Hundreds take Strip during weekend

By Joe Littrell
and Tracy Moss
Special Assignment Writers

SIUC students took the Strip again Friday and Saturday nights, but a city official attributed the actions more to weekend activities and the warm weather rather than the ghost of Springfest.

Carbondale City Manager Jeff Doherty said the actions of the hundreds of students who forced the closing of South Illinois Avenue and Beveridge Street had more to do with the busy spring weekend than with memories of Springfest or the Student Programming Council's newly-launched event series, Dawg Days of Spring.

"I don't think it had anything to do with Dawg Days. It doesn't compare to anything that happened at Springfest," Doherty said. "I can't comment further until I meet with Chief of Police (Don) Strom (today)."

According to Carbondale Police Sgt. Steve Odem, some revelers were ticketed over the weekend, but he could not supply an exact number until reports on the incident were complete.

On campus, the weekend was "business as usual," according to SIUC Police Lt. Ralph Pierce.

"It was a little busier than has it been for a while, but it was not much different than any spring weekend," Pierce said.

According to a spokesman for the Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, no increase in student visits to the emergency room had occurred over the weekend.

The annual Springfest celebration, which consisted of bands and a designated drinking area on campus, was discontinued last year after the celebration ended in a riot in the city. The arrests on campus were down, but off campus a Ford Fiesta was destroyed and 187 people were arrested.

Hundreds of SIUC students pour out onto South Illinois Avenue after the bars close Friday and Saturday nights. The large crowd of students, apparently taking part in weekend activities and enjoying the nice weather, caused the closing of the Strip and Beveridge Street. Carbondale Police issued tickets to wild partiers.

By Sanjay Seth
Special Assignment Writer

Rain postponed intramural softball, kept people away from the cardboard boat regatta and delayed flights at the Southern Illinois Airshow this weekend.

And the rain, which is falling at an above-average pace, is here to stay for a while, said A.D. Horsley, SIUC professor in geography.

Horsley, who also is an AMS Meteorologist, said Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday probably will be dry days for Carbondale, but spring time weather of fluctuating rainfall should be expected.

The 16 weather national service sites throughout Southern Illinois have recorded between 16 and 19 inches of precipitation, Horsley said, above the Southern Illinois average of 15.2 inches.

Horsley said he does not see a drop in the amount of rain anytime soon.

"This winter, we had 25 percent more rain events than average," Horsley said. "We've averaged five to six fronts a month as well, but there is nothing unusual about the storm systems. We've had more snow and more rain than the average since Nov. 1."

Horsley said most of the Southern Illinois area has received up to 25 percent more rain than average in the first quarter of this year.

"What was really noticeable this year was there were way more cloudy days than average," Horsley said. "About 70 percent since Nov. 1 has been cloudy."

Richard E. Archer, commodore of the Great Cardboard Boat Regatta which took place at noon on Saturday, said the wet weather did not affect the races as much as the wind did.

Clinton outlines specifics of tuition assistance plan

By Jeremy Finley
Politics Writer

A plan to offer $13,000 in financial aid for college students in turn for community volunteer work was introduced Friday by President Bill Clinton, promising a better future for the nation by revamping the government student loan program.

Clinton introduced the outline of his national service legislation on the 100th day of his administration. The program is designed to aid students in paying for college by using vacation time for volunteer work, said Ethan Zindler, spokesman for the national service program.

Students who participate can get up to two $5,500 grants, a total of $13,000. Each can be paid back by one year of full-

GREAT CARDBOARD BOAT REGATTA

Whatever floats your boat, sir

As Commodore Richard Archer tightened his grip on the trigger to begin the race, he pointed to the Hawaiian War boat.

"I give that boat right there three seconds before it sinks," he said.

And then the race began, and although it didn't win any awards, the Hawaiian war boat was among the many to stay afloat.

The Boat Regatta celebrated its 20th anniversary Saturday with nearly 500 people watching and waiting to see whose cardboard boat would sink and then be rescued by a nearby speed boat.

"The Lamborghini won the 'vogue award,' but it moved like a sloth. Tigger the Tiger won the 'most spirited award,'" but its driver's muscles hurt so badly they could hardly move the next morning and the Ross Perot boat won third place for the paddle wheel award, but with only one right propeller.

Archer, an assistant professor in art and design, continued to predict the future of the boats throughout the race.

"That boat is bending in the middle, and believe me folks it's going to sink," Archer said, as the crowd turned to see which boat he was talking about.

He even tried to help sinking boats during the race.

Salukis may miss MVC tournament

By Dan Leahy

The Salukis had their backs to the wall before this weekend's action started, and they got pushed right through the wall in losing two games to Wichita State.

SIUC was shellacked 7-0 and 10-1 on Saturday by sixth-ranked WSU. The Salukis have lost seven in a row and are in jeopardy of missing the Missouri Valley tournament for the second straight year.

With a seventh-place record of 5-9, coach Riggelman said the

Sixth-ranked Wichita clobbers SIUC, 7-0, 10-1

Dawgs will probably have to win five of their last seven conference games to get in the tournament.

"I don't think there's anything more I can say to them that will get me around," Riggelman said. "We as a staff have addressed everything we know how to address and it's just not happening. When they assume responsibility for things, then they'll be in a position to change things."

The Salukis hung tough for the better part of seven innings in both games, but Wichita State rallied for a bunch of late runs in both games to put it away.

The first game saw Shocker starter Mike Bradley lose a bid for a no-hitter with two outs in the ninth on Scott DeNoyer's double.

SIUC was down only 1-0 in the top of the seventh in the first game, when assistant coach Ken Henderson was ejected for arguing a called third strike on Jason Smith in the previous inning.

Riggelman said the move was done in hopes of getting the squad pumped up, but it failed.

"My feeling was that we were going to at least get involved emotionally and let our players understand we're going to fight and battle," Riggelman said.

In the second game, Dave Taylor hit his fourth home run of the season in the bottom of the second to knot the score at one. The Shockers led 4-1 when Dan Linton came in to pitch with one out in the eighth. Linton did not help the Salukis cause, as he gave up five of WSU's final six runs.

Pro-prospect Darren Dreifort did not let the scouts down, as the Shocker reliever did not allow a ball out of the infield in the last three innings.

Riggelman said Dreifort, who is projected by some to be the first pick in the June draft, ended any chances the Salukis might have had. "Once Dreifort got in the game, it was over," Riggelman said.

Sunday's finale was rained out and the game will not be rescheduled.

Softball team smokes Indiana State, 6-0, 4-0

By Karyn Viverito
Sports Writer

Indiana State kept seeing black on Friday when it played the SIUC softball team because the Sycamores could not find a way to cross home plate.

The Salukis, 30-8 overall, prevailed over the Sycamores with a display of hitting and defense that ISU could not penetrate, and SIUC went on to sweep the series 6-0, 4-0.

SIUC combined for an arsenal that produced 23 hits in the two games. This included a triple by senior centerfielder Colleen Holloway in the second game, which gave the Salukis a total of 40 triples on the season to tie them with the NCAA record for most triples in a season.

Saluki head coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said her team has been right on target the past four games they have played.

"In St. Louis and now against ISU, we have really worked hard, not giving our opponents an inch," she said. "We have been very tight defensively, and have come through with some clutch hitting that has kept us strong in our games."

The Salukis are 11-3 in Missouri Valley action. In SIUC's last four games, the Salukis have had 22 runs on 42 hits that include four home runs, three triples, five doubles and 65 total bases to give them a .551 slugging percentage.

Holloway has been strong, hitting three home runs in her last four games, with the most recent one against ISU clearing the left center field fence, it is only the 11th time that a ball has been hit over the fence at the IAW fields, and its the second time Holloway has done it.

Other top hitters for the Salukis against ISU was second baseman Jennie Klotz who collected four runs on five hits and catcher Laurie Wilson with four RBIs on four hits. Left fielder Karrie Irvin continued her power hitting with two doubles in the second game.

Brechtelsbauer said hitting is one of the hardest skills, and her team has worked on preparing for that moment in the box.

"We worked on good, basic techniques in the off season and now, so in the game they don't have to worry about the skills and just concentrate on the pitch," she said. "The more they can see the ball and make contact, the more they will hit with confidence, and that is what they have been doing."

Hurlers Angie Mick, 14-4, and Tania Meier, 11-4, also made the difference on the mound giving up a total of five hits for both games.

Miller gains record in shot put, moving to 14th in the nation

By Jeff McIntire
Sports Writer

Brian Miller won the shot put competition this weekend, gaining a personal best and a provisional standing gain in the race to qualify for the NCAA's.

Despite the adverse weather conditions the Saluki men's track and field team faced while competing in the Tiger-Rebel Open in Memphis, Tenn., Miller had an outstanding performance, coach Bill Cornell said.

