Branch Offices For Registration Open in Arena

Most offices connected with registration procedures will have representatives located in SIU Arena this week to aid students.

Following is a list of the offices and the days their representatives will be there: Admissions -- Personnel will be at the Arena all week to handle admission problems. However, students needing to be admitted or to complete the admission process will have to go to the Admissions Office, except reentry admissions, which will be processed at the Arena Wednesday.

Advisement -- The Academic Advisement Center will be at the Arena all week. Vocational - Technical Institute advisement will be there Monday through Wednesday and thereafter at the VTI campus. Graduate advisement for some areas will be at the Arena on Wednesday.

Bursar -- Representatives will be at the Arena Monday through Wednesday to collect fees.

Data Processing -- Authorization cards and class cards can be processed at the Arena.

Deans -- Offices will be represented on Wednesday to help students with special problems, such as closed classes.

Sectioning Center -- Representatives will be at the Arena all week.

Student Activities -- Someone to help with ID photographs, Certificates of Registration, Trip Permits and Library Cards will be at the Arena Monday through Wednesday.

BOOKED SOLID - Don Musso, a first term freshman from Virden, Ill., is booked solid for the next four years. Here he is surrounded by some of the basic 95 textbooks he'll use in his courses. In addition, he'll have to use hundreds of others for outside reading, research and perhaps even just personal enjoyment. (Photo by Hal Stoeitzle)

Style Show Also Set for Tonight

Some 3,500 freshmen topped with green beanies continue today following the footsteps of their white-beanieed upper-class leaders, in an attempt to prepare for and adjust to life on the college campus.

Today is the last of three days of meetings and processing which began for the new students Sunday. New Student Week will close with the annual Freshman Talent Show at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Shryock Auditorium.

Highlighting today's activities are the annual Watermelon Feast and Style Show. President and Mrs. Delyte W. Morris will host students at the watermelon feast on the president's lawn at 6:30 tonight.

Freshmen will get a look at what to wear and what not to wear on campus at a style show, to follow the watermelon feast at 8 p.m. in Shryock.

Tonight's activities also include a demonstration lecture to be presented at 7:30 in Browne Auditorium by I.P. Brackett, chairman of the Department of Speech Correction. The lecture also was presented Monday night.

A mixer dance will begin at 9 tonight in the Roman Room of the University Center.

Students will be kept busy during the day, however, spending much of their time waiting in lines and filling out forms of various types.

Much of the confusion of past years has been eliminated this fall, however, with the use of the new SIU Arena. Students are able to do much of their registration in the one air-conditioned structure.

The use of closed-circuit television, which made its campus debut last year, also makes for a more efficient orientation and is used to inform students of campus etiquette and customs.

To some 200 campus leaders, the week marks the (Continued on Page 7)

SIU Tries Central Registration This Week; Arena Houses Services for Entire Process

A central registration procedure is being tried for the first time at Southern this week, with all offices connected with registration being located in the Arena.

The SIU Arena will be open from 8 a.m. until noon and from 1 to 5 p.m. except on Wednesday, when hours will be 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m., and on Saturday from 8 a.m. until noon. Students will enter the building on the upper level at the northwest entrance only.

Following is the schedule:

Tuesday, Sept. 22

Registration of new freshmen (Must be in New Student Week group).

Registration for transferring students.

Registration for graduate students.

No program changes.

No registration for students enrolled spring or summer of 1964.

Wednesday, Sept. 23

Registration of freshmen, transfers, graduate students, re-entry students, continuing students (enrolled spring or summer 1964).

No program changes.

Night registration, 6 to 8 p.m., for night and Saturday students and for graduate students.

After Sept. 23 all activities except the Academic Advisement Center and the Sectioning Center will be located in their regular offices, and after Sept. 26 all services will be in their regular offices.

Thursday, Sept. 24

Late registration, $2 fee; all students. Valid program changes may be processed.

Friday, Sept. 25

Late registration, $3 fee. No program changes.

Saturday, Sept. 26

Late registration, $4 fee, except for Saturday or night registration.

No program changes except for off-campus and part-time students.

New Vice Presidents Begin Duties

SIU opens its 1964-65 school year with major changes in high-level administrative posts.

Earlier this month the filling of four vice presidential posts was announced. They are academic affairs, area and student services, planning and review, and business affairs.

The reorganization was carried out in line with the provisions of the recently approved Statutes of the University. These provide for the establishment of functional vice presidents.

Two of the appointments involved incumbent administrative officers, Charles D. Tenney and John S. Rendleman. The other two were filled by appointments of Robert William MacVicar and Ralph Windsor Ruffner.

Tenney has been vice president for instruction and his new office is staff vice president for planning and review. He will remain in the president's office to review proposals for changes in staff organization and procedures. Rendleman has been general counsel and special assistant to President Delyte W. Morris. In the new organization, he will be vice president for business affairs. As such, his responsibility will be the business operations and physical development of the University.

In a previous assignment he served as director of business affairs on the Carbondale campus.

MacVicar will be SIU's vice president for academic affairs. This was the same post (Continued on Page 7)

'Boyfriend' Starts Season

Theater Department Sets Playbill For Musical Comedy, Tragedy

The 1964-65 theatrical season at SIU will offer a wide spectrum of plays ranging from musical comedy to heady Shakespearean tragedy.

Each production will have an eight-night run and all but one will be performed in the Southern Playhouse in the heart of the campus.

First on the playbill is Sandy Wilson's musical, "The Boy Friend," which will play Oct. 30 through Nov. 1 and Nov. 3-7. J.B. Stevenson, who in the summertime is drama director of the National Music Camp at Interlocken Mich., will direct the production.

"God and the Hawthicket," a new play by Clifford Haislip, will be performed for the first time when it opens Nov. 20. Other performances will be Nov. 21 and 22 and Dec. 1-5. Haislip, a Ph.D. candidate in the Department of Theater, wrote the play as part of his dissertation. Christian Moe is the director.

Norman Corwin's "The Rivalry" will be produced in November. Though the play will be acted by the Southern Players, the site of the staging will be the University Center Ballroom rather than the Southern Playhouse.

The play, a dramatization of the Lincoln-Douglas debates, will tour 25 Illinois communities during the fall and will be given in a special performance on the Carbondale campus.

Archibald McLeod, chairman of the Department of Theater, will direct "The Rivalry" as well as the Southern Players' children's plays presented by the touring company.

As part of the winter term's theatrical activities, the theater will house performances of William Shakespeare's tragedy, "King Lear," often called "the play that couldn't be staged." But SIU thespians will stage the play Feb. 26-28 and March 2-5. This production will be directed by Eric Christmas, who is a member of the world-famous Shakespearean theater in Stratford, Canada.

Max Frisch's sardonic play, "The Fire Bugs" will run April 23-25 and 27-30 as well as May 1. Mordecai Gorelik, professor of theater, will direct his own adaptation of the play.

Gorelik, who has written the only authorized U.S. translation of "The Fire Bugs," directed it in an off-Broadway production last year. The play has been successful in university theaters all over the country, but this season will see the first SIU presentation.

"Trojan Women," a scorching tragedy by Euripides is the second play scheduled for the spring term. The drama will run May 21-23 and 25-29. Sherwin Abrams, associate professor of theater, will direct.

Choosing the plays to produce during the year entails a number of considerations.

"The theater staff decides what they want to do, what they believe audiences would like, and what the crop of potential actors will be," McLeod said.

"We try to have a distribution of different kinds of plays in an artistic and respectable playbill," McLeod explained. "Even with the light plays and comedies we try to avoid the 'popular Broadway-type things,' though usually we have a play that has been a Broadway success."

SOUTHERN'S FAIR LADY - Mary Jo Smith will repeat the role of Eliza Doolittle in SIU's production of "My Fair Lady." The Broadway musical originally was produced by the Summer Music Theater and will be presented again Oct. 2, 3 and 4 in Shryock Auditorium.

Tickets Now on Sale

'Fair Lady' to Play Oct. 2-4 at Shryock

Tickets are now on sale for the fall performance of SIU's production of "My Fair Lady," to be staged at 8 p.m. Oct. 2, 3 and 4 in Shryock Auditorium.

Admission prices are 50 cents, $1 and $1.50. Reserved tickets may be purchased at the Information Desk in the University Center.

The hit musical production made its campus debut here this past summer, when the Summer Music Theater drew more than 3,500 persons during the three-night run.

With the exception of four cast members and a change in the period of costumes being used, the fall production will be identical with this summer's performance according to William Taylor, assistant professor of music and director of the show. Taylor said costumes from the 1914 period will be worn in place of the 1900 period clothes that were used in the summer production. This will make the play more like the original Broadway production, he explained.

While the lead performers remain, two replacements will be made in supporting roles and two dancers will join the cast.

Ralph Bushee, SIU rare books librarian, will play the role of Zoltan Karpathy and Mrs. Miriam Gulliett, who served as the cast's diction coach, will take over the role of Mrs. Hopkins. Victoria Smith of Park Ridge and Diana Whitney of St. Louis have been added to the group of dancers. Leading roles of Prof. Henry Higgins and Eliza Doolittle will again be played by Robert Meyer of Springfield and Mary Jo Smith of Mt. Vernon.

Also continuing in major rolls for the fall performance will be David Davidson of Eldorado as Alfred P. Doolittle, William McHughes of Little Rock, Ark. as Colonel Pickering.

Jerry Dawe of Marion as Freddy Eynsford-Hill, Lynn Leonard of Carbondale as Mrs. Pearce, Mary Davidson of Eldorado as Mrs. Higgins and Sarah Moore of Carbondale as Mrs. Eynsford-Hill.

ROTC Schedules Smoker at Center

All male students interested in enrollment in the Advanced AFROTC Corps have been invited to a smoker at 8 p.m. Oct. 2 in Ballroom B of the University Center.

An informal gathering is planned to enable eligible students to clarify any questions they have regarding the AFROTC program.

Obelisk to Omit Juniors' Individual Photos To Save Space, Cut Cost of 1965 Edition

Individual pictures of juniors will not be carried in the 1965 edition of the Obelisk, SIU yearbook, according to Charles P. Rahe, editor.

Rahe explained that omitting the juniors is in keeping with the trend in yearbooks. Duplication and expense are the reasons.

Many of the juniors will be pictured elsewhere in the book, Rahe said, and by leaving them out, the space can be used to better advantage.

