Five seek 3 CCHS board positions

Editor's note: This story was written by Ann McDaniel, Shelley Pazzol and Gerda Unzner, student writers.

Five candidates, including two incumbents, are seeking Carbondale Community High School Board of Education positions for three three-year terms in the April 9 election.

The incumbents are Mary S. Walker and Carol McDermott. The three challengers are John Baker, Barbara Bennett and Bill Orthwein.

The five candidates seeking the three full-term positions are running at large. There are seven members on the board. The third position, opening up besides the incumbent's position, is now filled by Charles Hindersman.

The two incumbents, Mary Walker and Carol McDermott, said they are running for re-election because it takes so much time to become acquainted with the job.

Both say that after three years they want to continue working on long range plans to solve the district's financial problems. The board has estimated the school's deficit to be $800,000 by the end of this school year.

Orthwein said he is running because it's clear to him the board is wasting money. As 1975 president of the Jackson County Taxpayers Association, he said he became concerned that the biggest chunk of the taxpayer's dollar was going to schools.

Bennett, 203 S. Lark Lane, said she is running because she feels there is a lack of educational leadership in the schools.

John Baker, chairman of SIU's Political Science Department, said that his friends have urged him to run because of his administrative experience with the University and because of his special interest in local government. "I know a little about educational funding and the impact of federal funds on local school districts," Baker said.

Walker, who is assistant to James Brown, SIU system General Secretary, said the board needs continuity. "With four of the seven positions filled by new people, I felt at least two of the positions needed to be replaced by experienced members. Otherwise it's tough on the school and everyone in the school."

McDermott, an SIU counselor and instructor in the Social Welfare Department, said that in the last three years the district has had three superintendents.

McDermott said her reason for running was because she likes to be part of what helps provide for her children. She said she felt her two boys had received a good education and she would like to see her 12-year old daughter receive the same.

Walker said she feels because she has no children, she can be more objective in making decisions.

"A No. 1 priority is education to provide the best education with existing money," Walker said. A good education, she said, is one which provides a properly balanced curriculum to help students decide what to do with their futures.

McDermott said a good education is one which develops students who "come out able to function in the contemporary world."

Orthwein feels that students who don't try should flunk from school. "If students don't want to go to school, they shouldn't be forced to," he said. Orthwein, an SIU engineering mechanics and materials professor, said some

Police probe recessed until Thursday

By John Rebbeck

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Jackson County Grand Jury investigating the Carbondale Police Department will recess until 9 a.m. Thursday, Howard Hood, Jackson County state's attorney, said Friday.

Hood said he is not permitted to say if the jury has returned any indictments or if any additional persons will be subpoenaed.

When asked if George Kennedy, former Carbondale Police Department Chief, would be subpoenaed, Hood said, "I can't answer that."

Hood did say that he does not "contemplate the jury recalling any witnesses who have already testified."

Friday, testimonies were heard from: Carroll Fry, Carbondale City manager; Edward Hogan, Carbondale Police Chief; Brocton Lockwood, a Carbondale lawyer; Bill Staton, an Illinois State Police investigator from Springfield; John Mauzey, a Southern Illinois Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) agent; Mike Maurizio, a Carbondale Police detective; James Nestler, a Jackson County Sheriff's Deputy; and Melvin Lipe, vice president of Carbondale National Bank.

Staton, who along with John Roberts investigated possible irregularities in the Carbondale Police Department, testified for 30 minutes. Roberts did not testify because he said he had the same evidence as Staton.

Fry testified for 50 minutes, Hogan testified for 20 minutes, Maurizio testified for about 15 minutes and Lipe testified for less than 5 minutes.

Mauzey, who once lived with Ralph Brandon, a Carbondale Police Officer who killed himself on Jan. 17, testified for 55 minutes.

Lockwood, who has represented Ralph Brandon's widow Pat, testified for 70 minutes.

Brandon has been the focus of the state police investigation and an earlier city investigation.

Brandon, before he died, had told sources that he had photocopied $1,800 in cash, which had been mailed to the police in 1974.

The money later disappeared from a police evidence locker.

Brandon had said the last time he had seen the money was when he gave it to then-Police Chief Kennedy.

Kennedy resigned in the midst of the state police investigation on Feb. 17.

Nestler, who investigated Brandon's death for the sheriff's office, testified for 30 minutes.

Three Carbondale detectives and the supervisors of the police had been subpoenaed, but were told by Hood Friday that they did not have to testify.

The detectives were: Robert Goro, William Kikuist and Richard Powell. Neil Jacobson is the supervisor.

John Wornick, city attorney, and five Carbondale Police officers were among the 10 who testified on Thursday.

Area residents plan fight with city

Springmore street plan still under fire

By Sue Greene

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Some residents of Carbondale's Springmore area are still trying to convince government officials their street improvement plan is best.

On March 21, the City Council voted unanimously to accept the city's revised plan for the area. This plan calls for two streets to be widened to 28 feet and all other streets to 24 feet.

The project will probably begin this summer, said Larry Bruno, the city planner who wrote the Environmental Impact Statement (EIS). Construction will begin with Bridge and Rigdon streets.

Groups and individuals are continuing to fight the city's plan. Jim Adams, a Northwest Workshop spokesman, said Thursday. The workshop submitted its plan in March to the City Council in an attempt to block the city's proposals.

The city's plan states that Bridge and Rigdon streets, which run north and south, would be widened to 28 feet.

