Motion against fee increase tabled again

By Paula D. Walter Staff Writer

Staff Writer

For ue third time in as many meetings, the Intercoilegiate Athletics Committee has tabled a resolution opposing the proposed $10 increase in the student athletics fee.

The resolution was tabled Monday as a result of a low turnout in members and a letter which was sent to committee which was sent to committee chair Shirley Friend by absent committee member Richard Bortz. Bortz, a representative of the Faculty Senate, was out of town on departmental business and unavailable for comment.

McGinnis. Tom McGinnis, a representative of the Administrative and Professional Staff Council, asked that the resolution be tabled after only eight of the 13-member committee showed up for the meeting. McGinnis had originally proposed the resolution at a meeting on Nov. 5.

"I'd prefer not to vote today and wait and hear Dr. Bortz. I'd also like to try and get the other membership here," McGinnis

According to a source close to the IAC, Bortz said in his letter that he agreed additional funds were needed for the growth of the athletics program, but felt other alternatives have not yet been seriously considered.

Bortz said in his letter that before voting, he would like to hear more of these alternatives. Bortz asked that considerations be made concerning a significant increase in the ticket prices for revenue-producing sports and he requested that an itemized breakdown of how the $10 increase was determined be made available to the public for review. He also requested consideration on the administration's plan for phasing out the student dollars in the athletics budget, the source

Ruling may affect governance system

SIU-E faculty group allowed to join meetings suit

By Ray Robinson
Staff Writer
The SIU-Edwardsville Faculty Organization for Collective Bargaining has been granied its request to join the Open Meetings Act suit against the University Board of Trustees.

The decision by Judge James Williamson, filed Thursday in Jackson Courty Circuit Court, clears the way for the FOCB to ask the court to overturn the board's entire governance decision. That would mean the abolition of Chancellor Kennoth Shaw's office and a return to a decentralized system of governance in which the campus presidents report directly to the board.

But C. Richard Gruny, board legal counsel, said Monday he thought it likely that the board would appeat Williamson's decision to let the FOCB join the suit. An appeal would bring the suit to a halt while the appellate courts resolve the issue.

The suit, filed in June by the Madison County State's Attorney's Office, charges that the board violated the Open Meetings Act by holding executive sessions to discuss the centralization of SIU's system of governance. The original suit asks only that the original suit asks only that the board be required to keep transcripts or tape recordings of all future executive sessions for the state's attorney's in-spection.

John C. Feirich, the trial attorney representing the board in the suit, had argued that the FOCB's interests were being adequately represented by the state's attorney and it should not be allowed to join the suit. He also told the court that if the FOCB wanted to sue the board, it should file a separate suit. it should file a separate suit.

FOCB attorney Wayne Schwartzman had countered that the FOCB, because its members are employees of the University, had interests beyond those of the general public represented by the state's attorney.

Although the FOCB request was to join the suit on the state's attorney's side, Assistant State's Attorney Michael Thompson took no position on it.

In a brief letter to the attorneys for the three parties, Williamson said he was granting the FONB request because he thought & might not be adequately represented by the state's attorney.

Gruny was reluctant to discuss the board's next move in the suit, but did say the board would probably file motions pointing out that the Open Meetings Act does not allow a court to overturn decisions by public bodies.

"We would probably file a motion saying, 'Hey, judge, you should strike that because that part of the pleading is something the law doesn't allow,'"Gruny said.

Extending Morris Library hours not possible under current budget

This letter is in reply to a recent letter from Kara Lindstrom to the Daily Egyptian and to other students who have expressed concerns about Morris Library's hours.

Although the library does not open until 2 p.m. on Sundays and closes at 10 p.m. on Fridays and 6 p.m. on Saturdays, the library is open a total of 98% hours per week during regular term periods. Hours are extended to midnight on both Fridays and Saturdays preceding the last week of classes and exam week each semester, for a total of 106% hours per week. This schedule amounts to roughly two and amounts to roughly two and one-half times the normal American 40-hour work week.

