SIU-C not affected by smoking law

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

Recent legislation will put the heat on Illinois smokers by July 1, but the University won't be affected by the new law.

The Illinois Clean Air Act, signed into law last week, is no more restrictive than the University's current policy, which went into effect in July of 1988, Denise Gale, associate legal counsel for the University, said.

Gale said although she is not aware of any changes that need to be made in the University's policy, she has not gone over the new statute and it is possible that minor changes may be made.

"We have not yet obtained a copy of the new law, but we do expect to get a copy by the end of next week," Gale said. "We are not anticipating any changes."

In fact, the University's "Clean Air Policy" is more restrictive than the new legislation because it prohibits all indoor smoking by 1995. University President John C. Guyon said enforcing the total ban on all indoor smoking may be difficult.

"To implement a totally smoke-free environment, there certainly are some people who will have some concerns, but we are going to give it a try," Guyon said.

The University's smoking policy currently allows smoking in the following areas:

- Private dorms in which all occupants agree to allow smoking.

- Private residences on campus.

■ Single-employee offices that are either physically separated from other areas or have separate ventilation systems.

■ Common office or work areas where all employees agree to allow smoking.

- Up to one-third of a cafeteria, dining hall, study hall or lounge;
- University vehicles in which all

New dean selected for School of Law

By Mario Millikin

and University News Service

Vice President for Academic Affairs and Research Ben Shepherd announced the appointment of Harry J. Haynsworth as dean of SIU-C's School of Law Jan. 11.

Pending the approval of SIU-C Chancellor Lawrence Pettit and ratification by the SIU-C Board of Trustees, Haynsworth's appointment will go into effect July 1.

Haynsworth, who is chairman of the South Carolina Law Institute, will step into SIU-C's Law School dean position with experience after having served two terms as associate dean and one term as acting dean at the University of South Carolina.

Law school faculty member Peter Goplerud has been serving as interim dean since the resignation of former dean Rennard Strickland in July of 1988. Goplerud will return to his full professor status on the law school faculty in July.

Vice Chancellor for Administration Thomas Britton said final approval of Haynsworth will most likely take place sometime in March.

The process for appointment involves the president transmitting a proposal to the chancellor who then formerly places it for board consideration, Britton said.

"Everybody's real happy that he (Haynsworth) is coming on board," Britton said.

Bill to refocus language of anti-poaching law

By Phil Pearson
Staff Writer

State Rep. Charles Hartke, D-Effingham, said he has changed the language of a new trespassing law because of misinterpretation of the law.

He said his original intention was to take aim at poachers, not unfairly punish innocent hunters with an excessive fine.

"I repealed the $2,000 fine...I passed last year," Hartke said.

The law, House Bill 1250, called for a minimum $2,000 and a maximum $5,000 fine for trespassers. He said the minimum fine was excessive for a hunter who accidentally crosses a boundary or must go onto private property to retrieve game of a hunting dog.

Hartke said amendments to the law are in Senate Bill 731. Under this bill, Hartke said, the $50 minimum trespassing fee will be reinstated while poachers will be liable for a fine of $500 to $5,000 if convicted. He said this bill will better define trespassers and poachers.

"We cited six areas I felt were serious violations," He said.

- Using dynamite to gather fish.
- Using crossbows for hunting. (Handicapped hunt an exception.)
- Using pistols or rifles for the taking of migratory waterfowl.
- Spotlighting whitetail deer with

Dole: Foreign aid needs shift

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas called Tuesday for Israel and other big recipients of American foreign aid to take a budget cut so more assistance can be redirected to emerging democracies in Eastern Europe and Panama.

"Israel is our best ally in that part of the world, but we have got limits," Dole told reporters. "Israel has got a lot of preferential treatment."

The White House reacted coolly to the suggestion. Press secretary

Marlin Fitzwater, while acknowledging the competition for foreign aid will only grow stronger in the next budget year, was not prepared to condone a realignment of current priorities to meet new needs.

Dole said that aid to the five biggest recipients — Israel, Egypt, the Philippines, Turkey and Pakistan — could be trimmed to free money for needier countries in Eastern Europe and Latin America.

Fitzwater said the aid amounts for the five countries reflected "longstanding" U.S. policy.

"That doesn't mean we wouldn't like to have some money for other countries and other problems, but we just don't have it," he said.

In a column for The New York Times and later at a news conference, Dole said reallocation of current foreign aid commitments is the only "immediate answer" to the question of how to sustain progress toward democracy and free-market economies around the world.

Citing "changing priorities,"

Emergency declared in Armenia, Azerbaijan

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet leadership rushed 11,000 more troops Tuesday to reinforce soldiers trying to quell fighting between Armenians and Azerbaijanis that has killed at least 56 people and sent thousands of Armenians fleeing the embattled region.

"The situation is extremely tense," said Yuri Shatalin, commander of Interior Ministry special forces. "The information we are getting is more and more like reports from a warfront."

About 2,000 Armenians fleeing attacks by Azerbaijani nationalists had been evacuated by ferry and plane since Sunday, the official Tass news agency said, and Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennadi Gerasimov said the rescue effort would be intensified.

But the government's redoubled effort to stem the violence appeared to be faltering.

Radio Moscow's Interfax news service said nationalists from the Azerbaijani Popular Front were blocking the airport and train station in the Azerbaijani capital of Baku to prevent Armenians from fleeing the city.

Tass said "at least 300 trucks carrying militants" had massed on the borders of the disputed en-lave of Nagorno-Karabakh in Azerbaijan that supplies to the region were cut off by a rail blockade.

Special forces commander Shatalin said Soviet reporters had been attacked and their equipment smashed. The region was closed to Moscow-based foreign correspondents.

Shatalin said 6,000 of his troops and 5,000 army soldiers were sent to Azerbaijan and Armenia to reinforce a similar number of troops already assigned to the neighboring southern republics.

The parliament's presidium, or executive arm, also ordered navy and KGB units dispatched to the region when it imposed a state of emergency in designated areas late Monday, but officials did not say how many of those troops had been sent.

Troops already in Baku to enforce a state-of-emergency decree and curfew patrolled the empty streets in armored personnel carriers and on foot, shooting repeated bursts from their Kalashnikov rifles into the air to keep people indoors.

"What is going on now here in Nagorno Karabakh and northern Azerbaijan can unambiguously be

Busch dropped from basketball team

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

Senior David Busch, member of the Saluki basketball team for the past three seasons, has been dismissed by head coach Rich Herrin.

Herrin's decision to drop the Salukis' tallest player was related to the Jan. 8 incident when Busch elected to skip a team bus ride to the Western Kentucky game.

"When David Busch elected to leave the team and not travel to Bowling Green, Ky., with us on Jan. 7, I elected not to reinstate him," Herrin said. "The decision is effective immediately. He will, however, be retained on a full athletic scholarship for the remainder of the 1989-90 school year which is his fourth year at SIU."

"I took a stand for what I believe was right. I do not see berating anyone as much as I received. You've gotta take a stand for what you believe. If you don't, you must not believe in that concept very much."

—David Busch

Busch was dismissed from practice the day before the Western Kentucky game for showing disrespect to the Saluki coaching staff. Busch attributed his decision not to make the trip to the coaching staff's harsh treatment of the players and his dwindling playing time.

The 6-10 Busch plans to graduate at the end of the spring semester but does have another year of eligibility left. He said he has a variety of options to work with and he is not ruling out the possibility of transferring to another school. Busch said he is keeping an "open mind" in regard to any decisions he makes.

Busch would like to see his former teammates continue their winning ways.

"I will miss the teammate aspect," Busch said. "I'll definitely miss the players but I do wish them the best; and I hope that they do continue to accomplish their goals. Hopefully they'll continue to play well.

"I took a stand for what I believe was right," Busch said. "I do not see berating anyone as much as I received. You've gotta take a stand for what you believe. If you don't, you must not believe in that concept very much."

Busch, a prep star at Hoopston-East Lynn high school in Hoopston, was red-shirted at SIUC his freshman year and played in 15 games during the 1987-88 season. He played in 29 games last season and played in all of the Salukis' first 14 games this year prior to missing the Western Kentucky game.

Herrin: We're not out of Valley chase

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

A balanced offense and a stingy defense add up to a 12-4 record for the Saluki men's basketball team as the Missouri Valley Conference season ends full swing.

Although the Salukis are 12-4 overall, they suffered losses to conference foes Illinois State 85-75 and Drake 79-71 and are at the bottom of the Valley standings with an 0-2 record.

Head coach Rich Herrin acknowledges starting out 0-2 is a difficult situation for the Salukis but he does not consider them out of the running for the conference title.

"I think you need to have visions that we're capable of being the dark horse and winning it," Herrin said. "I'm not saying that we will, but if you don't have the confidence and the goals that you can do those things then you'll never do it. I think we have a chance to slip in and win it."

The Dawgs have allowed opponents to shoot only 41 percent from the field and a maver 27.7 points per game. Rebounding also is a piece of the defensive puzzle. The Salukis average seven more boards per game than their opponents.

"We have excelled on defense and our rebounding has been tremendous. That just makes you a good basketball team," Herrin said. "Defense has done it."

"We're happy that our young men come to play each and every time we throw the ball up," Herrin said.

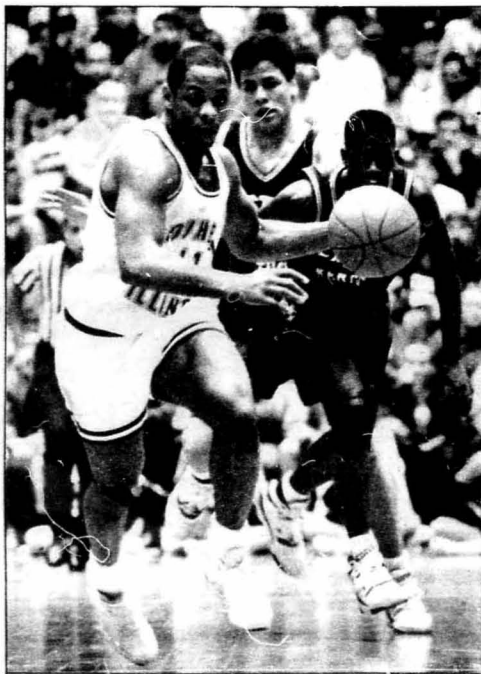

Senior guard Freddie McSwain leads the Dawgs in scoring at 17.6 points per contest — second in the Valley — while shooting 48 percent from the field.

