Haitian leader reportedly captured

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide was reportedly taken prisoner Monday by marauding army troops as he returned to the National Palace. Mexico's official news agency reported from Haiti.

A Haitian official told Noltimes that Aristide was taken prisoner by presidential guards at about 4 p.m. local time and was being held in army barracks near the palace, the agency said in a dispatch monitored in Mexico City.

Noltimes quoted local news agencies as saying Aristide was escorted to the palace by troops loyal to him and that he had left his official residence for fear of an imminent attack by rebellious troops.

The news agency did not say if fighting was reported between troops loyal to the president and those who took him prisoner.

First reports of the attempt to overthrow Aristide came about 11 p.m. Sunday night in a broadcast by National Radio Director Michel Favarb, who was arrested soon afterward, said U.S. Embassy spokesman Chris Fioskrat. Unconfirmed reports said Favarb was soon released, but Fioskrat said he could not confirm this.

Automatic weapons fire could be heard Sunday night into Monday in the capital but subsided by noon. He said civilians supporting Aristide took to the streets in battle the rebels from behind barricades made of automobiles, old tires and other debris.

Unconfirmed reports said a group of soldiers surrounded and opened fire on the National Palace, the official presidential palace. Aristide was first reported to be in the building, but later said to have been elsewhere when the coup began.

Aristide, a popular Roman Catholic priest elected president in the Caribbean nation's first democratic vote on Dec. 16, had made no statement over the radio and his whereabouts were unknown.

Thomas vote deadlocked

Simon among opposition, says nominee too conservative

By Doug Toole
Politics Writer

Fearing Clarence Thomas would not support the rights of the less fortunate, U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, voted against recommending his nomination, making the slope in Thomas' uphill battle to become the 106th Supreme Court justice a little steeper.

The Senate Judiciary Committee deadlocked 7-7 on Thomas' Supreme Court confirmation Friday. The committee sent their decision to the full Senate, which will vote on the confirmation, possibly by the end of the week.

Bank loses money to note-wielding robber

By Rob Neff
Police Writer

A lone bank robber got away from the Bank of Carbondale, 216 E. Main St., with an unknown amount of cash Monday afternoon after he wrested a note demanding money to a teller during lunch hour.

Carbondale Police Chief Don Strom said no weapon was displayed during the robbery, but the suspect threatened the use of a weapon in his robbery note. After he received the money, the suspect fled the bank to the north either by foot or motorcycle or bicycle.

Some Carbondale residents who saw the police activity asked police to search their homes to make sure they were safe before they entered, but Strom said there is no reason for residences to be alarmed.

Depositors also expressed alarm as they tried to enter the lobby and were greeted with yellow police tape reading see BANK, page 6

Sheriffs' offices in the state now can keep weapons confiscated in their counties if they are no longer needed for evidence.

In the past, $100,000 worth of confiscated weapons and equipment was destroyed or discarded by court order every year while many law enforcement agencies scrambled to find the money to buy identical supplies.

Jim Neiser of the Jackson County Sheriff's Office is said to be having an easy time saving money.

"We have quite a stack of weapons we're supposed to destroy because the state is feeling the effects of a budget crunch will save the taxpayers' money and help the police carry out their duties more effectively," he said.

The law also allows the sheriffs' offices to sell or trade the weapons if they can't use the weapons they gain through the law, a step Sgt. Jim Nesler of the Jackson County Sheriff's Office said is necessary if the law is to be an efficient money saving measure.

Salukis up to No. 15

The Salukis’ win over Illinois State Saturday allowed team to move up three spots in the NCAA Division I-AA Top 20 football poll, it was announced Monday. The 14-11 victory improved the Salukis record to 5-0—the best record in the nation—and earned them No. 15 ranking in the poll. SIUC broke into the poll last week by defeating No. 5 Northern Iowa. Northern Iowa, ranked No. 9, ISU was ranked No. 20 but was dropped from the poll.

Saluki head coach Bob Smith still has his squad’s is not a proven Top 20 team, but Smith said he doesn’t place much weight in poll any longer. “I really think we are too young of a team to be in the Top 20, but we have proven that we will compete with some of the better teams,” Smith said. “We’ll save all the speculation for those who want to have fun. If someone else has fun deciding who is No. 18 or No. 19, that’s great, but we just have to prepare for next week.”

SIUC is picked to finish last in a preseason poll of coaches and sports information directors. Five weeks into the season the Dawgs are sitting atop the Gateway with a 2-0 conference record.