"We were upset with the size of streets approved and the secondary highway which will now directly connect our neighborhood to Poplar Street," Adams said.

The workshop's plan states it was designed "to discourage through traffic while preserving neighborhood character."

Bruno says he feels the city's plan is a fair compromise between public and private interests.

All parties learned a lesson in the importance of public participation in planning, he said.

The city will send a copy of its EIS to federal agencies early next week, Bruno said.

An EIS is required for any construction using federal funds. Federal funds can be released for construction if the plan is approved.

Bruno said the city does not expect to receive a response to the EIS because at the present stage it is basically a formality.

After waiting for a few weeks, the city will certify all that requirements have been met and apply for federal funds to finance the project. The city has already set aside $750,000 for the project.

Robert Jurich, a workshop member, said resistance to the city's plan is now on an individual level. Jurich said the concerned citizens are writing letters to government officials. "We want to bring it to their attention that our tax dollars are being used to finance projects against our wishes."

The workshop plan called for a redevelopment of the entire Springmore area, including the streets. Basically it provided for a one-way couple using Bridge and Amond streets and parallel parking on other area streets.

The city's plan called for improving sidewalks curbs, drainage and sewer systems in the area.

Vance: U.S. bases in Europe may risk arms talks

PARIS (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said Friday that the entire strategic arms control process could be threatened by the Soviet Union raising the issue of American bases in Europe. He added that the American base system in Europe "has never been included" in Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty - SALT - negotiations.

The base issue as well as the deployment of intermediate range missiles in Europe was raised to Vance Wednesday by Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev. Vance told reporters that he told Brezhnev that the United States did not accept the bases and intermediate missiles as subjects for SALT negotiations.

Oswald friend claimed part in Kennedy death

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Dutch journalist, William Oltmans, said he testified under oath Friday that Russian emigrant, George de Mohrenschildt, who apparently committed suicide earlier this week had claimed to be part of a conspiracy to kill President John F. Kennedy.

The television newsmen de Mohrenschildt told him the alleged conspiracy involved Texas oilmen, Cuban exiles, and CIA and FBI agents. Oltmans said de Mohrenschildt claimed he was a middleman between H.L. Hunt representing Texas oilmen and Lee Harvey Oswald. The journalist said he gave the committee "the name of an FBI official, not Hoover, who might be important."

House panel passes $36 billion military budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Armed Services Committee has approved a military-procurement budget of nearly $36 billion, almost $61 million more than the amount sought by President Carter, the panel's chairman said today.

The committee gave Carter the authority he requested for five B1 bombers, costing $1.1 billion in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1. But it cut $45.6 million from the shipbuilding program he requested and shifted funds within the program to place greater emphasis on combat ships.

Congress debates Alton Lock and Dam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alton Lock and Dam on the Mississippi River in Illinois, damaged by shifting of the river bottom, was back before Congress Friday as arguments resumed over whether it should be repaired or replaced.

Just as they did in five days of hearings last year, congressmen from affected states argued that a new dam with a longer navigation lock should be built to speed up barge traffic carrying wheat and other Midwest commodities to market.

Others, led by Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., said no new locks and dams should be built until legislation is passed to require users of waterways to pay fees.

Elementary Board 95 finishes personnel cuts

By David Zoeller
Student Writer

The Carbondale Elementary School District 95 Board of Education has dismissed one principal and cut one music teacher's position to half-time, completing staff reductions to achieve a balanced budget next year.

In a summary of the total staff reductions, Supt. George Edwards said administrative and supervisory personnel have been reduced 10 per cent, instructional staff 8 per cent and non-certified staff 14 per cent.

The board voted unanimously Thursday night to dismiss Brush School Principal Dale Smith at the end of the current school year. Smith is the only non-tenured principal in District 95.

Brush School was heavily damaged by fire Dec. 12 and has been permanently closed by the board.

The board also voted unanimously to reduce the position of Armeta Beltz, vocal music teacher, to half-time.

Edwards said efforts would be made to provide Beltz with a full-time teaching assignment if a vacancy occurs.

Two teachers in the Home Economics Department have been reassigned to the Language Arts and Social Studies Departments to replace teachers retiring from those departments. Edwards said both teachers are certified to teach in the newly assigned positions.

Although no staff reductions were made in the Physical Education Department, the title of athletic director at the junior high school was eliminated at a savings of $100 per year. Edwards said the title has been eliminated and not any staff member.

The board voted to have the athletic program become self-supporting except for transportation and salaries in two years.

In other action, the positions of director of special services and director of gifted children were modified to include less supervision and more direct student contact.

The board is considering a reduction in the length of contracts for personnel currently on 10 and 10½ month contracts. The recommendations would be presented at the May 26 board meeting.

John Huffman, former SIU legal counsel, has been hired by the board to give legal advice concerning personnel matters. Edwards said the hiring of Huffman was related to upcoming contract negotiations.

The next board meeting is 7:30 p.m., April 14, at Winkler School.

Fire protection, roads, money leading issues in supervisor's race

By Terri Bradford
Student Writer

Interviews with candidates for township clerk, road commissioner, assessor and township trustees will be in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian.

Carbondale Township voters will decide whether to retain 14-year veteran supervisor W. I. "Ike" Brandon or opt for Democratic newcomer Robert D. Kelley in elections Tuesday.

Major issues heating up in the campaign include fire protection for township residents, upkeep of 42 miles of roads and distribution of township money.

