Time may be running out for Davies rescue

By John Ambrosia
Staff Writer

Time may be running out on a state bill which would provide long-awaited relief funds for the deteriorating Davies Gym.

Gov. James R. Thompson has until Thursday to sign HB 2390 if the $34 million gym renovation is to be passed, according to a legislative aide in the governor's office. If left unsigned, the bill will be automatically vetoed since the 60-day grace period between legislative passage and Thompson's approval will have expired.

This is the second time this year that Thompson has considered the Davies renovation. In March, the governor dropped the renovation plan from the top-priority list of higher education building improvements for fiscal year 1981. Following Thompson's action last spring, the Illinois Senate passed a special session bill appropriating $3.5 million according to Rep. Bruce Richardson, D-Murphysboro. Richardson, who had introduced the bill into the House, said Sen. Kenneth Buzzbee, D-Carbondale, was instrumental in seeing the bill through the Senate.

"I realize that it looks like the governor doesn't favor this bill because of the way he's treated it in the past," said Richardson. "But I wouldn't have introduced it if I thought he wouldn't sign it. I'm fairly confident that it will be signed."

Richardson felt that it had a good chance. But if it isn't signed this year, it will be at the top of the priority list next year. It's just that I'd like to see the school get the money now because that gym is in bad need of repair," he said.

Increased political and public support for the bill in recent weeks indicates that the bill has a good chance of being signed, according to Charlotte West, SIU-C director of women's physical education.

"There's been quite a bit of support recently," she said. "Mainly it's come from students and alumni writing letters, faculty sympathy to our problem and the help of area legislators."

Last June, West said the bill had little chance of being signed. But since then a visit from the governor's office changed her mind.

"I think the governor came down to study our situation. He was sympathetic to our problems, and I think that a good report was going to be filed with the governor's office. That, combined with the other support we've been receiving, lifted my hopes up a little."

Renovations of the 56-year-old structure were initially promised in 1964, and the General Assembly has been attempting to pass a bill for more than 11 years, according to West. The gym has had electrical problems, often floods and could become a dangerous structure if the problems aren't corrected, she said.

BEOG recipients to get cut in aid

By Jeffrey Smyth
Staff Writer

Because of a $440 million cutback in the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant program, students with BEOG awards for this year will receive $50 less than anticipated, according to Joseph Camille, director of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

Camille said the amounts estimated in the award letter that went out to his office were based on last year's payment schedule and do not account for the BEOG cutbacks announced by the Carter administration last month.

Based on the number of students who were eligible last year, SIU-C could lose an estimated $200,000 in BEOG funds, Camille said.

However, SIU-C will receive $440,000 more in Supplemental Educational Grants, College Work-Study awards and National Direct Student Loan funds this year. Camille said. The total amount available to students under all programs is an estimated $7.6 million, about $100,000 above last year.

"The federal government cut us because it has direct control of it," he said. "We only funnel its funds. There is more money than last year if the student is eligible, but BEOG recipients will lose $5 per semester."

Camille also pointed out that the deadline for submitting applications for Illinois State Scholarship Commission awards is Oct. 15, and stressed that students should not wait until the last minute to apply.

"ISSC has issued a communiqué stating applications are up by between 7,000 and 8,000 over last year and that the percentage of needy applicants is also higher," he said. "If the ISSC runs out of money, it could shut down before the deadline."

Connie Lindley, assistant director of student grants program for the ISSC, said her office can process 3,000 more applications and expect to receive those by as early as next Tuesday.

"We have enough funds for 155,000 applicants," she said. "But that doesn't mean a person should not apply. We are going to ask the legislature to add funds for a supplementary appropriation. We need an additional $11 million that would enable us to fund applicants for the 1980-81 school year. We feel confident that we will get the money but we won't know for sure until the fall when the General Assembly is back in session."

Last year ISSC was granted supplemental appropriations that enabled it to fund all qualified applicants, Lindley said.

University moves to dismiss teacher's discrimination suit

By Karen Gallo
Staff Writer

The University filed a motion Tuesday to dismiss charges of sexual and racial discrimination and civil rights violations brought by a former faculty member.

Grounds for the dismissal of the five-count suit, filed Aug. 18 by Chuen-Cheun Chang-Fang, former assistant professor of physics, are procedural, according to Shari Rhode, associate University legal counsel.

The suit names the Board of Trustees, Warren Brandt, former SIU-C president; Frank Horton, former vice president for academic affairs and research; and five members of a University grievance committee.

Chang-Fang was denied tenure and promotion in 1977 by Horton on grounds of insufficient research publication. Horton's decision was upheld by a grievance committee formed after Chang-Fang appealed that decision.

In the suit, Chang-Fang charges that the standards for promotion and tenure were changed while her tenure was under consideration. She also charges that standards were applied differently to her than to non-Chinese men in the Physics Department.

The suit alleges that the University routinely denies women and persons of Chinese origin the same employment rights as non-Chinese males. She also claims her rights under the Illinois Constitution were violated because the University acted in a discriminatory manner "knowingly, intentionally and maliciously."

