University interested in prison plan, city not

By John Stewart

An Illinois Department of Corrections proposal to place prisoners in Carbondale has run into a stumbling block, University officials have said. "The university has to be interested in a plan to set up a minimum-security work camp at the university," said John Fullerton, vice president for Campus Services.

The design director of the DOC, toured Touch of Nature Friday, where the DOC proposed building a prisoner work-release camp, according to Robert Dougerty, vice president for Campus Services.

Fullerton saw Camp 1, an area which has 15 acres and a theme hall. Dougerty said Lane is interested in leasing the facilities and that the university is "listening." However, he said that the university has not yet considered, Vice President John Goyon, who is acting president in President Albert's absence.

Lane has said 70 jobs could be created should the DOC locate to the university. Corrections officials have discussed with the university the number of minimum-security facilities to relieve crowded conditions in the prison system.

It is possible that the work camp might be used to improve Touch of Nature facilities. Currently, the DOC said a program that would improve Touch of Nature on the long-term. Busch said many capital improvements are needed at the environmental center.

"Touch of Nature is located southeast of Carbondale on land owned by the University." The DOC is interested in the Illinois Baptist State Association about buying the Baptist Student Center.

According to Ernesto Delgado, an executive secretary, Lane has said in published reports that the DOC wishes to buy the facility, located on Campus I and off the northwestern corner of the campus, to hold 250 minimum-security prisoners. Directors at the IBSA are expected to consider a proposal to sell the building at an Oct. 13 meeting. Monsel said the proposal would be written this evening.

However, Carbondale Mayor Helen Westberg has sent a "strongly worded letter" to Lane expressing the view of the City Council and police chief that the BSC location was "entirely inappropriate." Scott Ratter, acting city manager, said Sunday.

Westberg's letter objected to so many prisoners being so close to the campus. Ratter said. The council is supportive of the House of Glass, located at See PRISON, Page 3

Cablevision owner bids to take over 9 area franchises

BY Patrick Williams

Telecommunications Inc., owner of Marion-Carbondale Cablevision, will increase its hold on Southern Illinois television schedules if its proposed purchase of Southern Illinois Cable TV Inc., wins approval of the nine communities in its service area.

TCl, the nation's largest cable TV company, announced last week it has signed a contract to purchase SI cable at an undisclosed price from Daniels and Associates in Denver, the nation's 29th largest cable franchise. TCI purchased Marion-Carbondale Cablevision two years ago.

SI currently offers 12-channel basic service plus two pay channels, Home Video and Showtime. The basic subscriber rate is $2.50 per month.

Carbondale-based subscribers get 13 channels for $2.50 per month and may pay extra to get HBO and the Disney Channel.

TCI plans to increase the number of channels offered to SI's subscribers to 25 if the communities in the SI system all agree to transfer their franchise contracts, according to Don McAllister, group manager at TCl.

McAllister said his company also plans to upgrade SI's technical capabilities.

In recent months, the Carbondale Cable Commission has been pushing TCI to live up to a franchise agreement with the city that requires it to offer 25-channel basic service.

TCI has been unwilling to increase its offerings in Carbondale unless it is allowed to increase its basic subscriber rate by $2.50 per month.

If SI's franchise holders need a reference - an unfavorable one - for TCI, City Council and cable commission members have said TCI should be made to come to Carbondale.

TCl has said they are being purchased by a company that currently offers less scheduling variety at higher prices in Carbondale.

Charles Shipley, cable commission chairman and radio and television professor at SIU-C, said the purchase will have no effect on the city's dealings with TCI. The dispute between Carbondale and TCI is currently under way, he said.

The nine towns in the SI system include Herrin, West Frankfort, Carbondale, Murphysboro, Carterville, Johnston City, Harrisburg, Energy anda SI. It serves 52 miles of cable serving 18,600 basic subscribers and 6,300 pay-TV customers.

Morris said TCI officers will be in the area within the next week to discuss the sale with local government officials.

The change of ownership "means basic channels and no free channels," said SI Cable's subscribers, said SI Cable manager Victor R. Ruso.

