Reparation plan may bypass suit on terminations

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The University lawsuit against 104 terminated employees may be bypassed by a plan to make lump-sum reparations to some of the fired faculty members, Keith Leasure, vice president for academic affairs, said Tuesday.

About $422,000 would be parceled out between tenured faculty and those on continuing appointments, Leasure said. The payments would be "in lieu of one year's notice," he explained.

Leasure stressed the idea for payments is "only one of several" before SIU's administration. He would not reveal source of the money to be used.

Tenured teachers are guaranteed one year's pay should they be dismissed by the University, according to the Board of Trustees' Statutes and Bylaws. The statutes allow teacher cuts in the event of a "financial exigency," the grounds on which SIU terminated 28 tenured faculty members in December.

SIU Acting President Hiram Lesar was not available to comment on the proposal. Leasure said Lesar would take the matter up with SIU's board.

Chief of Board Staff James Brown said Tuesday he had not seen a specific proposal for making the reparations. While not against state law, Brown said such a move "wouldn't be wise" without the consent of the General Assembly, Gov. Dan Walker and the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Brown would not confirm that SIU's School of Medicine had about $600,000 in unspent salary money which could be used to pay the terminated employees.

Brown also said, to his knowledge, no one at the state level had been contacted about the idea. He pointed out the payment plan is still "one of the possibilities," and has not come before the Board of Trustees.

The 104 employees received notices of termination in December, effective in June. The payments, Leasure said, would be for a six-month salary period beyond June for each person, and would effect a one-year notice of dismissal from SIU.

This would eliminate the stickiest part of the present lawsuit, Leasure explained, that of SIU having to prove sufficient financial hardship to eliminate tenured positions. He said dropping the University action against the 104 would also save legal costs, but added that suits against the University could still be initiated by individuals among the 104.

In another spin-off from the 104 terminations, Leasure confirmed 27 Civil Service employees were recently sent lay-off notices. The 27 jobs had been "support positions" for some of the dismissed faculty members.

A total of 61 Civil Service workers were lined up to be cut in January, but relocation attempts for all but the 27 succeeded, Leasure said he hoped only 10 or 15 of the 27 would still be on lay-off status by the end of June.

"We are reallocating those people right now," Don Ward, personnel director, said Monday. "I think we'll be in pretty good shape by June 30."

Ward explained "first priority" efforts are being made to place the 27 in similar jobs as they open up on campus. He said the Civil Service employees are not technically fired, but rather are on lay-off status, and subject to recall.

In another matter, Leasure said he hopes a dean for the School of Communications and Fine Arts will be found in time for fall semester. Candidates are

SIU veterans office faces ban on funds

By Jeff Jouett
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Federal funding for SIU's Veterans Affairs Office will be suspended unless alleged discrepancies in enrollment figures used to get a grant are explained within two weeks, a federal official said Tuesday.

Walter Gale, director of the Veterans Program Unit of the U.S. Office of Education, said he had read a March 16 article in the Daily Egyptian alleging that "inflated" enrollment figures were used to get $125,580 Veterans Cost-of-Instruction grant.

"They (SIU Veterans Affairs Center) will be given two weeks to present an accurate enrollment count or we will begin remedial action," Gale said in a telephone interview from Washington.

"If there is a difference in actual qualified veteran enrollment and the numbers presented on their application you'd better believe we'll conduct an audit," he continued.

The audit would determine if a partial or complete refund of the cost-of-instruction grant is required, Gale said.

A committee of four staff members in Student Work and Financial Assistance Office is investigating alleged discrepancies in veteran enrollment figures used to obtain VCI monies for SIU Veterans Affairs Office in July 1973.

The committee, commissioned by Frank Adams, Student Work and Financial Assistance Director and chaired by his assistant director, Raymond DeJarnett, will finish its study by April 12 "at the earliest," DeJarnett said.

To qualify for VCI grants "higher learning institutions" had to indicate a 10 per cent increase in undergraduate veterans currently enrolled and receiving certain veterans benefits, Gale said. The increase had to be

Public hearing set tonight

Motel liquor sales will be examined

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the University City cafeteria to determine whether Holiday Inn violated provisions of its liquor license.

The hearing was set after it was found that Holiday Inn sold liquor to SIU at 10 per cent more than the wholesale price paid by Holiday Inn.

The liquor board will look into the purchases and make recommendations to Mayor Neal Eckert, who is the liquor commissioner. Eckert will make the final decision.

Holiday Inn holds a Class C liquor license which allows the sale of individual drinks and package liquor to patrons. Violation of the license provisions could mean a suspension or revocation of the license.

Leilani Weiss, liquor board secretary, said the board will first have to clear up an ambiguity in the wording of the license before it can determine if any violation has been committed.

Ms. Weiss said there is some doubt as to what is meant by the term "patron." There is a question of whether it refers only to those staying at the motel or to anyone who does business with the motel.

Stan Hoyer, franchise-holder for the Carbondale Holiday Inn, agreed that the wording of the license is ambiguous.

Hoyer pointed out that the liquor and food services of the Holiday Inn are widely used in the area. He said SIU does much business with the motel, including catering services, lunches, dinners and receptions.

Hoyer said he has considered persons who do business with the motel patrons, as well as those who stay at Holiday Inn.

The liquor purchases from Holiday Inn involved irregularities in the use of about $5,000 of University funds.

An investigation by the SIU Board of Trustees found that 18 vouchers processed as payments to the Holiday Inn for food service and receptions actually were payments for liquor from Holiday Inn.

Dan Orescanin, former SIU executive vice president and campus treasurer, signed the vouchers. Orescanin resigned and requested reassignment as a professor in the College of Business and Administration when discovery of the vouchers was announced.

The Board approved the reassignment.

David Derge, former SIU president, also requested reassignment after the disclosure of the irregularities. His reassignment to the Department of Government was also approved by the board.

Gus says he could stand to be fired for $422,000.

Highway proposal to be discussed

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—A proposed highway linking Kansas City and Chicago will be discussed at informational meetings this month in Carthage, Quincy and Peoria, the Illinois Department of Transportation has announced.

The first meeting will be April 15 in Carthage, the second April 16 in Quincy and the third April 18 in Peoria.

The department said the meetings will be held to give citizens an opportunity to comment on the proposed highway, including possible routes. The highway was proposed in the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1973.

years. The Democrats now have an 8-6 edge.

Four incumbents were re-elected, including Mary Nell Chew, the only Republican, while two were defeated.

The only real surprise came in District 4 where Democrat Cleveland Matthews upset incumbent J.C. Penn by a vote of 346 to 327. Penn has been a board member for 20 years, County Clerk Delmar Ward said.

Democrat Tross Pierson edged Republican Wayne Alstat in the District 1 race 876 to 857, the only district without an incumbent candidate.

In District 2, Reginald Stearns, incumbent, defeated Republican Bette Hartline 933 to 488.

Democrat incumbent Eugene Chambers beat Republican Pauline Hughes 573 to 337 in the District 3 race.

Hazel LeFevre won by five votes in District 5 to replace Republican incumbent Frank Bridges. Ms. LeFevre received 205 votes to Bridges' 200.

In District 6, Democrat incumbent Sue Casey won with 508 votes to Republican John Gasaway's 246.

Ms. Chew received 256 votes against Democrat William Mehrtens' 147 to win the District 7 race and the only Republican seat in the election. Mehrtens is an SIU graduate student.

Ward said voter turnout was good with 6,299 ballots cast. About 33,000 voters are registered in Jackson County. About 8,000 voted in the primary last month, Ward said.

The newly elected board members will take seats chosen by lot in 1972 to serve two years instead of four. The new board members will serve a four-year term, as will members elected in all future elections.

Members chosen in Tuesday's election will begin their duties at the April 10 meeting of the county board, Charles Gray, board chairman said.

The new members will receive $25 for each committee or board meeting as opposed to the $20 current members receive.

Student Senate has light agenda

The first Student Senate meeting of the quarter will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Ballrooms. Only one new bill, dealing with recognition of the engineering fraternity Sigma Iota Epsilon, is scheduled to be debated.

Student body vice president Jim Kania said Tuesday he would "like to see all 30 of the seated senators attend Wednesday's meeting."

Kania also said Tuesday that a Senate bill passed last quarter approving purchase of a typewriter for free student use in Morris Library has finally been implemented.

Kania said the typewriter, a used manual which the Senate purchased from SIU for $15, is available on the first floor of Morris Library "for regulated periods" depending on how many people wish to use it at certain times.

Kania said any student may use the typewriter without charge asking at the information desk.

Sen. Garry Seltzer's bill implementing the typewriter service passed last quarter after pay typewriters on the second floor of Morris Library were removed. Seltzer, who worked on the second floor in the evenings, said students were in need of the service.

Parking lot resurfacing nears completion date

The resurfacing of four parking lots on campus should be completed within two weeks if the weather permits. Willard Hart, assistant director of facilities planning, said Tuesday.

The lots undergoing surface changes include two southwest of the Communications Building, one between the Communications Building and Thompson Point dormitory, and the Lawson Hall parking lot.

"Two weeks of good weather would set us up real good," Rino Bianchi, director of facilities planning, said. "It's just a matter of getting it dry for a few days."

Both men said the wet conditions in Carbondale during the spring vacation period caused the schedule for completion to be set back about 10 days.

"With normal weather (April rains), the project should be done by the first part of May," Hart said.

The holes in the roadway directly behind the Communications Building will be patched up soon, Hart said. They were the result of the digging done to install permanent lights.

