United Press International under Chapter 11 and granted UPI authority to cover last week's $1.38 million payroll. In taking the action, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge George Bason rejected a move by the company's principal owners to push through a $10.8 million sale of UPI this week to an investor group led by a Miami savings and loan institution.

House ends fight for Indiana Congress seat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, effectively ending a six-month fight over an Indiana congressional seat, Tuesday rejected calls for a special election and cleared the way for one-term Democrat Frank McCloskey to reclaim the seat. Democratic leaders said a vote to seat McCloskey will be taken Wednesday. GOP members have waged parliamentary warfare because of the recount and said there would be another all-night session Tuesday night to protest the action.

Consolidation of lawsuits for poison victims planned

CHICAGO (UPI) — A preliminary draft of proposals to consolidate lawsuits stemming from the nation's largest outbreak of salmonella food poisoning was completed Tuesday by a committee representing victims who have filed or intend to file lawsuits. Attorney Lawrence Leck, a member of the Salmonella Plaintiffs Attorneys' Steering Committee, said the draft contains recommendations for the filing of lawsuits and in the collection of evidence but not for liability, Leck said.

S-Senate to decide election squabble

By Cynthia Weiss
Staff Writer

One way or another, the saga of the woes of Tony Appleman and the Phoenix Party will end Wednesday.

SIU-C students elected Appleman president of the Undergraduate Student Organization April 18. But, because of a confusing chain of events, the students did not find that out until April 26 and, even more confusing, still don't really know whether the candidate they elected will take office.

On April 16 the USO Election Commission disqualified the entire Phoenix Party after it had received a number of campaign violation complaints. With too little time for an appeal before the election, election results were withheld until the Phoenix Party could appeal the Election Commission's decision.

ON APRIL 21 the Judicial Board for Governance overturned the election commission's decision, reinstating Phoenix eligibility for the election.

Election Commissioner Lamont Brantley said April 22 that the whole election commission had resigned over the dispute. But April 24 Brantley said the commission members had not resigned and would in fact appeal the Judicial Board for Governance's reversal to the student senate.

John Rutledge, chairman of the USO's Committee for Internal Affairs, said the CIA will meet before the senate meeting Wednesday and consider whether to submit Brantley's appeal to the senate, which meets Wednesday for the last time this semester.

BRANTLEY CANNOT submit the appeal himself because he is not a senator.

Rutledge said he believes the appeal has a good chance of going before the senate, but if it does not, the saga will end and Appleman and his running mate, Tracy Stone, will become president and vice president of the USO.

If Brantley's appeal on behalf of the Election Commission makes it to the senate floor and passes, Dan DeFosse and Mark Case of the Independent Party, who received the second highest number of votes, will become the president and vice president.

The senate's decision is final, Rutledge said.

At the start of its meeting Wednesday, the USO will host an open forum concerning a proposal to fly the United Nations flag on campus.

STUDENT WELFARE Commissioner Ron Glad said that although there has been no opposition to the proposal, he wants to be sure students have an opportunity to "speak now or forever hold their peace" on the matter.

Frank Klingberg, professor emeritus in political science, will attend the forum and give a brief speech on the United Nation's relation to world peace.

"I think it (flying the U.N. flag) would be a fine gesture," Klingberg said. "The U.N. flag represents 159 nations. We have about 100 of those nations represented by students on campus."

AMONG THE resolutions to be considered are a resolution in opposition to the proposed faculty cuts in the Cinema and Photography Department, a resolution in support of the current federal higher education funding levels, a resolution welcoming the Board of Trustees back to SIU-C and a resolution calling for a 50 percent reduction in the current $10 motorcycle parking decal fee to correspond with requiring that motorcycles not be parked in automobile stalls.

Economic indicators show drop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's index of leading economic indicators dropped 0.2 percent in March, a signal that the limping economy is not about to regain speed, the Commerce Department said Tuesday.

The index was one of three negative reports issued within a short time Tuesday that confirmed the badly bruised industrial economy took some more lumps and that American producers, from farmers to factories, were hard hit by import competition.

The reports on the slowing American economy arrived just as President Reagan was leaving for the Bonn Economic Summit. Several of his summit partners will be able to say their economies are finally matching or exceeding U.S. growth, now that it has slowed down so much.

The department reported that all factory orders dropped 0.9 percent in March, the eighth decline in 12 months, and that the erosion was most severe for "big ticket" items like machinery and computers.

Burris criticizes 'Build Illinois' plan

By John Krakowski
Staff Writer

Illinois State Comptroller Roland Burris, in Carbondale to speak at the 54th annual awards reception for the SIU-C Inter-Greek Council, criticized Gov. James Thompson's "Build Illinois" program Monday evening at a news conference before the reception.

"Gov. Thompson has taken a Democratic program that is very much needed for the state and run with it," Burris said.

Burris said that his office has "sounded a note of caution" over the program because "we are concerned with a debt overload."

Rather than establishing "Build Illinois" as a five-year program, it might be better to spread the program over seven years, Burris said.

Burris questioned Thompson's proposed methods of financing "Build Illinois" and his education reforms, calling Thompson's used car tax idea "creative financing."

"Lord knows we need the increase" in education spending, Burris said. "The question is whether the dollars will be there to support the increase."

The problem with "Build Illinois," according to Burris, boils down to it being "the best Democratic program coming down the pike. Thompson just stole it."

Burris told the small crowd that he is not a candidate for governor in 1986, although he predicted that the Democratic party "will have a very viable candidate in 1986."

Burris said that Attorney General Neil Hartigan is his choice for the gubernatorial position.

As for the "Burris in '86" buttons that have been spotted in Illinois, Burris said that the only other positions available to him in 1986 are that of Secretary of State, Attorney General and Lt. Governor. "And I am an attorney," he added with a smile.

EASTER SEALS

and—THANKS TO EVERYONE

Campus activism should be praised

THERE IS SOMETHING AMAZING taking place on college campuses across the nation. College students and faculty are slowly overcoming the apathy that has been so prevalent among them since the end of the Vietnam protests of the 1960s and 1970s. They are staging demonstrations to show their opposition to such things as nuclear weapons and cuts in federal aid to students.

The protests have even reached SIU-C. On Tuesday several faculty members and students demanded that the SIU University divest itself of its investments in South Africa.

The shallow, self-centeredness — embodied by the label "yuppie" — that has tarnished the public's view of college students, is being disproved by this renewed activism within the university community; an activism that has been remarkably peaceful and well-organized. Some of the protests, such as one held recently at the University of Colorado (about on-campus interviews by the CIA), have even been planned so as to cause the least interference with daily routines.

IT IS REFRESHING TO SEE STUDENTS AND FACULTY members once again exercising their constitutional rights to freedom of speech and freedom of assembly to bring about social change. It shows that going to college includes more than studying and socializing; a college education includes becoming aware of world events and trends and realizing that, if these trends do not seem desirable, people can try to change them.

U.S. colleges have traditionally helped students acquire an appreciation for the special privileges that American citizens have, like being able to debate, and ultimately decide, whether or not our government should be trying to overthrow the governments of other nations. And, fortunately, they appear to be doing the same today.

Perhaps, as one sociologist has suggested, the university community is becoming more active because it feels comfortable enough about the state of the economy and the integrity of the system that it members are willing to take some risks. It seems a bit ironic that this group waited until things were running smoothly before it was willing to take to the streets again.

However, whatever the reason, people on college campuses nationwide are looking around and, when they don't like what they see, they are protesting. They deserve to be lauded. If students believe that the South African government's system of racial segregation is repulsive enough to warrant a two-week protest, as was done at Columbia University in New York City, then perhaps the rest of the people in the country and even the world will take notice and something will be done about this and other social ills.

Current session of state legislature favoring educational reform bills

By David H. Everson, Joan Agrella Parker and Jack Van Der Slik of the Illinois Legislative Studies Center, Sangamon State University.

SINCE THE SUMMER of 1984 there have been repeated forecasts that 1985 would be the year of educational reform in Illinois. In fact one of the legislature's last acts of the 1984 session was to pass a joint resolution creating a Commission on the Improvement of Elementary and Secondary Education.

There has been a spate of reports on education beginning with "A Nation at Risk," a national study. In Illinois there were reports from the Chicago Teachers Union, the Illinois Federation of Teachers, and the Illinois Project for School Reform.

After the new year rolled around, the governor confirmed his interest in education by making an unprecedented appearance before a joint session of the legislature to call special attention to the need for reforms in schools.

The executive director for the last of these was Michael J. Bakalis, former Superintendent of Public Instruction. The Bakalis report has two themes: that control of schools should be decentralized, granting more direction and authority to local school administrators and that schools should be run more like businesses, with incentive money going to the most effective schools, and greater pay for better teachers.

