Tailgating parties to be studied

By Bruce Kirkham Staff Writer

Tailgating at SIU-C football

Tailgating at SIU-C football games is a smashing success. Smashing down fences and tearing down goal posts seems to be part of the scene.

Despite the animalistic tendencies of Saluki fans with eight hours of drinking beneath their belts, the University has no plans to curtail the party at this Saturday's homecoming game against Illinois State University, according to Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs. Swinburne, vic student affairs to adopt the USO's suggestions on new bicycle regulations and add one regulation of its own has met with some opposition from the student body.

Swinburne said that Saturday's unusually spontaneous crowd and its assault on University property can be attributed to the crowd's "Halloween mentality."

The USO suggested that speed tape be placed on the U.S. Route 51 overpass, that yield signs be placed in potentially dangerous areas, that bicyclists must yield to pedesirians on all areas of campus, that students must walk their bikes in the area between Faner Hall and the Student Center and that the wheelchair ramys in the Faner breezeway be marked off-limits to bicycles. Bicycle traffic across the breezeway has also been outlewed.

The Traffic and Parking Committee adopted these suggestions and also banned all bicycle traffic in the Faner breezeway representative to the Committee voted in favor of the added

THE OPPOSITION to the new rules came in the form of a petition written by a student and signed by more than 500 others. The petition's author said that banning bicycle traffic at faner was "absurb," because, he said, the Faner breezeway is a main thoroughfare on campus. He also cited statistics showing a very low accident rate at Faner Hall. As of Oct. 28 there was only one reported accident in the Faner Hall breezeway since Jan. 1.

We are in favor of the new regulations adopted by the Traffic and Parking Committee except for one point. A bike lane should be established passing across the north end of Faner hall in front of Morris Library.

CONSTRUCTION of the new bike ramp, replacing a set of flat steps, at that spot eliminated the dangers of bicyclists using the wheelchair ramp. With the closure of the rest of the Faner breezeway and the area between Faner and the Student Center to breezeway and the area between Faner and the Student Center to bike traffic. a lane needs to be provided for east-west bicycle traffic. The area specified would be the most convenient for bicyclists and the safest for pedestrians. Speed tape placed at that spot — as they will be placed on the Route 51 overpass — would cut down on the speed of bicyclists through that area and the yield-to-pedestrians regulation would still apply.

The new regulations were needed to cut down on accidents caused by irresponsible bicyclists. The Traffic and Parking Committee

Jeff Wilkinson's column was the real strikeout

In regard to Jeff Wilkinson's column of Oct. 24, entitled "Entertainment World Snubs Carbondale," there were a few inaccuracies which I believe merit correction.

First, in reference to Good-an's cancellation, Wilkinson First, in reference to Good-man's cancellation, Wikinson stated that "SPC strikes out on this one." make it." The truth is that Goodman does not take can-cellations lightly; he is en-during a 13-year battle with leukemia, and his Carbondale cancellation was only the second gig he had missed during that period. I can't think during that period. I can't think of many performers in good health who can match that record. Strike two, Jeff. Finally, the idea to present another concert and grant a $2.00 discount to ticket stub $2.00 discount to ticket stub-holders from the original concert was not, as Wilkinson reported, "a little bit of class emanating from Chicago." It was a little bit of class emanating from the folks at Shryock Auditorium. Strike three, Jeff. Yerrr out! — Brad Faughn, Assistant Director, Shryock Auditorium.

United States' continued support still vital to Southeast Asia

SOUTHEAST ASIA may not receive as much attention in American media as the Middle East or Central America. But it is erroneous to conclude that Southeast Asia is not vital to American interests.
The United States should continue to render sufficient support to Southeast Asian countries to strengthen their economies and to fend off any communist threat from Vietcommunist threat from Viet-nam. Many political leaders in Southeast Asia fear that the United States is unwilling to commit troops to the region in times of a crisis because of the bitter Vietnam experience.

To establish strong links with countries of Southeast Asia, the Countries or Southeast Assa, and United States must work closely vib ASEAN. To some people here, ASEAN still seems a misspelling rather than an acronym for the Association of Coutheast Asian Nations. Many Americans also don't know where Southeast Asia lies on the map. The fact is that ASEAN (pronounced "ah-see-ahn) makes up a third power center in East Asia favorable to the U.S. interest, the other two being the People's Republic of China and Japan.

