Highway veto OK'd in Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Senate sustained President Reagan's veto of an $8 billion highway bill Wednesday but appeared ready to reverse itself and make the measure law in a second vote Thursday.

The Senate initially voted 65-35 to sustain Reagan's veto of the massive five-year bill, but Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia voted at the last minute with Reagan in a procedural move that gave him the right for a second vote.

"I presume we'll vote tomorrow and I presume we'll win," Byrd said. "It's not certain," said assistant Senate Democratic leader Alan Cranston of California.

The Senate appeared ready to override Reagan's veto after Sen. Terry Sanford, D-N.C., announced that he had changed his mind and would vote in favor of the override on a second vote. Sanford was one of the lone Democrats who voted to sustain Reagan's veto.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole tried for hours to block the second vote so he could find another lawmaker to offset Sanford's switch, but he finally admitted he had been unsuccessful.

"I don't think we can vote tonight," Dole said. "I don't know if the vote is going to change tomorrow. Right now I'd say probably not. The vote would be 67-33, but there still is some effort being made to enlighten some of my colleagues."

A 67-33 vote would be just enough for the two-thirds needed to override the Reagan's veto and make the measure law.

Reagan vetoed the bill last Friday despite its strong bipartisan support.

Compromise is key to 4-lane road to St. Louis

Thompson downplayed the proposed road's feasibility while he was in Carbondale Tuesday to promote his 1988 fiscal year budget. The road, however, is a principal part of Gray's plan to improve Southern Illinois' economy.

"I won't put roads just where roads are needed," Thompson said. "Never have, never will."

"Don't you see?" Gray said in an earlier interview. "We have to get the road built first and then the traffic will follow."

Speaker: Foreign study improves job options

The newest business phenomenon is that all aspects of that field are being touched by international trade, says Thomas Saville. And SIU's study Abroad program gives students an employment advantage.

Saville, coordinator of International Programs and International Business Day. The event is a good opportunity for business groups interested in international business.

Such areas of business as production, management and manufacturing that have been shielded from the international network are now directly involved, he said.

Studying abroad has the "practical value of preparing from thousands of others," he said.

Overseas experience will show a prospective employer flexibility, adaptability and more worldliness, Saville said.

"It says you can go into a very different environment and cope."

Study abroad programs being offered this summer are

SIU's Work Abroad program is beneficial to future employment for the same reasons, Saville said.

"Don't talk to me about a new road unless you're willing to pay for it," Thompson said.

Snobs

Wearing them can be a form of reverse snobbery. Because Birkenstock sandals have no decision of high fashion. They're just the most incredibly comfortable things you can wear next to wearing nothing. They shape to your feet like cool, soft sand. They give you proper support and improve your posture and circulation to let you walk healthier, more naturally. And they last and last. Birkenstock for very confident men and women. You've gone without them long enough.

Leftists say 2 Americans killed ‘won’t be last’ to die

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — El Salvador’s leftist rebels warned Wednesday that the two Americans killed during the past week will not be the last. The nation’s civil war has been characterized by a brutal reign of terror, with the death toll for civilians rising each week.

In a broadcast over rebel radio Venceremos, the insurgents said they “will continue to annihilate command posts across the country.” In a new offensive launched Tuesday with an attack on an army camp in north central Chalatenango province.

Germans swaps spies, agents at border

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — West Germany exchanged three East German spies at a border crossing point Wednesday for four West German agents imprisoned for espionage in East Germany, news reports said. Among the agents exchanged was Lothar Erwin Latze, who was described as a “super spy” for East Germany in the West German Defense Ministry, the newspaper Die Welt reported.

Solidarity union leaders call for strike

WARSZAW, Poland (UPI) — Leaders of the outlawed trade union Solidarity called Wednesday for a “decisive strike” against food and fuel price increases that took effect this week.

The strike call, endorsed by union founder Lech Walesa, was made by Solidarity’s Temporary Coordinating Committee. Known as the TTK, the committee is an anonymous body made up of dissident leaders representing 11 regions of the country.

Pope’s arrival sparks Chilean protests

SAN TITAGO, Chile (UPI) — Pope John Paul II arrived in this troubled military-ruled nation Wednesday praying reconciliation, but his presence touched off anti-government protests among the crowds that poured into the streets to greet him. Left-wing protesters stoned the police vehicles that followed John Paul’s limousine as it entered the city where hundreds of thousands of people lined the streets and rooftops. Police fired tear-gas bombs to disperse protestors opposite the capital’s central railroad station after the pontiff’s car had passed.

