A 'mellow' 15,000 pack The Strip

By John Schrag and Douglas Hamm Staff Writers

The great Rainmaker in the sky looked down upon Carbondale Saturday night, smiled at the masses of masked merrymakers, and said "OK, I'll wait. Go forth and celebrate."

And they did. Despite forecasts of rain, an estimated 15,000 revelers packed South Illinois Avenue Saturday night in what was considered one of the largest and best-behaved Halloween crowds ever.

This year's throng featured a variety of imaginative costumes. Several Rubik's Cubes weaved through the multitudes, as did a bunch of giant bananas, an MX missile, a musical locomotive, a 10-foot-tall electric vibrator, and the usual array of pregnant nuns, boy scouts and well-endowed transvestites.

At one point, on the north end of The Strip, a high level summit was held between Ronald Reagan, Jimmy Carter, Richard Nixon, Edward Kennedy and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau. Nearby, a couple of banjo players provided the music for an impromptu polka featuring Darth Vader and Ragedy Ann, while a host of ghosts gayly slurred through the chorus of "She's Too Fat For Me." A wandering electric guitarist and trumpeter also supplied melodious sounds for the benefit of the mob.

An assortment of treats were available for those whose stomachs yearned for more than a liquid diet. Several small stands sent the aromas of hot dogs, bratwurst, Italian sausage, pizza and corn on the cob into the night.

A worker at the Carbondale Jaycees bratwurst stand, across from Hangar 9, said business was fast and furious. "It feels like we've sold four billion of these brats," he said. "I know that we've sold more than McDonalds."

To combat the late-hour drowsiness that accompanies alcohol consumption, there was even hot coffee, for two bits a cup.

Mayor Hans Fischer, on hand Saturday night to witness the street party, said he was pleased with how things went.

"There were a lot of people this year, more than we anticipated," he said. "But the crowd seemed fairly mellow."

City officials also were pleased with the results of the bottle-ban, enacted again this year to prevent the accumulation of broken glass in and along The Strip. The sale of certain glass-bottled alcoholic beverages had been prohibited since Monday. Very few bottles could be seen among the mounds of crushed beer cans

Student Center given liquor license extension

By Mike Anthony Staff Writer

The Student Center has been given until Nov. 14 to either surrender its liquor license or request a hearing, according to an Illinois Liquor Control Commission official.

Rita Farrell, technical advisor to the commission, said Friday that the executive director of the ILCC approved the University's request for extending the Monday deadline to allow the Student Center to fulfill previous commitments.

The Student Center was asked to return its liquor license after the commission discovered that the center is located in Carbondale Township, voted dry in a 1943 referendum.

The Student Center was granted a license by the commission in August, 1980, on the basis of a statute enacted last year which permits the sale of alcohol on state university campuses for convention and conference activities.

Richard Higerson, acting legal counsel for the University, said the University's position is that the Student Center can sell liquor on the basis of that statute and the state license that was granted.

He also said the University may be in disagreement with the commission over the 1943 referendum.

According to Farrell, the license was granted before the determination was made that the center was located in a dry area, and the University can either return the license or request a hearing.

Last week, Higerson said that a hearing is "a possibility, but a decision has not yet been made."

"We have to have internal discussions to determine what the University's response will be," Higerson said.

Those discussions will include President Albert Somit, Vice President for Student Affairs Bruce Swinburne and Student Center Director John Corker, he said.

Higerson said that asking the Carbondale City Council to annex the Student Center into the city is a possibility, "but not one that's been discussed by anybody at the University."

However, Farrell said, "Annexation alone does not turn it into a wet area."

Farrell cited an Illinois statute which says a petition with the signatures of at least 25 percent of the legal voters in the area is needed to request a referendum to change the status of an annexed area.

The statute also states that a petition containing the signatures of two-thirds of the legal voters living in the area can be used to change existing prohibitions on the sale of alcohol.

School board elections upcoming

By Bob Boudurant Staff Writer

Carbondale voters will go to the polls Tuesday and elect members to local high school and elementary district school boards.

Voters will elect two persons from four candidates for the Carbondale Community High School Board. Three candidates are vying for two full terms on the elementary board, with another partial term drawing two candidates.

Candidates for the high school board have differing views on the major issue facing the district—consolidation of the district's two campuses.

Presently, the district maintains two campuses, one on the east and one on the west side of town. In the interest of saving expenses, the district has been considering various ways of consolidating the campuses.

Voters on Tuesday will choose between incumbent Richard Cannon, 49, an assistant professor in aviation technology at SIU-C; incumbent William Schwegman, 46, an engineer; Robert Sedlach, 34, an associate professor in special education at SIU-C; and Margaret Crowe, a retired high school English teacher.

Schwegman, a board member for the past 4½ years, does not see campus consolidation as a big issue at the present time. He supports consolidation in order to keep the school district sound financially.

Schwegman also said the district's vocational education program needs to be expanded, as a means of expanding training alternatives for students.

Schwegman said he supports having student representation on the board, serving in a non-voting, advisory capacity.

Sedlach said consolidating on the east campus would not be cost-effective. Funds saved on the cost of moving would free up

Arrests down despite large attendance

By Douglas Hamm
Staff Writer

Carbondale police reported fewer arrests over Halloween weekend this year than last year, despite a crowd that may have been one of the largest ever to frolic down South Illinois Avenue.

A spokeswoman for Memorial Hospital said the number of injuries was up this year. Most injuries reported were minor, although one man was seriously injured when he was run over by an Illinois Central Gulf train.

Carbondale Police Chief Edward Hogan said 36 people were arrested this year compared to 58 arrests made last year. Hogan said most arrests were for minor offenses such as theft of services and altered identification cards.

Fire department officials reported no major fires along The Strip although there were a "lot of little fires" that were put out quickly. Hogan said there were no reports of serious property damage, adding that no estimate of damages was available.

Memorial Hospital treated more than 100 persons this weekend, up dramatically from last year when 22 persons were treated.

Lawrence K. Foster, 22, of Quincy, was reported in critical condition after he fell under a train Saturday night, apparently attempting to hop a ride. Foster lost his right leg in the accident, severely injured his right arm and suffered head lacerations.

Hogan said Saturday's crowd, in excess of 15,000 persons, was well behaved and possibly the largest ever to party on Illinois Avenue. He added that partiers from far away as Texas and from every college in Illinois descended upon the city to indulge in Halloween Carbondale style.

More than 50 Carbondale and SIU-C police officers made their way through the crowd, confiscating swords, knives and anything else that could have been used as a weapon.

This year's party had its usual number of telephone pole climbers, "moon shooters" and flashers. Many partiers also relieved themselves behind the Varsity Theater turning the alley into a quagmire of urine. The effect of the City Council's bottle ban was evident as broken bottles were replaced with mountains of empty beer cans. A station for collecting aluminum cans was set up in the parking lot of the First National Bank by the Student Environmental Center.

Most of the partiers were gone by the time the city began its clean-up work at 4:30 a.m. Sunday on

The Strip. An abundance of beer cans, instead of bottles, was the rule this year.

The excitement, or maybe the beer, got the best of an unidentified partier Saturday night, so he evidently decided to take a rest at the corner of South Illinois Avenue and College Street.