Miller won the shot put with a personal record of 59-1 1/4, ranking him 14th in the nation. The top 16 will go to New Orleans to compete in the NCAA championships.

The throw ranks Miller fourth on the SIUC all-time list.

Miller also had a personal-record first-place hammer throw of 177-5 1/4, which propels him to No. 6 on the SIUC all-time list. He also finished fourth in the discus (120-9).

"Miller's great performance was definitely the highlight of the meet, and hopefully his shot put will get him to nationals," Cornell said.

Following Miller's lead was Torry King. He placed second, behind Miller, in the shot put (51-

The sprinting corps continued its improvement leading the Saluki women's track and field team in the Memphis, Tenn., Tiger-Rebel Open this weekend.

The sprinting corps was led by the tandem of Crystalla Constantinou and Nacolia Moore.

Constantinou won the 100 meters (12.26), placed second in the 400 meters (57.71) and paced the 400-relay team to first place (47.71).

Also on the 400-relay team were Moore, Julie Tottleben, and LaTonya Morrison.

Coach Don DeNoon said that Constantinou's performance in the 400 meters will give the 1600-relay more depth in the conference championships in two weeks.

"It should give us more punch," DeNoon said.

Nacolia Moore had a first-place triple jump of 38-11, a second-place 100-meter run of 12.42 and a fourth-place long jump of 18-3 3/4.

The 1600 relay team of Katrina Daniels, Morrison, Shaunae Winfield and Mary Amy Hornik placed second in 3:56.35.

On their own, Daniels placed third behind Constantinou in the Mark Goodheart and Johnathan Hirsch capped off a strong day for the throwers with their performances in the hammer throw, the javelin and the discus.

Goodheart placed second in the hammer throw (156-10) and third in the discus (140-8 1/4), while Johnathan Hirsch placed second behind SIUC assistant coach Terren Barber (196-2) in the javelin (18-4 1/2) and third in the hammer throw (148-8 1/2).

In other field events, Cameron

Wright won the high jump (6-10), Brian Hoeffke placed second in the long jump (22-0), Marcus LeBranche (45-6 1/4) and Alex Ellison (45-5) placed third and fourth respectively in the triple jump. Dan Brazee placed third in the high jump (6-8) and Kyle Barton (14-6) placed fourth in the pole vault.

In the running events, Bernard Henry won the 800 meters (1:50.37), Garth Akal won the

'A FEW TENSE MOMENTS' IN SOUTH AFRICA — Oliver Tambo, the chairman of the African National Congress (ANC), was laid to rest near Johannesburg Sunday with no reports of violence linked to the burial. Tambo died April 24, aged 75, after a cardiac operation. A crowd of 5,000 showed up for the memorial service at the Soweto football stadium, according to the South African Broadcasting Corporation. It said the day was marred only by a few tense moments — a stand-off developed near the cemetery between mourners, many of them armed with spears, picks, and axes, and residents of the nearby Inkatha-dominated Watville hostel.

SRI LANKAN LEADER KILLED BY BOMBER — Heavily armed troops and police commandos patrolled a tense Colombo on Sunday, one day after the assassination of Sri Lankan President Ranasinghe Premadasa by a suicide bomber. An emergency session of parliament has been scheduled for Tuesday and the country's acting president, Dingiri Banda Wijetunga, has assured the opposition that provincial elections set for May 17 will be held as planned.

REGION IN ECUADOR NAMED DISASTER AREA — Ecuador Sunday declared the country's southern Andes region a disaster area after a natural dam burst, releasing a huge flood wave that washed away at least five villages, inundated a large area and caused excessive damage to farm land. There were no immediate reports of casualties after the dam that had blocked the river Paute near the city of Cuenca, 260 miles south of the capital Quito, broke Saturday.

POLICE PROBE FRENCH OFFICIAL'S SUICIDE — French Interior Minister Charles Pasqua Sunday ordered a police probe into the suicide of former Socialist premier Pierre Bérégovoy who shot himself to death at his home town of Nevers four weeks after a devastating election defeat. He was 67. A second investigation to establish the circumstances of his suicide was ordered by the prosecution in Nevers. He chose May 1, the symbol of the labor struggle for social justice, to take his life.

RIOTER STUDY SAYS ANGER NOT MOTIVATOR — A study of 700 people convicted of felonies during the rioting following the 1992 Rodney King beating trial shows that more than half of the looters had criminal records. Most of the looters participated little in their communities and were not motivated by anger from the innocent verdicts given the Los Angeles policemen charged in the King beating, a UCLA crime expert said.

Racist inserts found in Southern Illinoisan

By Joe Littrell
Police Writer

The picture on the flier is an idyllic one, the words pure sentiment, but the sentiment of the flier, found inserted in a local newspaper, is pure hate.

The flier for the Aryan Nations, an umbrella group for hardcore Ku Klux Klan and neo-Nazi faction headquartered in northern Idaho, was found inside a copy of the Tuesday issue of the Southern Illinoisan bought from a newspaper box at the Austin's Restaurant in Dix.

The centerpiece of the flier is a picture of two smiling white children standing on the sidewalk next to their bicycles; above the picture are the words "Help Protect America's Most Valuable Resource", below it the words "HERITAGE HERITAGE HERITAGE. Non-Whites Destroyed Them—And Now Want Yours JOIN ARYAN NATIONS." and gives the organization's address and phone number.

Members of the Southern Illinoisan staff said the inserts were not authorized by the paper and were not paid for by the organization and no other reports of inserts had been received.

According to editor Carl Rexroad, this would not be the first time unauthorized inserts have made their way into the paper after it left the SI's premises.

"It wouldn't be hard at all for someone to pay someone to put the inserts into the papers, or to just put their coin into the machine and then put the inserts in," Rexroad said.

The SI has no control over the papers once they leave the printer's, he said, since delivery of the papers is contracted to an independent operator.

According to Klanwatch, a group that tracks the operations of different hate groups across the country, the Aryan Nations formed sometime in the late 1970s under the direction of Christian Identity minister Richard Butler. Christian Identity is an Aryan-inspired religious movement that says "God's chosen people" in the Bible are white Anglo-Saxons; all non-whites are "pre-Adamic" "mud people" and a inferior species to whites, and that Jews are descended from Satan.

One of the beliefs of most Aryan Nation members, according to Klanwatch, is that a Jewish conspiracy—the "Zionist Occupational Government" or "ZOG" is in control of the United States and that only a revolution can restore whites to supremacy. Since 1984, almost a dozen Aryan Nations members have been convicted of crimes related to plots to overthrow the U.S. government, and many members, including Butler, call for the establishment of an "all white nation" in the northwest.

A splinter group of the Aryan Nations, the Order, were responsible for a crime spree between 1983-85 that included the robbery of $3.6 million from a Brinks armored car, the murder of Denver talk show host Alan Berg, and the hold-up of two Seattle banks.

Neither Southern Illinoisan publisher Richard Johnson nor Aryan Nations could be reached for comment.

WASHINGTON — Dramatic stories sometimes are plentiful with economic hardship and the unchecked spread of AIDS, among other problems of the 1990s.

Newspapers and television reporters are attracted to the human elements of those stories much the same as the general public, especially since most guarantee compelling photographs or video.

"Journalists play God all the time in deciding what's important, what goes in and what gets left out," said Ben Bagdikian, former dean of the graduate school of journalism at the University of California-Berkeley. "It's just a matter of judgment. But news organizations need to beware of exploiting hardship just for an easy, dramatic story."

Several recent examples:

News organizations in Orange and Los Angeles counties last month rallied public support for Aaron Howell, 22, an amputee whose specially equipped $750 bicycle was stolen.

A story in The Orange County Register about the theft led two television stations to interview

Howell, which triggered a flood of donations and other such offers of help.

Register staff writer Laura Saari, who writes an occasional series about poverty titled "Families on the Edge," said each installment is followed by dozens of calls and offers of help.

That public support in March generated boxfuls of used clothing and even an offer of hand-built bunk beds for story subjects Efen and Bertha Muro of Santa Ana, who at the time shared a cramped, two-bedroom apartment with their 10 children.

Abortion bill calls for end to harassment

OPponents of an abortion bill that would make it a crime to block women and doctors from entering clinics argue that this bill would be an infringement on free speech.

But the Safe Choice Zone Act bill passed by the Illinois House of Representatives on April 21 by a vote of 79-21 hardly represents a threat to free speech.

Instead it offers women their constitutional right to privacy by penalizing those who attempt or prevent another person from entering or exiting by physically detaining the other person.

Threats of death or bodily harm would not be tolerated if the bill became law. The bill, which is pending in the Illinois Judiciary Committee, would penalize those who attempt to blockade clinics and make others think twice about violating it.

THE TRAGIC DEATH OF DR. DAVID Gunn in mid-march should serve as a strong reminder of how important the bill would be to prevent senseless killing of people for their views.