Bob Russo at Daniels and Associates said the purchase was a "trick bet for SI's Cable's subscribers, said SI Cable's manager Victor R. Ruso.

Mondale victories help quell doubts about his candidacy

News Analysis

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — His opponents set a tough standard and Walter F. Mondale topped it in a weekend which could help quell doubts about his durability of his presidential candidacy.

In the hours before the straw balloting at the Maine Democratic State Party’s presidential forum on Saturday, candidates such as Mondale’s rivals predicted he would receive 50 percent of the vote.

It seemed part of the usual political game played at such events — get a standard on the front-runner that isn’t likely to achieve.

The outlook was that with four potentially strong candidates on the straw ballot, no one would get half of the nearly 2,000 votes.

Three candidates worked hard to win the straw poll — Sen. John Glenn of Ohio — was ex­pected to do well against economic have been quoted as saying Glenn was the potential Democratic opponent they were most afraid of.

"Well I’m not afraid of San Francisco,” said the former astronaut.

But in Maine, the opponent was Mondale. The former vice president put an im­pressive show of political strength.

With a combination of a strong organization and his personal persuasiveness,

Mondale garnered 41 percent of the vote in the straw ballot.

Trailing well behind was Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee, with 29 percent and Sen. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina with 11 percent. Glenn, who did not actively campaign for straw ballot support, received only six percent.

Mondale spared neither expense nor personnel in his campaign for the non-binding votes in Maine.

But neither Cranston nor Holings could claim they were overwhelmed by the Mondale campaign spending. Cranston may have come close to match­ing what Mondale spent and Hollings made Maine his first serious straw poll market.

Through the summer the candidates and their staffs established and maintained contact with the party activists who were the deleg­ates to the Maine convention.

If they had doubts about the value of the straw vote, they could still justify their efforts by looking ahead to the caucuses next March at which Maine will start the process of selecting delegates to the 1984 Democratic National Conven­tion.

Revised aid to Nicaragua plan accepted by Senate committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has won at least a reprise in Congress for the CIA’s embattled $100 million aid to Nicaraguan counter­revolutionaries.

The Senate Intelligence Committee has accepted a slightly modified proposal to continue aid to Nicaraguan counter­revolutionaries.

Conference center, manager topics set for Council meeting

By Paula J. Vinay
Staff Writer

Steps toward the completion of the downtown conference center and consideration of appointment of a city manager are part of a full agenda scheduled for the City Council's Monday night meeting.

At its Sept. 29 special formal meeting, the council agreed that there was a possibility that another executive session would be required to continue discussion on the appointment of a new city manager, background information from the city clerk's office said. At that meeting Mayor Helen Westberg said the council has "prioritized" the six manager candidates under consideration.

The council will vote to go into executive session to consider the appointment of a manager and after it returns to open session will "take any formal action it deems appropriate.

The council also voted to retain Borgie and Pitt, a Chicago law firm, as bond counsel for the defeasance of parking garage bonds issued in 1981 for the downtown "conference center project."

The council approved a resolution Sept. 13 to invest revenue from $4.5 million in general obligation bonds for the city manager, appointment of a city manager and consideration of candidates under consideration.

Center garage bonds of a new city manager," discussion on Westberg said the council has meeting, the council would be required to continue interest from $4.5 million in revenue bonds for the Chamber of Commerce and to award the contract for the construction of Mundera water lines to the city water system.

6/15 W Freeman, which currently houses 44 prisoners, Ratter said, but has concerns that having 216 prisoners housed on the e-edge of campus could present problems.

Westberg was scheduled to meet with Lase to discuss the matter Saturday.

The DOC has indicated that half of those housed in the BSC would be confined to the building and the remainder would in 1981. The police chief would want to control over what type of offenders would be housed at the BSC building, Ratter said, but the DOC probably would be reluctant to give him that authority.

The city will not pursue the land purchase.

The council also will vote to approve the issuance of $100,000 in revenue bonds for the Chamber of Commerce and to award the contract for the construction of Mundera water lines to the city water system.

The proposal being talked about is to move the prisoners now at the House of Glass into the BSC and fill the facility with prisoners who have less than a year and a half left on their sentences. House of Glass director Howard Saver declined to comment on the proposal Sunday.

