Fleerlage to testify Monday at airline service hearing

By Wayne Markham
Staff Writer

City Attorney George Fleerlage was appointed by the Carbondale City Council Tuesday night to represent the city at a Federal Aviation Administration hearing into airline service affecting Carbondale.

Fleerlage will testify at the FAA hearing April 7 in Springfield along with representatives from Ong Airlines, which discontinued its service to Carbondale three months ago.

According to Carbondale Mayor David Keene, another airline has since indicated a desire to begin service to Carbondale with flights that could begin as early as April 21.

Representatives from the newly-formed Chicago and Southern Airlines Inc. sent Keene a telegram Tuesday setting back the date for possible inauguration of service to the April 21 date. They had originally told the mayor that they could begin operating as early as April 15.

Keene was originally scheduled to appear at the FAA hearing but an earlier appointment with state officials necessitated his request to the city council to approve a substitute.

The mayor said Fleerlage will have to decide at the hearing whether to oppose Ong Airline's withdrawal or to support it and thus pave the way for the Chicago and Southern Airline franchise.

James Riley, a representative of the new airline corporation, told Keene that "we will give better service than Ong did." Keene told the city council members that he was confident the new airline would be a great asset if it could make good its promises.

In other action the city council passed a motion halting further tapping into the city's northeast sewer system. A petition opposing further tap-ins was read to the council from the Northeast Community Development Congress.

The council motion will prohibit all taps "until further notice." In addition, a second motion rescinding a building permit to the J. A. Robinson Construction Co. for an apartment complex on the northeast sewer system was also passed.

The Northeast Community Development Congress petition objected to the building permit issuance on grounds that a 1966 city ruling had halted any extensions to the already overloaded sewer system on the city's northeast side.

Councilman Frank Kirk said that since the permit was issued at 5 p.m. Monday the council's Tuesday night action did not constitute any undue hardship to the construction company.

The company had proposed to build a 185-unit apartment complex with 42 units expected to be in operation by fall quarter.

Open Forum with council candidates set for April 15

Candidates in the April 15 Carbondale City Council race will appear at an "open forum" for SIU students and faculty from 3-5 p.m. Thursday in the River Rooms of the University Center.

The question and answer session was set up by student government. Sam Panayotovich, student body president, will act as moderator for the discussion.

All four candidates running for the city council posts, Hans Fischer, Archie Jones, Frank Kirk and Randall Nelson, confirmed they would attend the open forum.

Panayotovich said that questions may be addressed to individual candidates but that all candidates will be given the opportunity to respond.

Each of the city council candidates outlined various areas of student interests they hoped to consider.

Hans Fischer, a Carbondale architect seeking his first elected office, said "one of the areas I'm concerned about involves police relations with students. I feel there is a strong need to educate students about their rights and inform police about their responsibilities."

Fischer, who first suggested the meeting with students in a letter to Panayotovich last quarter, named various other concerns, among them, adequate housing code enforcement, traffic control and pedestrian crosswalk facilities.

Archie Jones, retired principal at Attucks Grade School, said he was glad of the opportunity to address the student and faculty populations.

While he did not name any specific problem he wished to review, Jones indicated he would answer any questions that might be raised.

Incumbent councilman, Frank Kirk, said he would like to "talk about the kinds of revenue problems the city has as it relates to the kinds of developments and improvements affecting students."

Kirk said he felt it was important to recognize the financial difficulties the city faces in such issues as police-community relations, street improvement and sidewalk construction.

Ogilvie recommends 4 per cent income tax

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie asked the Illinois Legislature Tuesday to approve a $1.3 billion a year boost in state spending, supported by a bold new $1.1 billion tax program anchored in a 4 per cent income levy.

New programs are aid to private and parochial education, and direct state grants to local governments.

Surprised Democratic minority critics of the Republican governor called the $4.4 billion annual budget the largest, the spending and taxes the highest, and the percentage increase unprecedented.

Rep. John Touhy and Sen. Thomas A. McGloin both of Chicago, noting higher taxes for roads are still to come, said, "No relief is in sight for the low income taxpayer who is paying almost 15 per cent of his income in sales and property taxes."

Fire in woods

A Carbondale fireman rushes a water hose to extinguish a brush fire which burned off about one quarter acre of ground in Thompson Woods Tuesday about 3:10 p.m. The fire, of undetermined origin, started along the walk leading from the Agriculture Building to University Center and spread toward Morris Library. The strong wind carried the fire too swiftly for it to become hot enough to damage the trees, according to Calvin Bey, research forster with the U.S. Forest Service. (Photo by John Lopinot.)

All City Council candidates will appear at open forum

"I think the idea of the forum is excellent," Kirk, who is a consultant for the Community Development Services at SIU, said.

The other incumbent councilman in the race, Randall Nelson, professor of government at SIU, praised the achievements of the present city administration in bridging the gap between students and the city.

Nelson mentioned student housing code enforcement as one area where efforts have been made to help the student.

Lutheran Chapel to dedicate organ

A new pipe organ installed at the Lutheran Chapel affiliated with SIU will be formally dedicated April 13 with a guest performance by David Fienen, graduate student at Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, according to campus pastor Rueben Bearwald.

Wind-chests and pipes for the organ were built in Germany, by Werner Bosch Ogelbau. The console and part of the mechanism were built in the United States by Moller. The instrument was designed, built and installed by Midwest Organs of Granite City under the supervision of W. A. Brummer, representative of both Moller and Bosch, who also completed the voicing.

The Lutheran Student Center serves the 600-700 Missouri Synod Lutheran students enrolled at SIU, Bearwald said.

A challenge to our youth

Not in recent history, and perhaps never before, have young people, young rebels, and young critics had the opportunity and the challenge which are offered to them in Illinois this year.

