Stevenson announces he wants to be governor

By WILLIAM C. STRONG
Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, who decided to the Canadian wilds this summer to fish and to ponder his future, has emerged from the wilderness sounding like a candidate who wants to be governor of Illinois.

The first step will be winning endorsement of slate-makers next month, while he's in the state, Stevenson said Wednesday. Stevenson, who retired from the Senate last January after six years on Capitol Hill, began a telephone news conference in familiar, low-key style.

"I don't have a formal statement to make yet, but I'm going to be seeing a good deal of each other for the next five years. I thought perhaps I should come on this afternoon and get re-acquainted with the reporters and then entertain questions, many of which dealt with his nearly low-key

Reagan to scatter MX missiles, build B-1 bombers, sources say

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has decided to build a new strategic weapon system among 1,000 shelters in the West and to build the two B-1 supersonic, advanced, radar-illustrating Stealth aircraft is being developed, sources said Wednesday.

An administration source, asking anonymity, said he understands Reagan has not settled on which states will house the new generation of nuclear missiles. The first step would be shutting them off, shell-game fashion, on desert land in Nevada and possibly Utah, or basing some in existing Mississippi or Minnesota silos in other states.

The president is to announce these mis-silary decisions on Friday as he devotes time to the nation's strategic forces, which he contends have fallen dangerously behind those of the Soviet Union.

Texas and New Mexico — to be completed until next month at a cost of $500 million.

"We had not planned on the scrambles with the Western environmental studies and land acquisition," Trrill said. "You run into a problem with land withdrawal," Trrill added.

Reagan is expected to go ahead with plans to manufacture the B-1 bomber, which is a joint effort between the Air Force and the Air defenses of the U.S. continental U.S. would be strengthened.

Main Street rail crossing to be fixed

By Bob Bernard
Staff Writer

The rough railroad crossing where the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad tracks slice across Main Street in Carbondale will be eliminated and replaced.

The crossing has been rebuilt by the railroad, the Illinois Department of Transportation announced Wednesday. Construction on the 88 by 5-foot crossing, which is closed Monday and take about two weeks.

The crossing will be given new railroad ties, a wooden bridge, and a new structure at the railroad crossing.

The IG is expected to do some preparatory work on the crossing before it is closed on Monday.

"One lane will be closed at least for two weeks, if not more," Meyer said.
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker Jr. told President Reagan on Wednesday he does not have the votes to clear the $8.5 billion arms sale to Saudi Arabia, and Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. hurried home from the United Nations to try to save the deal.

Baker told reporters he thinks the president still can win the congressional test, but opponents now have the upper hand.

"It is in trouble but it's not beyond salvaging," Baker said before leaving.

"I think Ronald Reagan's going to get the AWAC through," Baker said but for now, he told reporters "we don't have the votes."

A 30-day clock for congressional veto of the sale was to start running later in the day with the administration's formal submission of the sale to Congress.

If the House and Senate have not rejected the $8.5 billion sale by Oct. 30, the deal goes through.

It includes five Airborne Warning and Control System radar planes plus Sidewinder missiles and Infrared guided missiles for 62 Saudi F-15 jet fighters.

The administration says the sale is vital for defending the Saudi oil supply but opponents call it a threat to Israel and a compromise of supersecret equipment.

Haig canceled meetings with U.S. foreign ministers at the United Nations and hurried back to Washington to take charge and try to save the sale.

Earlier, Haig sent Ambassador Richard Murphy to Saudi Arabia with a new compromise proposal for joint U.S.-Saudi manning of the planes in an effort to mollify Congress.

Haig is to give the Senate Foreign Relations Committee a closed briefing Thursday morning, presumably on progress toward that compromise.

Crash kills four top Iranian officers

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Four of Iran's top military men and an unspecified number of wounded soldiers died in a transport plane crash, Tehran Radio announced Wednesday. Authorities also said a pilot was uncovered to kill the nation's chief justice and police chief.

The crash Tuesday night of a U.S.-made C-130 transport killed Defense Minister Musa Namjoo and three other officers, including the country's top military men.
Shufflebarger adds his name to list of sheriff candidates

By Liz Grimes
Staff Writer

Jackson County Board Member William Shufflebarger has announced his intention to seek the Republican nomination for county sheriff.

Shufflebarger, a board member since 1980, will join Bill Kipliak, investigator for the states' attorney, in seeking the sheriff's position. Two other candidates, sheriff rather than state's attorney, seek the sheriff's position earlier.

Sheriff Ward, 22, for the beating death of his girlfriend's 4-year-old son, Montez Moore, in Carbondale, Illinois. The boy's mother, Harriet Hanks, a Democrat, according to the laws of fingerprinting, criminal investigation and the laws of arrest.

He said he's worked on the case for 14 years of police experience and has taken classes in fingerprinting.

