Nina Shepard is hot on the campaign trail, but she admits she doesn’t have too many issues to talk about.

Those will come up during the election season. Right now, she’s just struggling to get nominated. Shepard, who’s battling for the democratic nomination for state treasurer, said Wednesday in Carbondale.

She struggles, she said, is against some of the most powerful lawmakers in the state—namely the democratic slates.

Last fall, Shepard sought support from the slatemakers, who voted instead, to back Jerome Corsentino, a Chicago Sanitary District commissioner.

Since then, Shepard has criticized the slatemakers for being too “Chicago-dominated.”

“It is no longer possible to ignore the fact that as a result of what has happened we now have a frustrating Democratic Party in Illinois,” she said. Many democrats in the state “were outraged at the manipulations that proceeded,” she said, “and that must be somewhat reconstituted to restore voter faith and give our good candidates an unhindered opportunity to win in November.”

She said she is receiving the support of “worried democrats who believe, as I do, that the party did not fulfill its siting-making responsibilities when it delayed balloting representation to whole portions of the state.”

Shepard said that her campaign for the November election, if she wins the March primary, will concentrate on making state residents more aware of the state treasurer’s office actually does.

“Not too many people really know what the treasurer does,” she said. “In the past, it’s been mainly an administrative office.”

She added that most treasurers have spent most of their time “just signing checks” instead of being more involved in fiscal matters.

Shepard is currently a member of the University of Illinois Board of Trustees.

After receiving a bachelor’s degree from that university in 1965, she did graduate work at both the U of I and Northwestern.

She lives in Winnetka.

Treasurer candidate fights leaders

By Steve Keppel

President Warren Brandt said Wednesday that although the proposed 18-hole golf course on campus will eliminate some fields operated by University Farma, its construction would have a “trade-off” effect of providing an outdoor laboratory for the turf and green studies.

He also emphasized that the course, to be called “The Greens,” would be a $1 million gift to the University. SIU would regain ownership of the land after the 30-year lease in the proposed golf course agreement.

Brandt spoke to about 70 faculty members and students Wednesday afternoon at a seminar in the Agriculture Building.

The seminar was sponsored by Alpha Zeta, the SIU agriculture fraternity. The event covered incorporation of the town around the president’s house.

“The course would be advantageous in that it would provide an excellent laboratory for the turf and green studies,” Brandt said.

However, he added, that he wouldn’t guarantee that the project would allow students such use of the facility.

Education budget cut

By Robert Lee Zimmer
Assistant Sports Writer

College and university officials in Illinois expressed some disappointment though not much surprise, when Gov. James R. Thompson called for further cuts in the proposed state budget.

Thompson recommended an increase of $75 million over the current level of state spending, and did not suggest a tuition increase. The Board of Higher Education (BHE) had recommended a budget increase of $91.4 million, to a total of $1.954 billion. The board proposed a tuition increase—$40 per credit hour for in-state students, or $60 per credit hour for out-of-state students for the 1975-76 academic year. The increased budget would generate $4.4 million of the budget increase.

“Tuition was a figure that dealt with the very urgent needs of the коллеге,” said George Howard III, president of the University of Illinois Board of Trustees.

SIU President Warren Brandt said Wednesday, “The budget that the BHE proposed was the most excellent budget I’ve seen since I’ve been here.”

“Of course, it’s all been decimated as of today,” he continued, referring to Thompson’s budget.

“The salary increases are a good point,” Brandt said. “And there’s a good probability we’ll be able to carry through with them.”

S-Senate passes resolution supporting athletics fee split

By Michele Ransford
Staff Writer

A resolution "demanding" a vice president to increase the women’s share of the student athletics fee by 10 percent was adopted 23:7 by the Student Senate Wednesday night.

The resolution directed the George Mann-Vice president for University Relations, to increase the women’s fee share from 29 percent to 40 percent. Men’s athletics receive 70 percent, about $335,000.

When asked whether he believed the men’s and women’s budgets were equitable, Mace said, "No, I don’t." Charlotte West, women’s athletics director, told the senate that "I would never want to hurt the men’s programs or coaches." When I hear that to help the women’s would hurt the men, I feel that it is an unjust, unfair assumption."
WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly all teenagers know who President Clinton is, but for many that's where their knowledge of government stops. Less than half can name even one of their senators or representatives in Congress.

During the first half of the 1970s, an era when campus disturbances and the Watergate scandal were in the news, students paid a lot of attention to their government. Participation in student government works declined among American youth aged 13 and 17, the National Association of Student Councils reported Wednesday.

The federally surveyed sample tested 145,000 teen-agers in 1970, 1972 and 1976 to chart their political knowledge and attitudes.

It found that among 17-year-olds, the ability to explain the basic concept of government increased from 15 percent, to 18 percent, to 20 percent. Namely, that the people elect their leaders — declined from 86 percent, to 75 percent, to 70 percent. Among 15-year-olds, it fell from 33 to 42 percent.

More than 96 percent of both age groups could name the president, but only about 20 percent of the 13-year-olds and 30 percent of the 15-year-olds could name any of their representatives in Congress. That was about the same as in 1970, when 14 percent of the 15-year-olds were down from 57 percent for 17-year-olds.

Black students generally scored about 15 percent lower than white students on the tests.

Experts who took part in the study called the results disappointing but not surprising. They blamed the shift from civics courses to electives for the drop in students' knowledge of government.