"We appreciate the cooperation we've had from everyone," Bianchi said. "People have been inconvenienced but they've been very understanding."

Work will also start soon on a new parking lot to be located between Forest and Elizabeth streets and another between Grand and Washington streets, where temporary housing facilities have been leveled. Hart added.

The weather:

Partly cloudy, warm

Wednesday: Partly cloudy, windy, and warm with the high temperature in the upper 70s to lower 80s. Precipitation probabilities will be 35 per cent during the morning, increasing throughout the day. The wind will be from the south at 8-18 mph, gusting to 30 mph. Relative humidity will be 87 per cent.

Wednesday night: Increasing cloudiness with a probability for precipitation of 60 per cent. The low temperature will be in the low to middle 50s.

Thursday: Cloudy and somewhat cooler with the high around 68 degrees.

Tuesday's high on campus 72, 2 p.m., low 47, 6 a.m.

General manager of WIDB resigns

The student general manager of WIDB radio station has resigned and recommended a successor.

Jim Rohr, senior majoring in radio and television, announced his resignation Friday in a letter to members of the radio board. Rohr had also been chairman of the WIDB Board of Directors.

He cited an anticipated heavy academic load to complete graduation requirements and a growing limitation of available time as reasons for his resignation.

Ronna Davis, secretary to the radio board and administrative assistant to the general manager, was recommended by Rohr to complete the term, which expires in late spring.

The board is expected to accept the resignation and act on the recommendation at its April meeting.

Michael Jaye, WIDB public relations director, said Rohr will continue to remain active with the advertising proposal task force and the board's committee on organization evaluation.

Bill Jackson, park district aquatic program director, instructs young grade schoolers on how to swim. The park district has begun an aquatic program including swimming instruction since it rented the pool at University City from the city.

Swim times set at U-City

The Carbondale Park District has set hours for recreational swimming at the University City swimming pool.

The pool will be opened to the public from 5 to 7 p.m. on weekdays, from 1 to 4 p.m. on Saturdays and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

Admission prices will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. A special pass can be purchased at the park district for $6.50 and will be good for 10 swims. Price for a children's pass is $3.50.

There is also the early bird session between 7 and 9 a.m. on weekdays and the businessman's swim session between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Admission prices for these times are 75 cents.

The pool is available for renting by groups on an hourly basis. Interested persons should contact John Allen at the park district office.

Physical Plant officials said they hope to have the cable fixed by the end of this week or the beginning of next week.

Pompidou dies at 62; Poher is acting head

PARIS (AP) — Georges Pompidou, who in his first and only election campaign succeeded to the strong French presidency built by Charles de Gaulle, died Tuesday of an undisclosed illness. He was 62.

Pompidou had been plagued by illness and there had been speculation about his possible resignation.

The brief announcement from the presidential palace said Pompidou died at 3 p.m. CDT.

A few hours earlier, the president's office said Pompidou was canceling all appointments because of an unstated illness.

The cause of death was not immediately disclosed, but there had been reports of various ailments, including leukemia or some other form of cancer.

Pompidou became president of France on June 15, 1969, defeating Alain Poher, who had become acting president when De Gaulle resigned after the electorate failed to approve his proposals for government centralization and senate reform. De Gaulle died Nov. 10, 1970.

Under the French constitution, Poher as president of the senate now takes over the government to organize presidential elections. They must be held in 20 to 30 days.

The palace announcement earlier Tuesday of Pompidou's illness was the second revelation in two weeks that the president was too ill to carry out his duties. Medical sources said two weeks ago that his condition was complicated by hemorrhoids.

In some of his public appearances he has appeared tired and bloated.

Recently he traveled to the Soviet Union to confer with Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev, but in the last few days he canceled a scheduled spring trip to Japan and put off a planned trip to Bonn to confer with the West German chancellor, Willy Brandt.

Union to confer with Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev, but in the last few days he canceled a scheduled spring trip to Japan and put off a planned trip to Bonn to confer with the West German chancellor, Willy Brandt.

"All this was explained adequately in the application guidelines," he continued.

Citing figures from SIU's VCI application dated June 4, 1973, Gale listed 2,025 veterans supposedly eligible for VCI funding under the above guidelines as enrolled at SIU on April 16, 1972.

The application listed 2,391 eligible veterans enrolled at SIU on the same day a year later, Gale said.

Louis Robinson, statistician for Admissions and Records, reported that official enrollment statistics for undergraduate students who indicated they were veterans were 1,728 in April 1972 and 1,797 in April 1973.

Official enrollment figures are compiled on the tenth day of each quarter by ruling of the Board of Trustees, Robinson said. These figures do not represent the number of veterans drawing benefits and have always been

Release of Hearst promised by SLA

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The exact time and place of Patricia Hearst's release will be disclosed within 72 hours, a communique bearing the signature of the Symbionese Liberation Army said Tuesday.

The communique was received Tuesday by a biweekly underground newspaper, the Phoenix. Also enclosed was what looked like half of the kidnaped newspaper heiress' driver's license. The newspaper said it had confirmed the authenticity of the partial license which has Miss Hearst's correct birth date and her signature.

The newspaper said it had received the communique wrapped in a dozen long-stemmed roses, which were delivered by a local florist.

"If it's true we're delighted," said a statement released by Randolph A. Hearst, Miss Hearst's father. "It sounds like their SLA communique. I wish to believe it."

There was no way to confirm that the communique was authentic, but it followed the pattern and style of previous communications which authorities have accepted as coming from the SLA.

The communique concluded: "Further communications regarding subject prisoner will follow in the following 72 hours. Communications will state the state, city and time of release of the prisoner."

The communique demanded that the "Codes of War" of the Symbionese Liberation Army, which were enclosed, be printed by the news media.

The communique was addressed to Phoenix editor John Bryan and was signed, "I, I. Unit 4, Gen. Field Marshal Cin. SLA."

The SLA has claimed responsibility for kidnaping the 20-year-old newspaper heiress Feb. 4. It has previously referred to Miss Hearst as a "prisoner of war" and some previous communications have carried the signature of Gen. Field Marshal Cin. or General Field Marshall Cinque.

A driver's license enclosed in the communique was cut diagonally in half. Part of Miss Hearst's signature and part of her photograph were visible. A Hearst family spokesman said he had been told by the Phoenix that the underground newspaper's attorney had confirmed the authenticity of the driver's license.

Earlier Tuesday, the Hearst Corp. said its $4-million offer of free food for the poor will be withdrawn if Miss Hearst is not released within one month. The corporation said it had placed the money in escrow Tuesday, and that it would be released for a food giveaway if Miss Hearst were released unharmed before May 3.

"This is not a threat, simply a term of the escrow," said Randolph A. Hearst, the girl's father. "We could have made it 60 days, but we want our daughter back sooner. This gives the SLA 30 days to make up its mind. All they have to say is yes or no."

The kidnapers said in the communique that they had sent the latest communication to the Phoenix with the understanding "that you must not cooperate with the FBI by turning over this communication or by providing them with any information."

Charles Bates, FBI agent in charge of the case, said, "We don't know anything about it. We have heard nothing."

Bryan said the flowers were delivered by Crete Florists in downtown San Francisco. He said he telephoned the florist who informed him a white woman with brown hair had placed the order on Monday for delivery Tuesday. The communique purporting to be from the SLA was dated March 29.

The Hearst Corp. decision to place the $4 million in escrow was announced as one of Patricia's sisters urged her sister's release and called upon the kidnapers to break their 24-day silence presently being interviewed, and Leasure said two were from within SIU and three from outside.

Phillip Olsson, former dean of the school, is among the candidates. Leasure said he did not know of any particular irony in Olsson's seeking the job after the resignation of former SIU president David R. Derge.

The search committee for a School of Journalism director has one more candidate interview scheduled, Leasure said. Since three of the original candidates bowed out of the competition, Leasure said the journalism search committee is considering nominating in-house candidates.

July 1 is the target date for installing a new chairman of the Speech Department, Leasure said, and two candidates have been contacted to date.

Work is also under way to find a dean for the combined divisions of General Studies, Continuing Education, International Education, Special Majors and President's Scholars. Leasure said. The recommendations for a dean are in, he said, adding that one dean will serve instead of the present three deans among the divisions.

demonstrated by official records for the exact dates of April 16, 1973 over April 16, 1972, he added. Only undergraduate veterans drawing remedial benefits, college-prep benefits and GI Bill benefits were to be counted, Gale explained.

"All this was explained adequately in the application guidelines," he continued.

Citing figures from SIU's VCI application dated June 4, 1973, Gale listed 2,025 veterans supposedly eligible for VCI funding under the above guidelines as enrolled at SIU on April 16, 1972.

Official enrollment figures are compiled on the tenth day of each quarter by ruling of the Board of Trustees, Robinson said. These figures do not represent the number of veterans drawing benefits and have always been available to anyone asking, he explained.

According to Gale, numbers listed on SIU's grant application indicate an 18 per cent increase in eligible veteran enrollment, well above the 10 per cent needed for funding.

Official enrollment figures for undergraduate veterans, which may be higher than "eligible" veterans for VCI purposes, reflect a decrease in enrollment for the same time period.

If the SIU veterans center can't verify that there was a 10 per cent increase in enrollment of eligible ex-servicemen, "legal procedures will be

Gas situation improves

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Automobile Association said Tuesday gasoline availability at service stations throughout the nation continues to improve.

