SIU Males

It Could Get 'Drafty' Here

Because of the Berlin crisis, and unrest elsewhere in the world President Kennedy has called for an increase of 342,000 men in the armed forces.

"To fulfill the manpower needs," President Kennedy announced, "I am ordering that our draft calls be doubled and tripled in the coming months; I am asking the Congress for authority to order to active duty certain ready reserve units and individual reservists, and to extend tours of duty."

Under planned draft calls, however, SIU students can expect no change in the student selective service deferment program.

Students, with certain exceptions, may qualify for deferment if their studies are "necessary to the national health, safety or interest." Change of reserve status may be granted to those "majoring in a field of study preparatory to entering a critical profession.

In general students seeking deferment or change to standby reserve must furnish either certain data on class standing or scores on the Selective Service College Qualification Test, Mrs. Dorothy H. Stroman, registrar's assistant, says.

Upon request by the student the Registrar's Office will send a form to the individual's local draft board confirming student status and class rank to the individual's local draft board.

The Selective Service College Qualification Test is administered here on campus by SIU Counseling and Testing Service. A test will be given this spring.

Students in their final year of study for a bachelor's degree at an institution of higher education may transfer to standby reserve providing grades in their previous undergraduate year were in the upper three-fourths of full-time male students or providing they score 70 or more on the test.

In order to qualify for standby status first year graduate students must be certified by their school as currently meeting degree requirements, and they must have ranked within the upper one-fourth of full-time males in their class for their final undergraduate year, or they must attain a score of at least 80 on the CQT.

First year students in professional schools of medicine, dentistry and similar health specialties who wish standby status are required to either rank within the upper-half of all full-time male students in their class for their final undergraduate year or to score 70 or more on the CQT.

Selective Service registrants may be deferred occupationally. SIU faculty members who might be subject to call are eligible for deferment "subject to the merits of the case."

Ready reservists in critical civilian occupations may be deferred unless they possess a military skill.

SIU Athletics Suffering From Lack Of Funds

Coaches at Southern Illinois University are encountering great obstacles in their recruiting of top caliber high school athletes.

These obstacles, which may impair the future growth of the school's athletic program, have grown out of inadequate athletic facilities, and a low priced activity fee which has led to a lack of money for NCAA scholarships.

According to Dr. Donald N. Boydston, Southern athletic director, such restrictions may mean the difference between a top-flight athletic program or one that "fails to keep pace with the growth of the rest of the university."

This sentiment is echoed by Southern's nine-man coaching staff.

SIU MAY SUFFER
"Unless we can do something within the next year or two, our athletic program will suffer greatly," said one coach.

It was only a few years ago that the recruiting of high school athletes was relatively simple.

In the sport of football the requirements were basic. Any youngster who weighed over 200 pounds, could grow like a bear, and who knew the difference between a football and a basketball, was almost assured of a scholarship.

In basketball the requirements were also quite simple. Most collegiate coaches had the doors to their offices raised to the height of 6-6. Any boy who had to duck coming into the office had it made.

GRADES NO PROBLEM

Academic-wise it was a breeze. If athletes had the mental dexterity to write their names — penmanship was not important — they were in.

Increased college enrollments, a revitalized standard of academic entrance requirements, and a greater emphasis on athletics as administrative "big business," has placed the recruiting of high school athletes in a very delicate and tedious category.

"It has gotten so rough that I first check a boy's grades, then I talk with his teachers and parents, and finally check with his coach to see if the boy can play football," said coach Bear Bryant, who in his years at Kentucky, Texas A. and M. and Alabama, has produced many a fine football player.

ROUGHER PROBLEM

At Southern the problem is similar to other institutions attempting to keep pace in the field of athletics, only a trifle rougher.

It has been only in the past five years that the school has attempted to go "big time" in collegiate athletics. As a result, coaches and administrative personnel are forced to compete for boys against schools and personnel wise to the recruiting ways. This added impediment has resulted in many high school boys signing on the dotted line for the more experienced recruiters.

