Local laundry owner requests liquor license

Because "it's not the most fun to do laundry," Carbondale may soon have a coin-operated laundry with an added feature a bar, says Clothes Pi Laundry owner William Mau.

Gas tax plan draws flak at hearing

Several Carbondale gasoline distributors protested the city's proposed two-cent-per-gallon fuel tax at a public hearing held at a meeting of the City Council Monday.

The council is examining the tax proposal as a means to bring needed revenue to the city. The city is expected to lose $600,000 in federal revenue sharing funds after Oct. 1.

The city estimates that the tax would generate $250,000 in annual revenue to the city.

Kevin Williams. representing the Smoot Oil Co. of Dongola, said that in-creasing gasoline prices to accommodate the tax would encourage Carbondale motorists to drive to other cities to purchase gasoline and would reduce the volume of gasoline sales in the city.

"Instead of inducing more "Instead of inducing more sales in the city of Carbondale, you would be preventing them," Williams said. "You would be directing the customer to purchase his fuel elsewhere. Instead of increasing revenue, it seems to me you would be directing it elsewhere." elsewhere.

New Costa Rican president says he'll push for peace

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Calling his presidential election a victory for Costa Rica's democracy, President-elect Oscar Arias Sanchez Monday said he would lead the nation on a mission to promote peace in Central America. With 94 percent of the nation's precincts reporting, Arias, of the ruling National Liberation Party, had 52.4 percent of the vote over his chief rival, Rafael Calderon Fournier, 36, of the conservative Social Christian Unity Party. PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — President Jean-Claude Duvalier, facing the worst crisis of his 15-year rule, Monday inspected riot-scarred downtown areas from a jeep driven by his wife in a speeding motorcade with sirens blaring. Haitians rushed to view the spectacle and some danced and shouted "for life, for life" in a reference to Duvalier's title as the president, who imposed a state of siege Friday to quell growing unrest, rode through the capital. through the capital.

Military budget boost unlikely, O'Neill says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is highly unlikely to give President Reagan the hefty increase in military spending he plans to ask for in his 1987 budget, House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said Monday. Reagan, who presents his budget proposal to Congress Wednesday, will request a 3 percent increase in military spending, according to information that has been circulating for weeks on Capitol Hill. O'Neill, D-Mass., said it would be 'pretty hard' to get an increase in military spending through Congress this year.

Bush says deficit won't prompt tax increase

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Vice President George Bush assured a crowd of car dealers Monday that President Reagan would reduce the national deficit under the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget legislation without raising taxes. "If we want batanced-outget registation without raising taxes. It we want interest rates to come down and inflation to stay down, we must bring the deficit down," Bush told about 7,500 members of the National Automobile Dealers Association at their annual convention. "We simply cannot saddle our young with this monumental debt.

Reagan urges support of anti-Marxist rebels

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan Monday urged the nation's religious broadcasters to support his efforts to win funding for guns and other lethal aid to rebel forces fighting Marxist regimes. In a brief videotaped message to the annual convention of the National Religious Broadcasters, Reagan invoked the anti-government struggles in Nicaragua, Angola and Afghanistan, saying in each case, "Their cause is just and deserves our support."

Mario Cuomo would be too time consuming.

Satellite yields closest look at Halley's comet

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — Scientists got their closest look yet at Comet Halley Monday when the comet flashed across the heavens within 25 million miles of the U.S. Pioneer spacecraft circling Venus. Ian Stewart, principal researcher on the Halley's comet project, said the information from the spacecraft shows the comet "much brighter and much larger than early in January" when observations were made. Stewart said the NASA Pioneer studies of the comet "unwillingly acquired a little more importance" because several major U.S. comet-watching experiments were delayed because of the Challenger disaster. Reagan speech to center on American family

President Reagan's prime time State of the Union address Tuesday night is not expected to contain dramatic calls for action but will center on the American family, including plans for a major review of welfare programs.

Aides said Reagan's speech Aides said Reagan's speech will last only perhaps 20 minutes — about half the length of recent addresses — and will feature somewhat punchier rhetoric than his first four The president is withholding until Thursday delivery to Congress of a 40-page list of legislative, administrative and foreign policy initiatives.

The address, to be delivered at 8 p.m. EST before a joint session of Congress, was delayed a week because of the space shuttle Challenger disaster last Tuesday.

