Complaint filed on hiring procedures

Helen Ellison

By Lenore Sobota
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Helen Ellison, one of the final candidates for the position of associate director of housing, confirmed Friday she has filed a complaint charging that affirmative action guidelines were not followed in filling the associate director's position.

Ellison said she filed a written complaint three weeks ago with Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, and that "Dr. Swinburne has assured me that they will go through the procedures used by the search committee to be sure the affirmative action guidelines were met. If they find any irregularities, which he very strongly believes they won't, they may conduct the search again."

However, she said that if Swinburne decides to go through the search process again, she does not know whether she still will be a candidate for the associate director's position.

"I really don't know right now; I have mixed feelings on that. I'll have to make that decision should the occasion arise," Ellison said.

The search committee, chaired by Assistant Housing Director Joseph Gasser, conducted a nation-wide search, then submitted the names of Ellison, Brush Towers unit manager, and Sharon Justice, student activities coordinator.

Sam Rinella, director of University Housing, selected Justice for the position.

Contacted at his office Friday, Rinella refused to comment on Ellison's complaint. Rinella criticized recent newspaper accounts of the associate director and RHC hiring controversies stating, "You've blown these things well out of proportion."

"I have no comment to make regarding Helen Ellison," he said, "that's it."

Ellison said Swinburne has shown her the report written by the search committee outlining the procedures it used and had given her a "verbal, gentleman's agreement" that the procedures would be thoroughly reviewed. Swinburne is on vacation and was unable to be reached for comment. He has stated in the past that he feels proper procedures were followed in the search and selection process.

"I feel confident that Dr. Swinburne will resolve this whole matter without me having to go any further," said Ellison, but she fears a public statement will not be issued stating whether the procedures met the guidelines.

"I think it's safe to assume it will die and no public statement will be made because people are going to forget about it and stop questioning," she said.

Ellison, who as a unit manager has been the highest ranking black on the University's housing staff, pointed out that the University's affirmative action guidelines are still awaiting approval from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"It appears to me, they don't have any basis for evaluation (of the committee procedures) in the first place. It's a vicious circle," Ellison said.

Governor's council backs fire academy

By Dan Ward
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Governor's Southern Illinois Economic Development Advisory Council unanimously approved during its first meeting a proposal to locate a federal fire academy on the School of Technical Careers (STC) campus.

In a move that council chairman Neal Eckert said he hoped "would not set a precedent for future voting," the council agreed to support the proposal without reviewing it in sub-committee.

The council met Thursday evening at the State Regional Office Building in Marion. Gov. Dan Walker formed the council in February.

Carbondale Mayor Eckert said the council was created because "Southern Illinois has lagged behind the rest of the state in economic development."

The council is not authorized to spend money, but only to make recommendations to the governor's office.

SIU President Warren W. Brandt, a council member, was present at the meeting.

The council unanimously recommended that the federal fire academy be located near Crab Orchard Lake on the STC campus.

George Mace, vice president for University relations, and Herb Meyer, coordinator of University exhibits, presented a film slide show explaining why a new federal fire academy, modeled after the FBI academy, should be built near Carbondale.

Mace said the U.S. Department of Commerce has received five applications for the academy site in addition to the one jointly proposed by SIU and Southern Illinois, Inc.

Brandt said the council was being asked only to endorse the proposal and provide as much political influence as possible when the academy site is selected in October.

Most of the council agreed with member John McVey, former mayor of Herrin, that the fire academy proposal already has been reviewed in most Southern Illinois communities and did not need further study.

Ex-officio member Pud Williams and Eckert objected, saying that it may establish a poor precedent to approve a proposal without first studying it in sub-committee.

The council also heard preliminary arguments for recommending a coal gasification unit to be built in Southern Illinois. Representatives of DECO Corp., a California firm headed by actor John Wayne, said they can build a system that is cheaper, more efficient and more adaptable to high-sulphur coal than ones currently used.

Brad Miller, a methane-conversion process specialist, said a plant built by DECO to convert 10,000 tons of coal per day to gas will cost $10 million to $12 million. He said comparable plants now in operation throughout the country cost $50 million to $100 million.

Eckert said the proposal will be assigned to sub-committee and studied at a future date.

Council members were asked to recommend priorities for economic development in Southern Illinois.