"Don't think that schools hesitate to play up the weaknesses of other schools when both are after the same athlete," said Dr. Boydston. It is these apparent weaknesses that trouble Southern's athletic department which should concern all those interested in the school's future athletic development.

Coaches visiting the Carbondale campus for the first time are amazed at Southern's athletic facilities.

POOR FACILITIES

"The facilities for an institution of this size and caliber are as poor as any I know of," said one visiting coach.

"The facilities we have for baseball are very poor," said baseball coach Glenn "Abe" Martin. "We have a parking lot in left field and a skin diamond infield complete with improper drainage."

Football coach Carmen Piccone is equally displeased with his football facilities.

"In football we have a practice field as hard as concrete and one that is occasionally used as a parking lot," said Piccone.

"In basketball we are saddled with a field house that won't seat half the student body of most elementary schools," said coach Harry Gallatin.

So small is the field house that

Opera Excerpts To Be Presented

The Southern Illinois University Opera Workshop will present excerpts from outstanding operas next Sunday at 4 p. m. in Shryock Auditorium.

On the program will be Bellini's "Norma," Puccini's "Madam Butterfly" and "La Boheme," Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel," Massenet's "Werther," Mozart's "The Magic Flute" and "The Marriage of Figaro," Wagner's "Die Walkure," Floyd's "Susannah," and Verdi's "Un Ballo in Maschera," "La Traviata," and "Aida."

Participating in the opera workshop are: Ruth Adele Batts, Fred Rounsill, Vivian Frost, Kathryn Kimmel, Thomas Page, Denise Josten, Elaine Starkey, Carmen Keane, Deanna Stevenson, Beverly Todd, John Keller, Edwina Gyoalos, Barbara Nemeth, Phillip Falcone, Louis Aemel, Joseph Thomas Jr., Robert Sink, Diana Long, Betty Curtiss, Jack G.ire, Gene Horner and Bill Davis.

each of Southern's 10,000 students will be able to attend about two of the Saluki home games.

In 1964, construction is expected to be completed on a new field house that will seat more than 10,000.

According to Dr. Boydston, only tennis facilities at Southern are adequate.

SIU LACKS MONEY

In addition to inadequate athletic facilities, a lack of money for NCAA scholarships is another hurdle standing in the way of the school's recruiting program.

Southern coaches can offer athletes only tuition, fees and books and athletes are allowed to work for room and board under a student work program.

Under full NCAA scholarships, athletes may get room, board, fees, books, and tuition, plus $15 a month.

"We simply don't have the funds to offer full scholarships," said

Boydston, a former All-American high jumper at Oklahoma State.

Schools offering full scholarships are blessed with football stadiums and basketball field houses that seat thousands. This source of revenue pays for scholarships," said the athletic director.

At present the majority of money for the support of Southern's athletic program comes from its percentage of the student's activity fees. This percentage, about 21 per cent of the total, is about $5.90 per year per student.

SIU FEE LOWEST

According to Boydston, this figure is "very low." In fact, in two recently published surveys of American colleges and universities, it is the lowest.

Willis Casey, swimming coach at North Carolina State College, recently conducted a national survey of activity fees charged at 240 colleges and universities. In the Casey survey, the average charge per student for his school's athletic program was $17.40 per year or approximately three times what the SIU student pays.

James W. Long, athletic director at the University of Toledo, conducted a similar survey of 111 colleges and universities. According to the Long survey, the average charge per student for athletics was $19.00 per year.

This lack of money for full scholarships and inadequate athletic facilities, have placed extra burdens on the Southern coaching staff in their recruiting plans. In nearly every recruiting case, coaches must resort strictly to their own personality, and their own reputation in order to attract boys.

"I think the majority of our athletes would tell you that they decided upon Southern because of the appeal of a particular coach," said Dr. Boydston.

COACHING IS BEST

"We have a coaching staff that I don't believe is equaled in any college or university regardless of size. This, plus the attractive schedules the coaches have arranged, are the chief drawing cards for our university," said Dr. Boydston.