Senior center/forward Jerry Jones averages 16 points per game while shooting a solid 53 percent from the field. He also averages 10.4 rebounds per contest, best in the Valley. His 24 blocked shots leads the conference.

Sterling Mahan, a junior point guard, chips in 15.6 points per game. He also dishes out 4.8 assists per game in addition to averaging 2 steals per contest. He leads the Valley in both categories.

Junior forward Rick Shipley averages 12.3 points and 8.2 rebounds per game.

The point guard position demands solid judgment, execution, discipline and athleticism. The Salukis didn't have to look long for anyone to fill the position.

Sterling Mahan, a junior in Administrative Justice from Maywood, was head coach Rich Herrin's number one choice for the point position since the beginning of the basketball season.

Mahan faced a difficult challenge when it came time to fill in for the departed Kai Nurnberger, an all-Missouri Valley Conference selection as the Salukis' point guard last season, who is playing professional basketball in Germany.

Nurnberger started 89 games during his four-year career for the Salukis and ranks ninth on the all-time scoring list with 1,348 points. Last season he averaged 16.4 points and four assists per game.

Although playing behind Nurnberger limited his playing time, Mahan waited in the wings until he received his chance and made the most out of it. He played in 33 games last season, including seven starts, in helping the Salukis to a 20-14 season. Mahan averaged 8.9 points per game and was named the Dawgs defensive most valuable player.

"My first two years I had to play behind him and I learned a lot from Kai," Mahan said. "Kai is a good player who always worked hard. I learned a lot about the game from watching him play and talking to him. When I did get the opportunity, I went in there and tried to play well."

To say Mahan has filled Nurnberger's shoes would not be enough. His quickness and athletic talent on the basketball court allows him to excel on the offensive and defensive end of the court.

In guiding the Dawgs to a 12-4 start this season, Mahan is averag-

Women's basketball streaking in conference

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

The Saluki women's basketball team have found the right combination and the best may be yet to come according to coach Cindy Scott.

"We have a young team and they are just playing better and better each time out," Scott said. "That is what you want."

After losing their first two conference games of the season at home to Indiana State and Illinois State Jan. 2 and Jan. 4 respectively, the Salukis have won four consecutive conference games.

The Salukis started their streak with road victories at Bradley and Western Illinois.

SIU-C, the Gateway Conference favorite according to the coaches preseason poll, returned to the Arena Jan. 11 and defeated Northern Iowa 78-59. They kept their winning streak alive with a 68-49 win over Drake Jan. 13.

The Salukis, who were 4-3 at the conclusion of the fall semester, lost four consecutive games prior to their recent Gateway winning streak. This included losses to nationally-ranked Northern Illinois and Purdue on the road, and heart-breaking Gateway losses to Indiana State and Illinois State at the Arena.

But thanks to the recent winning streak, the Salukis are back in the thick of the conference race. The Salukis and Bradley are tied for third in the conference standings with 4-2 records. Illinois State leads the pack at 5-0 and Southwest Missouri is second with a 4-1 mark.

"I think everybody is settling into their roles," Scott said. "We are pretty comfortable with our lineup."

Scott made a couple of lineup changes during the break that boosted the Saluki play.

Sophomore center Kerri Hawes and freshman guard Angie Rougeau were inserted into the starting lineup.

In the Saluki victories over Bradley and Western Illinois, Hawes responded to her first two starts of the season by averaging seven points and ten rebounds. She has been a fixture in the Saluki lineup since.

"She (Hawes) is just going to get better and better," Scott said.

Rougeau moved into the starting five by averaging seven points and six rebounds per game in Gateway play.

"Angie is really playing well," Scott said. "By watching her play you wouldn't know she's a freshman."

The Salukis are receiving better guard play from sophomore Colleen Heimstead and junior Alison Smith who is averaging over 10 points in conference games.

Heimstead is in control of her game now, Scott said.

"A big part of Colleen's game is her confidence," Scott said. "She is more relaxed now and that is a key in her play."

Junior forward Amy Rakers, a preseason all-Gateway pick, has been on a rampage from the start this season. One of the more dominant forces in the conference, Rakers has averaged 23 points and 11 rebounds per game in league play. In the Gateway, Rakers is third in scoring, tops in rebounding and second in field goal shooting.

"The girls are feeling good about themselves right now and they should," Scott said.

Jesuit priest killings case turned over to civil court

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — The independent unit investigating the killings of six Jesuit priests turned the case over to a civilian court Tuesday, and eight soldiers suspected in the case were brought in to testify. Col. Guillermo Alfredo Benavides, director of El Salvador's Military Academy who is the highest-ranking officer named by President Alfredo Cristiani as a suspect in the case, was hustled into the San Salvador courthouse under heavy guard to appear before Fourth Penal Court Judge Ricardo Zamora.

Albanian leader denies reports of unrest

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Albanian leader Ramiz Alia, speaking amid new reports of mass detentions in his country, flatly denied Albania was under emergency rule and lashed out at Yugoslav news media for saying "filthy things" about the nation, the Albanian news agency ATA reported Tuesday. "The state of emergency, demonstrations, unrest and killings are found nowhere in Albania," Alia told workers Monday at an automotive plant in Tirana, the capital, according to an ATA report monitored in Warsaw.

Over 7,500 strike at five Polish coal mines

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — More than 7,500 coal miners walked off the job Tuesday at five mines in southern Poland in the inflation-plagued nation's worst labor unrest since the election of a Solidarity-led government in June. Solidarity leaders at the mines said the strikes were mostly over wages, although workers at some mines were pressing for the removal of allegedly corrupt managers and changes in working conditions. Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki, moving quickly to end the strike, promised to meet Thursday with labor leaders.

Pirates suspected in deaths of 14 Vietnamese

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The bodies of 12 partially clothed or naked Vietnamese women and two boys washed ashore in southern Thailand, apparently strangled and thrown into the sea after a pirate attack on a refugee boat, police said Tuesday. "On Sunday and Monday villagers reported finding a total of 11 bodies floating near the shore," said Lt. Col. Ratakan Kanjanachote, police chief of The Sala District, 380 miles south of Bangkok. On Tuesday, three more bodies — one woman and two boys — were found in the same area, apparently victims of the same incident, a police official said.

Israel would take aid cut under Dole plan

WASHINGTON (SHNS) — The Bush administration gave cautious encouragement Tuesday to a politically explosive suggestion by Senate Republican leader Robert Dole that U.S. aid to Israel and four other countries be cut to provide more aid to Eastern Europe and Panama. Dole, R-Kansas, suggested a 5 percent cut — about $330 million — in the $6.6 billion in U.S. military and economic aid to Israel, Egypt, the Philippines, Turkey and Pakistan. Together, the five countries receive two-thirds of the total $9.9 billion annual bilateral U.S. assistance.

'Little war' erupts at non-union coal mines

WORTH, W.Va. (UPI) — Gunmen fired into a crowd of picketing coal miners Tuesday, killing one man and wounding two others at the mouth of two non-union mines in what one lawman called "a little war" in rural West Virginia. One witness told police more than 30 rounds were fired in the mysterious shooting around 8:30 a.m. on an access road to the two mines. Authorities said three pickup trucks drove by the demonstrating mine workers, and then shots were fired from a section of woods above the intersection, about 200 yards away.

Tom Petty to give concert at SIU Arena

By Jeanne Bickler
Entertainment Editor

Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers will appear at the SIU Arena at 8 p.m. Feb. 23, with special guest Lenny Kravitz.

This tour is named after the band's 1989 hit album "Full Moon Fever." The album features such familiar hits as "Free Falling" and "Running Down the Dream." The unusual video for "Running Down the Dream" is animated, making Petty a cartoon character in an action/adventure Alice in Wonderland type experience.

Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers also are responsible for eight other albums, some of which have achieved wide acclaim. The first album the band released in 1976 made a hit of Petty's song, "American Girl."

The band's 1979 album "Damn the Torpedoes" produced the group's greatest number of hits with such songs as "Refugee," "Even the Losers," and "Don't Do Me Like That."

Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers have proven themselves to be a rock and roll band in the truest sense of the word, with incredible staying power which has brought the band from the 1970's to the 90's.

The opening act, Lenny Kravitz, currently has a single out called "Let Love Rule."

John Levy of Virgin Records (Kravitz's label) said Kravitz plays "thought-provoking rock and roll."

Tickets for the show go on sale Jan. 20 at all SIU Arena outlets. They are $18.50 reserved.

Summit Brass ensemble scheduled to give concert at Shryock Auditorium

Summit Brass, the self-proclaimed "American Premier Large Brass Ensemble" will appear at Shryock Auditorium at 7 p.m. on Jan. 28.

The concert is being billed as an alternative to television on Super Bowl Sunday.

To date Summit Brass has released three albums, ranging from works of classical baroque, to Dixieland jazz, to patriotic marches.

The program will feature the classical works "O Vos Omnes" by Pablo Casals, "Overture To the Musick Royal Fireworks" by G.F. Handel and "Two Canzoni" by Giovanni Gabrieli.

Contemporary works will include "Concerto for Trumpet, Brass and Percussion," and "Animal Ditties" by modern composer and Summit Brass member Anthony Plog.

The featured piece "Keystone Celebration" is a medley of works by John Cheatham, commissioned especially for the Keystone Brass Institute.

There also will be works by leagues in the St. Louis Brass Quintet decided to get America's finest brass players together to create Summit Brass in 1986.

Major orchestras represented in Summit Brass include New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Pittsburgh. Along with these members are top university music professors from Juilliard, Yale, DePaul, Rice, Carnegie Mellon and Manhattan School.

Summit Brass comes to SIU-C

G.W.E. Frederick and Mussorgsky.

The ensemble's founder David Hickmott and some of his colleagues of the Illinois Arts Council's Arts Tour '89. These musicians perform more than 180 concert dates a year.