In its motion to dismiss, filed in the U.S. District Court in Benton, the University alleges that Chang-Fang failed to comply with procedural

Fire in Saluki Stables 'suspicious'

By Andy Strang
Staff Writer

A state fire marshal and the Carbondale fire chief’s office have joined SIU-C police in the investigation of the fire that destroyed the old Saluki Stables on West Chautauqua Street Thursday night. SIU-C Police Captain Carl Kirk said the fire appears to be arson. He said state fire marshal Barney West has joined the investigation.

"Anytime that we have a fire of suspicious nature, we call in a state fire inspector," Kirk said. Kirk said investigators have determined both the path and the origin of the fire but not the exact blaze. He declined to say where the fire started.

The stables were closed in 1973 when the cost of maintaining the horses, facilities and staff became too great, according to Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services. Dougherty said a number of persons were interested in reviving the stables before the fire, but no definite plans had been made. "We can’t go back to using the facility for a stable now," he said. The one building destroyed in the fire was being used to store old newspapers and farm machinery, he said.

The Saluki Stables included the actual stable that burned down and a still standing but unused two-bedroom house and a barn. They were purchased by SIU-C along with 80 acres of land used for bridle paths for $250,000. SIU-C paid $25,000 a year between 1969 and 1979 for the property. The value of the land has not been reappraised since 1969.

The stables began operating in 1969, and were housing 40 horses and serving 350 students a week in 1971. They were closed in 1973, and the general student horse riding classes is now being offered at the Har­moe Hill Farms in DeSoto.

No plans have been made for the land since the fire, although the remaining buildings may be torn down, he said. A recent estimate put the cost of refurbishing the house alone at over $30,000.

Workers raise stakes in Polish unrest

GDNASK, Poland (AP) — Jubilant strikers announced Monday night that the beleaguered communist government had bowed to their demand that telephone communications be restored between strike-paralyzed northern Poland and the rest of the country.

They said the abrupt reversal by government negotiators meant talks could resume Tuesday in the other economic and political demands pressed by some 150,000 striking workers at shipyards and other industries along the Baltic coast.

Lech Badowaki, a spokesman for the Inter-Factory Strike Committee, told a hastily called news conference late Monday that the government had backed down and telephone service would be restored. He said the strike committee would meet at 10 a.m. (2 a.m. CDT) and a new round of talks with the government would follow.

Anderson’s VP choice foresees victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Patrick J. Lucey, declaring that he is “not a champion of last causes or hopeless crusades,” became independent candidate John B. Anderson’s vice presidential running mate Monday.

“I believe he has a real chance to win this election,” the former Democratic governor of Wisconsin said standing alongside An­derson, a Republican congressman from Illinois.

Lucey, a lifelong liberal Democrat, was selected by Anderson after weeks of a search which included other, more prominent Democrats.

Lucey had a long association with the Kennedy family, first supporting the late John F. Kennedy for president over Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey in 1968, and then working actively for Robert F. Kennedy in 1968.

Reagan: Current law on Taiwan OK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan said Monday the present United States liaison office in Taiwan would meet his standard for relations with the government of the island if what he called “the petty practices of the Carter administration” in its implementation were eliminated.

Attempting to patch over apparent contradictions between his own Taiwan statements and the assurances which his vice presidential running mate, George Bush, gave leaders of the Peoples Republic of China last week in Peking, the Republican presidential nominee said the contradictions were caused by “a distortion of my position that has been picked up by the Chinese press.”
Unregistered cars get brief reprieve

People who drive unregistered cars on campus at SIU-C will be able to escape parking tickets for the next days if they're careful where they park.

Marilyn Hogan, SIU campus parking manager, said unregistered vehicles may be parked on campus during the first week of classes if they're parked in any of three campus parking lots.

The "free" lots are:
- The west side of lot 63, off Oakdale Street, one-half block north of Douglas Drive.
- Lot 56, the large gravel lot south of the Arena.

Hogan said unregistered cars parked any other places on campus will be ticketed and may be towed away.

Decals are available from the campus Parking Division Office in Washington Square D. Blue decals, which are available for faculty and staff only, cost $30 per year. Red decals, sold to students and staff, are $10 per year, and yellow decals, which can be used in outlying lots, are $2 per year.

The office will be open for decals sales this week from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Motion filed for suit dismissal requirements established by the federal government under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act, Rhode said.

"There are several specific procedural prerequisites that must be met in order for the court to have jurisdiction over the suit," Rhode said. "Few motion to dismiss charges is based on what the University feels are procedural inadequacies and they will be dealt with first."

The University moved to dismiss the charges of sex discrimination because Chang-Fang failed to file such charges with the Illinois Fair Employment Practice Commission within 180 days after the alleged discriminatory action.

Rhode said.

"The University asked that the board be dismissed as a defendant because it is a state body and therefore exempt from the suit," she said.

Rhodes said the University also claimed that Chang-Fang did not:
- exhaust all remedies for sex and origin discrimination charges;
- state facts which would form a basis for filing a suit two years after the alleged discriminatory action;
- state facts which would prove alleged malice against her; and
- take action against her employer, as the board is not a person under the U.S. Constitution.