Priorities voiced were promotion of Illinois coal, grain and livestock promotion, creation of port authorities on the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers to cut costs of transporting local products and importing fertilizer, obtaining state funds to promote industry, establishing a coal miner school for unskilled workers and boosting existing businesses and industry through loans and lower taxes.

Marion man charged with coed's rape

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A 31-year-old Marion man was charged in Jackson County Circuit Court Friday with rape and three other crimes after an alleged assault on a 21-year-old SIU coed early Thursday.

Carbondale police identified the suspect as William B. Rose, 816 Jodi Lane, Marion. Associate Circuit Judge Robert Schwartz set Rose's bond at $50,000 on charges of rape, aggravated assault and two charges of unlawful use of weapons.

Rose was arrested by city police about 4 a.m. Thursday, shortly after the woman reported she had been raped by a man who had given her a ride in his car and had threatened her with a knife. The alleged attack occurred on South Wall Street at Pleasant Hill Road.

According to police, the woman reported the attack immediately and gave a description of her assailant's automobile. Police said her quick action led to Rose's arrest in a car meeting the description.

Police also indicated Rose is being investigated as a suspect in two rapes at Lewis Park Apartments during the past month.

Howard Hood, Jackson County state's attorney, said one of the weapons charges involves a loaded pistol that police found in Rose's car.

Hood said Rose had been convicted in Williamson County last year for illegal delivery of a controlled substance and was free on a $50,000 bond for that conviction.

Rose testified he was unemployed and Judge Schwartz appointed the Jackson County public defender to represent the suspect. Rose remained in custody at the county jail Friday.

Ellison files complaint on hiring method

Ellison resigned her position as Brush Towers unit manager Thursday, effective Aug. 8, to take a position as student activities coordinator. Ironically, she will be replacing Justice.

"I have taken the position in good faith," Ellison said. "I'm more than happy to be there and look forward to my new position. I hope to be giving a lot to the job and getting new experience."

Ellison will be sharing duties with Nancy Harris, also a student activities coordinator.

Ellison will be working in general programming areas with the Student Government Activities Council, Southern Illinois Film Society, leadership development, WIDB and Black Affairs Council.

Ellison said she must be approved by the Black Affairs Council before becoming their adviser.

No official date has been set for Ellison to join the Student Activities staff although she said she will begin work about Aug. 11.

Parking decals to go on sale

SIU parking decals for 1975-76 will go on sale Monday to University faculty and staff. Departments wishing applications should call the Parking Division at 453-5365, Gus LeMarchal, coordinator of parking and $3 for silver. Student decals will be available around Aug. 15, LeMarchal said.

whether to finance a study of the feasibility of a port district in Jackson and Union counties.

The port district would operate facilities on navigable streams, City Manager Carroll J. Fry said.

Mayor Neal Eckert appointed Fry to an ad hoc committee to determine whether the area should develop port facilities. The committee is comprised of persons from both Jackson and Union counties.

Fry said that presently 13 port districts exist in the state, but only five are active.

He said the study's cost would total $15,000 for the two counties. On a per capita basis, Carbondale's share of the cost would be $5,667 if the council agrees to support the study Fry said. If the study indicates port facilities are feasible and desirable for the area, money will be requested from the state legislature for the creation of a port district, he said.

The exact locations of the port facilities have not yet been determined, Fry added.

The council also is expected to act on a proposed contract with the Shawnee Health Service and Development Corporation for operation of a hypertension treatment and control center.

The corporation will operate the hypertension center through the comprehensive health program at the Eurma C. Hayes Center.

Three employees will be hired for the center through a grant from the Statewide Hypertension Committee of the Illinois Regional Medical Program.

The council will consider a proposal for acquiring the parking lot on West Monroe Street behind the vacant A & P building. The proposed price of the lot is $75,000.

The council will act on an ordinance to annex two properties on East Walnut Street near the Giant City Road. The owners of the two properties had previously requested annexation.

The council also will decide whether to award a contract for the old city hall building demolition to R. B. Stevens Construction Co. The company was the apparent low bidder for the contract with a bid of $18,500 on Thursday.

Scott Ratter, personnel officer, will present a special report on the Carbondale Police Department's educational background requirement.