SINCE ASEAN receives little space in American media, many Americans don't know much about ASEAN

ASEAN is a five-member country bloc consisting of Indonesia, Lalaysia, Singapore, Thailand and the Philippines. It is not a military pact but a group which seeks economic stability through cooperation among member states and with the industralized nations such as Japan and the United States. Thus, in response to the group's call for a program of cooperation to bolster internal cooperation to bolster interma-economic strength within ASEAN, Malaysia introduced the concept of ZOPFAN: Zone of Peace, Freedom and Neutrality. The concept was unanimously endorsed by the member nations

MOST of the ASEAN economies are Westernoriented and trade with the United States is much welcomed. In its 1983 issue of "Great Decisions," the New York-based Foreign Policy Association reported that US-ASEAN two-way trade reached $25 billion in 1981, and U.S. in an and U.S. in an analysis and u.S. in an a $23 billion in 1981, and U.S. in vestment in the region totaled $4.8 billion. Thus, ASEAN represents America's fifth largest trading partner.

president since the late 1950s feared that if the Viet Cong triumphed over South Vietnam which they did in 1975 theast Asia wo Southeast automatically fall to communist hands. But, thus far, this domino theory has never domino theory has never materialized. Nevertheless, the United States constantly assures ASEAN leaders about U.S. commitment to the region.

For example, Ronald Palmer, U.S. Ambassador to Malaysia said at the forum in Penang that if anything happened to Thailand it was bound to have Thailand it was bound to have an effect on Malaysia. Palmer was, of course, reviving the domino principle. Thus, he vowed, rather vaguely, that if Vietnam attacked Thailand, the United States would respond "in accordance with (its) constitutional process."

ASEAN has undergone several years of peace and unprecedented economic growth. Such growth depends very heavily on a strong relationship with the United States. Not many Americans realized this.

However, it is bad policy for the United States to come in only when there is trouble, as it has in Grenada, Lebanon, El Salvedor and Nicaragua. By the time the United States decides to take action, sen-

ASEAN's pursuit of stro ties with the United States manifested in what Malaysia's Deputy Prime Minister Datuk Musa Hitam told a visiting sixmember U.S. congressional delegation to Kuala Lumpur on August 13.

DATUK MUSA said that Malaysia seeks an "even-keel

RELATIONS with the United States are not without dif-ficulties and economic ties between ASEAN and the United thorny. For States can be thorny. For example, the United States' decision to auction 30,000 tcrs of the U.S. tin stockpile has contributed to a worldwide glut of tin. U.S. opposition to the United Nations Law of the Sea dealt a major blow to ASEAN. ASEAN members felt that they have given a major concession to the industralized countries in agreeing to the right of passage for vessels — military and commercial — through Southeast Asian waters.

ASEAN represents about 300 million people whose objectives in East Asia correspond to that of the United States. Thus, the United States should not decide

United States should not decide on things which could sour U.S.-ASEAN relationship.

Nor should the United States support a repressive government simply because of the presence of U.S. military bases in that country. Vice President George Bush told President Marcos on his visit to Manila in July 1981 that "We love your adherence to democratic adherence to democratic principle and to the democratic process."

Such rhetoric is plainly ironic. If America is conironic. If America is concerned about true democracy and about preserving its interest in ASEAN, or in any other place in the world for that matter, it should pay heed to what Raul S. Manglapus, a Philippine opposition leader living in the United States, said: "The United States should recognize that its real friends are peoples with democratic aspirations and not flambovant dictators who will bring boyant dictators who will bring American interests crashing down with them when their violent hour comes."

'We cannot walk out on our Marines'

My first draft of this letter contained harsh criticism for the D.E. and all the other people condemning President Reagan and U.S. foreign policy; but, I rationalized that these people are ignorant and I'd rather devote some of this space to the ILS Moreigns.

rather devote some of this space to the U.S. Marines.
Young men join the Marines because they want to and they're proud to be a Marine.
They do their job in a commendable manner. They devote their lives or part of their lives for this great country. This for this great country. This truly is the land of the free and the home of the brave.

We cannot walk out on our Marines. We must support the mission to which they've been assigned. To do otherwise would assigned. For otherwise would encourage other acts of terrorism and dishonor the fallen soldiers and the proud tradition of the Marines.

I am deeply saddened by the tragic event which took place in Rejurt! If has been impossible to Beirut. It has been impossible to hold back the tears. I feel as hold back the tears. I feel as though I have lost over 200 brothers and friends. My deepest sympathy goes out to the families and friends who have lost loved ones in Beirut. Let's all join together and oray for the families. Let us hope those Marines have not died in vain.

Finally, to those students who have been protesting at the Well, my brother was in Beirut and the cruelty of those remarks was totally uncalled for from those ignorant "American revolutionaries. Cathy Dyslin, Senior, Public Relations.

No 'moral greatness' in U.S. invasion

It says a lot about the sup-posed "moral greatness" of this country that it saw fit to invade one of the smallest nations of the world.

