Scrambling for Springfield

Race for governor appears to be in near deadlock with hours left to campaign.

SARA BEAN AND JAY SCHWAB DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTERS

One is an experienced, nononsense politician who has spent the better part of three decades serving Illinois in capacities such as House speaker, lieutenant governor and secretary of state.

The other served as a schoolteacher before entering the political arena and is con ered too conservative by some members of his own party, yet he is lauded by many as a man of principles.

Meet Republican George Ryan of Kankakee and Democrat Glenn Poshard of Marion, who both stress education as their No. 1 priority and both wish to lead Illinois into the future as the first gov-ernor of the new millennium.

Ryan has led most polls by a large margin throughout the race, but a recent Chicago Sun-Times poll that showed the candidates practically deadlocked raised some eyebrows in the state. The poll-also gave Poshard supporters reason to believe their candidate has a realistic shot at coming from behind for the win, as he did in the spring's Dumocratic primary.

During the race, Ryan has relied upon a bold education funding plan and used his campaign's enormous finan-ciai advantage to conduct a media blitz that attempted to paint Porhard as an extremist on gun control.

Poshard has countered late in the race by trying to capi-talize on corruption uncovered in Ryan's secretary of state office — a tactic Republicans consider to be an of desperation.

If Ryan avoids what would be a surprising defeat on Election Day, he will add to the 22-year streak of GOP governors in Illinois.

Ryan's straight-forward, sometimes gruff manner may preclude him from becoming a media darling, but it appears voters have identified with the 64-year-old Ferris State College graduate.

Bost, Strom address local economy

ISSUES: State Representative race focuses on improving Southern Illinois industry, employment, education.

JAY SCHWAB DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Few races in Southern Illinois have been as hotly contested as the battle for 115th District State Representative between Republican incumbent Mike Bost and Democratic challenger Don Strom.

Bost, a Murphysboro resident who has represented the district since 1994, is angered by what he perceives to be a nega-tive, attacking campaign by Strom. He contends that Strom either "does not understand the legislative process" or has deliberately distorted Bost's record.

Strom, a Carbondale resident who served as the city's Chief of Police beginning in 1991 before taking a leave of absence in order to run for office, says he has merely discussed Bost's legislative record and said his opponent made the campaign personal following a Bost commer-cial that refers to Strom being born in Chicago.

Strom claims that Bost's family trucking business has profited as a result of the representative's status as a legislator, that Bost has lied about his record on HMO reform, and that Bost has consistently voted in com-pliance with the agenda of his party's northem leaders.

Meanwhile, Bost says Strom, a Chicago native, is the one being influenced by Chicago area interests.

He also recently aired a commercial citing a court case in which the credibility of Strom's testimony was called into question

Despite the frequent bickering, the candidates have managed to focus on some topics such as education funding, economic development and health care reform.

Mike Bost

The affable Bost says a record amount of money for education has come into the dis-trict during his time as representative.

Bost says that area school districts received almost $4 million in new state aid funding during the past year, in addition to more than $10 million in school construction funds.

He is also proud of what he has been able to do for SIU.

He points to SIU being fully funded every year he has been in office as an indication of his commitment to the University.

Another accomplishment that Bost frequently refers to is the creation of over 1,000 jobs in the district since he took

Furthermore, the representative expressed enthusiasm for the prospects of the fish industry in Southern Illinois. Bost said he is working with the Aquaculture Center at SIU in an attempt to develop a fish-farm industry in Southern Illinois that he believes could produce a large number of non-minimum wage jobs.

"Business in the area has been doing better, but we have to keep making strides,"

As the only GOP member on the Coal evelopment Board, Bost believes he could aid in a rejuvenation of the local coal indus-try, although he said new technology less-ening the demand for manual labor is a major obstacle toward coal regaining its prominence in the Southern Illinois eco-

Bost said addressing the economy in the area is of paramount importance in order to make improvements for the district.