Gunn was shot in the back three times as he got out of his car behind the Pensacola Women's Medical Services clinic while an anti-abortion demonstration took place in front of the building.

Other numerous examples illustrate violation of these rights is a growing problem. About 50 clinics from Florida to California were hit in 1992-93, according to abortion-rights activists.

In an effort to hinder clinics from operating under optimum conditions, abortion-activists pour an unknown sticky liquid under a clinic door that leaves a "skunk-like" smell in the waiting room.

On Jan. 23, the Hope Clinic for Women in Granite City, which performs about 6,000 abortions annually, was the target of this attack.

MANY OPPONENTS OF THE BILL are pro-life. It would appear that the value of life should be considered valuable to people whether they are pro-choice or pro-life.

Those who use attack methods as a way to prevent abortion are threatening the life of others and should be penalized for it.

If the abortion bill is ratified, violators can be charged with a Class B misdemeanor which carries a penalty of a possible $500 fine and up to six months in jail.

Pro-life advocates are entitled to express their beliefs that abortion is wrong just as pro-choice advocates are entitled to voice their opinion that abortion is a woman's choice.

This is freedom of speech. The senseless killing of David Gunn and the other prevention methods used to detain women from entering clinics is not.

PRO-CHOICE OR PRO-LIFE should not be the issue. Privacy must take precedence and those who choose to enter abortion clinics should be able to exercise this right without fear of retaliation.

The Safe Choice Zone Act, if ratified, would put an end to unlawful harassment and the persecution of those seeking abortions legally.

Buses OK'd without much thought

When I heard that students would be able to vote on a mass transit system in Carbondale, thought to myself that it was about time.

I agree with Ms. Boulds who submitted a letter to the D.E. that a $20 across-the-board fee increase to SIU students is unfair.

I don't believe that a lot of students who may have voted in favor of this referendum seriously considered what was being offered to them.

1) If the city wants to start a mass transit system why can't they pay for it themselves? If they want SIU to chip in for the funding, this may be a good place to use money collected for parking tickets.

2.) What will this $20 be used for?

3.) What will be the bus routes for the city?

4.) Why can't this system be user funded? Let the students or whoever wants to ride pay as they get on. If that's an inconvenience offer monthly or semester passes and let students who want to use the system decide for themselves. 5.) When would SIU start charging students and how long after that would this system even start?

It's obvious that this is an idea that people have talked about before, I just wish that students would have had a better opportunity to speak out on this before the elections. Did they ever stop to think that this may be why they've had trouble passing this idea on before? —Tiffany Smith, junior, accounting

Gay Awareness Week has certainly captured my attention but not in the way members of the Gays, Lesbians, Bisexuals, and Friends would probably have hoped.

I support only one thing about the alternative lifestyle this group would have people understand in their attempt to gamer support.

Under the First Amendment they have the right to speak their mind about their beliefs.

There are few privileges in this world that deserve widespread support, but this is certainly one.

What I do not support is the underhanded, cheap trick the GLBF resorted to on April 15, when they announced Blue Jean Day.

Wearing blue jeans is symbolic of nothing for the majority of people who wear such apparel nearly everyday of the year.

Blue jeans are nothing more than inexpensive utilitarian clothing.

If the GLBF and its members want the support of the general population for gay and lesbian issues, they will have to do better than picking an every-day dress mode to make their point.

To suggest to the world they have the widespread support of the campus community — and indeed anyone in America — who happened to have worn blue jeans on April 15 is ludicrous.

With utilization of such a cheap trick, the GLBF have earned nothing more than my disdain for their methods for achieving approval. —Ron Stotyn, graduate student, journalism

Reserve materials must be returned

This letter has to do with materials put in the reserve room at the library. It seems every time I look for materials I need, someone already has them — like for good.

We are suppose to be responsible adults, so if a textbook is due in a couple of hours, bring it back on time. That book you need is probably needed by many others. Yet, you have the audacity to hold materials for many days, even weeks.

This can only show me further the utter disrespect some students have for others who are trying to obtain a quality education. Even with the letters and the hefty fines handed out by the library these materials still are missing.

Maybe even heavier fines need to be imposed on these students. It could be that we may need other more drastic measures to get these books and supplies back in the reserve room where not just one person can benefit from them but we all can.

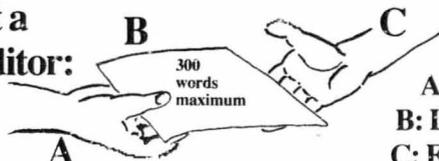

Hopefully these people will realize just how important these materials are to some of us and maybe, just maybe materials will start to show up, back in their rightful place. —John R. Piraino, junior, psychology

Ranchers, stock grazing subject of new hearings

The Washington Post

BOZEMAN, Mont.—On a campus sometimes known as "Moo U.," in a room packed with hundreds of ranchers wearing their Stetson and Resistol hats, the Clinton administration on Friday came snout to snout with one of the West's more divisive resource conflicts, public-land grazing.

Kicking off the first of what will be five public hearings in the West on overhauling the system under which Western ranchers graze their stock at relatively little cost on U.S. land, Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt said he is searching for a "reasonable consensus" between cattlemen and environmentalists.

"We cannot turn the West into a battleground," he said.

But as Babbitt well knows, the West is already a battleground, fighting not just over grazing but mining and timber production and federal water policies as well. And if he needed any fresh evidence of just how hard it is to mediate those disagreements, Babbitt collected plenty here at a six-hour session at Montana State University practically in the shadow of the Gallatin Range.

As Max Robinson of McAllister, Mont., said in explaining why he was pinch-hitting for his uncle in speaking at the forum, his uncle "tends to use four-letter words when his lifestyle is threatened."

For years, ranchers and environmentalists have been at war over grazing fees and range management practices on the more than 250 million acres of U.S. Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management land that stockmen can use at a cost of $1.86 per head of cattle per month. The arguments on both sides are as honed and predictable as catchisms.

Cattlemen argue that in the 130 years since homesteading began, grazing has helped open up the West, improved the range, allowed wildlife to flourish and sustained a peculiarly American way of life. Raising the fees they pay for using the less-productive lands managed by the government will force many ranchers to sell their land for development and devastate the economies of countless Western communities, they say.

Conservation groups and their allies counter that slipshod management by federal agencies has allowed ranchers to degrade fragile, arid land throughout the West.

"A couple of the heats races slowed down because of the wind," Archer said.

"There were also a few less people in terms of the crowd. There were probably several thousand people present."

Archer said about four years ago during another regatta appropriately called "Boat Race from Hell" there were still several thousand people in the audience.

"It was a lot colder then as well."

Archer said. "This year it was a lot nicer and warm."

Archer said he was glad that he was doing the cardboard regatta and not the air show at the Southern Illinois Airport this weekend.

Airport personnel said actual flying at the airshow on Sunday, which was supposed to commence at 1 p.m., was held back until about 3 p.m.

Even after that time, only limited flying was allowed, personnel said.

time work, and the grants can be used for past college debt or future college costs.

Eli Segal, director of White House Office of National Service, said the service plan is designed to involve students with community service while the government pays off student loans and provides tuition waivers.

Congress probably will not be able to pass a national service plan until next year because of health care and other issues taking up time and finances.

The participation in the program is expected to reach at least 25,000 by the end of fiscal year 1994 and increase to at least 100,000 by 1997, Segal said.

Clinton announced he has transmitted to Congress the National Service Trust Act of 1993, which has the two basic parts of a national service initiative and to reform the student loan system.

The Student Loan Reform Act of 1993 states that the current federal student loan program provides billions on dollars to private agencies and not to students because of complex procedures.

Because of the debt students have, taxpayers must pay to make up the loans not paid from the students.

The 1993 Act will provide all student borrowers with a more flexible repayment options by allowing borrowers to repay loans as a percentage of their incomes. It also replaces the current guaranteed student loan system with a system of direct Federal lending.

The loan system will allow borrowers to select the best way to repay their loans by extended accounts and repayment plans where students can enter lower-paying community service jobs instead of trying for higher paying jobs to pay off debts.

The system states a federal borrowing will replace expensive private capital that will help reduce costs for taxpayers.

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, praised the shift from the guaranteed student loans to direct loans because of the income-sensitive repayments.

"The president's reforms will save taxpayers one billion dollars or more per year by eliminating costly subsidies in the bureaucracy and the middlemen who profit under the current loan system," Simon said in a statement.

The national service initiative plan states that those who do vital work in the program will receive $13,000, roughly the average indebtedness of a graduate of a four-year public institution.

To earn this award, the participant must complete at least one year of full-time or two years of part-time service in a program on a state or federal level.

A corporation will be designed to head the program, administering all programs and will fund training and technical assistance.

On a state level, commissions on national service will be established to work locally on the federal ideas.

