Carbondale survives yet another Halloween

By Mike Nelson
Staff Writer

Carbondale Police Chief Edward Hogan estimated the crowd of revelers at "well over 15,000," and said it was "triple the number found last year's celebration."

Hogan said the large crowd was due to other Halloween celebrations that occurred Saturday night rather than the police camps around the city. Hogan said the police were better prepared this year than in past years and were able to keep the peace and contain the crowd.

"As compared to last year's Halloween and other years' figures, I think this was the best we've had," said Robert Harris, assistant director of SIU-C Security. Although he couldn't estimate the crowd size, he said it was comparable to last year's 15,000, though possibly a little less.

Hogan said that he heard there was a big party in Champaign, the location of the University of Illinois, and so Carbondale might have lost some potential guests to that celebration. He said the police had fewer troubles and that the crowd was well-behaved.

There was a total of 28 arrests this year's celebration, which compares favorably to the 32 arrests made last year, according to the Carbondale police.

Seven people were arrested Friday by the Carbondale police, one for damaged property, obstructing a police officer, aggravated battery, theft by possession, possession of a controlled substance, unlawful use of weapons and one for weapons and course violation.

"Well-behaved" Halloweeners cause few problems for police

Another Carbondale Halloween has passed, with fewer troubles and fewer arrests, which left city officials rather pleased.

"As compared to last year's Halloween and other year's figures, I think this was the best we've had," said Robert Harris, assistant director of SIU-C Security.

Although he couldn't estimate the crowd size, he said it was comparable to last year's 15,000, though possibly a little less.

Carbondale Police Chief Ed Hogan said the crowd size was well over 10,000.

Harris said that he heard there was a big party in Champaign, the location of the University of Illinois, and so Carbondale might have lost some potential guests to that celebration. He said the police had fewer troubles and that the crowd was well-behaved.

Plenty of people dressed as Andy Dufresne, Saturday, were moving through the crowd quickly, shouting, "Abuse Abuse" to everyone he bumped along the way. Other shrugs stood at various food stands, offering the buyers millions of different clothes. They could make their stands.

- Subsequent made no arrests Friday night.
- Up to date there were 22 arrests by Carbondale police for various charges. Three persons were arrested for possession of a controlled substance, two for drug paraphernalia, and two for aggravated battery. Other arrests were for public intoxication, disorderly conduct, drunk driving, assault and battery, and underage possession of alcohol. Two persons were arrested for illegal discharging fireworks. Carbondale Memorial Hospital reported 99 people Sunday for Halloween-related injuries, said Nicki Nance, nursing supervisor. About 50 people last year sought treatment over the weekend, she said. During last year's halloween weekend more than 120 persons were treated.

proposed sending 2,000 of "our brightest high school students" to academies at universities and reserving $1 million to give students in sixth grade and above access to computers. He also said high school juniors and seniors should be trained so that they will be employable upon graduation, and that he would expand the student loan program by $75 million.

Stevenson has said that invention and industrial innovation are the keys to reshaping Illinois' economy. Included in Stevenson's nine-point economic development plan is a proposal to increase the pool of capital available to business through broader use of public pension funds and tax-exempt bonds.

But Thompson has said that his administration has already implemented many of Stevenson's proposals. The recommendations of a Thompson-appointed task force were incorporated into a law enacted this year, which removed some restrictions on pension fund investment -- a move that could make it easier for Illinois' small business to find cash for expansion.

Stevenson has also accused Thompson of plunging the state into a "vicious cycle of poverty, welfare, crime, penitentiaries and more taxes."

The candidates disagree on how best to address the problem of rising crime and overcrowded prisons in Illinois.

Thompson has said that criminal punishment has to be a balanced program. For violent offenders, he believes the only answer is incarceration in penitentiaries. He has said that work release centers have provided an alternative to prison sentences for non-violent first offenders and non-violent repeat offenders, and that work release centers have doubled under his administration.

Stevenson has said that the management of the penitentiaries should be improved, and that since crime is a function of poverty, his plan to create jobs would also reduce crime.

Stevenson believes the system needs more "discipline." He said that the violent should be kept in penitentiaries and non-violent offenders should be permitted early release, and he has emphasized more community-based parole and halfway services to reduce the repeat-offender rate.

