Psychologist Talks At Meet Here Friday

In some ways we have too much data," said Dr. Leopold Waldner, "and in many others we don't have too much."
 Dr. Waldner, clinical psychologist from the University of Iowa, spoke Friday night at a faculty-student seminar on psychological techniques and diagnostic surveys for two outposts to examine the same problem, from the same viewpoint, on the same tests, and get two entirely different answers. The speaker, however, the evidence is based in so much data.
 "On the other hand, additional data is needed on two general problems. First, which techniques, techniques and diagnostic surveys have been found valid? Second, how can we develop other valid therapeutic techniques and diagnostic methods?"
 Waldner indicated that some of the most pressing problems are defining certain terms, such as "firm ego," and discovering certain things which exist outside accepted clinic behavior.
 During the question-answer session, Waldner said that he would like to run a long-term comparison relating events and responses in the clinic with those occurring in the places, such as in schools and homes.

Mail Box

I did as you requested and read your article, "On The Line." It is encouraging to find that something is being done.
 The proposed self-service system of distributing books may be an improvement, but I doubt that it will be. This method reminds me of a woman buying tomatoes in a supermarket: she squeezes several and takes a few from the bottom of the pile. I am anxiously awaiting the outcome of this new system. Unless it receives very close supervision, it may prove to be like a fire sale in a bargain basement.
 It is my opinion that decentralization of books to the appropriate departments has the most merit. Then the instructors would issue the books to their classes. This method would eliminate all lines and each department would be able to keep a better account of the future needs.

Almost All Agree Christmas Vacation Not Really One

By Harold Castleton
 Was your Christmas vacation a vacation? "I had to come back to SIU for a rest," said almost every one of the students and faculty members interviewed about their Christmas vacations.
 In most of the SIU contingent spent the holidays partying, working, skating, sleeping, watching ballgames or hunting. Spkilling of hunting, the most unusual hunt found on campus so far is Dr. Herb Strack, office of Student Affairs, who spent the holidays hunting crocodiles, lizards and frogs in Florida.
 "It was my first trip to Florida and I had a wonderful time," Strack said. "I also picked oranges and grapefruit and, you won't believe this, but the oranges are so large down there that I picked a whole basket of them Monday night while I was picking grapefruit."
 "I brought some of the lizards and frogs back with me, but I had to leave the crocodiles; they were too large. Everything seemed so strange down there, and it was the first time I ever went swimming outside on Christmas day."
 Other persons hunted more common things. One of these hunters was Don Cross, Salem, who claims that along with bagging eight or 10 rabbits during the vacation he spotted that his 11-year-old Cocker Spaniel was good for something. "It was a natural retriever," she is a nature retriever.
 "I saw 12 basketball games in two days at the Central's Holiday Tourney," Cross said.
 "I also worked. I drove a tractor to help my girl's father build a dam across a dry creek bed; packed stuffing boxes for the wells in the oil fields where my dad works, and did some selling for the Buntarion oil company."
 "I made it a point to get up early enough every morning to switch Tennessee Ernie Ford's TV show. I lost $4.75 in a 'friendly crap game.' All in all I was glad to get back to Southern for a rest," he said.
 Ben Danko, Chicago, worked for a post office 12 hours a day for nine days. He spent most of the last five days of the leave jock-lying on the Du Page River, that is until he fell through the ice and had to be pulled out by friends.
 "It was very cold up there," he said. "I was glad to get back to Southern for some relaxation."
 Bob Dunkel, St. Louis, went during the vacation down there, and it was laboring business, at least until he finished re-doing the interior of

New Building To Replace Old Dairy Center

A new dairy center to replace the present building on Thompson St., southwest of the football field, is being planned, said Wendell E. Kepper, dean of the school of Agriculture.
 "Dairy enterprise is an extremely important part of Southern Illinois agriculture and will become increasingly important as the years progress," said Kepper.
 He stated that not only is the present center outdated but its removal will improve the campus appearance.
 Although the center is still in the planning stage, Kepper has some idea what the building will be like.
 It will have a loafing barn for the cows, a milking parlor, a milk room for storage, a small arena for judging and a room for two students who will be on hand at all times to watch the herd, he said.
 The building will be built of wood, steel and concrete blocks.
 The tentative plans call for beginning construction next spring. The location of the building is to be one mile west of the campus—across the road from the dairy-breeder test farm.

Wakeland Takes 2-Month Sick Leave

Flord Wakeland, associate professor of music at SIU and director of the school's choral groups, has been granted a sick leave of two months on the advice of a physician.
 Wakeland has long supervised SIU's high school choral clinics and the Spring Music Festival. His leave will be spent resting in New Orleans and Florida. High blood pressure forced the brief layoff.
 His return to campus is expected about the first week in March in time to manage arrangements for SIU's "Music Under the Stars."