N.Y. man to be deported to Soviet Union

NEW YORK (UPI) — A federal appeals court Wednesday approved the deportation of a Long Island man to the Soviet Union where he faces execution for ordering mass killings at a Nazi concentration camp during World War II. Defense lawyers were expected to make a last-ditch appeal to the Supreme Court to stop the deportation of Karl Linnas, 67, of Greenlawn, N.Y. The government said there is ample documentation that Linnas headed the Tartu, Estonia, concentration camp, in what is now the Soviet Union, where some 12,000 people were killed in World War II.

Officials: SDI tests don’t violate missile pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pentagon officials told a Senate panel Wednesday that no “Star Wars” experiments planned through fiscal 1989 would violate the narrow interpretation of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty, but they also defended an administration’s position that a broader reading of the crucial 1972 arms control agreement is allowable.

Both Lt. Gen. James Abrahamson, head of the Strategic Defense Initiative’s defense research program, and Richard Godwin, a defense undersecretary whose office checks out SDI experiments for treaty implications, said the program is now organized through the end of fiscal 1989 to remain within the narrow interpretation of what testing is allowed.

Schools to get funds to remove asbestos

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency announced Wednesday that it is awarding $32.2 million in grants and loans to the nation’s neediest schools to help remove potentially carcinogenic asbestos. The money will be given to schools that applied for federal funds under the Asbestos School Hazard Abatement Act of 1984. The public and private schools that were granted money were recommended by an EPA advisory committee most severe asbestos problems, and the greatest financial need.

Court OKs Delta-West Airlines merger

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O’Connor overturned a federal appeals court order Wednesday that had prevented the merger of Delta Air Lines and Western Airlines. O’Connor’s ruling, issued at 2:15 a.m. in Washington, D.C., allows the two domestic carriers to merge immediately, Supreme Court spokeswoman Kathy Arberg said.

Delta became the nation’s fourth largest air carrier as a result of the $860 million merger.

Shelters focus on council’s grant application
By JoDe Rimar
Staff Writer
The City Council decided to apply for two state emergency grants, one for the Women’s Center and one for the Good Samaritan House.
Grant applications will be sent to the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs for consideration.
At the Council meeting Monday night, Mayor Helen Westberg and Councilman Neil Dillard expressed concern over the “risks” the city would be taking in passing the proposal.
One requirement to get the grants, according to a memo City Attorney Patricia McMeen gave the Council, is to make sure a facility getting the money remains a shelter for the homeless for three or more years. If the grant money is used for “major rehabilitation,” a facility would have to be a homeless shelter for 10 or more years.
The memo says the city would be responsible for making sure the organizations comply with grant requirements.
Elise Speck, executive director of the Good Samaritan House, said the shelter, which opened in Carbondale two years ago, is a “long-term” project and shouldn’t have problems complying with the requirements.
Speck said the grant will be used for such maintenance work as electrical and sewer repairs and not for rehabilitation.
Good Samaritan House is requesting $34,939 from the Emergency Shelter Grant, and hopes to receive matching funds from other organizations. The Women’s Center is requesting $31,807 with hopes of matching funds.

Ward-alderman, underage drinking top debate issues
By Catherine Edman
Staff Writer
The six candidates for Carbondale mayor and city council took part in the last public forum before the election April 7, squaring off on issues that have been concerns throughout the campaign.
The ward-alderman referendum and underage drinking were two of the topics the candidates addressed.
“If you have a ward system you have a better representa­tive government,” Nervelle Haynes, mayoral candidate, said.
“The art of politics is compromise and accomplishing things for the people you are responsible to,” Haynes said. He added that the city needed people who would be responsible to it.
The ward-alderman system would divide the city into seven wards with an alderman from each ward. The City now uses an at-large system for electing council members.
His opponent on the mayoral ballot, Councilman Neil Dillard, supports the at-large system. The current system works and the council decides on the priorities of the city not the needs of particular wards, he said.
“We have had representation from all walks of life, had candidates from all walks of life and from all areas of the city running,” Dillard said.
The only council candidate to endorse the ward-alderman form of government is Christine Wright.
“I sincerely feel that there is no such thing as under-representation in this city,” said Wright, a resident of Carbondale’s southeast side.
“Just because someone comes from a lower socioeconomic background or area, I don’t think they should have any less opportunity to decide what happens on city issues.
“I think they are just as informed and capable of making decisions as people that may live in the other areas,” she said.
Council candidate Harris Speck, does not agree that Carbondale needs a change of government.
The city manager form of government works,” Rubin said.
WSIU deserves viewers' support

Many viewers of WSIU-TV are doubtful heving sights of relief now that their programs are no longer being interrupted by the government. But viewers should realize that these interruptions serve a vital purpose for WSIU — they help keep the station afloat.