Don Monty, assistant director of Community Development, and City Attorney John Womick will give a special report on possible conflict of interest of Community Development Steering Committee members.

Mayor Eckert will recommend to the council the appointment of Mike Sadler to the Bicentennial Commission and Irving Adams to the Community Development Steering Committee. The mayor also will recommend that Frank Janello be reappointed to the Police Pension Board.

Earthquakes hit Northern California

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP)—A series of sharp earthquakes shook this Northern California city of 15,000 Friday, damaging a number of buildings and causing 10 to 15 injuries, state officials said.

The National Earthquake Information Service in Golden, Colo., said two of the quakes were capable of major damage. One was felt from Oroville south to Fresno, a line more than 250 miles long that includes the state capital in Sacramento.

Several downtown buildings were evacuated in Oroville after the most serious shock, including a new courthouse and a partially destroyed department store.

The most serious quake measured 6.4 on the Richter scale, the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena reported. Other scales registered 5.7 or more, with the Colorado center recording it as 6.

That quake was centered about seven miles south of this century-old gold county town 125 miles northeast of San Francisco and 70 miles north of Sacramento.

The 20-second quake struck at about 1:30 p.m. It was felt as far away as Fresno and the San Francisco Bay area.

Hoffa's son suspects kidnapping

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP)—The son of former Teamster President James R. Hoffa said Friday he believes his father has been kidnapped.

"I believe it's an abduction. There's no evidence it isn't. We have no reason to believe it isn't," said James P. Hoffa, a Detroit attorney. "The key question is who? We just don't know."

Although 48 hours had passed since the disappearance of the onetime leader of the nation's largest union, no ransom note has been received, young Hoffa said. He expressed confidence that his father was still alive.

Hoffa's son said the probe is focused in Oakland County, north of Detroit, and added: "Union politics have to be investigated" as a reason for his father's disappearance Wednesday afternoon.

Hoffa has announced his intention to seek the union presidency in 1976 and has been embroiled in a bitter verbal feud with his handpicked successor in the job, Frank E. Fitzsimmons.

A series of incidents involving union officials was capped recently when someone blew up the car belonging to Fitzsimmons' son, Richard.

"I don't think Fitzsimmons is behind this," Hoffa said of his father's disappearance.

Ford calls for nuclear weapons halt

HELSINKI, Finland (AP)—President Ford told world leaders on Friday they must act now to cut arms and stop the spread of nuclear weapons or see their people turn against them.

He spoke on the last day of the three-day European security conference and before he and the heads of 34 other nations signed a nonbinding declaration pledging respect for postwar borders and fundamental human rights.

Ford was the third person to sign the 100-page, 300,000 word document, after the leaders of West and East Germany.

As if to remind the delegates that what they were signing has no enforcement machinery, the President said that words, no matter how fine, are no longer enough.

"Peace is not a piece of paper," Ford said. "History will judge this conference not by what we say here today, but what we do tomorrow, not by the promises we make, but by the promises we keep."

City to get funds for sewage study

The City of Carbondale will receive an additional $147,750 federal grant to study alternatives in sewage disposal, City Manager Carroll J. Fry said Friday.

Fry said Sen. Charles Percy notified him Friday morning that Carbondale would receive the grant. The city had received $42,000 last October for the study.

Letters

Open letter to Diggle

To the Daily Egyptian:

An open letter:

Dear Mr. Diggle:

Thank you for your letter of July 22 expressing concern about our cover letter for corrected fall term fee statements. Whenever students advance register before tuition or fees are firm, we attempt to assess the fees and inform the students of that assessment and the reason for it. I assure you that there was no malice aforesaid with respect to the letter and it was certainly not our intention to mislead anyone. The letter was written to be informative on several items:

1. An attempt was made to particularly emphasize the fee payment deadline. No previous fee statements were available to the students and we considered our mailing to be relatively close to the fee payment deadline.

2. Students were informed as to the procedure they should follow if they received financial aid subsequent to the processing of their advance registration.