For the fourth time in five weeks, a Saluki football player has taken Gateway Conference individual honors. Freshman free safety Clint Smothers intercepted two passes, broke up another and was in on six tackles as the Dawgs’ 14-11 victory over Illinois State Saturday at McAndrew Stadium. He was named Defensive Player of the Week Sunday night by the Gateway Conference.

Although Smothers is just a sophomore, he leads the Salukis with 42 tackles, 25 of which are solo stops. His two interceptions Saturday matched SIUC’s team total from all of 1990. The Salukis have intercepted five passes this year.

Smothers’ first interception ended the first half, and his second came with nine minutes left in the game.

“It makes me feel really great,” Smothers said of his performance after the game Saturday. “I got to give credit to the defensive line. They made it difficult for ISU to pass the ball.”

“Their offense is also very strong,” Smothers said. “We’ll have too many tough teams to face on the road.”

Women netters ‘improve’ over weekend

By Norma Wilke

The women’s tennis team did not finish with any championships, but it did learn to play more aggressively this weekend at the Indiana Invitational, said coach Judy Auld.

Considering the level of competition, most of the 10-team tournament with top-seeded teams Western Michigan, Northern Iowa and Kentucky, the players played good close matches, Auld said.

“We went into the tournament looking for improvement,” Auld said. “I saw them improve from match to match. I think we ended the last day on a positive note. The players need to close out the points and work on being more aggressive at the net.”

Senior Lori Edwards was 1-2 on the day in Flight 2 singles. She won her first match against Melanie Ocampo of Sam Houston 6-4, 6-4. She lost the second round to Danielle Paradine of Indiana University and again to Dale Cohen of Miami of Ohio.

Sophomore Wendy Anderson went 1-1 in Flight 4 singles. She lost her first match 6-3, 6-2 to Yarou Peete of Western Michigan. She had a bye her next match and later won against Vanderbilt University 6-3, 6-3.

The doubles teams of junior Wendy Varnum and sophomore Anna Tsui ended the day with a 2-1 record in Flight 4. The duo dropped the first match to Vanderbilt University in two close sets 5-7, 6-7, 7-6.

The doubles tandem went on to win against Northern Illinois and Iowa-Maqueet.

The netters’ season record going into the tournament was 4-0 after beating Evansville 7-2 on Thursday.

Although the men’s tennis team did not pick up many wins during the past weekend, coach Dave LeFevre said his program is strong and competition is what they needed to improve their play.

He said the team faced tough competition in the 16-team Notre Dame Invitational.

The netters did not win any first round matches. The tournament featured nationally recognized teams, including No. 10 Kentucky and No. 11 Notre Dame. Ball State, Indiana, Rice and Wisconsin also were picked as favorites.

LeFevre said the tournament gave him a chance to see how SIUC players would compete this season.

Merchant dropped the first match to nationally ranked player Andy Potter of Kentucky 6-2, 6-4. He defeated Juan Lavelle of Rice University in the second round, Peter Spika of Colorado in the third round, and Paul Kruve of Ball State University in the fourth round.

Merchant defeated Brent DeCurtins of the University of Cincinnati 6-4, 6-4 in the consolation championship round.

LeFevre said Merchant has many strong playing strategies in tennis.

Jay has a good serve so he scores a lot of points, LeFevre said. “He also returns serves well. He has excellent passing shots. When the opponent is at the net, he hits the ball so hard that the player can’t get to it.”

Some Salukis sustained minor injuries in singles competition, LeFevre said. After winning the first round in the consolation bracket, freshman Altman Merchant dropped a match by injury default because of a pulled hamstring.

Water plant floats above mark budgeted by city

By Annette Holder
City Writer

The cost of a new Carbondale water treatment plant has overflowed about $1.5 million more than the city has budgeted.

The City Council will present a report on the plant at its meeting tonight.

The city received bids on the plant Sept. 17 for $9,440,000, about $1.5 million more than engineers projected the plant to cost. The city has issued $9.2 million in bonds to finance the construction of the new plant.

The new plant will replace the current structure that was built in 1926. The new plant is being built to meet new Environmental Protection Agency regulations which take effect June 1993.

Supervisor of Water Operations Jim Swayne said some revisions on the plant would reduce costs.

"We took a very good look," Swayne said. "Some of the things we thought we could do without, we've reduced."

City Councilman Keith Tashvern said he is willing to consider raising the bonds to pay for the plant but wants to look at other options, such as scaling down the design.

"We're building with the outlook of a certain level of growth for the city," Tashvern said. "This was a pretty big expansion. I can see where we could pull back."