"Social studies is receiving very low priority in the curriculum and the attrition rate of these courses is very high, a third of the students. Among 13-year-olds, it fell from 33 to 42 percent.

The report also said, 'The pressure to return to the basics at the elementary level has in many cases reduced the time available for social studies.' The study also said students showed mixed results on recognizing and valuing constitutional rights. It said 13-year-olds showed more concern about the rights of persons accused of crimes, possibly because they have watched television programs featuring criminals and lawyers.

Among 17-year-olds, 89 percent said they were willing to allow someone who did not believe in God to hold a public office in their community at some time in the past. The percentage of those who felt that way 10 years ago was only 76 percent.

The report said criticism of elected officials rose from 42 percent in 1968 to 60 percent in 1976.

About 80 percent of both groups said they were willing to allow persons who were opposed to laws to live in their neighborhood. The youths also were asked if they would be willing to hire "a person whom you think is very wrong, but who is your barber or beauty operator," and 62 percent or more said yes.

Thompson: New law releases 66 prisoners

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Gov. James R. Thompson has confirmed that 66 parolees will be released within a week from Illinois prisons as a result of a new criminal sentencing law that took effect Wednesday. But Thompson said he will not parole violent parolees and particularly violent parolees, and local officials will be notified of each parolee released early.

The government will notify the parolees that they have been granted parole and that they are required by law to complete the sentence. They are also told that they will have a parole record for life.

NOW: ERA opponents are 'reactionaries'

CENTRALIA (AP) — Americans who oppose the Equal Rights Amendment and the National Organization for Women (NOW) said Wednesday, 'My definition of the word reactionaries is a person who really is far beyond just conservative. ' Eleanor Smeal said in an interview, 'I think a person who would like a woman to return to the position of our grandmothers is a person who not only wants to stop the hands on the clock but who wants to back out and have women in Centralia to meet with women's groups. She said NOW is optimistic about ratification of the ERA by the three additional states before time runs out next year. Illinois has voted against ratification in earlier attempts.

First elephant cataract operation successful

CHICAGO (AP) — In what veterinary ophthalmologists said was the first operation of its kind, a cataract was removed successfully Wednesday from the right eye of a 4,500 pound elephant at Brookfield Zoo. The delicate surgery on the 14-year-old Pasha took more than two hours in a makeshift hospital in the elephant's stall. The operation by ultrasonic probe, whose vibrations broke up a lens, milky covering of the eye, was performed by Dr. Samuel Vainsaid, a Green Bay, Wis., veterinary ophthalmologist, with backup by three other specialists and 13 keepers and one veterinarian staff members.

The operation, which began about 11 p.m. Wednesday, was back east by 7 a.m. Thursday. Dr. Vainsaid believes Pasha's sight in his right eye will be restored by about 80 to 90 percent.

Governors seek more urban policy control

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's governors say state governments must be given more power over urban programs. On President Carter's urban policy will be 'doomed to failure.' The governors plan, now under consideration by the White House, would rely on a system of federal incentives for states which coordinate and target federal money to distressed areas. The states could direct aid to all areas in distress instead of simply giving it to large cities. The state-incentive concept is certain to meet resistance from big-city mayors, but officials say it has won favor at the White House. 'The president is looking for a new approach, and this one makes sense,' says a White House aide.

Teamster boss sued for pension, loan misuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons, Jr., and 18 other union union officials at least 30 states were sued Wednesday in a Labor Department effort to recover millions of dollars in illegally held loans. They were accused of having "caused great financial harm" to the $1.7 billion fund and its 400,000 beneficiaries through "a series of questionable loan transactions." Some of the loans were made to bankrupt companies and were used to finance gambling casinos, race tracks, and risky real estate ventures, government officials said. The Labor Department suit culminated a massive investigation of the Teamsters by the Justice Department in 1975 following reports of mismanagement and ties to organized crime.

Europe issues alert of poison Israeli oranges

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands (AP) — Western Europe issued an alert Wednesday for Israeli-grown oranges poisoned with mercury in a purported Arab desire to damage Israel's economy. The Protestant Liberation Organization denied that any Palestinians were responsible as claimed in a letter to the Dutch. . . . West German governments. Five Dutch children hospitalized for mercury poisoning last week after they ate the contaminated oranges and became ill, the Dutch Health Ministry reported. The children were kept out of the children's homes and sent the youngsters home a few days later completely recovered. In West Germany, police discovered a Jaffa display orange containing "a pea-size quantity of mercury" in the vicinity of a department store to grocery stores in the central industrial city of Darmstadt.

Skylab falling from earth orbit sooner than NASA expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Skylab, the largest manmade object in orbit, is moving back toward Earth faster than expected, the U.S. Space Agency said Thursday. In considering a plan to avoid scattering pieces of the station over the earth as a Soviet satellite did last week, an agency official said.

Experts have begun work on a precise plan to command the station's still-operable rocket engines to fire up and place it in a lower orbit. The maneuver would be critical if the station is to escape Earth's gravity and return to a safe descent over a broad ocean area such as the Indian Ocean or South Pacific.
People die in unsafe dwellings

People die in unsafe dwellings. That, before and beyond anything else, is enough reason to begin immediate efforts to remove unsafe housing from Southern Illinois.

Celino Larez lived in a trailer in Carbondale. His neighbors in the Lake Heights Trailer Court said his trailer was like many others nearby—poor condition, with exposed wiring, a weak floor and a furnace that didn’t work very well. On Jan. 20 that furnace overheated and burst into flames while Celino Larez was asleep. He died in the blaze that consumed his trailer.

