Mass Meetings Held Tuesday

Last Tuesday during the chapel hour, ten meetings representing the senatorial district were held. Prior to this time, the student council had met in answer to President Shryock's rogation of their assuming the sponsorship to make a good appeal to the members of the Assembly. The Student Council came to the decision of having the student body to meet by senatorial districts, each meeting being under the leadership of a member of the Council. At each of these meetings a committee was chosen from the group to formulate a letter in which the need and the wish of the school should be communicated to the senators and to the representatives of the district in question. Each letter is to be signed by every member of the student body belonging to the senatorial district. These letters are now in process of preparation.

The school is in dire need of a new building for chemical laboratories, for all of the other various science classes, and manual training department. Only a partial number of the two hundred or more students who signed up for chemistry this year, and who needed chemistry for graduation were able to get in the classes because of the lack of room. Practically the same condition exists in the other science classes. In a very few years, the society rooms must be used for these overcrowded classes. What then will become of the societies, organizations and clubs? There will be no home or no meeting place for them.

By drawing the attention of the representatives of the Assembly to this urgent need of a new building for E. I. N. U., the condition may be greatly relieved if these same representatives from the senatorial districts can come to the rescue.

EGYPTIAN FOUND GUILTY OF LIBEL—VERDICT HARD ON PRIDE BUT EASY ON POCKETBOOK

Last Monday evening, January 31, at 7 o'clock, the Talbert-Egyptian case was heard by Judge McAndrew in the Socratic hall. The jury decided that the Egyptian was guilty of libel and ordered the Egyptian to apologize and publish on the front page of the paper a picture of the plaintiff, Miss Mildred Talbert.

Suit was filed because of an article appearing in the Egyptian January 11, 1927. This article stated that "Miss Talbert prefers 'em married." Miss Talbert accused the Egyptian of the slander of her good name and so, through her attorneys, Davis, Crawford & Bryant, she sued the paper for $250,000.

There was very little difficulty in securing a jury to try the case—only two rejections having been made. Attorney Davis opened the case for the plaintiff. She asserted that the plaintiff had been damaged socially, professionally and matrimonially. The plaintiff introduced the witnesses, Frank Rich, Catharine Brewer and Rosemary Mills, and, in direct examination by Mr. Crawford, brought out the fact that no bad conduct was seen on the trip down to the barbecue stand and back. Miss Talbert then took the stand. She swore concerning the injury the article had done. In direct examination Miss Talbert found no difficulty in swearing to the questions her attorney asked her, but in the cross-examinations it became rather difficult. Under persistent grilling by the defense attorney, Charles Neely, she was forced to admit that she really was not libeled in this article. Miss Jonah, Miss Barbour and Mr. Buford were introduced to show that Miss Talbert was damaged professionally. Miss Jonah declared that the article "had darkened her life in such a way as to mar her professional usefulness by the psychic atmosphere which it had created." In the cross examinations by the defense, when Miss Jonah began to explain to the jury about the psychic atmosphere, Collins saw red and dismissed the witness from the chair in disgust. Miss Barbour on cross examination admitted that she said "unsavory atmosphere" may not have been created by the article published in the Egyptian. Mr. Buford swore that he would never hire Miss Talbert in his school, despite the fact that he did not believe the statement concerning Miss Talbert and Mr. McIlrath. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver McIlrath swore that they were old friends of Miss Talbert. Mr. McIlrath had some difficulty in deciding his age. In cross examination he admitted that he

