Students drum up support

POLITICS: SIUC groups come together to promote Briggs and Budsliek.

TRAVIS AKIN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Lyza Hudgens walks the paths around the Student Center armed with a handful of fliers. She stops for a minute to talk to people about the Carbondale City Council election.

"Have you voted today?" she asks while stopping passing students. "Today is election day. Tell your friends to get out and support Briggs and Budsliek."

Hudgens, a sophomore in English education from Elgin, joined a group of about 70 students working with Carbondale City Council Candidates Larry Briggs and John Budsliek in a campus-wide effort to get students to vote

Tuesday. The day began early as volunteers met at the Student Center McDonalds to plan the day's strategy.

Dressed in Briggs and Budsliek T-shirts, students canvassed the campus to get support for their candidates.

Some rode on bicycles and encouraged students to vote by talking into megaphones. Vans called "Votewagons" were available for free rides to polling places.

While walking around campus, Hudgens said she supported Briggs and Budsliek because she wanted voices on the council who will listen to student concerns.

"I think it is important to lower the bar-entry age," she said. "Not that everything revolves around the bar-entry age, but students should be able to have fun when they go to college."

She said supporting a lower bar-entry age does not mean supporting under-age drinking.

The problems caused by a 21-year-old bar-entry age is what concerns Mark Strawn, a senior in education from Pawnee.

"I think it forces people to have more house parties," he said. "Then the parties get raided. I think lowering the bar-entry age will solve a lot of problems."

It is not just the bar-entry age that brought volunteers out to work, but issues such as towing got Erin Zweigart, a junior in political science from Evansville, involved on election day.

"The towing companies are becoming more oppressive. It is getting bad. You can't find a place to park anymore," she said. "Carbondale needs a change."

Zweigart said the issues in the election went beyond party lines, and she was glad to see the College Republicans and the College Democrats working together.

City Council Elections

JENNIFER CAMDEN

Student voter turnout was the deciding factor in Tuesday's Carbondale City Council election in which two incumbent councilmen were defeated.

Incumbents John Yow and Loyd Sumner were defeated by Larry Briggs and John Budsliek, who lobbied for student votes.

Budsliek beat Yow for the two-year council seat by a paper-thin 13-vote margin, winning with 1,816 votes to Yow's 1,803.

Briggs and incumbent Councilwoman Maggie Flanagan also won council seats, beating challenger Eden Thorne and Sumner.

Flanagan led all candidates with 2,044 votes, and Briggs received 1,702.

Sumner had 1,406 votes, and Thorne had 1,349.

Briggs, an associate professor of art and design, said his campaign was worth the hard work.

"I think it's a great win for the town," he said.

"I think the town is the biggest winner here. It gives us a chance to put it back together. I think that's the key."

Thorne applauded the students' turnout at the polls.

"Students made a big difference and showed responsibility in voting," she said.

"I hope they will continue to show responsibility as citizens."

Budsliek and Briggs teamed up in the last days of the campaign and targeted students with thousands of fliers and several

Bill could strip patrons of Sunday viewing

CLOSED: Legislation would curb adult entertainment.

JASON K. FREUND
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Area adult entertainment nightclubs could be forced to close on Sundays under legislation scheduled to be considered by the Illinois House.

The bill also would restrict adult entertainment facilities from operating within 1,000 feet of any school, day care center, cemetery, public park, public housing or places of worship.

The bill passed the House Local Government Committee in March, and State Rep. Mike Bost, R-

Murphysboro, a member of the committee, voted for it.

"I think we're teaching our children to lead lives that are morally correct, and certain parents do not wish to have their children exposed to those types of things," Bost said. "Yet their children, when walking home or waiting for the bus, they're exposed to this."

House Bill 1883 defines an adult entertainment facility as a striptease club, pornographic movie theater, adult bookstore or video store whose primary business is the commercial sale, dissemination or distribution of sexually explicit material, shows or other exhibitions.

Corrections

The headline on Errol O'Neill's letter to the editor (March 25, page 5) was misleading. It is the group's status as a Registered Student Organization that is causing the conflict.

In James D. Quisenberry's guest column on Tuesday, there was a factual error. It should have stated that during 1993-94, international students brought in 20 percent of the total tuition at SIUC.

Tuesday's "1997 Black Cultural Jam" brief incorrectly stated the event's date. The date should have been Tuesday, April 1.

The Daily Egyptian regrets these errors.

As a Peace Corps volunteer, Luis A. Rivera has seen first-hand the struggle of Kyrgyz Republic as the nation moves away from communism to democracy.

"I was able to see what communism was like in the former Soviet Union," he said. "Seeing that was an awakening. I have an appreciation for what I have living in the United States."

Rivera, a 1991 SIUC graduate in foreign language and international trade from Chicago worked in Kyrgyz Republic for two years and returned to the United States last fall. He was on campus Monday and Tuesday to recruit students for the Peace Corps.

Rivera's experience in the corps helped him to understand that even though Kyrgyz Republic is moving toward democracy, the country has a long way to go to, and many residents there do not understand some of the changes.

"They associate democracy with instant money, but that is not the case at all," he said. "They have products coming from the West, and they are seeing all of this for the first time. And they want the markets to develop quickly."

But the prosperity the people are looking for is slow in coming. The experience gave Rivera an appreciation for always having clean water and electricity in the United States.

"I lived in a village of about 20,000 people," Rivera said. "Every building looked the same. They were the same shape and the same color of gray. At night there was no electricity. There was no running water."

Despite the streets being dark streets, the village is safe.

"Now that I am living in Washington, D.C., the streets there are more dangerous in the daytime than in a village with no electricity after midnight," Rivera said.

Living in Kyrgyz Republic, he realized how close he became to the people with whom he spent two years of his life. That closeness made it hard to leave.

"As a means of survival, you become part of the community and establish long-term relationships," he said. "When it comes time to leave, it is actually like leaving home."

The relationship with people is what impressed Michael Barber, a senior with a degree studying pre-medicine from Sparta, when he helped teach high school students about agriculture in Papua New Guinea.

Since his two-year commitment for the Peace Corps was completed, one of his fondest memories still is the response from some his students.

"Some of the high school students sang a song in a beautiful South Pacific style when I was about to leave," he said. "It was a goodbye song. It is a memory I always will have with me."

The people in developing countries like Papua New Guinea have to endure many things like water being turned off or electricity being shut down because there are so little

Clinton urges liquor industry to retain ad ban

President Clinton, saying he was "greatly disappointed" by the liquor industry's decision to end a voluntary ban on broadcast advertising last year, Tuesday called on the industry to retain the ban and asked the Federal Communications Commission to explore ways to keep liquor ads off television.

The White House declaration, which prompted protests from the distilled spirits industry and broadcasters, was the latest in an ongoing series of moves by the administration to highlight issues of child safety and health, including tobacco and gang violence.