In requesting the severe sentence, Assistant State's Attorney William Hanks said the murder was "heinous, senseless and unforgivable." The child, Montez Moore, died Feb. 19 after being severely beaten with a mop handle, according to testimony at two trials.

He said his age would not prevent him from doing a good job, adding that he is very active.

Board member resigns position

Jackson County Board Member Sharon Kowalzik recently submitted her resignation to the board's legislative committee. Kowalzik has been a member of the board since 1971. She cited personal reasons for leaving the board at Tuesday's meeting.

BELLEVILLE (AP) — A judge has sentenced an East St. Louis man to 20 years in prison for the beating death of his girlfriend's 4-year-old son.

St. Clair County Judge John J. Roben sentenced James Ward, 22, Tuesday to the same term that he handed down earlier to the boy's mother, Harriet Young, 25, of East St. Louis.

A certain level of stability?

"The nature of the community requires a certain level of stability and commitment on the part of its members," said Mrs. Letelier, "that's what's been missing in recent years." The Leteliers' departure from the university community has brought about a sense of loss and uncertainty among its members. The Leteliers' legacy will continue to inspire and influence the community for years to come.

Death to World War III!

An appeal to Iranian students:

"We must stand up to the racist, imperialistic policies of the U.S. and demand an end to the war," said Mrs. Letelier. The Leteliers have dedicated their lives to the struggle against imperialism and war, and their message resonates with many around the world.

Tourists to the nation's capital have a new monument to visit, one of the most significant in the city. At the Embassy Row section of Massachusetts Avenue, a beautifully crafted granite and bronze memorial to Orlando Letelier and Ronni Moffitt now graces the scene. Five years ago both were slain at the circle while driving to work at the Institute for Policy Studies. A bomb had been planted in Letelier's car on orders, it was to be charged later, from the secret police of Chile. Letelier had been a senior diplomat in the democratic government ofAllende, a fact that may tend to be overlooked in the current discussion among political scientists on the division of A to 1-A.

The Daily Egyptian's editorial board was split on the decision to move the NCAA Division I-AA football team to the A to 1-AA conference. While some members believed that the move would be beneficial, others argued that it would be a step back in the university's athletic programs.

Football scholarships have already been cut.

The men's basketball department announced last spring that the men's basketball team would not be allowed to compete in the NCAA playoffs, making the university the first in Illinois to withdraw from the NCAA. This decision was met with mixed reactions from students and alumni, with some expressing concern for the university's future in athletics and others arguing that cuts were necessary for the university's budget.

City to use past project savings to fund construction, services

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

Unsure of future availability of federal funds for construction projects, Carbondale city officials have developed a plan to maximize use of existing CDBG funds. Officials hope to同心堵s grants and encourage the continuation of federally-financed city social services.

The City Council at Monday night's regular meeting approved an administrative plan allowing $224,339 in savings from past CDBG projects to be put toward proposed projects that have not yet received federal funds.

Community Development Director Dan Monty said the city has accumulated $186,416 in savings from past CDBG projects, and estimated that the money be reallocated for a reconstruction project on East Chestnut Street. He also proposed directing $37,981 in social service project savings toward child care and health care programs.

Monty said the savings were a result of low bids on proposed CDBG construction projects and unanticipated revenues for some city social services.

He said a reallocation plan is needed due to indications that state may not be required to honor federal financial commitments made to multi-year CDBG projects.

Mayor Hans Fischer said the plan is "an outstanding piece of administrative work.

"This enables the city to maximize its available resources and accomplish the projects it needs to get done," Fischer said.

Most said the administration will not be able to give a definite breakdown of proposed expenditures until bids are secured on the East Chestnut Street project and congressional action is taken on federal social service appropriation.

New turnstiles at Rec Center eliminate jobs but save money

By Marla Stark
Stark of Stark

A new computerized entrance system is saving the Student Recreation Center about $60,000 a year, according to J. Mike Dunn, center coordinator.

The system eliminates the need for student workers to check IDs at the door. It scans into a reader which emits a "beep" signal and unlocks a turnstile, admitting people into the center. According to Dunn, the system cost about $60,000 but with a savings from eliminated student jobs it will pay for itself in two to three years, Dunn said.

"But one-third of the center's student workers graduate each May and one-third go home for the summer. Fortunately, no one had to be terminated from their position when the new system was installed. Besides, there are student work jobs that go vacant all year," Dunn added.

The $43,000 yearly savings also helped to prevent a fire bike, Dunn said. Besides the monetary savings, the computer system has research capabilities, Dunn explained. The system produces a daily usage report on the number of people—and whether they're student or faculty, for example—for using the centers.

This information enables the center to tailor new programs, he said. "By the middle of next summer," Dunn said, "we will review the usage reports and take our suggestions for new programs to the advisory board.

For instance, a community sports pass might be helpful in increasing the number of people using the center during low-use hours.