Certainly a knowledgeable and able educational spokesman, Bakalis has to be seen as an outsider, offering an outsider's critique to present policies.

IN CONTRAST, an insider's perspective comes from the legislature's own Commission on the Improvement of Elementary and Secondary Education. Its report, "Excellence in the Making," was released early in the legislative session.

Reflecting the fact that both houses have Democratic majorities, the Commission co-chairmen were both Democrats, Sen. Arthur L. Berman (Chicago) and Rep. Richard T. Mulcahey (Duqund). But the legislative members of the commission included seven Democrats and five Republicans, a proportion appropriate to the ratio of Democrats to Republicans in the whole legislature.

Each party had key legislators serve on the commission; mostly veterans, like Berman and Mulcahey, from the House and Senate Elementary and Secondary Education Committees. For example, Republican Sen. John Maitland (Bloomington) is the minority spokesman on the Senate's education committee. Rep. Gene Hoffman (Elmhurst), an assistant minority leader and long-time House Republican education specialist was also a commission member. There were also eight public members.

THEIR REPORT is both politically and educationally sensitive. It carefully notes that because of widespread public dissatisfaction the legislature was moved to interfere in existing legal and administrative practices in the schools. Its study leads to important recommendations about three areas: instructional standards and pupil performance; personnel; and organization and administration.

For instructional standards the commission wants state minimums for student learning objectives and flexibility for local schools to select their own ways to persuade, attain, measure and report students' accomplishments.

In short, the legislature will get into goal setting, but leave room for various implementation strategies to local discretion.

With regard to teachers and administrators, the commission is emphasizing the responsibility of administrators, especially school principals, more than that of teachers. A large increase in salaries is an incentive for teacher quality, but the commission also wants to put teeth into teacher evaluation. Dismissals will be made easier, and continuing education for teachers will be required.

PERHAPS THE Commission's likeliest idea to produce reform in Illinois, but one sure to be a battle, is the reduction in the number of school districts and the consolidation of schools. Illinois has over 1,000 districts and hundreds of school units that serve fewer than 200 students. A large number of high schools serve fewer than 400 students. The pressure for consolidation is going to be heavy, and mainly of an economic kind.

Watch for bills sponsored by Berman and Maitland, and Mulcahey and Hoffman. These are the key bills likeliest to embody the prevailing legislative wisdom for educational reform in Illinois for 1985.

Bode's comment offensive

As a member of the Undergraduate Student Organization, I found the Gus Bode of April 24, very offensive toward our organization. In this issue, Mr. Bode was depicted running and saying, "the commissioners have shown the first wisdom of USO — they're resigning."

If Gus knew the whole story surrounding the USO elections then his discussion of wisdom would not include any recent actions of the USO Election Commission. We realize that one needs a scorecard to keep up, but just who is saying what?

Does Mr. Bode read his own paper?

In response to the decision of the Campus Judicial Board for Governance to overturn the decision of the election commissioner to disqualify the Phoenix Party, the commissioner is quoted as stating, "the hearing was grossly inadequate," and grossly unfair." Therefore he and the other commissioners resigned.

This same commissioner is quoted as saying, "last night the election commission was on trial instead of Tony." Using these poor excuses to quit halfway through a job does not reflect "wisdom" in my opinion.

The election commissioner is further quoted as saying, it is up to the person appealing to prove he is innocent. That didn't happen last night.

Of course that did not happen last night. It's a good thing it did not. According to the USO election guidelines and the USO constitution the accused shall be presumed innocent until guilt is proven.

As a current and former member of the USO at the very least the election commissioner should possess this wisdom.

Any Gus would know that. — David J. Madlener, USO legislative liaison.

Letters Policy

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, whose members are the student-editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a Journalism School faculty member.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by mail or directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten, double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters of less than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters submitted by mail should include the author's address and telephone number. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

APARTHEID: Speakers blast policy presented at the rally, he said he had heard that the figures were based from 1983 figures. Investments of the SIU Foundation "have changed drastically since then," he said.

Andy Leighton, student trustee-elect, said "Racism is wrong. You know it's wrong, they know it's wrong. I don't know if we have investments in South Africa, but I intend to find out as student trustee."

LEIGHTON SAID students should push for change in South Africa until the South African government changes its policies and ways.

Maria Mootry, Black American Studies faculty member, said, "I want to talk about the inhuman face of South Africa. Its racial system of separation has intensified over the past year. What's happening in South Africa is directly related to what's happening in this country."

Mootry said.

"Black women in South Africa face double discrimination," based on their race and sex, Mootry said.

She said black women who work as maids have to feed other families, but can't afford to feed their own and are forced to live in barren areas called homelands. She said the apartheid system causes children to starve and one of every five babies to die before his or her first birthday.

SIX PERCENT of black urban families makes less than it costs to survive, Mootry said, there is one doctor "or every 40,000 blacks in South Africa and the United States spends billions there each year.

"We are nurturing a foul monster. This monster that wallows in self righteousness. We must expose this monster SIU must divest now," Mootry said.

Sally Schramm, International Development research assistant, said she went to South Africa several years ago "to see for myself what life is like under the apartheid system."

SCHRAMM SAID she wasn't allowed into restricted townships, but she said she discovered that apartheid affects everyone — the South African colored race, the Indians as well as the whites.

"The apartheid system not only affects people of South Africa, it affects us in the United States," Schramm said, "As long as the people of South Africa aren't free, we cannot be free," Schramm said.

She said the South African divestment process is having an effect. "We must continue this process. I urge us all to work to end SIU investments in South Africa," Schramm said.

QUALITY: Shaw talks to F-Senate

quality, opportunity, service and comprehensiveness are critical to the future of the University, he said. These values are "alive and well at the faculty level," Shaw said.

Shaw reminded the faculty that caring is the key to good relations between students and teachers. He praised the Maximize Academic Growth in College program in which 180 faculty members have agreed to participate. The MAGIC program assigns a faculty member to act as a personal adviser to new students.

QUALITY EDUCATION and equal opportunity do not have to be mutually exclusive goals, Shaw said. Some critics argue that quality education suffers at the expense of trying to give equal opportunities for a college education, while others demand equal access to college education for everyone, he said.

The University has to try to find the "common ground" between the equal access and quality education arguments to ensure that one doesn't succeed at the expense of the other, he said.

The University should also try to see to it that students come to SIU-C after a "meaningful primary and secondary education," he said, adding that higher admission standards help to improve quality.

IMPROVED SERVICE to both the state and community should be stressed, he said. The kind of services that are needed, such as coal research and health clinics, require sophisticated skills that University professionals possess, Shaw said.

School jazz band to play at local restaurant

By Bill Walker
Entertainment Editor

Daylight-saving time has just begun, but it's already time to turn back the clock — back to the 1930s, that is — for a night of big band jazz with the SIU Jazz Band Thursday at Prime Time restaurant.

The 19-piece group will feature popular tunes from the big band era, said Harold Miller, School of Music faculty member and string bass player in the band.

The concert will give local residents a chance to hear the powerful sound of a big band and an opportunity to dance to familiar tunes, something not found too often in the area, Miller said.

"A group that wants to hear a big band wants to hear that volume, that sound, that power, or they want the sweet sound; they want to dance to it."

Keith Reynolds, an SIU-C student who has organized the performance, agreed that the concert will provide a needed entertainment service in the community.

Although there has been a resurgence of jazz music in Carbondale clubs over the last few years, most of the emphasis has been on smaller groups, Reynolds said. There really hasn't been much done with big dance bands.

Reynolds and Miller said they expect the band to attract a mixed crowd of college students and local residents. They said people of all ages will enjoy the dance music.

Ron Kendall, general manager of the Prime Time restaurant, said he is optimistic that the big band idea will work, although he admits being a little unsure at first.

"I was a little surprised to hear that they wanted to bring in a band that size," he said.

But so far response has been good. Kendall said the restaurant has been receiving phone calls from people interested in the performance, including one from a ballroom dance instructor who plans to bring his whole class.

"He said the class alone will fill the entire dance floor. I told him, 'That's all right. If they fill the floor, we'll just take turns, that's all.'"

Kendall said that if the band draws a good crowd, he would like to have a big band night on a regular basis, at least once a month.

Miller and Reynolds also expressed interest in the possibility of the band's performing on a regular basis, and they realize the importance of the concert Thursday night.

"If we get this first one off the ground, I think we have a good chance to do it again," Miller said.

And the band plans to approach other clubs and restaurants that might be interested in a big band, Reynolds said.

"There might be several other places that are interested in pursuing the SIU Jazz Band as a viable entertainment source," he said.

The performance at Prime Time is sponsored in part by the First National Bank of Carbondale, which has mentioned the event in its advertising and donated money to have fliers printed.