The programs will include youth corps, specialized service programs for college graduates, and community corps for every ethical group. It also will continue the Points of Light Foundation that also encourages volunteer work.

Katheryne Pavey, coordinator of the Saluki Volunteer Corps, said Clinton should follow through with George Bush's program because it was a front runner of student volunteer work.

"Clinton will be able to include the Point of Light program, and that's valuable," she said.

Clinton administration will begin examination of taxes

Zapnews

WASHINGTON — President Clinton in February presented the nation's biggest ever tax increase to back his economic recovery plan.

This week, Congress will work over the proposed $245 billion revenue package.

The package will likely come out in a completely different form.

The Clinton presidency has a lot riding on the eventual outcome.

Without the added tax money, the administration would be unable to bring down the budget deficit - a major priority in the eyes of many Americans - and still allocate funding for social programs that Clinton feels were 1/2short changed during the 1980s.

Administration officials say they will work overtime to get the tax legislation passed essentially as drafted.

The tinkering starts Tuesday in the House Ways and Means Committee, which probably will be Clinton's kindest audience House.

Even there, however, the legislation will be modified.

Law enforcement group blamed for cult disaster

The Washington Post

Until Feb. 28, Stephen E. Higgins was an obscure manager of an arcane public agency. He jogged near his house in Fairfax County, Va., ate lunch at McDonald's, worked at his office here on matters ranging from illegally imported brandy to homemade bombs.

Now the director of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms is being singled out and blamed for approving an assault that led to one of the worst law-enforcement disasters in U.S. history.

Some inside ATF say Higgins is being pressured to resign, to take the public fall, for the questionable decision to stage a commando-style raid at the Branch Davidian compound in Waco, Texas, on Feb. 28.

Twenty agents were hit in a hail of bullets when what should have been a sophisticated surprise attack turned to an ambush.

In an interview with The Washington Post, Higgins, 54, said last week that he personally is pained by what happened and may retire once an investigation of the operation is completed, although he said he has no specific plans to do so.

Some law-enforcement officials say if Higgins does not bow out soon, the drumbeat will grow even louder not only to change ATF leadership, but also to curtail its mission.

"I don't think you can realistically think there are not going to be very big changes," said one high-level ATF official, who asked for anonymity because of a gag order imposed by the Treasury Department as it conducts an inquiry into ATF's actions.

"We are just hoping that in whatever reincarnation, ATF's expertise in firearms and explosives is kept intact."

Higgins took over the agency in 1983, its darkest days, and had been rebuilding it steadily.

Many of the best agents were bailing out as then-President Ronald Reagan called ATF a "rogue agency" and pushed for its demise.

The National Rifle Association even produced a film that year describing ATF as a "jackbooted group of fascists who are ... a shame and a disgrace to our country."

Now, a decade later, Higgins is facing new calls for restructuring the agency that traces its mission to George Washington's mandate to have government agents collect tax on whiskey.

For Higgins, who has spent 22 years rising from an inspector of firearms and alcohol records in Omaha to director of 4,300 employees and a $366 million annual budget, it could not be a more bitter time.

"My wife said, 'Well, you never used to talk about retirement,' and I said, 'Well, you know, I can't think back in my career when I didn't get up in the morning and want to go into work,'" Higgins said. "Now I wake up in the mornings, and I think (I don't want) another day like yesterday."

Administration develops plans for intervention

Los Angeles Times

Although top officials on Saturday declined to reveal the specific military actions in the Bosnian plan that President Clinton has decided on, Pentagon officials cited two options he was considering:

First, a series of limited air strikes designed to destroy Serb artillery emplacements in Bosnia-Herzegovina, with additional bombing of ammunition dumps, supply depots, command centers and key bridges.

Second, an expansion of the bombing raids into Serbia, where allied warplanes would seek to destroy Belgrade's supply lines to the rebel Bosnian Serbs and damage military installations of the Yugoslav federal army, which has supplied arms and munitions to the rebels.

In a new wrinkle Saturday, the White House apparently cleared the way for a limited number of U.S. special operations forces to enter Bosnia to help locate Serb artillery and guide allied warplanes to their targets, in the event air strikes are undertaken.

"It would be very naive to perceive that these capabilities would not be called on ... in this situation," a senior military planner said. However, officials said that Clinton's pledge against the use of any sizable contingent of U.S. ground forces in the conflict would remain in effect.

If the Bosnian Serbs should end up accepting an international peace plan drafted by the United Nations and the European Community, the United States and its allies would contribute between 50,000 and 75,000 ground troops to help enforce the accord, officials said. Presumably, however, the risk to those forces would be far lower.

It was not clear how quickly U.S. forces might be deployed to Bosnia in the wake of the president's decision. Pentagon officials said the allies agree to support the plan by Wednesday, as administration strategists hope, then U.S. aircraft could leave for designated staging areas in Italy by Thursday morning.

Officials said earlier the United States would have about 200 warplanes available for any military action in Bosnia — 160 from Air Force bases in the United States and Europe and about 40 from the aircraft carriers Nimitz and Theodore Roosevelt.

Previous secretary of state exposes scandals in book

The Washington Post

Israel reopened secret arms-for-hostages talks with Iran just a month after the Reagan administration was rocked in late 1985 by the first disclosures of the Iran-Contra scandal, according to the newly published memoirs of former Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

The Israeli initiative got immediate support inside former President Ronald Reagan's inner circle from then-CIA Director William J. Casey and then from the president himself, according to Shultz.

Despite the press and congressional uproar over the scandal, and Reagan's public statements in November 1986 that dealings with Iran were over, Shultz describes how Casey got the president and then-Vice President George Bush in December 1986 to ignore Shultz's advice and support this final, Israeli-initiated effort at secretly trading arms to gain release of U.S. hostages then held in Lebanon.

Shultz's disclosure reinforces the view of some that the Israelis were the moving force behind the Iran arms sales, because they brought the first proposal to the Reagan White House in 1985.

In providing the background of this last, ill-fated effort, Shultz writes that it represented a "desperate" attempt by "those who were responsible for the operation ... to succeed and thus to vindicate their judgment in the face of overwhelming criticism."

Although the former secretary of state previously has disclosed many of the Iran-Contra details published in his new memoir, the 1,138-page book provides some new facts on the worst scandal of the Reagan administration and illuminates the mood and infighting around the president as the Iran-Contra scandal raged.

Shultz writes that then-White House aide Patrick J. Buchanan, who later challenged Bush for the GOP presidential nomination, "asked the president to be named ambassador to NATO," and "the president said he liked the idea."

Noting that then-White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan had told him that "Nancy (Reagan) wanted to get Buchanan out of the White House," Shultz writes that he "was amazed that such a preposterous idea was even being considered."

The appointment never happened. Another unusual staff proposal, according to Shultz, was Casey's suggestion during the Iran-Contra period that Zbigniew Brzezinski be named Reagan's national security adviser to replace Adm. John M. Poindexter.

"I respected Brzezinski, but I thought that bringing back the NSC adviser from the Carter administration was a crazy idea," Shultz writes. Instead, Frank C. Luccioni was named.

"You're going to have to alternate paddles girls, if you don't want to tip over."

This year's Regatta took place under a ceiling of dark rain clouds, but Archer said during his pre race rounds that not even the weather could keep the racers' spirits down.

"We've had rain in years before but we've never been rained out," he said.

Archer said this year's crop of boats was great in terms of creativity and originality.

"We've got some fabulous boats this year," he said. "We've got a 17 1/2 foot 1938 Crisscraft Runabout. It's a beautiful thing, and a full size Lamborghini."

Archer's pre-race duties consisted of helping verify the legality of several questionable boats, and most of the situations are resolved peacefully, he said.

"We have a typical engineering boat that's got more steel than cardboard in it practically, and those kind of hassles," he said. "We try to reason with them. The worst thing we will do is tell them they can run but they can't win."

John Lynch, owner and co-designer of the 1938 Crisscraft powerboat "Miss Tique," said his 17-foot creation was the result of six weeks of work.

Lynch said his goal was to combine a well-finished design with an effective drive system placing equal emphasis on each.

"You have to do both," he said. "We have sacrificed some speed because we also built a very heavy boat, but we also maintained a certain flair for form, which goes back to the late '30s-early '40s with the old mahogany runabouts."

Other notable boats included a floating pool table named "The Hustler" complete with cue sticks and balls, and a floating box of Marlboro smokes.

Michelle Durbin, a student from the Catholic Campus Ministry at SIUE, said she loves the dramatics of the Regatta.

"It's fun to see how dramatic they are in sinking because some really ham it up out there," Durbin said.

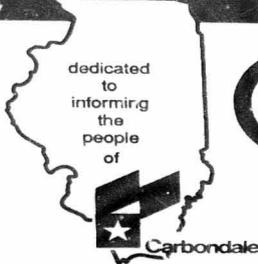

Not everyone in the contest was from Archer's class. Some were from high school, others were from Du Quoin, Carterville, Marion and Makanda.