Members of Summit Brass also are responsible for the Keystone Brass Institute, an annual musical conference, which gathers an international contingency of advanced brass students and professionals.

SIU's brass musicians are welcome to attend a workshop with Raymond Mase, a trumpet player for Summit Brass. The workshop will be held at Altgeld Hall at 3:30 on Sunday afternoon and will conclude at around 5 p.m.

Opinion & Commentary

To-do list necessary for University in '90s

BEFORE CLASSES become too demanding and work gets in the way, consider the state of the University. During the last half of the last decade, we witnessed tremendous advancements in the University's strengths. But we also saw its usual problems deepen.

On one hand, the University expanded its horizons and opened its door in Japan; as England was in its prime, the sun never sets on SIU.

BUT WE ALSO can attest to a lack of funds to stimulate and help strengthen existing programs. The status of those new programs borne into poverty could slip easily from weak to worthless.

The multimillion dollar addition to the Recreation Center completed last fall has made indoor track meets possible at the University. However, the $6 million-plus price-tag that will distinguish the Fitness Center from other recreation facilities nationwide has caused some students to question the school's priorities.

AND WHAT about our priorities? As a mass, we are capable of pitching in and working toward common goals. Let's decide on a feasible set of objectives and speak in unison. If we can achieve cohesion, we can overcome some of the problems facing the University.

Below is a University list of things to do. While not comprehensive, it may include goals that can be attained by working together.

- Seek better accessibility to University leadership, from members of the Undergraduate Student Government to the chancellor. After all, they work for us by working with us.

- Increase the overall graduation rate. In 1988, 48 percent of those students who began their career in higher education at the University graduated.

- Urge University personnel to hire more women and minorities. Let's stop admitting and start acting.

- Stop complaining about the lack of parking spaces on campus and use our feet instead of our mouths. As long as the Arena parking lot remains relatively empty, our demands for creating new lots cannot be justified.

- Recognize propaganda and treat it accordingly. Open minds are a necessity for a decade that promises change at home and abroad.

- Strive for better study facilities on campus, such as establishing a healthier library budget. This may produce a wider assortment of periodicals and books and establish longer library hours.

- Abide by the University's policy on sexual harassment. A survey conducted in 1988 at the University revealed that half of 230 students questioned knew at least one person who had been sexually harassed; 30 percent said they had experienced harassment first-hand.

- Pressure Illinois lawmakers to settle on a workable solution to tuition hikes. The current answer from the Illinois Higher Board of Education is a tuition "freeze." This tactic to suppress tuition hikes will be put into action only if the General Assembly meets all budget requests by state universities. Should the General Assembly fail to dish out anything less than expected, universities likely will turn toward tuition hikes as a source of revenue. This is not an acceptable solution to the recurring problem of low funding.

- Tuition control must be addressed in a manner acceptable to all aspects of the University. By raising tuition to help accommodate the 6 percent salary increase IBHE recommended, low income students may not be able to afford the rising costs of higher education. A permanent hike in income taxes to support these increases would be one alternative.

- For those paying rent, work toward more productive tenant-landlord relationships. Contact the student tenant union on campus for alternative solutions to housing problems.

- For those members of the University community who have children, take advantage of the resources offered on campus. For instance, the Child Development Laboratory has extended its services to include evening child care from 5:45 to 10 p.m., Monday through Thursday, throughout the semester. The Recreation Center also offers youth sports programs throughout the year to entertain and teach skills at all levels.

Americans troubled by apathy

There is a disease slowly tightening its grip on this country that is more dangerous than cancer or even AIDS. That disease is simple, blatant apathy.

Next time you start to blame the government or society for something, take a long look in the mirror. Each individual is part of the government and society. Each is responsible.

Granted, there are very powerful people that may have the liberty to trample us at times. These people have the liberty because we have voluntarily relinquished ours. We have done this by being lazy or set in the "Me" mentality of self and nothing else.

Ask yourself these questions and see where you stand.

- Did you vote when you last had the opportunity, and, if so, did you understand the issues and know where the candidates stood?

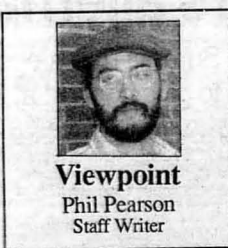

- When was the last time you wrote or telephoned an elected official to tactfully, but firmly, inform him or her of your thoughts on an issue?

- Can you name the elected officials charged with your representation in government?

- Do you buy a newspaper just so you can get your daily dose of comics and Ann Landers before lining the cat's litter box?

The list could go on forever. The point, though, is all of us need to evaluate where we stand and what to do to become more a part of the world that affects us all.

The apathy of the electorate in the United States, the birthplace of democracy, is inexcusable. Of all the nations in the world with unfettered elections, the United States has the lowest voter turnout. This weak participation has been discussed during the last few presidential elections, but to no positive effect.

We are obligated to voice our opinions and let our elected officials know what we expect. After all, we have to pay the taxes they levy and obey the laws they pass. We are paying them to represent us, and, for the benefit of the whole, we should get our money's worth. We can by calling, writing, signing petitions and voting.

This does work. Local environmentalists, for example, have used these methods to realize part of their goals and attract attention to their cause. They contacted the appropriate officials, demanded answers and public hearings. More than that, they strove to rally support by informing anyone who would listen to the issue and their perspective on that issue.

In this fast-paced world, it is easy to fall into the trap of the "Me" mentality. Consequently, by the time an issue becomes strictly a "Me" issue, it is probably too late.

The time to take care of a problem, any problem, is in the nuisance stage. Having to remove an entire leg riddled with cancer is a much more painful and permanent operation than taking care of the little lump on the foot. Nip it in the bud if you don't want something. If you want something, stand up for it.

We too often take our democracy for granted. We applaud the poets and plumbers in China and Romania for strides for freedom. Many of the freedom seekers in those countries have lost everything, including their lives in some cases, for the right to have a say in the administration of their country and culture. Yet, many of us can't find a few minutes to vote, not to mention a half-hour to write a letter or make a telephone call.

Recently on one of his morning radio programs, veteran journalist and commentator Paul Harvey asked what was wrong with America. Why do Americans look to Washington to solve all their problems and to shield them from all evils? He even went so far as to propose that what America wants is a baby-sitter, not a representative body with the common good in mind. He proposed our inactivity is slowly transferring the power over this grand union to a select few. Our forefathers and founders cared for themselves and did what they felt to be right, whether it was going to war or braving the frontier.

The adage that says, "If you're not part of the solution, you're part of the problem," is not idle talk but a challenge to each of us. If a person chooses, by inactivity, to be part of the problem, the right to complain has been forfeited.

Feds seek tighter reign on daycare

Some commentators call it the "ratchet clause." The lawmakers call it "denigration." Either unbecomingly name is too good for Washington's latest power grab: its move to take regulation of day care away from the states.

Denigration would forbid a state to make its day care rules more lenient unless Washington agreed. Most of the day care bills passed by either house of Congress last session include this mistaken provision.

Thus, if California — which elaborately regulates day care — should decide to require 14 hrs. 1 of the present 15 college courses for certain supervisory jobs, it would have to get permission from the secretary of Health and Human Services to make the change.

The assumption here is superior wisdom in Washington. But federal bureaucrats have no lock on truth or effectiveness — as the oversight of the bankrupt savings and loan industry proved.

Furthermore, distant bureaucrats are more likely than those close to an activity to load modest programs down with paperwork and rigid requirements. The Department of Agriculture's Child Care Food Program, for example, subsidizes food for day care centers willing to keep detailed logs and comply with 30 pages of fine print. Predictably, only the largest and most institutional centers choose to take advantage of the program.

Complying with such rules forces up the cost of day care. But professional centers are already beyond the means of many families — and besides, most working parents prefer care by relatives or sitters in their own or a neighbor's home or in their church.

Parents tell pollsters they like the warmth, small scale and flexibility of informal care. Yet the bills before Congress would drive much of that care underground or out of business. They would require states not only to comply with new federal mandates — 183 of them in the Hawkins bill — but also actively to enforce all the rules now on state books. In more than half the states, these include regulations, not currently enforced, affecting informal, at-home care.

Under the ratchet clause, remember, not one of those rules could be relaxed without a special dispensation.

Of course, there is still time to prevent this unreasonable state of affairs — if members of Congress hear from enough troubled voters in the next few weeks.

Steps toward new services.

Dole noted that a 5 percent reduction in the amount now going to the five major recipients, which together consume more than two-thirds of the foreign aid budget, would make available about $330 million for Poland, Panama, Hungary and other countries "that under current allocations would not receive one penny of American aid."

"They must understand the government has got a big deficit," Dole told reporters. "Where are we going to get the money, where does it come from? It's fair across the board. It is an effort to meet new obligations."

Israel benefits from a strong lobby in the United States, as do many of the other large aid beneficiaries, and Dole complained that

"pressure groups" have led Congress to lock in large sums of aid to certain countries that might be better used elsewhere.

"It shouldn't be whether Israel goes along; it should be whether Congress goes along," Dole said. "We are a sovereign nation. That is a judgment we ought to make, rather than some lobbying group, whether it is Israel, Turks, Greeks, or the Philippines."

"It is a new ball game. We've got new players and we've got new obligations. We need to take a look at how we spend our money, and there's a scarcity of it. Maybe Israel ought to look at their economy and look at some of their inflationary trends and how they can help us save some money."

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, objected, saying the needed money should come from "unnecessary weapons programs" as the Strategic Defense Initiative and the B-2 bomber.

The American Israel Public Affairs Committee a powerful lobbying group in behalf of Israeli interests, said it shares Dole's concern about aiding the emerging democracies, but it "should not be at the expense of other vital U.S. policy objectives." The group called for increasing the foreign aid budget.

At the State Department, spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said abolishing the system of "earmarking" foreign aid would give the president "more flexibility to allocate funds in a changing world." The largest "earmarks" go to Israel and Egypt.

called civil war," said Maj. General Yuri Kosolapov, commander of the embattled region.