The BSC was one of the buildings considered by the University last spring as a library storage facility. reportedly the BSC lost $125,000 last year when the building was occupied at only half of its capacity. The center, which has been valued at $1.3 million, is not being used this semester.

Good-bye James; Could this be Watt's parting shot?

This Could Be James Watt's Last Gaffe. Watt's joke, "a woman, a black, two Jews and a cripple," on a coal legislation was well received in the halls of the House of Representatives. Of bad taste right alongside Earl Butz's "loose shoes" joke. Both were prime examples of mouthfuls detached from brains. In private, the jokes would have simply been racist. In public they are a menace to public confidence in the government and should not be tolerated by the Reagan administration. Watt has acted as if he were an unpardoned Environmental Policy. They may just consider Watt a "hit man" for the President's policies. They can even overlook his past gaffes.

Why Then Is Watt Under Such Heavy Fire Now? His track record at the Department of Interior was far from spotless. Remember when he assured us not to worry about natural resources because Jesus was coming soon. Watt had been told to look at American Indian reservations to see communism in action? Remember him playing for pizzles with a dozen dead eagles and taking credit for an anti-poaching program being tried to scuttle? The list goes on, but his present employment shouldn't.

James Watt should resign. Watt is not a political or philosophical issue, but a question of proper government. He has had his time in the sun and should now step aside when the Sun comes up. Watt has been criticized before but he has never been tried for such a violation of the public trust.

Interim Secretary James Watt may learn to identify volumes to the article written about Mr. Shim and Mr. Choi also he has met, Mr. Choi. This would, of course, raise the question of the government's feeling about the Korean culture, and it seems that the government and should do something about it.

Jeff, didn't miss your Monday column. Frankly, I don't think anyone really pays any attention to that. In fact, I think you do the DE more good by missing your deadlines. Your columns are very sharp, and, however, is your hypocritical... America isn't as bad as it seems

I would like to write in reply to the comments of a recent ART. Mr. Shim and Mr. Sho. I am curious as to what reference they place their attitudes on American society in general. I don't think it's very extensive. Look bad government reservations to see communism in action? The issue is which should be the first to go, Watt or his jokes? — Terry Levecke.

If the symbol for President Reagan's political party is an elephant and his campaign color is blue, Watt is doing with an as Secretary of the Interior? — Lisa Nichols.

James Watt doesn't need an official speech writer like most politicians—he needs an official apology writer. — Scott Dalzell.

America isn't as bad as it seems

Mr. Shim also says that he likes the Korean culture better because the girls are "modest and womanly." This would, of course, be the direct opposite of here, where one takes a large degree of freedom and doesn't come screaming on my door at three o'clock in the morning saying, "Like, any of you guys got a discount on that coupon?" The similarity is indiscernible.

Mr. Shim and Mr. Choi also comment on how nice people are to their neighbors. This is opposed to the "violence" that goes on here where blacks are murdered in their own homes over every little thing. And here I am not talking about any kind of race relations; I just want to say that the girls are... — Joe Guitierrez, Sophomore, Undecided Major.
Judy Collins ‘sings from soul’

By Terry Levecke
Entertainment Editor

The ‘83-'84 Celebrity Series at Shryock Auditorium got under way Friday night with the clear and rich soprano vocals of Judy Collins. Although Collins had three musicians backing her up and played guitar and piano herself for a few songs, her voice was the main and only stimulating instrument of the performance.

The folk-pop singer, who got her start in folk music while her voice was the main and only communication with the audience did detract from the quality of her performance.

She opened the show with "Both Sides Now," and didn't really seem to keep the almost sold-out Shryock Auditorium. Bassist Zev Katz and drummer Warren Odze were pointing that she brought her presence of a night club entertainment rather lacking in contribution to what the show. Concert Review

Collins’ voice faltered only once in the past quite two hour performance. It was disappointing that she brought her guitar out for only two songs. Pianist Shelton Beckett provided most of the music for the show. Bassist Zev Katz and drummer Warren Odze were rather laking in contribution to the show, and didn’t really seem to be needed.