A constitutional convention will build a new basic structure for our government. The state is preparing specifics for the creation of new experimental universities.

For those who disagree with the establishment, who want to see new concepts in government, who want new methods of control or instruction in higher education—for all who want to challenge the system, here is where the challenge can be made.

Here are two arenas for the confrontation, two forums which have publicly called for suggestions and ideas. The front door is wide open, and no one need bruise his knuckles beating at the back wall. The meaningful dialogue can begin.

The board of higher education and the constitutional convention have the authority to make decisions and offer specifics. Such an opportunity will not come again for decades.

Yet so far, in all the public meetings of the commissions, after their call for public meetings of the commissions, after their call for public participation, not a single young rebel has come in the front door.

As one who has participated in the activity of both the constitution groups and the education groups, I urge the ad hoc committees, the student militants, and all others who have an interest in preparing our society for the future to expend their efforts in positive contributions where the action is.

Even a violent revolution would not offer more than the chance to rewrite the constitution and implement new concepts of education, and that chance is being given now.

Come in through the front door. It's open and you are welcome!

A solution to the Dr. King issue?

To the Daily Egyptian:

At the risk of further confusing the issue, I would like to submit a possible solution to the issue of honoring Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. I believe that, for reasons I will go into below, the soon-to-be-built humanities building should be named after Dr. King.

I feel that the mere fact that we are "renaming" something cheapens and tarnishes the honor we wish to pay Dr. King. I can see no real honor for Dr. King if we simply "rename" something that has been used for several years. Especially if we are soon to have a brand new building at the center of our campus.

The administration may be dragging its feet because of the costs and legal technicalities involved in renaming University Park. How many books, pamphlets, contracts, etc., must be reprinted and signed if the present name is changed? At a time when the university will not even fill vacancies in the staff, the cost (even though a small per cent of the total budget) could be a formidable obstacle. Most, if not all of the cost could be eliminated by using an as yet unnamed building.

The administration has said that its policy is to name buildings only for people who have done something for SIU. By using a slightly liberal interpretation of this policy, I believe that Dr. King very easily qualifies. He may not have donated money or land to SIU, but SIU and all people connected with it have benefited, and will continue to benefit from the results of his work.

Some will say that this is just another attempt to put off those who wish to honor Dr. King. But I disagree. The administration could simply say that the new humanities building will be dedicated in honor of Dr. King and then work the details out between now and when the building is opened.

Regardless of the reception of my suggestion, the administration should do something more definite than saying "the matter is under advisement" or "these things take time." The students have gone through the "proper channels" with their proposal. Now a statement from the administration on the resulting problems would make the waiting easier.

British pull off a strange but silent invasion

By Dick Gregory

The recent British occupation of the tiny island of Anguilla must have posed torturing tactical image problems for former President Johnson. LBJ must be sitting sullenly at the ranch right now trying to figure out what Harold Wilson knows that he doesn't. A strange silence has muffled the voices which have protested invading occupation armies in the past. If LBJ invaded St. Thomas or St. Croix—like the Santo Domingo affair—the voices of protest would have echoed from American shores all around the world.

It is not as though the invasion of Anguilla did not provide an ideal focal point of protest for those sincerely interested in human rights. True opponents of colonialism—and the domination of imperialistic interests over the human spirit yearning for freedom—should experience no small amount of revulsion at seeing a tiny population of 6,000 being forcibly occupied by a major world power. And those who are inclined to see a relationship between racism, imperialism and military solutions should find a ready-made protest issue when the occupied population is black and the occupying forces are white, to say nothing of a display of military muscle sent by a nation whose own racial tensions are escalating and whose Parliament sessions frequently reflect the expressions of Klan-type sentiments.

Yet radical voices outside the establishment, and liberal voices within it, seem to be content to sit out the Anguilla escapade. Such a silent reaction has made people the world over wonder if radical and liberal voices are truly advocates of human rights or merely dissenting opponents of America and her actions. Of course, it is true that American actions throughout the world continually reflect a passionate disrespect for human rights. But the moral issue is more one of humanity than nationality.

Radical students in Great Britain have fervently protested America's actions in Vietnam. Yet they have failed to protest with equal vigor the actions of their own government. Does radical British student sentiment reflect anti-Americanism or anti-imperialism? If it is only anti-Americanism, the cause of humanity has not progressed much since the American Revolution. One would hope that radical British students today would share the spirit of America's founding fathers and would voice that spirit on behalf of anguished Anguilla.

It is also ironic that the Right Wing press in America has been more critical of the British Government and its occupation of Anguilla than the Left Wing students. Yet radical Left Wing protest against the war in Vietnam was so persistent that LBJ not only recognized the impossibility of re-election but also the clear mandate not to run again. But protest of the war in Vietnam is misguided if it is directed only against the actions of the President or America. The war in Vietnam is wrong because it represents manifest injustice and political and military action against humanity. Voices advocating the cause of the Third World must be much more inclusive than the mere expression of anti-Americanism. Imperialism is the basic issue, not a particular national expression of it.

Within the establishment, those senators and congressmen who were so vocal in protesting the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia have also failed to speak a good word for freedom on behalf of Anguilla. The question must be asked: Were those congressional voices merely expressing anti-communist sentiments or were they advancing the cause of human rights? If the latter was their intention, why the silence now during the West Indian crisis?

There is a profound difference between name-calling and labeling, and a real crusade for human rights. Protest based on "anti" sentiments will never contain a moral revolution for a new world order. Such protest can only serve to make clear the distinction between dissent and revolution.

AFROTC role continually questioned

By Tom Robb

"I am a dreamer. And the scope of my dreams stretches from horizon to horizon, beyond the skies, deep into space."