Sabotaged candy taints trick-or-treat for some children

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sixteen children were taken to hospitals and some hospitalized after eating drug-laced candy from a kindergarten party and other kids hit into pans and needles on a Halloween weekend that cloaked real peril in the trappings of make-believe.

At elderly Iowa man was killed by a masked man who showed up at his door demanding "trick or treat" and a young woman in Milwaukee was seriously injured while trying to pluck a pin in a ski mask spraying shaving cream.

No deaths or serious injuries were reported among kids trick-or-treating, but a 5-year-old girl who had eaten drug-laced candy from the kindergarten Halloween party was admitted Sunday to John F. Kennedy Memorial Hospital in Stratford, N.J., for observation after she took hallucinations.

Halloween night climaxd a bizarre week that brought more than 175 reports of sabotaged fruits and candies in more than 100 cities in 24 states, according to an informal count by The Associated Press.

Halloween celebration is good for businesses; why not Carbondale?

Well, another one has come and gone. Halloween, that is — the annual clash between student celebrants and Carbondale.

A crowd of at least 10,000 jammed onto a blocked-off South Illinois Avenue in what became a yearly thorn in the side of the city.

This year, however, things seemed to be different.

The crowd was more reserved. There was no major damage. There were less arrests than there has been in the last few years.

The major difference, though, appeared to be the city's acceptance of the celebration as inevitable. This became evident when various merchants, who had kept the celebrants fed and watered, were not only licensed by the city to sell their wares, which mostly featured foods of various ethnic origins.

"This leads to a question: Why doesn't the city capitalize on this event?" The question has been raised before, but a satisfactory answer never seems to be forthcoming.

The city of Chicago has different "fests" almost every week which bring together crowds of almost equal size in various neighborhoods. Admittedly, Carbondale is not Chicago, but towns of similar size have festivals too.

There are coal festivals, Popeye festivals, and riverfront festivals. There is Carbondale's Halloween celebration.

As an August graduate of SIU-C and a former student body president, I would like to offer a crash course in Student Survival 1982 to my friends in Carbondale.

What upcoming event will have the most significant impact upon SIU-C students? It is midterm exams; Halloween or the result of the congressional race between Paul Simon and Peter Prince.

Clearly, both will affect students. Many will be burning the midnight oil and brewing early morning coffee while cramming for exams. But when exams are over, the world goes on.

Although the congressional race between Simon and Prince may not come up in casual conversation as often as the agonies of midterms, its impact upon students—present and future—is still much more profound and long lasting.

As chairman of the House Subcommittee on Higher Education, Paul Simon is the strongest and most articulate spokesman for the higher education community. A Simon victory guarantees vociferous opposition to the education cuts proposed by the Republican administration.

A Simon defeat, however, could mean reductions in the student aid programs resulting in more than 6,000 SIU-C students losing financial support for their education. Many will not be able to afford to stay in college.

Like many of you, I have, at times, been disillusioned by the political process. I've listened to candidates stand another in the back and make promises that they can't keep.

But, in retrospect, I'm glad that I've had a firsthand look at politics. It makes it easier to separate the good politicians from the bad ones. I also care from those who do not. And I can truthfully say that I have never met a politician more straightforward and honest as Paul Simon. He is a model of integrity who nationally respected and acclaimed for his dedication to good government.

I wholeheartedly endorse Paul Simon because I have studied his record. He has consistently supported education. He was the only member of the Illinois congressional delegation to address the National Student Conference in Washington, D.C. He has worked hard to make educational quality and opportunity a national priority. He is a man of sound judgment and creative thinking.

He deserves your vote and your support. The five minutes that it takes to vote for him is worth the trouble. It is an important investment in your future.

— Todd Rogers, Drexer.

Wayne Alstot has gone too far

In an effort to become the State Senator from the 5th District, Wayne Alstot has sunk to a new low. Mr. Alstot has undertaken a well organized, super-funded campaign to buy the 5th Senate seat. He has chosen a slick yet not disputing philosophy for his television advertising campaign against the incumbent, Kenneth Busbee.

In the most recent advertisement on local television, Alstot charges Busbee with being supportive of child pornography. This is clearly an outlandish and deceitfully done reference to Busbee's vote on a 1978 bill making child pornography a federal crime.