Man held in Halloween killing

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A man who lost his only son in Vietnam was being held on a murder charge Sunday, accused of shooting a 13-year-old trick-or-treater who wore an Army costume and carried a toy submachine gun.

Daniel Kevin Breaux, described as large for his age, was shot once in the chest with a .357 Magnum on Saturday night as he and two other boys stood waiting for Halloween treats on Robert James Bouton's front porch, sheriff's deputies said.

"They rang the doorbell and he answered the door," said Sgt. Chris Browning. "He slammed the door, ran to his bedroom and got his .357 Magnum and came back out.

"He stepped out on the porch, said something to the effect that 'You think it's funny, huh?' and he shot him," said Browning, the chief investigating officer in the case.

Breaux died about 75 minutes later at Earl K. Long Hospital. Bouton, 58, was held at the city jail on a charge of second-degree murder. Deputies said bond was set Sunday at $250,000.

Bouton was expected to undergo psychiatric tests, deputies said.

Breaux had gone trick-or-treating dressed in a camouflage hat, an Army T-shirt and fatigue pants, Browning said. He was accompanied by two friends, 13 and 15 years old, in street clothes.

"He had a little plastic machine gun... You can see it's a toy," said Browning.

"The kid was really big for his age," Browning said. "He was 13 years old but 5-7, 5-8 inches. One of the other kids was 5-11."

"They were really too old to be out trick-or-treating. But kids are going to be kids," he said.

He said Bouton's wife reported the shooting, which occurred about 6:30 p.m.

Bouton later told investigators he had been frightened by a recent rash of armed robberies and rapes, Browning said.

Solidarity chapters plan strikes

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Challenging the Polish Parliament and national union leaders, local Solidarity unionists planned new strikes and vowed Sunday to continue without protests now idling about 250,000 workers across the country.

Walkouts are scheduled by Solidarity chapters in at least six cities this week, but officials could not immediately be reached to say if they planned to cancel the protests in light of Parliament's appeal Saturday to end them.

Submarine stalemate continues

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Swedish authorities said Sunday "there must be some other reason" than Soviet bureaucracy keeping a skipper aboard his grounded submarine but they dismissed the possibility of using force to end the stalemate off the Baltic coast.

Lt. Cmdr. Pyotr Gushin poked his head out of the sub's turret Sunday for a breath of fresh air, but the 35-year-old skipper was still refusing to come ashore for interrogation despite instructions from the Soviet Embassy here to cooperate with Swedish officials.

The boat ran aground in a restricted area of the Baltic Sea on Tuesday night, about 9 1/2 miles from the Karlskrona naval base, a key defense installation.

Minister visits renegade convicts

GRATERFORD, Pa. (AP) — A visiting minister prayed with "reputed" inmates Sunday at a jail full of renegade convicts and six prison employees captive in a kitchen for the fifth day.

Meanwhile, prison officials revealed they believe the captors, who also may be holding a few inmates hostage, had somehow obtained more than one gun.

That disclosure came after a sharp sound rang out Saturday night over the State Correctional Institution during a hull in telephone talks between officials and the inmates who have been holed up in the kitchen since an abortive escape attempt Wednesday night.

Authorities believed the sound to be a gunshot, and demanded to see the hostages. The six captive guards and prison workers were paraded before a doorway in sight of state troopers.

"We believe they're OK," said Correction Bureau spokesman Kenneth Robinson.

An African Methodist minister who visited the prison Sunday described the inmate population as "disgusted."

"I prayed with many of them," said the Rev. Nathaniel Williams. "They hoped it will hurry and come to an end, but there is no hostility against the administration."

Halloween: reflections through bloodshot eyes

Another Halloween in Carbondale has come and gone. Some reflections through bloodshot eyes seem appropriate in the aftermath.

The crowd was enormous, possibly the largest ever seen in all the years that Halloween has been celebrated in this fashion. The official estimate for Saturday was 15,000, but it seemed at times like 100,000 people packed onto Illinois Avenue. However, it was an exceptionally well-behaved crowd and for that we should all feel proud, and, frankly, relieved.

The weekend was not without its casualties, and one tragedy. One 22-year-old from Quincy attempted to hop a freight train on the ICG tracks and fell off. He lost a leg and sustained numerous other injuries. In addition, Memorial Hospital reported that 100 injuries, mostly minor, were treated. All this is to be expected in a celebration of this size—but it is saddening, nonetheless.

It is, admittedly, a very subjective judgment, but the proportion of people who dress up in costumes seems to be declining with every year. If that is true, it is a commentary of sorts on what Halloween in Carbondale is gradually becoming: less of a celebration of the holiday than an excuse to blow into town and stay drunk for 48 hours. Not that that is anything new—drunkenness has long been a hallmark of Halloween in this town. But something about the spirit of the occasion seems to be waning.

Nevertheless, there is something to be said for Halloween as a release of excess tension and energy from 10 weeks of classes. It probably would be fair to say that city officials take this view, as well. They deserve a great deal of credit for their patience and equanimity in the face of the logistical nightmare presented by this weekend's activities.

But they are happy, and so are many others, that it is all over with. It was a welcome opportunity to party with friends from back home and friends at school and it was a memorable weekend in many respects. But it is always a little bit of a let-down in the wake of all the buildup it receives, and the body and mind do rebel by Sunday afternoon from all the punishment.

Chalk up another Halloween. For some it will be the last. It is hoped that the memories will be good ones.

Examine your files, everybody

In this era of space-age technology, one is amazed at the phenomenal achievements of mankind. The computer and related information systems that exist today can accumulate staggering amounts of data. It seems that computer programs can provide any and all types of information that one would ever need. Governmental agencies and various businesses have compiled a profusion of records on each of us. God has too. And He has always maintained individual files even before the invention of the computer.

You see, each of us has a file. At the close of one's "fiscal" life his/her data file is placed in storage. At a later time, the personal file will be assessed and each shall be present for its review. Each shall give an account for its contents, yes, even for every careless word spoken; we are either justified, or condemned by our words (Matt. 12: 36-37).

The most important data in the file determines whether one will spend eternity with God, or apart from God in eternal punishment.

Satan knows all about computer crime. He has ruined lots of files. Think about it, people. Examine your file.—Keith D. Morgan, Senior, Accounting.

Halloween fuss... how typical

I really felt good when I saw on the TV set, young people in Europe protesting about our bombs and general exploitiveness. Then I read the DE and got a good laugh. I read the student body is arguing, about this and that. The this and that is a party in the streets.

And so typical of us American students, you know us little fat ones in designer jeans with many pets.

I don't feel so good thinking about us as the next leaders, when all we get fired up about is a party in the streets.

Not at all. You see all that beer we will drink, in bottles or cans, will be passed the next day. And more babies will be built. And more babies will die, that is, starve slowly, while we drink beer.

And...And...And...Happy Halloween, everybody.—Perry Grimaldi, Senior, Finance.

City should keep bikes off streets

The state of Illinois has taken a major step toward recognizing the safety hazards of bicycles operating on the streets. On October 12, the Daily Egyptian reported that a state statute will take effect Jan. 1 allowing the use of bikes on sidewalks. Current law forbids this, claiming that bikes belong in the street. Almost any bike rider or car driver will tell you this is bunk!