Based on spot checks of 6,258 out of the nation's more than 230,900 service stations, AAA estimated that only 9 per cent were still limiting gasoline purchases, compared with 14 per cent one week ago.

AAA said only 3 per cent were closing initiated to secure the return" of the entire $125,580, Gale indicated.

But the center might be required to make a partial refund even if it proves that there was a 10 per cent jump in eligible veterans.

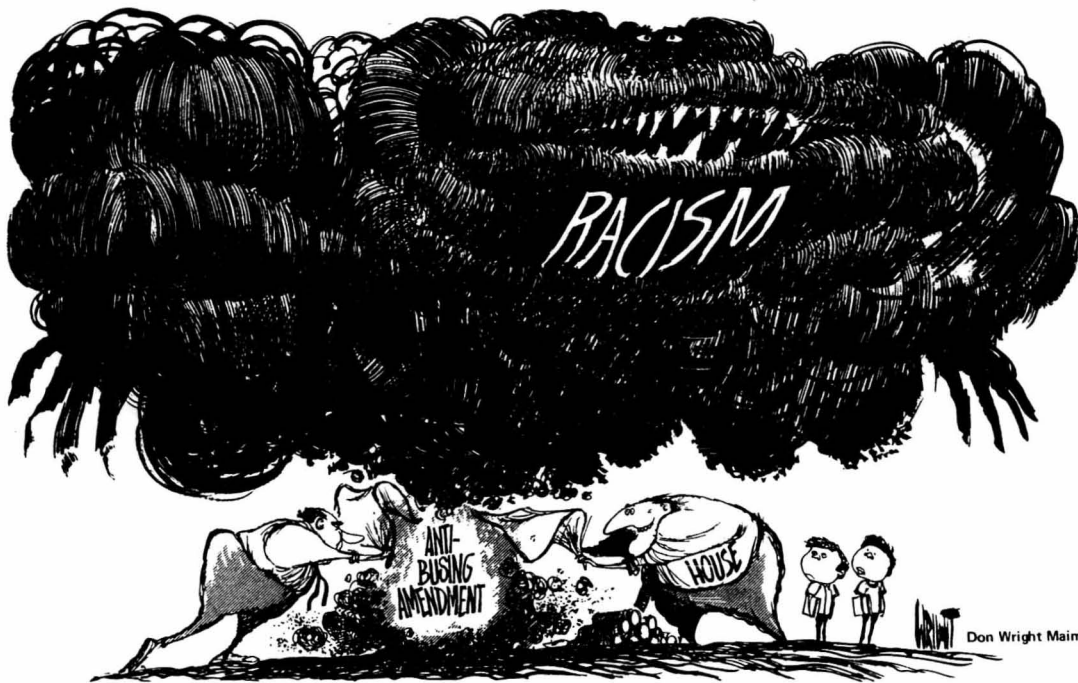

The SIU-C application lists 2,311 eligible veterans as full-time students and 88 as half-time, said Gale.

But, for instance, if an audit found there were only 2,300 on full-time rosters and 80 on half-time schedules, a refund of $4,500 could be required. This would be a refund of $300 for each full-time student and $150 for each half-time enrollee.

But the number of stations reported out of fuel increased from last week's 3 per cent to 5 per cent.

All regions reported good gasoline supplies, although AAA reported local problems in a few areas.

Plumbers here to stay, but...

Leon shifted the leather strap of the carrier's pouch from his shoulder and swung his load gently to the sidewalk. He shoved the visor on his cap with his thumb, pushing the cap back into his Brillo-like mop of hair and wiped the sleeve of his uniform across the sweat beading on his broad forehead.

It wasn't that the pouch was heavy—it was barely half full. But the long hours he'd worked since he'd been assigned to special duties caused his shoulders and back to throb.

He performed his duties mechanically now. It hadn't always been that way. After passing his exams he had launched into training sessions in electronic sorting, zipcoding and canine avoidance psychology with singular enthusiasm.

A few weeks into the course his supervisor, Mr. Lacy approached him.

"You know, Tober, you tested extremely high in both intelligence and loyalty."

"Thank you sir."

"Because of that and the interest and competence you've shown in your classes, my superiors and I are considering you for special duty."

"Excuse me sir but... well, I dunno sir," Leon said, squinting at Lacy and absently polishing his glasses on his shirtfront. "I'm only five foot six, and I couldn't weigh more than 130...with my shoes on."

"It's what's up here that counts," Lacy countered, tapping his naked pink cranium and winking broadly in a manner that would have struck Leon as quite asinine if he had not been so confused.

That had been in February of 1980. It was March of 1983 now and things had gotten somewhat muddled in Leon's mind lately. He still remembered vaguely graduating at the top of his sleep indoctrination class. The ceremony had been on tape and the class attended just as they had gone to their lectures and tests, eyes closed, earphones on.

After training there had never been any question about serving in the Postal "Specials". His superiors had noted his zeal approvingly.

They weren't happy with him lately—he sensed that. He sensed most things though about them anymore. Maybe a vacation would turn the trick... but there was so much work to do.

Perhaps it was overwork that had caused the behavior that had led his superiors to disapprove of him of late.

After all, he didn't really want to do it, but he couldn't really help himself, anymore than he could disobey an order from a superior.

It had just seemed one day that there was something he wanted to know. Leon wasn't sure what, but for some reason he had obtained a forged pass and began reading the microfilm files of the magazines that had been published before the National Organization had established the Central Information Bureau. He spent days viewing film upon film, going without sleep, using every spare moment.

Leon was sure that the Organization had reported his behavior to the Postal Service, but it just couldn't be helped.

Suddenly the blur of information began to focus. The "letter bombs" and guerilla organizations like the IRA, the Palestinian terrorists, isolated groups of insane criminals like the Symbionese Liberation Army had set the stage.

The Organization, or the U.S. government as it had been called in those days, had gradually organized the world coup, employing groups of agents called "plumbers" to stage further events and create in the minds of the people a fear of anything "radical" or "innovative" in political thinking.

When the media criticized these new policies too severely the CIB had been organized. Finally, the systematic elimination of the radical intellectuals began, using terrorist techniques, so that the public could not make the connection with the government. Leon felt he must be connected with this last effort in some way, but he had to test his theory.

"MAYES, Mabel," read the name at the bottom of the page of his daily roster. He carefully took one of the powder blue envelopes out, gently replacing the lid of the metal canister which sat like an obscene steel comode on the floor of the Postal Service van.

Leon addressed the envelope in a neat script hand, being careful not to press too hard. Placing the envelope in the pouch which was wrinkled from use like the ear of a small brown elephant, he straightened his cap and stepped into a midsummer sun which set like a thousand explosions behind his clenched eyelids as he strained to adjust to the brightness.

Crossing the street, Leon mounted the flagstone steps of a yellow brick bungalow. When he reached the door he slid the pale blue envelope through the polished brass mail slot. Then he went back to the truck to wait.

About after twenty minutes a woman in her mid-sixties ambled up the walk. Her step was brisk even though her arms were burdened with several brown paper parcels which appeared as if they might be books.

She let herself in, bending clumsily to scoop up the letter, and pushing the door shut with her foot.

There were a few moments of stillness, during which a bluejay squawked nervously.

Blue and orange flame ripped from the picture window at the front of the house, showering shards of splintered glass into the street like an ice storm. Roofing shingles fluttered onto the lawn like fallen leaves.

Flames licked out the windows and doors, turning the yellow brick first brown, then black.

The truck gave shudder as Leon crunched it into gear and drove off.

A few miles down the road he stopped the truck, hands shaking, lower lip trembling. He wanted to cry, but couldn't remember how. For several minutes he sat desperately trying to think what to do. Failing in the attempt, he did the only thing he knew.

Picking his clip board up, he flipped the roster to the next page and read, "TOBER, Leon." The letters shouted.

He hesitated a moment, then took an envelope out of the canister and began to address it in a neat script hand.

Orders were orders.

Brutality to the language

To the Daily Egyptian:

I am writing to protest the apparent indifference with which the Daily Egyptian has been treating that most vital wealth, the English language, which the paper appears to believe that it can mutilate at will. The efforts of the staff to produce justified margins has produced some laughable anomalies over the years, including hyphenation of words such as "to" and division where no syllable exists. Coherency is a frequent problem.

More serious is the flippant attitude of the paper toward the most important action any individual can take with regard to his language, the introduction of a new word. Such inaugurations are acceptable only when no term exists which exactly describes that which the author intends to convey to the reader.

In particular, the Daily Egyptian has seen fit to use the coarse and awkward "person" terminology which currently seems to be in vogue despite the fact that these terms contribute nothing whatsoever to the language and convey not so much as the slightest nuance of difference between themselves and the existing terms such as "chairman" and "ombudsman". These terms are titles, defined without any reference to sex whatsoever, which appears the only basis for the "person" terminology; as such, the latter are mere synonyms, and ungainly ones at that, amounting to little more than linguistic defacement. Furthermore, since the "person" terminology is used almost exclusively when the officeholder is feminine, it is every bit as chauvinistic as the original title allegedly was and is misleading as well in its implications that the term has no sexual basis.

As though this were not enough, the DE is apparently perfectly aware that the "person" terminology is inappropriate; since the resignation of "ombudsperson" Haedrich reported in the February 22 issue, the correct term "ombudsman" has been used by the paper on at least three occasions (March 6, 7, and 12).

I call for an end to this irresponsible behavior in the casual adoption of expressions which are mere replacements for perfectly good existing terms; such mutilations of the language are indefensible. I hope others, equally concerned with their language, will come forward to voice their opinions.