3. Two fees appearing for the first time on any fee statement were given special treatment because they were new and because our fee statement uses abbreviations with which students are as yet unfamiliar. The refundability of each of these new fees was specifically stated because the refunding of these fees was implemented to be different from existing fees and even that of tuition. Tuition and previously existing fees are refundable through the third week of the term. The Student Attorney-Fee and the Student-To-Student-Grant Fee are only refundable if the student requests it at the time of payment or within 10 calendar days after payment. Since most students receiving the corrected fee statements would pay by mail 10 days prior to their arriving on campus, we felt it necessary to inform them of the refundability policy. I might add that this office has proposed a change to the refund policy which would make all fee refund dead-lines consistent with a specific week of the term.

4. The fourth and last item of the cover letter dealt with the possibility of a tuition increase. Hindsight is always better than foresight and had we known what we know now, we would have omitted that paragraph. The letter was prepared prior to the Board of Trustees meeting of July 10. We had delayed the mailing of corrected fee statements as long as we could in order to implement the new fees and fee revisions approved in April and May. The best information available to us prior to July 10 was that a slight tuition increase might be approved. Since we had to begin assembling our mailing materials, we felt that a short statement about the possibility of a tuition increase, even if remote, was in order.

Your reference to an implied contract based on the payment of tuition and fees is new to me. Our understanding is that the Board of Trustees reserves the right to change tuition and fees whenever conditions necessitate. This is stated in the University Catalog and the Schedule of Classes. It is true that changes after students have paid are generally avoided, but they have occurred in the past.

The Office of Admissions and Records regrets that our attempt to point out several items to students without a lengthy letter resulted in what you viewed to be an arbitrary and high-handed manner. We also regret that final action on fees was taken after over 10,000 students had advance registered for fall, because our previous experiences have shown that any explanation of changes is difficult to make to the satisfaction of every everyone involved. I assure you that our approach to dealing with students will always be to inform them as best we can of the University policies which we are implementing. We welcome your comments on this matter and on any matter which will benefit the student. Our ultimate goal is to provide the best service and the best information to students and you can assist us in doing so.

B. K. Browning
Director of Admissions and Records

Ford's energy policy

To the Daily Egyptian:

Lately I have seen editorials and articles in the DE which seem to advocate the Ford-Nixon energy policy of de-control of oil prices and loosening of environmental protection regulations. The justification for this has been that we need to conserve energy and will do so only through higher prices, and that we need to use domestic—dirtier fuel sources—in order to decrease dependence on foreign oil.

I take grave issue with these proposals. Firstly, it seems an intolerable injustice for the oil monopolies to make windfall profits at our expense, which is what de-control means. Their profits are already outrageously large. There are more equitable means of reducing energy consumption without having the average working person pay through the nose.

Some of these are (and this is hardly an exhaustive list): 1) The abolition of planned obsolescence, by which corporations insure continued demand by producing shoddy merchandise made to fall apart in a short time, wasting enormous amounts of energy in such manufacture; 2) the diversion of tax money from the production of war material (which is production for waste) to the construction of urban mass transit in order to decrease people's dependence on the car; 3) the recycling of urban sewage wastes to crop land to decrease use of petroleum-based fertilizers; 4) inducements to build well-insulated houses and to convert to solar heating; and 5) increase in research on non-polluting, cheap energy sources, particularly the sun.

Surely, we must decrease our use of energy; we in the U.S. are enormously wasteful. But we, as consumers, bear only a small portion of responsibility for this waste, and we should not be required to pay for the results of corporate greed. Socially just and ecologically sound alternatives are available, and we must demand them.

Elizer corrects

To the Daily Egyptian:

Regarding the article published in the Daily Egyptian by staff writer Dan Ward about me, I was in part incorrectly quoted. In paragraph one, in place of "become professionals—and not 'hustlers,' or gamblers," I would teach beginners the mechanics of pool or billiards how to stroke, how to bridge and how to aim the cue ball into the object ball.

In paragraph No. 14, concerning the neighborhood pool room, it should have read, "the neighborhood pool room used to be known as the poor man's club where they played for fun—Fats called them 'playboys.'"

In paragraph 20, I said in reference to our government in Washington my criticism was federal savings and loan policy, mortgage rate and national debt ceiling. Unless the powers that be get rid of the deadwood and done something constructive and not destructive we would very likely have a national debt of $1 trillion or more by the mid-1980s.

At no time for quoting purposes during the interview did I mention the Morris House. It was outside the interview.