I suppose there will be some grocery bags knocked from old ladies' arms and some pedestrian-bike mishaps will occur when bikes start legally invading the sidewalks, but I would rather be knocked off my feet by a bike on the sidewalk than get my face splattered all over the pavement while riding my bike in the street.

In the last four months I have read of at least four tragic bike-car accidents in the local papers and the potential for more looms every day.

As a bike rider I can appreciate how difficult it can be to ride on the sidewalk and I don't care about bikes on the street who wobble all over busy intersections during heavy traffic periods, especially when sidewalks aren't very crowded.

Of course this means that many pedestrians will have to wake up out of their stupor in order to be courteous to passing bikes. In fact, they might even learn to look up from their shoes when they wander into traffic themselves. I hate riding my bike because of these problems and I dread the day when I find my car on a collision course with a bike even worse. I sincerely hope Carbondale will not exercise its power of home rule and continue to ban bikes from sidewalks and I also hope the city council will feverishly continue to expand the bikeway network so that those who choose to ride their bikes can do so safely.—Tim Crawley, Senior, Radio and Television.

Lettermen won't let women in hall

Baby, if you aren't a member of the testicular gender, you won't get into the SIU-C Hall of Fame.

Female athletes are being stonewalled in their quest for equal access to the Hall of Fame by an organization of jock-sniffers whose concept of equality between the sexes embraces nothing more than the biological fact that female athletes do not carry the omnipotent male organ in their shorts.

Women will never gain admission to the Hall of Fame as long as the nominations are controlled by the Letterman's Club and that is a cruel fact. This collection of neanderthals slither under the banner of the Letterman's Club and call themselves "ex-athletes, professors, and community people." Their spineless refusal to recognize or acknowledge the contributions of female athletes to the SIU-C athletic tradition is an appropriate philosophy for chauvinists whose primary endeavor is to provide a social forum for members to regale each other with endless jock stories of yesteryear while they scratch, chuckle, and spit.

The Letterman's Club should divest itself of its "men only" policy or at least have the integrity to declare unequivocally that women will never be inducted into the Hall of Fame until they form their own committee and organization.

In capes befitting royalty, King Karriem Shari'ati and Queen Denise Wells were presented to a Homecoming crowd of 15,000 at McAndrew Stadium.

An explanation and an apology

Readers who have wondered why the Daily Egyptian did not publish a photograph of the Homecoming king and queen with news of other Homecoming events deserve an answer.

Some readers who questioned editors' motives for omitting the photo have inferred that racial discrimination was involved.

That was not — emphatically not — the case.

Mark it up instead to honest differences in strongly held opinions about the relative news values of all Homecoming activities and other events.

The student editor who has responsibility for decisions about news content believed — and still believes — that a story reporting the names of the king and queen and information about their participation in Homecoming was sufficient.

Some readers, however, strongly believe that honor accruing to the positions of Homecoming king and queen warranted a photo of those elected. We present the photo now in response to those readers' requests.

We extend to the Homecoming king and queen our apology for any pain or embarrassment that they may believe was caused them by the newspaper. We respect the pride they and others take in the honor given them and wish that it not be diminished in any way. — Bill Harmon, managing editor.

King, queen savor their victory

By Vicki Olgeaty
Staff Writer

This year's Homecoming king and queen attribute their election to hard campaigning and the support of black and international students.

Karriem Shari'ati, junior in public relations and marketing from Carbondale, and Denise Ann Wells, graduate student in administration of justice from Calumet Park, were crowned king and queen at the traditional bonfire on Friday night before Homecoming Day.

They reigned over all the Homecoming festivities.

Although minority students strongly supported the pair, Shari'ati said, a cross-section of the University population voted for them. "We represent the entire student body," he said.

Shari'ati, commissioner for minority affairs for the Undergraduate Student Organization, said he didn't enter the contest to win. "I decided to enter to address the attitude that blacks can never do anything here because of racial barriers," he said.

Miss Wells said she "entered the contest for fun, for the pleasure of it." She said it was very rewarding to her to know that her peers had enough confidence in her to elect her queen.

Miss Wells said the Homecoming parade was the highlight of her weekend reign. "I liked the little children because they were all really enthusiastic," she said.

Both Shari'ati and Miss Wells are active in campus organizations. Miss Wells, a former student resident assistant in Neely Hall, is the graduate assistant for orientation programs in the Student Development Office. She was the sweetheart of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity in 1978.

Shari'ati has been active in the Black Affairs Council and in the youth program at the Eurnia Hayes Center. He won the 1979 Golden Gloves Midwest Championship in the 160-pound weight class. He plans to work as a trainer for the SIU-C Boxing Club.

Viewpoint

Treatment of king, queen less than royal

By Gloria Jackson
Student Writer

Tension has mounted in the week since the crowning of the Homecoming king and queen at SIU-C. Because the events leading up to and during Homecoming were handled poorly by coordinators and because the event itself was handled poorly by the media, many complaints have been voiced.

For the first time in the history of SIU-C, both a black king and a black queen were elected to represent the University on Homecoming Day. The shock has still not worn off.

Rather than accept the fact that the vote was valid, the Homecoming committee chose to recount the ballots. Yet the votes tabulated did not lie, and the winners, Karriem Shari'ati and Denise Wells, were announced at Friday's pre-Homecoming bonfire and rally.

"If a traditional festivity involves the whole community, isn't it newsworthy?"

On Homecoming Day, while all the dignitaries sat high in their reserved seats, while the Salukis halted their scalping of the Cajuns for halftime activities, while the floats streamed by in all their glorious color, came the announcement to the McAndrew Stadium crowd of the king and queen.

Alas, it was so nonchalant we almost missed it.

Instead of riding around the field as the royal court usually does, our 1981 Homecoming king and queen were forced to walk around the track, amid the crowd's boos and cheers. There were no flowers. No trophy was presented. The king and queen were given tickets for meals at Burger King. Surely, the Homecoming committee could have come up with something better.

Monday's summary of the weekend's events in the Daily Egyptian was a disgrace. One paragraph in the middle of the story mentioned the coronation. There were no pictures. Even the Southern Illinoian carried a picture.

According to the student editor of the Daily Egyptian, the picture was not newsworthy. It is rather ironic that a picture of the king and queen who represent our entire school could not rate even a back-page slot while a color print of an insignificant float rated front-page coverage. But, of course, that was newsworthy. It was first placed among other inanimate floats.

Who defines what is newsworthy and what isn't?

If a public vote is advertised in a newspaper and the results are tabulated and announced, aren't those results newsworthy?

If a traditional festivity as large as Homecoming involves the whole community of SIU-C — and our paper serves SIU-C — isn't that newsworthy?

Surely, if Homecoming events were significant enough for the Daily Egyptian to publicize before that weekend, it had a responsibility to its public to follow up on those events after that weekend.

There seems to be a thin line between what is newsworthy and what is simply neglected.

SIU-C and the Daily Egyptian have a responsibility to the entire student body. On Homecoming weekend they showed their true colors and their colors definitely were not black.

Smaller jazz band had snap

By Joe Walter
Entertainment Editor

Bigger is not always better. A case in point would be the SIU-C Jazz Band Concert. Though the Big Band and the smaller groups, the Jazz Arts Ensemble and Mercy, all performed well, there seemed to be more snap to the performances of the last two.