Blame the split infinitives and the spelling on the staff; word division is the task of the computerized typesetting equipment. Atrocious as some of the divisions appear to the careful reader, tests show a lower rate of error by the machine than by human compositors. Thanks for reading our newspaper so carefully. How technologists see the humanities

By David O. Edeani
Daily Egyptian Special Writer

People outside the humanities have wide-ranging views on the present difficulty confronting the humanist and his discipline, the causes of the situation and the remedies. Where they are agreed, of course, is that the problem of survival for the humanities is a real one that needs a far more urgent action than has so far been forthcoming.

"There is definitely some truth in the view that because of rapid development in the technological field," said Charles N. Maxwell, professor of mathematics, "social life is becoming more and more impersonalized. Sophisticated computerization of business and other social and economic activities has contributed, and does contribute, a great deal to changing social values. But I don't think this development has really dehumanized social life as such. Neither do I think it is a major reason for the problems of the humanities."

"We used to have lots of spiritual values as a people, and to be very much committed to our home towns. But now we are becoming more and more mobilized and are identifying with values other than those of our own home towns. I think that this is an important explanation for what I may call 'changing values' rather than a dehumanization of life due to the advent of the computer," Maxwell stated. He felt this value change is reflected in university policy. "The tendency in the university over the past few years to de-emphasize such courses as English, religious studies, foreign languages, and linguistics," he said, "came about partly as a recognition of this social change. But more important, it came about as a result of falling enrollments and lack of funds to support these programs more than they are being supported now. Of course, enrollments have been falling in other areas, too; but it's in these and other humanities fields that the drop has been more severe, I think. Definitely, the humanities need much more help and support than they are now getting in order for them to function effectively."

But the question one would ask is whether the enrollment fall-off arose from an inherent dislike of the humanities as a result of social value change or whether there is any external cause. In Maxwell's view, a general recession in the job market is an important explanation, too. "Nationally," he said, "even the sciences aren't really being emphasized because job prospects are very poor there these days. In the field of mathematics, the job market isn't bright, and many of our students have to think twice before choosing certain areas of mathematics for concentration. I think, therefore, that when the job market improves, interest in the humanities will probably increase," Maxwell said. Elbert Hadley, dean, College of Science, thinks that the humanities are declining because man is now realizing that more cultural and humanistic values are not sufficient ingredients for saving the world.

"This is still the age of science," Hadley promptly replied to the question as to whether and why he thought the humanities were on the decline, "and survival depends on science. The situation has not changed. We are still in the age of science. Some time ago," he said, "many students thought that they were going to change the world by taking a lot of the humanities and social science courses. But now they are realizing that they can only change the world through science. There is no other way they can do it. This is the reality of the world in which we live today."

Hadley illustrated his point with one of the marvels of twentieth century science: "Many nations now have atomic bombs. The history major or the sociology major cannot tell you what to do to diffuse the bomb or to torpedo the ship carrying it. Or take a much simpler problem. We now have the energy crisis. Who is going to tell us how to obtain more energy? Will the historian, the sociologist, the English specialist, or the linguist? None of them will. It's the scientist who can come up with answers to these problems. That's the reality, but some people often refuse to accept the truth, even when it is crystal clear."

"At a time when enrollments are going down in most other fields," Hadley pointed out, "enrollments in the sciences are increasing. Our problem here in the College of Science is not declining enrollment but that of being able to accommodate as many good applicants as we can get. It's in the science fields that the jobs are, and it's where the jobs are that students are attracted," the science dean explained. But Dean Hadley conceded that in certain areas of science, such as physics, the job market isn't any better than in non-science fields. He, however, felt that such exceptions are purely temporary.

He said that the sciences had their own trying times during the recent war in Southeast Asia, but that situation has now improved. "Some people thought that the Vietnamese war was caused by scientists," he said, "and they, therefore, became highly anti-science. But they are now realizing that they were mistaken. You cannot be anti-science and still hope to make progress."

Hadley felt nevertheless that the humanities are worth saving for their social value. "I think that the humanities will probably survive, if not for any other reason at least for the fact that you cannot live in society without some human values and human culture," he stated. "I took a lot of humanities courses myself. We need them and the social sciences, too, in order to live in society as human beings. We still require our students to take the humanities in order to be wholly educated as well as trained. You need to educate the whole person. But the job opportunities are in the sciences more than in any of the other areas. And people aren't going to be swayed by mere humanistic values alone but by the opportunity to earn a living and to contribute effectively to the improvement of life in our society."

John R. Zimmerman, assistant dean of the College of Science, said the problem of the humanist is practically two-fold — the humanist's simplistic view of social issues and his narrow intellectual perspective. He felt these are formidable problems, and they must have to be resolved before the humanities can hope to emerge from what he believes is their current inertia.

"With the rapidly increasing social problems which emerged for the first time in the late 60s," Zimmerman said, "the height of negativism from the humanist has often been sustained by a common, forceful but misleading argument. 'Technology always brings us more problems; the humanist would say, we have all the technology we need, we must now merely put this level of technology to use to solve society's problems and utopia will be at hand.' This kind of conceptual blunder arises in part from the inability of the humanist to communicate effectively with and understand the practical world."

"Society and its problems have become highly complex and practical — with no group or groups able to throw darts and daggers at the problems and mistakes of society, and then escape to the Renaissance age of cultural enlightenment until presumably the practical world is cleansed and refurbished. There is no longer any escape from problems of pollution, overpopulation, energy crisis, ecological erosion," Zimmerman stated. "Society has become a practical society on a global basis and is demanding practical solutions, which the humanist is unfortunately not equipped to provide."

"A solution to our complex societal problems becomes more, rather than less, difficult by virtue of the intense concerns regarding these problems now being expressed by large segments of our society. Often such concerns lead to strong pressures for early and easy solutions which are based on unrealistic considerations. But constructive solutions to complex problems cannot be expected to be either simple or absolute."

Zimmerman thought that "the future constructive humanist will be one so well trained that he can understand and be understood by ecologists, engineers, government officials and businessmen, as well as one who can communicate positively and honestly with the 'man in the street.' An absolute, basic element of academic training for the humanist is development of his communication skills — an ability based on a broad interdisciplinary training — to enable him to interact with the wide variety of practical experts who are typically, mutually engaged in trying to solve the multifarious problems now thrust on our total society."

But he expressed doubt that such a training of the humanist will be made. "I'm not optimistic," he said, "in the training of the humanist. Quite simply the practical world directs its pressures toward those trained for solving practical problems — especially those in the social, behavioral, physical and life sciences, management and the like. Such external pressures are not directed toward the humanist to orient his training accordingly. That's why I am not optimistic. The humanist, to be a constructive participant in our complex society, must take a bold step to initiate a new academic training, one that insists on practical subjects to enable him to communicate effectively with people in other disciplines, and to understand society's complex problems, their possible solutions, and their future consequences."

Zimmerman said that if he were assigned responsibility for planning the kind humanities curricula he had in mind, he would make such a program a really revolutionary one. He would require students in the humanities to devote the first two years of their academic training to courses in the natural, biological and social sciences, and to begin concentration in the humanities fields only as from their junior year. "This kind of training," he said, "will equip the humanist to be a practical and effective member of society rather than what the situation is today."

While conceding that the humanities have lost much of the appeal which they once had, Peter A. Munch, professor of sociology, expressed a strong belief the decline is only temporary. He said only about 20 per cent of employers who come to the campus to hire think of talking to people in the liberal arts, including the humanities. "This stems partly from the general belief that education in the humanities, and even in the social sciences, is not as practical as in other areas," Munch said. "However, I am encouraged by the fact that there is a growing interest in the human aspect of man's values. This is more noticeable in the behavioral sciences than anywhere else. Because of this trend, there is every likelihood that the humanities will be re-vitalized, that they will emerge much stronger from their present difficulties."

Munch agreed that scientific and technological progress has as one of its mixed blessings the gradual alienation, if not an outright dehumanization, of man. But he felt that the trend toward humanism will eventually prevail. "In the social, cultural, and psychological sense," he said, "yes, the development and sophistication of the computer — and of technology generally — has seriously affected man. Social life is rapidly becoming more impersonalized. There is an increasing bureaucratization of human activities, too. Obviously, we gain a lot in material comfort from this development, but we definitely lose a great deal in mental comfort. Of course, I think the development is inevitable because of the enormous increase in man's numbers. I think it will be very difficult to reconcile the humanistic perspective with this technological sophistication. But I believe that the two aspects of human society can live together as useful alternatives. The humanistic nature of man can never be eliminated. That I am sure of."

Munch said that the current plight of the humanities is also intertwined with the national political mood. "It might be added here," he said, "that the waning moral standards in the highest rungs of government has a lot to do with the neglect of the humanities, and what appears to be a popular attitude that the study of the humanities does not bestow any moral values on the individual."

Munch stated that "the social sciences have for long suffered from an inferiority complex vis a vis the hard sciences, which have a tremendous influence in our culture. The main cause of this complex," he thought, "is the persistent influence of the positivists, typified by Comte, who think that society can only be studied quantitatively just as the hard sciences are doing. But I am happy that there is a growing reaction to this extreme empiricism of the hard science imitators, a reaction which is definitely leading toward a humanized view of social life. And definitely, the humanities will in the process come to regain the prestige and attention which they once commanded. I would say that liberal arts education is not education for living. But liberal arts disciplines are nevertheless surviving and prospering. The hard scientist may not have any use for the humanities in his academic pursuits as a scientist, but he surely has a lot of use for them as a human being who lives in human society."