Celino Larez died in an unsafe dwelling. Since the fire, Carbondale Code Enforcement officials have done an admirable job inspecting Lake Heights Trailer Court, posting signs on all 27 trailers in the court warning that the dwellings are unfit for occupancy. Lake Heights Trailer Court is now closed, seemingly the only way that these dwellings could be made safe.

But the action comes too late to save Celino Larez. His life ended the way it was not fit to live in. And unless the positive action of checking living areas in and around Carbondale for dangerous conditions is continued and expanded, other people may lose their lives. Yet people continue to live in unsafe dwellings. Each night, dozens of people sleep in housing near Carbondale that violates even the most basic safety standards—dwellings with flimsy walls, cracked plaster, weak floors, dangerous wiring, poor heating. And yet the people who live in these dwellings don’t report the conditions that threaten their safety.

People live in dwellings like these because they can’t find a better place to live, or because they can’t afford to pay for better housing. But the money saved by living in sub-standard housing hardly begins to meet the potential cost of living there. People die in unsafe dwellings. Unsafe conditions in living areas must be corrected immediately if people are to be protected from possible harm. The Code Enforcement office must continue to find and to correct unsafe conditions, and to warn residents that their dwellings are potentially dangerous. Beyond this, a systematic check of Lake Heights and Carbondale should be set up so that all housing in the area is made safe.

Until such a system is set up, Code Enforcement officials can act only when residents inform them of unsafe conditions. For their own safety, and for the safety of others, people who know about unsafe conditions in the Carbondale area should call the Code Enforcement office.

And finally, landlords who own and operate living areas must face up to their moral obligation to provide safe housing for tenants. The pursuit of profit in the apartment and trailer rental business should not be more important than the safety of renters. For when dwellings like those in Lake Heights are allowed to deteriorate over the years, an irresponsible landlord becomes a menace to society and a disgrace to the community.

People have a right to regard their homes as places of security, as places where they can escape many pressures of the outside world. But when homes are unsafe, there are new pressures—the pressure of living in a home which might burn or collapse in an instant; the pressure of staying safe in unsafe surroundings; the pressure of staying alive.

People die in unsafe dwellings. And people must do everything possible to correct potentially deadly conditions in those dwellings so that people can stay alive.

Enjoy TV sex, violence? Watch ‘Pounding Saddles’

By Arthur Hoppe

As usual, everyone’s mad at television over the perennial issues of sex and violence.

 Planned Parenthood says lovers on the little screen should take obvious precautions before they romantically entwine in each other’s arms and dot, dot, dot.

 The U.S. Conference of Mayors, on the other hand, concurs that while there is certainly sufficient violence on television, there is a critical shortage of pain and suffering. Although actors fall each evening like the autumn leaves, they are rarely shown going splat on the pavement, bleeding copiously from a bullet in the brisket, or shrieking convincingly at the arrow protruding from their solar plexus.

 Consequently, an entire generation of television viewers is growing up with a profound knowledge of the methodology of sex and violence, but little understanding whatsoever of the consequences of either.

 To remedy this appalling situation, I have naturally written the scenario for a new, realistic Western. It’s called, “Pounding Saddles.”

 We open with the hero, Clem (Ingrown Toenail) Hatfield, limping painfully up to the heroine, pretty Kitty (Tight Shoes) Kelly, who is eating ice cream with her left hand as she has contracted an incurable case of tennis elbow.

 “I writ you this poem, Miss Kitty,” says Clem bashfully as he removes a piece of paper from his pocket, cuts his finger on the edge and bleed profusely all over his immortal words. “Ouch!” he says, sucking his thumb. “Now you’ll never know how I feel, Miss Kitty!”

 “Ooooo!” she cries, clutching her temples in agony, for she has taken too large a bite of the cold ice cream. Clem rushes to her side and envelopes her in his arms. Reluctantly, she pushes him away. “Not tonight, Clem, I’ve misplaced my pills,” she says. “But don’t worry, I have a natural sense of the rhythm method. Come back a week from next Tuesday.”

 Clem grits his teeth and mounts his backing bronco.

 “Aren’t you glad we live in an age Miss Kitty, when intimate medical problems can be discussed openly?” “I couldn’t be gladder,” says Miss Kitty as he rides grousingly off into the sunset.

 We cut to Clem at his campfire, blistering his hand on a hot pan handle and burning his tongue on a hot pizza which gives him heartburn as a snaky Indian with a knife rubs him in the darkness but stubs his bare toe on a rock and howlingly confesses that Miss Kitty is even now undergoing the most painful of operations, a root canal. Long-suffering Clem leaps back on his horse, moaning. “Boy, this is getting to be a real . . . .”

 I decided to stop at this point and show the script to a producer I know. I said that if the viewing public likes sex and violence, they ought to love the consequences. He said I didn’t understand television.
Don't lump all 'anti-abortionists' together

Regarding Bill Sievert's article in the Jan. 30 Egyptian (Gay Lab). Hot button for the New Right, I was very标语 signing protest against the quote attributed to Elaine Noble of Massachusetts, a lesbian. "The anti-ERA people. The anti-abortion people. The pro-gun people. The right-to-filers-they are all the same...Like with the Jews in Nazi Germany. The Nazis like to lump all people who look like the pickings."