Unfortunately, viewers’ pockets this year were a little shallow. The station fell $95,000 short of its $290,000 goal. But station officials say they have not given up hope that the donations still trickling in will allow them to meet this year’s goal.

WSIU, which operates channel 18 in Carbondale and channel 16 in Olney, has an operating budget of $2 million. According to Jerry Parks, WSIU business manager, only about 20 percent of that is funded by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. In the past few years, Parks said, corporation grants have been slashed back 15 to 20 percent. At the same time, programming costs have increased by 60 percent.

While it would be possible to operate WSIU without viewer support, Parks said, the quality of programming would suffer greatly. The most popular shows also cost the most money.

WSIU is about the only alternative viewers in the area can turn to if they want to avoid the standard TV fare of sex, violence and stupid commercials. This station strives to present what it calls “quality television,” carrying educational programs for children and adults, top flight documentaries and artistic performances.

Southern Illinoisans should consider themselves lucky indeed to have such a station. We hope they will find a few dollars to show their appreciation.

Wastes from nuclear disaster still haunt U.S.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Saturday marked the eighth anniversary of the beginning of the end of Three Mile Island Unit 2, site of the U.S. nuclear industry's first major accident. Four days before the anniversary of the disaster, a train bearing two casks of radioactive waste from the crippled Three Mile Island site hit a derailment on a rail crossing in St. Louis.

No radioactive releases were reported. But the fact that the accident occurred at all raises questions about the wisdom of shipping this waste through populous areas; about the strength of the casks carrying the radioactive trash; about the preparedness of local authorities; and about the Energy Department's very policy of hauling high-level radioactive waste cross-country to a storage site that has been chosen.

These questions demand answers, yet the responsible federal agencies — notably the Energy Department and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission — are mute.

The very operation of the casks' strength, there is no reason to assume that their purported successful performance in the accident last year was anything but a blessing of fate.

Suppose the accident had been worse, causing the train to derail or a tank car filled with the radioactive material to begin burning. Should the casks break, the radiation would be released, something that could easily occur in the event of a fire. Even the smallest amount of an explosion releasing large amounts of radioactive gas would be greatly increased. Widescale evacuation would be the only way of avoiding contamination, but even then probably not fast enough to assure safety.

That raises a final point: The federal government has not yet shown the need to expose millions of people in cities and towns across the country to radioactive hazards by bringing these shipments through their backyard. It is not too soon to insist the government begin now — to minimize the hazards instead of denigrating legitimate concerns.

Amnesty International is fighting without partiality or numeral rights

I feel compelled to respond to the unwarrented attack against Amnesty International, which appeared in the March 25 issue. In an article on page 3, Dr. Alejandro Bolanos, a Nicaraguan exile and opponent of Nicaragua's Sandinista government, is reported to have said, "Atrocities committed by Contras are distorted. Amnesty International is wanting in its watch over human rights."

Amnesty International (AI) is not wanting in its watch over human rights. It is wanting only in its ability to prevent governments from abusing them. In that we are never satisfied ourselves. Al makes governments uncomfortable. Nicaragua violates its citizens rights. We publicize that. The Contras are supported by the U.S. and Honduran government. We know the truth about that too. Anyone who wants to pick on rights and coddlle the left, should read Al's reports on violations on all political parties or opposition groups.

Al reports on violations only after investigations have been collected and analyzed in its London Research Center. Dr. Bolanos does not specify on what basis he assmeives the Contras, nor does he say on what basis he condemns AI. I suspect that his objection is not that we don't indict the Sandinistas, but that we do indict the Contras. Anyone wishing to see what Al's most recent annual report says to say about Nicaragua, should ask the reference librarian on the third floor of Morris Library for "Amnesty International Report 1986." Turn to page 179. You will see that Al has added dozens of prisoners of conscience in Nicaragua and condemned the Popular Anti-Somocist Tribunals long before Americans had ever heard of Eugene Hasenfus.