The new round of clashes between Azerbaijanis and Armenians was the worst ethnic strife since President Mikhail Gorbachev assumed power in March 1985, and it raised to more than 250 the number of deaths since the violent dispute over the Nagorno-Karabakh enclave in Azerbaijan erupted nearly two years ago.

Interior Ministry official Vladimir Yanchenkov said 56 people had died and 156 were wounded in four days of ethnic clashes in the neighboring republics of Armenia and Azerbaijan.

Yanchenkov said 28 of the dead were Armenians, 10 were Azerbaijanis, 16 were members of other nationalities and two were police officers. He gave no separate casualty figures for Baku where the slaughter of Armenians first erupted Saturday. Soviet news reports had put the Baku death toll at 34.

Shatalin said one Interior Ministry soldier had been killed and 11 "badly wounded," and that four of his troops were missing. He said 49 "instigators of pogroms" had been arrested and hundreds of weapons were confiscated.

Eduard Aikazian, the Armenian government's permanent representative in Moscow, said only a few thousand Armenians remained in Baku from a total of 300,000 in the city of 1.7 million.

Aikazian said 220,000 refugees from throughout Azerbaijan had fled to neighboring Armenia and about 100,000 had gone to the Russian republic.

More than 300 Armenians stood in the snow in front of the Central Committee of Communists Party headquarters in Moscow and screamed, "Shame on Gorbachev."

The protesters also carried huge black banners saying, "The slaughter of Armenians is on your conscience Gorbachev" and "History will not forgive you Gorbachev."

occupants agree to allow smoking. In approving the policy in 1988, Guyon said he was considering the health of both smokers and non-smokers and Gov. James R. Thompson said he too had the same concerns.

"Approximately 250 Illinois residents die each year from smoke-related illnesses," Thompson said in his signing message attached to the bill. "An additional 20,000 Illinoisans die from smoke-related illnesses. House Bill 1695 (the Illinois Clean Indoor Air Act) will save lives."

The new law requires State and local government agencies, school districts and owners of public places to make reasonable attempts to prevent smoking outside of designated areas by posting signs and contacting law enforcement officers if the law is not observed.

Places in which smoking will be prohibited unless otherwise posted by the new law include: hospitals, restaurants, retail stores, offices, commercial establishments, elevators, indoor theaters, auditoriums, meeting rooms, nursing homes, educational facilities, public conveniences, concert halls, libraries and art museums.

Five-year-old trapped in icy pond clings to life

FAIRFAX, Va. (UPI) — A 5-year-old boy who survived 40 minutes under water in an icy drainage reservoir was in critical condition Tuesday, and his doctor said the comatose child was breathing with the aid of a respirator.

Dr. Craig Futterman said most of George Sader's major organs — including his brain, lungs and liver — had sustained damage. The primary concern was swelling of the brain of the boy, who fell through the thawing ice on the reservoir pond Monday while with two of his cousins.

It was "impossible to tell at this time" whether any of the organ damage was permanent, Futterman said. But he added that if Sader survives, the boy has less than a 2 percent chance of not having permanent neurological damage.

"It would be extremely unusual and extraordinary" for Sader to recover completely, Futterman said at a news conference at Fairfax Hospital. "Fortunately, though, he does have the criteria for going down that path."

Sader was in a coma and on a respirator but his heart was beating on its own. His body temperature, 90 degrees at the time he was brought to the hospital Monday afternoon, had risen to 102 degrees.

boy's heart was doing "surprisingly well."

Sader and two older cousins had walked onto the ice-covered pond behind a group of townhouses in Centreville, about 20 miles west of Washington, D.C. The ice, beginning to thaw because of warming weather, suddenly gave way, said Lt. Michael Reilly of the Fairfax County Fire and Rescue Department.

One of the cousins, Vivian Daniels, 12, fell into the water but managed to pull herself out. The second cousin, Carol Zakkak, 14, was rescued.

Reilly said Zakkak tried unsuccessfully to hold on to the boy, and he was trapped for 40 minutes in the icy water.

Both girls were treated for hypothermia at Fair Oaks Hospital. Zakkak was in stable condition Tuesday and Daniels was released, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The boy's family kept a vigil at his bedside in the pediatric intensive care unit. They have declined comment.

When the boy was brought to the hospital, he immediately underwent a cardiopulmonary bypass — which involves taking the blood out at the level of his heart, warming it, and placing it back into the body.

the intent of taking the deer.

"Hunting out of season or at night except when allowed by law.

"Being found to have game killed out of season.

Hartke said forensic specialists with the Illinois Department of Conservation have the ability to run tests on even frozen meat and tell when the animal was killed."

Kevin Martin, legislative liaison at IDOC, said Hartke's original bill caused much confusion within IDOC due to the "very vague" definitions in the bill. Martin said the new proposals in Senate Bill 731 will simplify enforcement of trespassing and poaching laws.

State Rep. David Phelps, D-Eldorado, said in a prepared statement he will work to ensure the amendments to the confusing House Bill 1250 become law.

"The Department of Conservation has interpreted House Bill 1250... to include hunters and their dogs who wander onto private property. This is unfair, and I am going to work with the Department of Conservation to straighten out the problem," Phelps said.

Marion developer proposes park for processing hazardous wastes

MARION (UPI) — A developer said Tuesday he received an "open-minded" reception from the Southern Illinois village of Dowell where he has proposed a coal industrial park that would turn hazardous waste into synthetic fuel.

Marion real estate developer J.D. Castellano met Monday with members of the Dowell Village Board. The proposal is in the "planning stage" and would need approval from state and federal authorities as well as the local board, Castellano said.

"They want to see for themselves what's involved in handling hazardous waste," Castellano said.

Castellano proposed the development of a coal industrial park in the small community of 500, located south of Du Quoin. Castellano suggested three possible operations at the park: washing spoiled coal from derailed coal cars; reclaiming coal from coal waste material called 'gobs' surrounding area mines; building a fuel-blending plant that would combine coal slurry with other industrial byproducts.

Castellano said the fuel-blending proposal seemed to be the most controversial. He said his plan had nothing to do with a fuel-blending operation proposed last month near Zeigler, that was withdrawn by the developer after opposition. The park would be 50 and 60 acres outside the city limits, Castellano said. He said he has talked to 10 prospective tenants about locating there.

He said the park could provide between 20 and 80 jobs and could be built at a cost of between $2 million and $25 million. He said he would pursue tax increment financing for the park because the property is blighted.

Castellano, who operates a Marion shopping plaza, has filed suit against the city of Marion for its use of TIF on the Illinois Centre Mall project.

Legislature receives report cards

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois AFL-CIO gave 11 state representatives A-pluses for their favorable votes on labor issues in its annual legislative report card issued Tuesday.

Three U.S. representatives received top marks for voting with labor 100 percent of the time. The group rates state and federal lawmakers each year for their votes on issues important to labor from the prior legislative session.

The group rated state lawmakers on 19 bills considered in the spring legislative session. Measures included workers compensation reform, family leave, affordable housing and tax increase legislation.

U.S. Sens. Paul Simon of Makanda and Alan Dixon of Belleville voted favorably on labor issues 90 percent of the time.

State university board enrolls more minorities

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Minority enrollment on the five campuses of the Board of Governors state university system increased by 2.1 percent in 1989, officials said Tuesday.

More than 11,500 black, Hispanic and Asian students were enrolled at Board of Governors schools last year, said BOG spokeswoman Michelle Brazell. The biggest increase came in the number of Asian students, up 8.4 percent from fall 1988. Hispanic enrollment increased by 5.7 percent system-wide while black enrollment climbed 1.5 percent, Brazell said.

State higher education officials have made attracting and retaining minority students a top priority in the coming fiscal year. So the new figures are very satisfying, she said. "Traditionally, we enroll nearly 40 percent of all minorities in higher education. So to see the numbers go up like this is very gratifying," Brazell said.

BOG Chancellor Thomas Layzell said the Board of Governors has made a fundamental commitment to minority recruitment to enrich its campuses with a diverse mix of students.

More minorities joined the student rolls at all but one of the BOG campuses. Ethnic enrollment was down 1.6 percent at Chicago State University, where nine out of 10 students are minorities, Brazell said.

Recruiting minority teachers tough concern in education

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Attracting and retaining minorities in teaching is one of the toughest concerns in education today, said Charles Wethington Jr., interim president at the University of Kentucky.

Wethington made the comment Monday in introducing Leonard Haynes III, U.S. assistant secretary of education to a gathering honoring Martin Luther King Jr. on his birthday.

"The percentage of those attending this conference from local school districts has never been higher than this year," Wethington said. "That indicates the level of concern among districts and shows that there is a determination to solve this problem."

Haynes urged educators to help all children realize the dreams of the slain civil rights leader by making sure minorities become and stay involved in the teaching profession.

"The democracy is at risk if we entrust teaching to just one group," said Haynes, assistant secretary for post-secondary education.

Haynes' speech was part of the fourth annual conference on the recruitment and retention of minority students in teacher education.

About 200 educators and government officials attended the weekend conference, which was sponsored by UK and a number of government agencies and professional organizations.

Haynes praised the conference as one of the "shining lights" of efforts to attract minorities to the teaching profession. "We hope others will choose to emulate it," he said.

Ernest Middleton, associate dean of the UK graduate school, organized the first national conference focusing on the minorities issue four years ago. Although similar conferences are now held across the country, the UK conference remains the most comprehensive.

Part of the solution is to improve teaching's image among minorities, Haynes said.

"Right now, the image minorities receive about teaching is wrong," he said. "We promote athletics and entertainers. I can't dunk a basketball, but I can write a book. But the importance of doing that is not conveyed to the people we must reach."

Haynes, who has taught at several colleges, earned a Ph.D. in higher education administration from Ohio State University in 1975.

Combat role for women supported by first lady

WASHINGTON (UPI) — First lady Barbara Bush said Tuesday the U.S. invasion of Panama, although tragic because of the loss of American lives, was necessary and she supports women in combat if they are physically able.

She also said President Bush raced through the White House family quarters to tell her, "We got him," when deposed dictator Manuel Noriega surrendered to U.S. military authorities in Panama City 10 days after the invasion.