Tim Million, from the Catholic Campus Ministry at SIUE, entered a Pink Cadillac paddle boat for the challenge.

"It's a chance to be very creative with materials that aren't normally used for boats," he said.

Cathy Calcaterra, Jeff Randall and Jon Bart Calcaterra from Herrin built a Bart Simpson Butterfinger boat.

"This contest is definitely a learning experience for me in creative problem solving," Calcaterra said.

City of Carbondale

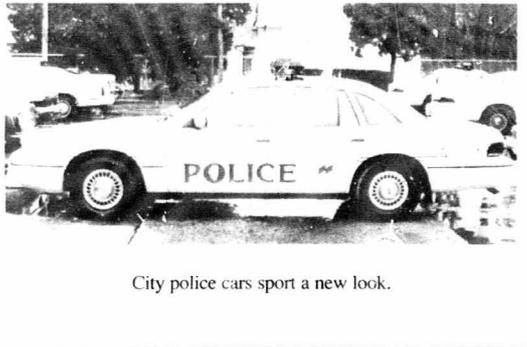

An Inside Look at City Government

Each year, one lucky Public Administration student gets to serve an internship in the City Manager's Office. For the 1992-93 academic year the intern is Christy Stewart. She is working on her Masters degree in Public Administration at Southern Illinois University. Christy began working at City Hall last August, and will complete her internship this May. During this time she has had the opportunity to participate in a variety of different projects and work with many interesting people. One of her duties as an Intern is to attend weekly staff meetings. During these meetings each department head reviews the past weeks activities and updates the City Manager on issues that might be of concern. Christy said staff meetings allow her to observe how each department in the City operates. Christy is also assigned to complete projects for various departments within the City as well as serve on a variety of committees. Currently, participating in the labor negotiations process and interviewing for new City employees are two of her top priority projects. She is also a member of, and provides administration support services to, the City's Safety Committee. During her internship she has also had the opportunity to write articles for the Carbondale Communique and the employee newsletter, the PEN. Christy said that "as an Intern with the City of Carbondale, I have observed all the hard work and dedication it takes to run a local government, and I can never thank the City or its employees enough for allowing me the opportunity to learn and work in City government."

City Budget Adopted

The six month long budget preparation process concluded on April 20, 1993 when the City Council adopted the City Budget for Fiscal Year 1994 in the amount of $27,690,506. Of this amount, $9,939,547 is for the City's General Fund which funds basic City services including Police, Fire, Development Services, General Government and a portion of Public Works.

Among the budget highlights are the following:

- Although General Fund revenues and other financing sources will increase by 4.7%, property tax revenue will drop slightly from the previous year.
- The City's top priority remains economic development with almost $290,000 budgeted for the support of agencies involved in economic development, and several capital improvements are also budgeted also to support economic development activity.
- The Police Department will continue implementing Community Policing that strengthens the partnership between citizens and law enforcement.
- The number of sworn police officers is increasing by three over the authorized level for FY93, the first significant increase in the past 20 years.
- The Fire Department will receive a new "Class A" pumper truck to replace a 1967 truck that can not be effectively maintained.

The adopted FY94 budget also includes $8,105,652 in Capital Improvements. Some of the major projects budgeted include the following: Begin the renovation of the interior of the old ICRR Passenger Depot, complete the design of the new Civic Center/City Hall, begin reconstruction of East Park Street, reconstruct Maple Street, reconstruct the south leg of the Emerald Lane-Main Street intersection, begin construction of the Southwest Area Drainage Improvements, complete the new Water Treatment Plant, and repair the spillway at the City Reservoir.

Overall, Personal Services continues to be the largest segment of the City budget accounting for over $10,000,000 or nearly 37% of budgeted expenditures. Personal Services includes not only the salaries and wages paid employees, but also items such as health, workers compensation, and unemployment insurance contributions and retirement fund contributions. The second largest category of expenditures is for capital equipment and improvements. These total nearly 33% of the budget. Items included here are police cars, a fire truck, dump trucks, computers, and improvements to streets, water lines, sewers, sidewalks, the new water plant, and public buildings.

The budget reflects goals, objectives and policies adopted by the Mayor and City Council members as representatives of the public. Balancing the many needs and desires of the community while staying within budgetary resources is difficult. The FY 94 budget will enable the City to provide the most extensive array of services and to maintain the best public improvements available in Southern Illinois.

The City recently bought a Guzzler Combination Vacuum and Sewer Jet machine at a cost of $133,050 to eliminate obstructions in sewer lines.

Time to renew your dog's City License.

It's time to Renew your dog's City License. If you own a dog which is 6 months of age or older and live in the city limits of Carbondale, you must purchase a city license for your dog. Current dog licenses expire on June 30, 1993. New licenses will be issued beginning Monday, May 3, 1993. Current license holders will be receiving renewal information in the mail soon.

A license for your dog may be obtained in the Carbondale City Clerk's Office, 609 East College Street, Monday through Friday from 8:00 a.m. -12:00 noon and 1:00 p.m. -

5:00 p.m. The license fee is $7.00 for dogs that have not been neutered and $1.00 for dogs that have been neutered. Proof of current rabies vaccination and neutering is required at the time of licensing. If you do not have proof of neutering, ask your veterinarian for verification.

Further information regarding the animal licensing ordinance or any other animal control ordinances may be obtained through the City Clerk's Office (549-5302, ext. 281) or through the Animal Control Division of the Carbondale Police Department (457-3200, ext. 424).

Tornado Safety

It's that time of year again when we have to worry about severe weather. Take a few moments to review tornado safety precautions with your family or friends. The City's emergency sirens are activated when a tornado warning is issued that puts Carbondale in the path of a tornado. If you hear the sirens, take cover immediately.

Notice to Cut Grass and Weeds

It is a violation of the Revised Code of the City of Carbondale for any person to permit grass or weeds to grow in excess of six (6) inches in height on property. The property owner, person in control or agents of such owner or person in control have the responsibility to see that grass and weeds are kept cut on such properties owned or controlled by them.

THE BASIC PROVISIONS ARE:

- (1) Weeds and grass are to be kept cut to less than six (6) inches in height.
- (2) Property owners and/or persons in control of land are responsible for keeping grass and weeds cut up to the curb or edge of pavement or ditchline of adjoining streets and alleys.

- (3) If a person fails to keep weeds and grass properly mowed, the City can issue a court citation and post the property. Failure to mow the premises results in the City having a contractor mow the property and bill the owner. If the bill is not paid within 60 days of mowing, a Notice of Lien is placed on the property as shown by the Office of the Recorder of Deeds of Jackson County, Illinois.

THE MINIMUM MOWING FEE CHARGED BY THE CITY OF CARBONDALE IS $57.75 PER LOT.

The complete requirements and limited exceptions that apply in some cases to lands zoned "Forestry", and land zoned and used for agricultural purposes are found in Chapter 11 of the Revised City Code. Any complaints concerning high grass or weeds and/or obnoxious plant growth may be phoned in to the Building & Neighborhood Services Division at 549-5302, between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. Morris McDaniel, Manager Building & Neighborhood Services Division.

What is Crime Stoppers?

Crime Stoppers is a community program that involves the public, the media, and the Carbondale Police Department in the fight against crime. It provides a unique way for information to flow from citizens to the police without having to give your name, address, or telephone number. Additionally, Crime Stoppers pays cash rewards of up to $1,000 for information that leads to the arrest of an offender.

How Does Crime Stoppers Work?

Crime Stoppers maintains an easy number to remember, 549COPS. It is monitored daily from 8:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m., by members of the Investigations Division of the Carbondale Police Department. At night and on weekends an automated answering device is used to record any information callers may want to leave. When you call with information, you will be given a code number known ONLY to you. When you call back to check on the progress of your case, you need only to identify yourself by your code number. If your information results in the arrest of an offender, you become eligible for a cash reward of up to $1,000. Arrangements will be made so that you can receive your reward in cash and preserve your anonymity.

Computer Software Piracy

Although the Copyright Act of 1976 was amended in 1980 to protect computer software, plenty of folks still make unauthorized copies for their personal use. Sometimes it's an intentional act to save money or time, but people may also pirate software unintentionally, when a personal computer is moved from one person to another (complete with the original user's software and data), for example.

In either case, the action carries both civil and criminal penalties. Increasingly, vendors are seeking compensation by suing institutions and individuals when their products are copied without authorization. Recently the University of Oregon paid $130,000 to the Software Publishers Association of America to settle a lawsuit that charged a university department with illegally copying programs. Since 1988, the association has filed more than 70 lawsuits alleging the violation of a copyright.