The matter of opening earlier The matter of opening earlier on Sundays or remaining open longer on Fridays and Saturdays was discussed with department and division heads recently. It was the overwhelming opinion of these people tha! there is no way the library's staff and funds for the staff and funds for the staff and sunday of the staff and funds for the staff and sunday of the staff and sun morary's staff and funds for student workers can be stret-ched any farther. In fact, most department and division heads indicated we are now indicated we are now over-extended and, in order to maintain our present budget for purchasing books, journals, and other materials, as well as for other materials, as well as for providing support services, is tight in every category. It was even necessary this past fiscal year to carry over some $40,000 in periodical and binding invoices which exceeded last year's allocations.

The University administration, and particularly Vice President Horton, are very ware of our current funding problems. They have been supportive to the fullest extent possible and have, upon several occasions, allocated additional funds to meet special needs. At this time, if additional funds were forthcoming, there are many other areas that would immediately compete with the request for extending hours. Over the course of years the library has kept careful watch on when user demands are greatest. We believe the library's present schedule is geared to meeting the times of greatest overall need. We are greatest overall need. We are aware that users are waiting for the library to open at 2 p.m. on Sundays and that some would like to remain beyond 10 p.m. on like to remain beyond 10 p.m. on Fridays and 6 p.m. on Saturdays. We are also aware, however, that some faculty and students are frustrated because we cannot order all the neriodicals and books they would like, nor process all the materials as quickly as they are needed, nor have more librarians at reference desks to respond to guestions and assist librarians at reference desks to respond to questions and assist with research problems, nor expand the Self-Instruction Center, nor install better heating and ventilating controls, nor alleviate the present over-crowded conditions in Morris Library. The list of needs is long and the matter of extending hours, while not unimportant, is one among many items.

The undergraduate and graduate student representatives on the Library Affairs Advisory Committee have expressed concerns about library hours and other needs. library hours and other needs. These issues are being discussed and every effort will continue to be made to stretch our funds as carefully as possible to meet the widest range of needs. #### Tolerance and reason neaded here

As anthropologists, whose professional lives require a commitment both to reasoned commitment both to reasched discourse and to the value of cultural diversity, we are distressed by the highly emotional and xenophobic reactions which have occurred in some places during the crisis in Iran. Especially, it is distressing to see appeals for tolerance, reason, and freedom of speech booed and derided within the university community itself.

We do not, of course, in any way condone the seizure of foreign embassies or threats of violence directed against in-nocent persons. But it is nocent persons. But it is necessary to react to such provocative actions in a way that reinforces our commitment to humanism and reason, and not in an antihuman and irrational fashion which will ordy make a tragic situation more tragic still. So far, most students at SIU-C have reacted to events in a responsible and mature fashion. We hope that all of the

Reactions disturbing

The reaction of many The reaction of many Americans to the Iranian crisis disturbs me. They have a right to be outraged about the takeover of the embassy in Teheran, and the subsequent taking of hostages by the Iranians. What disturbs me, though, is that this is where their outrage ends.

I wish that more Americans I wish that more Americans would try to understand the bitterness felt by many I ranians toward the American government. I wonder how we Americans would feel if a foreign government was propping up a non-democratically oppressive ruler in the control of the con ruler in our own country? In effect, we were sacrificing the well-being of the Iranian people for our own national interest. To what degree the average American citizen is responsible for the actions of its government, especially in foreign affairs where such actions are less visible, I'm not sure. But tess visible, I m not sure. But surely one can see where much of the bitterness towards American by Iranians could have been formed. It takes something closer to home to arouse emotions in the hearts and minds of Americans, hearts and minds of Americans, most of whom are anything but oppressed. I think it's a shame that Americans find it convenient to ignore what our government had been doing to the people of Iran, while expressing outrage for what they're doing at our embassy Peter Crocketi said Thomas Engram, superintendent of utilities. He added that even though thermostats are being set at 65 degrees, temperatures will probably fluctuate somewhere around that point.

"Our systems never can control on an exact straight line, so if thermometers read at close to 65, plus or minus a degree or so, that's about what degree or so, that's about what the temperatures are going to be," Engram said. It takes $2,552 tons of coal to heat the central campus buildings eve year. Engram said. He estimated this year's cost to be about $1.8 million or $44 next low. $34 per ton.

The price of coal has increased by about 27 percent over the past five years. In 1974, the natural resource sold for a 55 a ton, he added.