The new system also helps in keeping unauthorized people out of the center, according to Dunn. "There had been a problem in the past with violators jumping into racquetball and basketball courts from the observation area.

It is believed that the new system provides an ID to exit the building, the problem with trespassers has decreased, Dunn said.

Thefts have also decreased since the new system was installed, Dunn said.

"There were between three and 12 thefts per week when the system before the system was installed. Now there is only about one theft a week. People are more scared of getting caught in the turnstiles on the way out," Dunn said.

The new system has a potential for other major functions, Dunn added. In the future the computer might be used to maintain a daily building supply inventory, for example. "Other recreation centers in the country are even using computers to monitor building utility use," Dunn said.

Siskel of ‘Sneak Previews’ to lecture on what he sees

SPC Expressive Arts will present Gene Siskel in a discussion titled “What I See That You May Not” in Ballroom D of the Student Center at 7 p.m. Monday. Admission is $2.

The film critic will discuss writing and acting as major motion pictures and will show film clips.

He is the co-host of public television’s weekly “Sneak Previews,” which he and co-host Roger Ebert debate the merits of current movies. The program airs on WSIU-TV, Champaign-Urbana’s public television station.

Siskel, the Chicago Tribune’s film columnist since 1983, also discusses newly-released movies three nights weekly over Chicago-area radio WGN.

Patrons can save their ticket stubs on the lecture to receive a 20-cent discount on any SPC film during the fall semester.

Performers’ debut in Ramada contest

By Joe Walter
Entertainment Editor

"Remember," the master ceremonies at the Oasis and Disco said before the talent show began, "there are no losers here.

There certainly weren't. Amid the flashing lights, all five acts which participated in the Ramada Inn talent show Tuesday night won the first prize, getting paid to provide a night of entertainment next Friday.

The male acts were led in Tins Greer, a senior in theate' education, led the show with a singing and dancing solo. She looked unsure waiting for an accompanying piano, before she sang "I'm gonna live forever," the theme from the movie "Fame." After the hesitant start, she did sing well.

Greer, said she had been singing and dancing since she was 3 years old. She prefers dancing to singing, she said.

The second act was a trio called Ain't Dead Yet, a rather jazz pop group which included Scott Topp, a senior in business communication, on trumpet and vocals; Steve Nierman, a junior in audio marketing, on bass; and Joe Dawkins, a junior in creative writing, on acoustic guitar.

Ain't Dead Yet performed three numbers: Billy Holiday's "All of Me," Van Morrison's "Moondance" and a country tune, "Mama don't want no guitar playin' here." They generated much enthusiasm and applause from the assembled crowd.

Topp showed that he knew how to blow a man and step with the music played by Dawkins and Nierman. The melody was remarkably rhythmic in spite of the fact that the group lacked a drum, and the crowd even clapped to the beat in a few instances.

The group's unusual name came about, according to Topp, because once when he was outdoors with a couple of friends he was bitten by a copperhead snake. "I kept on screaming," he said, "so they were bringing me to the car, Harry up to the hospital! I ain't dead yet!!"
DEBUT

The act that followed Ain't Dead Chet was Michael Shreves and Winona Cavett, a disco dance act. They received some applause for their performance. Shreves, a theater major, and Cavett, a cosmology major, are both freshmen. Shreves said he never knew he could sing and dance, while Cavett said she likes to work with hair and make-up because she feels she can be good at it.

The next act was a stand-up comic, Dave Kazanjian, a junior in business whose act did not catch on with the crowd until he started dancing. Kazanjian, who was a high school All-American cross-country runner in his native Massachusetts, said he had always wanted to act but the track team took up most of his time. Now track does not get in the way, he said, because he pulled a hamstring muscle earlier this fall and cannot participate on the Saluki track team.

After Kazanjian came folk singer Linda Falk, a Carbondale resident who manages the Harmony Hill Farm riding stable. Falk said the stable cooperates with SIU's riding program. Though she sang her repertoire beautifully, especially the Fleetwood Mac tune, "Landslide," the crowd's response was rather lukewarm. In the judging that followed Falk's performance, the master of ceremonies again repeated that there were no losers and announced no prize for each act. The emcee then left the makeshift stage, in actuality the Oasis dance floor, and returned to tell the crowd that though Ain't Dead Chet won the audience response test, all the acts had won first place.

Students help build new youth shelter

By Vicki Olgeaty
Staff Writer

SIU-C students are volunteering their time to build a shelter for handicapped children who attend Tri-County School in Murphysboro.

Members of the Construction Club began construction two weeks ago and expect to complete the 40-foot by 20-foot shelter next week, according to David Dennis, club president and second-year student in construction technology.

The plan originated last spring when James Naas, the club’s faculty adviser, heard that the handicapped students had no place on the school’s playground to sit shielded from the sun and that the school couldn’t afford to build a shelter.