To underscore the importance of this issue, the University's Board of Trustees approved the following software piracy policy on Feb. 13, 1992. It directs both SIU campuses to develop guidelines and procedures for internally controlling software piracy.

SIU Board Of Trustees Software Piracy Policy Statement

Respect for the intellectual work and property of others is vital to the mission of higher education. This principle applies to works of all authors and publishers in all the media, including the labor and creativity resulting in computer software. It encompasses respect for the right to acknowledgment and the right to determine the form, manner, and terms of publication and distribution.

Unauthorized copying of software is illegal and may force the University as well as individuals to incur legal liability. The United States Copyright Law protects software authors and publishers in much the same manner as patent law protects inventors. Unauthorized copying of software, including programs, applications, databases and code, deprives developers of a fair return for their work, may result in increased prices, may reduce the level of future support and enhancement available to the University, and may inhibit the development of new software products.

Unless software has been placed in the public domain, the owner of a copyright holds exclusive right to the reproduction and distribution of his or her work. The purchaser of software generally purchases only a license to use the software on one machine. Most licenses do not permit copying, although a licensee may generally make a backup or archival copy. Some institutional licenses permit copying for use on local area networks or on multiple machines, but such uses must be authorized in a license agreement commonly called a site license, which might include a network license or a limited-use license.

It is the policy of Southern Illinois University that unauthorized copying of computer software will not be tolerated. Such copying is both unethical and illegal. University employees and students making, acquiring, or using unauthorized copies of computer software may be subject to University disciplinary sanctions as well as legal action by the copyright owners. Neither the University nor the State of Illinois will provide legal indemnification or defense for employees or students whose violation arises out of willful misconduct as defined in 2 Policies of the Board E.

The Presidents of Southern Illinois University at Carbondale and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville shall develop procedures for the implementation of this policy, pursuant to V Bylaws 8. -Db

A Sample Office Software Piracy Policy

Information Technology created the following office policy to ensure the legal use of software on University-owned equipment. You may want to incorporate some of these ideas into your own plan.

1. Staff members are responsible for software on the personal computer residing on their desk or in their office.

2. Staffers with software on PC hard drives or diskettes should have proof they purchased it.

3. If someone installs software on your microcomputer, be sure to get the proof of purchase for it.

4. Software executed from a local area network server is the responsibility of the network administrator, not individuals in the network.

5. Make certain software version numbers match those on proof of purchase materials.

6. The transfer of software isn't automatic with the transfer of hardware. Remove data and software from any transferred disk drive.

"It is the policy of Southern Illinois University that unauthorized copying of computer software will not be tolerated."

Laptops let you take work with you

Computer Viruses

Q: What is a virus?

A: An invisible computer program that destroys software as it spreads from machine to machine. A virus starts with an "infected" file (usually on a diskette) that is copied onto a hard drive or diskette or into memory. It then attaches itself to other files or resides in the memory where it can infect files as they're accessed.

Q: How can I protect my computer disks outside of the lab?

A: Take precautions. Avoid copying or executing files from other people's diskettes. Also, beware of downloading games on electronic bulletin boards—they're popular places to hide viruses.

And stop by the Computer Learning Center in Faner Hall to pick up a free copy of F-PROT 2.07A, a software program that can detect 97 percent of known viruses. It is for IBM and IBM compatibles and comes with a handout explaining how to install the program. -Db Q: How do I know I've caught a virus?

A: The average user won't know until it's too late and files are lost. However, if you're in a Computer Learning Center, you'll know because our automated virus detection system will alert you with a message on your screen. Our system can squash most bugs.

About 10 years ago, a laptop computer meant a rather impractical 25-pound machine carried in a suitcase. Like all computer technology, these devices have evolved significantly over the last decade. Today, there are IBM, IBM-compatible and Macintosh laptops (called Powerbooks) the size of an 8 1/2-by-11 inch notebook and weighing about five pounds.

For better or worse, these battery-powered "notebook PCs" are making it easier than ever to take your work with you when you leave the office. In addition to portability, they offer memory banks and hard drives that are equivalent to those in a standard desktop workstation. That means you can use the same applications on both.

You can rely solely on a laptop. Some vendors offer desktop shells, or docking stations, that let users plug their portables into office cable connections. Such equipment lets you use the laptop as desktops during the day. But when it's time to leave for the day, you can disconnect the notebook and take everything with you. This eliminates file transfers between machines, and switching back and forth.

Usually laptops are more expensive than desktop machines, and those with color displays cost even more. You can sometimes find exceptions and specials that make laptops more affordable. And remember, laptop prices have dropped over the last decade and will continue to do so.

Laptops are also expected to keep shrinking. An example of things to come is the "palmtop." The size of a pocket calculator, these lightweight computers feature 10 megabytes of memory and are essentially electronic replacements of pocket planning calendars. Although pricey at $1,000, they will no doubt be cheaper and more versatile in the future. -Db

Film explores identity issues

'This Boy's Life' mixes fine acting, interesting story with style

By Christian Kennerty
Entertainment Writer

What determines the kind of person you are and your personality?

Is it a compilation of the people you meet? The experiences you have? The trials you endure?

The theory of "This Boy's Life," a new film from Warner Brothers, is that all of the above are pieces in the puzzle that makes people who they are.

"This Boy's Life" is based on the real life experiences of Tobias Wolff, who recorded many of his early life memories in a book by the same name.

The first image of Toby (played by Leonardo DiCaprio), or Jack as he wants to be called, and his mother Caroline is the two of them driving west in search of uranium on another of his flaky mother's get-rich schemes.

Jack is a restless kid who has never had his feet planted firmly in any one spot, and as a result constantly tortures his mother by getting into a variety of trouble in and out of school.

Caroline (Ellen Barkin) is a woman who deals with problems by leaving town. Jack is used to his mother's erratic behavior and thinks nothing of skipping town on five minutes notice.

The thorn in Caroline's side is her choice of men who are consistently losers, a fact that Jack is quick to point out.

The two end up in Seattle where Caroline meets an off-center but decent guy named Dwight (Robert DeNiro) who quickly makes his desire to marry her known.

As a precursor to the marriage, and in an attempt to straighten him out, Caroline sends Jack to live with Dwight as a "trial period" in the neighboring town of Concrete.

The real Dwight emerges and Jack realizes the game is over.

DiCaprio (who is in his mid-teens) has a vast career ahead of him. He has more natural ability than 90 percent of the professionals in most films made today. He is comfortable on screen, even standing nose to nose with one of the finest actors of our time.

Jack is a kid absolutely trapped by a man who refuses to let anyone stand above him and exhibits genuine pain while suffering under Dwight's iron fist.

DeNiro's contributions are equally as good. After DeNiro's last endeavor (Night and the City), some stipulated that the giant had stumbled.

If he did, the giant is now up and running. DeNiro takes Dwight and the film to a higher level. It is rare that audiences get a chance to see a character as unique as Dwight, and DeNiro realized that rarity and threw himself into the role wholeheartedly.

Dwight is a jealous man whose feelings are vented at anyone he thinks is trying to climb the ladder past him. To watch DeNiro develop Dwight is worth the cost of the ticket.

Rounding out the entire cast of outstanding performers is Ellen Barkin as Caroline, a woman who is determined to make her marriage work, no matter what it takes.

Barkin is excellent as a mother trying hard to make a better life for Jack, and in the process failing to see the havoc she is wreaking on the son she is trying to save.

Director Michael Caton-Jones has come up with a film that the Motion Picture Academy seriously needs to take a long look at. Jones was given a story so well written that it cannot go wrong, and has turned out a piece of work that should not be missed.

Irish fiction-writing renaissance crossing Atlantic, reaching U.S.

Newsday

The Irish have never lacked for words. But the island that produced Yeats, Joyce and O'Casey has attracted more recent notice because of an outpouring of fiction that publishers say reflects a mini-renaissance in Irish literature.

On the one hand, there are the seasoned writers. Maeve Binchy's "The Copper Beech" (Delacorte), which finds the drama in village life, now has 170,000 copies in print, while William Trevor has a 1,261-page collection of his short stories (Viking) and John McGahern's "Collected Stories" (Knopf) showcases his own steady output through the years.

In addition, younger writers have emerged to put a more rebellious twist on tales of saints and sinners.

Michael Collins, an Irishman who has studied in the United States, wields an angry hand in

"The Man Who Dreamt of Lobsters," a first collection of short stories published this spring by Random House. In "The Meat Eaters," one of his graphic tales, the young assassin of eight British soldiers flees to New York, only to find two grimly carnivorous countrymen (and their prostitute) in a sanctuary of unsurpassed squalor. "Danny Boy" it is not.

Colm Toibin's "The Heather Blazing," called a "lovely, understated novel" in a recent Washington Post review by Alice McDermott, is the author's latest book published by Viking. "The Heather Blazing" presents a Dublin jurist whose lifetime of memories is loosed by his bout with an eroding Wexford shoreline.

