Photographs Are Overly Expensive—

Among the few shortcomings of S. I. N. U. which is the fact that students of this school have to pay an amount which some believe is too high in order to have their photographs placed in the Obelisk.

At present, 1500 students pay a charge of $1.00 for procuring pictures in the year book.

According to a recent estimate, $1,000 would be sufficient to expand the present studio to accommodate the entire student body. A student photographer could be hired, either on a permanent or a temporary basis.

The greatest problem is the securing of the $1,000. Perhaps the administration could make a loan that would be sufficient to launch the new studio.

Survey Shows $111.15 As Average Teacher's Salary

On the basis of representative salary figures for the employed S. I. N. U. graduates of the 1939 class, an average salary of $111.15 a month for a nine-month year has been ascertained.

From this monthly stipend of $111.15 the teacher must pay such essential items as room and board, clothing, organization dues, transportation to and from home town, and other miscellaneous expenses.

Only 50% of Students Vote—

Would anyone in America be interested in 50% democracy? Certainly not! He would probably say 100% or nothing.

At the last election question election, less than 50% of the student body voted. Here are the approximate figures:

Sesame For Collegians

During the week, "Sesame For Collegians" sat in on one of those long-winded ball sessions which remind you of the old "Tin Lizzy" keno game.

The Shadow of Samuels hovered near the little circle of orators engaged in discussion of the ever fascinating subject, "How to succeed."

Discrediting the individualist theory that one can pull one's self up by one's own bootstraps, it was admitted that anyone climbing to the top must give credit to aid in the form of a hand from the top or in the form of a push from the bottom.

How can Mr. Jones best assure himself of the coveted position? What is the "Open Sesame" for Mr. Jones?

The three individuals involved in the ball session when we shall call Mr. X, Mr. Y, and Mr. Z, shook heads on the opinion that Mr. Jones has a chance of three parts.

In a natural situation, he will be unable to hold the friendship of the other five members of the department. They will be jealous of his status.

Mr. Y "disagree thoroughly" it may be true that Mr. Jones will receive the position by appointment.

It seems to me that Jones will have to calculate the favor of all colleagues and be pulled up to the top by their esteem.

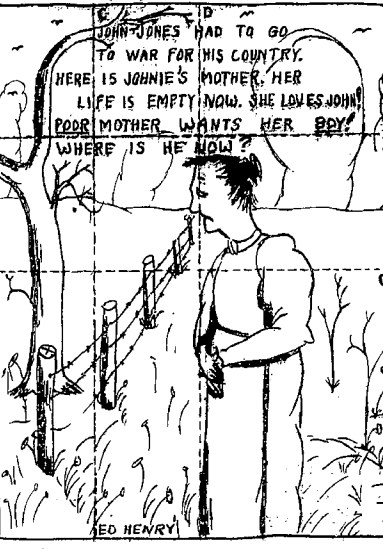

Mr. Z "I do not understand why the methods should be mutually exclusive. It seems to me that it is perfectly possible that the man who is capable of performing the duties attached to the position of head of the department should also be capable of commanding at the same time the respect of his principal and the other teachers in the department."

Mr. X "I do not wish to hold the respect of my teachers and bosses as the chief testimony that the weakness of it. We are not living in an idealistic society. We are living in a society of human beings, and human beings are naturally jealous of those who get status and money."

Mr. Z "It seems to me that Jones if you are assuming that Mr. Jones is a little weak in his personality, I maintain that only a strong personality deserves to be placed at the head of a department, and if Mr. Jones is a strong personality he can maintain the esteem of both his colleagues and his principal."

COOPERATIVES HELP STUDENTS LICK THEIR BOARD AND ROOM BILLS

Cooperatives, like the Heddinger cooperative at 508 South Normal street, is the most satisfactory method available for licking the board and room bill while attending school.

By reducing living expenses to a minimum, desirable conditions would be obtained with respect to the distance of many budgets which now afford less desirable conditions.

The success of the cooperative depends largely on planned, economical buying. Treasurer and Committee Chairman performs this duty for the Heddinger group.

FAVORITE JOKES OF FACULTY MEMBERS

By LOIS RUTH SINGLETON.

PRESIDENT PULLIAM— One of the recent college jokes I've heard is that college students have been calling their professors Kaffee-Hag because 5% of the active ingredients had been removed from the bean and he was guaranteed not to interfere with sleep.