The year-old club adopted the undertaking as its service project. “We decided the club would do something for the community rather than just exist to drink beer,” Naas said.

Dennis said the project boosts the image of SIU-C and of the Construction Club, and it provides excellent hands-on experience for club members.

The students salvaged lumber from buildings that were destroyed at the School of Technical Career’s Carterville campus. The Associated Lumber Company, the Raymond Stellar Lumber Company and Lumber City, all of Carbondale, and the Wright Building Center, Murphysboro, contributed additional lumber, hardware and nails, Naas said.

When members of the Carpenter’s Union Local 841 heard of the project, they volunteered their professional assistance. “We worked side by side with master craftsmen,” Dennis said. “They showed us how to do it and we did it.”

The experience of working with union members greatly benefited the students, Naas said. “They found out that union members are just like the rest of us.”

The students have worked evenings, afternoons and all day on Saturdays, according to Laura Stevenson, second-year student in construction technology.

Naas said he is the foreman of the job, directing the students so they can get as much hands-on experience as possible.

The students are now completing the roof, and the Tri-County School will paint the shelter when it is finished, Naas said.

Senator to call for changes at center

CHICAGO (AP) — State Sen. Adeline Geo-Karia said she will push for more funds, including greater centralized authority at the Waukegan Developmental Center, which a 27-year-old man was beaten to death at.

The Republican lawmaker from Zion also said Tuesday better rapport between administrators and staff members is needed at the home.

The facility was the site of the July 1 death of John Kolpak.

A Lake County grand jury later determined that Kolpak's death had been "caused by homicidal means" but found insufficient evidence to charge any individuals.

The Lake County Coroner said Kolpak had suffered 23 fractured ribs, a lacerated liver and left kidney, and other internal injuries.

After the second of two fact-finding hearings into the incident, Mrs. Geo-Karia said she reached five conclusions, which she will forward to the Illinois Department of Mental Health. Besides the lack of centralized authority, Mrs. Geo-Karia said there is no attempt made to segregate violent patients from non-violent patients, morale among staff members is low, staff members are hired without input from state mental health authorities and more volunteer help is needed from schools and families of patients at the center.

Solidarity condemns ‘fear campaign’

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — The independent trade union Solidarity accused Poland’s Communist authorities Wednesday of waging a “fear campaign” and “psychological warfare” against the union.

“We are warned we may lose our national independence,” the resolution said. “We are told there are no possibilities of winning because we are not strong, and in the last analysis because we have the right to strike.”

The resolution was passed after Solidarity’s national congress opened a debate on a program it said could save Poland from catastrophe without taking it out of the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact. But the Grand National of the program was the call for a counter-revolution.

The program blamed centralized authority for bringing the country to ruin and said the independent union was aware that Poland faced the possibility of bloodshed if the country tries to abandon the Warsaw Pact.

At least three days are expected to be spent discussing the program, which calls for more union control over state enterprises and increased press freedom, among other things.

Our national independence is a political and cultural revolution in the sphere of living conditions and thinking, not a document of a trade union, but a manifesto of a political party that claims leadership of society and of the country.

It said while the program blamed Poland’s Communist authorities for ruin, “it is common knowledge that the present situation of anxiety and dislocation is entirely on the conscience of the extremist leaders of Solidarity and other counter-revolutionary forces.”

Farmers to lose more money due to high dairy production

Editor's note: For a second consecutive year, dairy farmers will produce a record amount of milk, in part because the federal government is buying up their surplus at a record price. In a four-part series, AP Writer John Strackea examines conditions on the farm.

By John Strackea
Associated Press Writer

DUANESEBG, N.Y. (AP) — Richard Hoffman can look out the picture window of his spotless 4-year-old brick ranch house and see the prosperity that has done so much to the American dairy farmer.

The silos, the sophisticated milking equipment on his 71-cow family farm in rural upstate New York, all are less than 10 years old. And his herd of 100 Holsteins—about half of them milking—is producing a lot more milk than a decade ago.

The improvements have come largely on borrowed money, Hoffman says. Like thousands of U.S. dairy farmers, he’s been boosting his output at a time of record milk receipts nationwide.

But there won’t be any more major gains for a while. The money that once cost 5 percent to borrow is now approaching 30 percent.

And President Reagan and Congress are cutting dairy price supports that guarantee dairy farmers a reasonable income, because U.S. warehouses are filled with a mountain of milk—butter, cheese and dry milk, and cuts will trim about $1 billion from the federal budget.

If we weren’t a totally family-run operation we couldn’t make it,” said Hoffman, a second-generation farmer who tends his dairy herd with his wife Maggie and their two daughters, ages 12 and 15.

Hoffman says he can already feel the government’s first effort to reduce price supports—a skipped parity adjustment in April, which the National Milk Producers Federation estimates will cost the nation’s 335,770 dairy farms $900 million this year.