Ecspite the country's energy crisis, Engram said there is no shortage of coal at this time. The physical plant burns Illinois coal that comes from the Freeman United Coal Mining

Even though much of Illinios' coal cannot be burned because of its high sulfur content, Engram said there is enough low-sulfur coal to heat the tow-sultur coal to heat the university.

There is, however, a problem with particulate emissions, he added. Such emissions, which are in smoke and ash, are a byare in smoke and asn, are a oy-product of coal combustion. To help solve the problem, bids are being taken to purchase an emission control system which will bring the part culate levels under Environmental Protection Agency regulations. Engram said the system should be installed by mid-1981. "It's been a long, hard fight to get funds appropriated for the system," Engram said. He added that he started applying for federal funds in 1970. Engram said he couldn't estimate how much money will be saved when the university closes over the Christmas break closes over the Christinas of can from Dec. 22 through Jan. 1. "Right now I'm getting let-ters from people saying they need certain buildings open for one reason or another," Engram said. "I have to study the situations and determine which ones are important enough to warrant heating the building."

Some buildings are exempt from the low temperature regulation. This includes laboratories and greenhouses which require special conditions to protect plant and animal life, computer rooms, and Shryock Auditorium, which houses a pipe organ tat would be damaged if a specified humidity level is not maintained.

Engram said savings cannot be accurately determined until after the 10-day closing because the weather is a major deter-minant. If outside temperatures are high, less heat will be required for the buildings to maintain a specified level of

The university is heated by feeding coal into boilers that generate steam. There are four 80,000-pound boilers, but usually only three are needed to produce the 200,000 pounds of steam necessary to heat the buildings.

There are 15 buildings constructed since 1962, that can be immediately shut down because they are controlled from a central panel at the physical plant. Engram said that if all campus buildings were under the remote control system a greater savings could be schieved when the university closes because adjustments would be easier to monitor.

Engram said he is currently doing an energy audit on each carrous building in order to acquire federal furds for more energy conservation measures.

With a near-mystical touch, Hickman was able to draw climaxes brilliant climaxes from delicate, flowing melodies into brilliant climaxes, such as in Bach's "Ave Maria."

Hickman hed an intrinsic feeling for the way a song should be performed. The music came from within himself, not just from the trumpet.

In 1974 he won the C.D. Jackson Prize for outstanding brass player from the brass player from the Tanglewood Music Festival. The honor was given to him by Sei ii Ozawa, Leonard Bernstein several solo albums.

Neil's fluent skill with the organ complemented and sometimes even overpowered Hickman's melodies. A dramatic organist, Neil exercised a great deal of control over his music.

Neil best demonstrated his devotion to renaissance and baroque music with his solo performance of Toccata and ugue in D Minor by Bach. The intense volume capacity of Shryock's pipe organ was utilized in this powerful but dissonant piece that at times was unpleasant to the ear.

Neil, well known through his many concert tours, is a teacher in the Washington, D.C. area at American and Catholic University.

That Back Ache of Yours Is Predictable

BY DR. ROY S. WHITE

One of the most distressing statistic., regarding the health of our community's residects is that 8 out of every 10 of them will sometime be struck down by low back pain!

It is down-sing when you realize that so much of the pain and suffering could be avoided by precautionary checkups or effective treatment at the first sign of the problem.

The high incidence of low back pain is not surprising when we combine the facts that most low back pain is due to mechanical defects of the spine. And inat75% of all forward bending or stooping motion occurs in the low back.

The structural or mechanizal defects of the low back usually develop slowly and without pain over a period of many months.

The first signs of the developing defect might be no more than un occasional

'catch' or a slight change of posture, or a vague weakness or tight feeling in the hips or legs.

As the defect develops to a crucial point a slight unguarded move or an unusual exercise is sufficier to disable the victim for days, weeks or. unfortunately in some cases, permanently.

Prople must begin to realize that their chances of low back disablement cre high, particulary if they are over 30.

We urge all to arrange for Chiropractic egular checkups for potential or existing problems and receive proper care and effective treatment needed.

And your best insurance against disabling spinal disorders and specifically low back pain, is the detection of spinul defects in the early stages.