The concert last Wednesday was dedicated to the memory of Herbert Krauss, the SIU-C music student who was killed in an auto accident last summer.

The big band, conducted by

Review

jazz concert director Alexis Valk, performed Steely Dan's hit "Aja" and Antonia Carlos Jobim's "No More Blues" in good form, punctuating the latter tune with adequate blasts from the trumpet section.

Charles Mingus' "Goodbye Pork Pie Hat," dedicated to Krauss, was done solemnly by the band and included a moody sax solo by Craig Rytterski.

Another Mingus tune, "Better Git Hit in Your Soul," included a very impressive drum solo by Steve Hawk, who switched from soft to hard rhythms smoothly and with accomplished ease.

"Hangin' Loose," by Toshiki Akiyoshi, was done well for the most part, except for a beat transition that did not come off right.

Phil Wood's "O.P." and Stanley Clarke's "Bass Folk Song" both featured Valk on bass and were conducted by assistant director Eric Manlat. Valk demonstrated dexterity and control of his instrument as he doled out some very complicated rhythms easily.

Though the big band performance was very good, there were times when Valk had to adjust the microphone for some of the sax solos done by the students, which was distracting.

However, a very positive aspect of the show was the lighting effects which complemented the performances beautifully as they gradually shifted colors with the mood of the music.

The SIU Jazz Arts Ensemble performed two selections, "Lex's Walk" and "Rhapsody in Carbondale," a piece written by SIU-C Music Student David Henderson, who played valve trombone. Both were impressively done.

One of the most conspicuous musicians, who was in the Big Band and the Ensemble, was pianist Rick McCoy. One could not but help notice that he was enjoying himself and getting into his music. This was very evident during the performance of Herbie Hancock's "Maiden Voyage," in which McCoy's piano brought about some very impressive transition—from softly smooth to strikingly rhythmic.

The next feature was done by Mercy, a jazz quartet featuring Valk on bass and guest artists Joseph Liberto on piano, Buddy Rogers on saxophone and Darvell Samuel on drums.

This band's set featured some nice selections like "Demonette" and a Jazz Crusaders' more upbeat tune, "Tough Talk." This group also gave a thoroughly enjoyable performance. The audience, though it enjoyed the previous two performances, was at times even ecstatic with this band.

When the band quit, a few audience members demanded an encore to no avail.

What did that whale say? Prof's checking

By Vicki Olgeaty
Staff Writer

What some have labeled a superiority that human beings have over animals may not exist. Animals do use communication to define, regulate and maintain their social systems similar to the way man does, according to Dan R. Salden, chairman of the SIU-E Department of Speech Communication.

Salden told about 60 people at the SIU-C Marine Mammal Society's meeting Thursday that man can learn much about the way he uses communication by studying its use by other animals.

Salden is studying the communication and behavior patterns of killer and humpback whales that live in the Pacific Ocean. "It's a real challenge to try to figure out what's going on," he said.

Salden said most of his research was concentrated on the identification of whale characteristics. "We are not really ready to start asking the question of 'why' yet," he said. "We're still too busy asking 'what.'"

The whale research is complicated by the fact that

A fall harvest natural foods dinner will be held at 6:30 p.m. Friday at Touch of Nature.

The dinner, by campus, will include spinach lasagne, tossed salad with yogurt dressing, broccoli with almonds, pumpkin pie, herb tea and hot apple cider, plus more.

Tickets are $5 for all you can eat and can be purchased at the Recreation Center, Student Wellness Center, Touch of Nature or Mr. Natural's Food Store in Carbondale. The dinner is sponsored by the three SIU-C offices.

SPC recruiting

committee heads

The Student Programming Council needs three persons to take charge of committees - Consorts, Travel and Recreation, and Special Events.

Deadline to apply for any of the jobs is Wednesday. Applications and job descriptions are available in the SPC office on the third floor of the Student Center.

SPC is the main programming body on campus. Committee chairmen gain leadership ability and provide suggestions for programming, according to SPC.

scientists are only able to observe a whale roughly 10 percent of its time, said Salden, who said he was probably the only whale researcher who cannot swim.

A humpback whale can reach a length of 50 feet and can weigh 35 to 40 tons. A male orca or killer whale is usually 30 feet long. Despite these differences, there are similarities among the two and man, Salden said.

Whales have the same number of bones in their pectoral fins or flippers that humans have in their hands and wrists. They may travel in social groups comparable to a human family, and the sounds that each whale makes is unique to that whale just as every human voice is unique.

Records of the song of the humpback whale have been sold on the mass market, but Salden said whale researchers do not know if this is how the whales communicate. "We don't even know how the humpback is making these sounds."

One researcher estimates that a whale has the potential to transmit 100 million bits of information in one 30-minute song, said Salden, who received his doctorate in speech communications at SIU-C in 1968. But Salden said the language, if there is one, cannot be understood until the context is.

Until recently, researchers thought only lone male humpbacks sang to attract mates, Salden said. These ideas have all been scuttled within the past year.

Whales have superior acoustical ability. They locate objects underwater by bouncing sound waves off of them. Salden said a whale can locate a pea in a swimming pool and learn its size and composition by echolocating.

"They are seeing the world with their ears," Salden said. "If you could do that, why would you need words?"

"The whole system upon which their language is predicated may be completely alienated from ours. Therefore, we may not recognize it if it hits us in the face."

Whales may use body language to express themselves as humans do, Salden said. A whale may be expressing antagonism when it waves its flippers back and forth in the water.

One of the most spectacular forms of communication that everyone hopes to see, Salden said, is the breach, when a whale uses its tail to propel itself nearly out of the water. The theories explaining the meaning of this action range from calling it an antagonistic expression to a way the whales knock barnacles off their bodies.

1 Mona, I've finally decided where I'd like to make my career: State Farm!

2 State Farm? Great Plowshares! You're going to be a soil filler. Living an agrarian lifestyle!

Come on now! State Farm is an insurance company.

3 Virgil, you're going to be a salesman? How could you? Even if they'd have you...

4 Mona, there's more to insurance than selling policies. Insurance is opportunity. State Farm is looking for people interested in a data processing career. I don't have a computer science degree but I do have six hours of data processing courses. So I qualify!

5 Virgil, you're putting me on.

6 No way, Mona. State Farm is looking for men and women with any degree and six to nine hours of data processing courses. Of course, you've got to be interested in a data processing career.

7 Good grief! They're omnivorous.

No, but they're also interested in people in mathematics, accounting, law and actuarial sciences.

more to be spent on improving education programs, Sedlack said.

Sedlack also said problems such as the low attendance at sporting events, or the low use of the cafeteria, need to be addressed, suggesting the development of a strategy to encourage people to attend sporting events, or finding ways to cut the cost of cafeteria foods.

Cannon supports the campus consolidation, but is unsure of which campus to combine services on.

Cannon also said he would like to see increased discipline in the district, to unilaterally re-establish greater respect for the teachers and the administration.

Mrs. Crowe was unavailable for comment.

The major concerns of the candidates for the Carbondale Elementary School Board include improving the relationship between the board and the public, and maintaining fiscal integrity while not neglecting educational programs.