But bigger cuts are ahead. The Senate has voted to set milk supports at 75 percent of parity on Oct. 1, and let inflation eat away at them until the federal cost of the program drops below $740 million a year. The House is expected to go along.

Parity is the price farmers have to get to keep the buying power they had in the years just prior to World War I. Since 1977, the parity level had been 80 percent, with adjustments made twice a year.

But since the last adjustment in October 1981, the level has fallen to about 70 percent—$1.45 per hundred pounds of milk.

At the higher level, farmers over the last four years were encouraged to produce more milk. Low feed prices enabled them to boost per-cow output, while low milk prices discouraged them from culling low-producing cows from the herd.

Nationwide, the results were dramatic. With less than 1 percent more cows, dairy farmers last year produced a record 136.4 billion pounds of milk—the equivalent of 26.8 billion half-pint containers. Output was up 4 percent over the year before.

New York ranked third among dairy states, behind Wisconsin and California, with 11 billion pounds from 1.6 million cows. There are 9.6 million milk cows in the United States, a gallon of milk being produced at the rate of 4.76 billion a day.

Dairy farm income soared, with milk receipts up 14 percent to $16.36 billion, in 1980; another in 1981, to $18.26 billion, in 1980; and a projected 5 percent in 1982, to between $17.5 billion and $18 billion, this year.

Comparatively, cash receipts for all marketing of farm products last year was about $7.4 billion, up 3.4 percent over the year before. Allowing price supports to fall in relation to costs will cut production next year an estimated 1 billion pounds and 1.5 billion more the following year, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

But John Mengel, an economist with the National Milk Producers Federation, says the second-year impact may be much harder—about 2.5 billion pounds.

The improvements have come largely on borrowed money, Hoffman says. Like thousands of U.S. dairy farmers, he’s been boosting his output at a time of record milk receipts nationwide.

Florida grows sue for $500 million

MIAMI (AP) — Forty south Dade County growers have filed a $500 million class action lawsuit here, charging that their crops were ruined because state and local water agencies failed to drain water off the farms.

The growers claim that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the state of Florida, the South Florida Water Management District and Dade County kept drainage canals closed and were "grossly negligent." More than 30 inches of rain flooded portions of the south Dade area when tropical storm Dennis passed over South Florida in mid-August.
Union chief blasts Byrne's CTA firings

CHICAGO (AP) — While Mayor Jane Byrne rode a city bus Wednesday to check on safety, a union chief blasted her quick-triggered firing of the city's transit security force, calling the action the "Rosh Hashana ambush."

Mrs. Byrne dismissed 107 Chicago Transit Authority guards Tuesday and replaced them with police officers. She accused the CTA unit of theft, selling transfers, and of security and drug abuse.

"The mayor's action was "a blatantly illegal act," said Sgt. Frederick Barrett of the security force at a hearing of the firings on Wednesday. "Our function is mainly protective. We were powerless to do anything about what she's claiming we should have been doing. It's kind of crazy. But what can I say? She's the lady in power."

The financially strapped CTA said the security force payroll is $4.7 million and its total budget for the fiscal year is $8.8 million.

More than 60 guards belong to the CTA's largest union, which went to court Wednesday to try to save their jobs. John Weatherpoon, president of Local 241 of the Amalgamated Transit Union, said in a news release that the firing was "a blatantly illegal act." He said it was done while officials were away and union lawyers were in synagogue. He called the mayor's action the "Rosh Hashana ambush" and decried her "starchamber tactics."

"She (the mayor) lied to me several months ago when she promised there would be no job losses except by attrition at the CTA," Weatherpoon said. "In reality the mayor is running wild and out of control. She is now revealed as an inhumane and insensitive individual unfit to be chief executive of Chicago. What does she care about the lives of 66 families—she has her $2 million in the bank," he said, referring to money Mrs. Byrne received from a political fundraiser last week.

Mrs. Byrne, flanked by bodyguards and police officers, rode a bus from her high-rise North Side apartment down Michigan Avenue, an especially trendy route. After chatting with passengers, she said the most frequent complaint was that "there are too many buses that are not staggered."

The riders also complained that there were "too many pickpockets...especially on Fridays," she added.

Contract negotiations stalled, mechanics face 8th strike week

By Steve Moore
Staff Writer

Negotiations in the nearly eight-week-old strike of auto mechanics are at a standstill, and according to some members of Machinists Union Local 1382, a quick settlement is not likely.

Artell Yost, a mechanic at Koenig Chevrolet, said that management’s most recent offer came two weeks ago but was unacceptable to the union. Regionally, there are over 50 union members on strike.

The union is asking for a dollar an hour raise for each of the next three years. This would raise salaries from $7.39 an hour to $10.39 an hour. Yost said the union’s pay-raise request was not unreasonable because mechanics have to pay for their own tools and uniforms, which cost as much as $1,000. In addition, mechanics have no medical insurance benefits, he said.