Time may run out for Davies rescue

Keith Sanders, SIU governmental relations officer, said, "I couldn't make a judgement on whether it will be signed. I was in Springfield when it was in the legislature but I don't have any guess as to what it is in the future for the bill or the Davies Gym."

If the bill is signed by Thompson, the remodeling project could get underway after this year. The plans include installation of a new heating and ventilation system, a hot water system, a new roof and flooring, insulation and additional fire escapes.

The press and the public won a major battle this summer when the U.S. Supreme Court refused to review the public interest in criminal trials. But the war for openness in the courtroom may not be over. In Richmond Newspapers v. Virginia the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that "the right to a speedy and public trial is a fundamental right of the Amendment. The Court recognized that the right to a public trial is a "fundamental principle of our Constitution" and that the right to have a public trial is a "fundamental characteristic of the American judicial system." The press and the public have been able to use this ruling to gain access to court proceedings and have been able to bring attention to cases where there may have been a lack of fairness in the trial.

Closed hearings are most commonly requested when the judge is about to decide whether a certain piece of evidence can be used at the trial. The decision at the pre-trial hearing is frequently made by the judge and is not subject to review. When the evidence is shown to be prejudicial, the judge may rule it inadmissible and the defendant may not use it at trial. The defendant must then prove its admissibility in court, which is a difficult task.

When crucial evidence, such as a will, is destroyed or damaged, the judge may order a new trial. This may be done to ensure fairness in the trial. However, when a decision has been made and it is not subject to review, the defendant may not use the evidence in court. This is a difficult situation for the defendant and may be prejudicial to their case. The defendant must then prove its admissibility in court, which is a difficult task.

The defendant has a right to a public trial and this right is protected by the First Amendment. The defendant has the right to be notified of the charges against them and the right to an attorney. The defendant also has the right to a speedy and public trial, which means that the trial must be held within a reasonable time and that the defendant must be given a chance to present their case. The defendant also has the right to cross-examine witnesses and to be present at all times. The defendant also has the right to appeal the decision if they feel it was unjust.

The defendant also has the right to be represented by an attorney. The defendant has the right to have an attorney, but if they cannot afford one, they can be appointed by the court. The defendant also has the right to a public trial and this right is protected by the First Amendment. The defendant has the right to be notified of the charges against them and the right to an attorney. The defendant also has the right to a speedy and public trial, which means that the trial must be held within a reasonable time and that the defendant must be given a chance to present their case. Ol’ Willie’s a crowd pleaser during double Du Quoin show

By Rod Smith

On Sept. 3, 1979, Willie Nelson and Family drew the largest grandstand crowd of the year at the Du Quoin State Fair.

Nelson returned to the same stage Friday and entertained a hug and a kiss.

Nelson didn’t waste any time tuning his guitar or talking between songs. Except for taking an occasional pull of a 47-year-old cigarette, he reaffirmed his position as the Country Music Association’s Entertainer of the Year.

However, the Family’s four-hour show, before a larger, more enthusiastic crowd, was over two hours. One reason for the shorter show may have been the fact that many females jumped the stage to get the 47-year-old-a hug and a kiss.

Three songs after the start of the first show, Nelson left the stage for a thundering ovation. But he didn’t do it alone.

Nelson came out solo to sing a Leun Russell love song, “Song For You,” featured in “Honeysuckle Rose.” The boisterous crowd calmed down in appreciation of this tender song, a highlight of both shows.

The Family returned for four more encores including recent hits “Mama Don’t Let Your Babies Grow Up To Be Cowboys” and “Luckenbach, Texas.”

Willie Nelson puts on the most exciting show in country music and one which appeals to both young and old alike. He plays everywhere from Las Vegas casinos to the state fairs, and that has earned him his reputation as a people’s band. It will be interesting to see if the Du Quoin State Fair can strike it rich three consecutive years.

Nelson still a good ol' boy who enjoys singing and picking

By Rod Smith
Staff Writer

Singer, songwriter, guitarist, movie star Willie Nelson, 1970's Country Music Association Entertainer of the Year, flexed these roles.

In the comfort of one of five luxury town houses of the Willie and Family entourage that visited the Low Country State Fair Friday, Nelson, in the usual attire of T-shirt, jeans, tennis shoes, red bandana and braided hair, spoke in the same soft and easy manner, in which he delivers his songs.

As is depicted in his most recent film, "Honeysuckle Rose," Nelson's home is the road. He's on the road almost 360 nights each year. Burdened

Dangerfield shines in 'Caddyshack' despite disjointed comedy routines

By Bill Cawer
Entertainment Editor

"Caddyshack" may be a disjointed, plotless excuse for a series of comedy routines, but the film unquestionably proves one point: Rodney Dangerfield is a genius who is finally receiving the acclaim he so richly deserves.

In the field of "comedy actors," that includes Ted Knight and "Saturday Night Live" graduates Chevy Chase and Bill Murray, Dangerfield, the old stand-up comedian, is the only one who shines.