"We need to work to ensure that eco-nomic growth is invested in infrastructure,"

Bost said that while he will work for a four-lane highway connecting Southern a ake any promises that the project will

Despite his opponent's claims to the contrary, Bost asserts that he has "led the fight" for a Patient's Bill of Right, designed to give medical patients more freedom regarding their treatment.

Bost says he supports a third airport for Chicago area because he believes it would have a positive ripple effect on the entire state's economy.

Don Strom

Nobody can say that Strom has not rur an aggressive campaign to advance his hopes of unseating Bost.

"We've come to accept too many short-comings in the area," Strom said.

"I'm prepared to make the tough deci-ns and provide the true leadership that the district needs.

and 25 percent for property tax relief.

25 Strom believes that the plan is a superior long-term solution to the current way educa-tion is funded, and he believes that education funding is just one of the issues that is not being adequately addressed by his opponent.

Strom, a graduate of SIUC, also plans on more aggressively pursuing state funding for the University if elected.

"I'm committed to SIU," Strom said.
"This University has loads of potential — we n and we have to do more to bring this University back to a level of internal

Proactive work to advance the four-lane highway from Carbondale to St. Louis and a wage rebate program intended to attract industry to the district, are key planks in Strom's economic package.

Companies creating at least 25 new jobs paying at least $9.00 an hour would be eligible for rebates under the new program.

Strom said the plan could ease the unemployment of the ployment problem in the district as well as create the diversification of industry that Southern Illinois desperately needs.

"We can't just talk about job creation anymore." Strom said...

It's time to act decisively."

Health officials investigating possible salmonella tainting

Food served at an Indian Association dinner Oct. 24 at the Carbondale Civic Center may have contained salmonella, the Jackson County Health Department said Thursday. Both the event, catered by an out-of-state establishment, and preliminary lab reports are being investigated by the department regarding the fcodme illness.

A few people who attended the dimer reported symptoms of salmonella, includ-ing fever, vomiting, diarrhea, and head and body aches. Carla Griffin, the department's director of nursing, said everyone who attended the event should monitor their hygiene and thoroughly wash their

Michigan says Halloween massacre story just rumor

Sometimes, Terry Denbow just has to shake his head at the things people are willing to believe.

Denbow, the Michigan State University spokesman, has had staffers telling him that they were getting ques-tions from parents and students who wanted to know whether there was any truth to the rumor that 30 or so students would be massacred on Halloween.

Of course, Denbow said, there is no truth to it. Nonetheless, the rumor has been circulating at the University of Michigan and Michigan State, the tale hitting MSU harder.

As the story goes, the victims will live in an H-shaped building, a residence hall starting with the letter "IF" or a dorm near railroad tracks or a cemetery, MSU has several such dorms. The culprit wears a Little Bo Peep costume and usu-ally is a crazed student, professor, maintenance worker, escaped convict or escapee from a nearby asylum.

Here's how the story has been spread: Someone who knows someone who knows someone else heard that a friend's classmate's mother saw a psychic on "The Oprah Winfrey Show" predict it

Our Word

Send Bost, Brown to General Assembly

The enormous amount of money being spent on advertising in the Bost-Strom and Brown-Luechtefeld races indicates this region's importance in Illinois politics.

Both the Republican and Democratic parties know Southern Illinois' weak-Democratic tradition and are willing to pump an exorbitant amount of money into the 115th Representative District and 58th Senate District races to sway voters.

That is why the DAILY EGYPTIAN has chosen Mike Bost and Barb Brown to represent and fight for Southern Illinois in Springfield. Our theme in this year's endorsements has been greed. We support candidates who put the University first and Southern Illinois second.

Mike Bost has the seniority to make things happen for the region, and he has shown great appreci-ation for SIUC. Bost understands the political process. He has brought a historic amount of money into Southern Illinois and is in position for a committee appointment.

