Carbondale Mayor David Keene said Monday that "all liquor licenses in the city will be reviewed by investigators from the Illinois State Liquor Control Commission who arrived late Monday afternoon."

Investigators Peter Kosos, executive director of the commission's enforcement division, and special agent Harry W. Cross will meet Tuesday with Keene and City Attorney George Fleerlage at 10:30 a.m., Keene said.

Keene plans to give the investigators all of the information surrounding the bribery attempts and any connection they may have with liquor licenses in the city.

Kosos and Cross arrived Monday and met with Fleerlage. Fleerlage said he told them "everything I know about the bribery attempts." He said he did not know how long they would remain in Carbondale.

Keene said there is a "possibility" some licenses will be either suspended or revoked after the commission members complete their investigation. But he did not name the license holders who may be subject to either suspension or revocation.

The mayor made it clear that an investigation will be made into all liquor licenses, not just those which may be connected to the alleged bribery attempts.

Fleerlage said any license suspensions or revocations would be done through local hearings. A license holder who receives either a suspension or revocation may appeal the decision within 20 days to the state commission.

The commission would then hold a hearing and any ruling would have to be appealed to the courts, Fleerlage said.

Fleerlage said the chronology of events requested by Attorney Richard Richman in connection with the alleged bribery attempts is nearly completed.

Keene said he is preparing to go before the grand jury on Oct. 10 to explain all of the details of the alleged bribery attempts.

The city council will take action tonight on a proposed ordinance which would re-
Draft call help given

Students seeking advice concerning their draft status may do so at the Dean of Students Office.

"We do everything we can to help students stay in school, says Hank Wilson, graduate assistant who is in charge of the program. "We want the students to know that this service is available to them."

Most selective service questions deal with appealing classification changes and the procedure to take upon receiving an induction notice. Wilson says he will help the student write a letter to his local draft board or, if necessary, will call the local board.

The Registrar's Office is also involved in handling the Selective Service. "Red tape," If the student requests, the registrar will send information to the local board. The request form is a part of the registration process. If the student does not request this service, it is the student's obligation to contact the local board. The registrar will notify the local boards of the student's present enrollment during October.

Swimming is sunk

It was no surprise that the swimming pool bond issue was so soundly defeated Saturday. The Carbondale Park District, un- fortunately, had all its eggs in one basket by proposing four swimming pools for the city. When the basket fell Saturday, all of the eggs were broken and the city is still left without a public swimming pool.

Many city residents have been complaining that they are already "too close to the limit." Thus, strong opposition to such an expensive and unnecessary four-pool bond issue was not surprising.

The park board members should not, however, take the negative vote as opposition to swimming facilities in Carbondale, but rather to the number of pools necessary and the cost.

Therefore, in the future, the board should draw up a more reasonable proposal whereby passage could be assured.

The problems of affluence:

a complication of choices

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

(Generous Features Corp.)

A few weeks ago I found myself at the German-Austrian border in a rented Mercedes. I had a pocketful of traveler's checks, so I was rich. The car had been a bargain at the Munich airport because it had an Austrian license and needed to go home.

But I had a problem. Should I drive over to lovely Salzburg and maybe build up the gorgeous valley to Zell am See? Should I go into marvelous old Vienna and perhaps catch the summer musical revues at Baden? Or would it be more fun to simply turn the car in at Innsbruck and take a train for Italy?

It was raining pretty heavily as I consulted my maps and noticed a half-drowned group of student hikers, their backpacks on their backs, waiting for a bus. And it occurred to me that I was witnessing a laboratory example of the advantages and disadvantages of wealth and poverty.

A few of them were puzzling over whether to go to Vienna or Salzburg. They had to count their pennings. So I picked up four of the wettest and drove them into Innsbruck while they defugled me with hochschule English.

The man who waits for the bus is limited by three factors which he cannot control: the weather, the speed and the route of the bus. The man who drives himself has none of these limitations. His vehicle goes where, how and when he wishes. He has options.