Novelist Roddy Doyle introduced American audiences to "The Commitments," his story about a group of rock-and-roll wannabes, in 1989; the movie version, for which he co-wrote the screenplay, came two years later. Since then, the prolific Doyle has continued to chronicle the city's working class, four-letter dialogue aplenty, in two more novels published by Viking—"The Snapper" and last year's "The Van." A fourth, "Paddy Clark Ha Ha Ha," is scheduled for next spring.

"There has been a small renaissance, a little efflorescence of Irish fiction writing which parallels the great raft of Irish poetry, particularly that of Seamus Heaney, in the '70s and '80s," said Fergal Tobin, an editor at the Gill and Macmillan publishing company in Dublin.

NAACP leader vows to bridge economic gap

Newsday

NEW YORK--If the nation's oldest civil-rights organization is to move forward, it has to bridge the economic and social gap between middle-class blacks and the poor, the Rev. Ben Chavis Jr., the newly elected executive director of the NAACP, said.

"This will be the only national organization where an African American millionaire can sit at the table with a brother or sister who does not have a cent in his pocket but will work together to uplift the African American community," said Chavis, who made his first trip to New York Saturday since being named to head the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"It is important to resume the tradition of (NAACP founder) W.E.B. Dubois to work for the economic empowerment of African American people and others of color," he said.

Outlining a speech he was to give at Medgar Evers College in Brooklyn Saturday, Chavis said the NAACP will move toward opening its membership to include Hispanics and other people of color. But, he said, the Baltimore-based organization will continue to focus on enhancing the quality of life in the nation's inner cities.

Another of his goals, said Chavis, is to establish an endowment for the nation's largest civil rights group and establish more international chapters in Africa and the Caribbean.

Chavis, who officially begins his new duties today, was named to the post after a tortuous yearlong search for a replacement for the Rev. Benjamin Hooks, who is retiring after 16 years on the job.

NAACP board chairman William Gibson said that rather than leave the organization without a leader, "We want our leader in place as of Monday."

Since his selection April 9, Chavis, 45, has met with street gang members in South Central Los Angeles and plans to speak with young people about joining and helping rebuild the organization's image among them.

"The one thing I've learned is that these young people are talented and intelligent," Chavis said. "All they need is a chance in life. We have to reach out and take more of a responsibility to help them get an education, a job and be productive."

Chavis, the former director of the Cleveland-based United Church of Christ's Commission for Racial Justice, also has talked with members of the Congressional Black Caucus in Washington about economic development. He is a believer in black self-help, activists said. They also expect him to form economic partnerships between black political and community leaders and financial institutions to help blacks establish businesses.

Some activists were concerned that the supporters of the Rev. Jesse Jackson, who was considered for executive director, got dropped out when the board created rules that he thought weakened the post, could create a rift within the 500,000-member organization.

But Gibson said those concerns are unwarranted. "Everywhere he (Chavis) goes, there is an overwhelming support for him, even among people that I know he was not their first choice," Gibson said.

Chavis recently met with Jackson in an effort to end those misunderstandings. "I'm taking the initiative to establish some healing within the organization and the community," Chavis said.

1993 Spring Semester Final Exam Schedule

The examination schedule attempts to avoid examination conflicts by providing separate examination periods for Tuesday-Thursday lecture classes. Other information about final examinations is listed below:

1. The class final exam period is scheduled based on the meeting time and days configured in listed on the first line of the class entry in the Schedule of Classes book (which should be the same as the first printed line for the section on the registered student's schedule print-out). For example, a class section is listed in the Schedule book on two lines in the manner:

08:00          T TH
09:00 - 10:50 W

The listed starting time for the first line of the entry is "8:00". The meeting days of that first line are "T TH", and therefore are in the category "Only T or TH or T TH". The Exam Date and Period is by the attached Spring '93 Final Examination Schedule to be Thursday, May 13 at 10:10 a.m. - 12:10 p.m. Please note that University policy indicates that exams are not to be given prior to exam week, or at times other than those scheduled.

2. Classes should plan to hold their final examination in their regularly scheduled class rooms. The space scheduling section of the Office of Admissions and Records will forward to departments information relative to the location for examinations for those classes that cannot hold their examinations in their regularly scheduled rooms because of a space conflict. This will be done sufficient in advance of the final examination days to provide adequate notice for all.

3. Students who find they have more than three examinations on one day may petition, and students who have two examinations scheduled at one time should petition their academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such a make-up examination period does not mean that students may decide to miss the scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during this make-up period. This period is to be used only for students whose petitions have been approved by their dean.

Midwest gang conference shows mixed results

Los Angeles Times

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Each day they gathered at the Howard Johnson, urban street warriors seeking peace in the American heartland.

From Chicago came the Gangster Disciples, a regimented squad in three-piece suits and African headwear. Latino veterans arrived from California sporting T-shirts with portraits of revolutionary hero Emiliano Zapata etched in brown ink. The local Bloods and Crips greeted them all with heads swathed in red and blue bandanas.

In the hotel banquet room, they offered prayers to enslaved ancestors. In the lobby, they drew stares from Midwestern cowboys. In the bar, between turns at the digital dartboard and karaoke machine, they poured pitchers of beer and spoke poignantly of loss and regret.

"People think we're going to come in, do a little partying, do the wild thing. But we're on a mission here," said Fred Williams, an ex-Crip from the Los Angeles neighborhood of Watts and an organizer of this weekend's heralded gang conference, formally dubbed the National Urban Peace and Justice Summit.

As this rare meeting of former rivals ends Sunday and the 200 gang leaders, community activists and official observers head back to the 26 cities from which they came, few have any illusions that peace is now firmly in their grasp.

But for three days, at least, some of the baddest kingpins from America's ghettos and barrios agreed to sit down and talk about life, not death.

"Who speaks for urban America?" asked Carl Upchurch, an Ohio-based civil rights activist who was the event's national coordinator. "That's what this is all about."

As gangsterism has swept across the country — taking root in at least 1,000 American cities, according to the research of a University of Southern California sociologist — it has been closely paralleled by a rising consciousness over the self-destructive costs.

Wary and battle-scarred, many gang veterans have come to realize that the violence, once justified by a vague notion of community control, has careened out of control. Through truce movements, as well as ethnocentric fashion and rap music, they have tried to channel the negative power that has earned them so much notoriety into something that can rebuild the communities they helped destroy.

A few problems did surface, although nothing apparently to justify the fears that seemed to have more than a few Kansas City residents on edge.

Some of the local gangs complained that their turf — selected for its central location — was being exploited by outsiders who did not pay them due respect. This was remedied by letting them take center stage at a hastily called press conference.

"The Kansas City brothers need to be up front," one of the organizers hollered as a phalanx of TV cameras descended upon them.

Meanwhile, many of the Latino leaders were convinced that the summit seemed to be dominated by the African Americans.

Dallas awaits end to welfare debate

Zapnews

DALLAS — The state of Georgia is now awaiting federal approval of its "family cap" plan which limits additional benefits to welfare mothers who have children while on public assistance.

"We're not trying to dictate family size. We're not trying to dictate anything," said Chuck Reece, a spokesman for Georgia Gov. Zell Miller.

"The state asks its taxpayers to fund welfare; and we just want welfare recipients to take the same responsibility."

The Georgia case echoes the angry and emotional debate in state capitals nationwide, pitting middle- and upper-class taxpayers against public-assistance recipients and their advocates.

Supporters of the family-cap idea say that families that are not on welfare do not receive additional benefits for other children.

Opponents disagree, noting that families who pay taxes receive additional exemptions when they have more children.

The Georgia Legislature approved the family-cap concept last month, following the lead of New Jersey and Wisconsin. And 17 states at least considered similar plans in 1992.

None of the caps are permanent laws; they are considered experiments to gather information on welfare reform planning.

All require five-year waivers from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS).

Under the Georgia plan, which would take effect Jan. 1, people who have been on public assistance for 24 months or more cannot receive additional cash benefits for additional children.

Family and child advocacy groups across the nation say state welfare officials are portraying the reform efforts as beneficial although the plans are unconstitutional.

Telephone fraud increases, baffles private companies

Zapnews

ORLANDO — Telephone fraud is a booming business in the United States, and private companies increasingly are being victimized by the most painful kind — PBX fraud.

PBX systems are the private in-house phone systems used by virtually all midsize to large companies, and because they're the property of those private companies — not Ma Bell or any other telephone company — the victims end up paying. Thieves use a variety of methods to get into a company's telephone system.

One of the most surreptitious and common methods is by programming a computer to dial telephone numbers and lock onto any number that gives it a dial tone. "Unlike ... other crimes, the victims of the crime are liable for the losses, by law," said Sandy Lindstedt, head of Communication Assurance Services Inc.