In my estimation, the two best pool players who ever lived were Ralph Greenleaf and Willy Mosconi. Ralph was the pool king up to the latter part of the 1930s. He is now deceased. Willy Mosconi won the crown and held it almost constantly for the next twenty years—into the '60s.

I still think that Willy Mosconi is the greatest pool player who ever lived. He is very much alive and not buried.

An eye for an eye

To the Daily Egyptian:

Bercedis Peterson has an interesting suggestion regarding what she feels would be fair punishment for an accused rapist (Letters, July 29). Perhaps rapists should be castrated. Perhaps also thieves should have their hands cut off; perjurers their tongues ripped out; fugitives their feet cut off; and voyeurs their eyes seared blind.

For any other crime we can simply revive the lynch mob.

Seriously, Ms. Peterson, I suggest you study psychology a bit more thoroughly and compassionately, for I doubt that you speak for more than a handful of sick fanatics.

Jim Anderson
Cartersville resident

Rapists and weapons

To the Daily Egyptian:

Ms. Peterson's letter advocating "disarming" the rapist reminds me of the old John Wayne line, "If a man can't handle a gun then he shouldn't own one."

Conquest nips Nupes in 12" ball tourney

By Ken Temkin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A strong defense coupled with an early game lead of 12 runs helped Conquest outlast the Nupes 14-12 in the final 12" softball championship intramural game Thursday evening.

A 16" championship intramural softball game played simultaneously was won by the Wailers, defeating the Long Doggers by a score of 12-11.

In the 12" contest, Conquest managed to bang out a four-run first inning against a defense which apparently had not warmed up sufficiently for the occasion.

Inning after inning, ball after ball managed to slip through Nupes fielders' gloves so that by the fourth inning Conquest had built up a lead of 12-0.

A Conquest player, obviously in an overjoyed mood was overheard to say, "We're going to change the names of baseball standards in Southern Illinois. You're going to stop hearing of Peppermint Lounge all the time."

The key to Conquests offensive play was a fast, ground ball hitting strategy which managed to penetrate the Nupe defense for most of the first half of the game. But that was only the first four innings.

But by the fifth inning the Nupes had started to get things together. Fielding which had been cold most of the games began to improve. Nupes batters started to find holes in the outfield.

As the Nupes started to shape up hitting and fielding, the Conquests lead started to slip away. Their 12 run lead slowly became a four run lead by the end of the sixth inning. But the come from behind victory was not to be pulled off.

An additional two Nupes runs in the seventh inning proved insufficient as the Conquests took the 12" intramural title with a total of 14 hits.

Season tickets for football on sale to staff

Faculty and staff members may purchase season tickets for the 1975 Saluki football season for themselves and immediate families for $15 each, according to Doug Weaver, athletic director and head football coach.

This is a savings of $10 per season ticket over the regular price, Weaver said. Prices were established by the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee.

Weaver said faculty and staff will have a choice of either their seat location from previous years or move into sections in the new west grandstand along or adjacent to the 40-yard lines.

Saluki football opens its home season Sept. 20 against Indiana State. Other home games are Sept. 27, East Carolina; Oct. 4, Long Beach State; Oct. 25, Wichita State (Homecoming); Nov. 1, Drake; and Nov. 15, Bowling Green. Wichita State and Drake are Missouri Valley Conference opponents.

Biting the dust

As plate umpire Joe Strieker strains to make a fair call, Irv Hoffman loses the ball while Randy Petterson slides into home. When the cloud of dust finally settled, Petterson was safe and Hoffman a little upset. This play occurred during the 16" intramural softball championship game Thursday evening which pitted the Long Doggers against the Wailers. The Wailers won, 12-11. (Staff photo by Bob Ringham.)

Title IX regulations in effect

West envisions little change at SIU

By Jan Wallace
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Editor's note: This article is the second in a three-part series dealing with Title IX, the federal regulation which prohibits sexual discrimination in athletic programs in schools receiving federal funding. In this article, Charlotte West, director of women's athletics, discusses the implications of the law on her program.

Charlotte West, director of women's athletics at SIU, believes Title IX is definitely a good thing, but that it will have little effect on SIU's athletic programs.

Title IX is legislation that went into effect recently, prohibiting discrimination on the basis of sex in all federally funded schools.