Rahe also announced that senior pictures for this year's yearbook will be taken Monday through Saturday, Sept. 28 to Oct. 24. No appointment is necessary.

Seniors whose last names begin with A-Q will be photographed at Neulist Studio at 213 W. Main St. Those with initials of R-Z should go to Rolando Studio at 717 S. Illinois St.

Students from Vocational Technical Institute will also be photographed at Rolando's.

Orders for the 1965 Obelisk are being taken this week in the SIU Arena and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily at Room H in the University Center.

Cost to the student who has paid his activity fee is $2. The activity fee pays for $4.05 of the book's cost.

Students who have not yet received their '64 Obelisk may pick them up at the Obelisk office from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The office is located in Barracks H-2, near the north end of the Agriculture Building.

Pentagon Officer Visiting Campus

A Pentagon officer is visiting the SIU campus today and Wednesday to inspect the University's facilities as a possible site for next year's National Security Seminar.

Col. Richard W. Dempsey, deputy director of the Armed Forces National Security Seminar School, will confer with area reserve officers and University officials.

The annual seminar is a two-week session, one of 14 held in various parts of the country, designed to acquaint interested citizens in the national security program, according to Robert B. Vokac, assistant director of the SIU Placement Service and a major in the Army reserves.

While on campus Col. Dempsey will meet with William J. Tudor, director of Area Services; Judge Robert B. Porter of Vienna, a colonel in the Army reserves; Oldham Paisley of Marion, newspaper publisher and a retired Army colonel, and others.

A dinner will be held tonight at the Carbondale Elks Club.

Place for Comment

Southern Illinois University
CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS

This is the editorial page. It is, in short, a place reserved for comment and opinion.

Whereas the regular news columns of the Daily Egyptian are as free as possible of expressions of views taken by their writers, the columns on the editorial page purposely are not. It is, in fact, the purpose of the editorial page to provide a place where opinions can be expressed.

Material for this page comes from two sources. From time to time, we, as an editorial writer, undertake to interpret the news, to comment on it, and to criticize. At times we invite other writers to express their views through the editorials printed on this page.

The second source of material for this page is you, the readers. If you've got something to say, say it. Put it in letter form and send it to the Daily Egyptian. We ask only that you limit the letters to 250 words or less and that you sign them.

In this way, the Daily Egyptian truly serves the students by providing a forum for discussion. We want it this way; we hope you do too.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

Welcome, students:

Thirty years from now will you be lamenting, "If I were only young again" or "If I could start over"?

You are young NOW; you are starting! and what you accomplish in the first few weeks this fall may have a great deal to do with where you are and what you are ten, twenty, or thirty years from now.

University life includes numerous social events, concerts, lectures, organizational activities, part-time jobs, varsity and intramural sports, and just plain talk sessions, all educational, perhaps, all a part of the university program. But you might easily spend all of your time in these areas, and some students do until they are sent home.

Most of you are away from home and "on your own," some for the first time. You are testing yourselves. But you are here primarily to learn in the classroom, learn to the very limit of your ability in preparing to live in a complicated world and to make that world just a bit better.

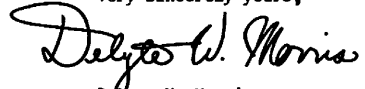

Can you budget your time and energy as well as your money, or will you waste all three? Years from now will you be saying, "If I only had another chance"?

The time is now. The opportunity and the responsibility are yours.

You CAN succeed.

Welcome to Southern. We hope you, your parents, and the whole University will be glad you came.

Very sincerely yours,

DeWeyte W. Morris
President

Days of Sunshine

These are your days of sunshine. These are the days of new places and new faces. These are the days of getting used to a new way of life.

To all new students at Southern we extend a welcome. We wish you success in university life.

We are confident that most of you will readily adapt to your new environment. Why, in no time at all, you'll be tossing about now - strange terms such as Shryock, Furr, and Muckelroy with the ease of a senior. Some of you may come to know the Greek alphabet; some of you may even learn what all those "GS" letters stand for.

There'll be a lot of things to get used to: ROTC, the crowd in the Roman Room, the routine of classes, no cars--good things and bad. But most of all, get used to the idea of work, four years of it. Sure, you can have a good time here at Southern, but unless studies moderate the fun somewhat, you won't be long at Southern to enjoy it.

You are now setting out on an adventure that will change your whole life. New Student Week is the breather before it all begins in earnest. These are your days of sunshine. The work lies ahead.

Presidential Campaign

Ad Men Fire Salvos

By Arthur Hoppe
San Francisco Chronicle

The historic 1964 campaign for the Presidency of the United States, on which the fate of mankind hinges, is now officially underway. Both Madison Avenue ad agencies involved have fired their opening 30-second tee-vee salvos.

As you undoubtedly know, the contenders this year are Doyle Dane Bernbach, Inc., which is building a candidate called "L.B.J.," and Erwin Wasey, Ruthrauff & Ryan, Inc., which is promoting a product named "Goldwater."

Between them, the two are expected to spend more than $10 million selling the public--almost one third the ad budget of the leading soda pop manufacturer and as much as many makers of chewing gum. Which just shows how important the American Presidency is becoming.

Naturally, in keeping with modern advertising techniques, neither firm is saying anything good about its product nor anything bad about its competitor's. Not directly. No, thanks to motivational research, subliminal perception and consumer psychology studies, brutally frank statements are scrupulously avoided. And the message is put across by innuendo. Which, I fell, needs explaining.

Take one of the dramatic, hard-hitting tee-vee spots of Doyle Dane Bernbach's campaign for L.B.J. A telephone is ringing. A man's hand picks up the receiver. The announcer asks you: "Who (sic) do you want answering the phone when Khrushchev calls?"

Now, clearly, you will hope it isn't one of the children. You know how they louse up messages: "Some man called, Daddy, and was he ever mad about something and you better call him back right away only the dog ate up his number." So this is a strong pitch for L.B.J. Because he's a grown-up and has a better chance of getting the message straight.

Erwin Wasey, Ruthrauff & Ryan, Inc. are striking back hard for Goldwater with the theme slogan of their campaign: "In your heart, you know he's right." At first glance this tends to raise some questions. Such as: "How far right?" Moreover, it would seem to imply that in your head, you know he's wrong.

But actually, surveys show that most consumers think with their hearts anyway, except a small percentage who think with their stomachs. Additionally, motivational research proves the slogan has great appeal to the White backlash, Negro frontlash and Oriental sidelash.

Thus, even from this brief summary you can see we're in for an all-out, thought-provoking campaign. For, personally, I find nothing more thought-provoking than modern advertising techniques. Every ad provokes you into trying to think of what on earth they're secretly trying to provoke you into thinking. And there's nothing more provoking than that.

Of course, with the fate of man hanging in the balance, I do worry that $10 million isn't enough. For as long as the Presidency's decided these days by the number of billboards, spots and jingles we consumers are bombarded with, I say this nation's in grave danger. Yes sir, it's in grave danger of being led for the next four years by a bottle of soda pop.

Ombudsman Plan Offered

Control for Bureaucracy?

By Robert M. Hutchins

The author of the article on bureaucracy in the Encyclopaedia Britannica refers to it as an organizational disease; it is the pathology of large organizations.

The criticism seems unjustified. Every large organization has to be bureaucratic. If it were not, its affairs would soon be in a hopeless tangle. The proper papers have to go to the proper place at the proper time and have to be passed on in the proper way. Failure at any point to obey the rules means confusion and ultimate breakdown.

If bureaucracy is an evil, it is a necessary one. The question is how to make it function fairly as well as smoothly.

The device invented in Scandinavia is called the ombudsman. He is chosen by the legislature to watch over the bureaucracy and to see to it that in following the rules it does not overlook its obligation to deal equitably with the citizen.

From Sweden, Denmark, Finland and Norway the institution of the ombudsman has now spread to New Zealand. The ombudsman there has been in office about a year and a half and has reported on his work for that period.

He states the reason for his existence as follows: "Careful and often repeated review of a decision within a department is no guarantee of the wisdom and fairness of the ultimate decision. The first decision...tends to generate its own defenses within a department... The official bias is toward the maintenance of the original decision..."

The New Zealand ombudsman concludes: "I think the tendencies I have mentioned are the inevitable concomitants of any extensive administrative system with its accompanying hierarchies and rules. The conclusion is therefore that some form of responsible and independent representation in proper cases is not only desirable, but necessary if the private citizen is to receive proper consideration at the highest levels in the department."

Since the establishment of his office the New Zealand ombudsman has received 1,100 complaints from citizens. He finds that about half of them are worth investigation. In something more than 20 percent of the cases investigated the complaint turned out to be justified. There were 81 such cases in the last 12 months.

The population of New Zealand is around three million. If we assume that the rate of bureaucratic unfairness in the United States is the same as that in New Zealand, we might guess that an American ombudsman might find and correct about 5,000 cases of administrative injustice a year.

Of course, the mere existence of the ombudsman cuts down the number of such cases, because, if administrative agencies know there is a tribune of the people who will expose administrative abuses, the agencies will be more careful to see to it that such abuses do not occur.

On the other hand, the ombudsman of New Zealand reports that his office is a "valuable shield to the administration." He protects the bureaucracy against irresponsible attacks at the same time that he assures the public that responsible criticisms will be investigated.

The Labor Party has made the establishment of an ombudsman in England a major plank in its platform. If Labor wins, we shall see the first experiment in a large country with this method of controlling the bureaucracy.

'Scrapbook' Illustrates President's Life

The presidency of a large university carries with it a multitude of duties and functions for the person who holds the office.

At SIU, President Delyte W. Morris wears a variety of "hats" in fulfilling the obligations of his office. These photographs from an imaginary scrapbook illustrate but a few of those functions.

The president is a chief figure in ceremonial events such as commencement; he occasionally wields a shovel to break ground for a new structure; he is a point of focus for news stories about SIU; and above all, his is the responsibility for the entire range of programs and "housekeeping" for the entire institution.

The office is ceremonial, it is functional, it is academic, it is administrative, it is traditional. The problems and challenges are many and varied, and the tone and direction of the university are to a large degree in his hands.

Goldwater Decries War News Handling

WASHINGTON--Sen. Barry Goldwater fired strong criticism at the administration for its handling of news on the latest Tonkin Gulf incident, and charged that President Johnson has a "crisis-of-the-week" foreign policy.