Like most people in this world is one of sparse choice. In most of South America the native never sees the nearest valley. In much of India meat is on the table only in high festivals. The Mongolian horse-herder in Tash Yurt doesn't argue with his wife about whether to spend the vacation at the beach or in the mountains. Choice is simple to the average human being because he has so little of it.

The chief characteristic of affluence is "a complication in choice, and choice looked quite white and untrammelled." "Oh, Mama, we went swimming this morning and I've seen all the shows and I don't see why we must go to a drive in and visit Aunt Harriet. There's just nothing to do!"

"Sounds familiar? It's young America's summer complaint. On the other hand, the kid who starts whacking the magneto with a hand cranking and then in an evening stroll around the village plaza is high entertainment.

One of the common syndromes of nouveau riche is in the buying disease—the impulse to amuse oneself in possessions. This sometimes has sad fall-out. The guy who acquired a $30,000 boat often worries about the fact that the boat costs him, whether he uses it or not. So rain or shine, even when he's inclined, he staggers up to the lake to tool around in the boat. A thing that was to give him recreation becomes a tarry. He has possessed by his possession.

Possession-by-possessor narrows a man's options. He finds himself trapped in an endless giration, hooking with things he has acquired. Instead of spending a quiet evening with fine music or a contemplative walk, his status requires him to fiddle with the waders on his hi-fi, or to whip around in his deep-breasted car. The wealth, which could make his life rich, merely haunts him.

America's Affluent Society, which now lies far down into what was once the "lower middle class," is wonderful. For never in any other society has such a wide spectrum of the population has so many options. Our failure lies in the fact that we are new to this business. We are too often unsure how to make happy choices.

What kind of world?

Scapegoats have replaced goats

for rationalizing society's ills

By Robert M. Hutchins

The Book of Leviticus describes the comforting practice by which the ancient Israelites annually disposed of their impurities. They put their sins and transgressions upon the head of a goat, who bore them away into a fertile waste.

Politicians the world over have long since seen the merits of this ritual. They have imposed on it by convicting their constituents that he who is the sole author of their misfortunes and the only sinner in the community.

This is going the children of Israel one better. The Hebrews acknowledged their guilt and used the scapegoat to get rid of it. The modern politician proves to the voters that they never were guilty; the goat alone is to blame.

In the United States today all politicians agreed that an attractive slogan is "law and order." The increase in crime is alarming. The politician cannot criticize his constituents: they might not like it. He must find a scapegoat. By doing so he can inveigle against one of the great evils of our time, without losing any votes.

Richard Nixon and his followers have evidently selected the Supreme Court for the role of scapegoat on the issue of law and order. If the court had not shown undue leniency toward offenders, they say, lawful and orderly people would not have been afflicted with the present plague of criminality.

Unfortunately for this argument there is available an authoritative statement of the causes of crime in the United States. It is a report of the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice, published last year. The competence and impartiality of the commission are beyond dispute.

More than 75% of those arrested plead guilty and are totally unaffected by the court's views about the conduct of criminal trials. All those arrested have benefited from recent court decisions guaranteeing them counsel and protecting them from the effort to elicit confessions. It is highly doubtful whether these or any other judicial rulings have led to an increase in crime. We can be reasonably certain, however, that they have given us a fairer system of criminal justice.
If you're 19 years old, and Japanese look out! Misfortune may lurk

By John Durbin

TOKYO—If you are 19 years old—look out! Misfortune may be lurking right around the corner.

This also applies if you are 33, 42 or 47 years old.

Do not believe in Japanese superstition, that is.

The Japanese believe that persons of these ages should expect some serious misfortunes to befall them during these years of their life.

Nineteen is considered an unlucky year because it's Japanese pronunciation, "juku," means "hopeless miser-

But 42 is the unluckiest of all, especially for men, because its pronunciation "shuih," means "deadly disease.

The Japanese have numerous and various superstitions which many religiously believe in and abide by.