As a member of Amnesty International, I am proud of its reputation in Chile, the Soviet Union, South Africa and others around the world. I am proud of its reputation in dependence and accuracy. I am proud of its daily struggle with the Babi Yar Peace Prize—James Call, Amnesty International USA, Group 132.

Horse Club takes full responsibility for flyer

I am writing in an effort to shed some light on the development of a recent situation involving a flyer distributed by the SIU-C Horse Club and the resultant letter of criticism submitted by Ms. Diana Ecker. The seminar of which the flyer was referring to is a project of the Horse Club, a student organization. All details of this project, including the development and distribution of the flyer in question, were the responsibility of the student members. Sheryl King's personal involvement in this project is solely as featured speaker and should in no way be held accountable for grammatical errors found in our advertisement.

As president of the SIU-C Horse Club, I am personally taking full and absolute responsibility for the content of our publication. My failure to proofread the material when it was first submitted to me was a careless oversight and for that I sincerely apologize. I also apologize for any embarrasment this may have caused your office or that of the Department of Animal Science, Food and Nutrition.

Let me assure you that the Horse Club is in no way associated with the care and maintenance of the animals at the Horse Center, so our hasty preparation of the seminar advertisement is surely not indicative of the care received by the horses at the University Farms.

I hope that I have helped to clear this matter up for you. Again, please accept my most sincere apologies. If there is anything else you wish to discuss with me concerning this matter, please feel free to contact me at any time. — Gary M. Gow, president, SIU-C Horse Club.

Students’ short plays offer diverse relationship themes

By Ellen Cook
Entertainment Editor

Although the three works offered during "An Evening of New Short Plays" feature SUU students as writers, directors, designers and actors, the similarities between them ends there.

Theater Review

The one-act plays, which will be presented at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sunday in McLeod's Laboratory Theater, have themes that range from sibling rivalry to lost love to budding relationships.

"GENESIS, CHAPTER 4, VERSE 4," written by Tommy Westerfield, is a modern retelling of the story of Cain and Abel. In the play, directed by William Kincaid, Cain is a God-fearing farmer and his younger brother, Abel, is a foul-mouthed practical joker.

Cain becomes jealous of Abel, whom he feels God unjustly favors, and he kills his brother in a fit of rage. After his crime, Cain must face God's punishment.

Although Dan Green and Danny Herbst can't look much like brothers, they portray the love-hate relationship between Cain and Abel well.

AS THEIR CREATOR, Sandra McGee is a convincing performer. Casting her comes as a surprise—it's not often that a hip young black woman portrays God.

Such creative casting is a delightful addition to the Black Mountain Playhouse, as are sets that feature a heavy peppered with Play Doh and an earth littered with painted rocks and barbqbed grills.

"Maid of Honor," written by Sherry Strain, has a more serious edge. Directed by Michael Morris, the play studies the relationship between two women who were once lovers.

ONE OF THE women, Beth Sutton, played by Jane Viernow, has decided to marry. At her father's urging, Beth's former roommate, Christ, played by Amy Spies, visits the Suttons. Mr. Sutton thinks that Chris has come to be Beth's maid of honor, but instead, she has come to try to talk Beth out of the marriage.

House panel OKs rewrite of proposed Reagan budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Budget Committee approved a $1 trillion rewrite of President Reagan's budget proposal Wednesday, recommending a $21.9 billion tax-and-revenue package and $17.5 billion in spending cuts to help shrink the deficit in fiscal 1988.

The measure, approved on a 21-14 party-line vote, does not specify where the extra taxes and revenues will come from, leaving that task to other House panels.

Across the Capitol, the Senate Budget Committee worked on a separate spending plan for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 that also is expected to include a recommended increase in taxes and other revenues.

Rep. William Gray, D-Pa., chairman of the House Budget Committee, praised the package — developed by his panel's Democrats in private meetings — for its "real, permanent, substantial deficit reduction."

But Rep. Delbert Latta of Ohio, the committee's ranking Republican, objected: "This is a real April Fool's document. This is a typical Democratic document."

Latta complained about the process used to push the measure through the panel, saying, "You promise everything to everybody and say you're going to reduce the deficit. I don't think that's going to work."

According to the committee's calculations, the proposal provides for a $28.7 billion reduction of the federal deficit in fiscal 1988 — enough to push the deficit below the $108 billion target required under the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law.