Personally, I strongly believe in equal rights for women. I oppose the actions of Anita Bryant, and I believe that guns, capital punishment, prayer, capitalism and the military should be abolished altogether. At the same time I am strongly opposed to abortion.

It is easy for pro-abortionists to prove that many members of the Far Right are against abortion. When they point out that many anti-abortion shows no consistent regard for the sanctity of human life in that they support capital punishment and war; they are right. Since abortion has such a strong association with the women's liberation movement, it is logical that women's liberation should be against abortion.

Lower thermostat, zip up vest and call home (collect)

Well, here we go again, gang. It's February and it's cold and you know what that means. It's time to phone Mom and Dad to float that loan. The local utilities are tightening the screws once again. The "pretense."

"Estimated bills." I've heard so much of that news. Now, I'm just your average schvick who doesn't have the capacity to understand our local utilities. But I do understand my own financial situation. And whether my own bill is estimated or not, I find no comfort in knowing it's just around the corner.

What am I supposed to do until then? My student job? Agency entwines student in bureaucratic red tape

I would like to bring public attention to a problem I have had with local personnel of the Illinois Farmers Union. The Illinois Farmers Union provides the poor and deserving persons with Special Action CETA funds for a number of people to attend the practical nursing program at the Southern Illinois University, College of Medicine.

In July, 1977 I applied with the Farmers Union for CETA funds to attend the practical nursing program. At that time I was assured I would have no problem getting CETA funding. During the next five months, I was led to believe that I was assured of CETA funds.

Then, three weeks before school was to start, I was told that my application had not been considered.

Do students have new adversaries—themselves?

The biggest news item in Southern Illinois is the university of how we have gotten this year. The second most newsworthy item is that the University of the University of Southern Illinois and the WSIU Radio mentioned that this was the first time. SIU has been closed since the 1790 riots.

What I object to is the reference to the 1790 riots. I don't contend that this reference was intentional, but I certainly don't think it was necessary, such that although an economic growth and stability of Carbondale can be directly linked to the University and to student dollars pumped into Carbondale businesses, there is still an alienation between the "locals" and students that is quite obvious. There has been a continued suspension from both sides that is in some ways justified. All would agree that this is not the ideal way of conducting business.

In my opinion, the handling of the aforementioned news item has only widened and deepened the gap that now exists. I agree that this is a small point but I will not go so far as to say I am overlooking.

When I called the administrative station and talked to one of the DL's about this, he seemed to agree. At my suggestion, he agreed to put up a note explaining my complaint, and to make it the decision of each newscaster to leave out the item about the 1790 riots or re-read the news story as it stood. The next hour's news was again covered the riots, so I went to sleep that night a fallen champion of "town-gown" relations.

Could it be the student body has a new adversary disguised as themselves? I hope not.

Activist Dick Gregory should be nominated to SII Hall of Fame

The Jan. 30 D.E. carried an article about the 19 athletes who will be named to an SII Hall of Fame. The athletes mentioned are generally among the most talented athletes who have played for SII. Yet, there was no mention of Dick Gregory, the first black person chosen as SII's Outstanding Athlete of the Year. That persons devoted not to pursue a sport as a career, but rather to serve the cause of human rights: Dick Gregory.

Grinnell Hall mystery: The case of the missing Frosted Flakes cereal

It is obvious that the food at Grinnell Hall has been going downhill, but I haven't complained much. I figured that the things that were going on around campus would take care of all the complaining. At this point, I have little hope that anything will be done. What with inflation and all, how can SIU possibly afford to feed students anything more gourmet than lasagna with peas in it? I haven't complained until today. I went down at 9:30 a.m. to have a leisurely brunch, savoring in my mind a hearty bowl of Frosted Flakes or Apple Jacks. Since my schedule this semester doesn't allow me to eat lunch, I make a point of stuffing my face at brunch time. WHAT HAPPENED TO THE FROSTED FLAKES AND APPLE JACKS? Is someone trying to tell us we're gaining too much weight? Sure, Special K is fine once in a while, but I hardly think that Puffed Rice and some Pop Flakes will carry me through until my evening entree of lasagna with peas in it.

Grinnell, I thought you were cheap, but Puffed Rice is mighty low.

Task force organizes aid for battered women

We, the participants of the Battered Women's Conference, recognize the widespread nature of the problems of the battered woman. We understand the complexity of the problem and that it occurs among all income, occupational and ethnic groups.

Depicting the level of violence that exists in our Universe, the group was organized as a task force to explore the possibilities of PROMPT ACTION to resolve this problem. We ask for the active cooperation of educators, government officials, professionals, agencies and the entire community.

We would like to thank all who participated in our drive to "Can President Carter" on Friday, Jan. 30. We hope for your additional support for upcoming events that will be sponsored by the Student Environmental Center, such as Earth Week activities in April and SUNDAY DAY on May 1. Cameo to perform in Student Center

Cameo, a professional black strong group, who last appeared here with Rod and The Gang in April will perform Saturday at the Student Center Ballroom A, B, C, and D.

The Black Affairs Council, which is an umbrella organization for all black organizations, is sponsoring the Cameo Concert. Coordinator of BAC, Austin Randolph, said that last year Cameo proved to have good audience response and that is one of the reasons for their return.

"Tamba Arrows," the name of Cameo's first album on the Chocolate City label. The album includes the hit singles, "Roger Morton" and "Punk Funk," which topped R&B charts in several cities.