Council agrees to control land around Cedar Lake

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council Monday night agreed to take steps to prevent pollution of Cedar Lake, the city's future water source, by regulating the use of private land surrounding the lake's watershed.

Councilwoman Helen Westberg proposed that a city ordinance be prepared to prevent such pollution. Ms. Westberg pointed out that water from privately owned land near the lake could pollute it if measures were not taken to limit the use of the land.

Career Fair, Women's Day set April 26

A Career Fair will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. April 26 in the Student Center. The Career Fair is sponsored by Continuing Education for Women, Student Life Office and Specialized Student Services.

April 26 has also been designated as Women's Day on Campus. Women's Day on Campus and Career Fair is designed to motivate women to study and pursue educational and vocational goals.

Key speaker will be Mary C. Manning, associate assistant regional director of the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor in Chicago.

Representatives from the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance and the Admissions Office will be at the Career Fair to help women who are considering entering SIU.

A simultaneous film festival on women's issues and career possibilities will be shown and informal panel discussions will be held.

The panel discussions and the day's activities will be aimed specifically at high school juniors and seniors, college students, mature women in the community who are considering attending college or pursuing a career and women currently working at SIU.

Council members agreed and approved Ms. Westberg's motion that an ordinance be drawn up. The ordinance would not regulate zoning of the private land but would curb any use of the land which may threaten the quality of Cedar Lake.

The lake is nearly complete and may be used this summer to supplement the water the city receives from Crab Orchard Lake. Cedar Lake is scheduled to go into full operation in 1975, when the city's lease for Crab Orchard Lake water expires.

In other action, the council approved an agreement between the city and the Illinois Division of Highways regarding implementation procedures for the relocation of the Illinois Central and Gulf railroad tracks in Carbondale.

The agreement provides that the state will coordinate the city's dealings with the federal government during the project. The project has been authorized by Congress.

An amount of $312,000 has already been allocated for an environmental impact study and preliminary design plans. The council has chosen Clark, Dietz and Associates from Urbana to do the study and draw up the plans.

The council members also unanimously approved a 10 cent per zone rate hike for the Carbondale Taxicab Co. The cab company had requested a 15 cent per zone increase.

The council followed the recommendations of the Taxicab Committee, composed of Councilwoman Westberg and Councilmen Archie

Jones and Clark Vineyard.

The committee held hearings into the rate increase request and found the 15 cent increase request unjustified. The committee did recommend that the increase be approved.

The council unanimously approved a pay plan which will increase salaries of non-union city employees five per cent.

The plan will go into effect for the 1974-75 fiscal year.

The council also approved a request by the Alpha Kappa Psi fraternity for a waiver of the $150 licensing fee for the Douglas Amusement Carnival.

The carnival is scheduled for April 29 to May 5.

Council members approved the replacement of parking meters on Illinois Avenue and Monroe Street with nickel-dime meters. The 108 new meters will feature vanishing hands which require that money be deposited in the meters to determine how much time is on them.

Cost of the replacement is estimated at $4,000.

The council approved Mayor Neal Eckert's appointments to the Carbondale Senior Citizens Council and the Human Relations Commission.

Appointments to the Senior Citizens Council are: Barbara Bennett, 203 South Lark Lane; Harris Malan, 1003 West Cherry Street; and Alicia Schneider, 1212 West Freeman Street.

Human Relations Commission appointments are: Rae Elwood, 301 Eason Drive, Apt. 3; and Robert Lee, R.R. 1.

Bankers to get insights

Farmer to open workshop

Walter J. Wills, SIU farm marketing specialist, will set the theme for the 17th annual Farm Credit Workshop April 25 with a talk on "The New Agriculture."

The workshop sessions will be in Ballrooms B and C of the Student Center, beginning at 10 a.m. with a welcome by Keith Leasure, provost. The program is directed mainly at bankers and others from various lending agencies serving all phases of agriculture to give them insights into the changes taking place in agriculture that affect farm lending and credit.

The School of Agriculture and agriculture industries department are sponsoring the annual workshop in cooperation with the SIU-C Division of Continuing Education.

In addition to talks by Wills and associate professor of agricultural industries Donaly W. Lybecker, the morning program will include a panel discussion on credit analysis featuring James Winningham, Arthur, banker and chairman of the Illinois Bankers Association's agriculture committee; Charles B. Shuman, Jr., Champaign, state director of the Farmers Home Administration; John Noland, president of the Decatur Production Credit Association; and Duncan Highmark, Ralston Purina credit manager at Vandalia.

Energy problems in agriculture will be the luncheon address by Edward Henderson, manager of the petroleum sales division of FS Services, Bloomington.

Ronald Dozier, assistant vice-president of the St. Louis Federal Land Bank, will discuss current trends in farm land prices during the afternoon program. Others talking about pricing, credit, and financing agriculture will include Robert Wright, president of the Sikeston, Mo., Production Credit Association; Thomas Frey, University of Illinois agricultural economist; and Leonard Gardner, Illinois Agricultural Association secretary, Bloomington.

Campus Briefs

Books by SIU Anthropologists Philip J. C. Dark and Jerome Handler have been published by two eminent publishing houses.

Dark's "An Introduction to Benin Art and Technology," published by Oxford University Press, deals with the art of the ancient West African kingdom, tracing its development from the 1400's until now.

Published by the Johns Hopkins University Press is Handler's "The Unappropriated People: Freedmen in the Slave Society of Barbados." It focuses on a "third society" that sprang up in the British slave labor colony in the 18th and 19th centuries--Africans or persons of mixed ancestry who were "neither slave nor entirely free." Handler's work, the result of more than six years of research, is called the "first systematic analysis of the freedmen of Barbados."

Dark, author of several books and catalogues on primitive art, began studies of the tribal art of Benin in 1956, when he was on the staff of Nigeria's University College. He came to SIU in 1960 and has continued ethnological and primitive art studies of Benin and New Guinea. He is a research associate in African ethnology for the Field Museum of Natural History.

Handler joined the SIU faculty in 1962 and is the author of two books and several journal articles on British West Indies anthropology and history. He held the Colgate University Olive B. O'Connor Professorship of American Institutions during 1971-72.

Four SIU faculty members from various campus units participated in an inter-university conference on energy recently at Lake Bluff.

Representing SIU were Russell Dutcher, chairman of the geology department; Charles Muchmore, associate professor of thermal and environmental engineering; Milton Russell, professor of economics; and Donald Stucky, assistant professor of plant and soil science. Stucky appeared on the conference program to discuss strip mined land reclamation problems.

The SIU Department of Animal Industries will be host Saturday to the Illinois high school Future Farmers of America invitational poultry judging contests.

Bill Goodman, professor of animal industries and poultry specialist, said visiting high school teams from throughout the state will rate live chickens as well as poultry products and product quality. Special awards will go to the top ranking team and individual with additional ribbon awards to other participants with high scores.

Easter Seal bucket brigade fund drive set

The Alpha Phi Omega, National Service Fraternity, and the Phytettes, the little sister organization of APO at SIU, will conduct their annual Easter Seals Fund Raising Drive on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

During that time, the groups will approach Carbondale businesses, and a bucket brigade will be held during the weekend to collect donations for the Touch of Nature camp program.

Businesses donating to the drive will receive a letter of commendation from the Easter Seal Society, Alpha Phi Omega and the Phytettes in recognition of their assistance.

As a result of tuition increases in the Easter Seal's summer camp program for the crippled children of Southern Illinois, the funds raised have been earmarked specifically to help pay for camp tuitions.

All donations to the society are tax deductible.

Sororities plan spring rush; parties, food headline agenda

The sororities of SIU are urging interested girls to attend Spring Rush. Various meetings and parties will be held throughout the week.

Wednesday, Alpha Sigma Alpha will hold a Suds and Pretzels party, 7 to 9 p.m. at 308 W. Cherry.

Thursday, at 5:30 p.m., the Delta Zeta cookout will take place and the meeting place will be arranged. At 7 p.m., Sigma Sigma Sigma "Bee Bop on Out" will be held at 107 Small Group Housing. Alpha Gamma Delta is scheduling a party at 8 to 10 p.m. at 104 Small Group Housing. Friday, at 7 p.m., Alpha Sigma Alpha is having "Punch and Mints" at 308 W. Cherry.

Saturday, at 1 p.m., Sigma Sigma Sigma meets with Tau Kappa Epsilon at Giant City. They will organize at 107 Small Group Housing for departure. Also at 1 p.m., Alpha Gamma Delta will have a party at the Delta Upsilon house, 705 W. Main. At 2 p.m., Alpha Sigma Alpha is having a kegger at Lake Murphysboro.

Sunday, from 1 to 4 p.m., interested girls can pick up preference party invitations at the Student Activity Room A, 3rd floor of the Student Center. At 8 and 9 p.m. preference parties at various houses will be held. Immediately following the last party, girls are to sign a bid preference card at 107 Small Group Housing.

Monday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., girls can pick up bid cards, at Student Activity Room A in the Student Center.

Candidates must file in APSC race

Petitions for candidates who plan to run in next month's Administrative and Professional Staff Council (APSC) election must be filed with the election committee by April 19.

Each of the four divisions of the APSC will elect one member for a three-year term. The four divisions are business, academic affairs, student affairs and development and services.

The APSC, which is comprised of about 450 University staff members, was formed "about five years ago," president Jack Simmons, said Tuesday.

"It began as an informal group about the time the University Senate was formed," Simmons said. "It's not much different than the other groups."