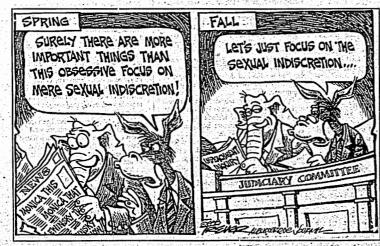

But what really makes Mike Bost the best candidate is his background. He is a man of the people a native of Southern Illinois who has worked as a firefighter and managed a family truck-driving busi-

Endorsing Mike Bost was an easy decision, but choosing between Barb Brown and Dave Luechtefeld was a tough task. Both candidates are qualified for a Senate position and are overall nice

The fact that Mike Bost and Dave Luechtefeld have worked well together in Springfield was considered, but there needs to be a change in the guard. Currently, Republicans hold the Senate majority by a few votes. A Barb Brown victory would be one seat closer to removing Pate Philip from the Senate majority, leadership. That would give Southern Illinois' representatives a chance to work for their

As a political science lecturer at SIUC, Barb Brown understands the political process. And with a son attending SIUC next fall, we have faith that she will use her knowledge and Senate position to aid the University.

The DAILY EGYPTIAN Editorial Board also was impressed with her aggressive, maverick attitude. She wants to be a cheerleader in Springfield. During her presentation to the EGYPTIAN, Brown mentioned the Crazy Eight representatives from Southern Illinois. They threw the party lines out the window and fought together. Brown said she would like to work with regional representatives to build that level of camaraderie again. With Mike Bost and Barb Brown in office, we believe the University and Southern Illinois will have a strong one-two punch in Springfield. We also believe that both candidates, despite party affiljation, will work together for the needs and interests of Southern Illinois.

Put partisanship aside on pensions

On September 24, I had the great for-tune of being named the 1998 Civil Service Woman of Distinction for Southern Illinois University. While the plaque I received from Chancellor Argersinger hangs on the wall in my office, it is really a testimony to hundreds of SIUC employees and thousands of University employees state wide who have joined in an effort to reverse the negative effects of HB110 (PA90-0055) which took away promised health care coverage for state employees with less than 20 years service.

Following a profile which appeared in this newspaper nearly three weeks ago, I have had numerous telephone calls, visits to my office, and encounters on campus from well-wishers. Two questions keep coming up: "What, exactly, is this award?" and "What's happening now with our legislation, and what can we do?" These are both fair questions, and I am deeply grateful to the DAILY EGYPTIAN for providing me this means to respond. I use this opportunity to also thank the editors and

EGYPTIAN staff for the excellent coverage they have given the issue over the past 15 months, recognizing the impact it has on the University personnel who serve them daily.

To respond to the first question, the Woman of Distinction Award is bestowed annually by the Office of University Women's Professional Advancement, which is headed by Dr. Martha Ellert. Each April, UWPA seeks nominations of excep-tional women selected from the faculty, administrative profes-sionals, civil service staff, and top female scholars in undergraduate and masters- or doctoral-level programs. Criteria for the award include contributions to the advancement of other men, individual achievement in education and research. leadership contributions, and significant work at the commu ty, regional, national, and global levels.

Sharing the honors with me as 1998 Women of Distinction are Dr. Penelope Tippy, faculty recipient; M. Stalls, AP division winner; Colleen P. Kurczynski, master's degree candidate and Kristen J. Bein, undergraduate student honoree. In addition to the plaque we each received during the annual service awards banquet, our names have been added for permanent display on the University Women's Professional Advancement board, located in the River Rooms corridor of the Student

While it is an enormous privilege to be associated with such gifted and dedicated women, it also is a humbling experience to read names of previous recipients and see one's own name listed with them. Be assured I'll make every effort to carry on the UWPA tradition of service and leadership. Thank you for your support and confidence.

Turning now to the second question: "What's happe with our legislation, and what can we do?" The fate of the leg-islation dealing with the insurance issue pretty much hangs in the balance and should be determined one way or the other when the General Assembly reconvenes for the fall veto session Nov. 17 to Nov. 19. Our position remains that while an employer, including the State of Illinois, has a right to change its terms of employment for new hires, that employment an obligation to honor commitments it made to its employees hen they were hired.