Design consultant, Crawford, Murphy and Tilly, has discovered some items that could be modified without affecting its capacity.

Possible cost reductions include the $456,100 clearwell, a tank that holds the processed water.

Finance Director Paul Sorgen said the city has not yet decided to get new bids on the plant.

In other business, the council will review information on the old freight building on Town Square.

Admissions director retires after serving SIUC 17 years

By Christiann Baxter
Administration Writer

B.K. Browning, director of SIUC Admissions and Records, retired Tuesday after 17 years of service.

Browning joined the University in 1965 as director of enrollment.

Roland Kcim, who was named acting director, said Browning was honest and loyal to the University.

"I've always respected him as an individual," he said.

Browning, 59, upgraded the review of academic rules and regulations while he was director of admissions and records, Keim said.

"It was an improvement in the relationship of the office with collegiate units," he said. "There was increased professionalism of the office."

Bill Randall, assistant director of admissions and records, said Browning had a unique style of administration.

"He had enough confidence in his ability and his own position that he allowed the people under him to develop and do what they needed to do without constantly looking over their shoulder," he said.

Browning had positions as director of enrollment, director of enrollment and registration, assistant registrar, and registrar and associate dean before becoming director of admissions and records.

He formerly was a high school teacher in Benton and superintendent of Thompsonville High School.

The director of admissions and records is responsible for the recruitment and admission of students. All functions of the office, including transcripts, processing of grades, suspension and probation, and the scheduling of classes also are overseen by the director.

Browning could not be reached for comment.

Law should relieve teacher shortages

BRINGING PROFESSIONALS in to join the teaching ranks is a plus in correcting shortages of teachers for high school math and science classes. Professionals with math and science backgrounds can become certified high school teachers without having to complete an education curriculum starting with the 1992-93 school year.

With a limited number of students majoring in math and science, the recently approved legislation should be an effective response to the shortage of math and science teachers.

MANY WHO EARN MATH and science degrees choose higher paying jobs than those in teaching. Professionals in math and science fields who want to teach obviously are devoted to helping high school students receive quality instruction.

But professionals who have a gift for teaching combined with their specialized knowledge also could be very effective in the classroom.

THE ALTERNATIVE certification program provides adequate safeguards to ensure that the professionals can deliver quality education.

Certification must have a master’s degree in math or science and at least 10 years of work experience in related fields. For certification in the program, a semester of practice teaching under a certified teacher and a test of basic skills and subject matter is required.

BESIDES MEETING THE shortfall of math and science teachers, professionals in the program can bring professional field experience into the classroom. Perhaps this will convince skeptical students they really might use algebra again.

With dismal reports year after year that American students lag behind their counterparts abroad in math and science, providing more teachers through the alternative certification program definitely is worth a try.

Seuss leaves tales, timeless messages

THE DEATH OF Theodor Seuss Geisel last week drew to a close the living legacy of Dr. Seuss, but his creations will live on in the delight of young and old readers alike. His unique writing and rhyme, tongue-twisting style unraveled wildly imaginative, whimsical adventures in such classics as “The Cat in the Hat,” “How the Grinch Stole Christmas” and “Green Eggs and Ham.”

The messages in Dr. Seuss tales were timeless, illustrating wisdom in honesty, generosity and even preserving the environment. Perhaps the most valuable lesson Seuss taught to children of all ages was that reading is fun.

Dr. Seuss will be missed—but never forgotten.

U.S. needs to focus on domestic, cut out overseas defense spending

The Cold War is over. We have seen this in print and on the T.V. ever since the fall of the Berlin Wall. The final note in the book of the Marxist rule was written in the failed attempt by the KGB to once again administer the shackles of totalitarianism to the Soviet citizens.

Boris Yeltsin’s defiance was the straw that broke the communist’s back.

The people of the former U.S.S.R. had felt the winds of reform and the taste of freedom, and were not going to give into the, coup.

This was all that President Bush needed. On Friday, he set forth to eliminate the United States tactical nuclear weapons programs, the deterrent to the overwhelming superiority of numerically armed forces the Soviets had.

This plan of the President’s called the stand-down of U.S. bombers, who for over 40 years were poised to strike U.S.S.R. aggression, to now no longer be on alert status. His plan calls for mothballing, or destruction of nuclear weapons from the U.S. Navy’s Tomahawk missiles, to the U.S.A.F.’s “smaller” tactical nuclear bombs.

This all points to the trend that the “Evil Empire” is but a mere memory and not a threat that it once posed. With this in mind, should we now “bring the boys back home?”