The Republican presidential candidate, who campaigned Monday in Charlotte, N.C., said in a statement:

"This administration's lack of purpose, direction and even honesty in its conduct of the cold war has led to what now may be described as a crisis-of-the-week foreign policy.

"This weekend's crisis involves Viet Nam and another incident in the Gulf of Tonkin.

"The administration has tried to manage the news so that the incident is forgotten as quickly as possible.

"They cannot, however, sweep a war under the rug."

Friday, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said in a brief statement that reports had been received of a nighttime incident in international waters in the Gulf of Tonkin. He said no damage had been reported by

East German Boss Dies

BERLIN--Otto Grotewohl, prime minister of East Germany, died Monday after long illness, the official East German news agency reported.

American vessels and there was no loss of American personnel.

Nothing more would be said, he added, until an investigation was completed on reports of the new incident in the gulf where North Vietnamese patrol boats made two attacks on American destroyers seven weeks ago.

The August attacks brought prompt retaliation. Johnson ordered U.S. planes to hit North Vietnamese patrol boat bases and oil dumps--an action backed by Goldwater.

At midafternoon Saturday, McNamara announced that two U.S. destroyers on routine patrol in the Gulf of Tonkin "were menaced by four unidentified" vessels Friday and fired warning shots. He said the approaching craft then disappeared. A Pentagon source later said that McNamara's 147-word statement "apparently closed the incident for all practical purposes."

Tass, Russian news agency, said Monday that three unidentified ships were reported to have been sunk in the Gulf of Tonkin Friday by American destroyers.

This was the first intimation from anywhere that any vessels were sunk in the latest incident off the coast of North Viet Nam.

Big Welcome Set in Caracas For De Gaulle

CARACAS, Venezuela--A big welcome and a strong security guard awaited President Charles de Gaulle Monday in Venezuela at the start of his 27-day Latin American goodwill tour.

The nation, wealthiest among the 10 he is to visit, readied a booming 21-gun salute and a dazzling military display for the 73-year-old chief of state.

Strict security measures were ordered for De Gaulle's ride with President Raul Leoni from the airport.

Officials fear there may be attempts on De Gaulle's life by exiled members of the French Secret Army Organization living in South America. Terrorist attacks are also frequently made in Venezuela by the pro-Castro Armed Force for National Liberation --FALN.

During his 30-hour visit to Caracas De Gaulle will address Congress and confer with President Leoni, who is expected to sound out the French leader on advantages of a Latin-American common market. Leoni hopes to attract more French investment to his country and would also welcome more French technicians to train labor.

After Venezuela, De Gaulle will go to Colombia, Ecuador, Bolivia, Peru, Chile, Argentina, Paraguay and Brazil.

The long-planned tour is another move by De Gaulle to restore to his nation influence lost in the two world wars. His chief aim is to strengthen good relations with Latin America, which may lead to long-range French aid.

California Town Hit by Forest Fire

CALISTOGA, Calif.--A fast-moving forest fire destroyed 35 homes in this Napa County resort town. Monday and touched off smaller threatening fires in five surrounding communities.

More than half of Calistoga's 2,500 residents and tourists have been evacuated, police said. There were no immediate reports of casualties, they said.

"We're using school buses, trucks or anything we can get to evacuate the people," the officer said.

Labor Union Council Calls General Strike in Saigon Area

SAIGON, Viet Nam--The Vietnamese Labor confederation launched a general strike in the greater Saigon area Monday and began marshalling workers for a massive demonstration.

Workers threw switches at power stations at 7:40 a.m.--Saigon time--signaling the start of the strike. A union leader said 83 member unions of the Greater Saigon Council had been asked to take part in the strike, but that it was uncertain how many of 30,000 members would answer the call.

Spearhead of the strike was formed by textile, transport, and water and light workers.

One union source said 60,000 plantation workers from French rubber estates might be brought into the city to press the worker demands.

Hundreds of workers poured into headquarters of the Vietnamese Confederation of Labor. About two dozen policemen in the area watched passively. There was no sign that the government planned stern measures to put down the strike which is illegal under last month's state of emergency proclamation.

The strikers protested wages and working conditions. But the labor leaders are also making political demands.

The labor troubles brought a new threat to the shaky caretaker government of Premier Nguyen Khanh, which weathered a coup attempt last week.

Negro Crowds Stone Police Car After Mississippi Bombings

McCOMB, Miss.--A Negro church and the home of a Negro civil rights worker were bombed Sunday night and angry Negroes stoned a police car when it arrived. Police said 2,000 or 3,000

Negroes attacked the patrol car with bricks and bottles when it drove up to the wrecked home of Aylene Quin. Negro leaders said about 150 were in the crowd.

The patrol car roared away from the scene. Jesse Harris, project director of a Negro voter registration drive, exhorted the crowd to "go at it peaceably."

Spokesmen for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee said the crowd dispersed.

Police officials said they were too busy to talk about it at all.

Mrs. Quin, 42, operator of a cafe and a civil rights leader, said her two children were injured by the blast but not seriously.

The youngsters, Kathy, 6 and Jackie, 5, were sleeping in a room at the back of the house. The bomb went off in front.

Presenting America's slowest fastback.

There are some new cars around with very streamlined roofs.

But they are not Volkswagens.

They are called fastbacks, and some of them are named after fish.

You can tell them from Volkswagens because a VW won't go over 72 mph. (Even though the speedometer shows a wildly optimistic top speed of 90.)

So you can easily break almost any speed law in the country in a VWV.

And you can cruise right past gas stations, repair shops and tire stores.

The VW engine may not be the fastest, but it's among the most advanced. It's made of magnesium alloy (one step better than aluminum). And it's so well machined you may never add oil between changes.

The VW engine is cooled by air, so it can never freeze up or boil over.

It won't have anything to do with water.

So we saw no reason to name it after a fish.

Students Obtain Texts at Library

Textbook Service, located in the basement of Morris Library where the Education Library used to be, will be open from 7:50 to 11:50 a.m. and from 12:50 to 4:50 p.m. today, Henry T. Stroman, the manager, said.

"Students should enter through the West entrance of Morris Library," Stroman said. "All undergraduates will pick up their books in the new location, but the graduate students must get their books on the fifth floor."

Graduate students are required to purchase their books, but undergraduates receive books for a $5 rental fee.

Textbook Service will be open Wednesday from 7:50 a.m. to 9:00 p.m., through the dinner hours. Thursday the hours will be from 7:50-11:50 a.m., 12:50-4:50 p.m., and 6:30-9:30 p.m.

Friday, Textbook Service will be open 7:50-11:50 a.m. and 12:50-4:50 p.m. Saturday the hours will be from 7:50-11:50 a.m.

Monday and Tuesday the hours will be 7:50-11:50 a.m., 12:50-4:50 p.m. and 6:30 p.m.-9:30 p.m. Wednesday, Textbook Service will resume its normal hours, 7:50-11:50 a.m. and 12:50-4:50 p.m.

Vice Presidents Begin Duties

he held at Oklahoma State University. In announcing this appointment, Morris said MacVicar will exercise general executive and coordinating responsibility for the instructional, research, and publications programs for all SIU campuses.

Ruffner will serve as vice president for both area and student services, two major functions of the University. He will have general executive and coordinating responsibility for the area services of SIU, and all matters pertaining to the welfare of students.

The revision of the statutes abolished the positions of two operational vice presidents. John E. Grinnell, who held the operations office on the Carbondale campus, is retiring. This had been scheduled for Sept. 1 but he was asked to serve four months beyond the date of his retirement, in order to assist in the transition.

Clarence W. Stephens, vice president for the Edwardsville campus, requested a return to a teaching and research assignment under his professorship of secondary education.

In announcing the appointments, President Morris said the reorganization should make possible more efficient planning, review and operation of the University; result in economies of effort and of money; and enable SIU to throw its full resources from all campuses into important programs.

MacVicar is a Rhodes scholar and received his doctorate from the University of Wisconsin. He is a lieutenant colonel in the Army reserves.

He received his bachelor's degree from the University of Wyoming and his Master of Science from Oklahoma State University.

Ruffner received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Maryland and his Master of Arts and doctorate from George Washington University.

Before his appointment at SIU, he was deputy United States permanent representative to UNESCO, the cultural and educational unit of the United Nations, in Paris.

Before that, he was with the International Cooperation Administration. He was chief of its educational division in India and, later, director of the Office of Educational Services of the ICA.

Ruffner has also been professor of adult education and the assistant dean of education at George Washington University.

Tenney was administrative assistant to President Morris from 1948 to 1952 and was appointed vice president for instruction in December of 1952.

Rendleman is an alumnus of SIU and a graduate of the University of Illinois Law School. He was appointed SIU's legal counsel in 1951 and in 1961, director of business affairs. He was appointed general counsel and special assistant to Morris in 1963, climax of hours of preparation: meetings, conferences, correspondence and assembling materials.

About 150 upperclassmen arrived on campus Friday to receive instruction in guiding and advising the freshmen.

Warren Steinborn is chairman of this year's New Student Week. Laurie Brown is serving as vice chairman.

Most of the students arrived in Carbondale Sunday, though some had come earlier in the week as band members, student workers, etc.

The week of orientation officially opened at 2:30 Sunday when all incoming students met in the Arena, where they listened to a welcoming address by I. Clark Davis, director of Student Affairs, and a concert by the Male Glee Club.

Monday's activities included group meetings, discussions and registration.

Bigger Daily Egyptian Printed on New Press

The Daily Egyptian has installed a new offset press to provide for expansion made necessary by the growth of the newspaper.

The new press, a Fairchild News King, sold by Inland Newspaper Machinery Corp. of Kansas City, Mo., received final adjustment and testing Sept. 15 and was put into production for the first time to print the New Student Week paper.

The press prints an eight-page, 12-page, or 16-page paper and permits more flexibility in scheduling and handling news stories and advertising. Enlarged coverage of campus and national news will also be possible.

In line with the policy of employing students, the Daily Egyptian has employed 39 student workers to assist in preparation of the paper this year. Six graduate assistants, two research assistants and five faculty men complete the production and advisory staff.

The Daily Egyptian has a circulation of 10,000 papers to serve the student body.

Variety of Awards and Loans Available to Needy Students

Student loans from $5 to $1,000 and more than 500 scholarships and awards are among the services available through the Financial Assistance office at SIU.

Three types of loans are offered. For students who find themselves low on cash a few days before their pay checks come in or before they hear from their folks, interest-free loans of $5 are available. These must be repaid in two weeks.