Speaking up

Students should not fall silent now that elections are finished

NOW THAT THE ELECTIONS ARE OVER, students should not become silent. One of the main lessons that SIUC students have learned from this Carbondale City Council campaign is the fact that they do have political power in the city — enough power to bring about substantial change with not only their voices but their vote in future elections.

Students should not forget that they have a place in this city — a place in which they are citizens just like the people who have grown up here.

WHETHER OR NOT THEIR CANDIDATES won, students have realized that they made their issues heard by all the candidates in this past election, and it should not stop just here.

Students could have an active voice in issues speaking up at city meetings or on this campus.

COMMITTEES IN CITY GOVERNMENT have openings for student representation. Also the Citizens Advisory Committee meets with constituents, including students, to receive input from citizens.

However, the last time the CAC showed up on campus, students did not show up. And so far this semester, student representatives from both student government organizations have failed to attend the meetings, sending a message to the city that students do not care about city issues.

AS THE ELECTION FINALLY WINDS DOWN, student input on the council is just beginning. Students have learned that no matter who the candidate or official is, they have a right to have their issues addressed, but it takes students getting involved.

“Student issues” — lowering the bar-entry age, safe housing and relationship with residents — surfaced to the forefront of the campaigns. In the primary, three student candidates emerged. With that, many students spent long hours campaigning in town and on campus for those candidates they believed in.

They traveled around town placing signs and fliers in yards and on dorm doors to urge others to vote and be counted. The students became the voice for the entire campus. There is no reason that this should end. The sooner that students realize that their involvement, with outlets already in place, the better it is for all.

STUDENTS NO LONGER ARE CONSIDERED the sleeping voters. They have voted in both the primary and general municipal elections enough to get our views on the table and into the media.

However, they need to take this foundation and build upon it with continued activism in city government. It is time for students to accept the invitation given by the city to be involved.

In order to make the city and SIUC one community, students need to fill these committees and have adequate representation at the city council meetings. Call city hall today, 549-5302, for information on how to become a part of this community.

“Our Word” represents a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Board.

Comets natural events, not harbingers of doom

Comets, comets, comets. Everybody (dinosaurs not included) loves comets, and why shouldn't they?

Comets are bright and shiny, similar to the other 500,000 bright and shiny specks of light in the night sky, and if you look at a comet cross-eyed, you can even make out the difference.

Unfortunately, though, comets often are blamed for things they have no real control over just because they've been spotted in the general vicinity at the same time something major happened.

Kind of like “guilt by association.” For example, Halley's Comet was seen at the same time that William the Conqueror finally lived up to that rather stress-inducing last name and conquered England.

Everybody's favorite Asiatic marauder Genghis Khan even had his own comet as a harbinger of doom for his enemies when he sacked Samarkand in 1222. (Don't worry, I don't know where Samarkand is, either — I'm just copying text.)

And anybody who loves Shakespeare (and how can you not?) knows that The Bard rarely instigated any plot development without some sort of cosmic occurrence.

Granted, the Enlightenment took away a great deal of a comet's supposed supernatural power, but we now find ourselves less than three years away from the millennium.

Everything means something. Nowadays, a hangnail isn't just a hangnail; it's a prophetic metaphor for the slow, painful tearing away of human dignity from the soul.

What brings me to my point. What took place in San Diego is tragic, but not entirely unpredictable.

I mean, putting a spaceship behind a comet does make sense if you think about it. A great deal less solar wind resistance.

I could buy that. And Marshall Applewhite — how could you not follow that pretty mug anywhere he asked?

The truth is, it's a comet. It is beautiful, but it's also a gigantic iceberg screaming through space.

It has no power over events on earth, it is no harbinger of doom, and it is not a starter pistol for some apocalyptic sprint.

Just because it comes 2 1/2 years before the turn of the millennium doesn't mean anything unless we allow it to, as did those disturbed souls in California.

I'm not saying that there is no higher power. I'm not saying that there is no higher power. I'm not saying that there is no higher power.

What I'm saying is that it doesn't make sense for that higher power to use a chunk of ice to communicate with mankind.

These are exciting times, to be sure, especially now that the year 2000 no longer is a catchy science fiction title.

It is a foreseeable, nearby future most of us will experience.

Throw a brilliant comet into the mix, and it's almost understandable that people would get a little apprehensive.

We need to remember, however, that this universe operates under a set of comprehensible laws. We don't understand everything, but we do know a great deal, including the fact that a comet has absolutely no influence, natural or supernatural, over events on Earth.

(Unless, of course, it comes close enough to screw around with our orbit around the sun or actually collides with the planet, an event that never would be post-analyzed by anyone in the first place.)

Certainly there is a higher power, an architect of this fabulous structure known as the universe.

It is ludicrous to assume that all of this (we being a part of all this) came about by chance.

However, we're humans, the most highly developed of all of this architect's creations. This is our planet.

Instead of jumping at shadows and buying into every gloom-and-doom prophecy thrown at us, we need to take a mature and responsible approach to taking care of our planet and our future.

We need to make a conscious effort to prove the prophets wrong.

Union, administration vote on negotiation guidelines

PRIVACY: Both teams agree to keep certain University matters out of public forum.

WILLIAM HATFIELD
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Faculty union and administration negotiators agreed at their first meeting on March 26 that issues such as wages and working conditions should be discussed privately.

William Capie, associate vice chancellor of administration, said negotiators agreed on a set of ground rules on the dissemination of information, protocol, and the time, date, and place of future meetings.

"I think we accomplished what we set out to accomplish, and that was to get a tentative set of ground rules which both parties agree upon," Capie said.

Capie said both teams agree that issues will be discussed privately at the table rather than in a public forum.

He would not comment on which issues will be presented by the administration or the faculty union.

"We won't do that until an impasse has been declared," Capie said.

"If an impasse has been declared and negotiations are breaking down, then the public is entitled to know what issues are out there that are causing this impasse."

But until we reach that point, there won't be any public discussion of the issues."

James Sullivan, faculty union president, said publicizing issues can create speculation and mistrust between the negotiating teams.

"Further on down the line, the issues may be made public once both parties agree that they have arrived at a certain amount of recognition and understanding of the issues," he said.

Sullivan also said administra-posal. "Some of the things on the University's list will be responses to some of the union's issues, particularly in areas where there is disagreement," he said.

Sullivan said the faculty union is completing a contract proposal with faculty input from surveys, union members and non-union members.

"Our most pressing concern at the moment continues to be the creation and refinement of a contract proposal," Sullivan said.

"We want to be sure, to the faculty's satisfaction, that we have captured all of the main issues with which the faculty are concerned."

Capie said once the issues are presented, they must be negotiated at the table until both sides agree upon a contract proposal.