But Collins’ voice was enough to keep the almost sold-out house entertained. She sings from her soul, and moved the audience several times with her lyrics and her skill in using her complete vocal range within a few bars. One of the best songs of the night was a solo on the grand piano that she always dedicates to her ex-husband, "Lovin’ and Leavin’ Don’t Pay."

Her lyrics reflect her value of the spirit of independence and unwillingness to be confined or restricted by a lover.

Performances do ‘Much Ado’ proud

By Abigail Kimmel
Staff Writer

A genius at the language of love, romance and intrigue, William Shakespeare gave the world the finest sonnets and dramas, and, perhaps more importantly, characters. “Much Ado About Nothing” is one of those wonderful characters. They are among Shakespeare’s best creations: witty, quick-witted, strong-willed, thoroughly tender-hearted heroines and heroines, equally clever, thoroughly tender-hearted. No one would have wanted anything to play. Moved from Elizabethan England to 1830s Alta California, the comedy takes place in a small town not unlike hundreds of small towns that have become a veranda, a church and a street and especially beautiful designs for a dream scene, which was subtly, slowly lit to surprise by designer Michael Ryba.

The costumes, designed by Edin Stewart-Harrington, were lovely, befitting the characters’ station in life and period. However, they became old hat after a while, since the same designs were worn for one and a half actions. The action later became wedding clothes.

While the play was set in Southern California and used both American Indian and Spanish motifs, the script was true to the lines originally written. Only the “olers” during the dance, played by Robert B. Larsen, were thundering “Que pasa!” following a startling gunshot.

Though a few a-tors were physically miscast, the cast was, in all, a solid group whose sense of humor and sharp sense of pace kept the pace steady throughout the two-and-a-half hours of the performance.

As the wit-battling Beatrice of San Diego, Lin Sayeghov and Dave Angel were delightful. Their disdain for love and their unrepenting repartaire had their affection for each other, even from the audience. The merry chase on which they lead themselves makes the entire production.

Their partners in confused romance, Hero and Claude, were also well played by Rebecca O’Hleen and David M. Flavin. Visually beautiful, the costumes were consummately romantic, sigh-inducing love. Despite the military governor, and Don John, his bastard brother, were contrasts in literature, Lee Shackelford and Nate Bynum Jr. Leonardo, Hero’s father and governor of the mission, was an honorable, mild-mannered host as portrayed by Lars Timp. A beautiful flamboyance by Bariach and the Hagger was danced by Jeff Garley and Linda Kostalik, whose characters were the instrument through which the mischief against Hero began. The most comic roles were those of the constable, Dogberry, and his partner, Verges. As parodies of old Western sheriffs and prospectors, a la Gabby Hayes, the dust-flogging David Nava and Mike Overtro gave up interpretations of the classic English lines. Nava’s accent and credibility as being an ass and Overton’s stoic physical characterization were splendid.

In his director’s notes, MacLean described “Much Ado” as a play “about language, about cleverness with words, about the joys of talking brilliantly and the dangers of taking it all too seriously.” It is to his credit that this was cast and that this realization was realized, that the talking was brilliant.

‘6 RMS RIV VU’ endearing, believable

By Lisa Nichols

An attractive blonde, apartment-hunting in the Big Apple, finds herself locked in an apartment with a young man and becomes lost at the riverview apartment Sounds interesting.

But for Anne, Vacation and Paul Friedman, the lead characters in “6 RMS RIV VU,” the ordeal is a bit disconcerting to set the least.

In the course of the two-hour play, performed Thursday night in Student Center Ballroom D, Paul and Anne got to know, and in a way, love each other through their conversations and jokes.

Anne revealed that she gave up a career in copy editing to become a full-time housewife for her husband, Richard, and the only man she had ever slept with. She said she loves her two children, but years for something more exciting to do with her time than to try to finish a paper.

Paul is a copy writer who has his job and claims to suffer from the same malady that plagues Anne and the rest of her generation: boredom. They find they value many things, they are drawn to each other: boredom. They find they value many things, they are drawn to each other: boredom. Man with knife robs service station

Carbondale police are searching for the man who robbed the Martin Service Station, 527 E. Main St., with a knife Friday night and escaped with an undisclosed amount of cash.