Beatvision offers entertainment, experience

By Martin Folan
Staff Writer

An estimated 23,000 students who pass through the Student Center each day stop near the escalators to view the latest rock videos on Beatvision, an entertainment program produced by the Student Programming Council.

"Beatvision has been going on for about a year," said John Bennett, SPC video chairman, "and this year commercials and promos have been put in, so now we have different programming."

Videos were shown before the name Beatvision was framed around the border of the television, but student organizations and others didn't have a chance to advertise at that time.

COMMERCIALS FOR the blood drive and those shown to promote movies, shows and other SPC events are examples of the advertising that is produced.

Aside from music videos, Springfest, the Boat Regatta and other events were filmed to provide students with variety.

"We have generic video theater, which is a comedy troop performing comedy acts," Bennett said, citing another example of available programming.

Before becoming Beatvision, the video station showed comedy acts, "but that was silliness just for the sake of silliness," Bennett said. "They'd do something silly just to see themselves."

Beatvision is also an outlet for student experience, he said.

"STUDENTS CAN learn how to work the editing system and how to make the videos better. Some of them even work with shooting (camera work)," he said.

At this time, students who work with Beatvision are radio-television majors and cinema-photography majors, but it's open to anyone who is interested, Bennett said.

A student can even see himself on Beatvision, if he is either with an organization that wants to advertise, or part of a comedy act.

"We work with students who come up with a script for an ad. They tell us what they want to say and we help them with the script. Then, we show them the script, and if they like it, it goes," Bennett said.

"WE'RE ALSO working together with WIDB on 'New Frontiers.' That'll be a show featuring new artists and new music, but no top 40 music. That will be on cable, Channel 7, not Beatvision. We're doing the production and IDB (WIDB) is doing the marketing."

"New Frontiers" will be a regular, ongoing show beginning next week, he said.

Rock videos interest the greatest number of students.

"I like the lively tunes and the ones with people dancing," junior George Wolf said. "I like to see the rare stuff, the small band videos."

WHILE WATCHING the Miller High Life comedy special, Wolf said he wasn't enjoying it as much as the videos.

The types of entertainment vary — comedy acts, commercials and rock videos — but the music itself is limited.

"We're not going to open it up. I don't think we'd get a big enough country, classical or any other kind of audience," he said. "I think we found the mainstream, and we want to keep them."

AMONG THE VIDEOS shown each week are Bruce Springsteen, U2, new artists and others, Bennett said. "We put together a new show every week. This week the Hall and Oates video will be on."

An interview with comedian Jay Leno will also be shown this week, as one of the 15 different weekly videos.

Eventually, a request box will be placed near the screen, Bennett said.

"To be there for the students is our No. 1 thing."

Students adapt to wilderness during course

By Denise L. Moore
Student Writer

Their trial began at 8 a.m. Saturday. At 3 p.m. Sunday, it was over. The weekend was spent at Touch of Nature.

During those 31 hours, students enrolled in SIU-C's Health Education 411 — Emergency Medical Technician in the Wilderness — encountered situations in which they had to apply previously-learned medical skills to wilderness emergency situations.

They were away from advanced medical equipment, sterilized surroundings and hospitals.

ROBERT MARSH, program coordinator, and Judy Dickinson, instructor, team-teach the experimental education class. The class sessions require students "to apply basic techniques under awkward situations," said Marsh.

For example, during a communication drill, students had to devise their own system of hand, light and whistle signals.

"Radio access makes life too easy and in most wilderness situations elaborate communications may fail or malfunction," Marsh said.

For the midterm, the class assembled a search and rescue backpack. They individually decided "item for item of bare-bone essentials" what they would carry, said Marsh.

SCENARIOS were set up and emergency situations were realistically enacted when students spent a night in freezing temperatures at Touch of Nature. After each situation, a discussion and critique session was held to analyze what they did and other alternatives they could have chosen.

Not only are students faced with limited resources, but they are also forced to deal with the psychological stress of the absence of medical resources.

"We were given a situation and we had to very quickly sort out all the factors and weigh the alternatives," said Bob Doyle, who is working on a doctorate in Health Education.

"WE HAD TO make life-saving decisions in a very short amount of time. In the wilderness, we had minimal equipment to work with. It prepared us to undergo physical, mental and emotional stress.

Marsh, Dickinson and students agreed that group cohesiveness was a big part of the class. What started as individual students from diverse backgrounds is now a team, said senior Beryl Jones.

Students enrolled in the class have completed an Emergency Medical Technician course or they are currently enrolled in one.

The class presents a stress challenge, said Marsh. The students gain a "sense of confidence in their ability to make judgments concerning emergency medical care and search and rescue operations."

MARSH HAS instructed the class since its beginning in 1978. Due to budget constraints, this semester was the first class offered in about two years.

The class began as a staff training program for Touch of Nature. No college credit was given for the first class.

"People liked it so much that there grew a demand for the class," said Marsh.

Class structure has not drastically changed over the years. It is a three-hour course with handouts given in class. Structure is based on feedback from students. Students and instructors discuss the overall class in an open atmosphere at the end of the course.

Marsh said the class may establish a handbook or manual. "We are looking at extending it to a full semester for six credit hours," she said.

Youth Services Program gives individual counseling

Kelly Beatty
Student Writer

Bill is leaving home, planning to live on the $150 a week he earns at McDonald's. Art convinces Bill to draw up a budget first.

After budgeting for food, utilities, and rent, Bill realizes that there's no money left for entertainment. He does what Art suggests — he decides to work out his problems at home.

Although Bill is a fictitious person, Art Zaitz is a youth counselor at the Jackson County Community Mental Health Center who deals with this type of youth, along with a variety of others, every day.

THE YOUTH Services Program is one of the five offered to Jackson County residents through the JCC-MHC, which provides individual, group and family counseling to youths and families, Zaitz said.

The program assists young people, 12 to 18 years old, who are having problems at home, in school and in the community, he said.

Many young people that the center serves are involved with, or in danger of becoming involved with the juvenile justice or child welfare system, while others may be having trouble with their parents, friends or teachers, Zaitz said.

THE PROGRAM deals mainly with runaway and out-of-control youths, with 95 percent coming from police stations and state agencies such as the Department of Children and Family Services, he said.

Many of the youths can be placed in an emergency host home for one to 21 days, but the average stay is two days, Zaitz said.

"Our top priority is to reunify the family environment and counseling can help all of the family members to work together and stay together," he said.

Individual youth counseling begins with building rapport, then finding the main problem, Zaitz said.

"AFTER WE discover the problem, we brainstorm through problem-solving and work towards short-term goals," he said.

Short-term goals might include getting the youth to go to school and to continue counseling, Zaitz said.

He said that problems generally start with the family, and that youths don't have the power to solve whole family problems. He calls this a system breakdown, as the family is a system.

Family counseling to determine how family members deal with each other can be helpful, Zaitz said. Counseling can then help the family try to change behavior for the benefit of all, he said.

GROUP COUNSELING takes many forms at JCC-MHC, Zaitz said. Most of the groups are aimed at prevention of such problems as teen pregnancy, classroom problems and involvement in the juvenile justice system.

TAP, Teen Action Program, focuses on tutoring, recreational and cultural activities for junior high school students, he said.

Peer counseling, where a friend or someone about the same age as the youth becomes a good listener to the youth in trouble, is used as part of group counseling.

"We teach kids how to be helpful to others and how to promote mental health services to those in need," Zaitz said.

MANY OF THE problems with youths stem from our culture, Zaitz said, where the relationship between youths and adults is not defined.

"Besides the fact that kids age 12 to 18 go through hormonal changes in their body that play havoc with their emotions, they also have to go through 'the rites of passage,'" Zaitz said.

Cocaine, cash found at hideout

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — A reputed Colombian drug smuggling kingpin eluded a police raid for the second time in a year, but officials found 770 pounds of cocaine and nearly $1.5 million in cash at his hideout, police said Tuesday.

Carlos Lehder, an acknowledged Nazi sympathizer with an estimated wealth of $3 billion, fled a police dragnet Friday at a farm in the jungle plains of eastern Colombia near Puerto Gaitan, 156 miles east of Bogota.

A special police unit using helicopters arrested nine men believed to be some of Lehder's bodyguards and confiscated 770 pounds of cocaine and $1.4 million in cash, authorities said.

They also seized a sub-machine gun, two rifles, ammunition and chemicals for processing cocaine. Authorities also found a runway presumably used for flying out shipments of cocaine to the United States.

It was the second time Lehder has escaped such a raid. On May 14, 1984, Lehder fled when police were about to capture him in eastern Colombia.

Afterward it was believed Lehder left the country, but he reappeared in late January and gave news interviews from his jungle hideout.

In one of those interviews, Lehder promised to form an "army" of 500,000 former guerrillas, police and army soldiers to fight the government's efforts to extradite alleged drug traffickers to the United States.