Five centuries ago, Leonardo da Vinci expressed a dream: to chart and explore the skies. Today this dream has become reality.

And at SIU a group of young men are training to be a part of that reality. They are members of the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps (AFROTC).

AFROTC reflects a part of American tradition—the military man. But tradition can be questioned, and across the nation's campuses students are wondering what place AFROTC has in an academic community.

During its 18 years at SIU, AFROTC has not gone unquestioned. For its first 14 years "Rotsee" was compulsory. Student reaction to this arrangement resulted in the formation of the Committee for the Abolition of Compulsory AFROTC in 1964.

The anti-AFROTC committee picketed President Delyte W. Morris' office and other campus buildings on several occasions in early 1964. The picketing led, in part, to an opinion poll in April, 1965 at both SIU campuses to help determine whether the University would retain compulsory AFROTC or make it elective. Students and faculty members indicated through the poll that they favored elective military training.

Program jointly approved

Under these circumstances the SIU Board of Trustees and the USAF jointly approved a completely voluntary AFROTC program in May, 1965.

"Today we offer both the two and the four-year program," said Capt. H. A. Staley, instructor of aerospace studies.

"The first two years of the four-year program are strictly voluntary. There is no obligation to commit yourself to active duty at this time."

During these two years the student earns six credit hours or aerospace studies which deal mainly with world military systems, philosophy of national power and national political objectives.

In addition, the student receives 60 non-credit hours of corps training during the first two years.

"This is in essence a laboratory where cadets experiment with and develop their leadership skills, techniques and attitudes," said Staley.

"At the end of the two-year voluntary program the student decides whether or not he will continue into the next two-year phase."

Based on competition

Not everyone can enter this second, two-year phase. Entrance is gained on a competitive basis. A potential USAF cadet must pass an officers qualifying test and a physical examination. He must also have at least a three-point overall grade average.

"Our job at this stage is to determine which students will become effective and competent, career-oriented officers," Staley said.

Once accepted, the cadet enters into two years of professional officer courses which deal primarily with human relations, management techniques and communications.

After his junior year, the cadet may choose to enter the flight instruction program (FIP). Here, civilian instructors give the cadet 36 1/2 hours of flight training at the USAF's expense.

At the end of the FIP the cadet is ready for graduation and a commission of second lieutenant in the USAF.

"Last year we commissioned 66 officers," Staley said. "At present there are 200 freshmen and sophomores and 77 upperclass cadets at SIU."

Four officer instructors

Instructing the students and cadets are four officers. An additional three airmen and two civilians make up the AFROTC administrative staff at Southern.

Ties between SIU's detachment and the USAF are maintained by AFROTC headquarters at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., and Scott AFB, Ill.

To insure a degree of uniformity among the nation's 175 detachments, instructors synchronize their teaching methods and goals at a six-week training course at headquarters.

A military classroom runs counter to the stereotyped rank and file rigidity, according to cadet Maj. Harold Zenner, a senior in journalism.

"The atmosphere is probably more relaxed than most people think. While cadets maintain their respect for their officers, they can ask him anything, knowing he'll do his best to answer."

"The point is, these officers are trained to create an atmosphere conducive to learning, and they do their best to achieve this," Zenner said.

Honorary organization

For cadets who excel in the classroom, there is the Arnold Air Society, an honorary organization devoted to bettering the image of AFROTC at SIU.

For the same purpose a select group of coeds form an auxiliary organization known as Angel Flight, according to Col. Edward C. Murphy, professor of aerospace studies.

Although AFROTC is academically accredited and although it provides auxiliary services to the University community, some persons still believe AFROTC has no place at SIU.

"The nation-wide dissent caused by the Vietnam war tends to rub off on AFROTC," said Murphy. "This is clearly the reason for opposition to our program. But I believe AFROTC is here to stay."

Flexible to change

Capt. Staley said AFROTC's future was insured by the fact that, "AFROTC is flexible and changes with the times. It must be this way since the USAF is designed to respond to the desires of the government."

"Therefore, the future of AFROTC must ultimately be a reflection of national objectives and philosophy," Staley said. "Yet, there are various groups in partial or total disagreement with us."

And much of this "animosity towards AFROTC stems from the stereotyped military man with the charge-of the light-brigade image."

"But times have changed," said Staley. "The military stereotype is out. Our job is simply to educate and commission college graduates as officers in the United States Air Force."

What kind of world?

Control of U. S. education becomes a question of growing importance

By Robert M. Hutchins

As education becomes more and more important, the question of who is to control it becomes more and more serious.

The U.S. Supreme Court has forbidden the states to discriminate among races in the schools. The federal government is using the power of the purse to back up the court.

The Supreme Court has forbidden the states to interfere with the free expression of a student's views, at least when such expression does not hamper the normal operation of the schools.

But the question of the curriculum remains. The court has lately shied away when invited to make a general ruling on the power of the state to forbid the study of a subject that the people or the legislature did not want taught.

It was not always so. Forty-five years ago the court held that a state could not forbid the teaching of German in the schools. The reasoning was that the liberty guaranteed by the 14th Amendment included the right to acquire knowledge, and that German was not put beyond the pale because we had lately been at war with the people who spoke it.

On this theory the state could not deprive its children of the opportunity to study any generally accepted subject of instruction.

When the court came the other day to face the act passed by the people of Arkansas making it a crime to teach the theory of evolution, it declined to avail itself of the precedent offered by its decision on the prohibition of German. Without expressly saying so, the court seemed to be overruling its previous holding.

It said the anti-evolution act was unconstitutional. But it did so on the ground it was intended to establish fundamentalist religious views in Arkansas and was in contravention of the religion clauses of the First Amendment.