"We don't have a timetable or deadline," he said.

"We are going to make sure we hammer out all the issues that are essential to a comprehensive agreement."

Based on the accomplishments of last week's meeting, Capie expects that the negotiating process will continue with little disagreement.

"It wasn't a confrontational environment; we all know each other," Capie said.

"I think there is a general belief that neither side wants to do anything that would compromise the mission of the University, and overall I think we are looking out for the best interests of the University."

have the program."

Students can pick up volunteer forms at the Student Development office on the third floor of the Student Center. Forms must be completed and turned into the Student Development office by Monday. Paratore said each Registered Student Organization also has received volunteer forms.

Students interested in volunteering can attend an informational meeting at 7 p.m. April 17 in the Missouri Room in the Student Center.

"Students do not have to commit to the program right now," Paratore said. "We are just having an informational session for those who are interested."

University Police will run background checks on all volunteers to screen for convicted felons. Volunteers also must be in good disciplinary standing with the University.

Kathie Lorentz, Student Development coordinator, said student escorts will work from the Travel Service, located in Service Shop B near the Physical Plant, and will receive phone calls from students who do not want to walk across campus alone.

A team of two escorts, one male and one female, either will walk or bike to the building where the student is waiting. Then, the student will be escorted to another location on campus.

Lorentz said escorts will have identification with them.

Volunteers will work two or three hours per week, and work can be scheduled around escorts' other commitments, she said.

Paratore said students who commit to the program this spring can be trained this summer.

Students can be escorted from 7 p.m. to midnight during the fall 1997 semester until Oct. 26, when daylight-saving time ends. Winter hours will be 6 p.m. to midnight.

Scott King, a sophomore in biological sciences from Colona, wants to be a volunteer because he wants to help improve safety on campus.

"One reason it is important to me is, ever since I have been here, there have been more people mugged and raped," King said. "Such a program is a good way to cut down on these attacks."

The program would have required $25,000 to hire part-time safety officers as escorts. However, by using student volunteers, using the Women's Night Transit Service dispatch line and borrowing radio equipment from Travel Service, SalukiSafe will not need that much money.

Campus Safety Programs also administers the Women's Night Transit program.

The SalukiSafe escorts only will take students from campus locations to other campus locations, unlike the Night Transit program, which only will take students from the campus to the city or from the city to the campus.

Also, the Night Transit program uses vehicles, and the SalukiSafe program will not.

In November, Undergraduate Student Government approved a bill to support a night safety program.

In March, the Graduate and Professional Student Council approved a resolution to support the volunteer escort service.

resources to keep them going.

Living through that for two years made Barber a better person in the end, but it was only because he went there to learn as well as to teach.

But not everyone can be a Peace Corps volunteer because the organization is looking for specific types of people.

Lolie Camacho, a recruiter for the Peace Corps who volunteered in 1989-92 in Mali, said many people think because it is a volunteer organization, anyone can join.

However, it is competitive to become a volunteer, and the most opportunities exist for people with agricultural, teaching and environmental backgrounds. Volunteers must have a bachelor's degree before applying to the Peace Corps.

She said there are opportunities for people in other programs including liberal arts, but students need to be involved in tutoring and other community service work to show they have the skills the Peace Corps is looking for.

Once a person joins the Peace Corps, it is a tough thing to leave behind. Rivera decided to stay in the Peace Corps and work in management.

"I am going to Eastern Europe to work as an administrator," Rivera said. "I am in Washington, D.C., learning how the headquarters works. I am happy because I studied international trade, and that is what I am doing in the Peace Corps."

both on U.S. Highway 51 north of DeSoto, have adult entertainment on Sunday nights.

John Bowlin, the owner of JB's Place, said although closing on Sunday would not hurt his business significantly, it would affect his employees.

"Most of our employees work for tips, and those tips go to buy things for their kids," Bowlin said.

Bowlin said the bill contradicts the Constitution, and mentioned Larry Flynt, the owner of Hustler magazine, an adult entertainment magazine, who won several court cases on pornography.

"I agree with the church deal and all that," Bowlin said, "but Larry Flynt proved that we have the right to freedom of expression. I've seen things on TV, even the networks, that are a lot worse than what goes on here on Sunday nights."

Wayne Wendling, owner of The Chalet, 10524 Highway 149 in Murphysboro, said he already closes on Sunday and Monday to have time off.

"It's a personal choice," he said. "Not many people go out to see dancers on Sunday or Monday, and they (the dancers) need to have some time off."

Wendling has been in business for 42 years and said he is not concerned about the bill.

State Rep. Frank Mautino, D-Spring Valley, voted against the bill in committee because he had unanswered questions.

"I wanted to know if they are going to 'grandfather' existing facilities and small businesses already in operation," Mautino said. "Putting restrictions on the operating hours of any business is something I have a problem with."

Mautino said the bill would be acceptable if it did not restrict businesses' operating hours.

Bost said stores that sell adult magazines or products as a part of their business are not covered under the bill.

"Basically, it's enacting a 'blue law' on this type of business," he said.

In the past, blue laws allowed no businesses to operate on Sundays except those that provided necessary items such as food, he said.

Neil Camp, a sophomore in biology from Decatur, supports keeping adult businesses away from schools and cemeteries, but he does not think they should be forced to close on Sundays.

"It would be a good idea if they were kept away from schools and the majority of public places," he said, "but I don't see why they would have to be closed on Sundays."

"A lot of people do recreational-type-things on Sundays, but if that's the way you want to spend your time go ahead. But it shouldn't be near kids."

However, Carlos Depaz, a sophomore in animal science from Flossmoor, also supports the bill.

"I'm pretty religious, so I am all for it," Depaz said.

Bost said the bill is scheduled to be considered by the entire House before April 18.

While many members of both organizations worked for Briggs and Budnick, both leaders of the groups agreed the election was not about party politics but was about the welfare of the students.

"This is a nonpartisan election," said Andy Volpert, a senior in education from Danville and president of the College Republicans.

"Carbondale needs fresh people, and fortunately these candidates represent students."

Hamilton Arendsen, a senior in political science from Spring Green, Wis., and president of the College Democrats, agreed with Volpert.

The student participation in this election is a good sign for the future of the University.

"Even if this election does not go our way, students will see how important it is to get involved," Arendsen said. "We won't get fooled again."

Hudgens talked to people and encouraged them to vote. What was happening Tuesday would be good for people who will be attending the University in the future, and she expected her candidates to win the election.

"Working today only helps us," she said. "If students get out and vote and get involved, we can make an effective change."

Local midwife defends home birthing method

TEXTBOOK CASE:

SIU School of Law studies Illinois Supreme Court ruling.

JULIE RENDLEMAN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Maggie Jihan, the only midwife to appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court the illegality of midwifery, says it should be legalized in Illinois, and women who decide to give birth at home are scorned when taken to the hospital after they give birth.