The distortion of Busbee's vote becomes clear when one realizes that he was in fact against the law on all votes prior to the final vote. What really was a good campaign was an attempt by the House to include home invasion by young people as a "ride" to the pornography bill. Here is a classic attempt by Mr. Alstot to blatantly distort and deceive the public about a legislative action.

Some years ago, an individual named Joseph Goebbels, the chief propagandist of the Third Reich, authored something the other side of the fence called "Big Lie" meant that if one made a statement regarding anything "big enough and often enough," it would be believed. The premise was, if the lie was grave enough, the public would "see" it as true because the outstandingly stated must be true.

Mr. Alstot has built a campaign based on Goebbels' "Big Lie" philosophy. No doubt Goebbels' grave—heartyly applauding Mr. Alstot's theory. I urge the other voters of the 5th District to send Mr. Alstot the same message I plan to on November 2nd. That is, do not approve of his scurrilous and malicious distortion of his opponent's voting record. It is a fact that I must accept Kenneth Busbee's voting record. However, I need not accept Mr. Alstot's request for my support due to the vote of Lloyd M. Haims, Carbondale.

Council to decide on land sale for computer plant construction

By Mike Nelson
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council will decide Monday whether to approve the sale of two acres in the city's Bicentennial Industrial Park to a St. Louis corporation for construction of a computer manufacturing facility.

The Bicentennial Industrial Park is located along U.S. 57 North of Carbondale.

John R. Johnson, vice president of the computer division of Educational Technology and Services, Inc., requested the city sell ETS two acres of land in the park for $6,000 per acre. If the council approves the sale Carbondale's public works department will construct a 22,500 square foot extension adjacent to the land with part of the proceeds.

ETS does business exclusively with the U.S. government, particularly with the Department of Defense and with various law enforcement and intelligence agencies.

Johnson said ETS is anticipating a government contract which would entail "several million dollars worth of computer systems" over the next four or five years. He said the contract will require ETS to "significantly expand" its St. Louis facility.

The computer division of ETS employs 12 persons and Johnson anticipates hiring an additional 25 to 30 during the first quarter of 1983. Johnson said he expects that the computer division will have approximately 100 employees by mid-1984. He said most new personnel will be hired from Carbondale.

Johnson said "the presence of SIUC" was our primary reason for the selection of Carbondale for this high technology division.

ETS has proposed that two metal buildings be constructed to house the facility. Johnson said the corporation would erect a 3,200 square foot building for division offices, a software development laboratory, and a systems development laboratory. A larger building would be used to manufacture computer systems.

The council will also consider appropriating $255,068 from the city's motor fuel tax fund to reconstruct Freeman Street from Washington Street to Wall Street.

In other business, the council will consider approval of proposed safety improvements to the East Grand Avenue crosswalk opposite the Recreation Center.

A city task force, the Undergraduate Student government organization and the Graduate Student Council have proposed that advance warning signs and floodlights be installed at the crosswalk, and that an educational program to promote proper safety procedures at the crosswalk be created.

VOTING...
Singers celebrate gay life

By Cynthia Rector

Charlie Murphy and Jami Sieber turned their small gathering into a keynote affair, and often their collective voices rose like the incense of prayer.

During their concert Thursday night at the State University of New York, they shared songs of an eclectic social awareness.

His concert, held in Ballroom E, was a highlight of the Gay and Lesbian Awareness Week. Murphy, one of five Gay Pride Singers, performed for a sophisticated audience for two sets of original folk music. Some of which was released a year ago on his first album, "Catch the Fire".

Murphy opened with his sailing and most shocking song, "The sinking of the Titanic". He then sang a mournful waltz, "Two sets of denials". He then sang a spiritual message. Murphy sang of the persecuted people of past times, especially women. "Anna Mae" was one such song, telling the story of the murder of a spiritually rich Indian woman at Wounded Knee.

During a post-concert interview, Murphy said his spirituality was developed during his "coming out" period as a homosexual.

Though he commanded SIU's gay population and supporters for their Gay and Lesbian Awareness Week efforts, he doesn't feel that an informed person can concentrate on one issue at this point.

He concentrates on fighting oppression on many fronts and on saving the ravaged earth. His music is articulate and direct, as the same time, a rare gift for listeners.