But the deficit reduction effort reaches the goal only when the committee uses Reagan's assessment of economic growth, which is rosier than the separate forecast developed by the Congressional Budget Office. The $21.9 billion revenue package includes $2 billion in fees for people who use government property, $1.9 billion for increased collections by the Internal Revenue Service and $18 billion in other taxes and revenues to be determined later, primarily by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The new money will be used to help reduce the deficit — not to pay for new programs, Gray said.

The measure, expected to be ready for debate before the full House next week, calls for $288.7 billion in military spending, compared with $312 billion proposed by the White House.

The measure provides money for AIDS research, programs to encourage overseas sales of American goods and changes in the Medicaid health-insurance program for the poor. Increases in those areas and elsewhere would be financed by reductions in other domestic accounts, Gray said.

Black council members have been elected in Carbondale "not because they were black, because they came from or didn't come from the northeast side of town, but because the people of Carbondale know them and thought they would do a good job for the city of Carbondale."

Richard Morris, who is black and was raised in the northeast side of the city, is again running in the ward alderman system. "It would cause chaos," he said. "When we talk about neighborhood problems, it's a city problem," he said. "That divisiveness is going to kill us."

Council candidate John Mills agrees. "If we divide the city into separate parts does that help us come together?" he asked.

"The main thing you want to look at is the person who is running for office. Is that person going to represent the whole city?"

Haynes has developed a solution he says will help alleviate any underage drinking problem. Offenders first would have their parents notified of the violation, then they would have their pictures circulated to city bars and be banned from entering them for six months. Dillard and Rubin say barring people under 21 from entering bars is denying them a form of entertainment, although bar owners should not allow them to drink.

Wright said 18-year-olds should be allowed to enter the bars but should be responsible and not drink.

Mills, chairman of the Liquor Advisory Board, said he did not want his opinion to sway the board decision and declined to take a stand on either side of the issue.

Morris is against raising the entrance age to 21 because he says it won't stop the underage people from drinking.

Baby M custody decision expected to spur new laws

By United Press International

The human tragedy of the Baby M custody case has state legislatures across the country scrambling for ways to deal with the new largely unregulated practice of surrogate motherhood, lawmakers and experts said Wednesday.

The decision Tuesday in Hackensack, N.J., to strip surrogate Mary Beth Whitehead of all rights to raise or see her daughter Baby M will spur the state lawmakers into action, the experts said.

More guards investigated in spy case

QUANTICO, VA (UPI) — More marines may be implicated in addition to the three already being held for security violations at the U.S. embassy in Moscow, the Commander of Marine Embassy Guard said Wednesday.

Government investigators “are looking at potential ... people that may have been mentioned by (the Marine) in custody,” said Col. Carmine Del Grosso, Commander of the unit which trains and assigns the 1,500 embassy guards worldwide, following a press briefing on the Marine security guard.

During the briefing, he said: “There could be and there may not be” when asked if more Marines would be involved in the case.

Billss to limit the practice of hiring surrogates have been introduced and are under consideration in New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Missouri, California and Wisconsin.

Proposals to ban the technique outright are pending in Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Minnesota and in Rhode Island, where one legislator has called the practice “tantamount to baby-selling.”

Bills addressing the practice have died in the latest sessions of the Maryland and Michigan legislatures, but Arkansas already has a law on the books that applies to some surrogates.

Superior Court Judge Harvey Sorkow in Hackensack ruled Tuesday that surrogate contracts are legal under New Jersey law and rejected surrogate mother Whitehead’s efforts to reclaim her daughter, Baby M.

The judge awarded the child to her natural father, William Stern, and his childless wife, who adopted the child now known as Melissa Stern immediately after the ruling. An appeal already is under way.

April Fool’s proves to be a normal day in New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — April Fool’s Day in New York City Wednesday offered a great laugh for wackos and weird events.

Consider:
— A backward mile race, run around Manhattan’s Battery Park in chilly sunshine with “retro run” racers dodging garbage cans and bemused tourists.
— A ballyhooed April Fool’s parade down Fifth Avenue to Washington Square to crown the “King of Fools,” with nominees ranging from Oliver North to Sylvester Stallone to Ivan Boesky. No one showed up.
— A man dressed in a green dinosaur suit who took a subway to the Brooklyn Bridge and danced his way up the catwalk to the west tower where he entertained the lunchtime crowd for about a half hour before police halted him; down and charged him with trespassing.