E. I. Downed In Thrilling Overtime Game

In one of the best played and closest games ever witnessed on a local floor the Maroons conquered the Eastern Teachers last Friday night. A more exciting and hair-raising exhibition has seldom been witnessed by local fans. Over two thousand fans were the victims of this nervous strain and gasped breathlessly as the Charleston long range heavy artillery knocked the bottom out of the net, but it was a different story when a Maroon propelled ball swished its way through the netting. The angry voices of this cheering mob were settled only after an overtime period was necessarily played in order for the opposing factions of Blue and Maroon to settle their differences, after ending the regular period with the score 20-20. The widely renowned Charlestoners, conquerors of Bradley, Millikin, McKendree and Shurtleff and rated as one of the leading college teams by the up-state region have had their big guns squelched by the Southerners twice within the last few weeks, only about four weeks ago Mac's men downed the Blue on the Charleston floor 25-24 after ten minutes of overtime playing. It is doubtful if two more evenly matched teams ever met on a basketball court. Emerging victoriously in two such affairs on a foreign and home floor looks good enough to establish the supremacy of the Maroon over the Blue.

The E. I. lads counted most of their points through their ability as sharpshooters while the Maroons penetrated deep into the Charleston defense, time after time. Foreman, crack forward, is undoubtedly the best long shot that ever appeared on the local floor.

Wilson, who does a whale of a job guarding for Mac, started things off by dropping in one from back of the free throw line. Frye then scored a pot shot, with the count 4-2. Foreman amazed the fans by sinking one from center. The battle continued nip and tuck until near the end of the half when Lutz replaced Crawshaw and sank one from close in to

IS IT FAIR?

"It is not fair," we have heard several times since the article regarding the abolishment of the cut system was published in the school paper. Should we not look at this question from different viewpoints before answering it?

Students have enjoyed the "four-cut freedom" for years, and we might be enjoying it now, but we became so persistent in abusing this privilege that it was taken from us. Are we really not law breakers? We have disobeyed the law and should take the consequences, "no cuts," cheerfully.

MISS DAVIS UPSETS DESK

Miss Lydia Davis upset the teacher's desk in the English room Thursday morning. No serious damage was done to the desk and contents.

The room had just come to order when a crash was heard. Miss Davis accidentally leaned against the desk and pushed it from the platform. The dictionary was upset but no damage was done. Writing paper was scattered all over the front of the room but was soon gathered together. It is not known whether Miss Davis did this accidentally or to arouse some excitement.

TERRIBLE CATASTROPHE PREVENTED—DOOMED CAT SAVED BY MERE CHANCE

For reasons that the guilty party refuses to disclose, an innocent cat was condemned to die. The prisoner was accidentally released by one of the spectators and a thrilling chase resulted. The liberated feline made a noble fight for its life, dashing madly towards the only avenue of escape—hole in the floor by the water pipes. But just as the poor creature gained the opening, a strong hand grasped its terminal appendage. Then ensued a terrible struggle, but the tail was securely held. On attempting to drag the cat from its retreat, the captor, with a loud cry, dropped the ferocious beast and nearly lost his grip on the ill-treated tail. Fate again intervened, and the cat freed itself just as someone brought a glove. With a howl of triumph, it disappeared into the farthest recesses under the floor. That night, when all was still and dark, the cat crept out from hiding and, like the ancient Arabs, crept silently away. Next morning when the massive outer doors were opened, a black body shot out and disappeared. It was, so we decided, when the astonished janitor told of this strange sight, the miraculously delivered cat, hastening back to catdom to enjoy what was left of his nine lives.

THE EPISODE OF THE DESK

Thursday forenoon, at eleven-fifteen. Third-year English, calm and serene. Where is our teacher, so modest and shy,

With the soft curving smile and the twinkling eye?

Yes, where is she? thought the dutiful chaps,

As they sat very straight, with their hands in their laps.

Then, in she came, just three minutes late,

But went to the desk, like a lady sedate.

She sat herself down in the official chair,

And looked the room over, quite debonair.

She put her hands wide out, upon the desk;

Now hold your breath, while I tell the rest.

The desk just slipped, that's all I say, And into the floor it fell, straightway Her hands went up, and "Oh! Ah me!"

Escaped from her lips, so rounded and free.

Then, Trigg and Phemister, without behest,

Sprang quickly forward and replaced the desk.

I must close this story, attempted in rhyme.

And now, Miss Davis, the moral: be on time.