President Belisario Betancur had opposed extradition. But when Justice Minister Rodrigo Lara Bonilla, who had been investigating drug trafficking, was assassinated April 30, 1984, the president changed his mind.

On Jan. 5, for the first time in Colombian history, four Colombians were extradited to the United States to stand trial on drug trafficking charges.

Musical Chair-ity a success in fun and spirit

By Jim Ludeman
Staff Writer

While a world's record wasn't broken, the SIUC musical chairs game was a success from the standpoint of fun and spirit, said Kurt Kuras, president of the SIUC American Marketing Association Chapter, which contributed to the organizing of the musical chairs.

"The crowd was well-behaved, and the people were having fun even though we didn't break a record," Kuras said.

Kuras estimated that between 1,900 and 2,100 people showed up for the event held Sunday in the Arena parking lot. The cost to participate was $1. Proceeds went to the Southern Illinois Easter Seals chapter, he said.

Kuras said he wasn't sure yet how much money had been raised for Easter Seals, but he put the number close to $1,000.

"IT'S HARD to say. We're still counting ticket stubs. We haven't even collected all the ticket revenues from the various outlets, and we've still got donations coming in," Kuras said.

Kuras said there were basically two factors contributing to the lack of events.

The first had to do with the organization of the event.

"We had a lot of groups helping out. It was basically an ad hoc committee, and what we needed was one group capable of handling all the aspects of the event," he said.

The second factor was what Kuras termed the "hangover factor."

"SPRINGFEST was the day before, and a lot of people were just burned out from Springfest and the Boat Regatta," he said.

Another factor that contributed to the low attendance included lack of publicity at the ticket tables that had been set up, he said.

"I'd walk by, and people at the tables would be sitting there reading a book or their Daily Egyptian," he said.

The time change might have had a slight effect, Kuras said, but the people running the event took care of that.

"We sent rousting crews to the dorms Sunday morning. We also sent crews to the library and the Student Center," he said.

KURAS SAID a lot of people said they didn't have a dollar, so the charge was dropped about noon on Sunday, he said.

Kuras also emphasized that a lot of people worked hard before, during and after the event.

"We were there until 10 p.m. Sunday night. In fact, we've still got to figure out how to get the last 100 chairs back on the truck," he said.

The problems and recommendations will be compiled into a report and given to the AMA and the Student Programming Council, which helped sponsor the event.

"It can be done. The record can be broken, but there has to be a committee responsible for the whole thing, including the groundwork," he said.

Railroad relocation funds may come to a halt

By Thomas Mangan
Staff Writer

Every day, motorists and pedestrians in Carbondale wait in frustration while trains rumble through the center of town.

The city has spent nearly $12 million in the past 10 years to alleviate daily railroad-crossing aggravation. But as the Carbondale Railroad Relocation Project moves into its final phases, fiscal belt-tightening in Washington D.C. threatens to bring the project to a halt.

Since its inception in 1974, the $76.2 million Railroad Relocation Project has included a $2 million downtown rail passenger depot that opened in 1981 and the $3.1 million Pleasant Hill Road overpass finished last year, but its most ambitious plan may be in the greatest jeopardy.

THE REAGAN administration and the Federal Highway Administration are recommending that no more federal dollars go to the project, which relies on 95 percent federal funding for its design and construction.

"It's consistently been our position to be opposed to 'special category' funding for these (railroad relocation) types of projects," said Jim Overton, staff engineer for the Railroad Utilities and Programs branch of the highway administration.

Federal highway dollars are funneled to the individual states, which set their own highway funding priorities, Overton said.

Carbondale needs $51 million in federal funds if it is to build

Traffic indicates need for railroad plan

By Thomas Mangan
Staff Writer

Traffic patterns at Carbondale's six railroad crossings indicate a definite need for a railroad relocation plan, said Jeff Doherty, assistant director of the Carbondale Railroad Relocation Unit.

Twenty trains pass through Carbondale every day, Doherty said. The trains can block traffic from three to six minutes, on average. Actual time spent waiting for trains is lengthened by "clearout time," the time it takes to clear an intersection after a train crosses, Doherty said.

A study done in the late 1970s projected that peak traffic in 1985 could experience an 18-minute clearout time after a 2-minute crossing blockage.

a 2.01-mile concrete-lined "rail depression" that will relocate the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad tracks cutting through the center of town 30 feet below ground level, with overpasses replacing the existing crossings.

"THERE'S THIS problem of a $200 billion deficit," said Ed Dale, assistant director for public affairs in the president's Office of Management and Budget. Dale said that highway spending, on the whole, is still at record levels although it has taken a $100,000 cut in the president's 1986 budget.

The track depression would take five years to build, said

Doherty said that 1985 peak traffic levels have not reached the levels projected in the study, but traffic is still heavy enough to create problems.

A traffic count taken last summer estimated that 25,000 cars pass the Main Street crossing each day, Doherty said. Walnut Street crossing gets 20,000 cars a day while Grand Avenue crossing gets 17,000 cars a day.

Crossings at Oak and Jackson Streets have 5,000 cars per day, along with 6,000 per day at the College Street crossing, he said.

Pedestrian crossings at Grand Avenue alone may reach 9,000 people a day, he said.

Construction of the downtown passenger depot and the Pleasant Hill Road overpass have helped eliminate some delays and disperse some traffic around the crossings, Doherty said, but these projects have not come close to solving traffic congestion at the six crossings.

"It's essential to the growth of this city to eliminate traffic problems," Doherty said. "The trains are the biggest problem."

Present train traffic justifies the need for the rail depression, he said. And if Southern Illinois coal becomes marketable even more trains could be using the Illinois Central Gulf tracks passing through Carbondale.

The high sulfur content of Southern Illinois coal has rendered it less marketable because it raises air pollution levels.

Aid Highway Act that included Carbondale as one of 12 "railroad relocation demonstration project" cities.

Gray said he has placed a $5 million request before Congress to complete final design work on the track depression and start construction on a temporary trainway that will reroute trains around the track depression construction site.

"I'd be less than frank if I didn't say we're swimming upstream," Gray said. "It's a matter of crowding," he explained, because similar demonstration plans as well as other highway projects are all competing for funding.

Jeff Doherty, assistant director of the Carbondale Railroad Relocation Unit, but federal opposition to the plan will not necessarily rule out further funding.

"The highway administration budget has never included funding for our project," Doherty said. "The funding has always been initiated in the House of Representatives and sustained by Congress."

U.S. REP. Ken Gray, of West Frankfort, has been a staunch ally of the Railroad Relocation Project. He helped to draw up the 1973 Federal GRAY AND Doherty agreed that it is unlikely that Congress will allocate $51 million in a lump sum, so the track depression construction design is orchestrated so that segments of the project can be built with available money.

Most recently, railroad relocation work has been devoted to the U.S. Route 51-Murphysboro District overpass project on Carbondale's north side. The city planned to relocate a Y-shaped spur of the Illinois Central Gulf tracks so that the tracks would align with the north end of the track depression. Two crossings were to be replaced with overpasses.

Illinois Central Gulf announced last April its plans to abandon the spur because it was unprofitable. The city subsequently omitted the overpasses but continued its plans to straighten a 0.85-mile section of U.S. 51 north and convert the section to four lanes going north and south.

THE CITY saved $1.5 million of U.S. 51 project's original $4.5 million construction cost. This and other unused federal money obligated to the project totals about $5 million, but the city must get authorization from the highway administration before the money can be used for anything but the original purposes.

Doherty said that if the unused $5 million can be transferred to upcoming sections of the project and Gray's $5 million request is granted, all of the work up to actually digging the track depression can be completed.

DE student editors named for summer, fall semesters

By Cathy Brown
Staff Writer

Daily Egyptian readers may notice a few changes as new editors Bill Walker and Tricia Yocum assume control of the newspaper this summer and fall, but the changes will probably not be major. Walker will be editor-in-chief this summer and Yocum will be editor-in-chief this fall.

Both of them hope to encourage a spirit of learning and cooperation at the Daily Egyptian.

Walker, a senior in journalism, said his main goal is "to increase cooperation among Daily Egyptian employees and to encourage more journalism students to participate, including students who aren't on the Daily Egyptian staff."

HE SAID HE plans to visit beginning journalism classes the first week of the semester and encourage the students to become involved and think about working for the Daily Egyptian in the future.

He would also like to encourage student columns on the editorial page and, if possible, expand the use of photo pages, although he knows space will be limited in the summer.

Walker said he wanted to be editor because "I wanted to get as much experience as I could here at the DE. I wanted to do more than write. I wanted to learn all aspects of the newspaper business."

WALKER HAS worked at the Daily Egyptian for two semesters. He has been a copy editor, general assignment reporter and entertainment editor.