"My central theme is that each person has to decide for themselves how they want to arrange their lives.

Murphy is convinced that "everyone is still striving for a piece of the pie, only what we've got to realize is that the pie is changing, shrinking.

AN OPEN LETTER FROM
SENATOR KEN BUZBEE

Dear Friends:

You have no doubt heard and read a lot lately about my record as your Senator. You have, for example, heard my opponent say scores of times in a very expensive television campaign that I am "permissive toward child pornography." This, like many of the other charges he has made, is untrue.

The legislation to which my opponent is apparently referring is a 1977 bill which had a child pornography provision and on which I voted "yes" when it was in the Senate. When the bill got to the House, some unrelated and unacceptable amendments were added, forcing me to vote against it when it was returned to the Senate.

However, my opponent hasn't told you that I voted to make solicitation for child prostitution a felony (58 620). I voted to broaden offenses for sexual crimes involving children (HB 1019). I sponsored legislation to establish a statewide citizen's committee on child abuse and neglect to establish a toll-free hotline to report child abuse and neglect (SB 973). During this last session of the General Assembly, I helped pass legislation making pimping for a child and child prostitution a Class X felony (SB 1). These are not the actions of a person who is "permissive" on this subject.

I am widely considered to be one of the most consistent and effective spokesmen in the legislature for child protection laws. Earlier this year, Advocates for Children, a non-partisan coalition of child protection groups, reviewed my record and gave me a 100% rating on children's issues. They gave my opponent a 44% rating. The Illinois Coalition on Youth announced recently that it is giving me an award for my work on behalf of children. These groups do not give high ratings and awards to persons who are "permissive toward child pornographers."

At no point in his television commercials does my opponent tell you what he has done or what he intends to do on behalf of children. His campaign is almost totally negative.

I have taken a lot of space to respond to the "permissiveness" charge partly to set the record straight on this important issue and partly to show you how difficult it is to refute distortions. There have been many. My opponent has said that I am soft on crime when, in fact, I have an excellent anti-crime record. He has said that I favor "bailing out" Chicago, when, in fact, during the last year for which data are available, I was able to bring back to our district over 3000 dollars for every one dollar we paid in state taxes. During one year, I was instrumental in bringing in $360 million in state money back to our district. These dollars bought jobs—thousands and thousands of jobs.

The real question is who would do the best job of representing our district in Springfield: a fresh- man Senator with no cloud and no seniority? Or, a ten-year veteran who has received high praise, high ratings, and strong endorsements from nearly every group who has studied the record and who is also chairman of the most influential committee in the Senate?

I have worked hard to earn your respect and your support. It has been a great honor to be your Senator. I need your vote on Election Day.

Sincerely,

Ken Buzbee
State Senator

Koko and band belt out blues, mellow crowd turns frenzied

By Matt Halderge
Student Writer

It was a hot day at the Free Forum area Friday. But it wasn't just the sun making the heat. Koko Taylor and the Blues Machine poured out some hot, sweaty blues in a crowd that was mellow at the beginning and frenzied at the end.

The Blues Machine opened the show with a fantastic display of tight blues music led by Maestro Sanders on lead vocals and guitar. Playing behind him was Ray Williams on bass. Teddy Royal on rhythm guitar and Fred Shapiro on drums.

Concert Review

The Maestro thrilled the audience with a song about his girlfriend. Caledonia. "If you see anyone who is tall, small, with big long feet, send her to me, because she's my lady!"

After the Blues Machine successfully drew everyone in the area to the stage, Maestro introduced Koko as the "un-disputed Queen of the Blues," and she certainly laid claim to the title.

She came onto the stage with the band playing, smiled, walked to the mike, waited until the audience was quiet, and announced the title. "Hey Bartender," a song made popular by the Blues Brothers.

During the break, everyone was invited behind the stage where the band was giving out autographs and selling Koko Taylor albums. Koko's road manager and husband, Pops Taylor, said that they always bring some albums along with them because the albums are scarce outside of Chicago.

Giving out autographs during the break showed the band's devotion to fans, considering that they had spent the night driving from Ann Arbor, Mich., in a van with six people and instruments.

"We had hoped that this concert would be indoors. The blues always sound better indoors," said Maestro.