ARE WE HARD-HEARTED?

If some one who is not connected with the school were standing in the hall and should see a girl come running down the corridor and say to one of her friends, "Oh! Miss So-and-So is ill and we won't have class today. Isn't that glorious?" do you suppose he would think that we were very inconsiderate to say such a thing? Well, I don't believe so. If he would just think about his own school days, he would still remember how he loved vacations. I'm certain it isn't the teacher's illness we enjoy and that we would enjoy our vacation much more if she were also away having a good time. It's just the unexpected pleasure of not having to go to class when perhaps you haven't your lesson.

ALUMNUS MARRIES

Mr. Ianthus Krutsinger of Louisville, Ill., was quietly married to Miss Ferne Easley of Clay City, Ill., Friday, Jan. 28. Mr. Krutsinger attended the S. I. N. U. and graduated with the class of '23. He holds a responsible position in the Clay City High school as teacher and basketball coach. Mrs. Krutsinger is also a teacher in the Clay City school.

HIS CONQUEST

In his eye was a look of determination; his breath was coming in gasps; she had eluded him, but now his hour had come and his purpose was not to be thwarted again. He rushed and threw his arms about her neck, half dragging, half carrying her to the door and when the parson came he demanded: "Do you tie knots?"

"Why, yes," said the parson.

"Then tie a good hard one on this heifer calf of yours; she's about ruined my garden."

SINS OF THE TONGUE

Many so called eloquent people talk too much. They can talk in public, in private and in their sleep. Some can awake at 2 o'clock in the morning and instantly grow eloquent on any subject within their mental reach. They talk themselves into fame into notoriety, into obscurity; out of a position, out of friends, and out of funds.

Robert Louis Stevenson says concerning a friend, whose name he does not mention: "What is—'s fault? That he runs down. What is the easiest thing to do? To run down. And all this comes steeply home to me; for I am horrified to gather that I begin myself to fall into this same business which I abhor in others."

There is just where the professional talker makes his final and fatal mistake—he "talks down" others in a hopeless effort to "talk up" himself. Grant was a "silent man," not because he could not talk, but because he found it safer, as President, to be silent rather than make any attempt to shine as a conversationalist.

Lincoln could talk, but when he wished to change the drift of the conversation or to conceal his own thoughts, he would remark, "That reminds me" and escape through the laughter produced by one of his cute incidents which he could tell with such power and effect.

READ CURRENT PERIODICALS

Do you spend 40 minutes a day in general reading? Why not? Most students, when asked that question answer that they do not have the time. They are honest in their answers but they are mistaken.

There are a few students in school who spend about half the time on history and geography that most students spend on those subjects. They have no more native ability than the average. But they have read, probably not so well, but widely and they are benefitted now and will continue to do so.

It is said that a constant trickle of water wears away the hardest of stone. A constant trickle of general reading may not wear away the dense ignorance of most of us but it will wear through in places and, even in a few instances, expose and polish some genuine intelligence. Or it may cover the dress with a shell of finer material and so aid in concealing the underlying mass from casual acquaintances.

Have you a one line interest? Get out of it by reading. The magazine section of the library is never crowded with intelligent readers. It is true that there are several readers of the scientific American, Youth's Companion and the Ladies' Home Journal, and a few articles. You find them interesting. A few suggestions:

Are you interested in scandals, Chinese wars, or Mexico's religious question? The Globe-Democrat will give you some more or less truthful and biased news concerning these topics.

Do you want current literature? The American is publishing one of Zane Grey's stories, Scribner's has a story by Dou Marquis and always has "As I Like It" by the inimitable William Lyon Phelps.

Harpers furnishes a taste of "High-brow" reading. Forum runs a series of "controversial" articles.

Do you like discussions of current problems and events? World's Work, Review of Reviews and the Literary Digest make good reading.

Do you prefer Nature? American Forestry and Birdlore are there.

Farming? Bulletin on the corn-borer and many farming magazines offer you entertainment.