According to many of Southern's coaches, the situation can only be relieved through an increase in student activity fees.

"If the students would lend their support, it would only be a matter of time before the name of Southern Illinois University would be as prominent in athletic fields as that of any other institution in America," said one coach.

"On the other hand, if students adopt an attitude of apathy toward the program, it could become disastrous," said another coach. "I would possibly result in the de-emphasis of athletics at Southern."

2,000 Sign Anti-Bomb Petition

By Pat Makinski

Results of the petition against Nikita Khrushchev's exploding a 50-megaton bomb took an unexpected turn last week when 2,000 Belleville Township High School students added their names to the petition.

The petition, which was circulated around campus by Prof. Charles Winslow of the government department, was only signed by about 200 Southern students.

Judy Keck, a student in Prof. Winslow's class, took the idea home and her sister circulated the petition around the Belleville High School. The high school students and faculty seemed less reluctant to put their names on the plea.

Despite Mr. Khrushchev's premature explosion, a 30-megaton drop, Prof. Winslow sent the petition to the Kremlin's leader.

Although comparatively few students and no faculty members signed the petition here, Prof. Winslow said he might do something similar if the occasion arose.

The government professor said he expects President Kennedy to call for a nation-wide protest, so that these signatures might be part of a nation and world-wide movement.

Let's Take a Hike

A fall color hike will be sponsored Sunday from 1 to 4 p. m. by the Southern Illinois University Faculty Club.

The hike will be led by Professor Egon Kamarasy along the new Shawnee Hills Wilderness Trail to the Giant City black top. The hikers will leave from the Makanda railway station, near Giant City State Park, and will cover some four miles. The hike is free and open to all persons.

Kamarasy recently helped map the new trail in cooperation with Southern Illinois civic groups.

Dinner at the Faculty Club will follow the hike. Non-members must make reservations for the dinner which costs $1.55 per person.

Persons interested in making the hike should contact Kamarasy in the SIU government department.

English Theater Group to Perform

The Theatre Outlook of England will present "The School for Scandal" Nov. 11 in Shryock Auditorium at 8 p. m.

The play, written by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, is set in London during 1777.

This group from England presents repertory programs consisting of a combination of great standard works of the theatre and challenging new plays.

"The School for Scandal" is one of three plays this group is presenting in an American tour this year. The other two plays are "Coriolanus" by William Shakespeare and "Four Men" by Andre Davis.

Director of Theatre Outlook is Eric Salmon.

The play is free to the public.

Attends Conference

Professor Jan Harper, associate professor of Food and Nutrition, will be in Springfield this weekend to attend conferences on the 1962 school lunch workshop sponsored by the state department of education.

To Teach at SIU

Designer Began As Actress

by Pat Malinski

A new link between the academic and professional worlds has come to SIU.

Mrs. Eelin Harrison, costume designer for the drama department, has brought with her a widely varied background of experience, running the gamut from vaudeville and radio to movies and the legitimate stage.

As designer and instructor of introduction to the theater, Mrs. Harrison is giving drama majors the benefit of knowing someone who has practiced in almost every phase of the dramatic arts.

Beginning as an actress, Mrs. Harrison has appeared in off-Broadway and Shakespearean plays. For a while she spoke the male voice parts in the radio program, "News Comes to Life."

From this, she joined a troupe of marionette performers under the leadership of Tony Sarg.

Having always been interested in costuming and working with young actors and actresses, Mrs. Harrison has taught at Brooklyn

U., Louisiana State U., and Yale.

The whole problem of costuming, she believes, is the creating of the proper mood of the play. "The director is the creator," and "the set, lights, and costuming add to the expression of the mood he creates."

This is her first experience in the Mid-West and finds it and SIU "quite different." Southern seems to her, "not tied down by precedents," and presenting an "unlimited horizon for experimentation."

Coming directly from Louisiana State U this term, Mrs. Harrison said her biggest problem now is "just finding things — where to get hold of the materials I need."