Jihan was found guilty in trial court of midwifery in 1986. The judge of that court wanted to send a warning to other midwives, to punish Jihan and provide rehabilitation for her.

However, her case, Illinois v. Margaret Jihan, was overturned by the Illinois Supreme Court in 1989 and is taught in numerous textbooks at the SIU School of Law.

Midwifery began in biblical times when midwives were highly respected. The only way, at that time, for a woman to have a baby was to use a midwife, who are labor-coaches and patient advocates. Nurse midwives are available, but they cannot do home births unless they get the permission of a doctor.

Jihan was charged when she assisted in a home birth in 1986. The baby died because of meconium, a fecal material which a fetus can ingest into its lungs blocking airways. The state's attorney took her to court, but the parents of the baby refused to press charges.

Jihan said she faces revealing herself every time a client is taken to the hospital.

"I always think of their safety first," she said. "I have seen the medical community scorn women who come into the hospital for stitches. I am not all-wed to give them because that would be considered practicing medicine."

Jihan still practices midwifery in Illinois even though she served three years of probation and six months of electric home confinement. Oregon is the only state where a midwife can be certified.

"I had a (spiritual) calling that made me go back to midwifery," she said. "I hope one day a woman will have a choice to decide if she wants to deliver at home or in the hospital. This is supposed to be the land of the free."

One SIUC professor who had Jihan attend her home birth on Feb. 1, 1997, said she never thought two years ago she would give birth to a baby at home.

Suzanne Daughton, an assistant professor in speech communications, said people always tell her she was brave to give birth at home, and she thinks they are brave to give birth in a hospital.

"I did a lot of reading," she said. "Me and my husband agreed we wanted to welcome our baby into the world in the most gentle and loving way."

Daughton said hospitals have an atmosphere of fear, and she did not agree with some of the procedures that are required to have a baby in hospitals, such as electronic fetal monitoring.

"I have talked to mothers who said they were making good progress at home with their labor," she said. "Then once they got to the hospital in its atmosphere, their labor stalled."

Daughton said she contacted Jihan through one of her friends who had worked with her during her pregnancy.

"It was wonderful to give birth at home," she said. "I would not do it any other way."

Daughton said it is a problem that midwifery is not certified by the state.

"Studies have shown midwifery is safer and cheaper than hospital birth," she said.

"It also has a more positive outcome."

Daughton did not have to go to the hospital after the birth of her baby.

Robert Schwartz, visiting professor of the SIU School of Law, said he has taught Jihan's case in classes since 1991.

"Her case is a very significant case dealing with what practicing medicine means," he said.

Schwartz sees midwifery having a good chance of becoming certified in the future.

"It would have a good chance if the medical profession was not so opposed to midwifery because of the political spectrum," he said.

Jihan learned a lot about how to stand up for women because of her case.

"It was more about my opportunity to be an example to women."

STD awareness month stresses infertility, sterility concerns

SAFE SEX: Association uses month to educate students on untreated sexual diseases.

MIKAL HARRIS
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Jewel L. Gilmore says sexually transmitted diseases immediately bring concerns to mind she is glad she does not have to worry about.

STD
•SIUC students can receive testing at Student Health Services.

•The National STD Hotline helps provide more information about STDs. The hotline number is 1-800-227-8922.

also think about how people who have STDs can pass them on to their children."

But Gilmore, a junior in accounting from Chicago, is concerned about another aspect of STDs

"STDs leave people unable to have kids," she said, "and that's very sad considering the increase in STD cases and spreading among young adults."

The American Social Health

Association shares Gilmore's concern and is using April to spread awareness of the potential of infertility. The organization sponsors National Sexually Transmitted Disease Awareness Month, and "Protect Your Fertility and Your Future" is the month's theme.

American Social Health Association representative Sharon Boone said the theme is one that young adults should seriously consider.

"For one thing, two-thirds of all new STD infections each year occur in people under 25," she said. "We believe that so many of them do not understand that STDs can affect you for the rest of your life."

"A woman's reproductive system can become damaged from STD infections. It's less common for men to become sterile from STD infections, but it is definitely possible."

Information from the American Social Health Association states 15 percent of all infertility cases in women in the United States are caused by pelvic inflammatory disease (PID), a complication of untreated STDs.

PID occurs when sexually transmitted diseases, usually chlamydia or gonorrhea, spread from a woman's cervix up into her uterus, fallopian tubes and ovaries. The infection can cause scarring in the fallopian tubes, making it difficult or impossible for a woman to become pregnant. PID also can cause chronic pain and tubal pregnancies, in which the mother's life is threatened and a fetus cannot develop.

Chlamydia and gonorrhea also can cause sterility in men, and both diseases often are present in both sexes without noticeable symptoms.

Chlamydia alone is symptomless in 85 percent of cases in women and 40 percent of cases in men.

Boone said absent symptoms of some STDs can lead to discouragement in family plans.

"You or your partner may have an STD and you may not be aware of it until later on in life when you attempt to start a family," she said.

Boone said people having sex should get tested regularly for STDs even if no symptoms are present. SIUC students can receive testing at Student Health Services, and American Social Health Association officials state both chlamydia and gonorrhea can be cured with antibiotics, if detected.

But Boone is careful to emphasize the one way a person can make sure he or she is not at risk of contracting an STD.

"Be aware that the only completely safe choice against getting an STD is not to have sex," she said.

"If you do have sex, the best practice would be to use a condom." Gilmore agrees people should use condoms but she warns against underestimating STDs.

"I don't believe most people associate STDs with infertility because that effect occurs when in a disease's later stages," she said.

"Most people think about the here-and-now effects when they need to think about future complications as well."

Four die in Middle East violence

CONFLICT: Israel's prime minister claims PLO leader tacitly approved violence.

WASHINGTON POST

JERUSALEM—A continuing swell of communal violence left four Palestinians dead Tuesday — two in what were described as botched suicide attacks, two more under Israeli army fire — amid warnings from both sides that the survival of their deadlocked peace negotiations is in doubt.

It was the deadliest of 13 straight days of street clashes since Israel broke ground for a new Jewish neighborhood in the traditionally Palestinian part of East Jerusalem.

The confrontations between Israeli occupation troops and stone-throwing Arab youths, controlled with varying effort and success by Palestinian police, have begun to look increasingly like durable features of a new phase in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

Twin explosions in the Gaza Strip, carried out minutes apart at Gaza's two principal sites of Jewish settlement, killed only the apparent bombers, Israeli authorities reported. But taken together with a March 21 bomb in Tel Aviv, which killed three Israeli women, the attacks suggested to many Israelis that a year-long silence by Islamic extremists has been broken in earnest.