Do you like to "read" your books through book reviews? The Bookman and most of the magazines have such departments.

Do you want to travel? Asia Magazine, Mentor and National Geographical have good pictures with little reading.

Are you interested in teaching? There are several good magazines devoted to that occupation—any way there are—Teachers College Record, Yale Review, School News, and Educational Review.

Lastly, if you are interested in home, you will probably find one of your county papers there.

PROF. BOOMER TALKS AT Y. M. C. A. MEETING

Last Tuesday evening, Mr. Boomer talked to the Y. M. C. A. members on what he considered the three big issues in a young man's life. The first issue stressed by Mr. Boomer was the problem of choosing a vocation. In this he urged that a young man should not wait too late in life to decide what he was going to take up as a life profession.

The second issue to be stressed by the speaker was the problem of choosing a lifetime companion. In this, Mr. Boomer pointed out the importance of finding a young lady who had characteristics which fitted in properly with the young man's. He also spoke of the importance of the home in an individual's life.

Religion, Mr. Boomer considered to be one of the greatest problems in a man's life. He stated that this perhaps should come first in man's activities.

All those present reported that this "Y. M." program was one of the best to be given this year.

Don't miss the meeting tonight at 6:30. Plans are underway to have "Dad" Elliott on our campus Feb. 22, 23 and 24. Mr. Elliott is a speaker of world wide reputation, a great friend of the young people and a famous football player and athlete who "starred" at Northwestern some years ago. Watch the papers and posters for more information concerning his visit here on our campus.

Seeing Lawrence Watson back speaking to old friends on the campus reminds us of a funny incident that happened on the stage way back when the two Watsons, John and Lawrence, were the leads in spring plays and Strut and Fret entertainments. Lawrence arrived late, just a few minutes before the curtain was to go up for Charley's Aunt. He was to wear a short bobby moustache. Everyone knows how much care and time must be given to pasting a little piece of black hair on an upper lip to make it look natural. The only thing to do under the circumstances was to paint one on him. We did. But we reckoned without the girl and the love scene. Everything went smoothly until he kissed the girl. Result—a big black smurch decorated her upper lip until the end of the act.

The program committee is planning a new feature for next Wednesday in the form of a play, entitled "Who Takes the Cake." This is a snappy one-act comedy, full of thrills and surprises.

In addition to the play, talks, music and readings have been planned. Have you ever been to one of our meetings? If not, pay us a visit tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock in the Zetetic hall. Welcome all.

HISTORY

Some time ago, when in my youth, I used to ponder how, in truth, Our ancestors could e'er exist; So many things they must have missed.

They had no movies, history states, No phones on which to make their dates,

No medicines to cure their pains, No motorboats, no aeroplanes, No railroad lines, no motor cars, No cigarettes and no cigars;

They didn't have electric light, They always stayed at home at night;

To them, a jazz band was unknown, They'd never heard a saxophone; They'd never played a phonograph,

Nor undergone a shower bath, And man, in those days, had no chance

To revel in a modern dance. Then there were trifles which no doubt

We simply could not do without; Such as the modern paper clip Or garters with a velvet grip.

Their life, as near as I could see, Was one eternal misery.

Lillian Hodges: innocently, "Why, I wouldn't mind exams at all if I could remember everything."

McKendree Bearcats Here Wednesday Night

The McKendree college quintet will oppose the locals here Wednesday night of this week. The Bearcats won a thrilling game by one point on the local floor last year and are coming prepared to repeat the trick. They have lost only one regular from last year and will undoubtedly give the Maroons a run for their money and rivalry is keen between the two teams. Captain Jack, Brown, Gould and the McGill brothers champion the Preachers' cause.

WHITE ELEPHANTS SELL RAPIDLY AT AUCTION

Last Friday morning, the chapel period was devoted to the sale of "white elephants." This clever plan to obtain money for the proposed girls' rest room was the idea of Miss Jones, chairman of the committee.