Management offered a four-year contract which would raise salaries 75 cents the first year, 75 cents in the second, and 60 cents in both the third and fourth years. Yost said that not only were the amounts too low, but union members did not want to be bound by a four-year contract.

According to Yost and Koenig bodyman Mike Dixon, the next move in negotiations is up to management. They believe the union has compromised enough at this stage in the negotiations because it dropped its request for a seniority clause in the new contract. The seniority clause would have limited the power of employers to fire a mechanic regardless of seniority.

Neither Yost nor Dixon anticipated a quick end to the strike. “I’m not very optimistic at all,” Dixon said.

Management officials were unavailable for comment when contacted at Koenig Chevrolet, Smith Dodge Inc. and Jim Pearl Inc.

Medical board chastises Gatorade inventor

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The state Board of Medical Examiners has disciplined the physician who invented Gatorade for writing two prescriptions to himself, violating a state law.

An audit of the Shands Hospital pharmacy records showed J. Robert Cade, a hospital physician and professor of medicine at the University of Florida, had written two prescriptions of controlled drugs. One prescription was for himself, while the other was for his daughter's dog, he said.

The Independent Professional, a monthly trade newspaper for regulated professionals, reported on its October issue that the prescriptions were for 20 Demerol and 20 codeine tablets.

After a hearing last month, the board decided to have Cade conduct two educational seminars to alert his colleagues and medical students to the law he said he unknowingly violated. Cade said the seminars have already been held.

How to manage time discussed at meeting

By Linda Stockman
Student Writer

Are you constantly trying to squeeze in that extra hour of studying? Do you always complain that you just don't have the time to do what you have to or want to do? Then you should have been at Thursday's Black and Gold Panel Discussion, "Time Management." The meeting was held in the Center for Basic Skills.

The key to time scheduling is organization, said Lin Leitzen, and regularity is a great tool.

Leitzen, developmental skills training specialist, made these comments as she covered the many aspects of making a time schedule and the influences on the flexibility of a schedule.

The first requirement is to block out all committed time such as classes, job, eating, sleeping, personal care, athletics, organization meetings and study hours. For each block of the class you have the general rule is to study for two hours. But for some classes you won't need that much time or study time will vary from week to the next. Or, you may need more time.

"You can adjust your study hour based on what your instructors tell you about the course, what you've heard about the class or teacher through the grapevine or the most important factor, how long you can study and your capabilities," Leitzen advised.

Leitzen said that in scheduling study hours, a student should use blocks of 10 minutes of study with a 10- minute break, then come back to another study block with a different subject.

"The remaining time is your leisure time, which, according to Leitzen, each student will take regardless of any schedule.

"The schedule is only a guide that motivates you to do what you have to do," explained Leitzen, who has been with the center since it began.

Leitzen advised students to schedule study at the time of day when they function the best.

She also advised revising and expanding class notes without delay, to utilize the odd minutes sprinkled throughout the day, to keep a schedule of every minute to see how much time is wasted, and to memonize at night.

"Remember that you have a flexible schedule," she said. If you go to a party instead of studying, then you have to discipline yourself to make up that study time later.

"A student will have more leisure time if he has a schedule than if he doesn't have one," she said.

The Center for Basic Skills is beginning its 10th year at SIU- C. It offers labs and workshops to all students in reading, writing, math and speech. There are also books and pamphlets available at the office, in the basement of Woody Hall, Wing C.

Workshops on rapid reading will be offered in October and a three-part lecture on taking tests will be given in November. For more information call CMS at 536-6646.

Natural gas found by Standard Oil

CHICAGO (AP) - A natural gas discovery has been announced by Standard Oil Co. in the United Arab Emirate of Sharjah and is one of the largest ever made by Standard, a top company official said.

Leland C. Adams, president of Amoco Production Co., Standard's worldwide exploration and production subsidiary, said estimates of the find from the first three wells in the field indicate potential of several trillion cubic feet of natural gas and hundreds of millions of barrels of recoverable condensate reserves.

Auld said. "We'll have to play Illinois like we played Louisville and Missouri. I'd like to win at least three singles matches and take some pressure off the doubles teams. We're playing good doubles and I'm confident in their play, but I don't want any extra pressure put on them."

This match will be important to both teams because it could decide the standings for the state tournament. Auld said she feels confident because her team usually "gets psyched" to play the Illini. In the last two meetings the Salukis have walked away with 8 and 5 victories.

"I think we were playing well," Auld said. "We have to play with confidence because Illinois wants this win too. We have to give that little extra to win."

And Oldaki knows that the Salukis didn't quit after falling behind Tulsa 14-9 in the first quarter.

"Everybody was talking before the season about what a great team Tulsa had," Oldaki said. "Then SIU comes and beats them. We really respect SIU."