Short term loans are given to full-time students who can prove need and who have a 3.0 or better grade average. These loans must be repaid in 90 days.

Long-term National Defense Student Loans are available to students for up to $1,000 per year and up to $5,000 during a student's college life. An entering freshman must be in the upper one-third of his graduating class. Present students must have at least a 3.0 grade average and must be carrying a full-time load.

Each year the office gives 500 tuition scholarships. These are divided evenly between General Studies students and the junior-senior classes. In order to obtain one of these scholarships a student must show a need for it and he must be a full-time student with at least a 3.0 grade average.

Applications for these scholarships for the 1965-66 school year will be taken at the Financial Assistance office beginning Jan. 1, 1965.

The office also handles a number of scholarships and monetary awards given out by private donors. Often the donor recommends the person he wishes to receive the award, but others turn the awards over to the Scholarship and Loan Committee which selects recipients. In order to receive one of these awards a student must be registered full time and must have at least a 3.0 average. Many of these awards are given on scholastic achievement rather than on need.

Students who have pre-registered may obtain a deferment of fees through this office, provided they have a valid reason.

Fall Term Hours Begin at Library

Fall term hours begin at Morris Library Wednesday, according to Ferris S. Randall, acting librarian.

Regular hours will be from 7:45 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Saturday hours will be from 8 a.m. to 10:30 p.m.

Sunday the library will be open from 2 to 10:30 p.m., Randall said.

Last Resort -- Study

Buttering Up Prof Is an Old Game

By Ed Pluzynski

Butter and snow are part of the academic scene at SIU. In the course of one's academic career, one observes these used as tactical approaches in one's dealings with the faculty.

"Buttering up the prof" is a nice, nice way of saying what is meant. It is more clear if one says "giving him the snow job" or "conning him out of a grade."

There are several ways that a new freshie can go about using these unethical tactics. But remember, freshmen should be extremely careful because the old, experienced prof is very aware of the obvious methods.

More important than anything, try to make your prof feel extra important. Ask questions that he can answer, then act amazed when he knows the answer. Give him the idolizing treatment. Profs really love this.

Another way that will help you pass is to tell the prof a success story. Take, for example, an English teacher who recently explained the outline for writing a book review or term paper.

Make an appointment to see him at his office. Ask him if he remembers giving that specific outline in class. Then, explain how a week after he told you how to write a book review, you had some practical experience in another class.

Tell him how you got the reviews back yesterday and that yours was the best one in class. The teacher even made your theme an example for the entire class to follow.

Your prof is ready for the kill now. You could ask him to do almost anything for you. Nothing goes over better with profs. This flatters their egos completely; it gives them further reason for teaching. Now he will feel like a real success himself.

Female freshmen have an added advantage over the boys. This is especially true if their physical make up is such as to attract the old, the love-starved and the near-sighted.

Girls, make it a point to sit in the front row or as near the prof as possible. At least make it possible for him to get a good view of your legs. When he looks your way, which will be most of the time, give him an occasional reassuring smile.

Once or twice during the quarter, girls, stop by his office. Appear interested and let him know that you admire him more than any teacher you've had before.

After this treatment, your prof probably will be so flattered that any request will seem within reason.

Boys and girls, never miss the chance to have coffee with your profs. Never bypass an opportunity like this. You might see teacher on the way to the University Center around 10 o'clock; ask if you can join him for coffee.

If the conversation leans towards the course material and you know little about it, then quickly change the subject by asking about something you know he will be able to answer.

Listen to his viewpoints, compliment him and act as if you had never thought about the subject that way before. The prof naturally will have his ego boosted and will intellectually continue the discussion. Later, after you have created some rapport between the prof and yourself, he will once again be ready for the kill.

There is one thing that all freshmen must remember. If you find out that "snowing" the prof won't work, try studying. Reading the material and taking good notes can also prove to be an advantage. Many times this simple method alone can help you to pass, or even "ace" a course.

PARKING WOES - The motor vehicle is an integral part of the American scene, but it poses a problem to the municipalities and universities throughout the land. SIU is no exception. For many, use of the automobile on campus is banned by policy and regulation; for those who have the privilege, the problem becomes one of where to park the car. Both the "haves" and the "have-nots" have their transportation problems; the early bird gets the worm and, in this instance, the worm is represented by a parking place like one in this lot.

Unessential Cars, High Grades Not Compatible, Says Zaleski

It is doubtful that anyone today would swap a kingdom for a horse, but obviously a lot of students would give a good five-point average for a car.

That may just be one reason why the University rules out cars for most students. In all probability a lot of potential five-point grade averages have ridden to their doom over a set of twinpipes.

But the car regulations really aren't as horrible as they may sound.

"If a car is needed and deemed essential we can authorize the motor vehicle privilege," said Joseph Zaleski, assistant dean of student affairs.

"If the University is going to provide opportunities to students of moderate income families, an unessential car is not compatible with education," he added.

For the most part SIU does not permit students to have cars on the campus. The philosophy that a motor vehicle is not compatible with education is the reason behind this decision.

The regulations state that only "graduate students, married students, commuters, and students with exceptional need" will be permitted to use a motor vehicle.

Many students feel that whatever the need, their circumstances are the most pressing. A working student may be granted the motor vehicle privilege. "If his income is substantially in excess of operating expenses of the automobile based on a rate of seven cents a mile," commented Zaleski.

Zaleski related one incident where the student alleged it was necessary for him to have his $7,000 Jaguar at school so that he could go to work. "This was a case where the car was incompatible with the student's education," Zaleski added.

"The relatively low cost of room, board and books makes an automobile not compatible to low cost of education," Zaleski said.

The only change in the motor vehicle regulations for the 1964-65 school year is that students not living at home but beyond the two-mile limit will be eligible for silver stickers and not red ones. This means, according to Zaleski, they may park on city streets but not on the Campus drive until after 5 p.m.

The working student has presented some problems too, according to Zaleski.

"A spot check of 15 job holders revealed 12 of them were either not on the job, had never worked there or had quit."

These students had secured permits for their cars under the pretense that they needed the car for their job and the job was necessary for them to continue their education.

"I think we could eliminate the car problem," added Zaleski, "by permitting everyone to have a car under one condition. Under this condition the students would pay $250 per quarter extra to a scholarship fund for capable students to continue their education. The decision would then be left up to the student whether the car is necessary."

Under this solution commuters living at home and the disabled would be excluded.

A second solution offered by Zaleski would be a bus system running in all directions from the campus permitting students to live where they wished. Again commuters living at home and several disability cases would be excluded from riding the bus.

According to Zaleski, cars are still the No. 1 problem on the campus.

Orientation Set Wednesday for Faculty Members

An orientation program for new full-time faculty members from both the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses will be held here Wednesday.

Nearly 200 new faculty members will meet in their departments in the morning. After a coffee break, a lecture will be given by William J. McKeefery, Dean of Academic Affairs, at 11 o'clock in Brown Auditorium.

They will be guests at noon luncheon in the University Center Ballroom with President Delyte W. Morris as speaker.

The afternoon will be spent in interdisciplinary meetings and on bus tours of the campus.

Tickets Await Violators

SIU Gets Tough on Parking Rules

The University will put "teeth" into its parking regulations. That's the word from Edward McDevitt, supervisor of the Parking Section.

Students have until Sept. 26 to register their cars. Then they must remove them from the campus or face fines and/or possible disciplinary action.

"Only under extraordinary circumstances will we issue temporary storage permits for cars," McDevitt said. "If a student has been here a week or so and hasn't registered his vehicle, we won't store it for him until he registers. He will have to take it home and leave it until he gets it registered."

Regulations and registration cards are available to auto owners at the Parking Section office on Harwood Avenue.

McDevitt said Security Officers will start writing tickets for violations about Sept. 28. Cars not having decals will be ticketed.

Blue stickers are being issued for vehicles belonging to faculty and staff members and teaching graduate assistants. Red stickers are for commuting students and nonteaching graduate students. Silver decals are for off-campus parking and for using the campus parking lots after 5 p.m.

Orange decals are issued to students who work off campus, and who must use their cars in such employment. Cars with these stickers must be parked in designated areas. Yellow stickers are issued to students who have jobs on weekends. Vehicles with these decals may park on campus parking lots only after 5 p.m.

Pointing up the stiffer policy on regulations, McDevitt said red decals for commuters will be limited this fall. Married students who live farther than two miles out of town and commuters who live at home with parents who reside more than two miles outside Carbondale may receive these decals.

A student who lives as far away as Chicago but who commutes to campus from, say, Murphysboro or Carterville, will receive a silver sticker, not a red one, McDevitt says.

Vehicles with silver stickers will not be allowed to park on Campus Drive between Mill Street and the Physical Plant, Security Officer Thomas L. Leffler said.

The large parking lot east of Wham Education Building will be used only by cars with blue faculty stickers, according to Leffler. After 5 p.m. cars with stickers of any color may park on any University lots, Leffler said.

He emphasized that graveled lots adjacent to Chautauqua (temporary) barracks and a limited number of parking spaces between the practice baseball diamond and Mill Street are for cars with blue stickers only. Other cars will be ticketed.

Student registration began Sept. 2. Faculty and staff registration started Aug. 25. By Wednesday, 1,783 decals had been issued, according to McDevitt.

"After we finish registering cars, we're going to start on other motorized vehicles, he said. He reminded students with motorcycles, motorbikes, golf carts and scooters that they must have a valid state license to register vehicles.

Matt Hall, compositor in the University Printing Service, said a state chartered group named Cycle Sport Inc., had offered to help inspect for safety all such vehicles.

Hall, secretary treasurer of the organization, said the club, organized this year, was concerned about increased usage of such vehicles on campus and in their safe operation.

"Several students are members of our organization," he said.

McDevitt said the Parking Section would work with the Cycle Sport club to inspect for proper lighting, brakes, mufflers, etc. He said there would be no deadline for inspection of these vehicles. "We have to work out plans and specification for the inspection."

Journalism Dept. Offers Workshop

Advisers and editors of high school publications will meet on the SIU campus Oct. 3 for the tenth annual fall workshop sponsored by the SIU Department of Journalism.

Chief aim of the workshop will be to help the new high school publication adviser, according to the director, W. Manion Rice.

Those attending will study make-up of yearbooks, advertising sales, layouts, news, feature, editorial and sports writing.