All the opinions emphasized the complete control of the state over the curriculum. In the light of this case, we can say that the court regards the school as an engine of the state, set up to accomplish whatever purposes the legislature may have in mind, with the proviso that the state may not regulate the schools in the interest of religion or of any religious group.

The expressions of Justice Hugo Black, who concurred in the result, are sweeping—and alarming.

According to him, a teacher has no right to teach any subject "the school managers do not want discussed." He says the state could eliminate higher mathematics or astronomy or biology from its curriculum. Apparently it could eliminate any subject on any ground.

Justice Black says, "There is no reason I can imagine why a state is without power to withdraw from its curriculum any subject deemed too emotional and controversial for its public schools."

In Alabama one of the most emotional and controversial subjects is the American Constitution as interpreted by the Supreme Court. Justice Black cannot mean that Alabama could withdraw this subject from its curriculum. At some point he would have to say the state was interfering with the constitutional right of the child to get an education.

Is education whatever the legislature says it is? Does the constitution afford no protection against legislative ignorance or hysteria? If not, it fails to do in education what it purports to accomplish in every other branch of our national life.

The court that tried the Arkansas anti-evolution case held the law unconstitutional on clear, sensible grounds. It said the statute "tends to hinder the quest for knowledge, restrict the freedom to learn and restrain the freedom to teach." In this perspective, it held the law an unconstitutional and void restraint upon the freedom of speech guaranteed by the Constitution.

This is the line that future decisions of the Supreme Court ought to take.

New names painted on Morris Library

Morris Library defaced

By Mary Frazer
Staff Writer

Morris Library got another name—Lenny Bruce Memorial Library—Monday night.

The additional title was written in red paint on portions of the front of the Library by person or persons unknown.

Ferris S. Randall, Director of Morris Library, said he did not know who did the writing. He said it must have been done sometime late Monday night.

Randall said this was the first time the exterior of the building had been defaced.

"Lenny Bruce has become a hero of the underworld and the writing might have been done in defiance of the administration," said Alan Cohn, humanities librarian.

An obituary appearing in Newsweek Magazine in 1966 said Bruce was one of the first and foremost "sick" humorists in America.

The writing will have to be removed through sand blasting, according to a spokesman from the physical plant. He estimated the project to cost $150.

Sandblasting has been used in the past to remove paint on the exterior of the University Center and the General Classroom Building.

Counts to participate in educator meetings

George S. Counts, professor of educational administration and foundations at SIU, will have a principal part in activities in New York City, St. Paul, and Monroe, La., during the next six weeks.

Counts will be in New York April 22 as a member of a selection committee that will choose winners of college scholarships given by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union. He has served on this committee since 1957, when the scholarship program was initiated by the half-million member union. The scholarships go to children of union members. Counts said he was told last year that there had never been a dropout among those selected.

May 1 he will be at Northeastern Louisiana State College at Monroe to speak to key school personnel from Mississippi, Arkansas, and Louisiana who are taking part in project LIFT, designed to prepare school people to become change agents in public schools and their home communities. Project director is Oliver Hensley, who completed his work for the Ph.D. at SIU.

May 12-13 he will speak to Minnesota educators at a conference sponsored by the University of Minnesota department of educational administration. On the first morning he will tell of his insights and experiences in education to 35 professors of educational administration, and will spend the afternoon in an informal discussion of topics of interest to educators. The following day he will meet with graduate students from a number of institutions of higher education.

For Eisenhower funeral

Abilene prepares homage

ABILENE, Kan. (AP) — While a funeral train bore his body across the country Tuesday, Dwight D. Eisenhower's home town prepared to pay him final homage within a few steps of his boyhood home.

Helicopters in Salina, 23 miles away, will bring President Nixon to the ceremony after he flies there from Washington.

Army authorities estimated between 50,000 and 100,000 persons will flood into Abilene to watch the funeral procession cover the 12 blocks from a railway siding to the gleaming Eisenhower Library where the funeral services would be conducted.

The special train bringing the former president's body was expected to reach Abilene Wednesday morning. Plans called for the casket to be moved to a hearse at 11 a.m. EST Wednesday.

Along the train's westward route, thousands gathered in cities and villages, at the few stops and at crossings in tribute to the former president.

Nearly 6,000, police estimated, turned out in the southern Indiana city of Seymour to watch the train pass through the town of 13,000. School children were dismissed from classes to join the crowd.

In other places, too, flag-waving school children marked the passage. At Huntington, W. Va., thousands gathered in the early morning chill when the train made a 12-minute stop in the city. Hundreds stood at trackside in other West Virginia communities.

A color guard of war veterans assembled in Huntington for a brief ceremony. A Negro girl from the Job Corps sang a hymn, and then the crowd joined in the Lord's Prayer.

Eisenhower's widow, Mamie, and their son, John, and other members of the family were aboard the train. Whether they would remain in their cars until the beginning of the rites was not disclosed. An Army official said Mrs. Eisenhower had requested that all such information be kept private.

Meanwhile, the train headed westward toward St. Louis, almost back on schedule after earlier delays. It left Cincinnati at 10:38 a.m. and was due in St. Louis late Tuesday.

Elaborate ceremonies had been planned at the Cincinnati Union Terminal during a one-hour layover, but were canceled at the request of the Eisenhower family.

At Mrs. Eisenhower's behest, the C&O draped the funeral car with black bunting and American flags while the train stopped in Cincinnati.

Edgar Eisenhower, older brother of the former president, emerged from the train briefly to extend the family's thanks to officials and the City of Cincinnati and other cities which had planned the memorial.

An honor guard composed of men from all branches of the armed services stationed itself at the railroad siding, for the all-night vigil.