Ed Harris, editor of the University Spectrum, said coming in the major venue Cameo is the first black group to come to SUU this year. If the Cameo concert is a success it will aid BAC's promotion of other groups.

Tickets for the concert are on sale at the Student Center Central Ticket Office. Ticket Price in advance are $4, $3, and $2. Tickets may also be purchased at the door for $4, $3, and $2.

Wings take off

By Nick Donna
Student Writer

Although you haven’t heard it on any of the local radio stations; “Mull of Kintyre,” the latest hit single by the rock group Wings, has become the biggest selling single ever released in the United Kingdom.

Sales of the single in the U.K. are rapidly approaching the two million mark and have made “Mull of Kintyre,” the F.K. Records’ best-selling single since “The Beatles’” “She Loves You.” The single had been on the all-time best-seller for fifteen weeks.

The single has not yet made local radio phone calls because “Mull of Kintyre” did not hit the U.S. charts until the week ending January 17th, according to record reports.

The episode of "Mull of Kintyre," “Girls’ School,” however, impressed local audiences. "Girls’ School" sold out at $2.50 in tenth week on the U.S. charts in late 1977, but dropped to $1 by the end of the year.

“Mull of Kintyre,” which was written by Paul McCartney and Denny Laine, first hit the British charts at No. 10 in the week that ended Nov. 26. It took over the No. 1 position the following week, according to Capitol Records, and remained the No. 1 spot through the week that ended Jan. 17, a period of eight weeks.

“Mull of Kintyre:” “Wings” first No. 1 single and the first No. 1 song by McCartney since his days as a Beatle.

The song is also the No. 1 single in Germany, Holland and Belgium and No. 2 in Sweden.

Melody Maker, a British publication, reported that “Mull of Kintyre” is No. 1 in Australia.

Written in a super-emoji tone to the "Way We Were," X-rated version to ‘American Graffiti’ and above all, an raffish, hilarious, and sexy salute to boyhood, the hit single gives Wings a new lease of life.

For Wings, the hit single will surpass the one million mark in sales in the U.K. since the magazine began charting singles.

For those interested in film, some of the most engaging reading matter around is the Cinematheque poster. Engagement turns to excitement as the screening date of one of your favorite draws nearer.

This semester's evening showcase, usually at 7 and 9 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium, follow three themes. Tuesday night's "Four Faces" features films starring Joan Crawford, Marlene Dietrich, Greta Garbo, and Gloria Swanson.

These four in particular pointed up a lot of the contradictions that the image woman held in the classical Hollywood studio cinema," said Cinematheque chairman Pat Davis. The films shown on Wednesday nights all deal in some way with "Family in the American Century."

"It has been said that the story of Oedipus is evident in all narrative. Since the family, particularly the bourgeois family, has come under critical scrutiny of late, we thought we'd choose a series of films that deal directly with the family," Davis said.

Although it might seem strange that two Alfred Hitchcock films are included, Davis explained that "he in particular deals with the family, be it servitude or otherwise, in all his films." Sunday night's series of "Contemporary Foreign Films" will bring films to Carbondale that would otherwise never come here, Davis said. Given an example, she pointed out that "Moses and Aaron" is "about as radical an interpretation of an opera as you'll ever see... and it's already a very radical opera."

One of the things I'm anticipating the most is "New German Cinema Week," Davis said of the special series that will be shown February 21-28. "We had a pretty good audience for "Agitation: Wrath of God" (by Werner Herzog) and "Fox and His Friends" (by Rainer Fassbinder) last semester so we thought we'd go ahead with a full week of German cinema," she commented.

With Howard Hughes. Shown the next three Fridays, at 7 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium will be "The Palm Beach Story" on February 1, "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek" on February 16, and "The Great Moment," on February 27. Admission is free.

Paramedics approved by ambulance committee

By Forrest Clippard

Ambulance paramedics, equipped with the latest in emergency medical technology, would serve SIU and Jackson County under a proposal approved by the Jackson County Board’s Ambulance Committee.

The proposal, which will be submitted to the full board Feb. 8, received the unanimous endorsement of the three-member ambulance committee. Committee chairman Gary Hartlieb believes the paramedic program would be “an extension of the hospital,” allowing field treatment of patients in emergencies.

“Up until a few years ago, the whole concept of ambulance service was transportation,” Hartlieb said. “Now the trend is shifting to emergency medical treatment on the scene.”

The bill asks the board to establish a paramedic program, complete with ambulance telemetry equipment capable of sending electrocardiograms to waiting hospital doctors.

The Jackson County ambulance service is staffed with Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs). However, EMTs can only perform “non-invasive” therapies such as taking blood pressure, administering oxygen and performing cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Rail crossings to be improved

PRINCETON (AP) - State and federal officials are ready to spend $20 million making Illinois' most dangerous railroad crossings safer.

No one objects to that, but a related plan to close some guarded crossings along high-speed tracks is getting an angry reception from farmers and fire protection districts.

Through a combination of increased state and federal funds, by January the Illinois Department of Transportation will have $15 million a year earmarked for upgrading railroad crossings. Illinois has 13,366 crossings marked only by simply crossed boards - more than any other state. Last year in Illinois 292 people were injured and 86 killed in crossing accidents.