Journalism faculty members and other persons experienced in advising about yearbooks and high school newspapers will assist Rice with the workshop.

Mitchell Wins Olympic Team Berth

RUSTY MITCHELL

SIU's Rusty Mitchell had a busy weekend -- he qualified for the U.S. Olympic gymnastics team and appeared on a national television program with Debbie Reynolds.

Mitchell, National Collegiate Athletic Association tumbling champion, tied for third place on the seven-man U.S. team. He and Air Force Lt. Greg Weiss each scored 226.75 points in the competition at Los Angeles.

Makoto Sakamoto, a 17-year-old Los Angeles boy, will head the American team in the Tokyo Olympics next month. He scored 230.05 points in the elimination competition. Art Shurlock of Los Angeles is the No. 2 man on the U.S. team. He scored 227.2 points.

Each qualifier had to compete in all events to place on the team. In the competition, Mitchell tied Sakamoto in the optional routine, the only event in which the young Californian was closely challenged.

Each of the seven men picked for the team will compete in all events in the Olympics, which coaches explain makes selecting a team more difficult. Mitchell, kingpin of last season's SIU team which won the NCAA championship, was among the six male and three female Olympic gymnasts picked to appear on the Hollywood Palace program Saturday night.

Actress Debbie Reynolds, hostess for the show, introduced each of the gymnasts while they performed individually in one of their specialties.

At the end of the performances, the male gymnasts grabbed Miss Reynolds, boosted her up on the high bar and helped her through a brief and definitely un-Olympic type, performance on the bars.

The appearance of the gymnasts was to help raise funds to send the team to Tokyo.

VTI Registration Begins at Arena

Vocational-Technical Institute students will be registered and advised at the SIU Arena today and Wednesday.

From Thursday on they will report to the VTI campus for registration and advisement.

Bowling Green Ground Attack Trounces SIU

Bowling Green won its third straight victory over SIU on Saturday as it unleashed a powerful ground attack to spoil Don Shroyer's debut as head Saluki football coach.

The Bowling Green Falcons triumphed 35-12 despite a Sports Illustrated prediction of a strong SIU grid squad for '64.

The defeat doesn't necessarily dim this prediction, in the opinion of Fred Huff, SIU sports information director. The Falcons were simply bigger and better than SIU, Huff said.

Shroyer's squad drove for 97 yards on the ground, compared to 247 yards for Bowling Green. Bowling Green also beat SIU in air yardage, gaining 177 to SIU's 127.

SIU made both its touchdowns on passes as quarterback Jim Hart connected with running back Rich Weber in the second quarter, and reserve quarterback Doug Mougey tossed to halfback Charlie Warren in the fourth quarter.

Mishap Claims Student's Life

One SIU student was killed and two others injured in separate car accidents between summer and fall term.

A fourth person, a former student, was also killed in one of the accidents.

Dale E. Rodemich, 24, of Millstadt was killed Sept. 14 when his car collided with a truck near Chester. He was apparently returning from visiting with a friend in the Murphysboro area, according to authorities.

Larry R. Goldsmith, 21, of 610 1/2 S. Washington in Carbondale and Janet Dunn, 19, of Du Quoin were hospitalized with serious injuries Sept. 12 when a car in which they were passengers crashed on Rt. 13. Both were taken to Doctors Hospital.

Killed in the second accident was the driver of the car, James E. Mohan Jr., 20, of Cambria. He had attended SIU for three years.

Goldsmith is a senior and works parttime in the SIU Post Office. Miss Dunn is a sophomore at the University.

Yea, Rah, Team!

That's The Spirit

School spirit at SIU is at crossroads.

Most likely the support shown this year's athletic teams will determine the future of sports at Southern Illinois University for years to come.

For the first time in the history of the school's intercollegiate athletic competition students are being asked to show their support financially. In the past students have been compelled to finance the athletic program through an indirect--and compulsory--method of paying an activity fee.

Beginning this season, however, students will be given a choice: the choice of supporting their athletic teams or letting them die.

In addition to the activity fee, students are this year required to pay admission to the major athletic events. A season ticket to all athletic events is being sold for $6.

By purchasing the season pass, students will be making their contribution to the tremendous investment being made in SIU's athletic department.

The two latest installments are Coach Don Shroyer, who has been added to head the football staff, and the SIU Arena, which will house basketball, gymnastics and wrestling events.

Others busy preparing for the coming season are the Marching Salukis, the cheerleaders and, of course, members of the Saluki football team, who have been sweltering through practice drills since spring term.

Hundreds of students will work behind the scenes this year, as in the past, to attempt to make the 1964-65 season the greatest in the school's history.

But the success of this year's athletic season will be more dependent than ever upon the individual student.

By attending the athletic contests the student will not only cast a vote of confidence to Southern's expanding athletic department, he will also be paying for the new Arena, which is to serve as a drawing card for better players and bigger teams.

As SIU begins its second year as an athletically independent university, officials are hopeful that entrance into a major athletic conference is in the near future.

Southern's chance of entering such a conference depends on the students' financial and moral support of the teams.

Even though financial backing is necessary to support one's team, moral support--in the form of school spirit--is even more vital to make that team a winner.

As always, leaders will be on hand to arouse spirit among the fans; energetic cheerleaders will be sporting new ideas and new uniforms, strutting majorettes will lead onto the field a sharply dressed marching band, and agile gymnast John Rush will turn the Saluki mascot into a crowd-pleaser.

The Saluki dogs, Ornah and Burydown, will be there with a scent for victory.

Students will be offered the opportunity to participate actively in an exhibition of spirit in the card section or in the group known as the Noisy Nomads.

And fans will once again observe how school spirit can transform midgets into giants, meekness into courage and losers into winners.

The football field and the basketball courts are not, however, the only places on a college campus for students to exhibit their school spirit.

Living areas, classrooms and student government all provide students opportunities to show their concern and support of their university.

Yes, in many ways, school spirit will remain the same sign that it has been for centuries: a sign of pride in one's school and faith in one's team.

Yet, the success of the 1964-65 athletic campaign will more likely be measured on the basis of student support rather than team records.

You're in the starting lineup.

Student Body Has Strong Voice But Getting Action Isn't Easy

By F.L. Masha

The two-paragraph preamble to the constitution of the SIU student government defines its role as "advisory to the University administration in all functions directly affecting the student body." This advisory role often leads to the criticism that the Student Council is something akin to a "coffee and cookie club." While it is true that a number of the meetings are marked by a lot of talk and little action, the council provides an important function. It is, in a sense, the voice of the students. The constitution is an 11-page document, longer than the United States' constitution, with well-defined offices and powers." And if it were not an advisory body, the president of the student government probably would have more work than the president of the University! "We can discuss the resolve on any matter about the University," said Pat Micken, president of the Student Government. "But in reality we have very little power." Some students campaign vigorously for office, determined to bring about changes. They generally end up cooling off in frustration. Micken pointed out one issue, for example, on which the student government has come to a deadlock with the administration. He pointed out that a petition with 3,500 signatures for a radio station with service directly to the dormitories was submitted to the University by his predecessor, Dick Moore. "Nothing has happened, We have reached a dead end on this issue, and there is nothing we can do," said Micken. What is the student government for? "It is the official channel of student opinion," Micken said. "The student government gives recommendations to the Board of Trustees, but there is no guarantee that action will be taken." Since June 13, when Micken took office, the administration has not solicited opinion from the student government.

PAT MICKEN

'Don't Just Complain' Pat Micken Seeks Solutions, Looks for Willing Workers

Pat Micken, the soft-spoken, unassuming president of SIU's student body, believes that student government can be an effective force if people will do more than just complain that "nothing is being done." And he has at least a partial solution for getting things done. "One day a student came into the office complaining about the quality of goods in the vending machines," Micken recalled. "I carefully listened to his story and then appointed him chairman to investigate vending machines." The moral of that story might be "don't complain unless you are prepared to do something about it." Micken wants students to come to him with their legitimate complaints. Naturally he hopes he can convince the complainer to help seek a solution to the problem. Micken acknowledges that one of the major problems he will have his fall is finding the students who are willing to take time to serve on the student government's various appointed boards and commissions.

example, there are a number of jobs, such as the Election and International Affairs commissioners, that have to be filled and at least 50 other students are needed to fill other positions with varying degrees of authority and duties. "It is quite a job finding people to fill these positions," Micken said. "There are many persons who want to see an effective student government, and I intend to put the resources at my disposal to work," he added. In addition to all these posts, there are 24 positions in student government to be filled in the Fall election. Micken a senior majoring in speech, attended University School before enrolling at SIU. His father, Ralph Micken, is chairman of the Department of Speech.

His vice-president, Donald Grant, is a senior majoring in government. Grant is from Springfield. He is a member of Phi Kappa Tau social fraternity and was its president in 1963. Others elected to the Student Council during the Spring election were: Judy Meyer, off-campus organized women's senator; James Tucker, off-campus organized men's senator; David Simpson, committee senator; Ken Boden, out-of-town senator; Jim Matheny, Southern Acres senator; Irina Carter, Small Group Housing women's senator; Dennis Mulligan, Small Group Housing men's senator; Bill Farouki, foreign student's senator; Ric Cox, Thompson Point senator. Only half the officers of the Executive Council of the Off-Campus Students Association (previously the Off-Campus President's Council) have been elected. The other half will be elected in October. Officers of the Area Representative Council will be appointed at this time. The present officers of the Executive Council are Dave Kelch, John Hawk, Brian T McCauley, Dan Heldman Ginger Macchi, Martin Pflanz Trish Packenham, and James Tucker. Roger Hanson is president of the association and John Johnson is the vice president. "There isn't much power in the student government. But there is an unlimited opportunity for activity," Micken said.

Small spot for a big job! Not even the touch of a ballerina's slipper leaves so tiny a mark. Yet this is the actual size of the impress on a rail of the wheel of an Illinois Central freight car, a wheel carrying 10 tons or more at perhaps 60 miles an hour. This small area of surface friction between wheel and rail makes railroad transportation fundamentally economical. Nothing can beat it. Except more efficient railroading. You'll see many new and larger freight cars rolling on the Illinois Central this year. And each wheel will roll easily on a spot smaller than a penny. Which is nearly all we collect ($0.0114), on the average, to haul a ton of freight one mile. To achieve more economical transportation for you and all the people of Mid-America, the Illinois Central is spending $35 million for improvements this year, bringing our total since World War II to $485 million.