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu pressed his claim again that Yasser Arafat, president of the Palestinian Authority, consented to a resumption of terror attacks, saying the "terrorist organizations ... continue to understand they have a green light from the Palestinian Authority to perpetrate their savagery." He said that "if peace is to survive" Arafat must tell Islamic militants unambiguously to halt the attacks and take decisive steps to prevent them.

Arafat and his lieutenants said the second of the two incidents was not a suicide bombing, but an unprovoked Israeli attack on innocent Palestinians.

advertisements on subjects such as the bar-entry age and downtown development.

The two candidates and their volunteers, many of whom were students, offered student voters rides to polling places and canvassed the campus Tuesday, encouraging students to go to the polls.

Tuesday's student turnout was higher than the turnout in February's council primary and also higher than the turnout in the 1995 municipal election.

In the February primary, the election that chose Tuesday's six candidates from the original 14-candidate field, there were 189 votes cast in Precinct 23, which encompasses Brush Towers. Tuesday, there were 258 votes cast there.

There were 137 votes cast in Thompson Point, the 25th Precinct, in February's primary, and 230 votes cast there Tuesday.

In the 1995 City Council election, there were 291 votes cast in precincts 21-26, the predominantly student-populated precincts. Tuesday, there were 935 votes cast there.

Votes in student precincts overwhelmingly were for Briggs and Budstick.

At Brush Towers, where 258 ballots were cast, 234 were for Briggs and 239 were for Budstick.

At Thompson Point, where 230 ballots were cast, 206 were for Briggs and 209 were for Budstick. DE reporter Shawna Donovan contributed to this story.

University-approved halls offer alternative to campus dorms

MOVING ON OUT: Students tired of living in on-campus residence halls find peace and quiet in off-campus housing.

JULIE RENDLEMAN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Many freshman get tired of living in the dormitories after their first year at SIUC and look for a change in housing arrangements — something that 10 University-approved living centers for sophomores offer.

SIUC's policy for housing requires single sophomores under the age of 21 to live either in an on-campus residence hall or in an accepted/approved living center.

Currently, there are two approved off-campus housing living centers that all students, including freshmen, can live in.

• Stevenson Arms-600 W. Mill St., 549-1332 or 1-800-879-1332. Approved residence hall with suites (two rooms share a bathroom). Twenty meals per week meal plan included. Cable TV and utilities included. Rates: $3,100 for fall and spring semesters for a double and $5,500 for fall and spring for a single. Manager: Stan Lieber.

• University Hall-1101 S. Wall St., 549-2050. Approved residence hall. Nineteen meals per week. Cable TV and utilities included. Rates: $3,444 per year for a double and $4,444 for a single. Manager: Julie Ray.

There are eight sophomore-approved housing areas in which the University allows sophomores, juniors, seniors and graduate students to live.

• Ambassador Hall-600 W. Freeman St., 457-2212. Residence hall atmosphere with suites (two rooms share a bathroom). Common kitchen is shared by the residents. Rates: $825 per semester for a double and $1,325 per semester for a single. Water and electricity included. Manager: Steve Maier.

• Ambassador Studio-504 S. Rawlings St., 457-2212. Efficiency apartments with own kitchen and bathroom. Rates: $300 per month. Water included, electricity is separate. Twelve-month contract. Manager: Matt Maier.

• Forest Hall-820 W. Freeman St., 457-5631. Residence hall atmosphere with suites (two rooms share a bathroom, but a few rooms with a private bathroom are available). Common kitchen is shared by residents. Rates: $800 per semester for a double and $1,350 per semester for a single. Other special rates are available. Water and electricity are included. Manager: Keith Hindman.

• Garden Park Apartments-607 E. Park St., 549-2835. Two-bedroom apartments with two bathrooms and a kitchen. Rates: $2,340 (per resident based on a four-person occupancy for a 12-month contract). Facility charges three $50 water payments per year. Electricity is separate. Manager: Stan Lieber.

• Bonnie Owen Property Management has Creekside Condominiums, 711 S. Wall St., and Grand Place II and III., 900 E. Grand Ave. All are three-bedroom apartments. Contact management for more information at 529-2054.

• Georgetown-1000 E. Grand Ave., 529-2187. Facility has two- and three-bedroom furnished apartments with several options. Rates: $500 to $620 per month (based on number of bedrooms and number of occupants.) Utilities not included. Manager: John Winn.

• Southern Illinois Studio Apartments-405 E. College St., 529-2241. New studio apartments. Rates: $250 a month unfurnished or $265 furnished. With a 10-month contract two months are free. Manager: Jack Goodwin.

• Wall Street Quads-1207 S. Wall St., 457-4123. Facility has efficiency, two- and three-bedroom apartments with several options. Rates: $155 to $350 per person a month. Facility charges a monthly fee for water. Electricity is separate. Manager: Raul Ayala.

Laura Suppan, a freshman in pre-med from Springfield, is moving out of Thompson Point next fall with her friends into the Wall Street Quads.

"Dorm life is not that bad," she said. "But I wanted my own room and more freedom. I will be glad to have my own bathroom in my room. It gets pretty noisy in Thompson Point, so I will also appreciate the quiet."

Patrick Brumleve, supervisor of off-campus housing, said students should stay in the dorms because all of their needs are taken care of.

"Students get cable, electric, and meals," he said. "Once they move out of the dorms it is welcome to the real world."

Mobile homes more economical

GOOD DEAL: Students say paying lot rent can be an advantage over other housing options.

DONNA COLTER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

For an SIUC student not wanting the added headaches of living in an apartment, a mobile home may be the best solution.

Bob Leigeber, owner of Crab Orchard Lake Mobile Home Park, said a student can receive many advantages from living in a mobile home park.

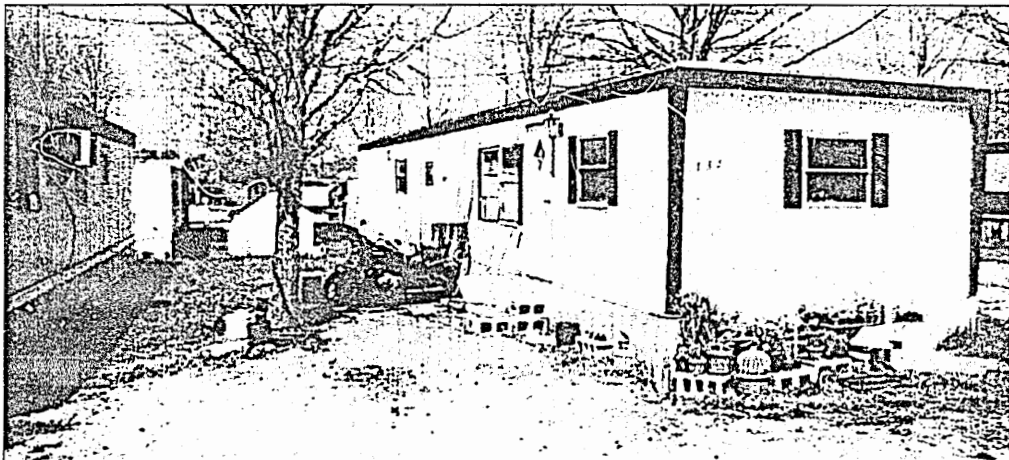

"A mobile home is private, and you are not in an apartment building where you have next-door neighbors," he said. "Our particular park has a nice atmosphere."