Dangerfield plays a loud-mouthed condominium builder who visits a posh private country club managed by pompous snob Knight. As soon as he hits the first tee, Dangerfield verbally and physically taunts the boorish club members. His razor-sharp timing and bug-eyed delivery are a delight to watch. For example:

-Complaining about the food: "I could get a better meal at a hot dog stand... This steak beef flowed freely backstage and Nelson slowly drew on a hand-rolled cigarette with a distinctly sweet aroma as he spoke.
-"Our life is very close to the movie," Nelson said. "There were a few things that could have gone in the movie, but it's too long already." And how was working with co-star Dyan Cannon? "I enjoyed that very much," he said with a laugh. "So far, movies have been a lot of fun."

"Honeysuckle Rose" is Nelson's first starring film role. His acting debut came in "The Electric Horseman" with Robert Redford and Jane Fonda last year. He'll begin filming "Barbarosa" in September in Texas and a movie based on the platinum-selling album "Red Headed Stranger" is also being planned.

Nelson began his career primarily as a writer. Many of his early songs were made into hits by other country artists as Nelson's career remained in relative obscurity. His style of singing was considered to be on the offbeat side, minus the stereotypes of traditional country music, which didn't sit well with Nashville producers.

As is, I'm going back to do all those songs again. In fact, we just left the studio in Nash-ville where we did 'Half A Man,' "Permanently Lonely" and 'I Never Cared For You,'" Nelson said.

"I want to give them one more chance. I never really tried to change what I was doing to go along with what was happening. I thought that was doing was OK. I just needed to do it a little longer.

His latest albums, "Standing In The Breach" and "The Forth Road," didn't include any original material. Their albums are full of songs Nelson simply enjoys to sing.

"I'm such a big fan of those guys: Kris, Leon Russell, Ray Price," Nelson said. "I enjoy doing those songs. I know 'em and they're easy to record. It's given me time to write and I haven't had to rush into an album that's ready to do."

"Honeysuckle Rose" includes several of Nelson's latest originals.

"I wrote four or five new tunes for the movie and before that I'd written four or five," Nelson said. "I've got enough for an album which should be out at the first part of next year."

The red-bearded 47-year-old is President Jimmy Carter's favorite singer. When the president asked Nelson to sing the national anthem at the Democratic National Convention, naturally he accepted. Unfortunately, he got confused and sang about the red glare of bombs and rockets bursting in air.

"My own version? "It turned out to be," he laughed. "Will be vote to reelect the president?"

"No, he said. "If I vote."

Both onstage and in the studio, Nelson's only guitar is an ancient Martin acoustic, cluttered with autographs, that has a four-inch gash on the soundboard from years of picking.

"I figure we'll probably wear out about the same time," Nelson said. "It still sounds good."

It was hard for Nelson to say which facet of his many talents gives him the most satisfaction.

"I think I enjoy just playing music more than anything," he said. "That's why we're all here. The people enjoy it. The recent surge in country music, western wear and crossover singers haven't phased Nelson."

"The hats and boots will sell for awhile and dwindle off, but the music will remain," Nelson said. "When the dust settles, there will be more people listening to country music than in the beginning."

"It's a music that people try to categorize and label: steel guitar makes it country, horns make it pop," he said. "An 'A' is an 'A' and a quarter note is a quarter note and that will never change."

Neither will Willie.

Police thwart Sears Tower climber

CHICAGO (AP) — A Connecticut man who had a dream also found Monday that he now had nowhere to go as authorities headed off his attempt to climb to the top of the world's tallest building, the 110-story Sears Tower.

Police identified the climber as James McLaughlin, 26, of Woodstock, Ill. McLaughlin and Sears, Roebuck & Co. were pressed charges of criminal damage to property against McLaughlin.

Witnesses said the climber began his assault of the west face of the glass-and-steel skyscraper during the early morning rush hour. By 8:40 a.m., when his climb was halted, McLaughlin had reached the 17th floor.

Fire officials in the other scaffold ordered McLaughlin to stop his assault, authorities said, and he eventually climbed into the scaffold.

"He was angry, he wanted to make a deal, he wanted to keep on going," said Peter Cunningham, chief of the Fire Department's 1st Battalion. Cunningham, who rode in the scaffold that picked up McLaughlin, remarked, "If I told I wasn't nervous, I'd be lying."

Cunningham's scaffold pulled alongside the other and McLaughlin jumped into the second basket. He was taken into the building through a window after maintenance workers removed the pane.

He later was found out of the building in handcuffs and placed in a police squad. He had little to say to reporters who swarmed around him except for a colloquialism expressing anger.

Police Lt. Bruce Thompson said McLaughlin told officials he attempted the climb because it was "a personal challenge." Another scaling of the building was attempted in May 1978. Joe Healy, 25, of Chicago, climbed 18 stories and then turned back.

Healy, who said he was opposed to the killing of whales, attached a large white banner to the west face of the building. It contained Japanese and Russian wording saying, "Stop killing the whale."