In addition to speeding up installation of safety equipment, the states will test a new system of ropes to slow down contractors - the DOT is giving top priority to four heavily-traveled "rail corridors." These are:

- The Central Gulf-Amtrak route from Chicago to St. Louis, through Joliet, Bloomington, Springfield and Alton.
- The east-west Baltimore & Ohio track from East St. Louis to Vincennes, Ind., passing through Salem and Illini.
- The Missouri Pacific route from Chicago south along the edge of the state, passing just east of Urbana and continuing southwest to
- Burlington Northern from Aurora southwest through Princeton to Galena.

The goal is to install flashing lights and gates at every crossing of those tracks, closing roads and slowing traffic to too low to justify the expense.

"It would cost about $100 million to properly equip every crossing in Illinois," said David Reed, DOT engineer at Dixon. "You'd like to take care of them all, but of course you can't. The goal is to protect those crossings which have the highest possibility of an accident - either from large train traffic or high motorist traffic."

Hearings are being conducted in counties along the four routes. Actual construction may start this spring on the McLean County section of the Chicago-St. Louis I.C. route, the first to complete the hearing process.

The work will be done by railroad employees with the state billed for the costs. The federal government will pick up 90 percent of the tab.

Robert E. Craven, chairman of DOT's Illinois Highway Safety Committee, said seven crossings will be closed in McLean County but another 20 will get flashing lights and gates. Estimated cost: about $500,000.

Farmers complain loudly about closing roads they use to get to town or distant fields.

Best said his home and other buildings are on one side of the Burlington Northern track and 152 acres of his farm on the other.

Bodyguard makes more money than cabinet members

WASHINGTON (AP) - Joseph Califano's sometime bodyguard is probably the second highest-paid employee of the federal government.

Thomas Leslie Johns earns $47,205 as an administrative officer and security coordinator for Califano, the secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Johns also gets monthly pension checks that total $3,200 a year for his 25 years of service including a stint as President Lyndon B. Johnson's chief bodyguard, according to officials of the District of Columbia pension system.

Johns' $47,205 annual income from the government is considerably less than President Carter's $18,000 salary. But they total more than the $60,000 that Califano - and other Cabinet members - earn yearly and more than Vice President Walter Mondale's $75,000.

Johns is unusual in that he has skipped through the barriers in the civil service system designed to prevent a retired civil servant from taking another federal job and drawing a full federal paycheck and a full pension check.

By contrast, getting a military pension and a federal paycheck is not so difficult. A U.S. Civil Service Commission study in 1975 found 143,098 military retirees drawing pensions while working in civilian federal jobs.

Among those 141,000 military "double-dippers" could be a retired high-ranking officer in a top civilian job with a total income greater than Johns'. But he would have to be a retired reserve general who now holds at least a G-5 rank - which pays between $30,000 and $60,000 a year - in the government.

Johns' job is part administrative, part bodyguard, according to sources at HEW. HEW officials have been interviewing majors in the Civil Service Commission to accept a new job description for Johns' post.

Illinois 2000 appoints two SIU administrators

By Brad Belcher
Student Writer

Two SIU administrators have been appointed to positions with the Illinois 2000 Foundation, a new, non-profit organization designed to set goals for Illinois' economic future.

John Darling, dean of the College of Business, was named to the foundation's advisory council, and George Mace, vice president for University relations, was appointed to the board of trustees.

The organization, a branch of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, consists of 60 of the state's top business, labor, academic and professional leaders.

Additional specialists will be working on issues and goals, Darling said, which comprise the third administrative level of the program.

The increased contact SIU will have with the business community as a result of the appointments will benefit both students and faculty, according to Darling.

"We are expanding a great deal of effort to expanding our relationship with the business community," Darling said.

"Better relationships with businesses of all types in the state and the region means better career opportunities for graduating students," he said.

Darling said he hopes to use the Illinois 2000 Foundation to help create opportunities for business and community leaders throughout the state.

Darling also pointed out that Illinois ranks third among the 50 states in total amount of fore- to-trade. As a result, SIU business graduates can also look forward to better job placement opportunities internationally, Darling said.

The 2000 organization will begin meeting Feb. 16. After the first session, all appointees will become involved with what the Chamber of Commerce calls the "issue determination" segment of the three-year program.

This initial stage requires that investigation teams provide long-range forecasts and scenarios for areas including jobs and industrial development policy, urban economic development, the environment and the workforce.

By next September, goals and implementation strategies designed to deal with Illinois' economic difficulties will be presented to the state for consideration and final recommendations.

The Illinois 2000 volunteers will then attempt to implement the consensus goals through personal contact with business, community and public officials.

Support sought for recycling

By Bill Thoebold
Standard-Times Staff

The SIU Pollution Control Department (PDC) is seeking the support of the administration for a long-lasting recycling program on campus that could save SIU $100,000.

John Meister, head of PDC, said a recent survey of faculty, staff and graduate students indicates a willingness to participate in recycling. Of those surveyed by PDC last October, 94 percent support recycling. They said the state of Illinois requires solid waste recycling and 94 percent said they would participate in such a program.

The results of the SIU survey coincide with two other similar surveys. One was a telephone survey in September 1975 of Jackson County residents, who supported recycling of solid waste by 90 percent. The other was a survey conducted by the Environmental Protection Agency in 1974 with similar results.

Plans for a total recycling effort including newspapers, bottles, cans, computer printouts and paper are underway.

William Mitchell, graduate assistant and director for the solid waste recycling program said, "PDC wants to set up and establish a viable recycling program that will be long-lasting, profitable and environmentally rewarding."

Although the PDC is ready to support recycling, it also receives aid from the Environmental Center and the Student Government Association. The PDC receives no state funding.