The full-term candidates are incumbent Gary Highland, 37, being challenged by Judith Merritt, 41, and Terry Robb, 42. Carol Van Sambeek, 30, and Jean McPherson, 35, face each other for the partial term on the board.

Robb, an engineer at Gilster-Marylee Co. in Chester, said the biggest problem facing the school district is "space utilization"—how to best use the area and land the district has.

The district has not done a good job in informing parents and city residents what has been going on in the schools, Robb said.

The only incumbent, Highland, sees few problems in the school district. However, declining revenues and federal aid will put more of a burden on local financing of many programs, he said.

Highland, a part owner of Econ-O-Lease Co., said that the grade school addition program should solve most of the district's problems with facilities, and that Carbondale's schools are probably in better shape than most other districts in the area.

Merritt, a homemaker with a bachelor's degree in math and a master's degree in guidance counseling, said her concerns include more effective communication between the library board and the public, and what to do with Lincoln Junior High. Merritt said that between one-half and two-thirds of the district's children are in need of remedial reading instruction by the time they reach the second grade.

"If we can't give them that help, they're going to get further behind," Merritt said.

Van Sambeek, a homemaker with a bachelor's degree in political science and a law degree, became involved with the school district through her concerns about the frequent transfers of students between schools.

She said the district's racial balance should be adjusted every five years instead of annually. She would like to move teachers rather than students from school to school.

While McPherson sees no real big issues concerning the school board, she said she is concerned with the frequent transfers of students as well.

She suggests beginning executive sessions a half-hour before the regular meeting is scheduled, so that visitors would not have to wait.

that lined the street.

Police Chief Ed Hogan said the crowd was "exceptionally well-behaved," and possibly the largest ever, noting that there were fewer arrests made this year than in previous years.

"The party started building Friday and peaked Saturday," he said. "There were a tremendous amount of people from out of town."

The Friday night crowd was much smaller and featured far fewer costumes.

Friday's festivities lasted until about 3:30 a.m. Saturday, when most of the participants rambled homeward, vowing to return that same night.

And return they did, in full force.

The Saturday night bash on The Strip started early, forcing police to block off the street at about 7 p.m. from College to Walnut streets. The blockade was later extended north to Grand Avenue.

Many of the Saturday night revelers stayed past 5 a.m. Sunday. But by 6 a.m. the last of the painted partiers could be seen trudging home, and all that was left was the mess.

The whole affair was summed up in the words of an employee of the Carbondale Streets and Sanitation Department, as he viewed the rubble along South Illinois Avenue early Sunday morning.

"They must have had fun," he said, "because they sure made a mess."

Climber saved at 2nd story

CHICAGO (AP) — A professional acrobat who donned a Spider-Man outfit last May and climbed the Sears Tower—the world's tallest building—tried to scale another skyscraper Sunday but had to be rescued after reaching only the second story, police said.

Daniel Goodwin, a native of Kennebunkport, Maine, tried to climb the 100-story John Hancock Center but abandoned the effort when the suction cups he uses for climbing would not stick to the surface of the building, police said.

Goodwin started to climb the 1,107-foot building about 4 a.m., police said.

Goodwin, who was again wearing a red and blue Spider-Man outfit, was rescued by a Fire Department hook-and-ladder unit at the second story of the Hancock building and brought safely to the ground.

He was charged with disorderly conduct and released on a $35 cash bond, police said.

On Memorial Day this year, Goodwin defied 40 mph winds and the authorities and climbed all the way up the sheer west face of the 1,454-foot Sears Tower in a 7½-hour exploit.

Maverick economist says life is better

By Kathy Kamienski
Staff Writer

What? There's an economist who has stepped away from his brethren the doomsayers of money's movement, and who thinks life is getting better?

Julian Simon, a University of Illinois professor and author, grasped the attention of some 100 students and teachers last Wednesday, asserting that natural resources are becoming less scarce while consumer ability to buy things is improving.

Considered a maverick and an extremist by some critics in economic circles, Simon quickly explained that the catch to his almost uncharacteristic economic optimism comes from looking at things on a long-run, historical basis instead of a short-run, "looks-like-a-trend" basis—the system usually used by government and university researchers when they make forecasts.

Simon is one of five economists featured in this year's Vandever Lecture Series. Two more speakers will be scheduled in November.

Outlining the basis for most of his opinions, Simon said scarcity is simply how much it costs to get something. And if it's easier to get something than it was last year, then it is less scarce. If it's harder to get something, then it is more scarce.

So, Simon said, "Life can't be good unless you're alive." And using data from as early as 1750, he said human life expectancy has increased. In 1750 a female in France had a life expectancy of 25 years. In 1960 it was 75 years.

"It's not just in the rich countries, either. From 1970 to 1976 the life expectancy was up again. There's no infinite life ahead for us but there's no sign of it trailing off, either," Simon said.

Using similar comparisons of 200- and 300-year-old data, Simon pointed to other examples of improvement. He noted:

—Cancer is not on the increase. It's just that people are living longer and reaching ages where cancer shows up more frequently.

—Health in general is up. People are losing fewer days from work.

—Pollution is on a decline. Data showing the measure of air pollution moved downward in a 50-year measure, and the same would be true for water pollution.

—Natural resources are becoming less important to the U.S. economy, and therefore with less demand on resources they'll become less scarce.

—Oil prices relative to wages aren't increasing out of proportion. "With the wages from an hour of your time you can buy more oil than before...and, it still costs 15 to 25 cents a barrel to get it out of the ground in the Persian Gulf. Transporting it is where the expense has gone up," Simon said.

Mostly, Simon said his mission is to warn people not to believe every disaster the media describe in big headlines.

"What happens is the media grab something and scream, 'Latest government study says...' and fail to question how thorough or long-run the research actually is."

The worst recent example of that, according to Simon, was a government report to the president that looked ahead to the year 2000. An item in the study warned that "a tremendous number" of species would become extinct.

Doubting the report, Simon said, from 1600 to 1900, one-fourth of one species per year died off. From 1900 to 1980, the data showed that one species per year died off.

The scientists said there might be a high of 100 species per year that die off. The media took that and went with it as fact, not a top limit, he said.

"It was as preposterous as any official statistics rushed into print," Simon said. "It was a political scam."

Piano, brass to headline recital

A duet piano recital and a concert by the SIU-C Student Brass Quintet headline the events set for this week by the School of Music.

Betsy Edmonds and Clair Sellars, both sophomores in piano performance, will present a duet recital at 8 p.m. Friday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel.

The brass quintet, directed by Robert Weiss, is scheduled to perform at 8 p.m. Sunday in the chapel.

Pianists Edmonds and Sellars will perform three duets, including Anton Diabelli's "Rondo in D Major."

The program, of predominantly 20th-century music, will feature two solos by each musician. Sellars' selections will include Charles Griffes' "The White Peacock," and Edmonds will play Gian Carlo Menotti's "Ricercare and Toccata."

The brass quintet's repertoire will mix old and new styles. Works by Henry Purcell, Jean Joseph Mouret and an anonymous composer, arranged from 17th-century manuscripts, spotlight older compositional styles.

The Purcell "Voluntary" is based on the familiar "Doxology" tune, and the Mouret "Rondeau" has gained popularity as the theme for the television series, "Masterpiece Theater."