Both McLaughlin's and Healy's efforts recalled the successful climb in 1977 by George Wiley, a police officer, after he had little to say to reporters.

Rabies quarantine possible

By Dean Albaas
Staff Writer

The week-old rabies alert in western Jackson County that was expected to last another two or three weeks may become a rabies quarantine if one more case is reported to the county's animal control veterinarian.

There have been six cases of rabid animals reported in the last month in the alert zone west of Murphysboro. Last week the county issued a rabies alert to "inform people of the situation," Charles Koehn, the county's animal control veterinarian, said.

He explained that a quarantine would require pet or livestock owners to keep constant watch on their animals.

Day care center to relocate because of drop in enrollment

By Carol Knowles
Staff Writer

The end of the rainbow finally came for Rainbow's End; but instead of finding a pot of gold, the day care center has found the long-awaited new location that it needed to stay in operation.

Rainbow's End, which serves SIU-C students with children, moved Friday to the old Lakeland Elementary School at 925 S. Giant City Road in Carbondale.

The center has been plagued by location problems for the last few years, according to Denise Parker, Rainbow's End director. It had been housed in Pulliam Hall for the past three years, but the arrangement with the university was only temporary, Parker said. Prior to 1977, the preschool was located behind Washington Square.

She said the Pulliam location "just wasn't suited for children," and that the move to the east wing of the old Lakeland school would provide more space for the children as well as more peace.

"We now have the advantage of not being on top of one another," Parker, director for the past two years, said.

"There is less distraction because there are not as many classes in one room. Our assistance is more individualized and the mental stress has been taken off everyone," she said.

Because of the move, capacity has increased at Rainbow's End from 26 children to a maximum of 56.

"Presently, we have only 40 children—until the instructors, children and program adjust to the move," Parker said. "We hope to be up to full capacity by spring semester."

The staff has also expanded.

They now have five full-time and one half-time employees. Before the move, the center had only four full-time employees.

Parker said as the number of children increases, so will the staff.

Cost for parents also has increased. However, an across-the-board, $6 increase has been added to the bill. Charges for part- and full-time attendance were $15 and $24 respectively.

The 1980 school year budget for Rainbow's End is $75,000-80,000. Fifty-four percent of the money comes from tuition paid by the parents. The rest of the money comes from the University, State Food Reimbursement Programs and PUPS, a federally-funded parents' program.

The move to Lakeland has created at least one problem, however, Parker said.

"Parents can't come and visit between classes as easily as they used to because we are so far from campus," Parker said.

"We have lost three children because of transportation difficulties, but we are working on the problem."

She said parents are looking into car pooling. The possibility of using University transportation has also come up, but Parker said that no specific plans have been made.

Plans for future expansion, such as expanded hours, are under consideration. Parker said. The center is presently open from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Parker said, "We would like to build a model outside environment, which has begun with the sandbox. We would also like to have a petting zoo for the children."

She said "the financial and moral support" from the University "has helped us tremendously."

DAILY EGYPTIAN, AUGUST 26, 1980, PAGE 11
Peking quietly going its own way on resuming relations with Taiwan

PEKING (AP) — While Americans reopen the debate over the "two Chinas," the Peking government is quietly pursuing its goal of reunification with Taiwan through a steady stream of official overtures and appeals to the Nationalist-governed island.

Communist China's hopes for peaceful reunification are one reason Peking's leaders have reacted sharply to Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan's statements about maintaining "two Chinas" and official relations with both China and Taiwan.

In the past year, China has proposed resumption of direct mail, shipping and telecommunications between the mainland and the prosperous island, 100 miles off the coast where Chiang Kai-shek set up a Nationalist government in 1949 after the Communists won the Chinese civil war.

China says that if Taiwan and its 17 million people rejoین the homeland under one flag, it will be able to retain its social and economic systems, its relations with other countries and its armed forces.

The Taiwan government—under Chiang's eldest son, Chiang Ching-kuo—has been either denouncing these overtures as "tricks" or ignoring them.

Recently the mainland air force commander proposed to Taiwan that the two governments combine their airpower to fight "foreign aggression"—a reference taken to mean the Soviet Union.

Last spring, China officially dropped import duties on Taiwan-made goods entering China, saying duties are no longer necessary since Taiwan is a "province" of China. The two conduct trade through third countries.

Unofficial reports say about $20 million in Taiwan-made goods were imported by China through Hong Kong and other ports during the first three months of 1980. China reportedly exported $90 million worth of goods to Taiwan in the period, much of it medicine and herbs.

Aside from pushing economic detente, China also seeks contact with the Taiwanese in other countries when they come together at scientific, sports or other events.

And in keeping with its drive for reunification, China widely publicizes such contacts in the mainland press. Last May in Costa Rica and more recently in France, Taiwan and Taiwanese scientists exchanged greetings and views, according to press reports.

The Communist government frequently invites Taiwanese to visit the mainland. Last spring, it asked Taiwan's baseball, softball and track teams to visit but Taipei turned down the invitations.

Although China has not ruled out the use of force to achieve its goal of reunification, the tone of the overtures is pacific and at times entertaining.