Her greatest love now is "anything concerned with production in the theater." Although her schedule has not been exactly settled, she expects to be teaching makeup, interpretation of dramatic literature and costuming in the near future.

Southern Has Potential Fallout Protection

Although there are no special provisions at Southern for protection from the fallout or blast that might result from a nuclear attack, such shelters are now in the "discussion" stage at all universities in Illinois. To move further along in the planning, health, civil defense and security experts from the state universities will meet at Southern Dec. 12.

Around the first of the year the national government will begin a survey of public buildings across the nation. This survey, which will be conducted by engineers and architects, will attempt to determine the feasibility of constructing shelters and re-enforcing present structures. It will include inspection of buildings at all state universities.

So the question of protecting college students is not being overlooked. For SIU students and personnel, the question of protection is vital. A pamphlet published by the Illinois Civil Defense indicates that if an H-bomb hits St. Louis and the wind is to the southeast, there would be 100 per cent casualties in this area and as far south as Cairo.

Of course this is assuming that no one takes shelter, but remains exposed for 36 hours. A similar blast in Chicago would result in no casualties.

We are slightly relieved to report that on this campus there are several structures which could provide considerable protection from a blast. Frank Bridges, SIU civil defense expert, pointed out that any of the present storm shelters would cut down significantly on the casualties. He emphasized the value of the basement of the library and possibly the steam tunnels in this role.

He explained there are approximately three feet of concrete between the basement and first floor of the library. The steam tunnels, which are about one foot thick, would be 100 per cent free from fallout where they are covered by several feet of dirt.

Due to the great expense involved in constructing a shelter for the University, it would probably be more feasible to survey the facilities we have at present and work from that point. According to Mr. Bridges, it would cost several million dollars to construct a shelter.

To show the value of merely re-enforcing our present buildings and stocking them, we point out some precautions suggested by the civil defense to reduce losses:

"Taking shelter in a house will reduce the danger to about half. Taking shelter in a basement will reduce danger by 90 per cent. Taking shelter in a cyclone cellar will eliminate all danger from fallout."

This program, if adopted, will save both money and lives. With the somewhat "uneasy" world situation today, we cannot delay any longer than red-tape requires. We hope that a "re-enforcement" program will be put into effect in the very near future.—Kent Zimmermann.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Now that you're no longer on the football team—just how do you expect to pass this English course?

Homesick Students Mar Old Main

We often hear complaints about the University from persons who hail from a different part of the country. These complaints are frequently more critical than mere charges of being a "cow college."

It is these same critics who make it difficult for Southern to become anything more than a "cow college" by imprinting the names of their far-away homes in huge, painted letters across the campus. On the road around the canon, on Old Main windows and steps and elsewhere on campus, we see "BROOKLYN, NEW YORK," "PITTSBURGH" and "CHICAGO" scrawled in orange, black, white and green letters.

While the University is attempting to make this a really beautiful campus, certain destructive, immature individuals are making the job extremely difficult, if not impossible. Southern can be no better than we are willing to make it.

If some students are so homesick or loyal, as the case may be, possibly they belong at home and not at Southern.—Kent Zimmermann

Campus Lovers Publicize Affairs

As we walk across campus, through the University Center, through the library and parking lots, we find love in its most undesirable forms. Anytime of the day or night, we find young couples strolling hand in hand across the campus; this certainly is acceptable.

But when holding hands progresses to smooching, necking or other love-making activities in public, the bounds of acceptability are broken. When these "advanced" forms of love-making are displayed in public, it shows a definite lack of good taste and respectability on the part of both persons involved.

The patio and Magnolia Room of the University Center are especially good show-places for the talents of young lovers. We wonder how many of these violators of the laws of good taste and respectability have displayed their passions publicly in their home towns or other places where they are well known?

Being away from home offers no excuse for these actions. These irresponsible persons reflect a lack of training and establish a poor character for Southern Illinois University.