Spirits high at Special Olympics despite weather

By Dan Leahy
Sports Writer

The rains may have washed away some of the activities at the Special Olympics, but the spirits of those participating were not dampened.

The 26th Annual Track and Field Competition took place amidst the raindrops at McAndrew Stadium Thursday.

The stars of the show are the athletes — 450 strong and hailing from eight Southern Illinois counties. They come to compete and socialize.

Key Downen, a 20 year-old from Carbondale, is one such athlete who won first place in one of the 50-meter dash divisions.

Downen said he looks forward to this event all year, but the medals are not so important to him.

"I want to get the softball throw over with and get over to the carnival," Downen said.

The carnival Downen was referring to was just one of the many activities that had been planned for the day. Others included a magic show, a petting zoo and other various forms of entertainment such as clowns.

The athletes also get some pretty good eats too, as many area businesses donate their services. Scott Ladd distributor donated hot-dogs, chips, fruit, bags and cups, while Pepsi donated drinks and Kroger supplied buns.

Sherri Davis, food supervisor for the event, said getting businesses to contribute was not a problem.

"They were all quick to help out, and we couldn't pull this off without such great support," Davis said.

Another big contributor is the SIUC population. Mike Dunn, the director of recreation, said that the all SIUC department heads do a great job of sending out flyers to recruit people.

"It's great that the faculty and the student body of SIUC come out here and help us," Dunn said.

The reaction from most students who were working was very positive.

Scott Steele, a junior majoring in special education, said this was his first year volunteering and would encourage anybody to give it a try.

"It's a lot of fun and the competition really is not the important thing," Steele said. "The important thing is that the people are here with their friends and people who care about them."

Steele also said it is important to note that most of the participants look forward to this as the event of the year.

"This really gives them a chance to get out and have fun," Steele said.

"A lot of them might not get out much, so this is one whole day that they can have a good time," he said.

Another reason for the success of the Special Olympics is that more and more people are getting involved.

Dunn said the work is definitely habit-forming.

"Every year it gets bigger, and every year it seems like more and more volunteers keep coming back," Dunn said. "The thing is, once you work this, I don't think you can help but come back every year after that."

Dunn also said a big reward for him is that the participants remember him year after year.

"It's great because even though these kids might only see you once all year, they remember your name and are happy to see you," Dunn said. "And if you don't remember what they did last year, they will be quick to fill you in."

Phillip Ramsey, a winner of the shot-put, said he was happy to add another victory to his accomplishments.

"In twelve years, I have seven firsts, one second and one third," Ramsey said. "But the most fun is meeting all the people here."

Seles attacker charged with attempted murder

Zapnews

HAMBURG, Germany—The man who stabbed top-ranked Monica Seles during a tennis tournament in Hamburg was charged with attempted murder Sunday as Seles flew home in a private jet to Florida and a future clouded by the psychological effect of the attack.

Yugoslav-born Seles, 19, suffered a flesh wound in her upper back on Friday about one inch deep. She was released from Hamburg's University Clinic on Sunday afternoon.

The International Management

Group, which manages Seles, said in a statement that she was feeling better but would remain for an indefinite period under medical observation. It added that she was grateful for the many expressions of sympathy she had received.

IMG director Peter Henke said Seles was still in a state of shock and that it was uncertain how long it would take her to recover. A medical bulletin issued Saturday said she had been "psychologically harmed."

Police have identified her attacker as 38-year-old East German Guenter Farche, who told them during his interrogation that he had only wanted to injure Seles so that Germany's Steffi Graf, currently No. 2 in the world, could regain the top ranking. They said he made a "psychologically disturbed impression."

Doctors said Seles, who had just come back from a nine-week pause due to a lingering viral infection, would not be able to play for one to three months while the muscles damaged in the attack healed.

The new pause makes it quite possible that Graf, who lost the final of the $375,000 Hamburg tournament on Sunday to Spain's Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario, 6-3, 6-3, after winning the previous six titles there, will indeed regain the No. 1 ranking she lost to Seles in March 1991. Graf's reign lasted 186 weeks, the longest uninterrupted stay at No. 1 in tennis history for men or women.

During the subdued victory ceremony in Hamburg on Sunday, Graf said, "It was a pretty tough week for all of us, especially for me. I can only hope that Monica comes back soon and that she gets over it all well."

Saturday's and Sunday's matches were played under increased security.

On Saturday Graf paid a visit to Seles' hospital bedside, after which she said, "It was hard for both of us to say anything ... I think the visit made her happy. Maybe this moment brought us a little closer together."

The two's dislike for one another was well-known. Answering a journalist's question two days before the attack, Graf said, "we say 'good morning' to each other and not much else. What do you say to your colleagues?"

The director of the Women's Tennis Association, Gerard Smith, described the stabbing as "a tragedy" not only for Seles but for the entire sport of tennis.

SIUC women sign 5-8 St. Louis guard

By Karyn Viverito
Sports Writer

A 5-foot-8 shooting guard from St. Louis, Mo., is the most recent, from the long line of recruits from the Arch city, for the SIUC women's basketball team.

Sheila Leopold starred at the guard position for Vashon High School, averaging 23 points and 12 rebounds, while shooting 88 percent from the field as a senior for the Wolverines.

Leopold was a 1993 first-team all-metro pick by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and Saluki Heather Slater was a teammate of Leopold's for two years before joining the SIUC roster last season.

Saluki head coach Cindy Scott said Leopold was another great steal from the city of St. Louis.

"Not many recruiters knew about Sheila," she said. "Her quickness and shooting skills are a plus, because she is an explosive penetrator who can shoot the three."

Leopold is also a star in academics, as she is on track to be the 1993 class Valedictorian at VHS. She is an undecided major, but is interested in computer science and criminal justice.

Other St. Louis stars preceding Leopold are Bridgett Bonds, the 1987 Gateway Conference MVP; Amy Rakers, the 1990 Gateway Conference MVP and SIUC's all-time scoring leader; and sophomore Raquel Ransom from East St. Louis, one of SIUC's highly touted recruits.

Justice lifts Atlanta to 4-3 win over Cardinals

Zapnews

Dave Justice hit his fifth home run of the year, a two run shot in the eighth, to give the Atlanta Braves a 4-3 win over the St. Louis Cardinals at Fulton County Stadium.

The Cardinals led 3-1 after Gregg Jefferies doubled in two runs in the fifth. In the bottom of the inning, Atlanta got one run back when an error by third baseman Todd Zeile allowed Bill Pecota to score.

Atlanta starter Steve Avery left after seven innings, allowing seven hits and three runs. Kent Mercker pitched the eighth and was the beneficiary of the home run. He evened his record at 1-1. Mike Stanto pitched the ninth to pick up his ninth save.

"Rain bothered a portion of the meet, but overall we had a solid outing," he said.

The non-scored meet was hosted by Memphis State and featured competition from Ole Miss and Arkansas State.

Saluki 3-on-3 Hoops Classic to give students finals break

By Dan Leahy
Sports Writer

The Saluki 3-on-3 Hoops Classic will give participants a chance to strut their stuff on the court while raising money for the library.

The tournament will be held May 7-9 at the SIUC Arena. There is an entry fee of $40.00 a team. The fee entitles the team to compete in a double-elimination tournament and each player to receive a "Saluki Hoops Classic" t-shirt.

There will be 11 divisions competing for their division championships, and each division will start and finish their tournament on the same day.

William McMinn, Assistant Director of Intramural Sports, said people should consider taking part in the fun.

"Three on three tournaments have become extremely popular," McMinn said. "They create a lot of excitement and enthusiasm for all who participate."

McMinn also said SIUC students could use the contest to relax before the finals crunch.

"It will be a lot of fun and a good way for students to blow off some steam before final exams," he said.

Those interested should contact William McMinn at 453-1268, or Ron Smith at 453-4667.

400 meters (58.44), and Hornik followed Daniels across the finish line in 59.51 for fourth place.

The field athletes also did well this weekend, taking the top two places in the high jump, second and third in the shot put, and third, fourth and fifth in the discus.

Annette Klett won the high jump (5-6) followed by Rhonda Brown (5-6 on her second try for second place).

April Cokely placed second in the shot put (41-8) followed by Stefany Saracco (41-7 1/2).

Cynthia Grammer placed third in the discus (136-6), followed by Nikki Wildermuth (133-10 1/4) and Stefany Saracco (133-10).

In the distance events, Stacy McCann placed second in the 3,000 meters (19:03), Shaunae

Winfield placed second in the 1500 meters (4:54.01), followed by Laura Baisie (4:55.01) and Cathy Kershaw (4:59.29).

DeNoon said he was satisfied with the performances but not with the weather.

"I'm pretty positive about the outcome of the meet," he said. "I had hoped we could have competed in better weather conditions."