In Abilene, plans called for the 5th Army Band to play the hymn, "God of Our Fathers," as the casket is transferred to a hearse and the cortege proceeds toward Third Street, the main east-west thoroughfare.

Eisenhower was born in Denison, Tex. His parents moved to Abilene when he was a year old.

Preparations include the traditional Army ceremony—removal of the flag from the casket and presenting it, folded, to Mrs. Eisenhower.

This immediately follows the playing of the anthem, "West Point Alma Mater."

Other music selected for the rites included "Lead Kindly Light," "Army Blue," and "The Old Rugged Cross."

Legislators jolted by income tax proposed

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — "It's a big jolt" was a typical reaction among legislators Tuesday to Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's proposal for a state income tax.

Few lawmakers gave the budget program their outright endorsement and Ogilvie himself received no applause when he delivered his message to a joint session.

Sen. W. Russell Arrington of Evanston, Republican majority leader, said he wasn't surprised there wasn't an enthusiastic response because Ogilvie was "depicting the stark financial reality" facing the state.

Arrington wouldn't predict whether the proposed 4 per cent income tax would pass but said, "I feel we'll live up to our responsibilities and do what is required."

He echoed Ogilvie's views that help from minority Democrats would be needed for legislative approval.

Sen. Paul Broyles, R-Mount Vernon, said he has always opposed an income tax and will continue to do so.

"This is a big jolt," Broyles commented. "I'll support the governor where I can but I was hoping our leaders would talk about conservative government and pull in our belts."

Democratic leaders, although criticizing the budget, were cautious about expressing views on the fate of the income tax.

Rep. John Touhy and Sen. Thomas A. McGloin of Chicago said Ogilvie's budget gave no relief "for the low income taxpayer who is paying almost 15 per cent of his income in sales and property taxes."

"The middle income wage earner will be hardest hit by this proposed package," they said in a joint statement.

The two leaders, with some other Democrats, rapped Ogilvie for not proposing more than a $100 per pupil hike in state level of support for grade and high schools. They pointed out the Illinois School Problems Commission had recommended a $150 increase.

House Speaker Ralph Smith, R-Alton, termed Ogilvie's budget message "an honest and courageous statement of the needs of Illinois."

Income levy recommended

Ogilvie rejected a sales tax increase, but asked for a limited broadening of its application to rented equipment. He asked for tax boosts on cigarettes, liquor, race tracks, hotel receipts, and corporate franchises.

Ogilvie declared only the income tax could provide a billion dollars needed to make revenues come close to equalling needs.

The income tax, he said, would include capital gains and provide no loopholes on either individual or corporate income. Taxpayers have capital gains when they sell something like a house. The profit is a capital gain.

Each member of a family would receive a $1,000 exemption. Blind or aged persons would receive a double exemption.

The head of a family of four, for example, with a $10,000 yearly income, would pay $240 tax.

The income tax, proposed to be effective Aug. 1 for collection on a withholding basis, would yield $1.08 billion for fiscal year 1970 which ends June 30 next year.

Of this, Ogilvie asked that $135 million be distributed at the rate of $13 a person to municipalities and unincorporated areas. In a special message, last week he promised state sharing of its revenues with local government.

Ogilvie appealed for support from Republicans and Democrats for the huge increase in revenue he said was needed to avoid economic and social chaos.

"This budget constitutes a high price," he said. "But it is a price we can pay if we have the will to do so. It is the price of excellence."

Although Ogilvie recommended a $437 million increase for highways in the budget, mostly for federally aided projects, he said he will submit another message on an expanded road program. It is expected to be buttressed with new gasoline taxes or a bond issue.

Ogilvie, in explaining his decision to ask for the state's first income tax, said 38 states have one. He said a court suit is planned to test its constitutionality, but he said he has no doubt of its success.

For education, the budget was increased $697 million. This included $390 million for aid to public grade and high schools and $21.2 million for vocational education.

The governor recommended a $500 per pupil level of state support of common schools, a figure $100 over the present level but $50 short of what the school problems commission recommended.

For nonpublic education, Ogilvie recommended $32 million for aid to private and parochial elementary and high schools, and $14 million to help private colleges.

Ogilvie said failure to adopt the program to aid private and parochial elementary and high schools might leave them in such financial straits that many would have to close. Then, he said, their pupils would have to attend public schools.

Possible plans for aid are based on tuition, payment to parents in script or vouchers, or some type of payment to parents' organizations.

The third largest proposed increase, next to education and highways, was $137.3 million for public aid programs.

Board authorizes SIU courses

The Board of Higher Education authorized courses at SIU Monday leading to doctor of philosophy in history and master of business administration.

The Board also listened to a panel of five educators, part of a commission appointed by the governor, which recommended a system of state money grants to Illinois private colleges and universities estimated to cost $20 million a year.

The grants recommended by the commission after a year's study are $50 for each Illinois state scholarship student enrolled, $100 each for all other fulltime freshman and sophomores and $200 each for juniors and seniors.

Tag Day rally for Dr. King set Saturday

Saturday has been designated as Dr. Martin Luther King National Tag Day, and Carbondale Mayor David Keene has issued a proclamation for the local observance.

The Rev. Lenus Turley, pastor of the Rockhill Baptist Church and national Tag Day coordinator for Southern Illinois, met Monday in Chicago with members of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) for details on execution of the national observance.

Mr. Turley said a celebration will be held in downtown Carbondale Saturday. He said volunteers wearing tags and armbands will collect money for the SCLC, of which the late Dr. King was former president. Ten to 15 volunteers still are needed, Turley said.