This is not meant to be a sermon, but as William Shakespeare said in The Merchant of Venice: "But love is blind, and lovers cannot see the pretty follies that themselves commit."—Kent Zimmermann

Letter Not Used, Writer Complains

Editor:

On Oct. 24 Mr. Zimmermann wrote an editorial titled "Student Apathy Noted" pointing out student indifference to matters of their own vital interest. The reason: "They point out that the student government has no authority, so what is the use of voting." Further encouraging the students, he advised that as long as this attitude continues, the student government will proceed without the authority it needs.

Taking his advice not to be "apathetic" to student interests, I am not being indifferent here to student interest even though my last letter, which was sent about 20 days ago, has not been given a place in the Egyptian yet. May I mention here that this letter was in the student interest too? I still wonder if I can learn the reason why the Egyptian failed to carry my views about the article which appeared to have some misstatements in regard to the recent Syrian event which broke its union with Egypt. It had paralleled the Syrian movement with the American Revolutionary War.

Does the editor have the liberty not to even bother to let a mistake, caused by himself, be rectified in the Egyptian, a student organ, without impairing the obligations of his responsibility as an editor? Is it because the letter was a legitimate protest to the professed opinion of the respectable editor that it was backfired or thrown in the waste-paper basket?

Maybe this kind of action is discouraging the students from voicing their legitimate opinion in their sole organ of news. This may be a good way to make students completely apathetic to the Egyptian, too.

Maybe it is high time for whatever letters are written to the Egyptian to be given due consideration and place. There is not one way alone to stop SIU from becoming a new college.

Prices In Center Out Of Reach

Editor: "What a beautiful place!" I'm sure most of us here at Southern have heard many similar exclamations of admiration about the new University Center.

I agree, it is a most glamorous place. But beauty alone is not enough. It is worthless unless the Center can serve the needs of a majority of the students.

One might well believe that the University is trying to cater to the more prosperous clientele. I believe it is common knowledge that SIU students come from families with moderate or low incomes. The aim should be to have as many users of the facilities as is possible at minimum prices. The policy should not be to make the prices so high that only a small number of students are paying all the expenses.

What single thing is most distressing to me is the food prices in the cafeteria. This, on the surface, may seem petty; at the same time, it is serious to the student who has to eat all his meals out. One would think that the University cafeteria would be the logical place to get adequate quality and the largest quantity of food for one's money. This is plainly not true.

If one happens to own a car (almost an unheard of luxury here), one could go downtown for a better meal for his money.

Again, the student faces the same situation when he turns to the Olympic Room for relaxation, or diversion if you may. Ninety cents hourly for playing pool — these are "commercial" prices! Here he doesn't even have the choice of going downtown as poolrooms are forbidden by city ordinance.

To me, a sad situation exists and is definitely not in keeping with the purposes for which the center was built.

Ernie Heltsley

(Editor's Note — This is the third prize winning letter in the Egyptian contest.)

Campaign Tactics Waste Time, Money

Editor: As freshman observer of campus elections, the past elections have been quite a let down. I refer to the destruction of the campaign posters and banners. I feel that the destruction of the posters and banners has been a let down not only to the candidates themselves, but also to the sponsoring organizations.

As a voter, you should help your candidate by giving your full support and not by tearing down publicity of opponents. There is no use for any type of campaign if the publicity is destroyed.

The organizations sponsoring the candidates lose money, time and effort when demonstrations such as those that have occurred this year take place. Many of the posters have been mutilated in the elections so far this year. This cannot be overlooked as simply child play since this is destruction of private property.

There is no reason for a campaign if college students are not grown up enough to accept a candidate chosen by votes alone. Vandalism is unnecessary, childish and unlawful. If elections are so run as to create cheating and vandalism, there is no purpose in having officers, because they could show no real value or standards.

Housing Program Aids Segregation?

Editor:

SIU has at last (Egyptian 24 October) solved the problem of approving of segregated housing. The University has accomplished this by designating some areas as "accepted living centers," which means they are integrated, and by designating other areas as "accepted physical facilities," which means they are segregated.