According to police, the man entered the station at 9:40 p.m., pointed a knife with about a four-inch blade at the attendant, and demanded money. He was described as black, 21-year-old, 6-feet tall, weighing 160 pounds, and wearing blue jeans and a light-blue pullover sweater.

This was the second such armed robbery of a Carbondale service station within a week. Police declined comment on whether the two robberies might be connected.

Underage drinking arrests decrease

Seventeen people under the age of 21 have been arrested for use of false identification, public consumption of alcohol or possession of alcohol since Aug. 16—a decrease from the same time last year, according to Carbondale police.

From Aug. 16 to Sept. 22, 1982, 46 people were arrested under one or more of these charges, police said. Since Aug. 16 of this year, there have been six arrests for underage consumption, eight for using false identification and three for underage possession. One underage person was also arrested for drunken driving.

For the same time period in 1981, 34 people were arrested for these charges.

Art exhibit opens

The watercolor and acrylic art work of Burghilde Gruber is being shown daily through Oct. 31 at the Carbondale Park District Arena Lodge, 1111 W. Sycamore.

Gruber is a native of Austria and has been living in this area for over 10 years. The exhibit represents her latest work. She uses watercolors for impressionistic landscapes and deals with architectural forms in acrylics.

World Communion message: Christians must seek unity

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

Although the Christian Church has divided itself into countless denominations, Christians must "set aside our differences" and "profess a unity in Christ."

That was the message of the Rev. Robert Bergt, who gave the sermon Sunday in an interdenominational worship service held in Shryock Auditorium.

Bergt, an associate professor in the School of Music who is an ordained Lutheran minister, was one of several clergy who led the World Communion Sunday service, which was organized by the Carbondale Interchurch Council.

Differences and tensions between denominations create a "lack of harmony" in the Christian community, Bergt said, and may alienate people from Christianity.

"We have that in Carbondale," he said, "as we have it in all communities." Bergt said that the 650 people who gathered to take part in the communion service showed how Christian unity can be a "joyous response to the gift of God in Jesus Christ.

Another type of "joyous response" came from a 50-voice choir under the direction of Gerald R. Bolt. Organist Theophil M. Otto also provided music for the service, as did a brass quartet, under the direction of Robert Weiss.

Other clergy participating in the service were: the Rev. Theodore Braun, Church of the Saints; Carlton, First United Good Baptist, Lutheran Church of All Nations; the Rev. Donald Shryock, Wesley United Methodist and the Rev. J. Michael Lobacz, The Roman Catholic.

Also involved were: the Rev. Donald Shryock, Wesley United Methodist; the Rev. Craig Smith, First Christian Church; the Rev. Donald Shryock, Wesley United Methodist; the Rev. Craig Smith, First Christian Church.

SIU-C has been selected to be the recipient of 15 Palestinian students a year for five years under an interinstitutional agreement signed in April with An Najah University in the Arab-occupied West Bank.

"We like SIU for many reasons," said David Mize, vice president of American-Mideast Educational and Training Services, a non-profit private organization responsible for placing the students here. Mize was at the presentation he explained some reasons.

"Education has a long history in the Middle East," Mize said. "Many Arab students told me, 'I was shocked when I heard my professor admit he was wrong. In my country he would rather have given a wrong answer,'" he said.

Mize said the West has many misconceptions about the Arab world.

"The West tends to have a romantic medieval view of the Middle East and misses many of the realities there," he said. "One of the big realities is that the Middle East is in a state of flux. The large influx of money in the last 11 years with the rise of petrol prices from over $2 to $3 today has affected the social, political and economic life of the region.

"The West has many criticisms of how the Arabs spend that money especially in the case of Col. Khadaffi of Libya. But in Libya, millions have been spent in social services. When I was there, the social system was very difficult for a Libyan to gain access to. Today a student can go as far as he wants," Mize explained.

"The students coming here will get an opportunity to observe the realities," Mize said. "And you offer many different disciplines here," he added. When asked his final reason for choosing SIU he received a few chuckles.