The APSC is made up of "people who have faculty appointments without academic rank," Simmons said. "The council is a University-wide commission. Before, the faculty, the Civil Service and the students were represented but they didn't include us in the faculty because we didn't have ranking. We couldn't vote on the issues."

Simmons said APSC members are "not covered" by the Civil Service or by rules governing faculty members.

Exam scheduled

A proficiency exam for Linguistics 105a and b (formerly English 105a and b) will be given from 8 to 11 a.m., Friday at Agriculture 218.

For the session starting July, 1974, Euromed will assist qualified American students in gaining admission to recognized overseas medical schools.

And that's just the beginning.

Since the language barrier constitutes the preponderate difficulty in succeeding at a foreign school, the Euromed program also includes an intensive 12-16 week medical and conversational language course, mandatory for all students. Five hours daily, 5 days per week (12-16 weeks) the course is given in the country where the student will attend medical school.

In addition, Euromed provides students with a 12-16 week intensive cultural orientation program, with American students now studying medicine in that particular country serving as counselors.

Senior or graduate students currently enrolled in an American university are eligible to participate in the Euromed program.

Verdict awaited in Alton drug trial

ALTON, (AP)—A jury of five men and seven women began deliberations Tuesday in the federal trial of 10 undercover narcotics agents accused of violating the civil rights of residents in six homes they raided.

Judge Omer Poos of U.S. District Court instructed the jurors for about an hour before handing them the case shortly before 4 p.m. CDT.

In closing arguments earlier in the day, defense attorney David

Schippers told the jury that if the agents sometimes acted violently during the raids, it was because they were in constant danger while performing a service vital to the community, trying to crack a drug pedaling ring.

Government attorneys prosecuting the case argued that whatever noble cause the defendants were working for, they performed their duties in an illegal manner.

Schippers, co-counsel Norman London and Justice Department prosecutor John F. Conroy spent much of their concluding statements on the April 23, 1973 raid of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gigliotto's Collinsville apartment.

The defendants have admitted they had the wrong address in that raid but Schippers said a seven-month investigation of cocaine trafficking in the area led the agents to the Gigliottos' door.

He pointed to more than $1 million of narcotics purchased during the overall investigation and said that five drug pushers were convicted on the evidence.

None of that $1 million drug cache, however, came directly from the raids in question.

Pointing to the cache, Schipper told the jury, "There is enough on this table to poison every kid in the Southern District of Illinois. But it's not on the streets, it's here."

Prosecutor Conroy said the issue was whether the agents decided "to do what was lawful in an unlawful manner."

During the course of the six raids, he said the behavior of the defendants retrogressed "from bad to worse to outrageous." He pictured them as a gang of bumblers, moving from house to house without warrants, twice getting wrong addresses and sometimes unsure of the names and descriptions of the suspects they sought.

All were working with the now defunct St. Louis office of the Drug Abuse Law Enforcement (DALE).

Dance marathon slated for multiple sclerosis

A dance-a-thon with the theme "Dance for Strength" will be held from 7 p.m. Friday until midnight Sunday at the University of Illinois campus in Champaign to raise money for multiple sclerosis.

The dance is being coordinated by the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity and the McDonald Food Corporation. Prizes for the event will include scholarships and trips.

Ed Hendon, a spokesman for the McDonald Corporation, said the dance is hoped to bring in about $88,000 to $100,000 in donations.

Last year, the event brought in $47,000.

Japanese film set for Thursday

A film on the restoration of Japanese art will be shown at 12 noon, Thursday, in the Morris Library Auditorium.

The film, "The Art of the Hyogushi," touches on the subjects of art, printing and conservation.

Morris Library is sponsoring the free film which is open to the public. Anyone seeking further information on the film is urged to contact Ms. Barbara Jahn in the Serials Department at Morris Library, 453-2336.

Hendon said anyone is eligible to participate in the weekend dance marathon. The only requirement is that the participant have a sponsor who will pledge money for the benefit.

McDonald's Corporation is contributing $1,500 for research of multiple sclerosis and will pick up the tab for feeding all the contestants during the weekend.

Hendon said students from all over the country are expected to participate in the event.

Free tickets available

Designer Fuller to talk April 21

Designer and inventor R. Buckminster Fuller will speak at 7 p.m. April 21, in the Newman Center.

Fuller's lecture, sponsored by the Catholic Knights and Ladies of Illinois, is titled "Technology and Overpopulation." Complimentary tickets are being issued at the Newman Center. Persons holding complimentary tickets will be admitted first, others will be admitted if there is still room.

Fuller was named a research professor at SIU in 1959. In 1968 he was named a University Professor, the third person to attain the title in the history of the university.

He is best known for his design of the geodesic dome and for his writings on design, mathematics, philosophy, the future and a multitude of other far-reaching subjects.

In 1963 the SIU Press published three of Fuller's works: "Education Automation: Freeing the Scholar to Return to His Studies," "No More Secondhand God" and "Nine Chains to the Moon." The SIU Press also published Fuller's "Operating Manual for Spaceship Earth" in 1968.

Fuller designed the "Skybubble" home of the U.S. exhibit at Expo '67 in Montreal, a dome for the 1958 Brussels World's Fair. He also is the creator of the "World Game" and the "World Resources Inventory". The "World Game" and "World Resources Inventory" are efforts to determine the stockpile of resources available to all of mankind, and the ways in which man can best use these resources to salvage civilization.

Fuller formally ended his association with the Carbondale campus in 1972, and moved his office to the SIU Edwardsville campus.

A number of his papers and personal documents left to Morris Library recently were repossessed by Fuller.

He has been featured in Time Magazine and has been the object of documentaries by both the Public Broadcasting System and CBS.

The 79-year-old professor holds more than 25 honorary degrees and has U.S. patents on more than 20 inventions and holds patents in about 50 other countries. Beside the geodesic dome he has invented a stockade building system, a dymaxion (three-wheeled) car and a submarine island.

Fuller currently is working on a dome-covered living center for East St. Louis, and is a consultant to the government of India for an international jetport. The "do more with less" theorist presently is headquartered in Philadelphia, where he is a World Fellow in Residence to four educational centers.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in Saturday's Daily Egyptian that Kappa Alpha Psi requested the Carbondale City Council for a $150 carnival fee waiver in conjunction with Kappa Kappa Psi activities.

The fee waiver was actually requested by Alpha Kappa Psi fraternity for a carnival that group is sponsoring from April 30 to May 4. The Alpha Kappa Psi fraternity has no connection with Kappa Kappa Psi.

Sponsors bring in art exhibitions

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A plan which will enable a small but important art museum in Southeast Florida to import six outstanding exhibitions of world-famous art, was announced here.

The plan was developed by J. James Akston, who serves on the boards of museums in New York, Washington and Palm Beach. He is also a trustee of the Norton Gallery and School of Art in West Palm Beach.

He formed a group, the Palm Beach Sponsors Committee Inc., recruited from prominent local art patrons and collectors, businessmen and socialites. They are providing funds for a three-year program of exhibitions, to be capped by a giant sculpture show in 1976. Akston donated $100,000 through the Ziuta and Joseph James Akston Foundation. He expects to raise an additional $400,000 through 40 more pledges of $10,000 each.

Court to hear police request to join in suit against city

A hearing on the Illinois Police Association's request to join in a declaratory judgment on a city ordinance transferring the functions of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners is scheduled for 11 a.m. Thursday in the Jackson County Circuit Court at Murphysboro.

The petition for a leave of intervention was filed in early March on behalf of Mike Maurizio of the Carbondale Police Department and for all other officers affected by the city ordinance.

The petition asks that Maurizio and other affected police officers be allowed to join the former fire and police board in contesting the validity of a city ordinance transferring the board's administrative functions to the city manager.

Mark Rabin, a Springfield attorney who filed the petition, said that if the petition is granted he will seek an injunction prohibiting the city's operation under the new ordinance until a declaratory judgment is issued.

The injunction would force the city to follow the state statutes governing the fire and police board as it did before the ordinance was unanimously passed in January.

The ordinance is an amended version of the Illinois Board of Fire and Police Commissioners.

The ordinance authorizes the city manager to fill vacancies in the police and fire departments from lists of candidates provided by the board. The city manager also disciplines firemen and policemen, with the board reviewing each case.

The request to join the suit was made to resolve three main issues: whether the city manager can have the power to hire, fire and discipline policemen and firemen when the state statutes do not allow it; if the police pension rights are affected by the ordinance; and if there has to be a referendum to change the function of city officials.

Recital planned in piano, voice

Cynthia Ann Ryan of Beecher City and Louella Beckman of Carbondale, seniors in the School of Music at SIU, will present a joint recital at 8 p.m. Friday in the Home Economics Auditorium.

Ms. Ryan, a piano major, will play compositions by Bach, Beethoven, Kabalevsky and George Gershwin.

A soprano, Ms. Beckman will sing selections from classical Italian, French and German literature as well as works by contemporary composers. She will be accompanied by Thomas Higerson of Carterville.

The public is invited. There will be no admission charge.

According to provisions of state law, a person must be a duly, properly appointed police officer to receive the benefits of the pension fund. Rabin said the association is asking whether Carbondale policemen are duly and properly appointed under the city ordinance.

The former board members contested the ordinance on the grounds that it was a change in the form of government and under state law, should have been passed by a referendum.

The former members filed for the declaratory judgement Feb. 14. They were dismissed by the council Feb. 18 for refusing to comply with the ordinance while its validity was being challenged.