During an interview with wire service reporters the first lady, wearing a suit with a red jacket and plaid skirt, covered an array of subjects, including her health, her life in the White House and the strains on her family.

With a chiding reply of "nice try," she shrugged off questions about her position on abortion and gun control.

But in the interview near her first anniversary as first lady, Mrs. Bush did discuss the role of women in combat.

"If I thought a woman could physically pick up a person and bring them to safety or throw a hand grenade as far as a man, I'd say fine. I'm sure they can shoot or fly as well," she said.

The issue of women in combat arose when it was revealed U.S. military women were engaged in incidents in Panama involving the Panamanian Defense Forces.

As for the Dec. 20 invasion of Panama, which she said she knew of hours in advance, Mrs. Bush said, "I thought it had to be done. ... It was tragic that we lost the lives we did. I thought it was important." The Pentagon said 23 American servicemen were killed in Panama.

Mrs. Bush, who describes herself as "George Bush's biggest fan," said she was "doubly impressed" by his level-headed approach to the Panama crisis.

"He told me before it happened," she said.

The first lady, who has suffered from bloodshot eyes and double vision caused by Graves' disease, or an overactive thyroid, recently underwent 10 radiation treatments. She said she has observed a slight improvement with less swelling of the eye muscles, but it will be two to four months before she is able to tell the results of the treatment.

She scoffed at a National Enquirer report that she was seriously ill.

"No, no, they're so fake," she said. "They don't tell the truth."

She also took issue with the fashion newspaper "W" for saying her English spaniel "Millie," was "out" this year. Millie, sleeping at the first lady's feet, seemed unperturbed by the bad publicity. "I don't think she gives a darn," Mrs. Bush said.

When asked whether she was concerned about her husband going to the Andean drug summit in Colombia next month, Mrs. Bush said, "I'm a little testy about all the letters I've been getting about it," which have expressed fear for the president's safety.

"I can't change his mind and make those decisions. I don't like it when he leaves the country," she said.

Supply craft crews to add women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Military Airlift Command is removing restrictions that prohibit women from serving on air crews on C-130 and C-141 transport planes that can be assigned airdrop missions, Air Force officials said Tuesday.

"The Air Force has always been a leader in equal opportunities for women," said Gen. H.T. Johnson, commander in chief of the U.S. Transportation Command and Military Airlift Command. "Prior to this decision, 97 percent of Air Force jobs were open to women. Now we have pushed that door open even wider."

An Air Force official said the MAC decision had nothing to do with the role military women played in the Dec. 20 invasion of Panama, where some Army military policewomen were involved in direct combat.

Women are prohibited by federal statute from serving in combat positions in the Navy and Air Force. The Army follows the same policy, though it is not covered by a specific federal law.

The Air Force said that while developing plans for the new C-17 cargo plane, MAC officials reviewed aircrew assignment policies and took into account recent changes to the combat exclusion policy for women in the Air Force.

Discrimination in courts banned by revised code

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A gay-rights group announced Tuesday it has revised a draft of the American Bar Association's Model Code of Judicial Conduct to specifically ban discrimination within the court system against homosexuals.

The National Lesbian and Gay Law Association, which drafted the language, said the judicial code would apply to judges throughout the country and subject them to discipline if they violate its ethical canons.

"Judges (and their staffs) across the country will be subject to disciplinary action if they do indeed manifest any sort of bias or prejudice against lesbians and gay men," said Suzanne Bryant, regional board member of the group.

"It sends a very strong, clear message to the judiciary that lesbians and gay men are to receive fair treatment under the law," she said.

The revised draft will be presented to the ABA's House of Delegates at its Feb. 10-11 meeting in Los Angeles. A final vote on the draft may not come until summer.

Last year the ABA House of Delegates passed a resolution saying the ABA endorsed any local, state or federal legislation prohibiting discrimination against gays.

Benefit album overlooked for nomination of Grammy

Album tribute to deceased rock musicians, legendary artists

By Curtis W. Ison
Staff Writer

A Review

The Grammy Awards' committee made the mark when it nominated the best performances of hard rock or heavy metal last week.

What the committee apparently ignored was "Stairway to Heaven, Highway to Hell" (Mercury), a benefit album by various artists that features impassioned, fresh performances of songs originally recorded by rockers who died from substance abuse.

The album is dedicated to the memory of 32 artists who took that "Stairway to Heaven" and the "Highway to Hell." Not only are late rockers named, but it also pays tribute to such other influences as country legend Hank Williams Sr., jazz vocalist Billie Holiday and saxophonist Charlie Parker.

The album is the result of the Moscow Music Peace Festival, held in the Soviet Union's Lenin Stadium the summer of 1989. The theme of the concert was "anti-drug, perestroika and rock and roll," according to publicists.

Proceeds from sales of the album are split between two causes: the Make a Difference Foundation, a non-profit organization that presents rock stars and professional athletes as role models against substance abuse and the Russia's All-Union Society for Sobriety.

The attitude of the project is summed up best by Producer Bruce Fairbairn, who writes in the liner notes: "We just asked each group to pick a song they've always wanted to record, written or performed by an artist or group who had been touched by drug or alcohol problems as have some fun with it!"

The album kicks off with "My Generation" as performed by the Soviet metal act Gorky Park. It's the best song on the album, not only because of the creative arrangement, but simply because it seems so appropriate for a Soviet band to be singing it in these ever-changing times.

"My Generation," written by Peter Townshend and originally performed by The Who, served as an anthem for British teens in the 1960s.

The new version still features the singer stuttering the lyrics, which Townshend intended to represent a young man amped up on amphetamines.

Why the Russians are stuttering the lyrics seems to be a mystery, but given the changes and turmoil in Soviet Bloc countries, Gorky Park has made the song an anthem for its generation.

Townshend is one of the many living rock stars who have survived and kicked a substance abuse problem. He and The Who were devastated by the death of drummer Keith Moon, who died in 1978 of an overdose of a drug he was taking to help him kick a cocaine habit.

What the committee ignored was a benefit album by various artists that features songs originally recorded by rockers who died from substance abuse.

Another of Townshend's early youth anthems, "I Can't Explain," appears as the third cut on the album and is performed cleanly by the Scorpions.

Without actually contributing anything to this album, Townshend's influence is felt on the second cut of the album as well.

Once upon a time, Townshend felt that punk rock's Sex Pistols should pick up where The Who left off as being Great Britain's hot, rebellious young rockers.

The story is that Townshend, stumbling around the London club circuit one night in the 1970s, came across who he thought was Sex Pistols' vocalist Johnny Rotten. "Johnny" turned out to be Paul Cook, the drummer, but Townshend didn't find that out until after he had roughed up Cook and told him what he thought punk rock should accomplish.

The Pistols never really lived up to Townshend's expectations, using just another money-making venture of entrepreneur Malcolm McLaren. The group's main celebrity, Sid Vicious, who committed suicide in 1979 as a result of heroin-induced personal problems, didn't even know how to play his bass guitar. He was just there as scenery.

But the group was felt by some aspiring American kids. A version of the Sex Pistols' "Holidays in the Sun" is done in a wonderfully obscene manner by Skid Row. By covering this tune, these purveyors of thrash metal show what they listened to in their formative years.

And so the album goes. Each tribute is heart-felt and fun sounding, especially Ozzy Osbourne's rave-up of Jimi Hendrix' "Purple Haze."

But wait. There's more. Cinderella performs Janis Joplin's "Move Over," Motley Crue does Black Sabbath's "Teaser," and Bon Jovi rips in Thin Lizzy's "The Boys Are Back In Town," all in the spirit of an homage to those who have gone to the grave.

Possibly the most heartfelt of the cuts is "Moby Dick" by a group called Drum Magness, which features Jason Bonham, whose late father, John Bonham, performed this drum solo by himself back in the 1970s with Led Zeppelin.

With four drummers, "Moby Dick" comes off even wilder than old Bonzo could imagine. Wherever he is, he must be proud.

The younger Bonham also takes his father's place on the grand finale "Jam" portion of the album, in which Skid Row, Motley Crue and Osbourne's guitarist Zak Wylde combine to perform Zeppelin's "Rock and Roll."

The "Jam," which was performed live at the Moscow Music Peace Festival also tapped rock's deepest roots, with participants joining for performances of "Hound Dog," "Blue Suede Shoes" and "Long Tall Sally."

All in all, "Stairway to Heaven, Highway to Hell" offers today's generation of rock music listeners a primer in rock history. But more importantly it shows that rock stars honestly care about doing something to enlighten today's generation of the dangers of substance abuse.

Board to certify ballot, challenges not settled

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The State Board of Elections is expected to certify the ballot for the March 20 primary election without ruling on a Democrat-led petition challenge aimed at knocking Lyndon LaRouche followers off the ballot, an elections official said Tuesday.

"It's just about certain that case will not be settled (immediately)," Kel Hudson, the board's associate director of election information, said. The board is scheduled to meet on Wednesday.

Democratic gubernatorial frontrunner Attorney General Neil Hartigan filed challenges in December against thousands of signatures on the nominating petitions of LaRouche opponent Mark Fairchild and other LaRouche statewide candidates running in the Democratic primary.

At a hearing last week, attorneys for Hartigan alleged the LaRouchites misled people in several counties by misrepresenting themselves to voters who signed their petitions.

Voters who thought they were expressing support for social issues were actually signing petitions for the LaRouche candidates, the Democrats said.

The party also said the LaRouche candidate for state comptroller, Patricia Noble-Scherk, had not lived in Illinois long enough to run for statewide office.

The elections board is supposed to rule on all 71 ballot challenges before certifying the ballot for the March primary. But Hudson said board members are still waiting for more information from county clerks on the alleged LaRouche deception before making a decision.

"We'll put the (LaRouche) candidates on the ballot but beside each name will be the word 'objection,'" Hudson said.

While that form of ballot will be sent to county clerks, Hudson said most clerks are likely to wait until a decision is reached so they will not have to print ballots twice.

Former assistant faculty member dies at 86; served SIU for 30 years

University News Service

Winifred Burns, a member of the English department faculty at SIU-C for more than 30 years before her retirement, died Wednesday, Jan. 7, at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau, Mo. She was 86.