It is understandable, however, that a system whose fundamental characteristics are the expansion and maintenance of its markets and of its tenance of its markets and of its political hegemony — that a system whose only motive for existence is the personal profit and aggrandizement of a few — would not tolerate the birth of freedom and independence anywhere.

Propaganda that states that the U.S. invasion of Grenada had as its three-fold purpose the protection of U.S. medical students in St. George's University, the restoration of law and order in Grenada and the preservation of the security the preservation of the security of the other nations of the region is easily disproven.

First, medical students in Grenada and the director of the medical school stated that they were in no danger. Second, the overthrow of the Marxist-Leninist government of Prime Minister Bishop by a band of military strongmen whose political ideology was never clearly defined is no justification for the invasion. Third, dishonesty underlying the reaction of U.S. reactionaries and imperialist puppet regimes in the area in the face of events in Grenada during the regimes in the area in the face of events in Grenada during the past three weeks will not hide the fact that they were openly hostile to Bishop's Grenada since April, 1979.

It is my belief that the objectives of the U.S. invasion were, in fact, to maintain white superiority to stille the self-superiority, to stifle the self-confidence and creativity of the people of the region, and to smash any attempts by workers and toilers to eliminate class privileges and distinctions. Fully aware of the fact that the "national security of this country" (read as the class security of this country's ruling clique) is deleteriously affected by the struggle for freedom and human dignity everywhere, I expect that the Caribbean and Latin American revolutions will be strengthened in the long run by the callous and un-sophisticated efforts of the Reagan administration to repress them. The sociorepress them. The socioeconomic problems of the area will not only not go away, but also more and more people will join the revolutionary ranks with a full awareness that the main obstacle for the solution of those problems is the imperialist ruling class of the U.S.

In short, Grenada will become for neo-colonialism what Castro's attack against the Moncada Garrison in 1956 became for Batista: a victory which was really a defeat.—

Marine families deserve dignity

Imagine you and your family huddled in front of the television huddled in front of the television straining to hear any news of a loved one stationed in Beirut, Lebanon. You hope and pray he is all right and at the same time wait for the phone to ring but hope it does not. Suddenly you hear a knock at the door. You open it and there stand three open it and there stand three men in uniform. In a flash you know what it means, but what are those people with lights and cameras doing here?

Beileve it or not, this was the scene played nationwide by one of the "big three" networks on the night of Oct. 26. It is not enough for them to show anguished families waiting for four days to hear some kind of news, or to have the names of their dead and wounded flashed on the screen — not for this network. This network has to network. Inis network has to try to catch a glimpse of a family in its most private moments. But this is "good journalism" protected by the sacrosanct First Amendment.

sacrosanct First Amendment.
Who is there to watch out for that privacy? Certainly under normal circumstances the family could, but when they realize they are about to be told a loved one is dead they are not thinking of anything else. In this case the network should not have been around in the first place. Also the film editor should have been responsible enough to leave it on the floor of the cutting room.
Surely the nation sympathizes with the families of those killed. I wonder how the networks would feel if it was one of their family members that had ded and a camera crew showed up and a camera crew showed up to take pictures when they found out.

Can't we allow these families even a little dignity and respect without making their grief a media event? — Jerry P. Herron, Senior, STC.

Some still value freedom

While some run for their peace signs and their anti-Reagan signs, which appeal more to emotion than intellect, and others begin to map out their trips to Canada, I thank God there are still people who value freedom and democracy more than their own lives.

I want to honor our fighting men for having the desire and courage to serve our country and in turn serve the world. Whether you like to hear it or whether you think it's call ich. whether you think it's a cliche, America was built by men who counted the cost of freedom higher than their own lives.

When I joined the Navy, I realized there was a possibility, no matter how remote, that I could get killed — and I believe that thought crossed the minds of most of the people who were of most of the people who were killed, but they chose to go on. I don't believe we can become an don to believe we can become an isolationist nation or throw down our weapons, be friends with the world and live in peace, so I am grateful for men and women who are willing to serve

United Way surpasses goal

By Dave Saelens Staff Writer

As United Way officials began tabulating donations last week from the 1983 fundraising from the 1983 fundraising campaign, they discovered they had not only reached their campus goal of $43,500, they passed it by over $3,000. United Way Campaign Coordinator for SIU-C Marian Davis said the fundraiser brought in $50,338. Of that amount, she said, $3,933 was collected for other cities, which leaves $46,905 collected for leaves $46,905 collected for Carbondale community organizations.

"The university has shown that it does care and does share," she said.