Campus Mail Service

The University post office is feeling the growing pains of Southern.
 This fall the three civil service employees of the office were "out of the line." The smooth running little corner of SIU suddenly turned into a bustling terminal of activity manned by 20 staff members.
 "On campus mail delivery," had been talked up for several years. Then all of a sudden the extra service had to start in effect.
 Eleven student carriers were enlisted from the student body. Junie cloth mail sacks were purchased and the routes were set up to be covered twice each day. By the third day of delivery the mail sacks had "filled out."
 They were replaced by more substantial sacks made at the physical plant.
 Campus mail took a tremendous jump in volume during the Christmas rush. Over a thousand dollars worth of personal packages were sold during December. During the rush period the metered mail machine registered 46,683 pieces. Mail volume is higher than ever this year because of the increase in faculty at Southern.
 Deliveries are made to over 65 offices twice each day with only morning stops being made on Saturdays. Six scheduled routes including the Vocational Technical Institute are followed to the corners. All "special delivery letters" are given immediate attention.
 Outbound mail is "picked up" in the various offices. Letters can be mailed after office hours by dropping letters through a night slot in the post office door.
 Night mail is sent out the following morning at 8 a.m. by mail carrier. The next batch leaves campus at 2:30 p.m. by

Salukis Topple Chips, Hurons For IAC Lead

By Gene Cryer
Reserve forward Gordon Lambert came off the bench to spark SIU to a 70-66 win over the Central Michigan Chippewas in the IAC opener here Friday night.

Lambert, who has appeared only briefly in previous games, scored eight points in the final minutes to help put the close-fought game into the win column for the hosts.

The first half was a seconds battle as the score was tied at 22-28 and 15-15, and the lead changed hands four times.

The Chips went to the dressing room at the intermission with a 35-33 lead.

By the Ties Score

Dick Blithe hit a jump shot after four minutes of the second half had elapsed to knot the score at 42-42.

The visitors retaliated with the baskets and a free throw to jump into a 49-42 lead.

The Southerners fought back with two threes by Warren Talley and Gus Doss, a basket apiece by Doss and Talley and a pair of field goals by Lambert.

The visitors scored their third points in a compressed period, 52-52 with 10 minutes left in the contest.

A basket by each squad kept the score even. Then, a basket by Lambert and Larry Whitelock and a brace of charity stripes by Gene Johnson gave the Salukis a six-point margin.

Salukis Gain Lead

The Salukis matched a basket and a pair of free throws by the Chips with two buckets by Doss and one by Johnson to move into a 68-58 lead.

The visitors outscored the Southerners 8-4 in the closing minutes, but the ball control tactics of the hosts made it impossible for the visitors to get close enough to do any damage.

Talley led the Salukis in scoring with 17 points on seven field goals and three free throws, but scoring honors for the even-

One-two-three kick, Salukis Seymour Bryson and Gus Doss strain for a loose ball in Friday night's contest with Central Michigan while Chip Center Don Ellis either practices punting or the can-can. SIU beat the Chips 70-66.

Saluki Grapplers Trip Normal Matmen 26-9

By Jim Herron
Thursday night at 7 p. m. the Saluki boys against the Kentucky College here in the Men's gym.

Indiana University is on this year's schedule and Wilkinson hopes to fare better against them than last year.

"This team has great potential," Wilkinson said, "with luck we can win the conference."

Last year the Salukis tied Normal in a thrilling match pulled out of the fire by Jack Spratt, who is out with a leg injury a present. Ray Bergfeld, 125 pounds, Le Grubbs, 130, Paul Steinbrugge, 177, and Ed Hayes, heavyweight, pinned their men. Steinbrugge and Hayes both pinned their men in less than a minute.

Shifting the men in the weight positions at the last minute, Coach Miller — Metzler (N) 6-3, Dan Kelly — Hess (N) 3-9, Steinbrugge — Rammussen (S) Pin, Hayes — Kiesewetter (S) Pin.

Final score, Southern 26, Normal 9.

Gagers Tangle With Bears Tomorrow

Salukis gagers, having won four in a row and seven out of 11 this season, face one of their toughest tests of the current season tomorrow night when they tangle with the Washington University Bears in St. Louis.

The Bears hold the University of Illinois, one of the top teams in the nation, to 75 points while scoring 74 themselves.

The Southerners lost to the Bears last year, but have won seven of the last nine games between the two teams.

Leading the Bears is 6-3 forward Jim Barton who is averaging about 20 points per game this year.

Rounding out the starting lineup for the Bears will be 6-4 Bill Callison at forward, 6-5 Jim Paul at center, 6-3 Art Buechler and 6-5 Bob Costen at guards.

SIU coach Lynn Holder will probably start Joe Johnson and Dick Blithe at the forwards, Gus Doss at center, and Warren Talley at one forward.

Talley's running mate will be either Larry Whitelock, Seymour Bryson or Gordon Lambert.

"I like to win every game," said Holder, "but I really want to win this one."

Paul Steinbrugge, SIU wrestling team captain, is in the process of pinning his opponent in their 191-pound match Saturday. Steinbrugge pinned his man in 35 to lead the salukis to a 26-9 victory.