"Many of our students come from very conservative backgrounds and are not comfortable in places like Berkeley. Carbondale is more conservative," he said. "And you do offer many different disciplines here," he added.

"AMIDEAST was formed in 1951 to facilitate productive use of American educational resources by Middle Easterners and some Mediterranean individuals, institutions and governments," Mize said. In his presentation he explained some of the hopes, expectations and problems facing Arab students in the United States.

"Education has a long history in the Middle East," Mize said. "The Koran enjoins it and sometimes means it illegally," he said. "I visit more than 50 universities a year and I find SIU to be one of the best." Mize also said Arab students will get an opportunity to

ATTITUDE is safety key, women told
By Debra Culberson
Silk Writer

Members of the Women's Self-Defense class are trying to make the streets unsafe for all attackers, said Jan Talbot, class instructor.

"We do not want the people that aren't out to get us, but that there are people that are trying to get us to love ourselves. They want their best interests at heart," Talbot said.

"We need to know how to do something other than just stand there and let them get away with it. We need to know how to fight them. They are not going to fight us," Talbot said.

The course takes place on Wednesday evenings. The class begins at 6:30 p.m. and ends at 8:30 p.m. The class is taught by an instructor who is trained in self-defense.

The course is divided into several parts, including basic self-defense techniques, weapons training, and legal defense. The course is offered to women of all ages and backgrounds.

"We teach them how to be confident in their own skin. We teach them how to fight for themselves. We teach them how to take care of themselves," Talbot said.

"Women from 18 to 70 are able to master the skills and protect themselves, Talbot said. "The woman who doesn't want to be railroaded by the police."

Talbot stressed that the course is not for all self-defense class but rather for a victim who insists on taking the course.

"We teach them how to handle the persistent salesman, the repairman who wants something needs to be fixed, and the man who is too much from the employee."

"Women from 18 to 70 are able to master the skills and protect themselves, Talbot said. "The woman who doesn't want to be railroaded by the police."

Golfers play poorly in tourneys, but coach says goals were met

The Saluki men's golf team turned in less than spectacular performance Tuesday in two tournaments over the weekend, but Coach Mary Beth McGirr said she was pleased with what she saw.

McGirr took the Salukis to two different teams to the tourneys, both composed of players who haven't seen much competition this season. The coach said she wanted to "show the guys they can do," and wanted to pick a fifth player to travel with the team Monday and Tuesday to the Illinois Intercollegiates tournament.

The team didn't do much, but Kurt Wahl earned a trip with the team to Illinois State to compete in the state schools showdown.

SIU-C shot a dismal 317 to finish fourth of eight in the tournament Thursday at Harriers from Page 16 change."

Cornell, however, was very determined. Cornell wants little extra and pulled out victory. He broke Saturday," said Bill Gustafson, new man team, behind seniors Scott Briggs, John Schaefer and Tom Jones. Playing No. 1 for Cornell, Salukis will be freshman Jay Salo.

The tournament will be one of the more important fall engagements for McGirr's team. "Anytime you get all the schools in the state together, you'll have intense competition," she said. "Give Illinois State the home advantage, though. We'll have to up and take one round at a time and keep plugging away. A 315 team score will leave us out in left field. We've got to shoot in the low 300s, or we'll be in the middle of the pack."

The only Illinois group that will be absent in the university division of the tournament will be the University of Illinois.

Kentucky Wesleyan and dropped only one stroke the next day at Indiana State. A positive outcome for the Salukis, though, was the play of Wahl, who barely missed qualifying for the team's opener at Murray State three weeks ago.

Wahl carded a 75 at Kentucky to finish first for SIU-C, then shot a 78 the next day to finish second on the team, one stroke behind Tim Sassi. McGirr said the decision was hard, but in the end Wahl got the nod to go to the Intercollegiates on the basis of his weekend play.

"Kurt was the only bright spot for us," McGirr said. "He really came through. The decision was hard to make. Kurt happened to get the break this time."