"There will probably be a much more negligible effect of change on our SIU campus because we have had good programs for women long before anybody ever heard of Title IX," West said.

She said one of the reasons she came to SIU 18 years ago was because the school offered intercollegiate athletics for women.

SIU has had many positive changes in women's sports over the years, West said, including increased teams and budgets. She said she believes the school has met students' needs. Both the men and women have 10 sports apiece with one coeducational sport, she said.

"We need to make some improvements in budget but we don't need the same amount as the men. We don't have a football squad that travels with 80-some people," West said.

One goal West did have was to raise the pay assignment of women coaches from 30 per cent of a given salary to 50 per cent. She added that in a matter of years all women's salaries should be upgraded.

West said the thing she feels most strongly about is "to let the women have their women's teams and let the men have their men's teams. That's truly equal opportunity; the women get all the same benefits that way. That's the only way we're going to preserve women participating in sports."

In regard to the NCAA stand on Title IX, West said, "They're overreacting without a doubt." She said they had a valid reason because "every dollar that the women might get to increase their program and to do good things meant money away from the men, and that's hard for anybody to take."

"But they got frantic. They overreacted," she continued. "They had lawyers in the Washington area fighting it. They had lobbyists. They got to senators and representatives. They got to John Tower early in Texas because Texas has big time football."

She said everyone was trying to "water down" Title IX, citing Rep. James O'Hara, D-Michigan, whose amendment was "trying to exclude the big time sports from sharing their money with anybody else."

West said a very small percentage of people actually felt Title IX would seriously harm their football and basketball programs. "Most coaches are very supportive of Title IX," she said. "It's just a very small handful of predominantly football coaches, big time coaches, that are used to controlling all intercollegiate sports, that have been overreacting."

"They're the ones that got the special audience with the President, which wasn't right, and they're the ones that have gotten on the news, like Darrell Royal," she said. "They're being muzzled all this about their downfall but they have no facts to substantiate that at all."

West continued that "there's just no reason why there can't be a certain amount of money, and the men and women share it and get good programs for boys and girls."

She said a lot of coaches of so-called minor sports, like tennis, golf and track "have had this to fight all their lives and that's why their supporting us. They've had to have poor facilities and poor budgets so football could be run like a business, rather than as an educational endeavor. That's the big issue."

"If sports belong on a college campus, and I think they do, they are there because they're educational in nature," West said. "They're something for the student participant, or else they shouldn't be there. Otherwise there should be professional sports, and they can be treated as a business."

"When you start buying and selling athletes, then you're not talking about education, you're talking about business," she said.

West said she believed most people supported the regulations that end sex discrimination in schools.

"I would say 90 per cent of our population is supportive of Title IX," West said. "How can you deny that if athletics are good, that women shouldn't enjoy the benefits? That's all the law is saying. It doesn't mean equal funding, it's just equal opportunity."

Cardinals clobber Chicago, Bob Gibson strong in relief

CHICAGO (AP)—Bake McBride's two-run single in the four-run fifth inning and strong relief pitching by Bob Gibson led the St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday.

McBride opened the game with a bunt single, stole second, continued to third on a throwing error and scored as Reggie Smith grounded out.

His two-run single in the fifth followed a leadoff double by Ron Fairly and a pair of fielder's choices involving an error and a run-scoring single by Mike Tyson.

Starter John Denny, 5-3, had a one-hit shutout going into the sixth inning, but the Cubs erupted for four runs, including a three-run homer by Rick Monday which chased Denny from the mound. Don Kessinger doubled home the other run after Steve Swisher walked and Gene Hiser delivered a pinch single.

Gibson, the one-time star of the staff, came on in relief and got the side out. He pitched scoreless ball the rest of the way.

The Cards made it a rout with four more runs in the eighth off Ken Frailing and Oscar Zamora on a run-scoring single by Ted Sizemore, a two-run double by Lou Brock and a sacrifice fly by Gibson.

Women's regatta slated Sunday

The Southern Illinois Collegiate Sailing Club will be holding its first women only Ms.-Match Regatta at Crab Orchard Lake at 3 p.m. Sunday.

"The regatta is set so that the women in the club can show the men that we also know how to skipper a race," said Penny Bartlett, regatta chairwoman.

The regatta will consist of three races. Winner will be the skipper with the best place average.