His long-term goals include working on a newspaper in the Chicago area and eventually going to law school, which he hopes will help him with legal or political reporting and analysis.

"I believe a legal education, coupled with a journalism background, would be invaluable," he said.

Yocum said she plans to include "more local angles on national issues, and more in-depth stories on how and why things happen, not just on what happens."

SHE ALSO HOPES to make working at the Daily Egyptian more of a "learning experience" for employees.

Bill Walker, student editor for the summer, and Tricia Yocum, fall student editor.

"I see the job as a learning tool, not just a paycheck," she said.

"I think I could do a good job in relating one on one to reporters, and helping them... learn a lot while they're here."

Yocum said she hopes to see more interaction between reporters and copy editors.

Yocum, a junior majoring in journalism and Spanish, has worked at the Daily Egyptian for two semesters as a copy editor. She will be associate editor this summer.

YOCUM WAS editor of her high school paper in Abingdon.

After she graduates, Yocum would like to work as a reporter at a small- to medium-sized daily newspaper, and eventually be in charge of a features section on a medium- to large-sized daily newspaper.

Judith McHose, faculty managing editor at the Daily Egyptian, said student editors must be responsible people who have good news judgment, the ability to manage people, and an understanding of how the whole newspaper works, including the backshop.

The editors are chosen through an interview with the Daily Egyptian Policy and Review Board, which consists of the faculty managing editor, the student editor, and the business manager of the Daily Egyptian, three editors of local newspapers, a journalism faculty member, a graduate student in journalism, a journalism undergraduate and the director of the Journalism School, who is also chairman of the board.

escape because, "I was scared. I was afraid."

Asked how it felt to be free, she softly replied "great."

The shy, timid girl gave quiet, mostly one-word answers at the news conference which ended abruptly when she broke down in sobs and left the room, clutching her sisters.

"I never gave up hope," said one sister, Kathy Cramer. "I knew we'd be reunited someday."

"We felt immense relief. I was terrified for her," said the other sister, Cindy Sadley.

Asked how she spent the two years, Cheryl replied "I worked," but she would not elaborate.

Missing children located within hours of broadcast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Within 15 hours of a televised roll call of 54 missing children and a documentary featuring other abducted youngsters, three of the children were located Tuesday and officials were hopeful of finding more.

"By the end of the week, we hope to have more recovering, more reunions," said Barbara Chapman of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

By Tuesday afternoon, the center received 898 calls of possible sightings of missing children from viewers of Monday's roll call, documentary and an appeal from President Reagan for help in finding America's missing children.

abducted seven and one half years ago from their home in Villa Park, Ill., by their father, who lost custody of them in a divorce proceeding. They were featured in the documentary and were to be reunited with their mother Tuesday.

IN LAKE County, Calif., the sheriff department's said tips from local citizens who watched Monday night's TV program led to the recovery of Melissa Klein, 8, of Springfield, Ohio.

Melissa was reported missing by her mother last June. Authorities said the woman's estranged husband, John Michael, was arrested. They said there had been a restraining order forbidding him to visit his daughter.

This is the third straight year NBC aired "Adam" and followed the broadcast with pictures of missing children.

THE NAMES, pictures and presidential message followed the made-for-television movie "Adam," the story of one abducted and murdered child.

Chapman said a few of the calls came from school officials in Kettering, Ohio, and led to the recovery in that town of Kathy Caruso, 15, and her sister, Debbie Caruso, 13.

Chapman said they were

LAST YEAR, viewers helped locate 19 of 51 missing children whose pictures appeared at the close of the program. In 1983, they assisted in the return of 13 of 55 children.

After this year's broadcast, Reagan introduced the roll call to viewers and said, "Maybe your eyes can help bring them home."

Chapman said as of 1 p.m. Tuesday, the center had received nearly 3,000 calls.

In addition to the 898 reporting possible sightings, she said 166 calls reported new cases of missing children, eight reports of abused children and 1,832 inquiries about the center.

THE CENTER estimates that more than 1.5 million children disappear in the United States each year. Most are runaways or youngsters abducted by non-custodial parents. As many as 20,000 are believed to be kidnapped by strangers.

"Adam" is based on the story of Adam Walsh, 6, who disappeared July 27, 1981, while in a department store with his mother in Hollywood, Fla. He was found dead 10 days later.

Pepsi machines to include lights indicating sold out soda brands

By Bob Tita
Staff Writer

Selection panels for soft drink vending machines with lights indicating when a brand is sold out are scheduled for installation at SIU-C between spring and summer semesters, said Jeff Richardson, a general manager at the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. in Marion.

Now there is no way of knowing when a machine is empty of a certain brand before patrons insert their money. After the money is in the vending machine, another brand must be chosen or the money remains in the machine.

A sign on the vending machine does light up signifying that a selection is empty.

but only after money is already in the machines.

New soft drink machines were installed as part of a new four-year contract between SIU-C and Interstate United Vending Service of Carbondale, the company that services the machines.

"We received a number of complaints when the machines were first installed," said Harry Wirth, director of Service Enterprises at SIU-C. "We told Interstate about the problem and they proposed to deal with it this way (by changing the panels)."

Bernie Walsor, Carbondale branch manager of Interstate United, said the company did not anticipate problems with the machines when they were installed early this year. Each machine holds 480 soft drink cans. He said machines with high use are refilled daily while other machines are refilled every two days.

The vending machines were manufactured by Cavalier Corp. of Chattanooga, Tenn. Richardson said the same company is also producing the new panels with the "sold out" indicators.

The Pepsi-Cola Co., owner of the machines, will be changing the panels on the 140 soft drink vending machines on campus. The modification is expected to take about 15 minutes for each machine, Richardson said.

Official says jobs won't be saved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary William Brock said Tuesday international trade barriers would not protect American jobs, but only redistribute unemployment because "someone always pays the price" of protectionism.

In a speech before the National Press Club, Brock said the United States must resist the idea of erecting barriers to free trade. Instead, he said, the country should reduce its $200 billion federal deficit, reform the tax system and keep up with technology to be competitive.

"Technology probably displaces more workers than all the imports put together," Brock said. "Yet, would anyone suggest we turn our back to the future it offers?"

Brock, who served as U.S. trade representative before assuming the labor secretary post, said there is pressure on Congress to keep out Japanese and other imported products in hopes of helping U.S. industry. The United States currently has at least a $30 billion annual trade deficit with Japan alone.

But Brock warned, "Protectionism is nothing more than the redistribution of unemployment. Someone always pays the price. Inevitably, all of us pay the price."

Brock said world trade has a potential $2 trillion value and the United States should have a larger share of it.

"But to have a chance in that market, we must put our own house in order," he said. "Bring down the deficit, increase our rate of savings, reward risk, restore the lifelong educational and training opportunities, reform the tax system — make it fair — (and) make it recognize that we are in a global economy."

Brock said economic problems are threatening the ideals for which this country stands.

Court appearances delayed in voting case

By Jane Grandolfo
Staff Writer

Court appearances have been delayed for Jackson County Clerk William Harrell and three other Jackson County residents indicted on charges relating to voting irregularities in the 1984 primary election.

Harrell, Carbondale Precinct 2 Committeeman Brady Buckley, Carbondale Township Trustee Freda M. Stalls and Mary K. Lacy of Carbondale are now scheduled for first appearances in Jackson County Court May 8.

Circuit Judge Michael Henshaw from Saline County will hear the cases. A spokesman from Henshaw's office said the hearings were delayed due to a scheduling conflict from the special prosecutor's office.

The prosecutor, Hamilton County States Attorney Alan Downen, and Judge Henshaw were brought in from outside the county to reduce appearances of impropriety in trying the Jackson County defendants.

Harrell was indicted on a charge of perjury for allegedly making a false statement to the grand jury while under oath.

Charges against Buckley and Lacy include forgery, mutilation of election materials and ballot box stuffing for allegedly writing in the name of Richard Gardner on absentee ballots for a position on the Jackson County Board of Supervisors.

Stalls is charged with solicitation of perjury by allegedly encouraging another person, Melvin Howard Jr., to file an absentee ballot when he did not plan to be absent from the county on election day.

Stalls is also accused of unlawful observation of voting, a charge alleging that she observed Elizabeth Pullitt marking an absentee ballot.

Parties result in arrests

Carbondale police officers made several arrests at parties that occurred over the weekend, a spokesman from the department said.

Police officers confiscated a beer truck and arrested five men in connection with a party they held Friday night at 405 S. Beveridge St.

Paul Clayton, 22; Steven Kerr, 20; William Danielak, 22; Greg Lyle, 22; and Steve Rolkow, 22, were charged with selling beer without a liquor license, the spokesman said.

At other parties, additional arrests were made for violating the city's amplified sound ordinance. Several other arrests were made for littering, after people failed to clean up after the parties.