The crowd, many of who were visiting for the Halloween weekend, had a good time anyway, as the sun was shining and there was plenty of room to dance or lie down on the grass.

When Koko came back on, everyone was standing and ready. She responded with two blues classics, "Sweet Home Chicago" and "Kansas City."

Program to feature yesterday's music

A special lunchtime program will be held in Farer Museum Auditorium at noon Monday, entitled "Music Sounds of Yesterday," presented by Naomi Williams and Claudine Bradley.

Williams and her sister Bradley, have gathered musical instruments, most of which date from the late 1800's and early 1900's, obtained from various sources, such as antique shops, garrets and yard and farm sales.

Koko Taylor sings the blues at the Free Forum area on Friday.

Next she sang a song from her "Earthbaker" album called "I'm a Woman." This and another song from that album, "You Can Have My Husband (But Please Don't Mess With My Man)" were blues for women.

After the show, one happy girl received an autograph which read "Never trust a man - Koko Taylor."

Fielders end season with a win

By John Marczelewski
Associated Press Editor

True to his word, the Great Pumpkin showed up in Carbondale this weekend, and the field hockey team didn’t disappoint him as they defeated Western Illinois 3-0.

The Salukis finished the regular season with a 9-4 record and remain undefeated at home. They have kept that record perfect as they host the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference Championship Friday and Saturday.

For the conference meet, SIU will have to overcome the lapses that it occasionally slipped to Saturday. Although the Saluki offense controlled most of the game, Coach Steve Cross had to decide whether to start or sit down SIU-C in the first half.

Wright caught five passes in the second quarter, and finished with 122 of Christensen’s 219 yards passing. Wright set up the first Eastern Illinois touchdown with a 20-yard pass on the Panthers first possession, set up the 32-yard field goal that tied it 13-13 in the second quarter with a 34-yard reception, and then turned a short catch into a 21-yard touchdown pass that gave the Panthers their 20-13 halftime advantage. SIU-C handed EIU its first loss.

The Salukis scored on their first drive of the second half, following a 20-yard touchdown pass to Tony Anderson Anderson was SIU-C’s top rusher, gaining 60 yards on 17 carries.

The Salukis didn’t play Saturday, and have an extra week to reflect on a 4-3 record.

FIGHT BAD KIDS ELECT

Jackson County SHERIFF

Tuesday November 2, 1982
Paid for by the Committee to Elect Kilquist, R.O. Box 208, Makanda, Illinois, 62958. George Cane, Chairman, Vicki E. Jacquell, Treasurer.
Dear Members of the Southern Illinois University Community,

The Southern Illinois University community has three good friends in government: State Representative Bruce Richmond, State Senator Ken Buzbee, and United States Congressman Paul Simon.

These three legislators have shown an unwavering commitment to ensuring access and choice in post-secondary education. At a time when the state's commitment to higher education has diminished, SIU has fared well. SIU was second only to the University of Illinois among Illinois public universities in terms of dollars received.

SIU's strong state support is in no small way attributable to the work of Bruce Richmond and Ken Buzbee in the Illinois Legislature.

When Bruce Richmond speaks, people listen. He gets things done. As a member of the Committee on Higher Education and chief House sponsor of SIU's appropriation bills, he has helped SIU become a major university. Funding by state appropriations puts SIU among the top thirty public universities in the nation. Bruce Richmond is partly responsible for that.

Bruce Richmond in the House, together with Ken Buzbee in the Senate, has steered legislation through the House for the renovation of Davies Gymnasium, the construction of the new Law School Building, and faculty salary pay increases.

Ken Buzbee, as Chairman of the powerful Senate Appropriations II Committee and as a member of the Appropriations Committee, has supported SIU through his commanding voice in deciding where and how tax dollars are spent. For each dollar this district pays out, $3.36 comes back. Senator Buzbee has brought tax dollars back into the district.

Ken Buzbee has received recognition for his outstanding work in education from the Illinois Education Association, the Illinois Community College Trustees Association, the Illinois Student Association, and others. The Southern Illinoisan newspaper ranks him as Southern Illinois' most prominent state legislator.

Bruce Richmond and Ken Buzbee have shown their commitment to access and choice through their strong support for the Illinois State Scholarship Commission Monetary Award Program and efforts to keep tuition at state universities and community colleges as low as possible. Illinois student financial aid was ranked third in the nation for 1980-81 by the National Association of State Scholarship and Grant programs.