Davis said they exceeded the '83 goal because some groups made donations for the first time and many groups denated. time, and many groups denated more money than in previous

"There was outstanding

"There was outstanding participation from Student Affairs and from Campus Services," Davis said, citing how Student Affairs donations went from $2,642 last year to $3,372 this year.
Some of the groups from Student Affairs which increased their donation totals, Davis said, where Student Health with a $1,063 donation — $797 more than last year — and University Housing which went from a $32 donation last year to a donation of $635 this year.

Davis added that this year a corporate gift of $500 from the Interstate United Food Service was donated to the camaign the first corporate gift the University has given to United Way way.

Campus Services, such as SIU-C Security and the Physical Plant, also increased their donations this year. Davis said the group donated $2,979 last year and increased it to $4,142 this year.

this year. Other campus groups which showed an increase in donations this year, Davis said, were the School of Agriculture, School of Agriculture, Academic Affairs Ad-School ministration, School of Technical Careers and Morris Library.

Davis said another reason for the increase in pledges this year was an increase in contributors

Davis said the fundraiser total of $50,838 is not final since there are still some groups which have not yet turned in all which have not yet turned in an of their donations. She said contributions from groups such as Shryock Auditorium and the College of Human Resources could add $1,000 to $2,000 more to the fundraiser total.

Some of the Carbondale community organizations which will benefit from the fundraiser include the American Red Cross, Humane Society, Synergy, USO, Egyptian Association for the Mentally Retarded, and the Senior Citizens Program.

"The university responded to a lack of resources coming into the community from state and federal agencies," Davis said. "The theme of the fundraiser this year was "You can make a difference," and the university has definitely made a difference." ference.

said, "but the university doesn't declare weeks as the city does."

Beveridge also tried to arrange a competition between the University of Illinois and SIU-C to see which campus sould come closest to meeting ts goal. A spokesman from the U of I said the university would be willing to enter into the competition pert semester. competition next semester.
"This campus has a record of eally being in support of the Red Cross blood drives. I would encourage everyone to par-icipate," Swinburne said. The goal of 1,800 units of blood was net last fall semester.

Before students give blood, hey register, give some basic nformation about themselves and have a mini-physical. Nurses from the community are in hand to draw the blood, which takes from 6 to 8 minutes.

Beveridge said on the verage about 200 units of blood ave to be thrown out because hey are not good enough to use. bonors are notified so that they an seek medical treatment if ssary.

The community and faculty slood drives have already taken slace this semester. Most of the lonors who participated in the aculty drive were students, according to Beveridge.

Blood drives are held once a

Because China is still in-ustrializing, it has an addustrializing, it has an advantage in controlling pollution, said John Meister, director of pollution control at SIU-C.

Lillian Carter, 85, dies; funeral is Tuesday

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — Lillian Carter, the opinionated and outspoken mother of former President Jimmy Carter, died

President Jimmy Carter, died Sunday at age 85.

Mrs. Carter had been at Americus-Sumter County Hospital for about a week. The former president and his wife, Rosalynn, had been at the hospital for the day.

"Miss Lillian." as her neighbors in Plains, Ga., called her, lived on the fringes of politics for most of her life, but was rarely shy about expressing her opinions. In 1980, she created opinions. In 1980, she created headlines by saying that if she bad $1 million, she would hire a "hit man" to kill Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini.

And in a September 1981 in-terview, she accused Nancy Reagan of runing the White House with her "Hollywood kind of taste."

Mrs. Carter was offered her husband's seat in the Georgia Legislature when he died during his first term in 1953, but she declined.

"I was too shocked by his death," she said later. "But I think if later they offered the Legislature seat to me again, I would have taken it."

A graveside service for Mrs.

Carter will be at 3 p.m. Tuesday at the Lebanon Cemetery in Plains.

Mrs. Carter had 15 grand-hildren and eight greatchildren grandchildren.

In 1966, after seeing an advertisement for the Peace Corps which promised "age is no barrier." Mrs. Carter signed up as a volunteer. She spent two years in India at a family planning clinic as the Peace Corps' oldest volunteer.

That was the year that SIU-C beat Tulsa, which was ranked No. 8 in Division I, 16-13. That was also the last year, before Saturday's game, that the goal posts were torn down, men's Athletic Director Lew Hartzog said

The goal posts are being repaired, not replaced, Hartzog said. He said the main pieces of the goal posts were recovered, and workers at the physical plant were welding them together.

Fans charged off the field at McAndrew Stadium Saturday toting the south goal post.

Costs of the repairs will not be known until the work is com-pleted. However, it will be cheaper to repair the goal posts than it would be to buy new ones, Hartzog said. An estimated cost for new goal posts is $3,500 to $4,000 each. After the goal posts went down Saturday, Hartzog was