The speech is expected to call for a Cabinet-level study of call for a Caoinet-level study of the $110 billion spent on a variety of federal welfare programs, with a report due on Reagan's Oval Office desk by Reagan's Oval Office desk by Dec. 1. Reagan also will propose an evaluation of federal programs and strategy to meet financial, educational, social and safety concerns of families

Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R. N.Y., reportedly involved in the negotiations, said Monday that "some very serious negotiations are under way, very sensitive," but he declined to give any details.

Gilman, in a telephone in-terview, said he has been in-volved for years in appeals on Shcharansky's behalf and was in East Berlin three weeks ago to meet a lawyer who has acted as a go-between in previous exchanges.

He said he was hopeful the contacts "will lead to some good news at an early date" and said a release of Sh-charansky would be an "im-portant symbolic gesture" by the Kremlin.

Shcharansky, a Jew, has been seeking permission to emigrate since the 1970s. He emigrate since the 1970s. He has served eight years of a 13-year sentence for spying for Washington. The 'minor' sports need a boost, too

REVENUE SPORTS GENERATE both money and publicity for SIU-C and get most of the fan support. But what of the sup-for SIU-C and get most of the fan support. But what of the sup-port for our so-called non-revenue sports?

Athletics Director James Livengood is working to promote non-revenue sports through ideas such as the SPA group, which stands for Students Promoting Athletics. The concept is to get students to inform other students that sports such as swimming and gymnastics need fan support just as the basketball team does. He said that the idea has been effective on other college campuses, and that it will work for SIU-C as well. The SPA program, which Livengood hopes to institute next fall, will concentrate on making University residence hall dwellers aware of campus sporting events through the use of rallies, banners and speakers.

LIVENGOOD'S IDEAS FOR sports promotion are meritorious and broad-reaching in scope, and if carried through will generate fan interest in sports not considered revenue sports. Speaking of which, how about a little support for the winter nonrevenue sports?

The Saluki men's gymnastics team recently beat the No. 1 team in the nation, Iowa, in a dual meet at the Arena. Congratulations are in order for this major sports accomplishment, which should move our fourth-ranked men's team even higher in the polls.

The women gymnasts are no slouches, either. They have won two dual meets and finished third at a meet this weekend in bekalb. The women gymnasts have 10 guaranteed meets left this year, five at home, including the Gateway Invitational. Last year's team sent two individual performers to the NCAA regional meet, and it was the first time that the entire team didn't go to the NCAA regional championships.

FANS SHOULD BE AWARE that seats at the Arena for all home meets are free. It is an exciting sport that demands vocal support.

The Saluki swim teams are also highly regarded nationally.

The Saluki swim teams are also highly regarded nationally. The women's team was fifth overall in the nation last year and is ranked 12th this year. The Gateway Conference championships are scheduled this weekend in Normal. The men's swim team also excels nationally and will send several strong competitors for national honors to the NCAA meet in March. Currently, the men have the fastest 200-meter freestyle time in the nation, as well as the second-ranked 200-meter preaststroker. The 1,000-meter freestylers are ranked third and fourth in the nation. Attendance at the Rec Center pool for all home swim meets has been strong this year. As always. for all home swim meets has been strong this year. As always, admission is free

With the records they have going for them, the athletes in these so-called minor sports have already made Livengood's promotion task a lot easier.

High interest rates at SIU

I have recently noticed that, despite the fact interest rates have fallen to 12 to 14 percent at local banks, SIU continues to charge 18 percent per year on its accounts. Day-care location determines use

The GPSC Executive Board members who wrote the Thursday, Jan. 23 letter to the DE claimed that at Rainbow's End Day Care facility, "faculty and staff have top priority." I checked with the director of Rainbow's End by telephone Jan. 23 and discovered that the longstanding and public policy of Rainbow's End has been to give first priority to students. Contrary to the GPSC

Executive Board letter, students do have "top priority" at Rainbow's End.
The reason there are less students than faculty and staff using the Rainbow's End facility is that the building currently used to house the day care facility is located approximately two miles from campus. campus.

Nazi rationale dangerous weapon

I feel both angered and frightened by Don Smith's recent letter to the DE in which he openly expresses anti-Jewish sentiments, and because of this I feel a response is necessary.

Mr. Smith, your venomous hatred for Jewish people reflects the attitudes that necessitated the creation of Israel in the first place. Lest we forget an episode in history that in human terms happened only a short time ago, Israel was formed out of the realization that over six million Jews had perished at the hands af an insanely efficient death machine. A safe ficient death machine. A safe haven was required, and still

It is also frightening that you use the same rationale employed by Hitler to gain and maintain power in Nazi Germany — the supposed domination of Jewish domination of Jewish leadership over affairs of state and industry.