The quintet also will execute two 20th-century pieces. The "Suite for Brass Quintet" by Dillon applies contemporary harmonies and rhythms to older compositional techniques, and the melodic "Four Movements for Five Brass" by Collier Jones supplies a lighter touch with surprising rhythmic twists.

A three-week symposium on "The Reagan Administration and the 97th Congress: One Year Later" will be offered to undergraduate and graduate students during January in Washington, D.C.

The Washington Winterim '82 offers three hours of credit to students who make arrangements with a faculty sponsor.

Deadline for applying for the program is Monday through General Academic Programs. Betsy Peterson in Woody Hall C115 is adviser for the program.

Participants will analyze foreign affairs, energy, the economy, party politics, political-news reporting, business and government relations, and civil rights. There will also be an advanced research track for upper-level undergraduates and graduate students.

THE HITE REPORT

SHERE HITE
A NATIONWIDE STUDY OF
FEMALE SEXUALITY

3,000 women, ages 14 to 70, describe in their own words their most intimate feelings about sex including:

- What they like—and the why
- How women really feel—with and without intercourse
- How a girl can have an orgasm during sex
- The importance of sexual stimulation and satisfaction
- And, the greatest pleasure and frustration of their sexual lives

It's a new cultural interpretation of female sexuality.

THE HITE REPORT ON MALE SEXUALITY

Voters to fill two board slots, decide referendum Tuesday

By Bob Beodurant
Staff Writer

Voters going to the polls Tuesday will choose among three candidates for two spots on the John A. Logan Community College District $30 board.

An important issue in the campaign, candidates say, is a $6 million bond referendum also on the ballot Tuesday. All three candidates support the issue, but one feels the board has not properly informed people of details of how the money will be used.

The bond issue would fund the construction of new buildings to house classes, replacing some temporary facilities the college has been using the past 12 years.

The proposal would continue a 9-cent per $100 assessed valuation property tax past 1983, the date when the district would pay off its current bond indebtedness.

The two incumbents running for re-election, June Kunkel, 47, of Marion, and Jerry Lacey, 41, of Carbondale, are being challenged by Jacob Whitecotton, 52, of Du Quoin.

Whitecotton favors the bond issue, but is opposed to the way it is worded on the ballot.

He said that the ballot should explain more specifically which buildings are going to be built or renovated.

Another problem he sees is the cost of textbooks at the college, which he said are higher than those used at SIU-C. He said an effort has to be made to bring down the costs so that student money is not wasted.

He also said that the coordination of recreational programs between the college and area high schools needs to be more effective.

Whitecotton is superintendent of Du Quoin Unit School District 300, and has a doctorate in educational administration. He was one of the founders of John A. Logan College.

"I think I can make suggestions that can be helpful," he said.

Lacey supports the bond issue to improve physical facilities and because taxes will not be raised as a result of the issue.

The college needs to continue to "seek out, study, and assess the needs of the community they serve," Lacey said.

Lacey, associate vice president for university relations at SIU-C, was elected to the board in 1980. He said the board needs to be able to adjust to inflationary times. He said that as a community college

John A. Logan has one of the lowest tuition rates in the state.

Lacey is running in conjunction with fellow incumbent June Kunkel, 47, of Marion. The sole woman on the board, Kunkel, an office worker for the Zeigler Coal Company, was appointed last year to fill a vacant position. She believes the bond issue should be approved.

She said that the temporary buildings need to be replaced, or else they will "have to keep repairing them over and over again."

"We need the space," Kunkel said, noting that enrollment has steadily gone up.

Recital 'passengers' enjoyed the trip

By Lauri Landgraf
News Editor

As the Jefferson Starship embarked on its "voyage" at the Arena last week, a baritone in the Old Baptist Foundation's chapel was guiding his "passengers" through very different type of excursion.

But there were few rough spots, and David N. Williams' hour-long recital Tuesday made for an enjoyable journey.

Williams, a dramatic baritone and faculty member in the School of Music, seemed a bit uncomfortable with his opening selections, three cantatas by 17th-century composer Antonio Vivaldi.

One got the impression the artist was trampling up his vocal power. Perhaps this was because the arias were originally written for "discriminating" as opposed to operatic audiences. At that time, opera was associated with an audience of novices, common people for whom the real art of music was assumed to be a closed book.

Review

Despite their emotional transparency, Williams imbued the pieces with elegance and finesse, accompanied by his wife Candace on harpsichord and music faculty member Charles Figel on bassoon.

Williams moved into his element when he performed four songs written in the more muscular, dramatic style of Richard Strauss. Strauss's melodies mesh well with the words to his songs, creating a pleasurable lyrical flow. Williams got inside each melody's texture, keeping admirable control over tone and demonstrating a sizable dynamic range, at times filling the auditorium with the dark, rich power of his voice.

A folk atmosphere colored his finale, two selections by American composer Douglas Moore. With Moore's "I've Got a Ram," the vocalist flavored his program with humor, drawing the audience into the imagery of a New Hampshire farmer rhapsodizing about his barnyard animals.

Women harriers finish 4th in state

By Steve Metsch
Staff Writer

For the third consecutive week, the women's cross country team found that fine individual performances don't necessarily mean a happy ending.

The Salukis finished fourth in the Illinois Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for women state championship at Normal Saturday.

Western Illinois won the meet with a 37, their fifth state crown in as many years. The Westerwinds were followed by Illinois, 41; Illinois State, 69; SIU-C 79; and Northern Illinois, 142.

Patty Plymire-Houseworth led the Salukis, finishing fourth with an 18:19. Blackman said Plymire-Houseworth did not run as well as she had in the past.

"I think Patty was upset since the Illini's Mariann Dickerson wasn't allowed to run," Blackman said.

Dickerson and Plymire-

Houseworth were teammates at St. Joseph-Ogden High School and are still good friends, according to Blackman.

Dickerson was sidelined because of a procedural error committed by the Illini. They arrived after the sign-up deadline Friday evening, forcing them to bench one of their runners in accordance with IAAW rules. Unfortunately for Illinois, Dickerson their No. 1 runner, won the draw.

For the second time this year, the Salukis used the Illinois State track to set several personal records.

Blackman said Junior Rosa Mitchell ran "beautifully" on her way to her best performance of the year, finishing 13th with an 18:58. Freshman Pat Eletto finished 17th at 19:24, smashing her previous record low by 30 seconds. For the first time this season, freshman Laura Falci finished in the top five for the Salukis, finishing 22nd with a 19:52. Fifth for SIU-C was freshman Odette James, five seconds off Falci's pace.

Junior Dyane Donley ran what Blackman called "her worst race this year," finishing 26th with a 20:30.

"Before the race, Dyane said she felt flat," Blackman said. "She tried but couldn't pick herself up during the race."

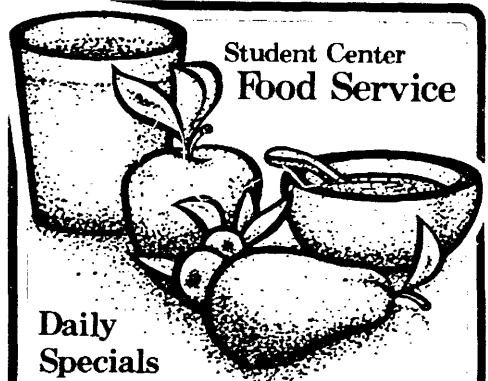

Although freshman Theresa Kent finished 32nd with a 21:04, Blackman was pleased with her performance.