TAKE TIME OUT TO READ THE DE CLASIFIEDS

You're serious about photography. So is the Canon F-1.

To you, photography is more than a hobby. You may never want to become a professional. Yet, your photography is as important a means of self-expression to you as your speech. You demand the same excellence in your photographic equipment as you do of your photographic skills.

The Canon F-1 is the camera that can fulfill any photographic task to which you put it. It can stand up to your ability in any situation.

Naturally, a great camera like the F-1 won't ensure great results. That's up to you. Yet—it's nice to know that your camera can grow with you as a photographer.

Part of the reason for this is the F-1 system. Since it was designed in totality, it offers total performance. There is nothing "added on" in the F-1 system. Everything works as it was designed to, and integrates superbly with everything else. You'll spend less time worrying about operating the camera than in shooting. And that's what creative photography is really all about.

Controls fall into place under each finger. It's no accident. Professionals who depend on a camera for their livelihood have a deep regard for the F-1's handling. It's amazing how much a comfortable camera can improve your work.

Sharing these lenses and many of these accessories are the new Electronic Canon EF, with fully automatic exposure control, the FTb, now improved with all exposure information visible in the finder, and the TLb, great for a second camera body or for getting started in Canon photography. Canon. For serious applications. For serious photographers.

Isn't it time you got serious?

Court backs zoning ordinance similar to contested city law

In a 7-1 decision, the U.S. Supreme Court Monday upheld a zoning ordinance similar to a Carbondale ordinance which was contested last fall as being unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court case involved the constitutionality of a zoning ordinance of Belle Terre, N.Y., prohibiting occupancy of a home by more than two unrelated persons in an area zoned as one-family residential.

The ordinance did not limit the number of family members who could live in a house in the one-family zone.

The court held that states could enforce such ordinance in controlling land use.

The Carbondale zoning ordinance also prohibits more than two unrelated persons from living in the same structure in a single family zone.

The ordinance was upheld by Jackson County Associate Judge Robert Schwartz Jr. in October. The case involved four women who lived in a house on Crestview Drive.

Douglas Ingold, an attorney for the Land of Lincoln Legal Assistance Foundation, defended the four women and charged that the ordinance denied the four their constitutional rights of equal protection of law and due process.

In the ruling of the Carbondale case, Schwartz said the ordinance is a valid method of control to effect population density and does not infringe the constitutional protection of equality.

Ingold did not appeal Schwartz's decision since the Belle Terre ordinance already was before the Supreme Court.

Before going to the Supreme Court, the Belle Terre ordinance was ruled unconstitutional by the U.S. Court of Appeals, Second Circuit.

Shelter renovation limiting space for boarding animals

The Jackson County Humane Society's remodeling of the main kennel building is limiting capacity for animals, said Eugenia Hunter, president of the society. Construction is scheduled to be completed by May.

Ms. Hunter said she hoped area pet owners would help alleviate the problem of crowded space and the need to "put animals to sleep" by having their pets sexually neutered if they have no breeding value.

Alteration does not change the disposition of a pet nor is it a dangerous operation. The operation is not expensive when compared to the cost of raising an unwanted litter, she said.

In addition, license fees are less expensive for sexually neutered pets. Fees are $7 for unaltered pets but only $4 for neutered animals.

More than 2800 dogs and 1200 cats were "put to sleep" at the humane society last year. Most of these animals were healthy but simply unwanted, Ms. Hunter said.

Pet owners can decrease the burden of the animal shelter by abiding by the animal control regulations and keep pets confined, she said.

Animals running loose are impounded and become a burden of the humane society.

When the number of owned animals increases at the shelter it leaves less room for unowned pets which could be adopted.

Confining animals not only prevents animal suffering but also helps prevent a public nuisance and health problem, Ms. Hunter said.

Geography lecture reset for Friday

A lecture cancelled earlier because of the illness of the speaker, Chairman Douglas Carter of the Department of Geography, has been rescheduled for 4 p.m. Friday, in Room 141 of Lawson Hall.

The public lecture, titled "A Systems Approach to a Theory of the Environment's Working," is the fifth of a series, "Integrated Sciences," which is a continuous symposium sponsored by the General Systems Science Planning Committee and several other departments under the direction of Keith Leasure, academic vice president and provost.

26 holes-in-one

NEW YORK (AP) — There were 26 holes-in-one on the PGA golf tour in 1973 with Art Wall getting two aces. His second ace of the year was Wall's 41st of a career, according to PGA records.

Two-day session for consumers to be presented

A consumer's look at marketing will be held April 23 and 24 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. in Pulliam 112. The two-day session is sponsored by Continuing Education for Women.

The sessions are designed to educate consumers on the concepts of marketing and advertising.

Topics include a discussion of marketing and the environment around it, the psychology behind ads and research methods used to determine the market and potential users.

Donald Perry, William Dommarmuth and Robert Dreves from the marketing department will speak at the sessions.

We challenge you.

Our Officer Selection Officers are looking for a few good college men—maybe 3 out of 100—who will make good Marine officers. If you're one of them, we'll give you a chance to prove it during summer training at Quantico, Virginia.

Our program is Platoon Leaders Class, PLC. With ground, air and law options. You might even qualify for up to $2,700 to help you through college. But if money is all you're looking for, don't waste your time.

The challenge is leadership. If you want it, work for it. If you've got it, show us. It's one hell of a challenge. But we're looking for one hell of a man.

Winning 'State'

Paul Klapper (left) and John Webb will appear in "Lying In State," the Southern Players' winning entry in the Milwaukee Regional Competition of the American College Theater Festival. The play will be performed at 8 p.m. April 12 and 13 in the University Theater, before moving to the Kennedy Center in Washington for two performances April 18.

Police cite fewer burglaries reported over spring break

Burglaries over spring break fell off sharply compared to winter holidays and Carbondale police attribute the drop in part to crime stories and a property-watch form printed by the Daily Egyptian.

There were 18 spring break burglaries reported, compared to 44 over winter break, which is twice as long.

Greater public awareness of crime prevention possibilities and stepped up crime prevention patrolling helped bring about the 40 per cent reduction, police said.

"There were more plainclothes policemen and unmarked cars being used," said police Lt. Wayne Booker. "The burglars knew there would be a lot more places (being) watched."

Another factor cited by police was the department's program for watching houses, apartments or trailers when residents are vacationing.

Police have forms for residents who request the watch service, but have always had trouble getting them distributed said Booker.

The Daily Egyptian, said Booker, "performed a great public service" by printing the form and stories on crime prevention. "The public became aware that they could do something to help."

Before spring break, Carbondale police had received 67 requests for property watch service, said Booker. This was more than had been filed before winter holidays, he said, though he didn't know how many more.

The watch program is successful when residents use it, said Ron Trentacosti, department supervisor of services. Since Carbondale police introduced the program, only one home that was under surveillance has been hit by burglars.

Of the 18 reported break-ins over spring break, 11 involved houses, apartments or trailers and 7 autos were hit. The winter's 44 cases included 26 auto and 18 dwelling burglaries.

The burglary count this spring was double the same period in 1973, when there were nine reported break-ins, said Trentacosti.

He added that the small number of 1973 spring burglaries is not attributable to crime prevention work as much as it is to circumstances such as potential burglars being in the right state of mind to commit their crimes.

Bulls, Pistons sing home court blues

CHICAGO (AP) — Each having disproved the home-court edge theory, the Chicago Bulls and Detroit Pistons mark time until Friday night before resuming their deadlocked National Basketball Association Western Conference semifinal series.

The Bulls scored their first playoff victory on the road in 18 tries Monday night, outlasting the Pistons 100-103 at Detroit after losing this playoff opener, 97-88, at the Chicago Stadium Saturday.

"Man, this looks like it's going to be one hot series," commented Piston star Bob Lanier, who contributed 38 points Monday night after pacing Detroit's Saturday triumph with 27.

Both coaches also expected the best of seven showdown to be a bellringer all the way.

"The rest of this thing is going to be close," said Detroit's Ray Scott. "It's going to be give and take."

Said Chicago's Dick Motta: "I fully expect each team to win another game on the other's home court. They're that evenly matched."

The series now is certain to give Chicago two more home shots—Friday night and Tues., April 9 after game No. 4 Sunday at Detroit.

Bears win over WFL; sign first-round draftee

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Bears provided a bright spot on the clouding National Football League scene Tuesday by signing their No. 1 draft pick, coveted linebacker Waymond Bryant of Tennessee State.

Bryant, a second-round pick by Washington-Baltimore of the aggressive new World Football League, signed a multi-year Bear contract at undisclosed terms.

The Bears thus made at least modest retaliation for the NFL in the wake of the jolting WFL capture of some big talent from the old, established league in the past few days.

The WFL's Birmingham entry Tuesday signed quarterback Ken Stabler away from the Oakland Raiders as the NFL still was reeling from the defection of Miami's Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield to the WFL's Toronto franchise.

Bryant said the Washington-Baltimore Ambassadors were "reasonably close" to the Bear offer, but asserted a reported three-year, $375,000 bid by the WFL club was "not in the ball park."

"I wouldn't want to say whether the Washington-Baltimore offer was greater or less than the Bears, but we had doubts the WFL would get off the ground. The Chicago club is in business and I put a lot of emphasis on playing in the NFL," he said.

Women's softball to open on road

The SIU women's varsity softball team has begun practice and will open their season on the road against Southeast Missouri State University Friday.