Volunteers ready to MOVE and help local organizations

By John McGuinness
Student Writer

Students who want to volunteer their services to Southern Illinois projects have an organization that will help them find out where their help is needed most.

The name of the organization is MOVE. It is a campus volunteer organization that advertise work to on-campus departments and organizations by sending them student volunteers. It is part of the Office of Student Development and headed by Patricia Sundquist.

"Basically MOVE (Mobilization of Volunteer Effort) provides a clearinghouse or referral service for agencies and service organizations that need student volunteers," Sundquist said. "That means as extreme as working with the ERA to see commercial organizations like Advent Music Productions."

Sundquist said that the main objective of MOVE is to tie in the goals of the service organizations with the needs and interests of the student volunteers.

"MOVE offers the student a chance to gain relevant work experience from a specific occupational field that otherwise might not be possible," Sundquist added that a volunteer service such as MOVE also helps the student to make better career choices and assume responsibility for actions. "Of course, it also looks real impressive on a resume."

"We usually place between 500 and 800 students a semester in our agencies and organizations, plus about 200 and 300 students in special or one-time projects like parties and outings," Sundquist said.

Although many of the volunteer jobs require a weekly involvement, Sundquist said, depending on the nature of the program, many of the University's academic departments give course credit for volunteer activities.

In addition to working with service organizations in Carbondale and surrounding communities, MOVE works with on-campus departments like the Newman Center and University Housing.

"We also use volunteers in semester programs like the Red Cross Blood Drive and the United Fund Drive," Sundquist said.

"MOVE was previously funded by CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) but we got cut by the federal government in January. Back then we were operating on a full staff--now it's just me."

But Sundquist was quick to add that the cutback was not going to stop her or MOVE. She said MOVE will start instituting new programs in the fall, such as setting up leadership training and communication skill programs and getting the experienced volunteers in train the new volunteers for various service organizations.

The MOVE office is located in the Office of Student Development on the third floor of the Student Center. A resource guide is available in the MOVE office which includes all volunteer activities open to students. The guide includes a job description for each volunteer activity, the time commitment required, the role of the volunteer in the agency and the objective of the program.
Greater who? Commission has ‘definite’ PR problem to tackle

By Vicki Woodard

student writer

The Greater Egypt Regional Planning and Development Commission provides technical assistance necessary to present any project for Jackson County and four surrounding counties, but its function is generally unknown to the general public.

James Rush, director of the physical planning division of Greater Egypt, said the commission has a definite public relations problem. "Nothing misunderstanding stems from the enormousness of Greater Egypt's job."

"Our function is hard for people to understand because we work with city governments rather than private citizens," said Rush. "It is not possible for people to see the direct results of the planning process."

Greater Egypt serves five counties consisting of 38 different communities and about 170,000 people. The commission is funded by the counties and communities, not the state or federal government. "We work with city governments rather than any other city in the area. However, he said that Carbondale is a leading economic growth center of Southern Illinois and this often boosts other cities and communities."

Greater Egypt receives is used to match state and federal funding grants. Since Greater Egypt is the only agency in Southern Illinois that handles grants, all applications must pass through it before any action can be taken.

"We have a tight process we follow with federal grants," said Rush. "The grant application must be signed by Greater Egypt before it goes to the funding agency. They must also get back to us if the grant is rejected." Rush said one of the biggest problems that Greater Egypt is dealing with is the enormousness of Greater Egypt's job. "As soon as we develop a good working relationship with a city government, new members step in. We always have to assure them that we are not trying to run their city."

Rush said Greater Egypt usually works less with Carbondale than with any other city in the area. However, he said that Carbondale is a leading economic growth center of Southern Illinois and this often boosts other cities and communities.

Greater Egypt has assisted Carbondale officials in studying the effects of proposed new buildings. It helped assess the impact which the downtown convention center will have on the area, and it also assisted city officials in planning the relocation of the train station. According to Ron Clark, the director of current planning at Greater Egypt, the agency tries to stimulate overall economic growth.

"A project needs to be identified as part of an overall economic strategy in order to be considered for federal funds," said Clark. "We examine how a project will enhance economic opportunities within this region." Presently, Greater Egypt is studying the effects of changes in coal production on this region.

"We will look at the status of coal production on employment in the region," said Clark. "We want to see how it affects the housing and support needs of residents."

About Headaches That Ache Here, Here and Here

by Dr. Roy S. White

I have headaches. here, here and here. That's not a medical term, is it? Probably not.

But it's a chronic headache, one that just won't go away and present just as serious problems to our community as being.

A patient can put his hand on his forehead and be completely oblivious to the fact that he has a headache. They may become chronic conditions and affect a person almost as regularly as the sun rises and sets.

The general pattern of the chronic headache pain is that it is present in the morning, subsides during the day and returns a few hours in the late afternoon. It is accompanied by tender spots in the scalp and neck.

Cervical headache pain is located in the back of the neck and radiates forward to the head. Occasionally the pain is referred to the eye.

Cervical headache pain is also referred to the upper neck and radiates forward to the scalp. Occasionally the pain is referred to the eye.