A mobile home may have a lot more to offer a student, said Jeff Schuck, a fourth-year law student from Peoria and owner of a mobile home.

"It is a nice way to go, and it is much more accepted in Southern Illinois," he said. "I have a landlord who owns my park, so there is no worry of property tax. I just pay him a monthly lot rent that covers water, sewer and trash. Plus I have access to the pool. It is a really good deal for $100 a month."

Andy Kelley, a senior in forestry from Harrisburg, and his friends looked at apartments, but they decided a mobile home was more economical.

"The better (apartments) were $500 a month," Kelley said. "We have a nice 14-by-70 mobile home

JASON WINKLER/Daily Egyptian

MOBILE LIVING: Trailer homes like this one, located in the Roxanne Mobile Home Park, 2301 S. Illinois Ave., offer students economical housing.

for $280 a month."

Not having to worry about the added necessities also is a plus for Kelley and his roommate.

"Electric and gas is all in one," Kelley said. "You don't have to pay water, sewer or worry about lawn care. You really only have one bill unless you have a phone."

"It's everything an apartment would have for a whole lot less."

Leigeber said a student should be aware of a few things when searching for a mobile home, mainly making sure the mobile home was made after 1975.

"Price is the greatest consideration to some students who don't realize a home built before 1975 doesn't meet the Housing and Urban Development standards for insulation," he said.

Students also must be aware of the size of the mobile home they are getting for their money, Leigeber said.

Most mobile homes today are 16 feet wide or 14 feet wide, so a student should be wary of any mobile home that does not meet those standards.

Schuck said the increased room a mobile home offers over an apartment is a big plus.

"You get a much bigger living space with no one on the opposite side wall or a landlord putting on restrictions," Schuck said.

Another consideration students should look for is whether a mobile home is furnished and whether the student has the furniture necessary to fill an unfurnished home.

"I personally don't furnish except for a stove and refrigerator because things tend to get broken," Leigeber said.

The atmosphere of a park is a big consideration, and Leigeber said if a student is looking for a quiet atmosphere, the parks farther from campus tend to be the quietest.

"If they are looking for parties, the closer they get to campus and the older parks have the noisy beer parties," Leigeber said. "We don't have that in our park. We have quiet hours."

"Neatness, quietness and management are important."

Campus housing has many advantages

CENTER OF IT ALL:

Many SIUC students prefer to live on campus where they can be close to classes and social events.

WILLIAM HATFIELD
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The more than 4,200 students living in campus housing enjoy several benefits, a University official says.

Beth Scally, University Housing's coordinator of marketing, said cost-effectiveness and living conveniently close to campus are two of the major benefits to living in on-campus housing.

"There are a lot of hidden costs that you don't realize until you live off campus," Scally said. "In on-campus housing you don't have the hassle of worrying about utilities costs, food and deposits.

"You have to look at what kind of services are offered, whereas with University Housing everything is taken care of."

Jason DeSmitt, a freshman in computer engineering from Kewanee who lives in Smith Hall at Thompson Point, likes on-campus housing because of its proximity to campus.

"It's right here on campus next to all my classes," DeSmitt said. "It was convenient because I didn't have to go out and look for a place to live, and I could just sign the forms."

Scally said the fact that many students live together allows students to help each other in their studies. She said in addition to helping students academically, on-campus housing also provides a sense of community that allows students to have better social lives.

"It's harder to meet people off campus," she said. "It is easier to meet people and make friends in housing. Student resident assistants have eight to 10 planned programs a semester. These programs help people get to know each other and can be anything from canoeing to discussing educational topics."

DeSmitt said because it was his first semester on campus he did not think he could find an off-campus location. Housing was a good solution because it allowed him to stay with his friends and choose his roommate.

"My friends are all in the same dormitory," he said. "So I can stay here and be with all my friends."

Elizabeth Bush, a sophomore in microbiology from Macomb, likes living in Smith Hall at Thompson Point because it is easier to walk to her classes than other housing areas.

"I like the area and the Campus Lake," Bush said. "There are more upperclassmen living here as well."

Scally said the security and safety of on-campus housing is another benefit that appeals to students. She said housing applies as much security as possible using state-of-the-art equipment.

Computer facilities located near residence halls also are helpful to students, and University Housing and Information Technology are continually looking for ways to upgrade technology.

New programs including healthy lifestyle floors, where residents promise not to smoke cigarettes, drink alcohol or abuse drugs, also appeal to students, Scally said.

"We are trying a number of new programs," she said. "The new faculty associate program allows faculty interaction with students living in housing, and it gives students the advantage of knowing faculty members and learning from them."

Scally said Housing tries to supply all prospective students with information about housing. She said students visiting SIUC can obtain information about housing from Washington Square in the contracts office.

Kentucky's change of plans could have led to loss

NCAA CHAMPS:
Arizona's success in Wildcat final was visible from opening minutes.

LOS ANGELES TIMES

INDIANAPOLIS — Arizona won the Kentucky derby Monday night, with faster ponies and a full-speed burst from the moment the gates opened and the big blue wave sloshed and lulled.

When did you know Arizona could pull this off, could devour the devourer, could make that last great hurdle into history?

You knew it a minute and a half into this thing, when Kentucky's Wayne Turner made a short jumper. Arizona had to inbound the ball 94 feet away from its basket, and the RCA Dome waited for the first sight of pressure pandemonium.

When Kentucky had its first chance to grab ahold of this game with its raging full-court press and ... it deferred. It sat back. It bided its time. It said, "No thanks, not for now."

Maybe later.

"I felt pressing tonight was not the way to go," Kentucky Coach Rick Pitino said after the game. "We didn't press the first five minutes of the game, and if not for (the need to increase) the pace, I wouldn't have pressed at all."

Said Arizona's non-paraleil Miles Simon: "They were trying to fake us out or something, not pressing us early. But we knew it was coming." The press — even then, adjusted and toned down to take account of Arizona's great guards, Pitino said — eventually showed up, and Arizona did commit 18 turnovers and needed overtime to fling Kentucky away and win its first national title, 84-79.

But when Pitino set loose the pressure, Mike Bibby was able to jitter his way through it, or Simon grabbed a pass and knifed to the basket, or even galoots like Bennett Davison or Donnell Harris calmly caught, pivoted and passed, just like everybody is taught — and nobody is usually able to under the Kentucky siege.