Both the A and B teams are scheduled to make the trip. Anyone interested in trying out for the team should contact Kay Brechtelsbauer at the Women's Gym or call 453-2296.

Petchul remains net 'star' despite weekend setback

By Bruce Shapin
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

After losing 6-7, 4-6, to Iowa's Steve Dickenson, Dane Petchul, the Salukis' No. 1 singles player, strolled up and commented, "Do you still want to interview me, or aren't I the star any more?"

The sarcastic Petchul has indeed been the top player so far for the SIU tennis team, despite last weekend's loss.

Petchul, a sophomore from Lombard, was the No. 3 singles player last year, but through the Salukis' first 12 matches of the year, he has taken over the No. 1 spot.

"Dane is not playing any different than he did a year ago," said coach Dick LeFevre, "but he is making many fewer mistakes. Last year he would double-fault three to four times a match."

Indeed, Petchul's major weapon is his dynamic serve. When his serve is not humming, he's in trouble. Witness last Saturday's match against Dickenson. Fighting a stiff wind, which affected each man's serve, Petchul held on in the first set only to lose a nine-point tie-breaker and the set. The loss put his individual record at 8-4.

Three of those victories came as a pleasant surprise during a nine-day trip through the South. Petchul defeated Bill Dutton of Princeton, the Illinois state champion two years ago, who beat Petchul in the state tourney; Rejean Genois of Florida State, member of the Canadian Davis Cup team who won four matches in the NCAA championships last year; and Bill Kopecky of Georgia, the No. 1 ranked player in the Southeastern Conference.

Petchul attended high school at Glenbard East where he was the Des Plaines Valley Conference ten-

Tuesday meeting set for volleyball

A men's intramural volleyball team managers meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday in Lawson Hall 161 for any SIU student interested in entering an intramural volleyball team for spring competition.

All team rosters must be turned in during this meeting. Play is scheduled to start Tuesday, April 23. For further information, contact the Office of Recreation and Intramurals in the SIU Arena, Room 128 or phone 453-2710.

nis champion four years. He participated in the Illinois state tennis tournament as a sophomore, junior and senior, making it to the top 16 during his last year.

Petchul has some positive thoughts regarding the tennis team's future. "We can make the top 20 in the nation with some good draws at the NCAA," said Petchul. The NCAA tennis championships will be June 17-22 in Los Angeles, Calif.

With the popularity of professional tennis, Petchul has had some thoughts of trying his backhand on the pro circuit, but last summer he changed his mind. "I thought about playing pro tennis till last summer when I played on the Southern pro circuit as an amateur."

After that experience I decided that you can't go to college and be a pro. To become a professional tennis player you have to quit school and play tennis 12 months a year."

Petchul is not sure now what he wants to major in, but he does want to teach tennis in Chicago when he graduates. Petchul will be teaching tennis this summer in Hinsdale, and is looking forward to working with children. "It will be fun to teach a kid who really has athletic ability and wants to learn the game," Petchul said.

Petchul cites experience as the reason he has played better this year, while LeFevre said, "He has worked on his second serve and this is the difference in his play. We are pleased with Dane's play."

Cycle club to hold time trial

The SIU Cycling Club has scheduled a 20 kilometer (12.5 mile) time trial for 8:30 a.m. Saturday at Lakeland School on the Giant City Blacktop.

The time trial will be run rain or shine and will cover the distance from Lakeland School to the Little Grassy road and back. The event will be run in the English Time Trial tradition of an out and back course.

The time trial is a race against the clock. There is a staggered start, with each rider departing one minute apart. The race is an all out ride by each rider to meet a certain time or personal record.

The time trial is open to everyone and all styles of bicycles. For further information contact David or Dan Casebeer at 549-0450.

Short sells Texas Rangers for estimated $9 million

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP)—Bob Short, who moved the Washington baseball franchise to Texas two years ago and triggered some hard feelings in the American League, sold controlling interest for an estimated $9 million Tuesday.

They buyer was a group of Dallas-Fort Worth businessmen headed by industrialist Brad Corbett of Fort Worth.

Short, who retained about 10 per cent interest in the team, said he lost $1 million in the two years the franchise has been in Texas. However, it is expected he will still come out with a paper profit of some $600,000 plus tax write-offs.

Corbett's partners in the venture include Edward "Buzz" Kemble, a Fort Worth lawyer; Amon Carter Jr., publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram; Bill Harvey; Dr. Bobby Brown, a heart specialist and former New York Yankee star third baseman; and Dallas businessman Bill Seay, Charley Sharp and Ray Nasher.

Short, who was in his sixth year as the owner of the team, was criticized by the Washington press when he moved the team to Texas. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was not happy with the transfer at the time, but has since said the Dallas-Fort Worth area should prosper as a franchise.

The flamboyant Short spared no expense in trying to make the Rangers a respectable team. He hired Hall of Fame great Ted Williams, Whitey Herzog and Billy Martin as managers.

Stabler signs contract with WFL

NEW YORK (AP)—The opportunity to play football in his native Alabama lured quarterback Ken Stabler away from the National Football League Oakland Raiders Tuesday in another major signing coup by the new World Football League.

Hot on the heels of the jump to Toronto by Miami's Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield, Stabler agreed to a multi-year contract beginning with the 1976 season with the WFL's Birmingham Americans.

The contract makes him the highest-paid player in professional football history, according to one of his agents, but both Stabler and Bill Putnam, chairman of the board of the Americans, refused to discuss the terms at a news conference called here to announce the signing. Asked if it was more or less than the reported $3-million package the Miami three had received Sunday, Stabler would only grin and say, "more or less."

Instead of discussing money, Stabler preferred to emphasize his desire to return to Alabama. He was raised there and played his collegiate football at the Thirty-five mile per hour gusts were not the only thing that blew the Lincoln College Tigers off Abe Martin Field Tuesday.

Sharp pitching, timely hitting and nine stolen bases powered the Saluki baseball team past the Tigers, 7-1 and 11-0 in SIU's home opener doubleheader. Both games were seven inning contests.

A three-hit performance by Jim Bokelman in the first game and a one-hitter by Scott Waltemate in the second match kept Lincoln batters at bay. Lincoln also assisted the Saluki offense with four errors.

In the first game, Lincoln score its only run of the day in the first inning. Blaine Luetkemeyer ripped a single between SIU third baseman Bert Newman and the bag down the left field line. After Luetkemeyer took second on a fielder's choice, G.W. Gelbin also pulled one down the left field line to score Luetkemeyer.

But that was all the scoring the Tigers were to do. SIU countered with three runs in its half of the first on walks to John Hoescheidt and Stan Mann and hits by Bert Newman and Jim Reeves.

A gusty cross wind caused troubles for players all day but Lincoln outfielders seemed to be bothered the most. Tiger outfielders misjudged several balls most of the time with Saluki runners on base.

SIU got another run in the third when Steve Shartzter led off with a single, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and came home on Reeves' ground out to first base.

Bokelman held Lincoln hitless for the final five innings of the game, while the SIU batters sent eight men to the plate in the sixth for three insurance runs.

Shartzter, Mann and Ken Wolf all scored for SIU in the sixth, as the Salukis were aided by four walks and two stolen bases.

The win was Bokelman's third against one defeat for the Salukis. He struck out five and walked three.

Game two was all Waltemate. After a two-out single by Oliver "Monk" Page in the second, the 6-2 right-hander retired 16 Tigers in a row to complete the shutout.

The Salukis scored their first run in the third when Reeves scored from second on Newman's single. Four runs in the fourth, five in the fifth and another in the sixth completed the shelling.

The game turned into a comedy of errors as the frustrated Lincoln team committed four errors. Newman, Mann, Howie Mitchell and Reeves all had more than one hit to pace the SIU attack.

The win was the first of the season for Waltemate, who was in on only one decision—a loss—on the Florida spring trip.

The wins improved the Saluki record to 10-5. SIU will face Greenville in a home doubleheader at 1 p.m. Wednesday at Abe Martin Field.

Caracas lets Foreman go

Foreman had been refused permission to leave the country pending payment of taxes on his $700,000 purse and ancillary earnings.

Foreman arrived at the airport nearly two hours early for his flight and was ushered into a VIP lounge by airline officials, who presented his passport and other documents, including a tax clearance, to airport inspectors.

"Everything turned out okay," said Sadler, the only member of the group allowed to speak with newsmen.

Sadler said Foreman paid $150,000 in cash to cover guaranteed earnings on the fight and signed an agreement to pay taxes on any additional money he might receive from closed circuit television.

Gymnasts play favorite's role

The SIU women's gymnastic team is rated as one of the favorites in the national collegiate championships in Sacramento, Calif. Friday and Saturday.

The women's team will be one of 20 university representatives that have reached the nationals by qualifying in regional meets.

The SIU team is led by freshman Sandi Gross, whose elite class qualification has helped take the Salukis through an undefeated season in dual-meet competition. Other members of the team are Dianne Grayson, Pat Hanlon, Ginger Temple and Stephanie Stromer, who will be competing in the wake of a back injury.

University of Alabama, leading the Crimson Tide to an 11-0 record in his senior year before being drafted by the Raiders.

Stabler led all American Football Conference passers last season. He has one more year remaining on his Raider contract and then will honor his option year as well. That means he won't join Birmingham until 1976.

"We didn't give Oakland a chance to match the offer," said Stabler. "They couldn't give me the opportunity to play in the South that Birmingham did."

Asked his reaction to the signing of Stabler, Raiders managing general partner Al Davis, in Oakland, released a formal statement.