Catholics asked to 'return to fold'

Ry Diana Penner Staff Writer

Catholics who left the church because they became disillusioned with doctrine or policy are being encouraged to "return to the fold," according to the Rev. Steve Luebbert, a riest at the Newman Center. The Newman Center, located on Washington Street, is stonsoring "Homeooming 80," a program designed to give Catholics who would like to return to the church a chance to reacquaint themselves with the philosophy of the church. The Rev. Jim DeManuelle, a priest at the Newman Center, said the program was developed after a growing number of Catholics who had number of Catholics who had left the church and now wish to return became involved in the catechism program to refresh themselves on Catholic doc-

DeManuelle said that since orogram is the catechism program is designed for people new to the church, it is not quite what 'homecomers' need. Homecoming '80 offers a series of discretizes of discussion jects ranging franthe liturgy to DeManuelle discussion sessions will begin after Christmas break. The sessions will deal with the necessity of the growth of faith, the liturgy, morality, the Celebration of the Ashes (to be held on Ash Wednesday) and marriage laws, DeManuelle

The participants will also discuss ways of looking at the church, the various ministries in the church that layman may become involved in and the sacrament of reconciliation, or confession. The series will end with a penance service when an opportunity will be offered for participants to take part in a sacrament of reconciliation, DeManuelle said.

On April 3, Holy Thursday, the participants will be ritually reincorporated into the church Demanuelle said the basic structure of the sessions will include input from one of the priests, discussion on the day's topic and prayer. He said prayer will be an important part of the sessions, as it is an important part of the Catholic discussions before The Christmas break, on Wednes lay and Dec. 13. will be ba, ically for the participants to get to know each other. He said interested persons may enter the program at any time.

Harrington and Painton, icknamed "Double Trouble" Harrington and rainton, micknamed "Double Trouble" by Coach Herb Vogel, placed one-two in the all-around with scores of 33.75 and 33.4v. Harrington's score was .87 less then $10°s top all-around score vear.

"Harrington is a fine performer," Vogel said of the East Bethany, N.Y. native. "But she can be better. If she trained harder in practice on her entire routine instead of just the difficult stunts, she could really develop into something.

"Also, because of Harrington," Vogel added, "Painton has been lifted. Val is really trying harder than ever."

Included in all-around are scores from all four events — scores from all four events— varising, uneven bars, balance beam and floor exercise. Painton, who celebrated her 20th birthday, claimed top scoring honors with a 9.35 in the vaulting event. The New York native performed a handspring front make on the wall to nearfront tuck on the vault to near-perfection. That utunt has a rating of 10 on the difficulty scale.

Harrington, competing in her first collegiate meet, notched scores of 8.99 and 3.85 in vaulting and floor exercise.

Double Trouble weren't the only Saluki performers turning in fine performances in front of a crewd of about 150.

Team captain Maureen Hennessey took firsts in the balance beam and uneven bars events and tied for third in vaulting. Pam Conklin placed third in the floor exercise, and Patti Tveit tied with Hennessey vaulting.

The Salukis scored well as a team in three of four events, capturing scores of over 30 in all but balance beam, where they scored 29.65.

"Beam is potentially our best event." Voge' said. "We had only one good score in the event, but we're still a little behind in our work. We'll get better."
Vogel said the team will be Breating seven SIU school records, the Saluki men's swimming team finished second to a powerful lowa team in the 16th axuual Illinois State Relays at Bloomington this poet Bloomington this past weekend.

The two teams dominated the meet, lowa winning seven and SIU five of the 12 events. The Salukis took second place in six

"It's nice to have the records, but I'm disappointed we dion't win the meet," Coach Bob Seele said. "A few swimmers didn't perform like I'd hoped for, but most times were about what I had expected."

wnat i had expected."

The defending champion Salukis lost four events to Iowa by a total of 3.1 seconds. The SIU entry in the 300-yard butterfly, Jorge Jarmille, lost by only five one-hundreths of a second. A first-place finish in any of the four close races would have retained the championship for the Salukis.

The Hawkeyes finished with 350 points to SIU's 316.