No special efforts for the campaign have been coordinated on campus, but Chancellor Robert MacVicar said, "If this is national and being done in the city, I'm sure that there would be no objection to having the activity on the campus as well."

Crystallographer to present three campus lectures

Dame Kathleen Lonsdale, professor emerita of the University College, London, will present three lectures on campus this week and next. Professor Lonsdale is a world-renowned crystallographer.

Wednesday she will present a lecture on "The Aging of Matter and Man." The lecture, one of the Botany-Physiology Lecture Series, will be presented at 4 p.m. in Room 101 of Lawson Hall.

"Chemical Reactions in Single Crystals" is the title of the lecture she will present at a School of Technology seminar Thursday, April 3, at 4 p.m. in Technology Room A-111.

Her final lecture, "Human Stones," will be presented Monday, April 7, at 7:30 p.m. in Morris Library Auditorium.

Professor Lonsdale was graduated in physics from Bedford College for Women in 1922. Since then she has been engaged in research and teaching. She was a professor of chemistry at University College, London, from 1949 to 1969.

She was also named a Dame Commander of the Order of the British Empire in 1956 for her outstanding work in science and has served as president of the International Union of Crystallography.

5th Dimension singer returns to SIU

By Dean Rebuffoni
Staff Writer

Ron Townson came to SIU with his high school classmate, Dick Gregory, in 1952, looking over the then small campus as a possible place to pursue his education.

Townson didn't stay, but Gregory did, and later became a noted black comedian and civil rights worker.

But Townson is coming back to SIU, this time as a member of The 5th Dimension, one of the more popular contemporary singing groups in the country. The five-member group will perform April 19 in the Arena.

Interviewed Tuesday via telephone from Los Angeles, Townson spoke about The 5th Dimension's upcoming performance at SIU and of the group itself.

Informed that SIU student audiences were disappointed earlier this year by the cancelled performances at SIU of Aretha Franklin and Spanky and Our Gang, Townson said that "in three years of performing on college campuses, we've yet to cancel one performance."

"In fact," Townson continued, "we always look forward to performing on a campus. We've performed at the majority of the larger U.S. campuses, and the audiences at every one have been 'groovy'."

He said that The 5th Dimension is currently on a two-weeks vacation between singing engagements, and that the group's new single recording, "Aquarius," recently passed the one-million mark in records sold.

"It's our second gold record," Townson said. "Our first was 'Stoned Soul Picnic,' and our recording of 'Up, Up and Away' will probably pass the one-million mark this summer."

Speaking of his brief visit to SIU 17 years ago, Townson said that he visited here with Gregory when they were both members of the Sumner High School, St. Louis, track team. He admitted that he didn't enroll at SIU because he "didn't like the campus," but added that he's aware "it's changed quite a bit since then." He completed his college education at Lincoln University in Jefferson, Mo.

Townson also said that, like Gregory, he feels The 5th Dimension is contributing to the civil rights movement in America. He said the group was on the Committee for Youth Opportunity under ex-Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, and talked with youths about remaining in school and furthering their education.

"We do our little part to help the movement," Townson said.

Like Townson, the two other male members of the quintet, Billy Davis, Jr. and LaMonte McLemore are also natives of St. Louis. The two female singers in the group, Marilyn McCoo and Florence LaRue are natives of New Jersey and Pennsylvania, respectively.

Sub-Council suggests SIU Faculty Senate

By Dan Van Aya
Staff Writer

A Faculty Senate, designed to strengthen and redefine the role of the faculty in university governance, has been proposed for the Carbondale campus.

The Senate, which would replace the present Faculty Council, was approved by the Carbondale Faculty Sub-Council at their January meeting. The matter now awaits approval in a general faculty election, and discussion by the University Council.

The University Council is a 10-man body, both faculty and administrative, which acts as a direct advisory council to SIU President Delyte Morris.

The idea of a Faculty Senate emerged out of the Committee on Faculty Participation in University Governance, a three-man committee appointed by Willis Moore, chairman of the Faculty Council. This proposal is just one link in the chain of a total reorganization study being undertaken by the University Governance Committee.

Specific faculty powers which would be accorded the Senate, were it adopted, are:

—The exclusive power for approving and changing educational policies and procedures on the Carbondale campus not delegated to the Graduate Council, schools, colleges, departments, and other specialized educational units.

—Exclusive powers in the area of approving and formulating student admission requirements, curriculum matters, graduation requirements, scholastic probation and expulsion decisions, and any and all appeals from such decisions.

—Exclusive power and responsibility for approving and changing all matters dealing with the General Studies Program.

—The power to formulate, approve, or change any policies involving matters of faculty welfare on the Carbondale campus.

—The Senate would demand the right to representation in matters involving academic and intellectual freedom, the right to protest, the presence of due process procedures, whenever such questions are raised by faculty-members, students, or both.

—The Senate would have the right and responsibility to file a public and/or private report concerning its position in matters such as those cited in the provision above.

Actions taken by the Faculty Senate would be binding unless overridden by a veto of the campus chancellor or University president within 10 days of presentation.

Members of the committee that devised the Senate idea are John M. Olmsted, chairman, C. Addison Hickman, and Robert Lyster. All are presently members of the Faculty Council.

According to Hickman, the major role of the Faculty Senate would be to establish a "division of labor" within the University.

"The last few years have found the faculty taking on more experience in an advisory role," he said. "We feel it is now time to take on a more defined role."

Hickman said the faculty should play the major role in matters regarding teachers' placement, promotion and tenure.

"We want to place some power where the responsibility lies," said Hickman. "We want to spell out the faculty's part in that division of labor."

The vastness of the burgeoning University has forced a redefining of the role of the faculty, according to Hickman. He believes the concept of a Senate can avoid the trend toward faculty unionism.