W. I. Brandon

Brandon favors spending township money on road and bridge maintenance and on general assistance (money presented to needy persons as a gift). During the past four years of his supervisor stint, Brandon spent over $430,600 on three roads: Park Street, Warren Road and a portion of Pleasant Hill Road.

Brandon has kept money not currently being used in accounts at First National Bank of Carbondale. The money, in excess of $35,000, has collected almost $100,000 in interest. However, the more township money kept unused in a bank account, the less federal money will be granted in the future to Carbondale Township. Yet requests for township funding assistance by such civic groups as the Carbondale Senior Citizens' Council have been denied.

Brandon said, "I am a senior citizen myself, and they can qualify for more programs than we (the township) do. They have other ways to get money."

"Why spend money for other programs when everybody in the city — students and everyone else — get the benefit of the roads?" Brandon asked.

He says all township money is kept in one bank instead of distributing it among the four local banks, to insure drawing the largest interest rates.

Brandon has drawn criticism from opponents for his failure to establish a fire department to serve township residents.

The Carbondale City Council first informed Brandon in May, 1976, that alternative measures of fire protection must be established, because, effective May 1, 1977, the city would no longer provide fire protection services for township residents. The City Council also eliminated its usual $25,000 fee for fire protection in order to give township officials time to establish and finance their own services.

In a Monday meeting, Brandon asked council members to extend the deadline "because of the difficulty of purchasing a suitable used fire truck and establishing the department."

Brandon announced Thursday afternoon he has chosen Donald Struve of Carbondale, 52, to head the township fire department. He said Struve, a retired Rock Island fireman, will be paid an annual salary of $12,000.

Brandon said he will advertise beginning April 16 for bids and specifications for a used fire truck. "We should be able to get a truck for between $15,000 and $20,000," he added.

"People in Carbondale Township will not be without fire protection," Brandon stated. "By the last day of April, we'll have a fire protection service."

Brandon said calls reporting fires will be relayed temporarily by the Carbondale Fire Department.

In a letter mailed to Carbondale voters, Brandon said, "I have not had a pay increase in four years, nor will I accept one during the next four years."

However, the Illinois Constitution states that no township official may be granted a salary increase during his term.

Brandon's letter also said he has used "less than one-half of the taxing authority" at his disposal during the last four years.

"I think township government is the fastest, quickest government there is," remarked Brandon. "It's certainly the closest to the people there is."

Robert D. Kelley

Kelley, 53, is committed to making township government responsive to needs of the people.

"I think the township government needs to be doing more for the people of Carbondale," Kelley said. "In the past, I can't seem to find out that the township was doing much more than general assistance. The township had no other programs that really benefit the people of Carbondale," he continued.

"All people are paying taxes and are entitled to something in return for their money," Kelley remarked. He advocated "competitive bidding from citizens on how their money should be spent." The money is not doing any good in the bank when it's needed elsewhere, he said.

"I would like input from citizens on how to spend revenue sharing money — for any civic or community project connected with the township."

Kelley said that if elected, he intends to continue the general assistance program, only "perhaps do a better job."

"I wouldn't take money away from road care and maintenance — I'd keep up those current projects," he remarked.

Kelley indicated concern about Brandon's delay in establishing a fire department. "Fire protection has got to be provided for the people," he said. "I will work toward a sensible, economical and workable means of providing it."

Kelley said he favors changing the time of township meetings from 4 p.m. to "sometime at night," so more people can attend.

"The Democrats think we have a good ticket," he commented. "I'm not satisfied with the job Ike Brandon has done and the Democrats are not satisfied."

"I love a challenge, and I think this election campaign is one of the most interesting things that ever happened to me," Kelley remarked.

Kelley, who is County Board Chairman Bill Kelley's father, is currently supervisor of General Stores and Surplus Property at Southern Illinois University.

District 95 candidates 'vow solvent budget

By Dan Larson
and Debbie Saethen-Short
Daily Egyptian Writers

A balanced budget and the redistribution of elementary students are the main issues in the Carbondale Elementary School District 95 school board elections next Saturday.

Three candidates are running for the two positions currently held by David Rosenthal and Charles Reno. The candidates are Reno, of 1023 W. Willow, Mara Lou Hawse, of 1456 E. Grand Ave., and Elsie Speck of 1206 W. College.

The three candidates agree the district should strive for a balanced budget and that to achieve it, the recent staff reductions were unavoidable.

District 95 has had a budget deficit for the past three years.

The question of redistributing elementary students arose from the recent closing of Brush Elementary School. Hawse and Speck said they favor separating kindergarten through fourth grade from the fifth and sixth grades. However, both said the plan requires more evaluation before a final decision is made.

Reno said that since he is on the board and the board has not received a proposal on the redistribution of students, he cannot announce his support for one of the options.

Reno said he foresees no major problems with redistribution, because classroom space in the district is sufficient to accommodate Brush students.

The 33-year-old owner of Reno's News Service, Reno is a Carbondale native and former SIU student. He has a wife and two sons and is running for his second three-year term.

Hawse, a 41-year-old civil service secretary at SIU, recently resigned as president of the Carbondale PTA Council, because she did not want a conflict to arise in the two positions.

A 16-year resident of Carbondale, Hawse graduated with a bachelor's degree in music education from West

Charles Reno

Liberty State College in West Virginia. She is working on a master's degree in history at SIU.

A former teacher, Hawse said she would like to use the human resources in the community to supplement teaching with practical experience.

Hawse's husband, Larry, is the assistant director of research development and administration at SIU. The Hawses have two children.