DR. ROBERT BOWDEN— There are some about a green freshman of Scotch extraction who walk over all over town with his frostless on his arm looking for the Carbonate Free Press.

MISS DOROTHY DAVIES— It was the eve of a football game between Yale and Harvard. Yale sent a telegram to Harvard saying: "The best of luck to you. May the best team win." Harvard immediately sent this reply: "The best of luck to you. May the 'better' team win."

MR. DAVID MCINTOSH— One of my favorite jokes has to do with a director of an orchestra who was trying to get the members to observe a pause in the composition they were executing. After several attempts a complete silence was observed at the proper place. Suddenly during this silence the bass drum was sounded; at which time the director inquired, "Who did that?"

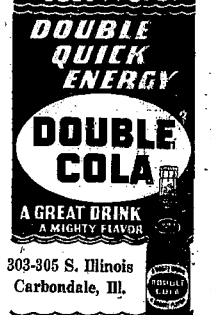

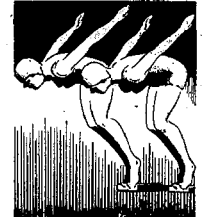

MISS FLORENCE DENNY— A young man taking a civil service examination was asked this question, "What is rabies and what can be done about it?" The young man answered, "Rabies are Jewish priests and nothing can be done about it."

'Jitney Players Traveled in Jitney Busses Several Years Ago,' Says Ethel Barrymore Colt

By POLLY SWEET. The term "jitney," explained Miss Ethel Barrymore Colt, daughter of the famous Ethel Barrymore, in an interview, comes from the fact that in the East several years ago the players traveled in busses known as jitney busses. The group who were here last Monday and Tuesday is the original and only Jitney troupe. Ten actors and actresses, including Miss Colt, who is the business manager, make up the company.

Miss Colt has played with her mother's acting in films which include "Scarlet Sister Mary" and "Great White Way," in which they co-starred. "The length of the tour of the traveling theater varies, Miss Colt said. After filling a ten weeks' summer engagement in Miami, they will be here for a run since last June. Most of their engagements are with colleges. "Of course, we perform for other civic lodges such as women's clubs, but fully 75 percent of our engagements are with colleges," Miss Colt stated.

"We usually give only two performances at each place—matinee and evening."

Educators Survey Modern Rural Teaching Conditions

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15, 1939.—Half the nation's teachers work in farm and village schools. Therefore, the average teachers' college student, struggling to stretch a thinning budget from freshman day to commencement, may well ask what he may expect from a rural teacher's income in the way of absorbing any deficit that may remain as a byproduct from college days. Also he may be interested in what a rural teaching career will offer in the way of a more comfortable living, an automobile, life insurance and support for a family, among other things.

Interested in this matter too, the National Education Association asked 1,100 teachers in 110 communities throughout the nation what they thought and owed, where they lived and how. The United States census definition of rural was accepted: any community of 2500 population or below.

So through the modern crystal ball the selective survey, met the average rural teacher: Suppose the one whom we see teaches a one-room school. His salary is about $675.

His boarding house is two miles from the school. The chances are two to three that he neither owns nor is buying a car. He supports one dependent. Chances are three to two that he has attended college two years or more.

Chances are three to two that he sleeps in a cold bedroom in winter, and two to one that he does not have the convenience of running water. Chances are one to three that he will go to summer school next year. The salary of the rural teacher is often too low to enable him continually to "keep up with the times" as any good teacher must. Teachers, unlike many workers, if they are to give efficient service, must attend summer schools, travel, maintain a professional library of books and magazines, and attend professional meetings.

Because educators try to keep professionally alert, they are frequently out-of-pocket. The average rural teacher after seven years of experience has saved only $350—a saving made less comforting by a debt of $200 and less than $1000 in life insurance to pay doctor's bills and funeral expenses and to settle his estate.

views, bookreports, and any other features, but not editorials, may be presented. The duties of feature editor include assignment of features to staff members and editing and copy proofing of stories turned in. The granting of the position will rest upon the decision of the editor and will be announced on January 8.

He replied that one was on a sick leave and the other, of all things, sold life insurance. "She said it is her job to bring back reports of all the football games in the middle-west and west. "We usually make it just right in getting to a place in time to see a good game."

Their next stop after S. I. N. U. was at Notre Dame Thursday. Tomorrow they play in South Bend, Ind., for the Women's Club there.