Truck stuck at crossing

A semitruck got stuck at a railroad crossing detour in DeSoto at 2:45 a.m. Tuesday, causing a freight train to be delayed for about an hour and 45 minutes, said a spokesman from the Jackson County Sheriff's Office.

A citizens band radio operator notified authorities of the truck on the tracks. The railroad was then notified and the southbound freight was stopped.

At approximately 4 a.m. the truck was removed from the tracks with the assistance of a large wrecker. The spokesman said there had been "quite a bit" of problems with trucks getting stuck on the tracks recently.

Bears take chance on huge defensive lineman

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (UPI) — Defensive tackle William Perry, nicknamed "GE" and the "refrigerator" because of his 300-pound plus frame, Tuesday was selected as the Chicago Bears' No. 1 draft pick.

The Clemson player weighs 318 pounds, but has fluctuated from a high of 390 to a of the 295-pound level the Bears want him to play at in 1985.

"It was a gamble but a gamble we wanted to take," said Bears' coach Mike Ditka. "This kid can play football."

Bears' player personnel director Bill Tobin noted the club took nearly the entire 15 minutes to decide whether to choose Perry, a 6-foot-2 Aiken, S.C., native.

"We had him down with three other players, Jerry Gray, Mike Gann and Jesse Hester, and we just felt that he was the man we wanted CC defensive player of the year, was confident he could control his weight and contribute to a defense that many consider the best in the NFL.

"I can control my weight and get it down," said Perry, who had 261 tackles and 25 sacks in his four-year Clemson career. "I can get it down and do it on my own."

What is the key to his diet?

"Pushing away from the table, exercise and weight training," said Perry, who claimed he weighed 15 pounds at birth.

The Bears plan to use Perry as a nose tackle although Tobin said he was capable of playing at other positions on the line.

"He's got a lot of character, too. He was so big he would go in the local pizza parlor and people would all recognize him and always send food over to him," Tobin said.

Ditka likened Perry to the "Big Daddy Lipscomb" type, adding he was optimistic

Perry could help the Bears immediately.

"We know that the other teams are going to have to worry about how they are going to play him," Ditka said.

Perry, who indicated "he wouldn't consider a USFL offer, will likely be put on an immediate diet by Bears' trainer Fred Caito.

Caito said he isn't concerned about Perry's bulk or fluctuations in weight.

"We'll bring him in and we hope to keep him here to see what his ideal weight is. There isn't a lot of flab on him," Caito said. "He's got tremendous buttocks and huge legs. But we think he can play at 295 for us without losing any strength."

Admittedly, Perry had a poor performance at the Hula Bowl this year when his weight ballooned to around 375. The Bears were convinced that Perry's statistics, which included an ACC record for tackles for loss in a career and his consensus all-America status in 1983, were good enough to make him a No. 1 pick.

"You can look at it positively like we do or negatively like you probably will," Ditka told reporters.

49ers swap draft choices for speedster Rice

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco 49ers coach Bill Walsh swapped draft choices with the New England Patriots on the first, second and third rounds Tuesday of the NFL draft and came away speedy wide receiver Jerry Rice.

Walsh and his staff had been very high on Rice of Mississippi Valley State University all along but did not believe the gifted receiver would be around when the Super Bowl champions turn came to pick at the very end of the first round.

So the club tried desperately to arrange a last minute deal to trade up in the draft and finally found a taker in New England.

The Patriots, in need of linemen, swapped their first and third round picks for the 49ers first, second and third round picks.

"We thought this was the best trade we could make," Walsh said. "We felt we had to get into the top 20 to have any likelihood of getting a top player."

Armed with the 16th pick overall in the draft, Walsh was able to head off Dallas and Washington and come away with Rice.

"We are extremely pleased to have Rice," Walsh said.

"He's a sensational player along the line of (Wes) Chandler and (John) Jefferson. He has super instincts and is a natural football player. He came make a lot happen in a game."

Last season, Rice rolled up a set of very impressive statistics playing for pass-crazy Mississippi Valley, a small college which ran formations that often included four wide receivers. He caught 103 passes for 1,682 yards and 27 touchdowns as he caught the eye of numerous professional scouts.

Rice also possesses the kind of speed — 40 yards in 4.59 seconds — that Walsh has been looking for on the outside for a number of years.

That search has included a three-year experiment to try to mold world class hurdler Renaldo Nehemiah into a wide receiver. For the most part, that experiment has failed. The impact of the selection of Rice on Nehemiah's status was not yet known.

However, Walsh said he did not look at Rice as a replacement for any of his current personnel.

"We are not looking to replace any of the men we now have but think Jerry can learn from them and move in and play," the 49ers coach said. "We are not thinking of releasing anyone just to have him."

Rice, in a telephone interview, said he was surprised to be going to the defending Super Bowl champions.

"I knew I was going in the first round, but didn't know I was going to have the honor of being drafted by San Francisco," the young receiver said. "They (the 49ers) know how to win and they are a very controlled team."

NFL squads show preference for lineman in 1st round of draft

NEW YORK (UPI) — If they paid by the pound, Tuesday's draft would be the NFL owners' most expensive ever.

However, this year's first-rounders might earn less than the group from last year simply because there is no longer much of a bidding war with the USFL and linemen don't command the same price as players in the skilled positions.

And Tuesday's draft was loaded with linemen.

Led by the top two picks, defensive end Bruce Smith and offensive tackle Bill Fralic, linemen and linebackers got an unusual dose of the spotlight at the expense of skilled position players.

There were six offensive and six defensive linemen taken in the first round. Five more linebackers were first-round selections, as linemen and linebackers made up the first nine picks.

The first wide receiver selected was Al Toon of Wisconsin, taken 10th by the New York Jets. Ethan Horton of North Carolina was the first running back chosen, and he lasted until Kansas City drafted him 15th.

There were no quarterbacks picked in the first 36 selections until Philadelphia took Randall Cunningham of Nevada-Las Vegas in the ninth spot of the second round.

It marked the second straight year no passers went in the first round.

Without the obvious big-name players, going was slow in the early rounds. The opening round took 3 hours 36 minutes — the slowest in 11 years and third slowest since the NFL and AFL combined drafts in 1967. The second round took 3:24.

The draft was reminiscent of 1968 when the first eight picks were linemen and linebackers until Miami selected running back Larry Csonka of Syracuse.

Minnesota, Indianapolis and Dallas — known to be seeking speedy wide receivers — all concentrated on defense.

Men's golf team improves in two Iowa tournaments

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

The Saluki men's golf team improved through a grueling 198-hole, two tournament, three-day trip to Iowa this weekend.

Despite fighting fatigue, poor weather and the disappointment of a 17th-place finish in a 24-team field at the Drake Relays, the Salukis battled to seventh in a 14-team field at Iowa State's Veenker Memorial.

"We didn't play as well as what we expected at Drake, but we turned it around at Iowa State," SIU-C Coach Darren Vaughn said. "This trip was by far the hardest trip we've had. They were worn out by the time it was over."

Vaughn gave no excuses for the poor finish at Drake, which challenged the golfers for 36 holes on the Des Moines Country Club course, the No. 2 rated course in Iowa, and the final 18 on Hyperion Country Club course.

Iowa won the event with 910 total strokes, compared to a 977 Saluki total. Host school and Missouri Valley Conference rival Drake didn't fare much better, Vaughn said, and the Salukis beat Drake by at least 30 strokes in the Veenker Memorial.

The Veenker Memorial Golf Course was an unusual course, and with Big Eight competition, Vaughn was pleased with the seventh-place result.

"It was a very unforgiving course if you missed a shot. If you missed a fairway or green, you'd make a double or triple bogey. There was one par three, that if you didn't hit the green, you were dropped into a valley of trees that was like a cavern," Vaughn said.

Kansas captured the 36-hole tournament with a 606 stroke total, followed by Bradley at 616.

Although the Salukis finished in seventh place at 645, they were only eight strokes from a fourth-place finish and just five strokes from MVC opponent West Texas State, which finished fifth at 640. However, Vaughn is hesitant to judge the MVC race on the basis of previous scores.

"You can play different every day with the same players, so I don't go by that," Vaughn said.

Tom Portner led the Salukis in both events, in the top 20 at Drake and top 15 at the Veenker Memorial.

"Tom is hitting the ball good, and he hits it down the middle. He's got a solid swing, but more than that, he's a smart player. His mental game is good and that's the biggest part of it," Vaughn said.

John Harp also played well at the Veenker Memorial, but Vaughn said the rest of the Saluki golfers need to make strides before the MVC Championship, to be hosted by West Texas State at Amarillo.

"I just hope by the time we get to the conference meet we'll be playing better because we'll have to be," Vaughn said.