Mr. Smith, Jewish people have as many diverse backgrounds, beliefs and behavior patterns as any other racial or ethnic group. To accuse Jews of greed and economic control is a slur that goes back even further than the equally ignorant stereotype that all black people are stupid and lazy. I must reject your religious

Keep English our language

English has long been the "tie that binds" for the people of the United States. It has solidified a nation out of what might have been a loose collection of feuding ethnic groups.

But today, the position of English as our common tongue is eroding rapidly. Immigrants are rejecting our time-honored custom of assimilation into our society in favor of maintaining their own separate languages and cultures. And our federal government is encouraging this trend by providing bilingual ballots, prolonged—rather than transitional—bilingual education in public schools, and bilingual social services including funding for a national Hispanic university and other services that discourage the learning of society in favor of maintaining and other services that discourage the learning of English.

King with a machine gun?

Let me get this straight, Mr. Smith. Not only do you claim to be a representative of "Almighty God," as opposed to all those pseudo-gods worshipped by all the other religions throughout the world, but you also support Khadefy and terrorism. You call "freedom fighters" shooting innocent people in an airport an honorable act. Then, according to your argument, that would make Vienna a part of the Palestinian homeland. I suppose you also think that the Americans were held hostge in Iran by "students."

You also recognize Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. as one of your leaders, yet you seem to be suggesting violent social reform. This is in complete contradiction to Dr. King, who advocated social reform through non-violent actions. Otherwise, Dr. King would have marched on Washington not with a dream, but with a machine gun.— Greg Sholes, junior, fisance.

Three winners applauded

What is the definition of a winner? One who wins more often than he loses? Are you kidding? One of the biggest fallacies of sports fans across the country is that if you want to be a winner, then you have to score more points than the opposing team.

'I just like to help people,' says woman police officer

By John Tindall

What would posses a woman to get up every morning and go to work with a .357 magnum strapped to her waist and a 12-guage shotgun in the car?

For Luanne Brown, a first year patrol officer with the Carbondale police, the answer

"I've always been somewhat of a rogue," she said with a dry wit that was to characterize the next few hours on patrol.

"Believe it or not, some of us are in this because we like to help people," she said. "I don't get a rush out of giving someone a ticket."

CHRIS MUENTER (pronounced "minter") is another of the four women on the Carbondale police force of 53 sworn officers. She became so worn officers. She became a cop after working as a police dispatcher for two-and-a-half years, and is characterized by fellow officers as "one of the best". Being a woman doesn't seem to make any difference Muenter said that being a woman works to her ad-vantage in some job situations. Sometimes the mere presence of a woman calms down a situation, she said.

situation, she said.

Brown, who is in her mid20s, grew up in "rural-urban" Wisconsin, and she has a quiet but friendly grin that almost breaks into a smile. It's like she knows something is funny but doesn't want to share it.

CITIZENS CAN see Brown, Muenter or many other Car-bondale police officers at work through the community rideprogram, an arrangement that allows residents to ride along with a police officer for four hours to see their tax dollars at work.

see their tax dollars at work.
Brown received a degree in elementary education from the University of Wisconsin-Madison and was a school teacher for a semester before she realized that teaching wasn't for her. She then worked for the Carbondale police department for five years as a clerk and then as secretary for the Carbondale Police Chief Ed Hogan. It wasn't until May 1985 that she became a full-fleged officer.

MY FRIENDS hear me "MY FRIENDS hear me telling stories and they think, 'Wow, how exciting,' but it's really nothing now," she said. Muenter is a 1980 graduate of SIU-C in social welfare. She worked as a bartender to put herself through school. "What better way to prac-tice my social welfare skills," she said with a grin.

Fear is an ever-present part of being a police officer.

"You have to be nuts not to be scared," said Muenter. "You have to work through the BROWN SAID her biggest fear is making a mistake on the job. She says "little tones can turn into big ones really quick" and that police officers don't always get the chance to muenter said she has never used the technique, but she almost had to during Halloween. She was in a scuffle with a partier and was about to use it when a couple of other officers assisted her.

When Brown isn't working, she's probably visiting friends and playing cards or partying. Partying?! A cop?

"Partying is a good way to pass the time."

Brown watches televisionn and has some definite opinions and has some definite opinions about what she sees.

"You can take that TV show 'Lady Blue' and burn it," she said, "because it's a crock...."
She looks more favorably on 'Hill Street Blues' for its realism and "Cagney and Lacey" because it examines social issues and presents a balanced view on controversial issues, "like the episode on abortion clinic bombings," she said.