"J.D. (Tomlinson) might get the break next time. He might be disappointed, since he's been playing well. It was just my judgment call."

fumbled away SIU-C's first scoring threat at the Arkansas State 26-yard line. It appeared the Salukis were going to get the ball back when the Indians went into punt formation on fourth-and-one from their 35-yard line. Billy Langford, the 'up man' on the play, took the short snap, ran through a hole on the right side vacated by the punt rushers and scored on a 65-yard touchdown run. Bowser faked Tony Haywood, back deep for the two,Langford hooked up with Lewis for an 84-yard touchdown pass with 2:38 remaining in the second quarter.

On the Salukis' next drive, Johnson connected with Stevenson for a 69-yard pickup, with 3:20 remaining in the first quarter. The Indians were not ready for halftime, though. They moved the ball 74 yards in eight plays. On fourth-and-goal from the two, Derrick Taylor bounded off one tackle, spun around and ran the ball in for a touchdown.

Arkansas State took the ball on the kickoff, and on second down Langford fumbled on the 14-yard line. Right end Mike Brascia recovered for the Salukis on the 15. John Simms wasted no time in moving the team. On first down, he hit Sydney Byrd for a 13-yard pickup, moving the ball to the 2-yard line. Two plays later, Johnson fumbled again, this time at the Indians' 13. No one recovered, giving the Salukis field position and a first down. A 2-yard run, followed by a 5-yard pass with 4:28 remaining in the first quarter. The Salukis recovered a fumble on the play, setting up their first touchdown of the season to go. The Salukis' next drive, Brascia moved the ball to the two, and it was not real challenging but there were lots of turns.

DeNoon also said that the runners were avoiding holes and trees throughout the race. "The kids are gaining confidence," DeNoon said. "They're running within themselves. There's still half a season to go. If we can make as much progress in the second half as we did in the first, we will have an interesting outcome."

Arkansas State went right back into the lead, 21-14, when on first down from its 16-yard line, Langford hooked up with Lewis for an 84-yard touchdown pass with 2:38 remaining in the second quarter.

On the Salukis' next drive, Johnson connected with Stevenson for a 69-yard pickup, moving the ball to the Indians' 14-yard line. A pass interference call against the Indians moved the ball to the eight, and on the next play flanker Cecil Ratliff wrestled the ball away from Jerome Sims in the right corner of the endzone to tie the game with 2:21 remaining in the first quarter.

The Indians were not ready for halftime, though. They moved the ball 74 yards in eight plays and scored when Weaver came out of the backfield and was wide open when he caught Langford's 15-yard scoring pass with three seconds left, as the Salukis went into halftime with a 21-21 tie.

In the third quarter, Brascia recovered another fumble, this one at Arkansas State's 42-yard line, which led to the Salukis game-tying touchdown.

Field helped make up for his early fumble by gaining 36 yards in two carries, while Johnson completed two passes to Stevenson for 15 yards, including a 4-yard touchdown strike.

Gault's two TDs lead Bears to win

CHICAGO (AP) — Willie Gault grabbed two touchdown passes, including a 72-yard clinching strike from backup passer Vince Evans in the fourth quarter Sunday to lead the Chicago Bears to a 31-14 victory over the Denver Broncos.

Starting quarterback Jim McMahon directed the Bears to a 24-0 halftime lead, but suffered two interceptions in the third quarter as the Broncos rallied for two scores to cut the lead to 24-14.

Matt Sneh's 15-yard dash gave the Bears a 7-0 lead early in the first quarter, and Chicago forged ahead 14-0 on McMahon's 15-yard touchdown pass to Gault in the second quarter.

Arkansas State's Davey Johnson tied the game when he ran for 67 yards in eight plays. On fourth-and-goal from the two, Johnson completed two passes for a 4-yard touchdown with 3:20 remaining in the first quarter.

Shipp stops Indians’ final shot

It took more than a year, but the Salukis finally started in the final game after 19 losses and a 2-3 start. The Salukis had been waiting for this opportunity since the end of the last season, hoping to make a statement in the opening game.

The Salukis kicked off the game with a field goal, setting the tone for the rest of the game. The Indians tried to rally in the second half, but the Salukis’ defense held firm, allowing only one touchdown.

The game was a close one, with both teams giving their all. In the end, the Salukis emerged victorious, winning the game 35-28. The win was a huge boost for the Salukis, who had struggled in recent years.