"If we do not develop an effective representative role in the university's councils and bodies," he said, "we are going to go in a collective bargaining role."

Hickman, who is a Vandevor Professor of Economics at Southern, is president of the American Association for Higher Education.

Robert Lyster, who is the primary draftsman of the Senate proposal, compared the Faculty Senate movement to changing concepts of student government.

"Student governments have been asking for a better determination of their role, with effective student decision-making units," he said. "Here you have a similar movement among the faculty."

Lyster, who was chairman of the SIU Department of Economics from 1955-56, said the Senate would act as a residual body in broad matters of concern to students and faculty, in which no single unit is involved.

SIU Press young but has position of great eminence

There are no "best sellers" in the usual sense in the list of more than 300 books of the Southern Illinois University Press.

But among scholars in this country and abroad, the SIU Press occupies a position of eminence far out of proportion to its young age. It celebrates its 13th birthday this year.

"Our books are ambassadors of the University throughout the world," says Vernon A. Sternberg, director of the organization since its beginning in 1956. "We are in the business of disseminating knowledge; our job is to make known the results of research."

With annual net sales in excess of $400,000, the Press currently ships out an average of 10,000 copies per month, of which approximately 10 per cent go overseas.

A list of just a few of the foreign libraries on whose shelves you'll find books published at SIU in Carbondale includes the universities of London, Oxford, Cambridge, Scotland and the British Museum. Even orders from behind the Iron Curtain are not unusual, Sternberg says.

The first book bearing the SIU Press imprint appeared on October 20, 1956. It took another seven years before the 100th title was brought out on October 7, 1963. The 200th book came out only two and a half years later on April 18, 1966, and on November 18 of last year the 300th publication was issued. By the end of December the number had grown to 318.

What and why is a university press? Sternberg explains it this way: "Commercial publishers are in business to make money; we are in business to break even—which is harder! Why? Because we are prohibited from commercial success. The academic press can not compete with commercial publishers for rights to the popular money makers."

But not all the books of the SIU Press make for heavy reading. A case in point is "Exercise in the Office" by Robert R. Spackman, Jr., assistant professor of physical education and head trainer of SIU's varsity athletic teams.

In this compact, illustrated volume of simple, everyday exercises for people who hate exercise, Spackman chides his readers with pointed wit by such declarations as "You've reached middle age when your weight lifting consists of standing up!" "You are out of shape when your navel points to the floor!" "Even the man who earns his living with thought needs sufficient strength in his neck and shoulders to carry his brain to work!"

In February the Press entered a new phase of its activities with release of the first in its "Pleiades" musical recording series. The series is an attempt to record systematically an important anthology of musical examples from antiquity to the 17th century. In the near future, Sternberg says, the Press hopes to get into the educational motion picture film distribution field. A final straw in the wind, he confides, is a plan to go into publication of pamphlets, which will be synthesized, condensed editions of longer works. "We should be well into pamphlets by 1970," he says.

Women gymnasts

Four named All-American

Four SIU women gymnasts have been named Collegiate All-Americans for 1969. Terry Spencer, Karen Smith, Joan Luster and Phyllis Jojola were selected to this elite group by their performances in the national championships at Springfield, Mass.

"I'm very happy for these girls because they have worked hard for the honor," Coach Herb Vogel said. "This honor gave them something for their fine efforts after the team didn't win the title."

Miss Spencer placed third in the all-around competition, second on the balance beam and third in vaulting. Miss Jojola took fifth on the balance beam and Misses Smith and Luster finished sixth on the uneven bars and in the floor exercise, respectively.

Vogel wasn't surprised that three of his All-Americans are freshmen. The only gymnast who isn't is Miss Smith, a sophomore.

However, Vogel was surprised that Miss Jojola was picked because she competed in Class B and had to move up through that category.

Frosh face Kaskaskia today

SIU's freshman baseballers open their season at 1 a.m. today with a home doubleheader against Kaskaskia Junior College.

Freshman Coach Jim Panther didn't speculate on his team's chances for a win in the opener and said he still wasn't sure of the game's starting lineup.

Following the Kaskaskia games, the freshmen get back into action Saturday when they take on Danville Junior College in a doubleheader here and again on April 10 for a single home game with Mineral Area Junior College.

Danville Junior College will see the freshman Salukis again April 19 for a doubleheader in Danville. The SIU players will then meet Paducah Junior College in a home doubleheader on April 26.

Another single game with Mineral Area Junior College on May 2, an away game with Menard Penitentiary May 10, and a home doubleheader May 17 against Belleville Junior College round out the team's 13 game schedule.

Cycle club to sponsor race

The Southern Illinois Eagles, a motorcycle club, will sponsor a scramble race at the Williamson County Fairgrounds Sunday beginning at 1 p.m.

Classes will be determined by bike size and a $2 entry fee will be charged. Heats and finals will be held in each class and trophies will be given to first, second and third place winners in the finals.

The races will cover approximately 12 miles on a dirt track.

Practice is scheduled for 1 p.m. with racing to begin at 2 p.m. The event is sanctioned by the American Motorcycle Association.

Steve says advertising raises prices.

But how come that color TV set his fraternity just bought costs $300 less than it used to?

Ten years ago a typical 21 inch color TV set sold for $700. Today you can get a comparable set for under $400. With a lot of improvements to boot. Like automatic fine tuning. And less need for servicing.

What brought the price down so dramatically? Many millions of dollars of advertising, mainly.

Weren't there a lot of technological improvements, too? Yes. But they might have actually added to the price without the vast increase in sales and volume production made possible by this advertising.