Golf coach SIU’s newest pro

By Rick Klast
Staff Writer

Gaining LPGA status certainly ranks as my highest personal achievement in golf," McGirr said from behind her desk at Davies Gymnasium. "It’s something that I’ve been working toward the last three years and it’s something that can’t help but enhance our recruiting efforts at SIU in the years to come."

McGirr spent this past summer at "The Farm," a golf teaching facility in Greensboro, working as an apprentice with former LPGA Teacher of the Year and Master LPGA Teaching Professional Ellen Griffin and LPGA touring pro and former SIU women’s golf standout Dorothy Germain.

"You reach a point where you must decide to either give up your amateur status and become either a teaching pro or a touring pro," McGirr said.

"I feel it’s rewarding to be able to spend 30 minutes with someone demonstrating the proper way to drive the ball and then being able to watch them hit a straight drive on their own," she added.

The 27-year-old McGirr first became interested in golf at age 13 but she never competed except for a friendly rivalry with her brother.

"I couldn’t golf during my college years at Connecticut (University of Bridgeport) because it wasn’t offered as a sport," McGirr, a five-handicapper said. "I competed in field hockey, basketball and tennis, but kept interested in golf as a hobby."

After graduating from college, McGirr competed as an amateur in club, city and state-wide tournaments in North Carolina. Last summer, she won the Greensboro city tournament with rounds of 74-77.

McGirr probably will find her pursuing in much more demand this fall as compared to her first fall season at SIU a year ago. The 1979 Sabiki team was dominated by seven seniors. This year’s squad will be composed primarily of high school graduates and junior college transfers.

Veteran takes sixth career race

"But they want to keep the fans happy."

After a 40-minute delay to mend the fence, the three drivers lined up bumper-to- bumper for a mad dash to the finish.

Ryan, in third position, quickly fell from the pack and it became a two-car race. Ruttman tried to pass Tovella on the inside and outside but the veteran refused to let him by. Tovella finished with a three- length lead over Ruttman.

"I don't know what Ruttman was thinking," Tovella said. "But I know what I was thinking. He wasn't going to get by me."

Tovella later revealed some of his strategy. "We used a heavy car and hard tires. Way the track was, I think it did the job," Tovella said. "I shut the key off to let the cool air in to cool my car down."

"If I'd lost this race, I would have felt bad," Tovella added. "I deserved it."

Tovella's win earned him $4,946 and he remains in fifth place in the stock car point standings. By finishing second, Ruttman took home $3,558, but more important, he became the point leader with 1,390.

Busty Wallace, last year's stock car rookie of the year and defending champion at Du Quoin, fell from the lead into third place in the point standings. It took two wrecks to remove his car from the track after he smashed it into the wall of turn three on the 96th lap.

"It just slid and slid and slid," Wallace said of the smashup.

"That was the worst I've wrecked that sucker. The track is in good shape, it's just marbly on top. I just lost it."

Tovella was ready to take his two granddaughters and pit crew out to dinner after picking up his paycheck.

"We eat steak tonight," he said with a smile.

Ferraris, between the four by lap 88, Vogler made the strongest challenge in the late going, but could never get the job done and eventually was passed by Carter on the back stretch of the final lap.

Marion's Bill Burks Jr., driving a Chevy sponsored by Harris Racing, also encountered problems at about the midway point. The problem put him out of the race, however, as two blown cylinders ended his day early.

"We were about 15 or 10 laps, they blew," Burks said. "So we were running on six cylinders. I was going to try to finish, but it got to the point where I was just gearing along trying to stay out of everyone else's way."

"The same thing happened here in May," said Burks, recalling his effort in the Pizza Hut 100. "I was in the race for about the same period of time. But I still look forward to racing here. It's home for me."

YOU ASKED FOR CONTINUOUS MEMORY IN SERIES E.
HEWLETT-PACKARD DIDN'T FORGET.

We took the Series E programmable
the HP-11E and HP-12E, and added continuous memory to create the new HP-1X and HP-23C. So now you can store data and programs even if you turn your calculator off and then we went one step further.

THE ALL-NEW HP-3C.
The new HP-3C Advanced Continuous Memory Scientific Programmable offers you these programming features up to 370 programmable keystrokes, label line and indirect branching, 6 subvariables levels, indirect data storage, insert/delete editing, 4 flags, 12 labels, 2 user definable keys, loop control and more.

TWO EXCITING NEW FUNCTIONS!

NEW "SHOW" key. The HP-3C can search for and find the roots of an equation with keystroke simplicity. NEW "Integration" key.

MAKES FINDING THE DEFINITE INTEGRAL OF A FUNCTION EASIER.

Any function you can evaluate on the calculator by keystroke solution, you can now integrate.

TOTAL DOCUMENTATION SUPPORT:
The HP-3C comes with an Introductory booklet, an Owner's Handbook, and a free Standard Application booklet containing 10 useful programs. Application books also available in Math, Stat, Surveying and Science Engineering.

UNFORGETTABLE VALUES IN CONTINUOUS MEMORY CALCULATORS.