The backward race, with proceeds going to the New York Heart Association, attracted 107 runners who zigzagged their way around the edge of Battery Park, T-shirts and caps on backward and heads cranked around for rolling, one-eyed vision.

Tourists out to see the Statue of Liberty yelled encouragement and warnings to help the runners avoid garbage cans, park benches and trees. But a TV camera crew chased a runner right into the steps of subway entrance where he fell on his back.

The winning backward male was Luc Droal, 29, of Astoria, Queens, who broke the tape with a time of 7 minutes, 29 seconds.

“I did it because it was for a good cause,” Droal said, adding, “It gave me a good reason to take the day off from work.”

Alice Willis, 23, of Richfield Park, N.J., who ran with socks on her hands, was the fastest woman miler, turning in a respectable 9:10.

Peach crop weathers low temperatures

By United Press International

Spokesmen for the Illinois Fruit Growers Exchange at Cobden and Eckert’s Inc., at Belleville say Tuesday night’s cold caused no further damage to the peach crop.

T.J. Boyd, a co-owner of the exchange, says the temperature dipped to only 29 degrees in the Union County area. He said there was minimal peach damage Monday night when temperatures lows ranged from 27 to 29 degrees.

Boyd pointed out that peasants turn up about 25 percent of the Southern Illinois fruit crop with apples accounting for the other 75 percent and that apples are in good shape.

“Several millions of dollars are pumped into the economy with both crops good,” said Boyd.

Net women begin climb in four meets

By Wally Foreman
Staff Writer

The women's tennis team will begin its uphill struggle today when it plays Murray State in Murray, Ky., in the first of four crucial, tough matches this weekend, coach Judy Auld said.

On Friday and Saturday the Salukis will compete in the Memphis State Invitational. The other three teams participating are host Memphis State, Southern Mississippi and Middle Tennessee State.

Last fall the Salukis defeated Murray State 5-4 and Auld said she anticipates as good or better a match as the one last year.

"We have to play very well to beat them and they will have to play very well to beat us," Auld said.

The Salukis lost to Memphis State 6-4 last fall, but Sherri Knight didn't play because of heat exhaustion and No. 5 singles player Maria Coch was not on the squad.

"We are going in full strength and we need to get points from everyone to win," Auld said.

The nettles spring record stands at 9-2.

The doubles teams for the Salukis have really improved. Auld said, "We have a solid No. 1 doubles team with Ellen Moellerling and Beth Boardman (18-3); the No. 2 team of Dana Cherebetiu and Julie Burgess (17-3) are playing more consistent and are not making as many errors; Sue Scott and Maria Coch, No. 3 doubles, (4-5) started playing together this spring and are beginning to work as a team.

Auld also decided to play Cherebetiu, 6-5 for the spring and 2-11 overall, at the No. 2 positions and Boardman (13-3, 3-4) at the No. 3 singles spot for the remainder of the spring season.

"Now that they know where they stand it will help the team overall," Auld said.

Coaches discuss games, progress at booster lunch

Women's basketball coach Cindy Scott will discuss the Salukis' effort in the NCAA tournament at the Booster Club meeting noon today at the Carbondale Holiday Inn.

Coach Richard "Itchy" Jones will speak about the midterm progress of the baseball team.

Intramural sports shorts

HANDBALL: Team winners were Reecing Crew in CoRec, Legends in men's A and the Goats in men's B.

SOFTBALL: The 16-inch softball teams kicked off the season March 31. Intramurals coordinator Buddy Goldhammer said 114 teams signed up this season.

ULTIMATE FRISBEE: Ultimate Frisbee season began today with 17 teams participating in the activity.

BASKETBALL: The hoopers are in quarter-final action. The championships will begin next week and all games will be held in Davies Gym. Times for the championship games are as follows: CoRec B teams at 8 p.m., CoRec A teams at 9 p.m. April 6; men's B teams at 8 p.m., women's B teams at 9 p.m., men's 6 feet and under B teams at 10 p.m. April 7; women's A teams at 8 p.m., men's 6 feet and under A teams at 9 p.m., and men's A open at 10 p.m. April 8.

GOLF: Reservations for the faculty-staff golf outing scheduled for May 8 are still available. Those interested in signing up may contact Buddy Goldhammer at 536-5521.