Burns had lived at the Chateau Girardeau retirement community in Cape Girardeau. She was an assistant professor when she retired at SIU-C in 1971.

Burns, who grew up in Eureka, joined the SIU-C English department faculty in 1939 after having taught in Illinois high schools and at Lindenwood College, St. Charles.

She held memberships in the Modern Language Association, the National Council of Teachers of English and the American Association of University Professors. She was a lifetime member of the Presbyterian Church, which her father had served as a minister.

She was born April 3, 1903, in Homer City, Pa., to George G. and Ada Jameson Burns.

She leaves two nieces and two nephews, Suzanne Grossman, Ashland, Ore., Elizabeth Leyson, Fullerton, Calif., Timothy Burns, Los Angeles, Calif., and James Burns, Taos, N.M.

Art professor wins contest

University News Service

Harris Deller, professor of art and design at SIU-C, has received a gold medal in an international ceramics contest held in Mino, Japan.

Judges selected Deller's work, "Stacked Vessel," as best in a field of entries from 167 finalists during the Second International Ceramics Festival. Seventeen of the finalists were American.

Deller's gold award is worth roughly $7,000 in American dollars.

Made of glazed, high-fire porcelain, "Stacked Vessel" combines mechanical and hand-building techniques. Deller received a grant from SIU-C's Office of Research Development and Administration last summer to work on the prize-winning piece.

Deller has exhibited his work internationally and has won several top awards. He studied and lectured in Seoul, South Korea, under a 1981 Fulbright Hays fellowship.

Police Blotter

Computer, television and video equipment in excess of $10,000 were discovered missing from Carbondale Community High School East, 1301 E. Walnut, Tuesday after a custodian discovered a broken window on the south side of the building.

Carbondale police said the burglary occurred between 7:30 p.m. Monday and 7:30 a.m. Tuesday. There are no suspects, and the burglary is still under investigation, Carbondale police said.

Report names corporations as leading ozone depleters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An environmental group, seeking to shame corporate polluters into action, fingered 3,014 plants nationwide Tuesday as major emitters of three chemicals known to deplete Earth's protective ozone layer.

The Natural Resources Defense Council, drawing on toxic chemical release data collected by the government under the federal "right to know" law, identified all U.S. industrial facilities that in 1987 reported discharging more than 2,000 pounds of any of three ozone-depleting substances: methyl chloroform, carbon tetrachloride and a type of chlorofluorocarbon known as CFC-113.

The council said it was issuing its report in hopes Americans would use the information to pressure companies to stop using ozone-depleting chemicals and find substitutes that would not erode the ozone layer, which screens out harmful levels of ultraviolet radiation from the sun.

Without prompt action, the council said heightened ultraviolet radiation will cause millions of additional cases of skin cancer and cataracts, among other health problems, and also damage crops and ocean ecosystems.

"Critical decisions will be made in 1990 in the board rooms of thousands of companies that use chemicals which deplete the stratospheric ozone layer," said the report. "A Who's Who of American Ozone Depleters."

"Public attention should be focused on users of these ozone-depleting chemicals to accelerate their adoption of substitutes."

The council's report drew an immediate response from some of the companies named as major ozone depleters. Keystone Steel & Wire Co., a Peoria, Ill., company identified as one of the top five users of methyl chloroform, announced it was testing substitutes and promised to eliminate use of methyl chloroform "as soon as an effective, and safe, alternative is found."

Pratt & Whitney, whose East Hartford, Conn., plant was cited as the nation's largest emitter of methyl chloroform in 1987, said it reduced its discharges of the chemical from that facility by 77 percent in 1988 and was seeking further reductions companywide.

CFC-113 and methyl chloroform are primarily used to clean and degrease electronic components and metal equipment while carbon tetrachloride is used as a raw material in the production of CFCs, petroleum refining and drug manufacturing.

The council noted CFC-113 already was restricted by the government.

Soldier followed orders of Noriega, lawyers say

MIAMI (UPI) — The wife of a Panamanian military officer accused of participating in Manuel Noriega's alleged cocaine trafficking operation testified Tuesday that her husband should be freed on bail, saying he is "an enemy of violence."

Tilsa Jimenez del Cid, testifying in Spanish through an interpreter, described at a bond hearing how her husband, Lt. Col. Luis del Cid, helped many people flee Nicaragua, which is governed by the leftist Sandinista party.

"He was always a man who was an enemy of violence," she said. "He helped whomever he could and they did not know how to express their gratitude."

Del Cid testified that her husband surrendered to U.S. military officials after the U.S. invasion of Panama, on Dec. 10, because he had nothing to fear and he wanted to avoid a massacre.

Two Nicaraguan women now living in Miami told U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler how Luis del Cid helped them escape their homeland and reach relatives in Miami. They also said they would be willing to house del Cid in their home if he is released on bond and required to stay in Miami.

After about three hours' testimony, Hoeveler said the hearing would resume Wednesday afternoon. Del Cid's lawyer, Samuel Burstyn, said late that his client was not a flight risk because he did not have anywhere to go. "Flee to where?" he said. "He is certainly not welcome in Panama."

The defense hoped to debunk the government's contention that del Cid was an active participant in the deposed Panamanian dictator's alleged scheme to use Panama as a cocaine shipping station. "My client followed orders," Burstyn said in an interview Monday. "He was a middle-level officer."

Burstyn and co-counsel Kenneth Swartz also planned to contest U.S. government allegations that del Cid headed Noriega's secret police.

"That's flat-out false," Burstyn said. "We will also establish that the lieutenant colonel was never a personal attache of Noriega."

According to a February 1988 indictment against Noriega and 15 others, del Cid was a liaison and courier between Noriega and Colombian drug traffickers. The indictment charges him with helping move cocaine from Colombia to Panama with the knowledge that it was headed for the United States.

Another co-defendant, pilot Eduard Pardo, was denied bond Tuesday by U.S. Magistrate William Turnoff, who said the defendant was a risk of flight.

College student stabbed near campus in Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — Police Tuesday sought four black youths for questioning in the fatal stabbing of a white college student as the mayor, highly sensitive to racial issues following a bizarre murder case, chastised the media for delays in reporting the slaying.

Mark Belmore, 19, was fatally stabbed early Monday as the city prepared to celebrate Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday. Boston has been struggling to resolve racial tensions reignited recently by the murder of a pregnant white lawyer whose husband — who became the prime suspect before his suicide — blamed the attack on a black man.

Belmore, of suburban Walpole, was returning from his girlfriend's house around 12:25 a.m. Monday when he was attacked barely a block from Northeastern University, which borders the racially tense Roxbury neighborhood.

Belmore was pronounced dead at Boston City Hospital at 12:45 a.m. of stab wounds to the chest and abdomen, the medical examiner's office said.

The student's father, John Belmore, identified the body at 9:30 p.m. Monday, and the victim's name was not released until hours later. However, Mayor Raymond Flynn, whose handling of the Stuart case outraged the black community while making national headlines, rebuked the media for not reporting the case sooner.

"In one case you had almost seconds' response to the (Charles Stuart murder case) situation, and now you have nearly 30 somewhat hours later and the press is finally coming around to understand that a very senseless, reckless killing took place," Flynn said.

Police spokesman Scott Gillis, however, said the name would not have been released before 11:30 p.m. Monday, when detectives filed their report, and that department spokesmen are not on duty after 11 p.m.

Flynn went to Walpole around midnight Monday to express his condolences to the victim's family, said Mike Lynch, a spokesman for the mayor.

Asked if the visit took place before the victim's name was made public, Lynch said, "I'm not sure chronologically what happened."

Police spokeswoman Jill Reilly said investigators were searching for four black teenagers who witnesses said fled the scene.

Police said investigators had not established a motive for the assault and could not confirm reports Belmore may have been robbed.

Potential jurors questioned for trial of Mafia boss in New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — He is the reputed head of the nation's most powerful Mafia family, the subject of innumerable news stories and even of a Time magazine cover. But many potential jurors questioned at his assault trial Tuesday claimed they did not know who John Gotti was.

Gotti, the reputed godfather of the powerful Gambino crime family, is accused of ordering a union official shot and wounded on May 7, 1986, in retaliation for vandalism at a restaurant owned by the Gambino clan. Also charged is Anthony Guerrieri, 60, a reputed Gambino family soldier.

for both sides.

By noon, only two members of the jury pool of 190 people had been excused. Justice Edward McLaughlin said he expects it will take the rest of the week to pick 12 jurors and four alternates.

Most of the potential jurors described organized crime as a virtual fact of life in New York City. But many said they had no opinion on whether the man before them for trial on assault and conspiracy charges was, in fact, the godfather of the Gambino family.

"DO YOU believe he is a leader of organized crime?" Bruce Cutler, Gotti's gravel-voiced lawyer, asked one potential juror, a middle-aged man.

"He may be. He may not be," the man replied.

Cutler told the man he wanted to find out if he had any opinions of Gotti, whose flare for double-breasted suits and diamond pinky rings has earned the moniker "The Dapper Don."

"Do you have any impressions of Mr. Gotti as he's been here in court?" Cutler pressed.

"He's a well-dressed man," the potential jury member said.

GOTTI MADE international headlines when he allegedly grabbed the head of the Gambino family after "boss of bosses" Paul Castellano was gunned down in front of a Manhattan steakhouse in Manhattan in December 1985.

Defense lawyers in the highly publicized case accused potential jurors of lying when they claimed Tuesday they did not know who Gotti was.

"They will give you any answer they think will get them on this jury," Gerald Shargel, an attorney for Guerrieri, complained to the judge. "I'm just very disturbed by what is happening here."

BOTH GOTTI and Guerrieri sat in the cavernous courtroom Tuesday while potential jurors were whisked into a jury room for individual questioning by attorneys

"At first, I thought he was the subway ... the guy who shot people," a young woman, apparently referring to Bernhard Goetz, told the judge during questioning of potential jurors at the assault trial in state Supreme Court in Manhattan.

ANOTHER POTENTIAL juror in the Gotti case, a middle-aged man once employed as a 911 operator, speculated, "I'm just guessing, but he may be associated with the city scandals that came out during the election last year."