The answer in an unequivocal yes. If our President feels that the U.S.S.R. (or whatever they are called this week) are not a nuclear threat why is it then that we still need to have our military bases overseas? Why should we tax paying citizens pay for Germany’s defense from an enemy that is no longer there? And while we’re at it what are we defending Japan from, organized labor?

The time has come for us, the United States, to no longer play the policeman in all world affairs. We have our own determinants to tend to.

With issues as diverse as health care, to Federal deficits, it is right to rein billions overseas in useless defense.

Take the time to write your elected officials, and tell them that the time has come to make American interest No. 1, and outlast overseas expenditures a thing of the past —Eric J. Scott, sophomore in political science.

(The rebels were "absolutely not" in control of the government, Filostrat said. "I have not heard any statements from the numerous military personnel of the Haitian army making any demands as such.")

Filostrat had no word on which units were in revolt or who was leading them. "They are people wearing uniforms, but as far as which regiment they are from or what their names are, I don't have that," Filostrat said.

Local radio reported a group of armed civilians went to the penitentiary outside the capital to free Roger Lafonlat, the head of the now-disbanded paramilitary forces called the Tontons Macoutes.

It was unclear whether the mob supported him or wanted to Lynch Lafonlat, who was imprisoned for his part in a previous coup attempt.

Witnesses said soldiers opened fire on the civilian demonstrators and later tracked the wounded to hospitals to kill them.

Independent Radio Anilfen reported early Monday morning that a mob killed political leader Sylvio Claude in Cayes, 120 miles south of Port-au-Prince. Claude's car was reportedly burned by the angry mob, who accused him of being involved in the coup attempt.

The independent television station Tele-Haiti reported 15 dead and 120 wounded, but it was unclear how many were civilian or military. Filostrat, the U.S. Embassy spokesman, said reports of those killed varied from 15 to 100. He said radio stations appealed for doctors to go to hospitals.

Most radio stations were shut down shortly after the unrest began. By Monday morning, only independent stations Radio Cacique, Radio Metropolitana and Radio Antillean remained on the air.

Tele-Haiti said the Haitian Information Ministry issued a statement saying Aristide was well, that his life was not in danger and that he was not at the National Palace.

The U.S. Embassy issued a statement saying, "The United States government and the American people vigorously condemn the outrageous attack on President Aristide carried out by mutinous personnel of the Haitian army."

Before his election, Aristide won the target of at least three assassination attempts at the hands of supporters of the three-decade rule of late President-for-Life Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier and his son, Jean-Claude, known as "Baby Doc."

right now," he said. "If we're able to trade these weapons for weapons and equipment we need, we could save lots of money."

Nesler said many of the guns confiscated in Jackson County are "not immediately useful to deputies because they buy their own guns and they try to buy either 9mm or 45-caliber pistols."

"The reason we buy similar weapons is if I'm involved in a fire fight and I run out of ammunition, the officer can just hand me his clip and his clip fits my gun," he said.

Nesler said the guns also could be used to the crime lab so they could compare a bullet found at a crime scene to a bullet fired from a similar gun in the lab or use the parts to make a murder weapon operational so it can be tested.

"This would take away from defense of the country. It has been proven over and over again that ROTC has played an important role in leadership of military forces."

Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Mumford, also supported the bill.

"This would take away from defense of the country. It has been proven over and over again that ROTC has played an important role in leadership of military forces."

Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Mumford, also supported the bill.

The bill was drawn up in response to Northern Illinois University's intention to remove the ROTC program from its campus, and Rep. David Harris, D-Arlington Heights, was a copilot to the bill.

NIU's University Council, the largest policy-making body on campus, said it would take steps to remove the ROTC program from its campus as a means of protest if the Department of Defense did not alter its policy on allowing gays and lesbians to join the military.

...and women is undesirable even if he had to struggle himself early in life, the senator said.
The Illinois senator applauds the President’s nomination of an African American to the court but predicts a nominee whose views were more representative of African Americans and who is not opposed by the majority of African-American organizations.

Thomas’ refusal to answer specific political questions—especially relating to the Roe vs. Wade decision—also troubles Simon.

He said he prefers more candor in a candidate and does not wish to reward Thomas’ evasiveness before the Committee.

The senator conceded that Thomas, 44, has a capacity for growth in his political philosophy and that once he is free from political influence, a very different Clarence Thomas may emerge.

“I do not cast my vote with absolute certainty that his court record will reflect his public service,” Simon said.