Speck, the 46-year-old mother of two children, taught elementary school for 11 years in Philadelphia where she also attended Temple University and received a masters degree in Educational Psychology.

Speck said she would like to see greater emphasis on teaching children to be less wasteful and more aware of the limited resource supply.

Speck's husband, Charles, is an assistant professor of foreign languages at SIU.

Polling places, open from noon to 7 p.m., will be located at Bowen Gym in Carbondale Community High School, the Vocational Center on East Main Street, Parrish Elementary School and Winkler Elementary School.

Age, background differences mark candidates

2 candidates vie for 1-year seat on CCHS board

By Steve Bauman
News Editor

While the two candidates for the one-year term on the Carbondale Community High School District 185 Board of Education differ on the issues, perhaps the most distinct difference is in age and background.

Bill Schwegman, 42, a professional engineer for Clark, Deitz and Associates, served as acting city manager before the appointment of Carroll Fry to that position.

Wesley Gibson, 19, a sophomore in administrative science at SIU, said his age and inexperience should not be a reason for people not to vote for him. He said he has attended every board meeting during the past year and a half and has done extensive research on matters pertinent to the board.

Gibson accused Schwegman of showing no interest in the board or matters concerning the school. He cited his own attendance at board meetings as proof of his interest.

Gibson also said he has toured all three of the campuses and has spoken to many students, teachers and staff members about their concerns.

Schwegman said he has toured the Vocational Center and has spoken to teachers there. He also said he has been in contact with some of the school's administrators.

However, Schwegman admitted that he was "somewhat apathetic" about the recent referendum, and did not vote on the proposal.

Both candidates agreed that cutting nonself-supporting extra-curricular activities was necessary because of the current estimated $800,000 estimated deficit.

Schwegman said he "hated to see the programs scrapped" but added that the board did not have a choice. He said he would be willing to give some activities support if the community were to show an interest in supplying a portion of money needed to keep the programs.

Gibson agreed, saying he would support programs if the community "would meet the board halfway. I, as a board member, would be more than willing to help. If the community tried to raise the money, then I would scrounge for extra money."

Gibson said the financial situation is complicated by a lack of communication among the board, teachers, staff, administrators, students and the public.

These groups need to unite and work together toward ending the financial crisis at the school, Gibson said.

The two candidates agreed that another bond referendum, like the one held in March, would not be feasible in the near future.

Gibson said it would be unwise to present another referendum before September. Schwegman said he thought the board should wait for at least two or three years before they considered another proposal.

Gibson stressed that the trend towards lax enforcement of discipline had reversed. He saw this as the major reason for the decline in racial tension, vandalism and the number of fights reported on campus.

Schwegman stressed the need for the board to deal with long-range plans instead of "drifting from crisis to crisis." He said a long-range building plan is needed to cut down on the cost of building maintenance and to preserve the present structures.

Both stressed the need for more student input in the board. Schwegman said he would support a plan to allow a student representative on the board in an advisory capacity.

Gibson said he thought he could relate to students better because of his age and present their views to the board.

The candidates are running for the one-year term, because Lawrence Deitz of DeSoto, is retiring from the job after serving only two years of his three-year term.

high school teachers have complained about delinquency.

Both Bennett and Baker would like to see a curriculum review and an update on vocational programs to determine if the students are meeting the employment needs of the community. They both felt that more community support is needed for any improvements in education.

Bennett suggested that, in an effort to get more community support, the board meeting agenda be publicized on Channel 7 television and in the Daily Egyptian.

Bennett feels the referendum failed because the community was outraged by the board's previous actions. "The board has been a victim of bad financial advice," Bennett said. This year the budget didn't allow for salary increases or money for insurance.

Baker said the referendum failed because of the complexity of the issue, little confidence in the present board and the confusing financial problem. "In my judgment, they (the board) should have known that the financial records were inadequate for people to understand," he said.

Baker, commenting on the specific cuts made by the board March 17, said he would have preferred a greater focus on administrative cost.

Baker said he feels the county must develop a plan to get the property tax to schools in a more timely fashion. The district had to borrow money to pay expenses with a considerable amount of interest to be paid on the money borrowed. He predicted it would take at least ten years to pay back all the money borrowed.

In the future, he would like to see the board re-examining the curriculum, develop a more complete evaluation system of instructors and examine the vocational programs to see if the students are being trained to work.

Orthwein said money should go to teachers and equipment. He feels that the highest salaries should go to teachers, because "they affect the students the most."

"The difficulties are largely a result of the administrators, and they should pay the price," he said.

Walker sees three general priorities which need to be dealt with by the board, she said. One is the financial deficit that is estimated to be $800,000 by the end of this school year. The other two are determining what would be offered in the curriculum and dealing with the buildings (the physical facilities).

McDermott said that the inability to determine the specific financial situation because of the system in which money is handled is a problem for the board.

"I think we need more vocational training," McDermott said. She wouldn't have said that 10 years ago, she said, because needs were different.

Walker said there will be a need for a special curriculum study to be done. The PLIGHTS (Planning Long Range Intelligent Goals to Help Our Troubled Schools) committee had a 40 member committee to plan the study but it never came up with a report because it couldn't agree on what to include, Walker said.

Both Walker and McDermott said there wasn't a need for four different foreign languages, each taught for four years.

Specifies that Orthwein felt should be eliminated include aviation, wood-working, personal typing, photography and fine arts.

Orthwein thinks students don't get as much out of school as they should. He feels that vocational and pre-college programs should be evaluated.