"Theresa has continued to improve with each race," Blackman said. "She was close to her best time of 19:38 which she ran at Normal in September."

The Salukis were not the only harriers who enjoyed the fast track. Illinois State's Wendy Van Mierlo set a course record, winning the meet with a 17:18.21.

"The University of Illinois had several kids who ran their best times. So did Western and Illinois State," she said.

The only team that did not fare well on the warm, overcast day was Northern Illinois.

Hockey team wins one out of three

By Michelle Schwent

The field hockey team is playing a waiting game following its failure to win the Midwest Regional Qualifying tournament in De Kalb over the weekend.

The 12-10-3 Salukis lost three out of four matches and now can only hope to receive one of two at large bids to the regional tournament to be held Nov. 6 and 7 in Mount Pleasant, Mich. Western Illinois won the tournament and received an automatic bid to the regional.

The stickhandlers lost their first match of the tournament to Northern Illinois 3-0 Friday. The Huskies seemed to have both luck and the referee on their side.

The Salukis out shot NIU 33-8 in the game. NIU had only five shots in the first half but scored twice within a five minute span and led 2-0 at the half. The first goal was a questionable one, according to Coach Julie Illner.

"I was rather upset with the referee on the first goal," Illner said. "The ball was really undercut. It went flying right at the goalie's head and she ducked. I really questioned the referee at the half but he said it was a flick. I think it was a dangerous hit."

Illner added that the Salukis could have been awarded a free penalty strokes in the match because of infractions committed by the NIU goalie. The referee who worked the game did not officiate in any of Saturday's games, Illner added.

NIU added a third goal 1:55 into the second half.

Sophomore Peg O'Laughlin played most of the game in goal but was replaced by freshman Lisa Cozzetti after the third goal.

Western Illinois edged SIU-C 2-1 in Friday's second match. The rival Westerwinds out-shot SIU-C 21-19.

Freshman Sharon Leidy scored a goal at 5:45 in the first half. Leidy scored again five minutes later but the goal was called back because she was offside.

WIU scored its first goal at the 11:40 of the second half and added another goal with five minutes remaining in the contest for the win. Cozzetti had five saves in goal.

The nemesis Westerwinds dumped SIU-C 4-2 in Saturday's first match. WIU tallied four goals before the Salukis countered with a goal. The Westerwinds lead 3-0 at the half and outshot the Salukis 25-17. Cozzetti had two goalie saves.

Junior Cindy Davis scored back-to-back goals at 16:19 and 18:54 of the second half to put SIU-C in the game.

The Salukis won their last game 3-0 over NIU avenging their Friday morning loss to the Huskies.

The game was scoreless at the half, but Davis scored on a penalty stroke at 14:53 of the second half. Cindy Clausen got an assist on the goal. Junior Ellen Massey scored at 17:13 on an assist from Peg Kielsmeier. Davis added another goal at the 30:30 mark. The Salukis out-shot NIU 42-9.

stupid mistakes," Steele said.

The 15 or 20 fans who were rooting for SEMO were rooting loudly. One was asked to leave by the referee for berating the Salukis with extra zeal. The Salukis provided their own cheers in the second half, chanting, "S-I-U, S-I-U..." after good Saluki plays.

"It was very emotional," Steele said of the match. "I read that water polo was a 'bubble-blowing' sport. After this match with SEMO, I just can't see how it could be called that."

Steele was referring to an Oct. 16 Daily Egyptian editorial that included the line, "It is time for athletics to start cutting things like water polo, golf, and soap-bubble blowing."

Hunter said the Salukis didn't play badly but had problems with movement and ball placement.

"We're not being patient with ourselves to win a point," Hunter said. "These guys want to be spectacular and hit the nice angle shots because it gives them a big shot of adrenaline. They have to learn to be content with just looping the ball over and concentrate on placement, not power."

Junior hitter Erin Sartain played well all weekend. ac-ording to Hunter.

"I was really pleased with Erin's play," Hunter said. "Overall, she had a strong weekend. She's one of the ten players we'll use a lot more the rest of the season."

Senior Shannon FitzPatrick, playing in her last home match as a Saluki, also played well in the last match, Hunter said.

SIU-C will play in the Western Michigan Invitational in Kalamazoo, Mich. Friday and Saturday.

Gridders win, take Valley lead

By Jim Cagle
Staff Writer

TERRE HAUTE, Ind.—SIU-C moved into first place in the Missouri Valley Conference football race by defeating Indiana State 17-3 Sunday after Tulsa pounded Drake 59-6 Saturday.

Drake, Tulsa and SIU-C all were tied for first place with 3-1 records, but the combination of the Drake loss and the Saluki win gave SIU-C a 4-1 MVC record and first place. The Salukis are 6-3 overall.

It wasn't all good news from ISU however. Senior tailback Walter Poole, after gaining 118 yards on 25 carries, was carried from the field in the middle of the second quarter after injuring a knee and did not return for the rest of the contest.

Poole, who cracked the 1,000-yard barrier on his fifth rushing attempt of the day, was diagnosed as having a strained muscle above the right knee.

The injury is not very serious, according to Coach Rey Dempsey.

Poole was injured on a gang tackle by the Sycamore defensive line, led by junior defensive tackle Perry Willett. Poole was on crutches on the sideline with his knee packed on ice for the rest of the game.

The Saluki running attack mounted drive after time-consuming drive, accumulating 338 yards on the ground.

Sophomore Derrick Taylor replaced Poole and gained 127 yards on 27 carries.

"We were just blowing them off the line," Dempsey said. "We didn't run very many traps or suckers at all. We blocked straight ahead and moved them straight back."

"Chris Lockwood was just crushing his man on the right side of the line," he said. "Our fullbacks were getting very good lead blocks for our deep backs."

The Salukis scored first, taking the opening kickoff and driving 86 yards in 17 plays. Poole dove over from the 1 yard line and kicker Paul Molla added the extra point.

Poole carried the ball 12 times for 57 yards on the 17-play drive. The Sycamores cut the lead to 7-3 on a 44-yard second quarter field goal by Dennis Teegarden.

The Salukis came right back using 16 plays and seven minutes to score again. Quarterback Rick Johnson scored on a 4th down quarterback sneak from the 1 yard line. Molla added the extra point and SIU-C led 14-3 at the half.

The two touchdown drives ate up more than 15 minutes of playing time in the first half and helped SIU-C consume more than a 12 minute difference in time of possession in the game.

Molla kicked a 39-yard field goal in the third quarter to close out the scoring.

The Salukis used the ground game to do the damage. Johnson completed five of eight passes for only 37 yards.

SIU-C's defense gave up 278 total yards but most of it came between the 20 yard lines. When the Sycamores got inside the 20 yard line, the defense was able to hold.

Freshman tailback Wayne Davis was ISU's leading rusher. Davis gained 79 yards on 13 carries.

Sycamore quarterback Reggie Allen completed 17 of 28 passes for 159 yards. Two of Allen's passes were intercepted and ISU's offense fumbled once.