Superstitions about dates exercise a vast influence upon Japanese life. There is a day named Tomoki, occurring once every six days, on which people rarely hold funerals.

"These are considered 'friend-taking' days and if a funeral is held on such a day, all the members of the deceased family will pass away," an elderly Japanese woman explained.

"If for some reason a funeral must be held on one of these days, the relatives of the deceased put six, nine, or twelve daisies in the coffin so that the God of Death will be satisfied by poisons," she added.

Japanese also are very careful to select one of the many lucky days throughout the year to embark on a new adventure such as opening a store, building a house, or departing on a long journey.

"The lucky days occur every nine days on the Japanese Lunar Calendar," a middle-aged man explained. "The lucky days always follow the day after the unlucky days which also occur every nine days throughout the calendar year.

Special care is also taken so that happy occasions such as engagement dinners and wedding ceremonies are held on a lucky day.

"We went to an expert chiromystic (practicing wise man) to find a good date for our wedding to be held," a young housewife said.

The reasons of people who are superstitious are those who are engaged in professions involving a great deal of chance, such as geishas, wrestlers, gamblers, actors and actresses.

The Japanese believe with regard to uncleanliness and impurity which they believe will bring down the value of the goods, thus, bringing bad fortune too.

For the superstitious, meeting a person you dislike or being involved in an accident or illness may also bring further misfortune, but it isn't a hopeless cause.

Sprinkling salt around the room or making sparks with flint and steel they believe will again set things in order.

Gun registration 'hair-trigger' question

By Margaret Niceley

Students who now own firearms or who plan to buy them must register their weapons under Illinois law, but the hair trigger question that has plagued the Grand American Love Affair with the gun is federal firearms control.

The United States is now the only major nation in the world which permits its citizens almost unlimited access to guns, compared to the many arms restrictions for licensing owners of firearms and registering all sales of guns and ammunition. Japan only police officers, military personnel, and in Russia private ownership of rifles and revolvers is punishable by imprisonment for as long as two years should special rifle permits can be issued in the far north and Siberia. Both the House and the Senate have passed gun bills which restrict mail-order purchase of guns and ammunition but have so far shied away from a national registration of firearms because of objections from a heavily armed populace who feel their individual rights would be jeopardized by such a law.

The charm which guns hold for the American is simple, and may be the major reason which firearms have played in the country's way of life since the nation first began.

Examine a history book and imagine pictures of the Pilgrim fathers, the Minis- te men, early settlers of the West without their guns. Imagine unarmed the era of the American past which are most widely cele-

The United States was founded violently and has lived in violence ever since. Both the Revolutionary and Civil Wars were fought on native soil, and Americans have participated in the Spanish-American War, two world wars, the Korean War, and are now fighting in Vietnam. However, 13% per cent as many Americans who have died in these wars have been killed by privately owned guns, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare says.

Some protection for homes has been necessary since the days when colonists fought to stave off Indian attacks, and more recently when homes have been held up by armed robbers since America's largest cities, including Chicago, have experienced violent racial and political unrest.

In one pre-Civil War year in Alabama, a tax record showed that the total assessed value of guns, knives and dirks owned by citizens exceeded the value of agricultural imple-

Nixon offers new approach to unemployment problems

CHICAGO (AP) — George C. Wallace launched his drive to capture votes in the Midwest and the West on Friday morning and was greeted with cheers and jeers in a motorcade through downtown Chicago.

"Wallace rode down eight blocks of State Street during the noon hour and an estimated 50,000 turned out to see the former Alabama governor seeking the presidency under the banner of the American Independent party.

Wallace was scheduled to speak later Monday in Detroit, a western suburb of predominantly white residents, he planned to remain overnight in the Chicago area before embarking Tuesday for a four-city, one-day trip through Michigan.

The route taken by the Wallace motor caravan was similar to the one taken by Richard M. Nixon when he opened his Republican presidential campaign in Chicago earlier this month. Some 400,000 persons lined the sidewalks to applaud Nixon.