Maybe you, like Steve, think advertising raises prices. favors big profits, helps keep useless products on the market. But actual sales prove you're opposite. Advertising lowers prices. Like color TV. It's always competition. Promotes new ideas. (Contact for instance.) Helps the imaginative little guy catch up. (Like Diet Rite.) And, like heat the big guy, competes with a good product and advertising.

Interested? Write us. We'll gladly send you more facts about advertising. You'll find they speak for themselves.

In the meantime, keep us open mind.

Bill Stein now leading SIU hitters with .344 average

Statistics after 15 games have shortstop Bill Stein, a junior from Cocoa, Fla., currently leading the SIU baseball team in two hitting categories.

Stein, who went 4 for 6 in Monday's doubleheader with Monmouth College, is leading the Salukis in hitting with a .344 mark and in doubles with seven.

Stein's average comes on 21 safeties in 61 times at bat. He is also in a third place tie with Barry O'Sullivan for most runs scored. Both have 10. Stein is in a first place tie with Mike Rogodzinski for most runs batted in with 13.

Jerry Bond, the team's fast-moving centerfielder, follows Stein in the hitting department with a .317 average on 20 hits in 63 trips to the plate.

Bond, however, leads the team easily when it comes to the wheels department. He leads the team in triples with four, in stolen bases with four, and in most runs scored with 19.

Bill Clark is the only other Saluki hitting in the .300 range with .300 on the nose. He has hit safely 15 times in 50 official at bats.

Bob Sedik with .280, O'Sullivan with .274, and Rogodzinski with .262 are the only other players with 25 or more at bats who are hitting over .250.

Overall, the team batting average is .268, but SIU pitchers have held their opponents to a mere .123 batting mark.

Bob Ash, with a 2-1 season record after downing Monmouth 12-0 in Monday's second game, leads the team's pitchers with a stingy 0.34 earned run average.

Ash has given up 16 hits in 26 and one third innings, and has 28 strikeouts for the season.

Lee Pirlock follows Ash in the strikeout column with 27 fans to his credit on the season.

Jerry Paetzhold and Steve Webber are tied for the most wins this season with four each. Webber has yet to suffer a defeat this year and Paetzhold took the SIU loss to Arizona State in relief.

Male gymnasts looking for fourth national championship

Turnout for placekicking trial is low; several show promise

About a dozen students turned out yesterday afternoon for placekicking tryouts. The purpose of the tryouts were to find a student who could kick for accuracy and distance, Coach Dick Towers said.

"We are looking for someone who has future promise. We want a individual who can convert the long field goal, say 40 yards, and who can also kick the ball into the end zone on kickoffs," Towers stated.

Towers added that Mike Bradley is a fine kicker but that he is limited because he also plays on offense. This cuts down on his accuracy and distance on field goal attempts and also hinders him on kick-offs.

Coach Mark Bolick said that there were a few candidates who showed promise, several soccer style kickers included.

The second day of tryouts will be this afternoon on the practice football field behind the Arena.

Montreal Canadiens to defend championship Wednesday

The Montreal Canadiens open defense of their Stanley Cup championship Wednesday night when the National Hockey League playoffs get under way in Montreal, Boston, St. Louis and Oakland with opening round games in best-of-seven series.

The Canadiens, winners of the East Division title, meet the New York Rangers, while the West Division champs, the St. Louis Blues, face the Philadelphia Flyers. Both the Rangers and Flyers finished in third place in the regular season.

Official denies job offer for Hartman

DETROIT (AP) — A University of Detroit official has denied a published report that Jack Hartman, Southern-Illinois basketball coach, has been offered a similar job at the Detroit school.

Fred Shadrack, member of the six-man coach selection committee and dean of students at the U. of D., said that Hartman is not being considered.

Under the guidance of Bill Meade, Southern's gymnastics teams have won NCAA National Championships for three of the last five years. This weekend the Salukis will be gunning for their fourth title in six years.

The three National crowns came in 1964, 1966 and 1967. Last year SIU finished second to the University of California at Berkeley.

Meade calls this year's squad "the craziest group he has ever coached."

"On paper this isn't the best team I've had, but they have done well in crucial meets such as defeating Iowa State by two-tenths of a point and winning the NCAA Regional meet two weeks ago."

Meade stated that everything must go right in Seattle if the title is to come back to Southern. However, he added that three of his gymnasts have good chances of winning the individual championships.

Mark Davis and Wayne Borowski will be particularly strong on the high bar and still rings respectively, and Don Locke will be a strong contender on the parallel bars," Meade asserted.

Meade also gave Ron Alden, side horse, and Mark Randall, vaulting, outside shots at capturing individual honors.

With the loss of Pete Hemmerling and Larry Ciolkosz, Meade will insert Davis as the second all-around man to go with Stu Smith. Davis will compete in all events except the side horse where SIU will enter only three gymnasts. This is the same lineup that Meade used in the regional.

"SIU teams have always performed better in pressure meets, such as the Nationals," Meade commented. "It seems as though they respond to the competition."

"We are capable of scoring 162 points, which is a 9.0 average in all the events. No team has ever won it with a 9.0 average."

Scholz named All-Academic

CHICAGO (AP) — Dave Scholz, Illinois' all-time scoring champion, was named for the third straight year on the Big Ten All-Academic basketball team Tuesday.

Since the beginning of the selections in 1964, only Purdue's Dave Schellhase and Ohio State's Bill Hosket previously had been chosen three straight years.

Scholz, whose career point total at Illinois was 1,459, and Iowa's Chad Calabria were unanimous choices by a panel of 27 midwest sports editors and basketball writers.

A classroom average of B or better for the academic year prior to February, 1969, was a prerequisite for the selections.

Others on the first team were Larry Overskel, Minnesota, and Craig Barclay, Ohio State.