Women ruggers to host Missouri

The SIU-C women's a rugby club will play its first home match against Missouri-Columbia at 1 p.m. Saturday at the rugby pitch south of Abe Martin Field. SIU-C has a 1-1 record. The team lost 0 to 6 to a Chicago club and beat Iowa City 8-0 earlier this season.

Harriners to face EIU for 3rd time

by Steve Meteck
Staff Writer

After two consecutive large wins, the women’s cross country team will have a chance to see how well it can run in a dual meet.

The Salukis travel to Charleston, Illinois to challenge the Eastern Illinois Panthers at 11 a.m. Saturday.

The meet will be the third this season for the two teams. SIU-C finished two points ahead of EIU at the Illinois State Invitational Sept. 15. The Panthers took part in the Salukis’ 26-37, at the Track and Field Association’s Midwest Collegiate Championship held at Wisconsin-Parkside last Saturday.

Coach Claudia Blackman hopes to have the Panthers again be good for the Salukis.

“I think it will be a good challenge all down the line,” Blackman said. “The Panthers have good talent equal to our team. I’m glad we will be running in a small meet. This will give us a chance to get our game back together. With fewer runners, it will be easier for us to run together during the first mile.”

Blackman said half the team is sick with head colds, but added that she isn’t too worried about the cold’s effect on the team’s running.

“I’m glad they have colds now. It’s good to get them out of the way before the conference meet,” Blackman said.

The Missouri Valley Conference championship will be run at Wichita on Oct. 31.

A home meet for first place between senior Patty Flynn-Houseworth and Pauline Guas Sperry is predicted by Blackman.

“Patty lost to Sperry by two seconds at Illinois State, then came back to beat her by five seconds at Parkside. It will be interesting to see how well Sperry runs on her home course,” Blackman said.

Baltimore are bunched. The possibilities are intriguing because Detroit spends the final week playing three games at Milwaukee, Boston will be at Cleveland for the final three days and Baltimore will be home against the New York Yankees, the AL East winners of the first half of the season.

In the AL West, Kansas City carries a slim lead into the season’s final weekend over Oakland, the first-half winner. A best-of-five divisional series between those two could be Dempsey to speak at Saluki luncheon

Saluki football Head Coach Roy Dempsey will speak at the Saluki Athletic Club lunch at 11 a.m. Thursday at Memorial Stadium and the University Mall.

The only team member not making the trip will be senior Cindy Kukusa, who is suffering from stress fractures in both feet. She is on an exercise program, and according to Blackman, will not be competing for at least three weeks.

The Salukis will be running a “flat course” which may lead to several fast times, said Blackman.

First fall softball season to be success, says coach

By Jim Cagle Staff Writer

Even though the SIU-C softball team has only two games under its belt, Coach Kaye Brehm-Schaefer is sure the fall season will be a successful one.

The Salukis have a 1-1 record after splitting a double-header with Illinois State Saturday. The Salukis will play Missouri-St. Louis at 3 p.m. Thursday at the Islanders' new softball field across the Recreation Center.

Brehm-Schaefer said that the Riverwomen are a good team traditionally, but she has little knowledge of this year's team.

Brehm-Schaefer is unsure of who will be the starting pitcher for the Salukis, but she indicated that Gena Vail may again get the call.

According to Brehm-Schaefer, the Salukis will revolve around the veteran pitcher-first baseman Vail. Vail checked a five-sitter in the opening game win, and went four-for-eight at the plate in the 20-inning loss.

Even if the rest of the season proves to be a failure, Brehm-Schaefer said, "I think that she gained from the first two games is enough to make the fall season worthwhile.'

"The fall season has been in the back of my mind for quite a while now," Brehm-Schaefer said. "It was a matter of necessity as much as anything else. All of the highly competitive teams in the Midwest have fall schedules, and we wanted to stay competitive with them, we needed the fall schedule too.

"Its advantages outweigh the disadvantages," she said. "We talked about the team after two games this fall that I did two or three weeks into the spring season last year.'

Most of the knowledge that Brehm-Schaefer gained from the double-header, with Waggoner driving home the game-winning single in the bottom of the eighth inning of the first game.

Waggoner, a transfer from Illinois Central College, was more noted for her work on the mound than the plate. "I was Clements, who batted .296 last season. Clements also made some damage plays with the bat and hand," said Brehm-Schaefer.

Donna Dapson, a junior pitcher, gave up only three runs in 19 and one-hit in her first three appearances. "I don't think we lost of a disputed sacrifice fly. Last season, Dapson had a 1-6 record and a 3.12 ERA.

Redbird coach aware of Salukis strengths

By Rod Farlew Staff Writer

The Illinois State Redbirds will play their first Missouri Valley Conference game at 1:30 Saturday at McAndrew Stadium at Wichita.

Besides being a newcomer to the conference, ISU has a new coach.