The survey of the National Education Association disapproved a turn-over excuse for paying lower salaries to women than to men. Women as well as men have dependents. The single women have more dependents to support than single men, and married women teachers in rural communities are on the average burdened with the entire support of more than one person.

Springfield Selected Seventh City For Stamp Plan Survey

Selection of Springfield, Illinois, as the seventh city in which the Food Order Stamp Plan for distributing surpluses through normal channels of trade will be put in operation, has been announced by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace.

The six areas in which the Stamp Plan is in operation at present are: Rochester, N. Y.; Dayton, Ohio; Seattle, Wash.; Birmingham, Ala.; Pawlatoomie county, Okla., and Des Moines, Iowa.

The way the Stamp Plan is expected to work in this: Families certified for public aid will be offered the chance to buy orange-colored stamps. These orange-colored stamps will serve as purchasing power at any grocery store. To those who buy the orange stamps, the grocery store will be given free. Blue stamps will buy certain surplus foods at any grocery.

All persons in the cities selected for testing the stamp plan, will have to buy books containing enough orange stamps to equal $1 a week for each member of their families. If they want to get the bonus of blue stamps.

The proposed plan aims directly at increasing the domestic consumption of surplus food commodities. Issuance of the stamps will create purchasing power for commodities which are surplus now because the persons who need them most cannot buy them, not because the need for them does not exist.

NECKERS, LENTZ, BOWDEN AND LAWSON WILL LECTURE IN ELDORADO

Princeton University will found a special geographical library in honor of Richard Halliburton.

Mrs. Wanda Gum Leads Unusually Interesting Life, Reporter Finds

By WAYNE MANN.

Mrs. Wanda Gum, sociology instructor, employment office head, and social worker in general, leads an unusually interesting life. Every day for her is what some would call "a spicy twenty-four hours." By spice reference is made not only to the calibre of her work, but to the variety of the things she does. Mrs. Gum certainly lives up to the old adage, "The more you work, the more you accomplish, and the more you accomplish, the more work you have to do."

Amid the constant ringing of the telephone, endless interviewing, the confining of facts, making of charts, and arriving at decisions, the office helpers can usually find her giving instructions of what to do and how it is to be done.

Her expression that "I am a real home body" brings to light the versatility that Mrs. Gum has had. After special training in physical education, she came to S. I. N. U. to teach in that department. After teaching P. E. for six years she quit that job for a new horizon.

Before Mrs. Gum returned to the campus in 1936, she received two years' experience in social work. That, in turn, led to her job here. "I like it and I don't believe I would change with anyone," Mrs. Gum said. Later she exclaimed, "Come to think of it, I don't believe anyone would want my job anyway." In the meantime, she has completed a master's degree in sociology and has done additional work in that department and in personal work.

Mrs. Gum, who is also assistant dean of women prescribes her attractive disposition with unusual ability to "keep smiling." Her spirit of helpfulness is well reflected in her statement, "I like to help students find their way in life, and I think the furtherance of this aim is a much pleasure to me as it is helpful to them." Considering the N. Y. A. allotment the office receives, there are very few complaints about its distribution. To explain this fact, Mrs. Gum says, "I have had excellent cooperation from students; the proper spirit has always been shown here, and, above all, the money spent is used in a strictly non-partisan fashion. In other words, there just aren't any strings attached."

When complimented on the excellent work she has done, she replied, "It is all right to give credit where credit is due (that is, if your credit is good), but much of the work has been successfully accomplished because of the co-operation of the student employment committee, the office staff, and the entire student body."

French Taught at Allyn Training School on Campus

A progressive experiment in public education is the introduction of elementary French courses into the curriculum of Allyn Training school. Mr. W. G. Clane, superintendent, says, "We are not the first school to teach French in the elementary grades, but so far as I know we are the first in this part of the country."

Instruction under the new experiment begins with a combined class picked from the third and fourth grades. These students use no text book, but learn by actually speaking the simple French words for book, pencil, and other common objects seen about the school room.

The second class is composed of students chosen from the fifth and sixth grades. This class uses a text book prepared especially for lower grades. Parties and games in which everyone speaks in French are a great aid in learning to use words correctly, and also afford great fun to the children. French songs are also learned.