Anders Norling, Dave Farr and Pablo Restrepo broke the and Pasts reserved or the fire school record by four seconds in winning the 300-yard breast-stroke. Chris Phillips, Mike Brown and David Parker teamed to shave 13 seconds off teamed to shave 13 seconds off the old record when they won the 1,500-yard freestyle. Kestrepo, Ral Rosario, Marty Krug and Roger Von Jouanne won the 400-yard individual medley and broke the old school record by two seconds.

The swimmers set records in three other relays, but finished second to Iowa in each. Von Jouanne, Rosario and Dean Jouanne, Rosario and Dean Ehrenheim broke the record in the 300-yard backstroke by two Kees Vervoorn, Parker, Phillips and Rosario lost the 800-yard freestyle by 1.2 seconds, but broke the old SIU record by eight seconds. Von Jouanne, Restrepo, Vervoorn and Brian Tydd clipped a second off the old record in the 400-yard medley.

The Salukis finished second in the 500-yard freestyle, 300-yard butterfly, and the 200-yard freestyle.

The Salukis were disqualified in the 400-yard freestyle for false starting in one leg of the false starting in one leg of the race too early.

Garry Mastey and Rick Theobald combined for a new record in winning the three-meter diving competition. Theobald and Bill Cashmore joined to win the one-meter diving.

Our divers were r gh," Steele said. " cough," Steele said. "They really kept us in the meet. The events were close. They barely edged out Wisconsin on both boards."

Steele said Bob Samples swam his best races of the year in the sprints and that Marty Krug swam well in ail four of the relays he was in. Steele was also pleased with Norting, Farr and Restrepo in the breast-stroke. He said Parker swam well despite being ill for the past 10 days. Steele said Bob Samples

Statistics do lie. Just ask women's basketball Coach women's basketball Coach Cindy Scott Although the Lady Salukis lost by just 10 points Friday to Union University and by 16 Saturday to Louisville, Scott said the Louisville game was SIU's more impressive performance

We would have been better "We would have been better off not to show up Friday." Scott said about the Salukis' home-opening 72-62 loss to Union. "We were never really isto the game mentally. It was one of the poorest games I've

If we'd played against Union "If we'd played against Union the way we played against Louisville, we would have won by about 30 prints," Scott said after the 91-75 loss to the Cardinals. "Even though we lost by 16, we were in the game until the last seven minutes.

the last seven minutes.
"We executed much better," Scott continued, "We played as a team. It wasn't one individual playing for awhile and another playing for awhile."
Scott said inexperience may be causing the 3-3 Salukis' in-msistent performances.

"We're starting three freshmer. and a sophomore, so we're awfully young," she said. "I don't mean to use that as an excuse, but that could be why we're inconsistent."

Several of SIU's fresh were impressive at Louisville, Scott said. Connie Erickson scored 17 points and dished out out seven assists, while Kellye Rogers tallied 19 points. Alondray Rogers pulled down 15 rebounde Connie was super," Scott "Connie was super," Scott said. "She began to shoot from the outside, which we had wanted her to do from the beginning. And Kellye and Alondray Rugers both were outstanding."

40-39, at halftime, and had several five- and six-point leads throughout the early stages of the second half.
"We got behind by three with seven minutes to go and got rattled," Scott said. "That's where experience comes in."

The Cardinals, said Scott, pad-led their lead with free throws. Lonisville made 21 free throws for the game, shooting 48.6 percent from the field. Joan Burns led the Cards in scoring with 20 points.

"We were outrebounded by just three (46-43)." Soott said.
"We did a pretty good job. because they had several 6-2 people."

Scott's feelings were different after the Union game. SIU trailed just 35-33 at halftime. but the Lady Bulldogs outstored the Salukis, 16-4, in the first six minutes of the second half. Colleen Johnson, who totalled 20 points for the game, led the second-half charge with 14

"Our passing was very poor," Scott said. "We just didn't execute, except for the end of the first half. Our offense has good people, but we just didn't do the job."

Saluki Connie Erickson attempts to dribble tallied six points in SIU's 72-82 loss to Union between Union University defenders Colleen Friday, and had 17 points in the Salukis' 91-75 Johnson (52) and Kim Lampkins. Erickson loss to Louisville Saturday