Wallace was escorted by police from Midway Airport where he arrived early Monday. He switched to an open limousine at the intersection of State Street and Wacker Drive which runs along the south bank of the Chicago River.

A group of 300-400 Wallace supporters, including a drum and bugle corps, formed behind the Wallace car and the march began with rousing shouts of "We Want Wallace!"

The jeers came almost immediately. A group of Negro youths carrying signs which read, "Wallace is a Bigot," fell in with the supporters and marched alongside the open limousine.

Scores of Secret Service agents surrounded the car and during the 20-minute march engaged in gentle scuffling with the pressing crowds.

Salt Lake City (AP)—Hubert H. Humphrey—dramatically moving his presidential campaign from the shadow of Johnson Administration war policy—said Monday night he would be willing to stop the bombing of North Vietnam "as an acceptable risk for peace."

Humphrey, in a nationwide television speech on foreign policy, expressed belief a bombing halt could lead "to success in the negotiations and a shorter war," he said.

"This," Humphrey added in his prepared remarks, "would be the best protection for our troops."

The vice president, however, appeared to add a modifier. He said that in "weighing the risk" and "before taking action" as president he would place key importance on evidence—"direct or indirect, by deed or word"—of Communist willingness to restore the demilitarized zone between the North and South.

"At the government of North Vietnam were to show bad faith," he added, "I would reserve the right to resume the bombing."

Humphrey was said to feel his statement was a significant departure from Administration policy.

The vice president, trailing his opponent, Richard M. Nixon in the polls, has been urged by many supporters to take a stand on Vietnam independent of the Administration to show he is his "own man" and to attract the anti-war group within the Democratic Party.

In Washington, the White House declined comment on Humphrey's change of course.

Humphrey said he was paying for a half-hour of prime television time in order to tell the voters "my story, uninterrupted by protesters and demonstrators," or "by second-hand interpretation."

Humphrey noted that President Johnson will hold the power of authority for making decisions in Vietnam until January 20 and he added:

"And the voice at the negotiating table must be his. I shall not compete with that voice. I shall cooperate and help."

Humphrey said that when the President made his decisions on Vietnam, "I have supported them."

But, Humphrey said that in 112 days there would be a new president and new advisors, and, as he said in his acceptance speech, "The policies of tomorrow need not be limited by the policies of yesterday."

Humphrey said he would not undertake a unilateral withdrawal of American troops, which he said would "be an open invitation to more violence, more aggression, more instability."

Humphrey, however, said he would not "escalate the level of violence in either North or South Vietnam. We must seek to de-escalate."

Humphrey also outlined what else he would do in addition to a willingness to stop the bombing:

"Move toward the Americanization of the war," through a timetable negotiated with the South Vietnam government to reduce U.S. forces.

Landslide vote supports new Greek constitution

Athens (AP)—The regime of Papadopoulos rolled up a spectacular 92.7 per cent majority in its referendum Monday, amassing Greeks and foreign observers alike, "It appeared out of the blue," a Paris diplomat said.

Approval of the document, cutting King Constantine's power and enshrining the strong executive, had been widely predicted. But even Papadopoulos' ministers had not forecast such a lopsided outcome, especially since the new charter suspends most of the voters' basic rights until the government chooses to restore them.

The vote approached a unanimity comparable to one-ticket elections in Communist lands, Skeptical remarks were heard about the way voting was run at some polling places. But in general diplomats and responsible Greeks raised no doubts about the fairness of the referendum.

The campaign had been one-sided, Government officials, the press and radio joined in a massive effort to persuade Greeks to vote for the constitution. If there was any campaigning at all in opposition it was clandestine.

Hurling any diplomat in Athens asserit off the record that a large number of Greeks oppose the present regime, perhaps even a majority of them. One envoy suggested opponents voted against on the theory that it might be better to have an authoritarian regime with a constitution than without one. Papadopoulos hailed the result as a vote of confidence in his regime and as a mandate to pursue its policies.