SIU Started as Building in Strawberry Patch

Students Escaped Grind At Carter's 'Jelly Joint'

By Carole Daesch

Four score and fifteen years ago our forefathers brought forth to this city a university and they called it Southern Illinois Normal University.

But it was a far cry from the mushrooming SIU of today. The Normal Building--the only building--stood in what was once a huge strawberry patch. After the Normal Building, the present Old Main, burned in 1883, classes were held in rooms furnished by various Carbondale businessmen. Four years later it was rebuilt and once again was ready for classes.

By 1904 two more buildings had been added; Wheeler Library and Old Science--now Altgeld, The Allyn Building, then the Training School, was finished in 1908.

Increasing enrollment led to the construction of Anthony Hall, a girls' dorm, in 1913 and the Gymnasium in 1925. Parkinson Laboratory completed the quadrangle in 1928.

SIU had no Office of Student Affairs or Rules and Regulations book in the early years. But there were austere rules which were observed by all. For example, when class was dismissed in Old Main, everyone lined up in a single line and marched quietly up or down. No one was allowed even a whisper.

Failure to adhere to this rule landed the offender in the president's office with a stiff reprimand of expulsion. Furthermore, a student or faculty member couldn't leave the campus until all classes for the day had been dismissed.

Smoking was taboo until the early 1950s. "Although when Carter's 'jelly joint' stood where Woody Hall now stands, students could go there or in front of Old Main gate and smoke," said Frank Bridges, associate professor of health education. Carter's was the 10 a.m. coffee break spot.

A cafeteria, such as it was, didn't make its appearance on campus until 1942 and remained an overcrowded, grotesque looking sore spot until the University Center was built.

Edith Krappe, professor of English, recalls that in the 1930s, when the English and math departments were on the third floor of Old Main, there was just one telephone and one electric light to each floor,

ARTIST'S SKETCH OF FIRST OLD MAIN BUILDING

"and bats in the attic," she said.

"If you think it's been hot this summer, you should have been here the summer of 1930. It reached 114 degrees that summer and there wasn't even a drinking fountain on the third floor. By the time you had climbed the stairs from the first floor to the third after getting a drink, you needed another," Mrs. Krappe said.

Back then the summer session consisted of two six-week sessions; a student could attend one or both of them. It was early rise and shine, though -- classes began at 7 a.m.

For a girl to expose her ankles was no longer a disgrace as it was in the 1890s, but all the girls wore some sort of hosiery. They didn't go bare-legged.

Girls couldn't expect as much from a date in the '40s as they can now. A bit of advice to freshmen lasses from the 1940-41 handbook goes like this: "And, gals, don't expect a big spread every time a fellow asks you to go for a walk. College men don't have too much extra cash. You might even suggest a 'Dutch Treat' occasionally."

How much did it cost to go to SIU in the '40s? About $300!

This included tuition and fees, room and board, lab fees, and spending money for the entire year.

Activities consisted mostly of dances, organizations, and YM and YWCA. The Obelisk was first printed in 1914 and the first Egyptian came out as a weekly in 1920.

When cars first came on campus, parking was no problem, according to Bridges.

"You could rent parking spaces around the circle drive of Old Main. If you parked in the wrong space though, the janitor of Old Main chained your tires together," he recalled.

Mud Holes No More

Well-Equipped Lake-on-Campus Offers Recreation for Students and Faculty

By Ed Pluzynski

The Lake-on-the-Campus today probably is the most important center of recreation and activity at SIU, if you don't count the University Center. But it wasn't always that way.

"I remember Thompson Lake, as it was called back in 1951," explained Walter Coonan, an SIU alumnus. "At that time it wasn't really a lake, but more like a smelly slough."

That's when the lake was Carbondale's lake, he added.

"Students just didn't go there."

If students wanted to go swimming in 1953 they could easily do so because the newly constructed University pool had just been opened.

Before 1953 the only swimming done around Carbondale was at Crab Orchard Lake or Little Grassy Lake. Buses were regularly scheduled for the convenience of students who didn't have cars.

Today students and faculty alike are no longer inconvenienced by having to travel 10 to 15 miles for a refreshing swim. Now they only need go as far as the Lake-on-the-Campus.

The lake was created about 60 years ago by damming a small stream. The remains of that old stream can still be seen in the ravine below the dam, but there are no signs of it any place above the dam.

Today the lake's principal water supply is from the surface runoff of its watershed.

The lake's surface is approximately 40 acres and its maximum depth is 19 feet. At the time of the original damming, the maximum depth was 25 to 30 feet. Now the lake's average depth is nine feet when filled.

The shoreline of the lake is irregular with a number of fingers running in various directions. The watershed is well covered with all types of vegetation.

The lake has been drained and restocked several times during its existence. The most recent draining was done in October, 1958. The purpose was to build swimming, boating and fishing facilities. While construction progressed for over a year, the

Campus Lake Remains Open

Facilities at the Lake-on-the-Campus will remain in operation during the first portion of the fall term.

The regular schedule for the beach and boathouse will remain in effect.

Swimming is permitted from 1 to 7 p.m. daily. Canoes, bicycles and recreation equipment may be checked out at the boathouse daily.

Lake-on-the-Campus was a series of mud holes and almost completely dry.

Although the lake was scheduled to be opened in the Summer of 1959, it was not because of a lack of water in the lake. However, some time during the fall of 1959 the water level increased and students and faculty rejoiced. "Thompson Lake" had finally been opened.

After this grand opening, students found many new sources of recreation. The lake now had 25 fishing piers, seven picnic area, a boat dock, a guarded beach and swimming area and a public bath house.

This newly constructed recreation area was done only for the students' benefit, said John Loneragan, University landscape architect, "and no school classes will be allowed to use the facilities that might hinder the students."

"If a student wants to use a boat," he added, "we don't want the boats tied up by some class."

For those students and faculty who don't like boating but prefer fishing under one of the many shade trees along the lake shore, many types of scaly craniate vertebrate will delight the angler.

In 1950 a master's thesis was written about the fish population in Thompson's Lake. The writer, Jack W. West, found several species of fish in the lake.

The following is a list of the fish: bluegill, warmouth bass, green sunfish, northern brown bullhead, western golden shiner, pumpkinseed, western creek chubsucker, carp, blackstripe top minnow and western mosquitofish.

Mystery Surrounds Old Main Cannon

Two of the most mysterious things on campus involve a single landmark--the cannon in front of Old Main.

"Where did it come from in the first place?" and "Who paints it about twice a week?" are two of the hardest questions to answer this side of a freshman English quiz.

Firmly planted in concrete in front of the Old Main flag pole--so the more energetic pranksters can't carry it off--the cannon maintains a dignified--if colorful--silence.

One theory dates it back to the Civil War. The late E.H. G. Lentz, former faculty member, thought the Cairo chapter of the Grand Army of the Republic gave it to SIU sometime during the 1890s. The GAR's Memorial Day parade used to start on the campus each year.

Another theory is that it was among 2,000 breach-loading cadet rifles, 100 sabres and two cannons given SIU by the War Department when the University established a military department in 1878.

What happened to the breach-loaders, the sabres and other cannon, no one seems to know. But everyone knows what happened and continues to happen to the Old Main cannon.

"It gets about three coats of paint a week," a spokesman for the Security Office said. "It's been given turpentine baths many times in order to restore it to its natural color. But students continue to paint it anyway."

The cannon is plugged with cement now. But that wasn't until some students, a number of years ago, filled it with powder, nails, bolts, rock and any other thing they could find, lighted the fuse and ran.

To their surprise--at least they claim they were surprised--the old girl exploded, hurling the debris down University Avenue, shattering windows in its path. One report has it that some of the debris reached Mill Street.

Since that time, students have had to be content with painting it. Occasionally someone tries tar and feathers but that takes a little longer and the culprits don't like to dally.

Perhaps they have heard of the time in the early '50s when two students were caught with paint brushes in hand applying a new color to the cannon. The following day both boys were reprimanded and had to spend several hours with turpentine and old rags scraping and cleaning.

And to their surprise, there was a cannon under all that paint and not a .45 caliber pistol, as one rumor has it.

CAMPUS MYSTERY - Just where the Old Main Cannon came from and who paints it several times a week remain the biggest mysteries on campus. You'll hear all sorts of tales about it, particularly if you are a girl, but most of them aren't true.

Reception Planned For Dean Clark

The three professional honor societies in education will sponsor a reception for Elmer J. Clark, dean of the College of Education on Oct. 4 in the University Center Ballroom.

The reception, from 2 to 5 p.m., will be given by members of Pi Lambda Theta for women, Phi Delta Kappa for men, and Kappa Delta Pi, for both men and women.

Members of the faculty of the College of Education will receive special invitations.

"The purposes of this activity are to increase the faculty-student contact and to acquaint the Dean with honor students in the College of Education," said Alice ReCTOR, faculty adviser to Pi Lambda Theta.

Flu Shots Offered At Health Service

The Health Service has announced that flu shots are available to students, staff and faculty members.

Edna A. Bradley, assistant director of the Health Service, said that interested persons should go to the pharmacy to purchase the shots, and then take the vaccine to the Health Service where it will be administered.

Upperclassman Lists Don'ts For Benefit of Freshmen

By Leonor Wall

Rules, rules, rules. We all know that rules are made to be broken by those who are nervous enough to try it.

There are rules to be followed while at the table, rules of etiquette to follow in the company of others, rules of smoking in proper places, rules on income tax procedure, rules on how to grow up and how not to grow up.

But most important to the SIU freshman are some rules that may not appear in the official guide books but ones which are important to know.

Here is the practical list of don'ts:

Impress not your teachers by always having an answer to their every question. Save your strength, as your grades are based for the most part on test results and not on your vocal endeavors.

Volunteer not for any additional assignments; you will find that you will have sufficient work to keep yourself busy.

Think not that Southern is partyville where you can play around for your first couple of years. You had better spread your fun time around, or you will find that you will be here an extra year or two.

Be not the first to use the vending machines. Observe how others use them and perhaps you can pick up some pointers on the use of slugs instead of those precious nickles, dimes and quarters that disappear so quickly.

Be not the first one on the dance floor. Just because you thought of yourself as an Arthur or Katherine Murray in executing those cute high school steps, don't think that you will set your college friends on their ears. You will find, more often than not, they will have some new steps that you haven't seen and you will show yourself to be definitely not "in."