Miss Madeline Smith of the foreign language department, who is teaching the new courses, believes that by beginning instruction in the higher grades, the present system of teaching foreign language will be greatly strengthened.

The classes are taught three days a week during the school period and will continue as an experiment throughout the year. If results are satisfactory, French will be added to the curriculum next year as a regular course.

YMCA Hears Talk On Plans For Campus Foundation

By RUSSELL F. HARRISON.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Sharp of the Presbyterian Church spoke to the members of the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday, October 31, concerning plans for an interdenominational foundation to be organized on this campus. The plan has been in existence for several years; work is now being started to bring the idea into reality in the near future.

Organizers feel there is a need in the average college for an agency to uphold the tenets of religion and tradition of the courses offered in the regular college curriculum are apt to leave the students in a confused state of mind. The survey made in the gains of science may seem entirely contradictory as early religious teachings. This is the point where many college young people begin to compare the carefully presented studies in science to the vague and often misconstrued ideas of religion.

Every college should give its students the opportunity of gaining more deeply into the study of religion so that they may understand the scientific religion as well as the other sciences. S. I. N. U. hopes to offer this opportunity to the students of this campus so they may learn that there is a correlation rather than a conflict between science and religion.

STUDENT OPINION

Library Needs Silence Signs

Our library needs some "Silence" signs. It is about as noisy as Carle's. There are some students—actually that would like to study. Maybe some freshmen do not realize that the library is supposed to be "hush" or maybe some upper classmen don't care. Couldn't the library have a few "Silence" signs and a few "bouncers" to tell the disturbers to "quiet down?"

Some other inexpensive items that are needed at S. I. N. U. are waste cans located in various places about the campus for those students who bring their lunches. They invariably throw their sacks and papers on the grounds.

Discussion as Aid to Learning Tested by Minnesota Teacher

For the first time, a scientific measure has been taken of attitudes which derive from the discussion of controversial subjects, in an experiment conducted by Dr. William Murray Timmons, of Carleton College, Northfield, Minnesota, with 67 O. U. high school students. The results, published this week by the Bureau of Publications at Teachers' College, Columbia University in New York City, showed that discussion method of reaching a good solution than reading facts.

The question used for the purpose of the test, "What, if anything, should be done about Ohio's method of releasing convicts from prison?" was chosen not only because it was controversial, but because the average person had little knowledge of the subject whereas the expert could offer a judgment accurate enough to be used as a basis for the validity of the final result.

In carrying out the experiment the entire group spent two class periods studying a pamphlet of strictly factual material about the general organizations of prisons and the parole problem. During the third class meeting, however, one group actually studied the facts, while the remainder freely discussed the problem. Careful tests were administered to the boys and girls before and after each session to determine as accurately as possible every change in point of view.

Students Make Gains. After taking into consideration all the implications and factors that occur in real life but which could not be included in an experiment of this type, Mr. Timmons concluded that while all of the students made reliable gains in ranking the given solutions to the parole problem, the "discussing" students showed more gains after discussion than the other students after reading. The students of low intelligence arrived at good solutions practically as well as those of high intelligence, he found. Furthermore, students with wrong answers improved their answers a great deal after discussion, even when the discussion was with other individuals with wrong answers, which seldom happened down after discussing with students having poor answers.

Dr. Timmons also notes that, the method appears to be ideal for use in the class room to handle controversial social problems which require too much community criticism if the teacher tries to present in traditional ways his own solution to the problem.

Tamaroa Students Visit Campus

On Wednesday, October 25th the physical geography class of Tamaroa High school visited the campus. The students spent some time in the museum and in the geography department, where a demonstration of land form models and minerals and rocks was prepared for them.

Dr. Van Ripper described the various types of rocks and explained in part their formation. Charles Pardee, Jr. gave the demonstration of the landform models. Mr. Pardee also took the students to the university weather station while he made his daily reading and made a prediction of cloudy weather and possible rain for Thursday.

Mr. Ivan Heap, who is the Tamaroa teacher in charge of the field trip, is an alumnus of this school. Last spring he brought the Tamaroa lower grades to the college. Mr. Pardee and Mr. Robert Bulla gave the demonstration to this group.

Trips such as these are being encouraged by the geography department for they bring the public schools into closer contact with the university and give excellent training to the majors in the department of geography who prepare the demonstrations.

Ofhand, I'd say that Bill Holden can't make up his mind between those two pledges—Weber and Fisher.