SWIMMING: About 96 people participated in the IM swim meet held Saturday at the Student Recreation Center. In men's team action, the Salukis placed first with 94 points. In women's team action, the Salukis Masters captured first place with 122 points, and the Wet Ones grabbed second with 73 points.

"Now they know where they stand it will help the team overall," Auld said.

against women's powerhouses such as Illinois, Missouri and Purdue, all of which the Salukis fared well against during the indoor season.

One of the feature events for the women again will be the long jump competition with defending champion Comfort Igeh, the NAIA national champ from Wayland Baptist.

She will be hard pressed by teammate Denise Williams, an Olympic athlete from Jamaica.

Igeh, an Olympic from Nigeria, is also entered in the 100-meter dash, clocking in with a top time of 11.60 seconds. Igeh was selected the outstanding performer at last year's NAIA finals when she established NAIA national records in the 100 and 200-meter dashes and the long jump.

But SIU-C is not without its own Olympic athlete, Carlion Blackman. The senior from Barbados also earned All-America honors at Drake in the 400-meters. Blackman entered the 1987 NCAA indoor meet ranked No. 1 in the 500 with a 1:10.66 time.

SIU men swim for top 10 in NCAA swimming tourney

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

Seven Saluki men swimmers will attempt to break into the top 10 in the NCAA swimming meet this week and Sunday at the 64th Annual NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships today through Saturday in Austin, Texas.

The Salukis have finished 16th and 17th, respectively, in NCAA meets in the first two years that Doug Ingram has been at the helm.

A new NCAA rule states that if a swimmer qualifies for an event, he or she can swim in up to two more events although the athlete did not qualify for the other events.

Ingram has taken advantage of this rule and has temporarily listed four of the SIU swimmers for four events. Each swimmer will be limited to three events, however, so it will be necessary for Ingram to diminish the individual workloads.

THOMAS HAKANSON, team captain, is listed to compete in the 50 and 100 freestyle events as well as the 400 individual medley and the 200 breaststroke. Kratz, of Johansenburg, South Africa, was a 1985 NIC champion in the 200 breaststroke and is called the team's top distance swimmer by Ingram.

KEVIN NAGY, junior, will compete in the 50 and 100 freestyle events in this, his first NCAA meet. Nagy is a transfer student from Indian River Junior College, which is known for its strong swimming program. Ingram called Nagy's qualifying a "pleasant surprise."

CHRIS GALLY, freshman, has a relatively light load to carry in his first NCAA meet. The high school record for his 50 freestyle is 19.87. All America swimmer in the 500 freestyle, he will compete in the 100 and 200 freestyle events as well as the 400 relay. He placed fourth at the regional meet in the 200 butterfly.

Mizzou slams SIU-C

Baseballers' streak stops as UM's goes

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

A fifth- inning grand slam by Missouri Tiger's Doug Bock ended the Salukis' 11-game winning streak Wednesday.

Wednesday was not the only bad day for the Salukis, going 2-0 in ace, and losing 9-1 to the Tigers. The Salukis have lost three of their last four games.

"There is some indication of past usage," said Mets Executive Vice President and General Manager Frank Cashen. "But the extent of that is not clear and we will be unable to do an adequate evaluation."

The Mets assured they would not pitch Scott Black for at least two weeks.

Glass said the club learned of the test results earlier this week, and then took the matter to Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth.

Top SIU trackers challenge 'best'

An invitational decathlon and heptathlon will kick off the third annual SIU outdoor track and field meet this weekend.

The multi-event competition will begin at noon Sunday and conclude Friday of the next week.

The two events are limited to the best athletes by invitation. Defending champs are SEMO athletes John Schwegler, 7,230 points in the decathlon, and Lizzie Bellinger, 4,866 points in the heptathlon. Saluki Swe Anderson, defending Gateway heptathlon champ with a personal best 4,832 points, will challenge Bellinger.

Nine Olympic athletes, 55 teams and more than 800 entries from all over the world will compete in the world class track field meet. The SIU-C track meet, which was held at Abe Martin Field against the U.S. Billikens, will close their nine-day homestand at 3 p.m.

The meet's top distance swimmer, leading the field of 150 athletes Friday, the first day of the meet, wasated by the meet and competing in the 50 and 100 freestyle events as well as the 400 individual medley and the 200 breaststroke. Kratz, of Johansenburg, South Africa, was a 1985 NIC champion in the 200 breaststroke and is called the team's top distance swimmer by Ingram.