In a case that could send Gotti, 49, to prison for life as a "persistent felon," the judge has taken extraordinary precautions to prevent jury tampering. He ruled jurors' first names will remain secret and the panel will be sequestered as soon as it is sworn in.

Boxer-short clad suspect arrested while washing clothes at laundry

Money discovered inside man's shoes

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — A man suspected of robbing a bank was caught a few hours later with his pants down, police said.

Jeffery David Link, 34, was arrested on bank robbery charges Monday night at a laundry while he was washing his clothes, police said.

Link was wearing only his blue boxer shorts when police, acting on a tip from an unidentified informant, found him in a laundry bathroom and arrested him for robbing a branch of the Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. at about 1:15 p.m.

Police said they found money missing from the bank in Link's shoes. Link was being held in the Mecklenburg County Jail on $15,000 bond.

Police said an unarmed man walked into the bank, handed a note to a teller demanding money. The teller gave him an envelope of cash and the man said that was enough and ran outside.

After the robbery, police visited other businesses in the area to ask employees and customers if they had seen a tall thin man with a mustache dressed in denim.

An employee at a bowling alley went to a laundry under the lanes to tell the employees about the robbery.

"I went in and there was this man in his underwear," said the bowling alley employee, who asked not to be identified.

"It was funny. There were two women in there too. I acted like I was checking on my laundry and turned right around and went out to the parking lot and told police," the man said.

When police got to the laundry the suspect was gone but they found him hiding in a bathroom.

Police and bowling alley employees searched garbage cans and bushes for the money but did not find it until they looked in Link's shoes. Police said that was the only place left that Link had to hide the cash.

Shelbyville bank robber has his day

SHELBYVILLE (UPI) — A man wearing panty hose on his head declared "this is my day," displayed a gun and made off with an undisclosed amount of money in a robbery Tuesday at the First Trust Bank, authorities said.

"One white male entered the bank branch at about 8:45 a.m.," FBI spokesman Bob Grooms said from the agency's Springfield office. "He exhibited a small caliber handgun."

Shelbyville Police Chief Don Koonce said the tellers told his officers the man was wearing his nylon mask and waiting for them when they opened the bank branch.

"Ladies, this is my day," Koonce said the tellers quoted the man as saying when he announced the holdup.

In addition to the unusual headgear, witnesses described the gunman as wearing a tan overcoat, white shirt and black pants.

There were no injuries and Grooms and Koonce said they are looking for the getaway car, described as an older model luxury car.

Shoe

by Jeff MacNelly

While the kids encouraged Mom to take up a hobby, they never dreamed she'd settle on mastering the entire songbook of Iron Butterfly.

I REALLY SHOULD TRY TO GET UP EARLIER.

AFTER ALL, THE EARLY BIRD GETS THE WORM.

AND THE LATE WORM GETS THE BIRD.

Calvin and Hobbes

by Bill Watterson

OH NO! MY DUPLICATE MADE DUPLICATES!

HI! WE'RE NUMBERS TWO THROUGH SIX!

HOBBS, WHAT AM I GOING TO DO?!

BETTER TELL YOUR MOM TO PUT OUT THE EXTRA TABLE SETTINGS.

LOOK, YOU GUYS HAVE TO STAY IN HERE AND BE REAL QUIET! IF MY MOM FINDS OUT ABOUT THIS, SHE'LL HAVE A FIT!

I'M THE ORIGINAL! YOU HAVE TO DO WHAT I SAY!

OH YEAH? LET'S PUT IT TO A VOTE.

East German police building sustains millions in damage

WEST BERLIN (UPI) — The demonstrators who stormed the secret police headquarters Monday in East Berlin caused millions of dollars in damage, destroyed offices and looted the barber shop, book store, kitchen and storerooms, the East German deputy interior minister said Tuesday.

Maj. Gen. Dieter Winderlich, who is in charge of all East German police, told reporters the rampage by several thousand people who forced their way into the headquarters of the hated Stasi

East German government vows to dissolve secret police as several thousand protest communist rule in 12 cities security police Monday evening lasted about two hours.

He said about 100,000 people were outside the building at 5:25 p.m. for a scheduled demonstration called by the New Forum, a main opposition party, to press Prime Minister Hans Modrow for faster action on dismantling the security police.

The new government has agreed to dissolve the organization, but tens of thousands of employees remain on the security police payroll.

Shortly after the protest began, two groups of several thousand people each broke through two doors into the headquarters, Winderlich said in a news conference statement carried by the official East German news service

ADN.

"They destroyed offices, fixtures, doors, windows, threw furniture and files and other objects out windows," Winderlich said. "They looted the barber shop, the book store, the kitchen and storerooms."

"The premises were badly damaged and laid waste. Sheet steel safes were broken into and equipment stolen," he added. "There was damage in millions through destruction and theft."

The demonstrators also broke into the area dealing with counter-espionage, Winderlich said.

He said East Germans were not the only ones involved, hinting that people of other nationalities participated, but he did not elaborate.

The security headquarters received two telephone bomb threats before the demonstration began and 300 construction workers opposed to the Stasi bricked up one of the doors, Winderlich said.

U.N. council calls for world powers to play greater role in Cambodia

PARIS (UPI) — The five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council met for a second day Tuesday to discuss peace initiatives for Cambodia after reaching a consensus on a strong transitional U.N. administration of the war-torn nation.

"We made a lot of progress" at Monday's meeting, said one diplomatic source. "No one contested the idea that the U.N. administration should have full powers."

As the meeting resumed behind closed doors Tuesday, representatives of the five Security Council members — the United States, China, France, the Soviet Union and Britain — planned to discuss methods of enforcing a cease-fire and halting arms shipments to Cambodia, the source said.

The two-day meeting, the latest diplomatic effort to end the fighting in Cambodia, came amid a new Khmer Rouge guerrilla offensive against the Vietnamese-backed Cambodian government.

French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas, who opened the meeting Monday, said "everything possible must be done to prevent the return of the Khmer Rouge to power."

The communist Khmer Rouge has been accused of killing a million Cambodians before it was toppled from power when Vietnam invaded Cambodia in 1978 and backed the current government.

Dumas said the five Security Council members "hold special responsibilities in maintaining peace" and that "some have an important influence on the protagonists."

The representatives met at the Kleber conference center, the site of last summer's international conference on Cambodia, which failed to reconcile the nation's four warring factions before the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia last fall.

The Security Council was presented with a new Australian diplomatic initiative calling for an enhanced U.N. role in Cambodia.

The proposal would allow the United Nations to administer the country for at least a year until free elections can be held to select a new government.

It would also set up an international peacekeeping force and a control mechanism to monitor a cease-fire.

Panama asks diplomat to leave country

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — The U.S.-installed Panamanian government Tuesday gave a Peruvian diplomat three days to leave the country, and Peru countered by saying the diplomat will take with him a dozen Panamanians who have been granted asylum in its embassy.

Deputy Foreign Minister Juan Manuel Castuloovich said the decision to expel Peruvian Luis Sandiga, the commercial attache at the embassy, was taken in response to declarations made by "Peruvian authorities that make normalization of relations between our two countries difficult."

Peru has been one of the most vocal critics of the U.S. invasion of Panama Dec. 20 that toppled Panamanian "Maximum Leader" Manuel Antonio Noriega and installed Cuillermo Endara as president.

Although Endara was widely believed to have won presidential elections held in Panama last May 7 that were later invalidated, he has said that Panama would not hold new elections as Peruvian President Alan Garcia has proposed.

Garcia has branded the U.S. invasion "brutal, excessive, exaggerated, abusive and arrogant" and has refused to recognize Endara's government.

Also Tuesday, members of a political party that had backed Noriega, saying they are now the opposition to Endara's government, criticized the U.S. invasion, and law students at the University of Panama asked U.S. troops to leave their campus.

Peruvian Foreign Minister Guillermo Arco Cox said in Lima that the 12 Panamanians at the Peruvian Embassy in Panama City, including five top officials of Noriega's Panamanian Defense Force and seven members of their families, "may be in a precarious position."

Mahan — speedy leader with capacity to fire up teammates

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

Head basketball coach Rich Herrin is looking for Sterling Mahan to use "leadership by example" and guide the Salukis to the top of the Missouri Valley Conference.

With Mahan running the point, Herrin knows his team will have a good chance at pulling out a victory.

"When Sterling goes out and has a good night, it usually rubs off on the other players," Herrin said. "He does a good job of being the floor leader for us. He shows very good leadership and he's very unselfish.

Mahan, a junior point guard for the Salukis, is an integral part of the Saluki offensive and defensive scheme. After 16 games, his 15.6 points per game places him in a tie for sixth place in the Valley. His 4.8 assists and 2.1 steals per game lead the league.

With the 6-1, 187 pound spark-plug running the floor, the Salukis average 84.5 points per game while three other players also are averaging double figures.

Herrin said Mahan should end up in the Salukis record books when his collegiate career is over. With one full season remaining and half of the current season to go Mahan has 678 total points. If Mahan breaks the 1000 point barrier, he also will enter the top 20 SIU-C all-time scoring list.

"He's having a very outstanding career for us," Herrin said. "He's been a very good scorer for us. He'll probably be a 1000-point contributor for us."

"Sterling has been a very steady performer for us all three years," Herrin said. "His academic achievements are more exciting than anything else."

Beyond his statistics, Mahan always tries to be a good role model and a team player.

"The majority of the time I just try and get everyone into the flow of the game," Mahan said. "I try to create opportunities for everyone, including myself. I would like to be more consistent and hit the shots that the team needs. I try to set good examples for the team."

An 0-2 start in the Valley is included in the Saluki loss column. Illinois State defeated the Dawgs 85-75 Jan. 6 while Drake downed them 79-71, Saturday.

Against Drake, Mahan said the team was spinning its wheels for much of the game.

"We were kind of sluggish," Mahan said. "We made some terrible decisions passing the ball and not getting back on defense. Drake really hurt us with that."

Although their backs are against the wall, Mahan remains optimistic about the Saluki's chances for the Valley crown.