Attention fellows. If your father is a career Air Force man, be not too enthusiastic about ROTC, at least when in conversation with others, because many fellows are not in favor of it.

Be not misled by what you think is a fool-proof system in having first-class false identification cards. It is an old trick and one that is usually not very successful.

Salukis to Show Pro

By Richard La Susa

Fast backs, light and agile linemen and the accurate passing arm of a junior quarterback appear to be the key features of SIU's 1964 football offensive.

A number of new faces and offensive plays also will make their appearance in McAndrew Stadium Saturday night, when the Salukis meet Louisville University.

Headlining Southern's pro-style offensive attack is junior quarterback Jim Hart from Morton Grove.

Hart, who completed 72 of 152 passes for 1,041 yards and 14 touchdowns in his rookie year last season, is rated as one of the best quarterbacks in SIU history. The 6-1, 195-pounder's chief forte last year was a strong and accurate passing arm and the ability to move the ball club like a seasoned veteran. More of the same is expected from Hart this season.

Providing company for Hart in the Saluki backfield are a number of talented and experienced runners.

On the basis of spring drills, Salukis expected to see considerable action in SIU's starting backfield alignment are halfback Rich Weber, fullback Bill Fudala and flanker-back Rudy Phillips.

Weber, a 175-pound junior speedster from Mattoon, is the likely candidate for the starting left halfback position. The speedy crowdpleaser was Southern's top rusher in his rookie year last season. The 22-year-old Weber carried the ball 38 times for 257 yards -- an average of 6.6 yards per carry.

The interesting thing about Weber is, he only played four of the Salukis nine games in 1963. In Southern's first game of the season against Louisville, Weber broke into the Saluki lineup in auspicious fashion with a startling 9 yard touchdown run against the Cardinals.

The rugged little Saluki backed up the running chores until he was sidelined with a broken jaw during the Ft. Campbell contest. Weber showed well in spring drills and is expected to return back at full strength Saturday night.

A probable starter at fullback is newcomer Bill Fudala, a transfer student from the University of Illinois (Chicago), also was one of the bright spots in spring practice this year. The 23-year-old 6-1, 225-pound junior is a full blocker and a strong runner and is expected to provide the needed power running for the Saluki offense.

Perhaps the most difficult problem facing coach Shroyer at this time is placing offensive star Hal

Bobbitt, whose untimely death this summer deprived Southern of one of the finest pass catchers in the school's annals, (Bobbitt set an SIU pass-catching record with 34 receptions good for 503 yards and five touchdowns last year and tied for the team scoring lead with 30 points.)

Hoping to fill the shoes of his predecessor is another little speedster, Rudy Phillips.

Phillips, a 5-9, 175-pound sophomore from Decatur, is one of the fastest men on the Saluki squad. But, while speed is his chief asset, Phillips lacks experience.

If Phillips is unable to make the grade, sophomores Dennis Gieseke and Wayne Thames will be given a shot at the flankerback position.

Joining the flankerbacks on the receiving end of Hart's passes are a number of veteran ends, led by returning lettermen Bonnie Shelton, Tom Massey, Mike McGinnis and newcomer Ron Leonard.

Shelton and Massey are the top candidates for the important split-end position. Both saw considerable action in that capacity in 1963. Last year, Shelton enjoyed his best season since joining the Salukis in 1962. The 6-3, 205-pound senior from Columbus, Ga., pulled down 13 passes for 219 yards and five touchdowns, to tie for the team lead in scoring with 30 points.

Massey, a sophomore from Runnemede, N.J., tied Shelton and Bobbitt for the team scoring honors in 1963 when he caught 20 passes good for 406 yards and five touchdowns. Massey's chief assets are experience, pass-catching ability and speed.

Vying for the tight-end position vacated by veteran Bill Lepsi (since moved to tackle) are McGinnis and Leonard.

McGinnis, a 6-1, 181-pound junior from Pittsfield, played defensive halfback last year but has the range and speed to make him a definite threat to capture the tight-end spot.

Leonard is a 5-11, 200-pound transfer student from Chicago's Wright Junior College who showed exceptionally well in last spring's practice. Leonard also displayed fine tackling ability and may be used on defense by Shroyer.

Hoping to provide a solid

COACH DON SHROYER SUPERVISES TEAM EXERCISES

Takes Game Seriously

Don Shroyer Is Perfectionist In Demands Placed on Players

Don Shroyer is a veteran football coach who demands 100 per cent from his players. And he expects to get it.

Shroyer, who took over the reins as head SIU football coach last January, is a determined and aggressive individual who takes his football seriously.

The new Saluki coach is an old hand at the game. When SIU opens its 1964 season against Bowling Green Saturday, it marks the start of Shroyer's 13th year as a grid coach—five years as coach of Carmel High School in Southern Illinois, six as head grid mentor at Millikin University in Decatur and two as defensive backfield coach with the professional St. Louis Football Cardinals.

A native of Lovington, Shroyer came to SIU determined to build a successful and smooth-running Saluki football machine. In order to achieve this goal, the 38-year-old Saluki head master feels that his players must be subjected to strong discipline and large doses of tutoring in the fundamentals of football.

Fundamentals (the mastery of basic football skills) and discipline appear to be the basis of Shroyer's coaching technique. "Shroyer," said one SIU football assistant, is a firm believer in fundamentals, and precision. He expects his players to master fundamentals, and to master them well."

According to Shroyer, "no boy can expect to be a good football player unless he knows the basic fundamentals of the game."

Last spring's grueling football drills were centered mainly around fundamentals, as Shroyer ran his players through a series of rudimentary running, blocking and tackling drills.

The second barrel in Shroyer's double-barrelled approach to football is discipline.

"When a boy makes a mistake during practice or in a game," said one of Shroyer's assistants, "Don lets the player know about it with a curt injection of constructive criticism."

Shroyer has the ability to chastise a boy and make him like it," added another assistant.

Shroyer is a frank individual and never hesitates to point out players' mistakes. But Shroyer's method of criticism differs from the norm. When a player makes a mistake, instead of telling the boy what the error was and deriding him for making it, he expects the offender to explain the miscue and tell how he will avoid making the same mistake next time.

Before spring drills opened, there was rumor circulating among the football candidates that Shroyer was a "rough" coach and that he demanded a lot from his players. Well, Shroyer is rough and he does demand a lot from his players. But his boys respect him highly.

According to one of the head coach's star players,

"Shroyer is a firm individual who follows the old-school coaching philosophy that the mastery of fundamentals, strict discipline and hard work, sound minds and an adequate amount of football ability are the basis of a sound football team."

"Shroyer is the first coach I've ever played under that expects a player to know the answers to any questions pertaining to his position," said one Saluki lineman. "You really have to be wide awake and on your toes at all times or you're quickly on Shroyer's "black list," the player added.

In addition to Shroyer's insistence on discipline and the mastery of fundamentals, the new head coach places heavy emphasis on academic achievement.

"Shroyer is extremely interested in a boy's scholastic achievement," said backfield coach Jerry Hart. "Even when recruiting young football players, he looks for boys with high academic ability and interest," Hart added.

In Shroyer's estimation, today's football is so advanced and complex that a team must be built on a foundation of intelligent and quick-thinking players, if it is going to achieve any measure of success.

Shroyer, who masters the English language like a professor of linguistics, has been attached to football since his high school playing days. The Saluki coach starred for Millikin University from 1947 to 1950 and had a brief trial with the professional Chicago Bears of the National Football League before turning to coaching in 1952.

Shroyer, who moved his family from Ferguson, Mo., to Carbondale this summer, is the father of two children—an 11-year-old daughter, Gail, and an 8-year-old son, Doug.

According to Shroyer's wife, Marilyn, the SIU's coach's life is centered around football. "Especially during football season," said Mrs. Shroyer. "In the fall Don eats, sleeps and talks football."

"But during the off-season," said Mrs. Shroyer, "Don enjoys refinishing old furniture, an occasional game of handball and back-yard cookouts, with Don coaching the cooking, of course."

How does Southern's handsome and hard working football coach relax during the football season? "By watching football on television," chimed Mrs. Shroyer.

OPPONENTS' VIEW? - In what appears to be a shot made by an opponents reconnaissance flight, the Saluki football team members seem to be mere specks on the gridiron. The perspective

Bulldozers Replace Goals

Play Areas Are Limited For Intramural Program

The fields will be different but the sports will be the same as SIU's intramural athletic program rolls into high gear next month.

Construction on the campus has nibbled available playing fields to practically nothing. Play will probably take place on the fields south of the lake, according to Glenn (Abe) Martin, head of intramural athletics.

Six sports will be on the fall schedule. They will include an estimated 3,400 men, Martin said.

Hole-in-one golf will tee off the program on Oct. 8. Martin expects about 35 men to participate in this event.

Flag football will begin the following day, with an estimated 1,600 participants, the largest number of all the fall intramural sports. It will be played on the "six or seven fields" south of the lake-on-the-campus.

"I think it would be ideal to be able to play the outdoor sports in the afternoon and at night," said Martin. "There are so many boys with afternoon and night classes who aren't able to participate in the afternoon. We tried this this summer and it worked out fine. I think this is something we can look forward to."

Bowling, second in the number of participants, provides recreation for about 500 men. There will be about 65 to 70 teams, with about seven or eight on each team, Martin said.

In addition to the two major intramural sports, about 40 men will participate in badminton.

Wrestling will also be offered on the program. Martin said that he expects 145 boys to participate. The standard college weight divisions will be used.

Basketball, long a popular sport in Southern Illinois will bring out an estimated 1,000 participants when it gets under way in the latter part of the quarter.

"We will need about eight courts," Martin said. "Each team will have to play twice a week. We will try to rotate the teams so they are able to play on all the courts. We hope to be able to use the facilities in the old gym, University school and the Arena."

Louisville Tilt To Open SIU Home Season

Louisville, the newest member of the Missouri Valley Conference, will be the Salukis first home opponent.

When the Cardinals meet the SIU team at 8 p.m. Saturday in McAndrew Stadium, it will be the first time the Louisville team has appeared here.

The Salukis took on the Cardinals last year in both football and basketball in Louisville and won both encounters.

The Salukis, who opened against Bowling Green last week while Louisville was facing Western Michigan, will rely heavily on accurate-throwing quarterback Jim Hart to spark their offense. Hart has three fine receivers in Tom Massey, Bonnie Shelton and Rudy Phillips and may be able to break his own passing record this fall.