"It's the duty of the principal to keep an eye out on what's available in the job market," he said. "We should keep courses that are useful for someone who wants to get a job or go to college."

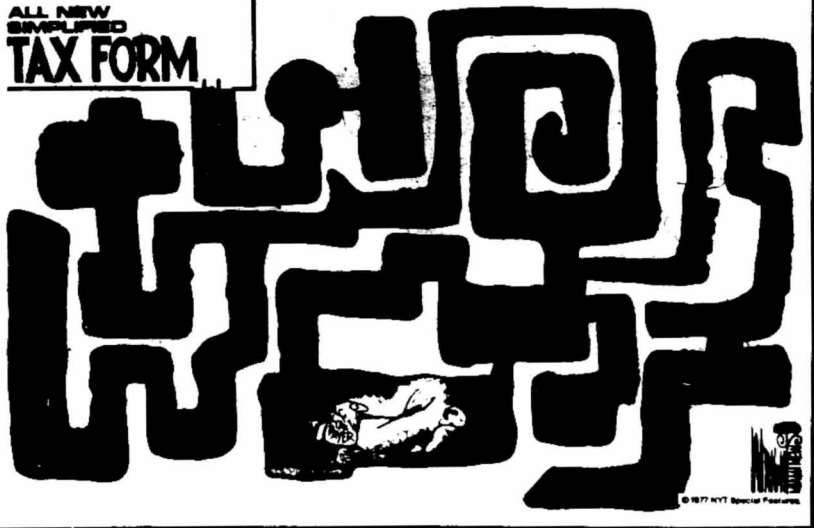

Board members will be decided by voters April 9 at eight precincts. The precincts are CCHS Bowen Gym and CCHS Vocational Center and Unity Point, Giant City, Winkler, Parrish, DeSoto and Makanda schools.

Student Senate decision promotes Zionism

By Dennis Vail
President, U.S. Committee for Justice in Palestine

The latest twist in institutional bias goes thusly: Israeli Student Union-9908, U.S. Committee for Justice in Palestine—Nothin! These are the sad results of action by the Student Senate on bills submitted by these respective student organizations.

On March 2, 1977 the Israeli Student Union submitted a bill (SBN-107) to the Student Senate requesting, in its original form over $2,000 in funds "to provide a multidimensional view of Israel" (None of the dimensions of this program, however, represented the point of view of the 3.5 million Palestinians, one half of these living as either second class citizens in Israel or under brutal military rule in the occupied lands and the other half dispersed in forced exile, denied the right to return to their homeland). After modifications, the Student Senate allocated $900 to the Israeli Student Union thru a compromise bill.

We are in agreement with the two following clauses of the I.S.U. bill:

"Whereas, the October War of 1973 brought home to every American the price we pay for continued conflict in Israel"

"Whereas, most SIU students are naive of the many facets of Israel and the Zionist Movement." But we sincerely doubt a one sided presentation by the Israeli Student Union will dispel any of the American naivety about Israel and the Zionist movement.

Thus our disgust toward the strange occurrence at the Student Senate when on March 16, 1977 SBN-125 was presented by the U.S. Committee for Justice in Palestine. This bill, by senate vote, was denied consideration on the floor of the Student Senate. Our organization was requesting $1778.30 in allocations for an all day program on campus commemorating Land Day, March 30, the international day of Palestinian protest against continued confiscation of their property, denial of their rights and occupation of their homeland.

It is our belief, as stated in our bill, that "if Americans are to take a logical stance on the Middle East, they must first view all sides of the conflict. The Palestinian's point of view has not been adequately presented in this country and thus most Americans have a distorted picture of the Palestinian people and their struggle to regain their rights."

However, while the Student Senate takes exception to our position, many SIU students are certainly in agreement. The U.S. Committee for Justice in Palestine would like, at this time, to extend a warm "thank you" to the numerous students who dug down into their pockets thus allowing us to work out a jury-rigged program to present on Land Day.

All things taken into consideration, these events reaffirm our belief that the wholesale support of Zionism by the American government is more a product of institutionalized prejudice than a true reflection of American sentiment.

Finally, we wish to salute the international students of SIU in particular for gracious aid in the Land Day program.

There's no change in machine age

By Gabriella Ludwiczak

In the not-so-distant past, man, with his technology, created that, which in the long run, will prove to be his downfall. He has invested countless dollars into the upkeep of this device. He has tuned it just so, in order that it may function flawlessly. And still, in the end, it will cause his demise.

No, I'm not referring to any nuclear weapon which threatens to wipe out a nation in a single stroke. No, I'm not referring to the computer which has quietly invaded every single institution in this great bureaucracy of ours.

I'm referring to a type of machine that exercises its mind much more subtly than these others. I am referring to all the automatic, coin-operated machines that promise us so much and deliver so little.

I have seen grown men reduced to a rippling puddle of tears before soft drink machines that complacently swallowed quarters but refused to burp up the can of Coke.

I have seen a little old lady kick and punch a candy machine that delivered her goods but not the nickel in change that was due her.

I, myself, have spent an hour walking from floor to floor in Morris Library searching for a copying machine that did not have "Out of Order" proudly taped to its belly, and finally finding one, discovering that it contained little more than a drop of ink which it dutifully spit upon my pages.

Who among us has not inserted coins into a stamp machine that produced only a seven-cent portion of a thirteen-cent stamp or stood bemusedly before a washing machine that washed but would not rinse or a dryer that huffed and puffed but wouldn't tumble.