MUENTER SPENDS much of her free time involved in sports, either watching them on television or participating in them. She plays softball and volleyball and helps represent the Carbondale police team in tournaments within the city. "Late Night with David Letterman" is unquestionably one of Muenter's favorite TV programs. "I be hyp-motized" she says in a flawless Letterman parody.

'Go for it anyway,' advises So. Illinois pageant winner

By Maureen Cavanagh Staff Writer

Miss Southern Illinois Kelly Dixon, junior in radio and television and native of Car-television and native of Car-bondale, is preparing to compete in the Miss Illinois pagaent July 12 in Elgin.

If Dixon wins the Miss Illinois title, she will advance for competition in the Miss America pageant, which will be in Atlantic City, N.J., Sept.

Dixon, a pianist since the age of 8, said for the talent portion of the contest sle plans to play a medley of George Gershwin's original improvisations and has been practicing every day in order to perform a "piece that is perfect."

"I WANT to be confident enough to play with my eyes closed," she said.

She has also been reading a book written by a former Miss America on how to win a pageant. It includes a "PR technique for yourself."

Dixon said the book advises, "If you consider yourself at

Dixon said the book advises,
"If you consider yourself attractive, hang around with those girls who aren't so attractive, so you can stand out.
If everyone else is wearing shorts and real casual wear, be a little more dressy. And, don't be so over-confident." over-confident. Seperate chapters are devoted to how to talk, sit, laugh, and receive applause, she said DIXON SAID she trusts the DIXON SAID she trusts the guidance provided by Dorothy Chamness, Miss Illinois pageant field director. Chamness is "tough in the sense that if she's with another sense that it she is with another panel of judges, and they give a girl 85 and 90, she may give them 65 or 70 simply because, in her eyes, she's looking for the well-rounded girl, and she may be strong in talent, but maybe not physically beautiful or vice versa.

"You can take a real homely girl and make her look like a Miss America, but if she's not personable within and con-fident within, she's going to turn the judges off," she said.

DIXON ALSO advised, "go for it anyway," to women interested in entering pageants who may believe that they don't have pageants who may believe that they don't have the looks considered essential by the judges. Dixon said talent will count for 50 percent of the pageant. She added that "getting up on stage takes a lot of guts."

chamness said "we hardly know them (the contestants)" after they have received professional beauty advice and grooming. "We haven't had to do that with Ketly though," she DIXON SAID she preparing for the Miss Illinois pageant by receiving help from beauty counselors and a personal aerobic instructor.

Also, she "diligently" views video tapes of past pageants to discover how the program will be conducted and what the judges are looking for in terms of the top ten they chose every year. Also, she said, she has divided her strategy into four different sections for com petition. They are: a seven-minute interview with a panel of judges, swimsuit, evening gown and talent competition.

"IT IS a great chance to get out in the world," she said, disclaiming any assertion that pageants are degrading to "The fact is that the money we win goes strictly for scholarship. We can't touch the money as far as it going in our pockets, unless it's for tuition, fees or books, whereas Miss USA doesn't have a talent category and the money is basically money that you put in your pocket. I think that is a major difference, because a lot of people feel that women are degraded in this pageant, but they're not, I don't think. It's just another way to earn money to continue your education. The fact is that the money

"I CAN'T say that it's sexist because I can understand how women think that it's uncomfortable to parade around in heels and swimsuits; it is uncomfortable. But, it's just a judge of character. It's a test of character to see your poise and to see if you have taken care of your body. You want to look good, especially in the work force. Some people feel it is a hinderance to be attractive and have a nice body, if you want to get a good job, but 95 percent of the time, you still want to look good." want to look good.

DIXON SAID if she "could get into the top 10 of Miss America and be on television, it would be an honor. Knowing that I really have a good chance of winning really ex-cites me, but then again, it's not just going to come to me without me having to work for without me h it," she said.

"Sometimes you meet different people, and, first of all,
they don't believe that you won Miss Southern Illinois, let alone are contested to become Miss Illinois," she said.
"Talking to those types of people makes me try even harder."

DIXON SAID she would like to someday host a television talk show dealing with consumer affairs. In the near future, her goals are to work in a small-market television or radio station and get more experience. "If that means staying in the area, that means staying in the area, that means staying in the area."

Dixon said her main motive for entering the pageant is to promote Southern Illinois, an area of much criticism that Dixon said she has had to negate her entire life.