The use of these signs merely lends the official stamp of approval to those egalitarian householders who refuse to rent to Negroes. It would seem that listing such facilities on the University housing list impedes the gradual movement towards integration, which the University supposedly supports. In addition, students who wish to live in segregated quarters will now be able to discover such accommodations with the aid of the University.

Also, will not this system of classification limit the number of additional housing units available in the future to students wishing integrated facilities?

The problem remains pressing and unsolved.

They Dream of Big City, Sociologist Says

SIU Students Behind In Suburbia Trend

The big city has always been the symbol of the big dream, the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow and the golden apple in the garden of the Hesperides.

Southern Illinois University students who have their sights set on big city living should take a look at the small community before they make the decision.

That's the advice of sociologist Ray Wakeley, who believes the current trend among the American population is a return to rural living. A visiting professor at SIU, Dr. Wakeley is on the staff of the department of area services.

"From what I can tell, most students are more interested in urban living. They feel they can get the better job, make more money and have more prestige in a metropolitan area," he said.

"This is simply the feeling that if you want to be a great man, you go to the city. But many students fail to look for opportunities as good in the smaller community which has many advantages, too."

Born on a farm in Northeast Pennsylvania, Dr. Wakeley grew up in a small-town, rural atmosphere. He talks softly like a man who has never been forced to scream directions to a cab driver, or heard above the rumble of the elevated train or a vociferous newsboy shouting "Whadda ya read."

Dr. Wakeley notes that the general trends indicate a growth of rural population and a big surge of city-dwellers to the suburbs. The general trends also is one of the move of industry and giant corporations to the suburbs.

"This trend has been going on in New York for sometime and it's happening in the Midwest right now," he said. "I'm very optimistic about the future of the small community."

The present trend in Southern Illinois is for the young people to migrate to the city, he says, rather than to return to their home towns to seek opportunity. Dr. Wakeley sees no change in this trend in the next five to six years.

He does believe, however, that eventually the young people will find greater opportunities in Southern Illinois and more will return to their home towns after they graduate.

"The small community must help itself in assuring that its young people will return by providing the best conditions and opportunities possible," he said. "Any fault along this line lies with the people of the community."

"Many of these people go to the city to find a good job but many would rather live in the suburbs or the small community."

"The people need to create good living conditions in these small towns and it is sure to pay off. Actually, the small town can be a great place to live."

"A combination of development in agriculture, forestry, industry and recreation is important for Southern Illinois in my mind. And it takes all three. I believe there are more opportunities in farming than ever before. Even in areas where the farm land is not at best, farmers are doing all right. The opportunity in forestry is equally good."

Longtime head of sociology at Iowa State University and a visiting professor in Cornell's rural sociology department last year, Dr. Wakeley plans to study changes in Southern Illinois population characteristics, community development programs and business and social resources for growth.

Since many industries are moving to the suburbs, people can live outside the main city and enjoy many of the advantages of small town living, Wakeley points out.

Wakeley asks a simple question that seems to make sense: "Why should we pile everybody in the cities?"

WSIU Takes To Air Monday

WSIU-TV will begin telecasting Monday at 8:30 a. m. when it offers the first of two science courses. Senior physics will be followed by "Science Corner" on Channel 8. It will be on the air all day.

From 4 to 5 p. m., "Children's Corner" will be aired. For the adults, WSIU-TV will telecast a program on a Bach sonata played by world-famous cellist Pablo Casal at 6:30 p. m. Hour-long programs on suburban living and influential Americans will be presented from 7 to 9 p.m.

Interpreter's Theatre Presents Television Series

Interpreter's Theatre, an organization concerned with literary adventure, will present a series of television programs on WSIU-TV beginning Nov. 20.

The group, which started informally last fall, will present a reading of poems, "The Myriad Faces of Time" for their television debut.

The organization centers its activities on experimental theatre for the purpose of presenting public performances, understanding literature and acting as a tool for better reading.

Miss Marion Davis, assistant professor in the speech department, is director of the group.