We invented them, but they control us, these machines. They're tucking away our silver coins in their hidden, convoluted intestines. They have already acquired the power, and now they are saving up the money that we feed them for the final battle.

They have us where they want us. A day does not pass that someone does not ask "Do you have change for a dollar?"

They have even given birth to a new machine, one of their own kind, to serve their purposes and frustrate us even further — the dollar-bill changer. Poor George is getting his eyes blackened as we punch in our bills and scoop out our change in order to continue filling their ugly innards.

Vultures pay rare visit to area

By Lee Mastello
Student Writer

Nasty habits and all, the Black Vultures of Panther's Den have returned to their summer breeding grounds.

Described as rare for this area, the vultures will only migrate during the winter is severe. "Carbondale is right on the line of the northern limit of their range," according to Mike Morrison, a graduate assistant in Zoology Department.

With a wingspan up to 5 feet and standing almost 2 feet tall, the vultures are unmistakable with their long hooked beaks, black featherless heads and grey feet and legs.

Morrison, who is specializing in ornithology, the study of birds, said vultures "as a group are not doing very well." "Rendering services are taking a prime source of the vultures' food," Morrison said. Roadkills are also a significant source of food for vultures.

According to Morrison, the vultures have "little regard for people." He went on to say, "I've been told they can count if 28 people go into a woods and only 27 come out the vultures will know that someone is missing." Morrison added that vultures will rarely attack anything living.

Uniquely adapted as scavengers, Morrison said the lack of feathers on the head is to prevent infestation by disease carrying mites and insects. He also said the vultures defecate on their legs, because their feces help kill bacteria picked up when they stand in rotting meat, a favorite food for vultures.

He also said vultures will build "real sloppy nests" and that the vultures "will spit up and defecate all over their nests."

Sprinkler system fails to put out fire

A minor fire in the basement of Boomer II was extinguished by the Carbondale Fire Department early Friday morning after the sprinkler system in the room failed to work. SIU police said.

The fire was in Room 9 of Boomer II, police said. The fire was confined to a trash bin and was extinguished by firemen after 2:39 a.m.

Police said neither the sprinkler system in the room or the fire extinguisher next to the room worked. There were no injuries.

Series to feature

Bombeck book

Radio Reader, a series broadcast by WSIU, 92 FM, will present at noon daily "The Grass is Always Greener Over the Septic Tank" by Erma Bombeck beginning April 11.

Bombeck's book traces her family's move from the city to the suburbs. She humorously describes "truth about the suburbs."

Eight half-hour segments will be presented on Radio Reader.

Carbondale solar products firm to design three greenhouse heaters

By Elizabeth Boeck
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Illinois Institute for Environmental Quality has contracted a local solar heating products firm to design three solar heating units for commercial greenhouses.

According to Steve Miller, president of Amcon Corp., the designs were sought after commercial greenhouse growers approached the institute for information on alternative sources of energy.

Severe winter temperatures and gas allotment cutbacks were the cause of substantial losses for the growers.

Miller said use of solar energy units could provide the growers with guarantees against such future losses.

In addition to providing plans for the construction of new greenhouses, Amcon's blueprints for the project also will include options for energy conservation techniques which can be added to existing structures.

Amcon will not be involved in the actual construction of the greenhouses, but Miller said he has hopes his company will be retained as consultants for the project.

2 Rainer films to be shown

"Lives Of Performers," and "Film About A Woman Who..." two films by Yvonne Rainer, dancer and filmmaker, will be presented at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. respectively Sunday at the Student Center Auditorium. Admission is 50 cents.

Rainer has performed and worked with such diverse artists as musician John Cage, dancer Merce Cunningham, sculptor Robert Morris, and painter Robert Rauschenberg. She is an acclaimed dance innovator and has been the recipient of several grants from the Guggenheim Foundation and the National Endowment on the Arts.

Rainer's latest film, "Kristina Taking Pictures," recently acclaimed at the 1976 Edinburgh International Film Festival, will be screened at 7 p.m. Friday in the Home Economics Building Auditorium. Following the film, Rainer will conduct a discussion of her concepts and her involvement in painting, sculpture, music, dance and film.

Rainer's visit is sponsored by the Southern Illinois Film Society, the Department of Cinema and Photography, SGAC Films, Art Students League, the Southern Repertory Theatre and Women's Physical Education Department.

Although the same type of solar collectors used in home units will be included in the state project, the overall design for the greenhouses will be radically different.

Miller said Amcon has agreed to let the state incorporate its building design into any other energy conserving plan, but they cannot copy plans for Amcon's solar collectors.

Amcon is presently going through negotiations to obtain a patent for the particular vent design the company uses in their solar collectors.

Miller said this collector is unusual not only for its system of vents, but also because it becomes part of the roof of the building it serves. Most units on the market are separate devices which rest on top of a building.

To date, Amcon has designed and built several solar heated homes in the area. The original construction business has been expanded to include research, development and the manufacture of solar units.

CCHS class forms 'simulated company

By Gerda Unner
Student Writer

Twenty Carbondale Community High School students go to work every day for the Lester Hill Corp., a distributor of equipment and supplies for hotels, motels and other residential institutions.

Lester Hill Co. is in its second year of business as a make-believe company in which students of Marjorie Hudson's Simulated Business class take the roles of various departments.

The students are seated in an organizational chart floor plan according to their assigned departments in the Lester Hill Corp.