Many packages of assorted sizes and shapes were piled on the president's desk. The auctioneer, Max Lollar, and his associates, Otis Phillips and Ralph Brimm, deserve much credit. This is shown by the fact that Phelps Crawford was induced to pay fifty cents for a false face. One package of dainty size and shape brought six nickels from Harry Lutz, Carmen Dickey, George Alexander, Raymond Crowell and Freddie Hoffman. They went in a body to receive it and upon opening it, found a pair of orange cotton hose. Among some of the other articles, humorous as well as useful, were:

- Picture unframed, 50c, Ray Ferrell.
- White apron, $1.25, Charles Benson.
- Ladies' purse, 75c, Dolph Stanley.
- Beaded purse, Mr. Logan.
- Fountain pen, Miss Shank.
- Mr. Scott bought a pretty bracelet and promptly had them sell it again.
- Oliver McIlrath bid 25c for a box containing miscellaneous articles of jewelry—a pair of cuff links, two tennis pins, three little cat pins, collar buttons and a Masonic pin.
- The total receipts of this auction amounted to $48.61.

Egyptian Found Guilty

had talked to Miss Talbert "some." Other witnesses were introduced to prove that Miss Talbert was shunned by her associates. Amor these were: Lucinda Huck, Beulah Reichart, Thelma Smith and Arthur Trammell. The plaintiff closed their case and the judge overruled the motion for a direct verdict made by the defense attorneys.

Attorney Velma Deason opened the case for the defendant. She called the defendant, Lemen Wells, editor of the Egyptian, to the stand. He swore that there was no malice whatsoever, on the part of the Egyptian in printing the article, that he had heard rumors and that he had seen Miss Talbert and Mr. McIlrath together several times. Melba Davidson, Beattie Smith, Bert Casper and Corem Waller testified to the same things that Mr. Wells had brought out. In cross examination the plaintiff attorneys failed to shake the evidence of these witnesses with the exception of Corem Waller, who admitted that Typhoid Fever was not very good for the brain. Next on the stand as witnesses for the defense were Doyle Karraker and Walter Willis, who swore that they had both been out with Miss Talbert and would be perfectly willing to go out with her again if they had a chance. Miss Mildred Neville swore that Miss Talbert had not been ostracised by her friends at Anthony hall.

Attorney Bryant began the argument for the plaintiff. He spoke in length concerning the types of men (married and unmarried) and the effect of writing in hard ink. Attorney Neely began the argument for the defense. His argument included an analysis of the article. Collins continued the argument for the defense and he tore savagely into the testimony of the plaintiff's witnesses. Mr. Bryant closed the argument of the plaintiff with an emotional appeal to the jury.

THE FIGHTING TEMERAIRE

Now tow her to the docks, I say,
My men will her destroy,
And make her into useful things
Nor hide the nation's joy;
Her decks have seen the rage of war,
Her sides are red with stain;
Her days of service now are past,
We mold her o'er again.

Her decks, where once grim sailors stood
And fought as for their lives,
Where British seamen gallantly
Fought for their homes and wives,
No more shall hear the cannon's roar
Or warrior's song of praise;
But shall be used in building things
Reminding of old days.

Far better that this silent ship
Whose glory we all know;
Should crumble from a mighty flame
At keel and prow and bow!
Nay, let the golden haze consume
Her old, dismantled form
And thus inspire the souls of men,
The heroes yet unborn.

✓ Becky: What is the most dangerous part of your automobile?
Red Roberts: I wouldn't even guess.

Becky: The nut that holds the steering wheel.

✓ Kenneth Wintzell: What is the date, please?

Miss Hickson: Never mind the date. The examination is more important.

Kenny: Well, I wanted to have something right on my paper.

✓ Wise Prof: And so, students, we can come to the conclusion that nothing is impossible.

Fresh Frosh: Well! I'd like to see you ram this umbrella down your throat and open it.

✓ Carmen Dickey: Walter, there's a feather in my sausage.

Gus: Oh, that's all right. It was made from a bird dog.