Since the beginning of school, Interpreter's Theatre has presented "Letters and Poetry of Edna St. Vincent Millay," "Kahlil Giblin," and "The Glass Harp." Last year the group presented "The Little Prince," "Antoine de St. Erupery," and "Harlem Literature."

All of the presentations consisted of poem, play, and novel readings adapted for an interpretive theatre.

On April 2 members of the Interpreter's Theatre will attend a theatre workshop on the campus of the University of Illinois. About 12 members of the Southern literary group will attend. Included in the program will be a study of the poems of Auden, Robinson, and Nims.

The next informal reading hour will be Wednesday, Nov. 12, in Room D of the University Center. Any student, faculty member or Carbondale resident is welcome.

SIU Debaters Win 3rd Place In Kansas Meet

The Southern Illinois University debate team of Sharon Loveless, Mattoon, and Barbara Ellmore, Easton, won third place at the annual Kansas State Invitational debate tournament at Emporia, Kansas Oct. 27 and 28.

The team was undefeated in six preliminary rounds. The debaters defeated Northern Illinois in the octofinal, Harvard in the quarterfinal, and lost to Dartmouth in the semifinals.

The team of Mike Morris and Dick Fulkerson, both of Carbondale, were 4-2 in the preliminary rounds and missed entering the play-off round by one point.

Forty of the country's leading debate schools participated. The SIU debaters were accompanied by E. Neal Claussen, assistant to the director of debate.

Final IAC Game for Both Teams

Southern Win Assures Tie For First Place

A win against the winless, and hopes of a second consecutive IAC Conference crown. These are the stakes this week-end as the Salukis travel to Ypsilanti, Michigan to battle the Eastern Michigan Hurons. It is the final IAC game for both teams.

The Salukis, currently on top in the IAC standings, must post a win Saturday to assure themselves of at least a first place tie. A combination Southern win and a Western or Normal loss would bring the Interstate Conference title home with the Salukis for the second straight season.

The Hurons of coach Fred Trosko have found winning a football game in the past three seasons an all but impossible task.

The boys from the water wonderland have won but four ball games in the past four years. This span includes two ties and 19 defeats — a record the Michigan school is not proud of.

Two weeks ago, Eastern Michigan saw near victory turned into sudden defeat. Leading 11-0 against Central Michigan with just four minutes to play, the Hurons made two mistakes and found themselves on the short end of a 13-11 score at the final gun.

Winless in the past two seasons, the Hurons this week-end have everything to gain and nothing to lose. To Eastern Michigan and coach Trosko, a win over Southern would successfully complete an otherwise dismal season.

Last season the Salukis ran circles around Eastern Michigan in posting a 66-8 victory. Southern scored two touchdowns in the first 24 seconds of the game and led 35-0 at halftime. The Salukis failed to score in the third period but came on strong in the fourth to score the remaining 31 points.

This season the Hurons show good size in the interior line. Don Drinkhahn, Norm Jacobs, and Nick Genova form the nucleus of coach Fred Trosko's forward wall. Drinkhahn, a 225-pound tackle, and center Norm Jacobs, who also tips the scale at 225-pounds, co-captain Eastern Michigan's squad.

250-pound Nick Genova holds the other tackle position for the Hurons.

Backs Pat Dignan, and Dave Catherman pose as pass catching threats for EMU. Through the first five games, Dignan had caught seven passes for 90 yards or around 13 yards gained per catch.

George Beaudette, a 215-pounder, has been handling the quarterbacking chores for the Hurons this season. However, understudy Tom Prieur has gained the praise of scouts in the past few outings and could pose as a threat to Saluki defenders.

Southern's star halfback Amos Bullocks will be out to increase his rushing yardage this week-end. The Chicagoan has already gained 640 yards on the ground.

HOPING FOR AN UPSET—This trio of Eastern Michigan football players would consider the season a success if they could defeat Southern Illinois Saturday. Left to right, they are: Don Drinkham, tackle and co-captain, Norman Jacobs, center and co-captain and Nick Genova, guard. The three starters are the mainstay of a luckless Huron squad this year.