Coach Don Shroyer is expected to stick with the remainder of his backfield as Richie Weber, Phillips and Monty Riffer all appear to be well established.

Southern's line, which averages 213 pounds per man, consists of Massey and Mike McGinnis at ends, Isaac Brigham and Bill Lepsi at the tackle positions, Mitchell Krawczyk and Vic Pantaleo at the guard spots and Gene Miller at center.

Training in Annapolis

Larry Kristoff, SIU Wrestler, Earns Olympic Squad Berth

Larry Kristoff, an SIU senior and the star of Coach Jim Wilkinson's wrestling squad, is training in Annapolis, Md., for the 1964 Olympic Games.

The 236-pound athlete won a place on the U.S. Olympic freestyle wrestling team by pinning fellow Illinoisan Bob Pickens of Evanston at the Olympic trials held in Annapolis.

A native of Carbondale and a former Carbondale Community High School grid star, Kristoff will be making his first trip to the Olympics. He is the first of Wilkinson's mat men to qualify for the U.S. team.

Kristoff also won the Olympic heavyweight wrestling trials held at the World's Fair before the Annapolis meet.

These impressive performances indicate that Kristoff has fully recovered from a shoulder injury that kept him from peak strength in the NCAA meet and sidelined him for the AAU meet earlier this year.

Previously he won the NCAA college division heavyweight title twice and last summer he won the Japanese national championship in the Tokyo Games, a pre-Olympic meet.

Kristoff will train in Annapolis until late this month, when he leaves for Tokyo. The wrestling finals will be held in Tokyo Oct. 11-17.

Hours Announced For Dove Hunting

Hours for mourning dove hunting are from noon until sunset, Central Standard Time, every day of the season, William T. Lodge, director of the Illinois Department of Conservation announced.

Dove hunters sometimes forget that Illinois is on Daylight Time and that they must not begin dove hunting until 1 p.m. Daylight Time, Lodge said.

The mourning dove season began Sept. 1, and ends at sunset Monday, Nov. 9.

Now Students Must Pay

Sports Tickets Go on Sale

Saturday night's football encounter with Louisville will usher in a new era for SIU sports.

For the first time in the history of the SIU athletic program, students will have to pay to see Saluki sporting events.

Previously students supported the athletic program through an activity fee only.

Beginning this fall, students interested in viewing sports events will be required to purchase an activity passbook or single-game tickets.

Students will be given the opportunity of saving up to 66 per cent by purchasing a $6 season pass, according to Mrs. Neoma M. Kinney, athletic ticket manager.

Ticket books for fall athletic events are on sale at Textbook Service in Morris Library, the University Center and the Arena, and may be purchased at a cost of $3.

The books will be sold at the Arena from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. through Friday, until 8 p.m. Wednesday and until noon Saturday.

They may also be purchased at the University Center from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday and Friday, and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Textbook Service will have the books on sale from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday.

Students wishing to purchase the activity books--officially called Student Athletic Event Admission Tickets--will be required to present their fee statements or fall activity cards.

The fall passbook will entitle its owner to attend six Saluki home football games, four fall basketball games, two wrestling matches and two gymnastics meets.

Winter quarter activity books for all remaining basketball, gymnastics and wrestling contests will sell throughout the fall quarter, for $3.50, or can be purchased along with the fall quarter book at a combined cost of $6. Individual books for winter quarter only will be sold throughout the fall quarter.

Passes contained in the activity book can be exchanged for a ticket the day before a football game.

Tickets for Saturday's encounter with Louisville will be on sale at the University Center from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Students who wish to attend football games this fall, but do not want to buy a season's activity book, may purchase individual tickets for 75 cents during the week before the game.

However, a student failing to purchase an individual ticket before 5 p.m. the day of the game will be required to pay the regular admission price, $2.25.

The passes and individual tickets are available only to students who have paid their activity fees. Otherwise, the $2.25 regular admission price must be paid at each football game.

Football tickets, both season and single game, are good only for admittance to student seats in the east stands in McAndrew Stadium. All seats are unreserved.

Bill Brown, assistant director of athletics, said that "The funds derived from the sale of student tickets will be used to bring better Saluki opponents to Carbondale and to bolster Southern's athletic fund."

There will be no admission charged for next spring's baseball games or golf matches.

Former Stars Gone

SIU Gymnasts Face Stiff Fight for Crown

How secure is SIU's NCAA gymnastic crown? Can the Salukis repeat their championship performance again this year with star performer, Rusty Mitchell, missing from the lineup?

Coach Bill Meade acknowledges that the prospects of finding a replacement for Mitchell are not "bright." Mitchell, after all, amassed 166 points last season as the team's leading scorer. The nearest point getter, Bill Wolfe, scored 148 points during the season.

In addition, Mitchell went unbeaten in dual meets in free exercise and tumbling events last season. He won the NCAA tumbling crown and led the Salukis to their first national title. Of the 84 1/2 points SIU scored in the championship meet, 41 were made by Mitchell.

Other performers missing from Meade's all-star lineup this year will be Chuck Ehrlich, Tom Geocarist and Henry Schafermeyer. Ehrlich scored 24 points, and Geocarist 21 on the still rings last season. Schafermeyer accumulated 18 points on the side horse.

These losses will hurt but Meade still has lettermen Bill Wolfe, Steve Pasternak, Bill Hladik and Tom Cook returning.

"Although we won't have an individual star like another Rusty Mitchell, we have several newcomers to bolster some of our events," Meade said.

These newcomers are sophomores Rick Tucker, all-around man from Covington, La., who is at his best on the high bars; Larry Lindauer from Los Angeles, whose best events are free exercise and parallel bars; Mike Boegler, a transfer student from Flint, Mich., Junior College, whose specialty is the side horse; Brent Williams from Miami, whose specialties are the trampoline and free exercise; and Bob Dvorak from Westchester, Ill., whose specialty is the trampoline.

"With newcomers like Williams and Dvorak on the team, we should have a strong trampoline entry," said Meade. Southern didn't compete in the trampoline event last year.

A product of Penn State, where he was a standout tumbler, Meade will begin his 16th year of coaching. He taught at the University of North Carolina for seven years before coming here in the fall of 1956.

His 1957 and 1958 teams did not place in either of the NCAA championship meets but in 1959 Meade led his upcoming SIU squad to a seventh-place finish and duplicated the performance the following year.

In 1961 the Saluki gymnasts moved up to second place as sophomore sensation Fred Orlofsky earned 29 points in a near upset win over heavily favored Penn State.

With Orlofsky, Mitchell, Fred Tijerina and Bruno Klaus anchoring the team, Southern maintained its runner-up position for the next two years, finishing behind Southern California in 1962 and Michigan in 1963.

However, 1964 was Southern's year. The Saluki gymnasts won their first NCAA sports championships in the finals held at Los Angeles State College.

The top five team's scoring: SIU--84 1/2 points.

Southern California--69 1/2 points.

Michigan--65 points.

Penn State and Washington--30 points.

This year Meade and his gymnasts have the difficult task of defending its championship. But one thing in the team's favor is that it will be defending its championship on its own floor as the 1965 NCAA championships will be held in the new SIU Arena.

Bowling Reservations Accepted For Faculty, Student Leagues

The University Center Bowling Lanes is now accepting reservations for faculty, staff and student leagues.

Henry Villani, manager of the University Center alleys, said there are openings for teams and individuals.

The tentative schedule calls for the men's faculty-staff league to meet on Mondays at 6:30 and 9 p.m. The schedule for the women's faculty-staff league will be determined at an Oct. 1 organizational meeting.

The men's student league will compete Monday through Thursday at 6 p.m. and the girls' student league will meet Thursdays at 6 p.m. An all-Greek league will meet Sundays at 1 p.m.

The student leagues will be divided into two sections with the winners of the sections meeting to determine the overall winner. Also, there will be position rounds to determine third and fourth place.

All matches will consist of three games and will operate on an 80 per cent of 190 handicap. The four-point system will be used in which a point is given for each game won plus a point for high series.

The cost of participating in the league is $1.05 per night.

Professional-Type Saluki Offense Machine To Mix Sharp Passing, Speed, Agile Line

forward wall for the Saluki backs is a strong and agile line, made up of a host of returning veterans and a few new prospects.

Heading a list of eight guards--six of whom are returning lettermen--are 1963 standouts Vic Pantaleo and Mitchell Krawczyk.

Pantaleo, moved to the guard spot this spring, was a star lineman at Chicago's Weber High School and performed well as a rookie tackle last season. According to the football staff, the big 6-1, 225 lineman has the potential to develop into one of Southern's top linemen this season.

Krawczyk, Cleveland, Ohio, also was a standout performer last season, and the 5-10, 222-pound junior is expected to anchor the offensive line this fall.

Other candidates for the starting guard positions include lettermen Paul Della Vecchia and Yale Corcoran and sophomores Lewis Hines and Larry Wolfe.

Rounding out the Salukis' interior line is a pack of burly tackles headed by newcomer Isaac Brigham, former tight-end Bill Lepsi, Jim Westoff and Bob Dodd.

Brigham, a 6-3, 221-pound freshman and former army football standout, is considered to be the top varsity player added to this year's team. A first-string tackle on Ft. Campbell's football team for the past three years, Brigham was discharged in time for spring drills here and showed fine form and a bit of veteran poise at his right tackle position.

Expected to start at the left tackle spot is former end Bill Lepsi. Lepsi, a hefty 6-2, 240-pound ball player from Chicago, was shifted from his end spot to bolster Southern's thin tackle corps. An aggressive player, Lepsi has pleased Saluki followers for the past three seasons.

Westoff, a product of St. Louis's Mercy High School, is a 6-2, 215-pound tackle who missed the entire 1963 season with a knee injury. The preseason injury occurred just as the SIU junior was hitting his peak and bidding for a starting line assignment. But medical reports and his play in spring drills indicate that Westoff once again is sound and ready to battle for a starting tackle job.

Bob Dodd, Virden, is a junior who saw little action in his first season with the varsity last year. The 6-0, 210-pounder performed well in spring drills and must be considered a serious candidate for a starting assignment.

The center spot on Southern's forward wall is well fortified, with four Salukis competing for a starting berth. The four are veteran lettermen Gene Miller and Ben Hill and rookies Gary Olson and Bob Toberman.

Miller, Benton, and Hill, Owaneco, shared the starting center task last season and are being counted on to form the nucleus of his year's Saluki center corps.