Metro Conference announces alleged MSU cage violations

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The Metro Conference confirmed Monday it has notified the NCAA of possible violations concerning Memphis State basketball players Keith Lee and William Bedford.

The conference learned of the possible violations through the MSU athletic department, Metro Conference Commissioner Steve Hatchell said in Atlanta.

Lee reportedly worked sporadically in a pawn shop owned by Nick Belisomo, a Tiger booster who donated at least $5,000 to the athletic program. The NCAA prohibits players on athletic scholarships from working during the school year.

Belisomo, who traveled as a guest of Coach Dana Kirk to post-season tournaments, testified earlier this month before a federal grand jury that is investigating alleged bookmaking operations in Memphis and Jackson, Tenn.

The Commercial Appeal newspaper said Lee worked occasionally at Crosstown Loans, the shop Belisomo owned.

The possible infraction concerning Bedford stemmed from his use of a 1983 Jaguar sports car owned by Ricky Allen, vice president of a firm that donates $5,000 or more to the MSU athletic program annually.

NCAA rules forbid players from borrowing cars from boosters because it is not a benefit available for all students.

Bedford was involved in an auto accident in the Jaguar April 20, when he was cited for driving without a license. On April 3, he was ticketed for speeding 50 MPH in a 40 MPH zone in a 1985 Lincoln. Records show it was owned by Airport Rental.

He was also ticketed last November for driving 45 MPH in a 35-MPH zone. At that time, he was driving a 1984 Chevrolet Corvette, which is owned by Chuck Hutton Chevrolet.

Both Airport Rental and Chuck Hutton Chevrolet have donated money to MSU. But officials at the companies said they were unaware Bedford was driving cars registered to their business.

Upshaw named top AL player

OAKLAND, Cal. (UPI) — Toronto Blue Jays' first baseman Willie Upshaw has been named the American League Player of the Week, league officials announced Monday.

Upshaw led Toronto to four straight victories by hitting three home runs and collecting six runs batted in.

Two weeks ago, Upshaw was struggling at the plate, having just one homer and four RBI. Upshaw corrected the slump when he discovered he had unconsciously altered his batting grip.

"I saw the hands were a lot higher than they were last season," the 28-year old Upshaw said. "That was all I needed."

Football Cards draft Nunn

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis football Cardinals Tuesday used their first-round draft pick to nab pass rusher Freddie Joe Nunn of Mississippi and sought to close the gap in their offensive line with their next pick.

The Cardinals, who had the 18th pick in the first round, said the 6-foot-4, 223-pound Nunn would provide immediate help as a rusher on passing downs and also would be developed as an outside linebacker.

In his senior year at Ole Miss, Nunn totaled 123 tackles and was chosen as a first-team UPI All-American. Nunn was voted the Most Valuable Player in the Hula Bowl with 10 tackles, three quarterback sacks and a fumble recovery.

"He's a fine pass rusher from the down lineman position," Cardinal coach Jim Hanifan said. "We hope to work him as a weak side linebacker."

The Cardinals have E.J. Junior manning the inside but need help at the outside linebacker position.

In the second round, the Cardinals sought to fill the hole left by the defection of left offensive tackle Luis Sharpe to the United States Football League.

St. Louis took defensive end Scott Gergold of Wisconsin but said the 6-foot-7, 260-pound athlete would be switched to the offensive line.

Gergold, who talked to the media via telephone from Madison, Wis., said, "When you think about it, I've got to learn things I've tried to get away from when I played defense. I feel like I've got good, quick feet for pass blocking. It's going to be wait and see."

"As of today, he's an offensive tackle," Hanifan said. Although Gergold hasn't played offense in high school, Hanifan replied "hell yes" when he was asked if Gergold could start as an offensive lineman in the NFL.

Rugby women win St. Louis tourney

The SIU-C women's rugby club captured first place at the 10th Annual St. Louis Women's Rugby Invitational, played at St. Louis last weekend.

The club held three opponents scoreless in claiming the title. SIU-C opened play against the Lakeshore rugby club of Chicago and won 16-0.

Jackie Riddle led off the scoring against Lakeshore by scoring a try on a double reverse. Laura Michalek scored the second try when SIU-C pushed Lakeshore's scrum half over the try line.

In the second half, wing Tonia Crockett drove through the Lakeshore pack and dove over the line for the third try of the game. Britt Van Buskirk closed the scoring with a try late in the second half.

The club faced Purdue in its second game and won handily 45-0.

Riddle and Crockett led the team to the win by scoring three tries apiece.

SIU-C also had tries from fullback Polly Baron, wing forward Becky Robinson, scrumhalf Kris Stauffer, fly half Barb Cavoto and Van Buskirk.

The SIU-C team again played Lakeshore Saturday for the championship. Riddle opened the scoring with a try and Cavoto followed with another try a short time later. Cindy Anzelmo and Elly Kostek scored tries later in the first half to give SIU-C a 12-0 lead at intermission.

Anzelmo scored her second try of the game early in the second half by utilizing a grubby kick and moving the ball 40 yards into the end zone. Renee Flottman scored a try later in the half.

Lakeshore took second place in the tourney and Purdue finished third. Other teams that competed in the tourney were St. Louis, Colorado State and Missouri State.

SIU-C will return to action next weekend when it competes in the National Qualifying Tournament at Iowa City, Iowa. The top two finishers at the tourney will advance to the National Women's Rugby Tournament, which will be played in San Francisco Memorial Day weekend.

'Old Loads' alumni rugby match slated

The annual "Old Loads" Alumni rugby match will be played on Saturday at noon at the rugby pitch behind Abe Martin Field.

The game will feature the current SIU-C men's rugby team against former SIU-C players. John Glotzbach, alumni president, said 50-60 former SIU-C players will make the trip this year.

"We're looking forward to a great turnout this year," Glotzbach said. "We should field three full sides. We feel real confident that we will win this year."

The alumni team has never won the match in the club's 15-year history.

"This is the first year that we have had a real chance at winning," Glotzbach said. "The fact that we have 50-60 players returning for the game will help our chances."

"The kids should be in good shape and they should play well as a team, but we have talented and experienced players at every position."

The Alumni squad will be anchored by the 15 starters from the 1982 team that posted a 13-2 record and advanced to the National Collegiate Championships. The team will also feature several standouts from the 1980 squad that recorded a 10-1 record.

The match will feature a battle of brothers — former player-coach and four-time All-Illinois scrum half David Hanetho and his brother, Rick, the scrum half for the 1985 team.

Other top players for the current squad include John Cona and Dan O'Neil.

One alumni player, Michael Campbell, will fly from Stockholm, Sweden to St. Louis on Thursday to play in the match. Last week, Campbell played in the Swedish National Finals for the Stockholm touring side.

The SIU-C rugby club was founded in 1970 by Steve "Tex" Ashe, who now lives in Marion.

In addition to the game, a party will be held on Friday night in honor of the Alumni and a cookout at Crab Orchard Lake will follow the match on Saturday.

Jets send hint to veteran receivers by drafting Toon

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Jets sent a message to wide receivers Wesley Walker and Johnny "Lam" Jones Tuesday with the first-round selection of Al Toon: there might be another veteran purge on the way.

Toon, a 6-foot-5, 200-pounder, set the Wisconsin record for career and touchdown receptions and was generally considered one of the draft's few sure blue-chippers.

The Jets' second pick was a surprise choice — Virginia defensive back Lester Lyles.

Last year, after a 7-9 season in 1983, the Jets dumped a load of veterans, including quarterback Richard Todd, defensive lineman Abdul Salaam and running back Scott Dierking.

New York again went 7-9 in 1984, and the selection of Toon would seem to indicate that management is less than thrilled with the oft-injured pair of Walker and Jones.

However, Toon did not want to jump into a controversy on his first day as a Jet.

"Those guys (Walker and Jones) being ahead of me just gives me the incentive to go out and do my best," said Toon, who was celebrating his 22nd birthday. "I'll do my best and maybe I'll start this season or next. I'll just work my hardest."

Mike Hickey, Jets director of player personnel, spoke glowingly of Toon, who caught 55 passes as a senior.

"Al has outstanding size, excellent speed and hands," Hickey said. "The thing that impressed us the most is that he just loves to play football. He lays out for the ball, is endurable, runs every pattern hard and is a great downfield blocker."

With a new defensive coordinator, Bud Carson, and a new alignment, the 3-4, the Jets were expected to bolster that area with the draft's 10th pick. However, the players they desired most — linebackers Chris Doleman and Duane Bickett and defensive end Ron Holmes — were already chosen by the 10th selection.

The Jets did go for defense with their second-round selection, but it was neither a name or in a position they were expected to pick.

Lyle, a virtual unknown, played free safety at Virginia but will probably be a strong safety as a pro. The Jets claim he is 6-3, 215 pounds and runs a 4.7-second 40-yard dash.