Monday, from the start, Kentucky was the one backpedaling and Arizona was the one that knew it was tougher and that the end game was their game.

"One thing, they were not getting turnovers and easy baskets off of it," Simon said. "We were able to break it and break it. And eventually, running 94 feet the whole game, they were going to get tired."

three-point shots, that sent the game into overtime.

That was it. "Before the game they said they could do it," said Kentucky forward Scott Padgett, "and they did."

Said Bibby: "Our team is just so quick out there, I don't even know what to say."

Simon was the primary threat, and as he kept charging toward the basket, he kept getting fouled. Kentucky committed 29 fouls (to Arizona's 16), and Simon himself made 14 of 17 free-throw attempts, making three less than Kentucky's entire team.

"We kept coming to the ball," Simon said. "We never floated away from Mike if he was in trouble. And we saw one thing when we watched the tapes — we could break the press down off the dribble."

Said Padgett: "Obviously, they really worked on handling our pressure, and they went out there and they kept their cool. They didn't rush things, and that's why they handled our press so well."

As Simon said, Kentucky had to play the whole floor this time — not just the 47 feet from under its own basket to halfcourt — and there's a whole lot of bad things that can happen on that other side of the court.

Kentucky's defense usually wipes out about 30 possessions a game, just takes them right off the map. Monday, from the opening tip, Arizona never let itself get wiped away.

Those first five minutes were the first, radiant sign that Kentucky knew that Arizona could kill its press — and that is a terrible thing to tell Bibby, Simon and Jason Terry.

Ask Minnesota, ask Utah, ask anybody the Wildcats have played (except South Carolina, which beat Kentucky twice), Kentucky doesn't just win games with its full-court press, it defines itself by demolishing its opponents' will with pressure, it wins titles with pressure.

Arizona won a title Monday night by never once feeling any.

Obviously, they (Arizona) really worked hard on handling our pressure, and they went out there and kept their cool. They didn't rush things and that's why they handled our press so well.

SCOTT PADGETT
KENTUCKY WILDCATS FORWARD

Arizona, which committed only two or three turnovers that you could say were directly related to the press, never reached the panic stage Kentucky lives to create, and never coughed up the backcourt turnovers that usually turn into those crushing Kentucky 11-0 or 14-2 runs.

Kentucky's biggest run in this game? A 7-0 tally in the first half that turned a 19-13 Arizona lead into a 20-19 Kentucky lead. The next best was that 6-0 flash at the end of regulation, on two flying

Ripken still not signed with Orioles

SAVED BY WEATHER:
Delay in season opener
buys more signing time.

BALTIMORE SUN

BALTIMORE—The decision to postpone the regular season opener with the Kansas City Royals bought the Orioles one more day to negotiate with potential free agents Cal Ripken, Mike Mussina and Brady Anderson, but it passed without any of them agreeing to contract extensions.

There have been reports that Ripken is close to agreeing to a contract that calls for two years guaranteed and a club option on the 2000 season, but negotiations are in danger of breaking down if the deal is not completed by Wednesday afternoon.

The Orioles have offered Ripken $6.2 million for each year and a $2 million buyout if they do not exercise the option on the final year of the deal. He apparently has agreed to give up his demand that the club guarantee the third year, but is holding out for a slight improvement in the base salary.

dual match against the University of Evansville, junior Mick Smyth said. "It's a learning experience each day," he said. "I hope we can learn from our mistakes and turn those mistakes into positives, which will turn our season around."

Smyth said the team lost some confidence after the first match against Illinois State.

"Our confidence was low this weekend," he said. "We were a little bit out matched and couldn't put it together."

Coach Brad Iftner said he knew going into the matches his team was going to be the underdog, but thought a few wins could have been possible.

"I wasn't happy with the results," he said. "We could have challenged all of our opponents better. We allowed ourselves to get frustrated."

Smyth said the teams SIUC faced were far more superior than the Salukis in terms of experience. The Salukis have five freshmen starting for them this season.

"All of the teams we played are at a level above us right now," he said. "We're going to have to step up and make a commitment if we're going to be successful the rest of the way."

Iftner said the whole experience allowed the team to learn what it takes to be successful.

"Right now it's a learning experience for the team," he said. "We were up against high-caliber players who are the best in the conference, but playing these types of athletes can only give us more confidence heading into the middle of our season."

It is important for the Salukis to respond Friday in Evansville, Ind., because every match the rest of the way is against conference opponents.

Iftner said the weekend was a learning experience for the team, and he is looking forward to getting back into action as soon as possible.

"I'm anxious to see how we're going to respond," he said. "I challenged the guys in practice, and we'll see how we do Friday."

Conference foe Illinois State University. Big 12 member University of Missouri and St. Louis University because of the proximity to her hometown.

"SIUC was the closest one I had interest in," she said. "It was the closest to home, and the people down there are great. I know them well and that is the reason I picked it."

Smith paid a visit to all four schools, but after her visit to SIUC, she decided where she would play her collegiate career.

"I canceled my Mizou visit (after going to SIUC)," she said. "I took Illinois State the weekend before SIUC, but I decided not to go on my official visit to Mizou."

SIUC associate coach Julie Beck, who is in charge of the Salukis' recruiting efforts, said SIUC's closeness to Carlyle and SIUC summer camps made the recruiting efforts much easier.

"Sometimes you don't know why you got a kid," she said. "After we signed her she commented she fit in with our system. Being close to Carlyle helped. It could bring fan support."

hand," she said. "She is a gamester; she makes it happen. The more you do something the more experience you gain, and the more confidence you have. She had a good first year for us, and this year she is more consistent for us."

Long had an outstanding career at Rend Lake, including being an all-region selection in 1994 while batting .439 with two home runs, nine doubles and 12 stolen bases.

Her sophomore year at Rend Lake in 1995 earned Long All-American honors after posting a .492 batting average with a team-high 66 RBIs, 13 triples and six homers.

Long made an impressive start her first year as a Saluki by leading the team with five triples and a third-best .336 average.

"I didn't know what to expect at SIUC," Long said. "I was excited to play at SIUC, and I feel I've done well. I love to win, and that is what really matters."

Long's love for a win has made her a leader on the field, which Brechtelsbauer knows is important to the team.

"As a center fielder she is the leader in charge," Brechtelsbauer said.

"She is going to be the one who takes the most out in center field. Her performance shows leadership by the way she hustles out there and dives for things."

Sophomore left fielder Jennifer Feldmeier said Long shows her leadership by doing her job.

"She is herself out there and does her own thing," Feldmeier said. "She leads by example by her performance instead of telling people. She does it by her action rather than her words."

Long's leadership position in center field comes natural to her.