Fuji Rated Number 1 for the last six years by the Consumer Testing Magazines

Designing a Fuji is not the same as designing another bike. Not when you have the Fuji reputation of creating only the finest and most precise engineering bikes.

So our approach was to design a fine ten-speed bike to meet the level of excellence you'd expect from a Fuji at a price you wouldn't expect. But to truly appreciate the genius of a Fuji you've got to see it. One of the few things in life that's in a class of its own.
Saluki offense is impressive in scrimmage

By Dave Kane

The offensive output wasn't overly impressive in last Saturday's Sun Belt Conference football scrimmage, but when the players are healthy and can play from its own 30-yard line, the numbers are meaningful.

But several members of Coach John Tovella’s unit managed to pile up some impressive numbers, and two in particular stand out in the "controlled" aspect of the scrimmage, which was held over three 15-play scores.

The scrimmage was the first of the fall practice session for SIU as it prepared for its Missouri Valley Conference season opener Sept. 6 at Wichita State. Injuries-twisted ankles for defensive back Troy Washington and minor injuries—twisted ankles for defensive back Troy Washington and minor injuries—caused the withdrawal of backup Walter Poole. Even though he was in the lineup, Tovella said he wasn't hitting hard.

Tovella asked several questions hovering above the Saluki football picture prior to this season. He thought back to the defensive backfield, and when asked what No. 1 was, Tovella said it was looking at, Gerald Carr hit six timesification 10 yards, he was a sprinter to the Vic 105-yard touchdown bomb to senior receiver John Hartzog last season.

Wallace caught two passes for a whopping 105 yards, raising eyebrows as well as raising questions about SIU’s ability to cover deep.

But perhaps the biggest story of the day involved a sophomore tailback who is expected to be a key player in the Saluki press guide, Jerry Harris, a transfer from Maryland State, bolted past the Saluki defense for 114 yards in 11 carries, including a 70-yard gallop for a touchdown. Following Saturday’s scrimmage, Tovella said Harris ‘will most likely be the starting tailback for the Saluki offense next season.

Sophomore tailback Jeff Ware also had a good day,总共得到47码的总成绩，including two passes for 30 yards.

Louisville is still not the best group against the SLU track recruits. But that doesn’t mean the SLU coaches aren’t interested in the incoming talent.

"We are the best total group I’ve ever gotten a hold of," said Art Post, the 32-year-old high school state champion who is in his third year at SLU.

"The Establishment has about the same SLU track program," he added. "But I’m pleased with this bunch and really kind of excited about seeing them work."

"Just six or seven of them," added Post, "have a super recruiting year."

The recruits are: Tony Caffrey, freshman distance runner; John Caffrey, middle distances; David Arnold, senior, long-jumper; Bert Barth, Spring Valley, hurdles; Thomas Breen, Downersville, Northern Ireland, distances; Robert Brown, Washington, hurdles; Page 20, Daily Egyptian, August 28, 1986

Gramp’s dashes to 6th USAC win...

By Rod Smith

Sports Editor

DU QUINN—In a controversial and exciting United States Auto Club 100-mile stock car race Sunday at Du Quoin Sal Tovella, a 52-year-old, 22-car field was rebuilt after having two drivers make a dash to the finish to earn his sixth career USAC win.

Tovella, who owned a 40-Volare he called "am old sled," started the ninth spot and gained the lead on the 26th lap. He set the pace throughout the race and at one point held a 10-second advantage over his closest competitor, pole-sitter Joe Ruttman.

Ruttman, who was leading the race that was marred by six yellow caution flags due to crashes, the veteran of 23 years of racing couldn’t control his own destiny. The victory which every driver seemed to be so certain become questionable.

Al Kaluwich said his Wraparound the outside of the wall on the third turn on the 97th lap, taking about 25 feet of the wall. The mishap also took away Tovella’s chance to coast to victory. The red flag came out, stopping the race.

The race could have been ended at that point, but after consultation among officials, USAC Supervisor Bill Saxon announced the guard rail would be rebuilt and the final three laps would be run. The only other drivers on the same lap were Ruttman and Terry Ryan. They were allowed to start right behind Tovella in single file.

George Saxon, a member of the USAC technical committee, offered his explanation for continuing the race.

"With only three races left in the stock car series, the finish of this race will make a difference in the point standings," Saxon said. "It is fair to the fans and the drivers."

The 190-mile race became a three-mile sprint.

Tovella obviously disagreed with the decision to restart the race as Kaluwich 2 and the third cars to crash in the loose gravel of turns three or four. "I think they should call the race. They’ve lost three cars there today," Tovella said.

Track recruiters boost hopes

Lew Hartsoe isn’t yet predicting a repeat of the 1980 championship as four straight years of victories are the target of the incoming SLU track. But Hartsoe, the man in charge of the Saluki track program, knows he has the right talent to handle the job.

"The Establishment has about the same SLU track program," he added. "But I’m pleased with this bunch and really kind of excited about seeing them work."

"Just six or seven of them," added Post, "have a super recruiting year."