Royals give White raise

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Kansas City Royals Tuesday extended the contract of six-time Gold Glove-winning second baseman Frank White two years, binding him to the American League club through the 1988 season.

White, 34, is in his 13th season with the Royals and has a lifetime .259 average. He is a four-time All-Star and won a record six consecutive Gold Gloves from 1976-82. He was the most valuable player of the American League Championship Series in 1980 and the club MVP in 1983.

The Royals had previously signed third baseman George Brett, center fielder Willie Wilson and relief ace Dan Quisenberry to lifetime contracts.

"This contract is in keeping with the organization's philosophy of maintaining the nucleus of our club."

Defense helps Cubs defeat San Francisco

CHICAGO (UPI) — Four double plays, Lee Smith's relief pitching and a throwing error by San Francisco pitcher Bill Laskey made Steve Trout and the Chicago Cubs winners Tuesday in a 3-1 decision over the Giants.

Trout raised his record to 4-1 despite giving up nine hits in 6 and two-thirds innings. Smith came on in the seventh and finished the game for his fifth save of the season.

"Rainbow (Trout) went out there with OK stuff," Chicago manager Jim Frey said. "He showed he can win when he doesn't have his super stuff."

"A few years ago I wouldn't have been able to win these games," Trout said. "The results are what count and right now the results look pretty good."

The Giants got eight hits in the first four innings but three of the Cub double plays ended threats. They left six men on base, including two on third.

"We hit a lot better; we just hit into too many double plays," San Francisco manager Jim Davenport said. "The first four or five innings we hit the ball well enough for four or five runs."

The Cubs got their first two runs in the third inning to take a 2-1 lead. Ryne Sandberg, the 1984 National League MVP, doubled home Bob Dernier from second base, then scored when Laskey, 0-3, threw the ball away toward third. Laskey was called for a balk and an error.

Sandberg, who hit .314 in 1984, was hitting .159 before the game but got three hits Tuesday, including two doubles.

"I enjoy playing here and I enjoy playing day baseball, even though I didn't show it in the first eight games," Sandberg said.

The Giants pegged Trout with three consecutive singles and one run to start the game. Jeff Leonard's single drove in Dan Gladden from second base.

The Cubs added a run in the eighth on an RBI sacrifice fly by Ron Cey, driving Leon Durham home from third.

Laskey was knocked out of the game in the fifth inning when he got hit in the knee on a pitch from Trout. Davenport said Laskey was going to get the knee X-rayed to see if there was any damage.

Freshman duo paces softball team to sweep

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

The Saluki softball team swept a doubleheader from the SIU-E Cougars Monday night, getting a pair of stellar pitching performances from freshmen Lisa Peterson and Kelly Powell to win both games by identical 1-0 scores.

Peterson had two strikeouts and no walks while holding the Cougars to just two hits in the first game, improving her record on the season to 10-8. Second baseman D.D. Plab, returning from an injury that sidelined her for three weeks, went two-for-four at the plate, driving in the only run of the game in the top of the seventh inning. Sandy Montgomery took the loss for SIU-E; her record falls to 25-6 on the year.

"We didn't get many hits, but we did put three of them together at the last moment to get the win," SIU-C coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said.

In the nightcap, Kelly Powell threw for her sixth shutout of the year, holding the Cougars to just three hits. The win was Powell's 10th of the year against seven defeats. Center fielder Rhonda Snow drove in the game-winning run while third baseman Kim Bruno continued to provide consistent offensive support, getting three hits in as many trips to the plate.

The two losses put the Cougars at 34-10 for the season. They are presently ranked eighth in the nation among Division II schools.

The Salukis now stand at 20-15 overall and 5-6 in the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference with only four games remaining.

"The four remaining conference games are big ones for us. We need to win them all," Brechtelsbauer said, looking ahead to this weekend's conference matchups with Indiana State and Illinois State. "We really need to win them to better our schedule in the conference championships."

Baseball team sets record by losing 8th straight game

By Stan Goff
Staff Writer

The Oklahoma City Chiefs came to Carbondale on Monday with an 18-32 record, but left with 8-5 and 5-3 victories over SIU-C, extending the Salukis' losing streak to a school-record eight games.

The Salukis, who have lost eight straight contests since beating Wichita State on April 21, couldn't come up with the big hits or the big defensive plays when they needed them most.

"We haven't been hitting in the clutch," SIU-C Coach Richard "Itchy" Jones said. "And when we make an error, it seems like the other guys always score two or three runs."

The Salukis went ahead 3-1 after two innings in the second half of the twinbill, but the Chiefs scored a pair of runs in both the fifth and sixth innings to sweep SIU-C, which now owns an overall record of 28-25.

Lead-off man Gerald Pitchford opened game two with his 44th base on balls, and then stole his 26th base. Chuck Verschoore followed with another walk, with Pitchford taking third as ball four got away from OCU catcher Rich Wevley.

Steve Finley then hit a deep fly to center field, but Pitchford, who slipped after tagging up, had to scamper back to third instead of scoring on the play. Robert Jones hit a sacrifice fly to score Pitchford and Jay Burch singled home Verschoore to give SIU-C a 2-0 lead.

OCU got one run back in the top of the second off Saluki starter John Scott, but Jim Kating's line drive home run to center field in the bottom half of the inning made the score 3-1.

Jones replaced Scott on the mound in the third inning with Jay Bellissimo, because Scott had worked the previous day at Creighton, and Bellissimo pitched two scoreless innings to keep the score at 3-1 after four innings.

Mark Wooden took the mound in the top of the fifth for the Salukis and quickly retired the first two Chief batters on ground balls, but Greg Ward then hit a grounder between first and second and reached on a close play at first as Wooden arrived to cover the base a little late.

"We don't seem capable of executing those plays," Jones said. "But when you're not winning, everything looks like it's wrong."

Lynn VanEvery singled to put runners on first and second with two outs and, after pitching coach Jerry Green paid Wooden a visit, Kevin Burdick hit a two-run triple in the right field corner to tie the game 3-3.

After Tony Gwinn led off the sixth with a single, SIU-C called on its relief specialist Rich Koch to stop the Chiefs, but a costly error by Koch enabled OCU to take the lead.

Scott Floyd attempted to move Gwinn over with a sacrifice, but Koch fielded his bunt and threw the ball into center field, trying to force Gwinn at second base. The Chiefs then sacrificed both runners into scoring position with only one out.

Mickey Martin hit a hard grounder to Koch and, after Koch fired to Kating to retire Gwinn at the plate, it appeared SIU-C might get out of the inning. But the Chiefs' No. 9 hitter, Joey Eaton, singled home two runs to give OCU a 5-3 lead.

Koch, who gave up two unearned runs in his two innings of work, suffered his sixth loss against five wins, as the Salukis managed just three runs and four hits off three OCU pitchers.

In the first contest, Saluki freshman Bob Osborne suffered his first loss after giving up five runs on six hits in 2.1 innings. Wayne Cannon went the distance for the Chiefs to pick up the win.

With SIU-C trailing 5-2 and the bases loaded in the bottom of the fourth, Burch tried to back away from a high-and-tight pitch, but the ball went off his bat and straight to Cannon, who started a 1-2-3 double play to end the inning. The play killed an opportunity for the Salukis to get back into the ballgame.

Among the invited Derby guests of Louisville Redbirds owner A. Ray Smith are baseball commissioner Peter Ueberoth and California Angels owner Gene Autry.

Former Churchill Downs chairman of the board and Darby Dan Farm owner John Galbreath has invited former president Gerald Ford and his family to watch the race.

And Kentucky Gov. Martha Layne Collins will witness the 111th Derby with guests Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., Hart's wife and industrialist Armand Hammer and his wife.

Pat Day, the nation's leading jockey the last three years, will ride in the Kentucky Derby, his agent said Tuesday.

Jim Read said Day would ride Irish Fighter, who ran third in both the Arkansas and Louis ana Derbies.

Trained by Bill Borders, Irish fighter will ship from Keeneland in Lexington Wednesday.

Izzy Proler, the owner of Irish Fighter, is seriously ill in a Houston hospital. "They say it really poked him up when he heard Pat was riding his horse," said Read.

Day, whose best finish in two previous Derbies was 15th in 1982, was to have ridden Clever Allemond, a scratch due to an injury.

Santa Anita Derby winner Skywalker worked five furlongs in 1:00.25 Tuesday under jockey Eddie Delahoussaye.

"It was perfect," said trainer Mike Whittingham. "Just what we were looking for. Now if we survive until Saturday."

Whittingham's wife, Mary, a native of Lexington about 75 miles away, is expecting the couple's first child. The baby is due in six weeks.

"If Skywalker wins, she'll probably have the baby in the winner's circle," said Whittingham.