If Thomas’ confirmation is refused by the Senate, Simon said he hopes the President will rise to statesmanship and nominate a candidate with better legal credentials who has different views than himself.

Police closed the bank lobby shortly after they arrived at the scene to interview bank employees and witnesses. They said the bank should be open again Tuesday.

The suspect is described as a 24-year old white male with short blond hair, 5’7” tall and 160 pounds. He was wearing a bright neon green long sleeve jacket with some white shaving on the shoulder area and stone washed jeans.

Anyone who knows anything about the suspect or the robbery should call Carbondale Police at 437-5200 or the FBI at 529-5121.

Lack of media causes Soviet loss of power
By Fatima Janekar
General Assignment Writer

The Soviet Union had an excellent chance of putting Cable News Network out of business during the coup last month, but Soviets did not know how to use the media, said the chairman of the SIUC Communication department.

"All the foreign bureaus chiefs from news agencies the world over were present in Moscow almost as soon as the coup occurred, and due to the fact that most of the world's media was broadcasting from there, viewers were made highly aware of the situation," Foote said.

Coup leaders thought a press conference before staging the coup would divert the world's attention from the situation in Russia, Foote said.

"They thought that was the way the American leaders did it, so it should work with us," he said. "What they did not reckon with was the objectivity and curiosity of the American media, its ability to delve deeply into any matter of interest to its citizens.

Sarah Heyer, SIUC Russian language professor, said the coup received much publicity because of the immediate presence of foreign correspondents.

Reporters were able to accumulate the events of the day at the same time the American audiences were ready to switch on their television sets, she said.

"Had a coup occurred in remote places such as Burma or Mozambique, nobody would have heard about it," Foote said.

"Even if the Soviets had cut off communication and information sources for foreign journalists, informal connections through friends or long-standing sources would still get the news, he said.

At the time of the crisis, the Soviet Union was relying CNN to almost all of Asia, and had the network station in the palm of its hand, he said.

"It was a very interesting situation, were it not for the presence of American news media at the time," Foote said.

The International Student Council will sponsor International Outreach Day from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Oct. 18 in the Student Center.

About 30 international students associations representing 104 countries are expected to take part in the event.

"The purpose of the event is to inform people about the international student organizations operating on campus and promote cross-cultural interaction," said Asher Bandukwala, ISC vice president.

A variety of stalls representing different cultures will be set up with exhibits to give students information about different people around the world.

"We want students to be aware of the activities of these associations and participate in them," Bandukwala said. "We anticipate a large crowd this year and hope to beat all previous year's records as we are going to try to have more exhibits and crafts to interest the students."

Neha Ghouse, ISC president, said he has noticed the number of U.S. students who participate in ISC organized events has increased steadily this year.

"International Outreach Day, started in 1986, has proved to be a particularly great success with students, he said.

"We had organized an ISC stall at the Carnival of Crazevess this semester for the very first time, and it turned out to be a major attraction," Ghouse said.

"We had put up a map of the world, and quizzed people on their general knowledge about capitals of countries, places, landmarks and monuments and the like. A lot of Americans told me they enjoyed the stall immensely — so much that people kept asking us about it for days after the event," he said.

After the International Soccer tournament, Outreach Day is the second permanent feature of the ISC for the fall semester, Bandukwala said.

"We have a number of interesting and unusual entries from all the associations. Also, we are actively seeking American participation, so if any organizations like the AMA or Greek houses want to put up their stall, they are welcome to do so," he said.

"The stalls should pertain to U.S. culture or lifestyle, so there is no one-sided exchange," Bandukwala said.

"In this way, the local community could learn about the international students, and the foreign community could learn about their host country.

"ISC encourages the growth and awareness of cultures and traditions," Ghouse said.

Admission is free and open to the public.

Students attempt to take over strip after bars close
By Rob Net
Police Writer

Students swarmed to "take the Strip" in a drunken frenzy Saturday night, but this time they met something they had not accustumed to—police resistance.

Marc Meierkort, a junior in management at Chicago, said around 2 a.m. people started to wander out of the bars, blocking traffic on the Strip, and 12 or 15 people were trying to "live every day to take the strip" when the police showed up.

"The police started yelling to clear everyone out to the sidewalk," he said.

Meierkort said he and several others in the crowd were hit with mace and started yelling back, "Why are you macing us?"

Carbondale Police Chief Don Strom said the police were in danger.

"The stories I've heard said the crowd was bottle-throwing and barricading with the crowd at the stage," he said. "I'm sure they acted appropriately."