"THE BIGGEST jump for me as far as getting other Illinoisans to understand how Southern Illinoisans' are was Southern Illinoisans' are was when I won the state championship in speech. I believe I was the only one from Southern Illinois to win that title. I was proud for Southern Illinois and proud for myself, because a lot of people from the north think that we hang out in the cornfields."

Dixon said she has had to "very carefully" schedule 13-credit hours of class around the pageant.

"THE ONE thing I've noticed is that people tend to categorize now. They feel that since the Black Affairs Council since the Black Atfairs Council is supporting me financially, that they feel like I'm under BAC's wing. It is not necessarily that way. I am a community effort. I'm Miss Southern Illinois."

Dixon said she has had Dixon said she has had people tell her that the first time you go to state is strictly for experience and that she is not likely to win. "But I always disregard that information," she said.
"The first black Miss Illinois was the queen for 1984," Dixon said. "I'm going to be the second black, and by then, it won't be so significant."

McAndrew in need of new track, say coaches, runners

A new track is needed at McAndrew Stadium, ac-cording to the unanimous opinion of track coaches and opinion of track coaches and team members, Jim Livengood, men's athletics director, and Duane Schroeder, site planner at the physical plant.

Laid in at McAndrew
Stadium four and a half years stadium four and a nair years ago, the rubberized asphalt track wasn't expected to last very long, said Schroeder. When the track was converted to metric in 1981, a rubberized surface was overlayed on the original cinder track.

The "cosmetic overlay" was inexpensive, composed of 60 percent rubberized material, said Schroeder.

"It wasn't an expensive system," he said. "We wanted to make the track useable for the time."

Throughout its' useable time, hundreds of athletes have treaded their spikes across it and shovels have scraped across the surface to remove snow and ice.

"The track is deteriorated," sai is badly said Don DeNoon, coach of the women's track team. "The chemistry of material has been

"It's atrocious and it's hard on the athletes legs," said Bill Cornell, men's track coach. "It's possibly the worst track in the state."

Lane one is heavily grooved, said DeNoon. "If you get out of the groove, to the left or right, you're running on a slant, which makes it difficult to keep your balance."

"We've had a large share of nagging injuries, shin splints, lower back injuries and stress fractures," said DeNoon.

Running on the track is like running on the road, which leads to injuries, said Cornell. Kathy Raske, SIU women's hurdler, says running on the track is dangerous, but is track is dangerous, but is something runners have to put

None of the eight men's and women's track teams invited to last year's SIU Invite put up with the poor conditions, however. Because of a however. Because of a drainage backup, the track flooded and the meet was cancelled.

Schools lost money because they travelled to Carbondale only to learn that the meet had to be cancelled, DeNoon said.

Softball coach prepares for upcoming season

The fresh breezes of spring aren't blowing through Car-bondale just yet, but that doesn't stop Saluki softball coach Kay Brechtelsbauer from gearing up for the up coming season.

"We're making progress, Brechtelsbauer said of he squad of sluggers.

"No question about it, the month off was a factor," Brechtelsbauer said. "We're a little rusty but we improve every day."

According to the 19th-year coach, the team is working on hitting two days a week and basic team skills three days a week under the weather-protective roof of Davies Gymnasium.

"We like to get outside when we can," Brechtelsbauer said, adding that it was difficult to expect much out of the un-predictable, now-you-see-sun, now-it's-raining Southern Illinois weather.

Being inside puts limitations on the extent of how much certain positions can practice, Brechtelsbauer said.

"For example, the pitchers are working very hard but won't be able to throw off of a mound until we get outside," Brechtelsbauer said. "They won't be able to push and drive off the mound like they can outside."

Brechtelsbauer added that hitting off a batting machine inside the gym wasn't quite the same as hitting live pitching.

"We've got some people back from break really hitting the ball well, but again, being

Williams and Piersall as coaches Cubs hire

Williams, 47, ranks among the Cubs' all-time offensive leaders and this year fell four votes short of entry to the Hall of Fame. He will serve as the Cubs' batting instructor.

Piersall, who was kicked out of the Chicago White Sox' broadcast booth in 1983 because of his "vitriolic" attacks on management, will spend his time evenly between the Cubs' major and minor league teams.

Williams, who also served as a Cubs' hitting instructor from 1980 to 1982 before joining the Oakland A's, will be the major league clubs' full-time hitting instructor, the spokesman said

"We're also glad to have Billy back with us. He was a great hitter and knows how to teach hitting. We've got a good offensive club and Billy should make it even better."

Chicago Cubs' Manager Jim