To get a position in the corporation, a student must apply for one of the jobs available, including the general manager and his or her secretary and receptionist.

Each branch office is composed of your departments—sales, warehouse, traffic, and accounting—all of which are supervised by the general manager.

Lester Hill Corp. employs a national data processing organization (Tallidata) which performs services with customers, suppliers and banks. Students in this role are representatives of outside companies.

Each student has to fill out W-2 forms and applications, said Kathy Williams, SU senior in business education who works as an aide. They interview each other, exchanging positions as interviewer and interviewee.

"There are no tests in this class," Hudson said. "The test is to follow each other's procedures. They grade each other by receiving checks based on the manager's or supervisor's evaluations on each other.

"Through the steps as outlined in the 'Employee's Guide,' the students need to figure things out for themselves," Hudson said.

"They plunge into a situation and there is no answer book. If there is a mistake found they must retrace their steps. It also forces us to teach better."

Williams said, "My job is to delegate responsibility and to reveal to them the importance of time, neatness and accuracy."

The students have some choice as to what machines they work on, the roles they play and, in general, the program they will follow, Williams said.

The first semester of the class, the students work on various types of office machines such as keypunches, adding machines, electronic machines and cash registers, Williams said.

The students can change roles depending on the way things go, Williams said.

Before the use of the Lester Hill Corp., Hudson said they followed a general text on office procedures in which the students would read chapters, then be given a test over them.

The class helps the students assimilate all they have learned from other classes in basic business management and see it in its context, Hudson said.

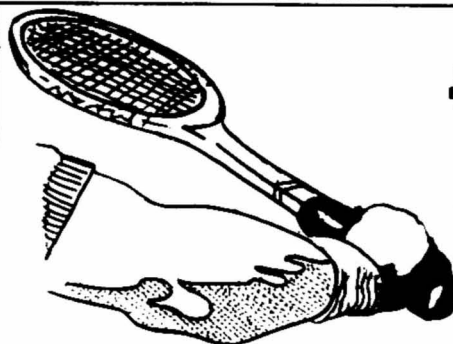

"The class is designed for those going on to some business job or on to business education. Working with one job helps prepare for another," Hudson said.

Trackmen attempt to continue win streak

By Rick Karch
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The SIU track team hasn't lost an outdoor team meet in three years, and the team will attempt to keep that streak intact Saturday when it competes in a triangular meet in Bowling Green, Ky. with host Western Kentucky and Murray State.

Two of the team's record holders will miss the meet because of injuries and three other top-notch tracksters will compete with minor injuries.

Gary Hunter, the record holder in the pole vault at 17-1, and Andy Roberts, whose time of 6.9 in the indoor 60-yard intermediate hurdles is an SIU best, will miss the meet. Hunter has competed all year with a hyperextended back and will get a short rest, but SIU Coach Lew Hartzog said Hunter could compete if necessary. Roberts suffered a pulled groin muscle during spring break on the trip South, and isn't ready yet, according to Hartzog.

"Some of the others will compete with tender spots," Hartzog remarked. "Bob Roggy has a sore arm and will throw the javelin only as hard as he has to, and as little as he has to. Rick Rock has a sore ankle and Ken Lorraway's leg is still giving him problems."

Roggy set a new SIU record and 1977 nation's best mark in the javelin a week ago when he covered 167.10, but the injury probably will keep him from furthering that mark this weekend.

"Besides those injuries, we're ready to go," Hartzog said. "I don't want to lose any track meets, but I don't want to lose any of these people when they have a chance to score in the NCAA championships later.

"We have two crucial weekends at home coming up and we have to have everything we got."

The team will open its home season in one week at McAndrew Stadium against a tough Indiana University team. The following weekend, March 16, SIU fans will get another chance to see SIU's top sports rivalry when SIU hosts the University of Illinois. Both meets will start at 3 p.m.

Hartzog said he doesn't know much about either Western Kentucky or Murray State for Saturday's meet, but said both teams should be stronger than they were a year ago when the Salukis walloped both of them. SIU scores 90 points in that meet, to only 54 for Western Kentucky and 34 for Murray State. The 90 points outscored the two teams together.

Western Kentucky is coached by former SIU trackster Bill Cornell who still holds six SIU records from his running days from 1962-64. Cornell holds the 800- and 1,000-yard indoor records, and is a member of both the indoor and outdoor two-mile relay teams in addition to the outdoor distance medley and sprint medley teams.

Murray State has a new coach this year in Del Hassel, who had "great success" at Colorado State, said Hartzog.

Salukis still in hitting slump; drop pair to Miami of Ohio

The Saluki hitters continued to struggle Friday afternoon, as Miami of Ohio handed SIU a doubleheader loss, 4-3 and 5-2, at Miami University.

Sophomore hurler Rob Simond was tagged with his third loss of the season in the opener. Simond, 1-3, was relieved by Jim Kessler in the sixth inning, when Miami rallied to take the lead for good at 4-2. The Salukis got two runs in the top of the inning when George Vukovich rapped an RBI triple and scored when Craig Robinson's pop up was lost in the sun by Miami's second baseman.

The Salukis scratched for another run in the top of the seventh, but it wasn't enough as Miami took the 4-3 win.

The hitting problems continued in the second game, as the Salukis could muster only four hits in the 5-2 loss. Dewey Robinson was charged with his first loss, evening his record to 1-1. Kessler again was called on to relieve in the sixth inning when Miami erupted for four runs to break open the game.