Meanwhile, the regime can boast of winning the biggest majority in all of its 56 years, the Communist Party, and as a majority answer that there is no real 8.108 per cent, to 390,470 votes against 7.3 per cent.

'Misterogers’ gains many fans in area

If Southern Illinois youngsters could vote — those of grammar school age — the next president would not likely be one of the better known candidates now seeking the job so diligently.

Their choice would be a soft spoken, 40-year-old combination child psychologist-musician — Presbyterian minister whose face will in all probability still be seen on television screens long after many of those now in the limelight are forgotten.

At least, that’s the conclusion you might draw from comments of children—and many parents—who watch a five - day - a - week TV show which comes on every afternoon at 3:30 and 5:30 simultaneously on WSUI-TV, Channel 8, in Carbondale, and WSUI-TV, Channel 16, in Olney.

Various group advice planned for technology students today

Group advice for School of Technology students begins Oct. 1 with technology and industrial education majors scheduled from 9 a.m. to noon.

Engineering students will be advised from 2-5 p.m., Oct. 3. Industrial technology majors will begin advice in the morning hours, with engineering students scheduled from 1-5 p.m.

SIU to host high schoolers

Illinois high school upper-classmen who have submitted high American College Test scores to SIU will be guests of the University at a series of "Rally Days" this fall.

The programs, sponsored by the SIU admissions office, are designed to acquaint prospective students and their parents with the University’s programs, and policies, especially offerings for academically gifted students.

Jerrie Johnson, assistant admissions director, said that 250 students and 300 parents are expected to attend the first Rally Day, Oct. 1 at SIU. Chancellor Robert MacVicar will speak to them at a morning general meeting in Grinnell Hall, social center for the Brush Towers residence complex.

All group advisement sessions will be held in Room D30 of the Technology Building.

Individual appointments can be made in Room D125 according to the following schedule: Sept. 30, student workers; Oct. 2, juniors and seniors; Oct. 4, sophomores.

Technology students and their parents with their prospective program are urged to attend the group advisement set for October 1-2.

Winter quarter advisement appointments for journalism students will be distributed Oct. 1 and 2. Group advisement begins Oct. 3 and 30-minute appointments from 1:30 to 6:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday, will be available.

Students are asked to pick up printed class schedules at Central Publications, 113 E. Grant, and work out a tentative schedule before their appointment.

The show, "Misterogers’ Neighborhood," named for its creator, Fred Rogers of educational station WQED-TV in Pittsburgh, Pa., has one of the most loyal audiences in the area, according to David B. Rochelle, coordinator of the SIU Broadcasting Service.

Rochelle says that letters received from young viewers—and approving parents as well — indicate that Misterogers (or more properly Mr. Rogers) is a very popular character in these parts.

Apparently this is true all across the country, Rochelle says, pointing to the Sept. 21-27 issue of the magazine TV Guide. It features an article about the show titled "The Pied Piper of the TV Set" which recounts how the program began and how it grew to its present national stature.

The show is seen on a network of 87 National Educational Television stations.

Football derby begins

By Paul Cottene
Copley News Service

The All-American college football derby is under way again, featuring four predictable super stars who can start planning now for the award dinners at season's end.

Some of these awards will vanish if the young men in question suffer serious injury, or if their teams have particularly bad years.

Three backfield positions seem assured on almost every All-American team. The players are:

1. Halfback O.J. Simpson, Southern California's powerful runner who scored four touchdowns and ran for 236 yards against Minnesota in a 29-20 come-back win. He fumbled once to set up a Gopher score, but his clutch performance showed he lost nothing of the drive and speed which led USC to a national title a season ago.

2. Halfback Leroy Keyes of Purdue. In his team's opener, the 44-0 win over Virginia, Keyes did not have to make an heroic effort compar- able to that of Simpson, but he ran for 62 yards in 11 attempts, gained 51 by pass-

Soccer club wins opener 5-2

SIU's International Soccer Club continued its winning ways with a crushing 5-2 victory over Indiana State Saturday on Southern's turf. The match was both the home and season opener for SIU. The win was the 15th in 20 matches for the club in three years of competition. Southern has tied three teams and lost only to Murray State and Eastern Illinois University by scores of 3-1 and 3-2 receptively.