Meister also said, "Right now we hope to break even. If it works we can make money, not only saving money on the amount of refuse to be disposed of but making money on the recycling itself."

Mitchell went on to say, "We want to get everyone involved to the point where recycling becomes a commonplace event."
Canadians find satellite piece

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) -- Canadian officials on Wednesday that another radioactive fragment from the Soviet spy satellite that "turned up over northwest Canada last week has been found on frozen Great Slave Lake.

It was discovered in the same general area where scientists found the other radioactive fragment, along with a harmless piece of the satellite, on Tuesday, the officials said.

Great Slave Lake is in Canada's Northwest Territories, near Fort Reliance, a weather station where 20 people work. It is about 700 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Hartzog: Illinois favored to win Intercollegiate meet

By George Coddah
Staff Writer

If it weren't for Mother Nature, the Saluki track team might be a favorite in this weekend's Illinois Intercollegiate tournament at Champaign.

The team has been able to practice for only four times since Jan. 10, that's due to recent snowstorms that have left the University in a deep freeze. It now looks like Illinois is the odds-in-favor to win the meet, according to Saluki Coach Lew Hartzog.

"The strength of our returning athletes and under normal weather conditions, we would be the favorite," Hartzog said emphatically, but his tone changed when he added, "this has been shot down by the inclement weather—and that's putting it mildly.

The Fighting Illini should be tough—they've had uninterrupted practices at the Armory in Champaign for the past three weeks. They also have a lot of new young talent, Hartzog said.

"This has been the best recruiting year ever for Illinois," the 56-year-old Hartzog said. "They have five state champions plus a lot of other really fine people."

Illinois lost many key members like triple jumper Charlton Ezuzien, distance men Craig Virgin and Jeff Joye and pole vaulter Doug Lass. But Illini track Coach Gary Wieseke has gone so far as to predict his current team as a troop of potential "superstar types."

Illinois will not be the only school to give the Salukas a tough go of it, according to Hartzog.

"The competition from the other schools is far superior this year than it was seven years ago. Teams like Eastern and Illinois State are getting some top talent."

The list of talent that Hartzog referred to is headed by triple jumper Steve Martin of Illinois State. Martin is the leading triple jumper in the nation.

"He actually has gone better than the NCAA record," Hartzog said. Martin and the 54-4 standard. "He's already gone 54-3 and his worst jump has been 53-3. This is class, class, class."

Hartzog also have Tom Pennick, a 26-9 long jumper and Eastern and a 7-2 high jumper and a 7-2 high hurdler.

"There are outstanding people scattered all over in all events," Hartzog said.

Two of the three schools will compete in the indoor tourney, including Western, Northern, Northwestern, Chicago Circle, Bradley, SIU Edwardsville, Augustana, Loyola and DePaul to mention the teams that Hartzog feels will score points in addition to SIU, Illinois, Eastern and Illinois State.

Last year Illinois won the tourney with 182 total points. The Salukas finished second with 162 followed by Eastern, Northern, Western and Illinois State. The Salukas have five firsts in the Intercollegiates, which over the past ten years have become a tense rivalry between SIU and the Illini.

"The rivalry developed 10 years ago and I know Illinois will come at us. To win against them, this year, too. The rivalry has become very intense over the years," Hartzog said, and we can't afford to be at our very best.

Hartzog expects the Illini to rack up points in the long jump, shot put, 60-yard dash, mile, quarter-mile, 1000, 2 mile and 4 mile dash.
Gymnasts hoping for large turnout

By Steve Courman
Staff Writer

The men's gymnastics team, fresh from an extra week off because of the cancellation at Illinois State, will open with Coach Bill Meade calling a "four week homestand" at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Arena against Illinois State. The Redbirds will be the first of four teams to invade the Arena during February to face the Salukis. The meet is scheduled to take place simultaneously with an SIU wrestling meet against Oklahoma. Admission is free to students with athletic event cards. 30 cents for students presenting fee statements, and $1 to the general public. Meade and the gymnasts would like to see a large turnout for the meet.

"We are shooting for 1,000," Meade said when asked about the size of the crowd he hopes to see in the stands. "We want to build it bigger from there."

Meade is aware of Illinois State's improved over the years. "Al Welsh (coach of ISU) has one of his strongest teams in years," Meade said. "They have been trying for years to knock us off and they think that they have the team this year to do it. But we don't think so."

Meade is lary of the Redbirds floor exercise team which has Mark Mueller, with a season high of 9.0, (third in the region) and Tom Solokvish, who ranks ninth among the floor exercise men in the region with a season's best of 8.9.

Another outstanding performer from Illinois State is pommel horse man Andy Issacson. Issacson presently ranks first in the region and seventh in the country with a score of 9.35. Right behind him in both ranking polls are the Salukis' Dave Shubie and 19.5. Issacson has placed in both the Midwest Open and the Windy City Invitational, but he will be tested by Shubie. Meade warned.

SIU's top man in the still rings event is Dan Forka. According to the latest statistics released by the National Association of Collegiate Gymnastics Coaches (NACC), Forka is currently the leader in the rings event in the region.

But the Salukis also have some impressive performers a show from the first half of their season. All-around man Mark Adams ranks fourth in the country with a season high of 3.6. Shubie is eighth nationally in the pommel horse event with a 9.3, and Kevin Mount 9.25 on the parallel bars puts him in sixth place in his strongest event.