"Center field. I love that position. I feel like I am the best at that position," Long said.

"I kind of keep to myself a lot. I voice my opinion as a leader should. We try to help each other out. I feel like the outfielders look up to me. If I've got control of a situation which causes me to be a leader, they listen to me."

Yet, Long knows she is not the only one who is needed to lead the Salukis this season.

"There is no specific one who has a leadership position," she said. "We all make up leadership to the team."

WINTERS

Winters was 2-0 with a 1.05 ERA at the Western Illinois Invitational Friday and Saturday in Macomb, picking up wins over the University of Northern Iowa and Drake University. In the championship game against the Panthers, Winters threw her second no-hitter in eight days, striking out a career-high nine batters. Winters retired the first 19 batters she faced and was within one strike of a perfect game before walking the second batter in the seventh.

Against Drake, Winters went 6.1 innings allowed four hits, striking out eight. In 13.1 total innings of work, Winters struck out 17, walked five and allowed only four hits.

Fortson entering NBA draft

University of Cincinnati junior forward Danny Fortson, the team's leading scorer and rebounder this season, will forgo his senior year to enter the NBA draft. Fortson made the official announcement at a news conference Tuesday at the Shoemaker Center, where Cincinnati plays its home games.

The 6-foot-7-inch, 260-pound Fortson, who has been the Conference USA Player of the Year the last two seasons, averaged 21.4 points and nine rebounds per game. But Cincinnati, the preseason No. 1 team in the country, struggled early and never truly established itself among the nation's elite.

Raiders trade Saints for No. 2 pick in draft

The Oakland Raiders acquired the second overall selection in the NFL draft Monday when the Raiders traded their 10th, 37th and 109th picks to the New Orleans Saints for the No. 2 pick and a sixth-round pick. The Raiders also sent wide receiver Darryl Hobbs in the deal to the Saints.

New Orleans also reached an agreement with quarterback Heath Shuler, formerly of the Washington Redskins.

The Raiders already have signed quarterback Jeff George and wide receiver/kick returner Desmond Howard as free agents and had been interested in moving up in the draft.

Last year the Raiders also traded up in the draft, sending three picks to Houston, while moving from the 17th pick to the ninth. With the ninth pick the Raiders selected Ricky Dudley. Oakland has never selected higher than sixth in the NFL draft.

Abbott released by Angels

Left-handed pitcher Jim Abbott, who had an American League-high 18 losses in 1996, was given his unconditional release Monday by the Anaheim Angels.

The 29-year-old Abbott once pitched a no-hitter while playing for the New York Yankees, despite being born without a right hand. Abbott mysteriously lost the skills that made him one of the better pitchers in the '90s.

HATS OFF TO APRIL: SIUC softball player April Long, a senior from Herrin, sorts through batting equipment during practice Tuesday at the IAW fields.

SOFT-SPOKEN SALUKI:

April Long, quiet SIUC softball leader, found her Division I transition difficult.

DONNA COLTER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Senior softball center fielder April Long knew her adjustment to Division I softball would be difficult, even after earning second team All-American honors her sophomore season at Rend Lake Community College in 1995.

"I thought I could come in with flying colors," the Herrin native said. "I feel I am playing well, but (this level) is totally different. I think a lot of (the change) is the mental aspect. I was coming from a team where I was a No. 1 player to a team with a lot quality players."

Long's biggest asset to the Salukis is her defensive play, in which her fielding average is .951.

Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said the Salukis would have a definite void in the lineup without Long.

"I think defensively, teams over look her because she is so fluid out in center field," she said. "She is playing outstanding defense. I don't know anyone in the conference who can go after the ball in center field like she can."

Long leads the Salukis in stolen bases so far this season with seven, while batting .289. She has recorded three doubles, three triples and 12 RBIs in SIUC's 29 games.

Long's highlight so far this season was driving in the winning run in SIUC's 1-0 victory in the championship game of the Western Illinois Invitational against the University of Northern Iowa Saturday.

Brechtelsbauer said Long has made a nice transition in her two years at SIUC. "(Long) has learned to focus very

Future Saluki voted Ms. Illinois Basketball

FIRST FOR SIUC:

Carlyle's Courtney Smith is first Saluki recruit to earn Ms. Illinois Basketball award.

SIUC women's basketball coach Cindy Scott hit the jackpot when she signed Carlyle High School's Courtney Smith.

Scott's highly sought recruit signed a national letter of intent to play basketball for the Salukis Nov. 13, and will be the first Ms. Illinois Basketball to ever attend SIUC. The Chicago Tribune paid her the honor Sunday.

"She will be a great player for our program," Scott said. "She will be a tremendous ambassador. She could have the greatest impact on our program than anyone else."

"It is tremendously exciting for us. It is a great feat for Courtney."

Smith beat candidates for the Ms. Illinois Basketball honor, who are attending universities such as DePaul, Rutgers and Northwestern.

The attraction Smith had to SIUC was because of her familiarity with the coaching staff.

"I have been going to camp there for six years," Smith said. "I love the coaches to death. I feel close to them, and I am thrilled to be going there. We have a good recruiting class, and I think it will be a great four years."

One member of Smith's recruiting class will be Maria Niebruegge of Teutopolis, who Smith played against in the Class A state championship and who finished sixth in the voting for Ms. Illinois Basketball.

Smith also said she is familiar with SIUC's style of basketball, and is willing to adjust to it next season.

"I like the style of play," she said. "It is a fast-paced game. In high school I played the forward position, and I don't think I will be able to get away with that as much. But I can fit into the motion offense."

Smith led Carlyle to two back-to-back Class A state championships in 1996 and 1997, while being named an All-State selection both seasons.

The 5-foot-9-inch forward led Carlyle to a 113-13 record in her four seasons as a starter. She scored 2,975 career points, which translates into 23.6 points per game. Smith also averaged 10.1 rebounds, 5.1 assists and 3.9 steals.

Smith also contributed 22 points, 15 rebounds and four assists to Carlyle's 60-50 Class A state quarterfinal victory over No. 2-ranked Dunlap.

Tennis Dawgs struggle after triple blowout

LOST CONFIDENCE:

Saluki tennis squad works to regain balance after three big losses at Normal.

BRAD WEBER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Junior Brian Etzkin walked into practice Monday determined to let his SIUC tennis teammates know what improvements must be made to salvage the remainder of the season.

"We had a team meeting about how we can refocus as a team and take a fresh attitude into the rest of the season," he said.

Etzkin, along with the rest of his Saluki teammates, began Friday by dropping their first dual match to Illinois State University 5-0 in Normal. Saturday was not much different as the Salukis lost in the morning to Drake University 5-0 and then lost their afternoon match to Wichita State University 7-0.

The Salukis are now 3-8 in spring action, but must look ahead to Friday's