Bob Otoh joined the Redbird this season after serving since 1967 in Indiana's coaching staff. So far, he's guided ISU to a 2-1 record. The Redbirds beat Western Illinois 17-10, Eastern Michigan 28-2, and lost to Wichita State 40-0.

The Salukis are 1-3 following the 36-1 upset over co-favorite Tulsa last Saturday. SIU-C embarrassed ISU 46-2. Otoh knew ISU could have won for more of the same Saturday.

"Hey Dempsey must've done a tremendous job in motivating his team against Tulsa," Otoh said. "We know they'll be ready for us.'

One of the players ISU will have to look out for is tailback Walter Poole. Poole rushed for 362 yards on 41 carries against the Golden Hurricane Saturday.

Otoh expects the same thing from Poole this week.

"That Poole is something," Otoh said. "If figure we'll call the Army and get a ticket. Maybe that'll slow him down a little."

While Poole gave the Salukis a dependable offensive weapon last week, the Redbirds failed to find one.

"We couldn't get any consistent running game," Otoh said. "We figured we'd have to convert third and fourth down situations, and we didn't do it.'

The Redbird offense was never in control. Defensive end Jeff Maddux and raider 28 yards for a touch- down to give ISU its only score against Northern.

Six of the nine ISU touchdowns this season have come from the running attack. But the Redbirds are averaging only 1.3 yards per carry. Senior tackle Bill Flaherty, the Redbird's top rushing leader with a 3.9 average and two touchdowns. "He's our bread and butter(."

"We call on him often. That's the best way to go."

Outside of Butler the ISU backfield has not been productive. Runningbacks Mike and Bob Blankenship each have combined for 111 yards in the last two games.

Much of ISU offensive yardage has come from the passing of freshman quarterback John Wagoner. The quarterback has completed 17 of 34 for 343 yards and three touchdowns.

Top receivers for the Redbirds are two wide receivers—senior Clarence Collins and senior Will Boyd. Collins has 11 catches for 147 yards and has six for 137.

The ISUs offensive strategies aren't impressive, but the Redbirds have managed to score by doing what the Salukis did against Tulsa—forcing defenses into turnovers and turning them into scores. Through the first three games, ISU has recovered six fumbles and snatched six interceptions.

After the Northern Illinois game, Otoh attributed his

Pennant races heat up as season winds

By The Associated Press

The strike-torn major league baseball season, first interrupted and then lengthened by a bitter strike, heads into its final weekend with tight pennant races in all four divisions.

The second-half hitters most likely won't be decided until Sunday. But, when the regular season ends, all four races are on conclusion, then baseball's playoffs will play next Tuesday through Wednesday with playoff games played by the split season, an outgrowth of the seven-week strike.

Survivors of these playoffs will advance to the League Championship Series, scheduled to start Oct. 15. The LCS winners then advance to the World Series. With no rainout, a seven-game World Series would end Oct. 28, the latest any baseball season ever has run. The previous longest season was 111, when the Series, which begins Oct. 14 between the Philadelphia A's and the New York Giants, ended Oct. 28 after six days of rain.

The St. Louis Cardinals swept a two-game series over the Montreal Expos Monday, winning 9-2 Tuesday night before more than 60,000 fans, to overtake the Dodgers to the tight National League East race. Both St. Louis and Montreal, winners of the first three games, will finish the regular season on the road. After playing first-ball game playoff game on Thursday, the Cardinals finish the season with a series at Pittsburgh. Montreal, scheduled for Thursday's game, moves on to New York to finish the regular season against the Mets.

Houston and Cincinnati, top contenders in the NL West, began a two-game showdown series Wednesday night. They play again Thursday and Good Friday in Cincinnati. The Astros finish the season with three games at Los Angeles, winners of the first half, while the Reds finish with three games at Montreal. At present, the tightest race east in the American League East, where Detroit, Milwaukee, Boston and Pittsburgh are all still in the mix.

Frost to play key role in net match at U of I

By Keith Mascetti Staff Writer

Thursday's women's tennis match pitting the Salukis against the University of Illinois will be a battle of the freshmen.

The Illini, however, will feature at least one freshman player.

In the No. 1 singles position, Illinois will send freshman Kelly Rickard, 6-1, against Saluki senior Amanda Auld.

In the No. 2 spot, freshmen Heidi Nichols, 5-1, and Heidi East, 0-0, are scheduled to play against Saluki seniors Wagoner and Terri Hays.

The No. 4 position will pit freshmen Sue Arlidsen, 7-3, and Andrea Groves, 4-2, against each other.

The Illini will be trying to break a losing streak against Arildsen. The two have met before and Arildsen holds a 2-0 record.

The Salukis are on a nine-game winning streak, the longest in the team's history. This year in singles play SIU-C has a record of 41-10, the doubles record stands at 25-7, and the team's combined record is 64-14.

The Illini record stands at 7-4-1, and with the win over Judy Auld feels a win will have to be secured by at least 2.'

"It will be a close match,"