We will, therefore, be taking back to Springfield to demand that employees hired before July 7, 1997 be allowed to elect at retirement whether they want to be covered by the terms in place at the time of hire — based on a lower step formula but with full insurance coverage — or whether to choose the enhanced 2.2 formula of HB 110 with employee health cost sharing at the rate of 5 percent for each year under 20 years of

We also are exploring other options to present for consideration based on the realities of cost, but at a time when the State of Illinois reports a record surplus of almost $1 billion dollars, it defies reason that lawmakers on both sides of the aisle would not unite and demand that the State meet its oblig ation to its employees. It is, after all, a matter of fundamental

Now for the last question: "What can we do?" Striving as we must to be "politically correct," it is necessary at the same time, to remember that the problem we face results from a political reality that can only be resolved through legislative remedy. For this reason, next Tuesday's election takes on a special significance for all of us. It is important, therefore, that we put aside partisan politics, study the issues, and then cast an informed vote for the candidates of our choice. The future of each of us and Southern Illinois is at stake.

See you at the polls. ,.

Speaker criticizes bilingual education

DILEMMA: Cultural assimilation of Spanish-speaking immigrants hindered by policy.

JAMES FULLER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

With America experiencing its largest influx of immigrants since the heydays of Ellis Island, the United States is faced with the dilemma of educating 2.5 million children who are unable to communicate in the English language.

As a result, these children enter the school system and are left behind, not because they are unintelligent, but because there is an apparent lack of a unified policy in educating them.

This is the plight of Linda

This is the plight of Linda Chavez and the main focus of her speech last Tuesday night at the SIUC Student Center Auditorium. Chavez is the president of the Center for Equal Opportunity in Washington and was the director of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights from 1983-85 under President Reagan.

As she articulates in her first book, "Out of the Barrio," bilingual education is a failure that prevents Spanish-speaking immigrants from assimilating into the mosaic of America's culture.

Of the 804,000 immigrants who came to the United States in 1984, about 80 percent of them were either Asian or came from Latin America. Yet the struggle to assimilate Latin American immigrants is more difficult because they are the ones placed in the bilingual education programs.

Asian immigrants are placed in English immersion programs, and as a result, average Asian immigrants are among the most successful best educated persons in America.

CHAVEZ

That kind of policy is n

nse," Chavez said.

A former Democrat turned Republican, she spoke of a nation with a common language where education plays the key role of assimilation and maintenance of culture thrives at home. The role is made more difficult by Chavez's own recognition of the loss of many full-time mothers to professional careers. ("You can't communicate with each other if you don't have a com-mon language," Chavez said. Chavez spoke about the misconception of immigrant children and their inability; to learn English quickly. Chavez said the facts show that the younger the child, the faster the human brain acquires language.

In the bilingual education pro-ums, the child's native language is sed as the primary means of

According to Chavez, if a child comes from a home where Spanish is primarily spoken, that child is extremely likely to be put into a classroom where the child will be aught to read and write in Spanish regardless of the child's profi-ciency in English. With 22 million Hispanics in the United States, this is not a small or uncostly misuse of the public education system.

As America slowly becomes a "majority minority" nation, Chavez stressed the need to end "ethnic separatism" by always questioning a person's heritage and background on things like census forms and loan plications.

avez summed-up her views: "I believe in assimilation. I think that assimilation is the only model that works in a society as diverse as ours, that if each and every group keeps its primary attachment to the ethnic group or the racial group, it's

Having said that, though, one of the unique characteristics about American Assimilation is that we do feel that we have some connection in our homes and celebrations. And I think that so long as the ethnic part is private, so long as public funds are not being used to promote it, that there's nothing wrong with it and it we have different kinds of traditions there's nothing wrong with it and it, in fact, can make a richer nation and make a richer life.

"It's when the public gets involved and when we begin expending public money to promote attachment to ethnicity or race, that I have a problem."

Witches welcome change of seasons

SAMHAIN: Students observe pagan holiday by honoring dead, eliminating past.

KAREN BLATTER STUDENT AFFAIRS EDITOR

Tara Nelsen and Eric Linster celebrate Samhain, the holiday com-memorating the new year for witches and pagans.

Samhain, Oct. 31, marks a change in the cycle of the seasons ir. the Witch and Pagan Calendar.