As a team, SIU's best performance of the season came against Brigham Young when it came up with 213.96 points, good enough for sixth place in the national rankings.

Meade plans a few changes for the SIU meet and hopes for a new season high team score against the Redbirds.

"We are looking to do better in vaulting and try new dismounts off of our rings routines," Meade said. "We would also like a better team effort and hope for a score above 214. A score that high would indicate progress."

Lambert: Team must play well to win at Des Moines, Tulsa
By Bud Vanderstick
Sports Writer

"One look at the records of the Salukis' next two opponents might cause fans to think about doing things other than listening to their favorite on the radio. Their record would be an 0-14 performance, and Tulsa might be looked upon as a replica of Al McGuire's pet name for weak teams—East Cupcake.

But Lambert knows that a team has to earn its desert in the Missouri Valley. He is not overlooking the two-game road trip, which begins at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Des Moines Veterans Auditorium with a game against the Drake Bulldogs, who are 12-8 this season. The Salukis move on to Tulsa Saturday for a 7:30 contest with the Golden Hurricane, 5-4 and 14, at the Tulsa Assembly Center.

The Salukis, who go into the weekend action with a 6-2 Valley record, have played both teams previously and memories from those games will undoubtedly be used until they are put up. SLU somehow managed to win both games—72-68 over Drake and a 67-68 decision over Tulsa. The Salukis consider both teams typically Valley teams.

'We had to struggle to win both times and our players remember that,' Lambert noted. "The players are not taking the games lightly. We do not have the type of team that is going to blow many people out. We have to play well every night to win."

Coach Bob Ortegel, whose job may be in danger, is one person who would be qualified to write a graduate called "Easy Lessons in How to Lose a Close Game." Seven of Drake's 13 defeats have been by three points or less.

Ourney's luck is no better. In his duties as head coach at Drake from 1960 to 1963, since the Salukis joined the Valley in the 1975-76 season, they have swept the five games played with the Bulldogs.

It cannot be said that Friegel has not been trying to thing something new. He has tried various starting lineup, and guards Earl May and Napoleon Gaither, who were starters earlier in the season, now find themselves riding the bench at the start of games.

Wayne Kreklow, the Bulldogs' leading scorer with a 15.2 average, has moved from forward to guard where he teams with Ron Clark. A senior, Junior Chad Nelson, 6-11, starts at center and is joined on the front line by 6-9 senior Greg Scherschel, 6-10 forward Ernie Banks from Peoria.

The Bulldogs' imposing height on the frontcourt is cause for concern to Lambert as his team is still without the services of 6-9 sophomore Al Grant, who is out with a broken finger.

'I am concerned about Drake's ability to go to the backboards,' Lambert said. "They are small and we would have to play them where they are weak. Having height presents some problems for us in match-ups."

The Salukis are one team that is usually not very destructive, but the Salukis were happy to escape the storm in the earlier meeting between the two teams. SLU led by only: 42 points with 3:31 left in the Jan. 18 game, but Tulsa came back to make up the 16 points in the last two minutes.

Lambert considers Tulsa to be a team that could upset the Golden Hurricane if they continue their good strength on the road.

'They have the good style and any team that has physical strength can hurt us,' Lambert analyzed. "They also have played a lot of close games. They are capable of coming back at any time."

The Tulsa athletic department may have solved renewing its medical policy recently, because they were down by 16 points early in the game. Senior center Vincent broke his leg in the early season and is out for the rest of the year.

James Hudson and Ed Lambird are also out for the year due to injuries. Further forward Michael, guard Bob Stevenson, 6-foot 7-inch forward Larry E. is also injured this season, but all are now available for duty.

The Salukis like the road trip, not like the road trip to the University of Illinois, but they can find consolation in the fact that he has no sensors in his starting lineup. Sophomore Lester Johnson is the team's leading scorer with a 15-point average. Billy Keys, a 6'-9' sophomore, and 6'-9' freshman Jeff Kovach join the 6'-7' Johnson on the front line. Junior John Gibson and Terry Sins start at guards for King.

Lambert is less impressed with the 6-9. Don Thomas, Illinois, Kozakowski, Charles Moore, Anthony Fratzer and Christopher Giles all are available starters. Gary Wilson, Barry Smith, Wayne Abrams and Mike. Hoppchurch, 6-10, sophomore, has shown some progress in his battle with the flu which slowed his usual lightning- fast pace in last week's game against New Mexico State.

Wrestlers to take on Illinois

Kreklow one piece of Bulldog puzzle in right time

The people of Des Moines like to solve puzzles in their spare time. Their favorite and most difficult puzzle is the Drake basketball team. The Bulldogs were not expected to be 4-3 at this point in the season. Their 14-game winning streak around Des Moines bars has to be.

What's wrong with the Bulldogs? Inconsistency is the big reason why the Drake puzzle exists, but some of the pieces consider Kreklow is one of those pieces.

The 6-4 junior from Lincoln, Wis., is the most valuable weapon in the arsenal of the struggling Bulldogs. He is the team's leading scorer with a 15-point average. He is the team's leading rebounder with a 8.2 average and he scores at a 35-point clip in the Valley. Kreklow is a solid forward with equal efficiency, and his all-round game makes him the type of player that every coach looks for in the "Christmas stocking."

"I don't think there is one thing that is causing our problems," Kreklow reasons. "We have lapses during games where we just can't see in anything right. We get behind in a lot of games and when we start to make a comeback it's often too late."