"We still have a chance," Mahan said. "We have 12 more games. We have to prepare ourselves and accept the challenge. I think we're going to meet that challenge. The chemistry is there, we just have to go out and play."

"I want to win the conference. That is the most important thing," Mahan said. "Creighton, Tulsa; we have to beat them. We had two tough games on the road that we should have won, but we didn't."

If nine of their last ten games on the road wasn't enough, the Salukis travel to Terre Haute Thursday to face a revitalized Indiana State team. Although the Sycamores won only four games last season, (0-14 in the Valley) they already have won seven games this season and are 6-1 at home.

The Salukis will host Tulsa, one of the favorites to win the Valley, Saturday night at the Arena. Mahan acknowledges the importance of coming home to a good crowd.

"It's going to help us out a lot," Mahan said. "Crowd support really gets you motivated. It's good to see people out there who really appreciate what you're doing."

His relationship with the head coach is a solid one and Mahan says he has a lot of respect for Herrin, on and off the court.

"Coach Herrin is a good person," Mahan said. "He likes to see you do well. He likes to see everybody graduate. He doesn't get enough credit."

"He has taught me to work hard and never give up," Mahan said. "No matter what happens, keep playing hard. I really like that."

Being part of a team that has been rebuilt under Herrin, his staff and his players is important to Mahan. In Mahan's first year as a Saluki, SIU-C won 12 games, followed by 20. Now the team has the opportunity to go over the 20-win mark.

"It means a lot to me," Mahan said. "I came here wanting to help the team improve. We're getting some good recruits in here and everybody has done their part and that helps. The program has gotten better."

Women's assistant relishes upset of Eaglettes

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

Monday night turned out to be a pleasant homecoming victory for Saluki women's basketball assistant coach Myra Fishback.

The Salukis upset 18th-ranked Tennessee Tech 62-60 at Cookeville Monday. Fishback is a former assistant coach at Tennessee Tech and a native of Shelbyville. The two towns are less than two hours apart.

"It was a great win for our program," Fishback said. "The girls really worked hard. They were down a couple of times, but they came back and pulled it off."

Fishback, in her first season with the Saluki coaching staff, has been associated with top basketball teams in Tennessee. She starred on the state's premier high school program, Shelbyville Central, from 1978-1980. Fishback played on Coach Rick Insell's first state tournament team and helped spark three straight 20-victory seasons.

Before coming to Carbondale, Fishback was part of a coaching staff that led Tennessee Tech to a 22-8 record, an Ohio Valley Conference title and an NCAA Tournament upset of 14th-ranked South Carolina.

Just before coming to Carbondale, Fishback was part of a coaching staff that led Tennessee Tech to a 22-8 record, an Ohio Valley Conference title and an NCAA Tournament upset of 14th-ranked South Carolina last season.

Fishback had some relatives on hand at the Eblen Center, making the victory extra special to her.

"My mom, dad and sister were there," Fishback said. "I went straight to them after the game. They were pretty excited."

The game between the Salukis and Golden Eaglettes was a classic matchup between two of the all-time winningest teams in women's basketball history. The Salukis are the 12th winningest team with 382 victories and Tennessee Tech is the fourth winningest team with 438 wins.

"It's always nice to beat a ranked team," Saluki head coach Cindy Scott said. "It's something the team can gain confidence from."

The Salukis have won two of three games with the Golden Eaglettes. In 1987 at the Arena, SIU-C defeated Tennessee Tech 78-65 Dec. 14 to avenge a 73-65 loss in Cookeville the year before, which had snapped the Salukis' 18-game win streak.

The win Monday night kept alive a five-game winning streak and gave the Salukis a 5-5 record in non-conference games. The non-conference schedule also included nationally-ranked Northern Illinois and Purdue.

"It was a struggle," Scott said. "I would like to have the Washington State and Creighton games back. But with a young team and the tough non-conference schedule we had, we have to be pretty pleased with 5-5."

It was Tennessee Tech's second loss in their last 42 home games. The Salukis are gaining confidence with every game, Scott said.

"The kids are beginning to believe they can be good," Scott said.

Miller pacing Indiana; contending to end his team's All-Star drought INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Reggie Miller talks tough, shoots long and drives to the basket much better than last year. As a result, the guard is a strong contender to be Indiana's first NBA All-Star Game representative since 1977.

The third-year guard averages 23.7 points a game and ranks among the NBA leaders in scoring, 3-point shooting and minutes played. But Miller doubts that will be enough to earn him a place at the all-star game in Miami.

"I know how this league is. It would never pick anybody from Indiana," Miller said. "I don't want to think about that. There are so many good guards in the Eastern Conference, so many guys deserving of a spot. I'm young and I will have more chances."

Miller also ranks among NBA leaders in talking to opponents during games, using his words as inspiration and aggravations or distractions to opponents.

"He's probably one of the tops in the league in talking trash," said teammate LaSalle Thompson.

"He's emotional. He likes to talk. Guys get frustrated when he's talking," said Indiana guard Vern Fleming.

Miller, 24, of Riverside, Calif., set career highs twice in three days last week, scoring 38 points in a loss at Philadelphia and then ripping Chicago for 44 points in a victory that snapped a five-game losing skid.

Four days later, Miller sank a 17-foot floater shot with one second remaining to lift Indiana past Milwaukee. His highest total was an NBA record for Pacer guards and the team's fourth-highest single-game effort in its NBA era.

"He has arrived," teammate Chuck Person said of Miller. "He has turned into such a great scorer, he has the freedom to do what he wants. He will make it (to the all-star game). If he doesn't, it's an injustice to Reggie. They've got to put him on the team."

Miller averaged 12.8 points through his first two NBA seasons and became known for his deadly 3-point shooting. Miller sank 61 3-pointers in his first season to break Larry Bird's rookie 3-point record, then made 98 last season. But when opponents guarded his long shots, he struggled.

Los Angeles provides a summer workout area second to none, so Miller found himself practicing his new moves on the NBA's best.

Frisco signs MVP Mitchell to contract for 1990 season

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — National League MVP Kevin Mitchell and outfielder Donnell Nixon, have come to terms on one-year contracts with the San Francisco Giants, the team announced Tuesday.

Terms of the deals were not announced. Mitchell made $560,000 last season.

"We are very happy to have Kevin in the fold for the 1990 season," Giants President Al Rosen said. "Players who can put up the kind of numbers he did last year don't come along all that often. He was a major part of our success last year, and hopefully will be for years to come."

Mitchell, 29, unleashed an awesome offensive attack during the 1989 season and helped the Giants claim their first National League pennant since the 1960s. He hit 47 home runs and drove in 125 runs and received 20 of the 24 first-place MVP votes cast by the BBWAA members.

In four full years in the majors, Mitchell has hit .275 average with 100 homers and 319 RBI.

Nixon, 28, hit .265 in 90 games with the Giants last year. He was 10 of 13 in stolen bases.

The signings leave San Francisco with 14 unsigned players and six — Will Clark, Scott Garrelts, Mike LaCoss, Ernest Riles, Robby Thompson and Jose Uribe — eligible for arbitration.

DAYTONA BEACH from $89

THE REEF MOTEL

Daytona Beach, Florida the annual favorite among hundreds of thousands of collegians from coast to coast is ready through Sunchase to offer you the spring break of a lifetime! Choose from hotel or kitchenette accommodations at two newly remodeled on beach complexes for your eight day/seven night stay. The Reef Motel is located at 935 South Atlantic Avenue two blocks south of the "hottest" nightclub in Daytona Beach, "701 South". The Carousel Inn Motel is located at 1220 North Atlantic and includes free nightly shuttle to "701 South" plus one free admission to the Club and reduced admission rates the rest of your week!

Both complexes have a restaurant, bar and pools (please see WHAT EACH COMPLEX HAS chart on reverse side for complete lodging descriptions). They are near restaurants, bars, the Pier, t-shirt and souvenir shops and with the location of The Reef and free shuttle of the Carousel, you're going to be right in the middle of all the MTV action taking place at "701 South" and the Texan Motel pool deck!

All Sunchase trip participants receive a mid-week pooldeck frankfurter fry with all the trimmings, a welcome "goodie bag" full of participating corporate sponsor product samples, area information on the most popular Daytona Beach night spots and on nearby Orlando home to Walt Disney World, EPCOT Center, the Disney/MGM Studios, Sea World and Wet 'n Wild not to mention Kennedy Space Center, dog race tracks and Jai Alai! All taxes are also included in your Daytona Beach Spring Break '90 trip package.

OPTIONAL ITEMS: • Round trip airline tickets • Rental car • Group round trip charter bus transportation • Accident, lost baggage, and trip cancellation insurance • Less than maximum unit occupancy pricing.

CAROUSEL INN MOTEL

FORT LAUDERDALE from $132

Where the boys (and girls) are, truly has new meaning this coming decade as Fort Lauderdale, Florida rolls out the red carpet to welcome collegians back in the '90's!

The three years of negative town council meetings, fending down the middle of Atlantic Boulevard separating the hotels from the beach and a general feeling throughout town that collegians were not welcome have passed. Hotel owners and merchants alike have banded together with renewed vigor, lower prices and better services in a sincere and unique effort to attract the "boys and girls" back to Fort Lauderdale.

And what better lodging complex could Sunchase select to begin the spring break renaissance? None other than where the original Where The Boys Are movie was filmed, the Lauderdale Beach Hotel, located in the heart of Fort Lauderdale one block from the Elbo Room and world famous Button bars. There's even a McDonald's located right in the hotel (please see WHAT EACH COMPLEX HAS chart on reverse side for complete lodging description).

Lodging for 7 nights, welcome "goodie bag" full of local information, restaurant and bar guide and participating corporate sponsor product samples in addition to all taxes are included in your Fort Lauderdale beach break.

OPTIONAL ITEMS: • Round trip airline tickets • Rental Car • Group round trip charter bus transportation • Mini fridge during your stay $5.00 per night • Accident, lost baggage and trip cancellation insurance • Less than maximum unit occupancy pricing.

* Plus $3.00 per person administrative service charge. Please see guaranteed trip pricing chart that corresponds to your break dates on reverse side.