ISU played without its leading rusher, Eric Robinson, who is out with a knee injury. It was the second consecutive game on the sidelines for Robinson, who has averaged 5.3 yards per carry.

Freshman Darrold Clardy, the Sycamores No. 2 tailback averaging 5.4 yards per carry, was limited to only two plays due to a foot injury which also kept him out of ISU's last game.

The win was the Saluki's sixth straight after losing its first three games. SIU-C lost its opening game to McNeese State, 27-12; lost to Wichita State 13-7 in the Saluki home opener; and lost 17-14 to Tennessee State.

The Salukis have rolled up consecutive wins over Tulsa, Illinois State, West Texas State, Fresno State, Southwest Louisiana and Indiana State.

The Sycamores slipped to 3-4 for the year and 2-3-1 in conference play.

In other MVC action, Wichita State beat Illinois State 38-7 and New Mexico State dumped Western Illinois 31-24.

Drakes' loss to Tulsa was the first for the Bulldogs this season. Drake has a 7-1 overall record.

The Salukis will have to fend off Drake at McAndrew Stadium Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Harriers defend title, beat favored Wichita

By Doug Appiebaugh
Staff Writer

WHEN THE GOING GETS TOUGH, the tough get going. Everyone's heard that old cliché, probably a thousand times over. But how true it is. Just ask Lew Hartzog.

Hartzog's men's cross country team Saturday defended its Missouri Valley Conference Championship at Terre Haute, Ind., defeating favored Wichita State 40-50.

Illinois State was third with 59, Drake had 101, Bradley 148, New Mexico State 163 and Indiana State 164. Tulsa only had four runners finish, so it was disqualified and West Texas State did not compete.

The Salukis placed four runners in the top ten; their fifth runner took 12th. Each of Hartzog's top six finishers broke the course record of 25:08 on the two-year-old course at Indiana State.

The new record belongs to Drake superstar Vern Iwancin, who covered the course in 23:36, winning his second straight individual MVC championship. Iwancin last year won the conference meet with his 24:40 at New Mexico State.

IN WINNING THEIR FOURTH MVC crown in six years, the Salukis turned in probably their most impressive team effort of the season, closing the scoring gap with a 34-second spread.

The team's most consistent runner, Mike Keane, led the way, taking fifth with a 24:22 time. Right behind were Captain Karsten Schulz and junior Tom Ross in sixth and seventh place respectively, with close times of 24:25 and 24:27. Senior Captain Bill Moran was 10th at 24:47 and sophomore Tom Breen was 12th at 24:56.

"We ran very, very well," said Hartzog, whose team won the Illinois Intercollegiate meet two weeks ago. "We really put our heads into the race and went after it. The kids ran an intense race as a team."

"It's a great feeling, because early in the season we did not run well as a team."

HARTZOG WAS ALSO HAPPY WITH the individual performances of freshman Gary Munson and senior Bill Laser. Munson finished 14th, breaking by five seconds the previous record set last year by a runner from Eastern Illinois. Laser placed 29th at 25:18.

"Munson ran it in 25:03, which is his best," said Hartzog. "This is his first season running cross country and the big kid has really shown me something. And Laser ran the best race of his life."

"It was a good race all around," the Saluki coach said. "There were some awfully good athletes running in that race."

Wichita State's dynamic duo of George Collier and Alan Riemer took second and third at 23:43 and 24:04 respectively. Illinois State's Mike Baker was fourth, finishing four seconds ahead of the Salukis' Keane at 24:18. Drake's Waid Johnson was eighth at 24:39 and Wichita State's Gary Gregory took ninth at 24:42.

THE SALUKIS RAN WITHOUT their No. 3 runner, Mike Choffin, who will miss the remainder of the season because of a stress fracture in his leg.

Hartzog said before the meet that the key to his team's success Saturday would be how well Breen would run.

"I know that I can expect Keane and Karsten to run well, and Ross and Moran have come along in the past few weeks," he said, "but without Choffin we have to have Breen running well. He's our key."

"He overworked himself last week, getting ready for the conference meet. But he was ready when the time came."

The Salukis have two weeks off from competition to prepare for the NCAA District V Regional meet Nov. 14 at Wichita State.

Poloists win Halloween tourney, 2-1

By Rod Furlow
Staff Writer

The Saluki water polo team came close to winning all three of its matches in the Halloween tournament held at the Recreation Center pool Saturday, but two wins were enough to give the Salukis the tournament crown.

The Salukis beat Arkansas-Little Rock 15-11, drowned Purdue 24-3 and almost edged Southeast Missouri. With the score tied 17-17 and four seconds remaining on the clock, SEMO's Mike McGinnis made a 50-foot skip shot to give the Indians an 18-17 win.

"We had our backs against the wall," McGinnis said. "I was just trying to get a skip shot somewhere near the goal."

McGinnis' goal came a few seconds after Keith Gregg tied the game for the Salukis by scoring on a rebound.

"Keith had two goals toward the end of the game that really helped us out," Saluki Coach Bob Steele said.

Despite Gregg's good clutch play, the Salukis couldn't pull it out.

"SEMO's the best team we played in the tourney," Steele said. "They always play us tough, and they had good fan support."

Besides its own fans, the SEMO team had Arkansas fans on its side. Arkansas had lost a match and needed a Saluki loss to have a shot at the title.

SEMO's win gave it a 2-1 tourney mark, the same as SIU-C's and Arkansas'. The Salukis were named the winners because of their goal-goals against differential.

Mark Pollard and Tim Plantz were two reasons the Saluki differential was good enough to win.

Pollard scored four goals against SEMO. Plantz scored four goals against Purdue and four more against Arkansas, but didn't have a chance to again match the total, against SEMO. He was one of three Salukis ejected from the emotional match for aggressive behavior.

"SEMO's a good team, they were fired up, and it doesn't help when you have three guys who have to sit out because of

Volleyball Coach Debbie Hunter had a smile on her face following SIU-C's loss to Oral Roberts in the finals of the Saluki Invitational—only because the smile was literally painted on her face.

In keeping with the festive atmosphere of Halloween weekend, Hunter and Assistant Coach Robin Deterding had their faces painted up in big clown smiles. But there wasn't much to smile about as SIU-C finished second for the third time in the six-year history of the tournament, losing to ORU 15-13, 16-14, 15-4.

SIU-C lost its first match of the tournament to ORU 15-12, 16-14, but churned out three wins in a row to make the finals. SIU-C defeated Indiana 15-3, 10-15; 15-12; dumped Miami of Ohio 15-9, 15-8; and defeated North Texas State 15-4, 16-14. The Saluki record is 21-11-1.

In the final match, the Lady Titans and Salukis tied five different times during the first game. The score was tied at 13, but the Lady Titans reeled off two consecutive points to take the game.

The Salukis led 14-12 in the second game and had three chances to win the game, but couldn't slam the door on ORU. The Lady Titans had no trouble winning the third game as SIU-C could muster only four points.

Hunter had a lot of praise for the Lady Titans, especially their setter.

"We didn't lose, they beat us," Hunter said. "I really have to commend ORU's scrappiness. They kept a lot of balls in play that should have gone out of bounds."

"Their setter was just super," Hunter said. "She's one of the best setters I've seen in years."