Saluki Harriers Meet Chicago Team

Once-beaten Southern Illinois University challenges the Chicago Track Club Saturday (Nov. 4) in an open cross-country meet at Chicago's Washington Park.

Coach Lew Hartzog's Salukis will be seeking their fourth consecutive win of the season after having dropped their opener to the University of Kansas by a narrow six-point margin.

Joe Thomas, SIU's sophomore star from Uniontown, Pa., has recorded three straight victories with 16:36 and 16:12 times over three and one-quarter mile courses and an even 18-minute clocking over a three and one-half mile course.

Team captain Lee King, Pleasant Plains, (Ill.), has likewise turned in three straight second-place finishes while Jim Dupree, Pompano Beach, Fla., John Flamer, Yonkers, N. Y., Alan Gelsco, West Frankfort, Mike Brazier, Moro, and Don Trowbridge, Alton, have made up the remainder of Southern's squad.

The Salukis will be bolstered this week-end, however, as freshman Bill Cornell and Brian Turner of England will be competing in the AAU-type meet.

Expecting to compete for the Chicago Track Club are Phil Coleman, a former SIU distance star, Jim Harris, Deacon Jones, Gar Williams, and Hal Higdon.

22 New Prospects For Baseball Team

Fall baseball drills at Southern Illinois University resulted in 22 new prospects being invited to participate in early-season practice next February.

Coach Glenn (Abe) Martin, although expecting a large group of returning lettermen next spring, extended invitations to four outfielders, seven infielders and 11 pitchers and catchers after sending freshmen and transfer students through three weeks of drills.

The group, along with veterans from Southern's Interstate Conference Championship squad of last season, will begin indoor practice Feb. 1 in preparation for the 1962 campaign.

Frosh Gridders Lose Second Game

Southern's Freshman football team dropped its second straight game by the margin of a field goal Monday, as Evansville College's little halfback, Mike Madriaga, booted his team home 10-8.

Last week, Memphis State beat the frosh Salukis with a last minute field goal, 9-6.

Madriaga, 5-6 and 145 pounds, practically beat the SIU Freshman single-handed, scoring all 10 points. In addition to the last quarter field goal, the speedy halfback scored Evansville's only touchdown on a 35-yard run, and then kicked the extra point.

Southern's only touch down came in the first quarter when quarterback Mike McGinnis threw a pass to end Dave Bolzer that was good for 46-yards and six points.

The Salukis tallied for two more points in the third quarter when defender Bill Lepsi tackled Evansville quarterback, Kim DeVault, in the end zone for a safety.

Evansville led at the half, 7-6.

Bright futures in data transmission at W. E.

New engineers with initiative who can meet Western Electric's high standards are offered many exciting career opportunities with our company in data processing development work as it relates to communications.

For example, Western's engineers—working closely with Bell Telephone Laboratories—have solved development and manufacturing problems connected with the Bell System's new DATA-PHONE Data set (made by Western Electric). DATA-PHONE service lets business machines, such as computers, "speak" to each other in a language of numbers and symbols over existing telephone communication networks. This represents a tremendous boon to business; and consequently, it is estimated that some day there may be more machine talk than people talk using telephone lines.

Of course, data communications is only one of many rewarding career areas that await you at Western Electric. Here are just a few of the others: electronic switching . . . solid state electronic devices . . . microwave radio relay . . . computer-programmed production lines . . . solar cells . . . optical masers . . . futuristic telephones.

We need high-caliber, forward-thinking engineers now to help us transform these plans into realities or to work with us in scores of other key communications areas. Your future, the future of Western Electric, and the future of America's communications—could well depend on your first career connection.

Challenging opportunities exist now at Western Electric for electrical, mechanical, industrial, and chemical engineers, as well as physical science, liberal arts, and business majors. All qualified applicants will receive careful consideration for employment without regard to race, creed, color or national origin. For more information about Western Electric, write College Relations, Western Electric Company, Room 6106, 222 Broadway, New York 38, New York. And be sure to arrange for a Western Electric interview when our college representatives visit your campus.