The new year is the end of the harvest and a time to prepare for the winter months.

Wicca, a religion some witches and pagans follow, is the time believed to be when the veil between the living and the dead is the thinnest.

is a time of reflection, rebirth and honoring ancestors

The new year is also a time to look back at the past to see what has been accomplished over the growing season.

In honor of the holiday, Nelsen, a senior in liberal arts from Algonquin, and Linster, a graduate nt in rehabilitation counseling from Aurora, took part in many pri-vate activities to celebrate.

One of those activities was setting up an altar to honor their ances-tors. The altar was covered with picand candles to remember those who have passed.

Nelsen said that death is looked at differently by Wiccans than by other people. "We don't see death as the end of things," she said. "Death is just another spoke in the wheel. Even though it is sad that we lost someone, we celebrate their life and who they were."

Along with the ancestor altar, some also make a fire, which can be as big as a bonfire or as small as the flame of a candle.

.The fire is used to eliminate the past. With a larger fire, one would jump over it to get rid of the bad experiences from the past year.

If it is just a small flame, a piece of paper with the "bad" from the ear would be burnt

Nelsen said Halloween has many links to Pagans.

"It all has pagan roots," she said. "Jack-O-Lanterns are carved to fend off spirits of the seasons, and dres ing up to blend in all goes back to pagan roots.

The Wiccan religion is flexible. meaning the celebrations do not have to take place on a certain day. Linster said that his religion does not affect his work at school.

Eric Linster (left), a graduate student in rehabilitation counseling from Aurora, and Tara Nelsen, a senior in liberal arts from Algonquin, perform pagan rituals before the celebration of Samhain. The event, which takes place on Oct. 31, marks the beginning of the new year for witches and pagans.

"I can study before or after the celebration," he said. "If it is during the week, I can wait until the weekend to celebrate

Nelsen said that despite there being a large number of witches and pagans in the area, there is still a lot misinformation about the reli-

Wiccans do not believe in Satan

but they do perform spells. The pur-pose of the spells is to have the uni-verse work in one's favor.

Spells that are done by those who do not know what they are doing can be dangerous, Nelsen

She said spell-working is an nportant part of witchcraft.

If the spells do not harm anyone,

, then they can be completed.

When a spell is done, it will come back to the caster three times

Nelsen and Linster said they are working to eliminate the myths about what witches and pagans believe and do.

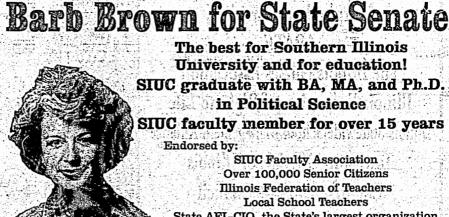

"We don't come with special effects," Linster said.

ROAD WARRIORS:

Volleyball team beats Bradley, loses to No. 1 Northern Iowa.

PAUL WLEKLINSKI DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

While the rest of the Missouri Valley Conference is climbing or falling in the conference race, SIUCs volleyball team watched the falling keep slipping and the climb-ing keep reaching as it found itself stuck in the middle with another split of weekend matches. The Salukis' only winning week-end in conference play came in the opening week of Sept. 11-12 against the University of Creighton and Drake University. They have since split five straight weekends in con-

SIUC got to the line 39 times and attempted 26 shots from beyond the arc but only connected on eight three-pointers. Weber said the three-point shot will become a vital part of the Saluki offense, but the team needs to improve on shot selection.

"If we make some more, I'll take that," Weber said. "I think they were a little quick on the trigger."

Throw in senior quarterback Kent Skornia letting a pass slip from his fingertips — which was badly underthrown and intended for a wide-open Bryan Nolbertowitez in the end zone — and allowing it to be intercepted by Bear free safery Mike Galley at the two-yard line and it's not too hard to determine which team was on the losing end.

The two miscues by Barnes cost the Salukis eight points, as they had to settle for two field goals from freshman Jonah Fore. Skornia's poor throw erased a sure score, and