The SIU runs came in the fourth inning on a Vukovich single and Craig Robinson's two-run homer. The back-breaking shot came in the form of a two-run double in the bottom of the sixth by Miami's Mark Naehring. Dewey Robinson had blanked Miami for four straight innings after giving up a solo homer in the first.

Miami got seven hits in the game, and neither team committed an error. The Salukis played error-less ball both games.

The Salukis (9-6) will face Miami in another doubleheader Saturday and then return home to face Vanderbilt at 1 p.m. Sunday.

For the Salukis, Mike Kee will attempt to keep his unbeaten streak in the 100-yard dash alive. Kee hasn't lost a 100-yard dash race in his two years at SIU. His time of 9.4 a week ago tied his personal record and also qualified him for the NCAA championships, one of six Salukis to do so thus far this season.

A number of other Salukis will attempt to close the gap in their bids to also qualify for the NCAA meet. Mike Biasse in the half-mile and Mike Sawyer in the three-mile are close to NCAA qualifying standards, as are the 440 and mile relay teams. John Marks is also close to the mark in the shot put.

Grimace and grunt

Sue Briggs, No. 1 player on the women's tennis team, returns a shot in Friday's home match. Briggs won her match, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3, but the team lost, 2-7. The netters will face Southwest Missouri State at 2 p.m. Saturday. (Staff photo by Linda Henson)

Women's softball coach optimistic as season opens

By Lee Feinswag
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

With a starting lineup that includes four freshmen and four sophomores, the women's softball opens its season at home Saturday with a 10:30 a.m. game with Southeast Missouri and a 3 p.m. contest with Eastern Illinois.

The team is coming off a third-place finish in last year's tournament. Coach Kay Brechtlesbauer is hopeful that her young squad will be able to do as well, if not better, this year.

"We'll be inexperienced, but we have tremendous potential. We'll make mistakes," Brechtlesbauer said, "but right now our goal is to improve in every game.

"We've got a well-balanced team that has made it tough to decide who'll start," she said, but she has, of course, come up with a starting lineup for Saturday's games.

Karen King, a sophomore, will be starting on the mound with freshman Lynne Williams catching. The battery is very important in women's softball, because it is fast pitch and stealing is allowed.

Sophomore Nancy Choate will be at first, Helen Meyer at second, Pam Rendine will play shortstop, and junior Pat Matrezi, the old lady of the starting lineup, will play third.

The outfield will feature a pair of freshmen, Robin Deterding and Lisa Dennis in left and center, and sophomore Dee Stull will play right.

Meyer will pitch the second game, and Bobbi Savko will play second.

"We have a strong defensive team," Brechtlesbauer said, "with good speed and individuals with good arms. I anticipate having an aggressive offense, trying to take as many bases as we can."

"I don't know about the hitting, I think we have some, but you never until you have a game. This weekend will be a real test for us, because it's the first time we will work together as a team because of all the lineup juggling," she said.

Brechtlesbauer feels that both SEMO and Eastern will be tough opponents. "I don't know too much about SEMO this year, but they generally have good hitting and strong arms, at least that's the way they've been in the past."

Eastern lost its best pitcher from last year, the top collegiate woman pitcher in the state. Traditionally a solid, fundamental squad. They like to run with the speed they have," the coach said.

Women golfers face Southwest Missouri in opener

By Jim Misunas
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The Saluki women's golf team will start an underclassmen lineup in an 8:30 a.m. Saturday dual match against Southwest Missouri State in the spring opener at Crab Orchard golf course in Carterville.

Four freshmen and a junior will fill the five starting positions for SIU. Leading the way are freshmen Sandy Lemon and Judy Dohrman, who were low scorers in the fall season. Lemon, from Covington, Va., was medalist in five of six meets in the fall, while Dohrman shot low score in one meet and tied Lemon in another.

Junior Marilyn Hollier and freshmen

Jo Anne Idoux and Lork Sackman complete SIU's top five. In the match Saturday, only the top four scores will count toward a team total.

Also playing Saturday for average will be Penny Porter, Jan Ridneour, Holly Taylor and Patti Williams.

"We should be able to beat them," said SIU Coach Sandy Blaha. "We've beaten them consistently in the past, so I expect us to win."

Blaha said she expects Lemon and Dohrman to pace SIU in the match. Lemon averaged 82 in the fall and Dohrman shot 88.

"Sandy (Lemon) hits the ball well off the tee and has a fine putting game," Blaha said. "Judy (Dohrman) doesn't have Sandy's strength, but she's a real good putter. She can shoot well, but hasn't shown consistency like Sandy."

"We've been outside three weeks and we started out just hitting shag balls," Blaha said. "After the winter layoff, our players lost their timing and it takes two weeks to get the rhythm back. And because the course has been wet, the range has been shut down and we've had to hit our own shags."

Blaha said one factor that has hindered her team's progress is that they have no indoor facility for practicing during the winter months. She also said that since some of her players play winter sports, it's difficult for them to practice golf during the winter anyway.

Because of the winter inactivity, Blaha said she doesn't expect the team to improve much on last fall's averages, but she said next fall some of her younger players will start showing improvement.

Last fall, SIU placed second in the state behind the University of Illinois, which the Salukis beat in a dual match early in the season.

Overall, SIU split two dual matches, beating Illinois, but losing to Purdue, and finished seventh, eighth, ninth and eleventh in invitational meets.

Besides Saturday's match, SIU's spring schedule includes a home dual against Illinois State and invitationals at Illinois and Marshall.