Paul Simon is, quite simply, the best friend and strongest supporter of education in Congress today. He is known as one of the most honest and thoughtful members of Congress. As chairman of the Subcommittee on Post-Secondary Education, member of the Committee on Education and Labor, and as ranking member of the Budget Committee, Paul Simon is the chief spokesman for higher education in the House. He has consistently and effectively fought for federal student financial aid programs which provide access and choice in higher education.

Paul Simon was the chief sponsor in restoring the Pell Grants from the President's budget cuts. Paul Simon deserves our support. Access and choice has allowed many students to pursue their dreams who otherwise would have been unable to do so. These people have friends in Congressmen like Paul Simon.

Bruce Richmond, Ken Buzbee and Paul Simon have helped Southern Illinois. They have helped us on education, as well as many other areas too numerous to mention, such as jobs, farms, energy, and care for the elderly. Their records are excellent. None of them should be defeated by negative television ads which distort their records. They need our help.

We urge members of the SIU community to vote on November 2nd for three outstanding men who exemplify integrity and good old-fashioned hard work: Bruce Richmond, Ken Buzbee and Paul Simon.

Sincerely,

[Signatures]

Harriers take MVC crown

By Dean Kirk
Staff Writer

There was about only one way the Salukis could have won Saturday's Missouri Valley Conference cross country championships. Make sure the SIU-C harriers wouldn't show up.

That was not the case. Though, as the Salukis captured four of the top five places and easily outdistanced Illinois State, the second place team and only other real threat for the title, SIU-C has now taken the MVC title the last three times. They have also won the MVC title race six times since joining the conference in 1972.

The Salukis finished the race with a score of 24. ISU had 48 while Bradley was a distant third with 106.

Although SIU-C runners dominated the top five places, they didn't have the first place finisher. That coveted spot was taken by Wichita State's George Callier, who also set a new course record with 24:58.89.

Saturday was the first time Callier had ever run the course.

Salukis hand victory to Panthers

By Dan Devine

Interceptions dropped passes and significant pressure in the secondary and some sloppy tackling spelled a 20-7 Saluki loss at Eastern Illinois Saturday afternoon.

Despite a 20-0 halftime and then wasted numerous chances to come back, self-inflicted drives with eight turnovers.

However, Coach Ray Dempsey said the same things he's been saying throughout the Saluki season. The team has now lost five of its last six games.

"I can take a beating," said Dempsey. "I just don't like it when you contribute so much. They have no more ability than anyone else." It didn't help that the four players who decode the cover the team's media guide could make little contribution.

Rock Johnson was injured, and played the second half, but only after he regained some strength via a miracle of modern football medicine. The Saluki quarterback was sick during the game, and needed an intravenous to stay in the second quarter to keep him on his feet.

John Harper managed to play, but the defenses played on the edge most of the time. An ankle in

Spikers fall to Redbirds

By Jackie Rodgers
Staff Writer

It was supposed to be a bloody battle. It was supposed to be a dirty fight. And it was supposed to be a victory for the SIU-C volleyball team.

Well, two out of three was bad for the Salukis as they lost to Illinois State 15-8, 11-15, 17-15, 12-15.

The Salukis and Redbirds have never been known to be the best of friends, so this loss hurt a little bit more for the SIU-C team.

"We should have won," said Bonnie Norrenberns, a senior playing in her last home match. "They aren't going to win the next one, so way.

The next one will probably be in a few weeks, when the two teams will light it out at the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference championship. That match will mean much more, though, because the conference winner will receive a berth to the NCAA championship. "I don't think this loss will hurt us at all," Hunter said. "We won't feel inferior to them by no means. It is hard for a good team to beat a good team twice in a row."

The ISU victory also avenged a loss the Salukis dealt to the Redbirds last year. That loss knocked ISU out of the Top Twenty. SIU-C, which went into the match ranked 20th, will almost certainly drop out of the poll. Hunter said that while the ranking was nice, it won't matter much when the GCCAC tournament rolls around.

The Redbirds were powered by Cathy Olson and Cindy Harris, who attacked the middle almost at will. The Salukis had a hard time getting any