In Saturday's match Southern combined a stalwart defense with a potent offense to down the Sycamores for the sixth time in as many meeting between the two teams. Frank Lumaden, the team captain, kicked off the scoring for the hosts with a field goal in the first period. After the Sycamores tied the match at 1-1, Bruce Herling put one through for SIU and from then on the club was never headed.

Other goals for Southern were by Neil Zimmerman, who scored twice, and forward Ali Mozaffarian.

Atlanta Falcons search for winning combo
(AP) - The Atlanta Falcons apparently plan to decide this weekend whether to keep coach Bobby Ross, or fire him.
Nerf Herder or give him the rest of the season to snap his football team out of a slump.

Top officials of the National Football League team have agreed, it was learned Monday, that an announcement on Hecker’s status should be made by the team next few days. The Falcons reportedly have been considering a change of coaching staff sometime because of widespread criticism of the Falcons’ performance. Lahooty, which now has stretched to 10 games.

Executive of another NFL club has said that he believes ‘Boner Van Brocklin’ already is on the Falcons’ payroll, and the Atlanta Journal said Monday if has been told that the former Minnesota Viking coach may be given Hecker’s job.

The decision is up to Rankin, the Atlanta Falcons’ company executive who owns the Falcons.

Anytime you are losing, you hear a lot of rumors,” Smith said to the Journal.

Hecker, former Green Bay assistant who has been under fire since the Falcons fans, said “I haven’t been told anything.”

Hecker was given a four-year contract when he was hired to coach the newly organized Falcons in 1966.

SIU, Indiana runners tie

Experts who claim that the University of Indiana has a shot at the NCAA cross country title may have to rework their predictions as SIU tied the Hoosiers 44-44 at the Owensboro, Ky., invitational Saturday.

Indiana, last year’s Big Ten’s best in cross country, who placed fifth in last year’s NCAA competition, had all eight letter winners returning.

SIU’s Gerry Hinton remained undefeated as he ran over all contenders with a 20:10 time on the four mile course.

“He performance Saturday was better than his victory at home last week,” Coach Lew Hartzog said, “because the course was more hilly and more difficult that our course.”

With 44 points SIU and Indiana placed ahead of Murray State who finished with a 61, Western Kentucky 65, Bellarmine 142, and Kentucky Wesleyan 174.

SIU’s runners copped 1-61 10-12-15 places while Indiana managed 3-4-7-14-16 for the tie.

“All of the team did an excellent job,” Hartzog said. “We came in with the feeling that Indiana would take the title, but we came on close with the tie that the boys came away a little disappointed that they hadn’t won it.”

Burch Hohman was sixth only 30 seconds behind winner Hinton with a 20:36 performance. SIU’s Hohman matched with 21:03 time. Glenn Julian twelfth and Bill Bakenazos finished fifteenth.

“Julian had a cold and could have well finished in the end of the bunch,” Hartzog added, “but he gave it all he could and bear an Indiana man and gave us the point.”

Hohman, a runner who in high school wasn’t good enough to be sent to the district meet in Evansville, Monday, said.

The top 10, with first-place votes and total points awarded for first 15 picks on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-8-6-4-2-0, were:

1. Purdue, 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-0
2. Southern Calif, 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-0
3. Penn State, 12-10-9-8-6-4-2-0
4. Florida, 10-9-8-7-6-4-2-0
5. Notre Dame, 10-9-8-7-6-4-2-0
6. Ohio State, 12-10-9-8-6-4-2-0
7. Nebraska, 1-0-9-8-7-6-4-2-0
8. Kansas, 2-0-9-8-7-6-4-2-0
9. UCLA, 3-2-9-8-7-6-4-2-0
10. Louisiana State, 2-0-2-1-3
