Cool dip

Dole: Foreign aid needs shift

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas called Tuesday for Israel and other big recipients of American foreign aid to take a budget cut so more assistance can be redirected to emerging democracies in Eastern Europe and Panama.

"Israel is our best ally in that part of the world, but we have got to limit," Dole told reporters. "Israel has got a lot of preferred treatment.*

The White House reacted coolly to the suggestion. Press secretary Marilyn Fitzwater, while acknowledging the competition for foreign aid will only grow stronger in the next budget year, was not prepared to condone a realignment of current priorities to meet new needs.

Dole said that aid to the five biggest recipients — Israel, Egypt, the Philippines, Turkey and Pakistan — could be trimmed to free money for smaller countries in Eastern Europe and Latin America.

Fitzwater said the aid amounts for the five countries reflected "longstanding" U.S. policy.

"That doesn't mean we wouldn't like to have some money for other countries and other problems, but we just don't have it," she said.

In a column for The New York Times and later in a news conference, Dole said reallocation of current foreign aid commitments is the only "immediate answer" to the question of how to sustain progress toward democracy and free-market economies around the world.

Citing "changing priorities," the vice president added that America must go beyond at least 11,000 more troops Tuesday to reinforce soldiers trying to quell fighting between Armenians and Azerbaijanis that has killed at least 56 people and sent thousands of Armenians fleeing the embattled region.

"The situation is extremely tense," said Yuri Shalatov, com-man of the Interior Ministry special forces. "The information we are getting is more and more like reports from a warfront.

About 2,000 Armenians fleeing attacks by Azerbaijanis nationalist soldiers were findAll in a village between Tash and Sardarapat. They had two trucks full of wounded Armenians.

The situation on the road to Karabakh is critical. "The road is clear for about 10 kilometers between Sardarapat and Nagorno-Karabakh, but after that, the situation is very bad."
Busch dropped from basketball team

By Kevin Simpson   Staff Writer

Senior David Busch, member of the Saluki basketball team for the past three seasons, has been dismissed by head coach Rich Herrin.

Herrin’s decision to drop the Salukis’ tallest player was a difficult one to make following the Jan. 8 incident when Busch eluded to skip a team bus but ride to the Western Kentucky game.

“When David Busch eluded to leave the team and not travel to Bowling Green, Ky., with us on Jan. 7, I elected not to reinstate him,” Herrin said. “The decision is effective immediately. He will, however, be retained on a full athletic scholarship for the remainder of the 1989-90 school year which is his fourth year at SIU.”

Busch was dismissed from practice the day before the Western Kentucky game for showing disrespect to the Saluki coaching staff. Busch attributed his decision not to make the trip to the coaching staff’s harsh assessment of the player and his dwindling playing time.

The 6-10 Busch plans to graduate at the end of the spring semester but does have another year of eligibility left. He said he has a variety of options to work with and he is not ruling out the possibility of transferring to another school. Busch said he is keeping an “open mind” in regard to any decisions he makes.

Busch would like to see his former teammates continue their winning ways.

“I will miss the teammate aspect, Busch said. “I’ll definitely miss the players but I do wish them the best and I hope that they do continue to accomplish their goals. Hopefully they’ll continue to play well.”

“I took a stand for what I believe was right. I do not see berating anyone as much as I received. You’ve gotta take a stand for what you believe. If you don’t, you just don’t believe in that concept very much.”

Herrin: We’re not out of Valley chase

By Kevin Simpson   Staff Writer

A balanced offense and a stingy defense add up to 12-4 record for the Saluki men’s basketball team as the Missouri Valley Conference season enters full swing.

Although the Salukis are 12-4 overall, they suffered losses to conference foes Illinois State 85-75 and Drake 79-71 and are at the bottom of the Valley standings with an 0-2 record.

Head coach Rich Herrin acknowledges starting out 0-2 is a difficult situation for the Salukis but he does not consider them out of the running for the conference title.

“I think you need to have visions that we’re capable of being the dark horse and winning it,” Herrin said. “I’m not saying that we will, but if you don’t have the confidence and the goals that you can do these things then you’ll never do it. I think we have a chance to slip in and win it.”

The Dawgs allowed opponents to shoot only 41 percent from the field and a meager 72 points per game and win the battle of a piece of the defensive puzzle.

The Salukie average seven boards per game than their opponents.

“I think we’ve excelled on defense and our rebounding has been tremendous. That just makes you a good basketball team,” Herrin said. “Defense has done it.”

“We’re happy that our young men come to play each and every time we throw the ball up,” Herrin said.

Senior guard Freddie McSwain leads the team in scoring at 17.6 points per contest — second in the Valley. McSwain is shooting 48 percent from the field.

Senior center Forward Jerry Jones leads the team in rebounding at 7.5 boards per game while shooting a solid 53 percent from the field. He also averages 10.2 rebounds per game and is second in the Valley. His 24 blocked shots leads all MVC players.

Sterling Mahan, a junior point guard, chips in 15.2 points per game. He also dishes out 4.8 assists per game in addition to averaging 2 steals per contest. He leads the Valley in both categories.

Junior forward Rick Shipley averages 12.3 points and 8.2 rebounds per game.

Mahan makes his point at guard spot

By Kevin Simpson   Staff Writer

The point guard position demands solid judgment, execution, discipline and athleticism. The Salukis didn’t have to look long for anyone to fill the position.

Sterling Mahan, a junior in Administrative Justice from Maywood, is head coach Rich Herrin’s number one choice for the position since the beginning of the basketball season.

Mahan faced a difficult challenge when it came time to fill in for the departed Kai Numberger, an all-Missouri Valley Conference first team selection as the Salukis’ point guard last season, who is playing professional basketball in Germany.

Numberger started 89 games during his four-year career for the Salukis and ranks ninth on the all-time scoring list with 1348 points. Last season he averaged 16.4 points and four assists per game.

Although playing behind Numberger limited his playing time, Mahan made the most of it. He played in 31 games last season, including seven starts, in helping the Salukis to a 14-10 season. Mahan made 69.9 points per game and was named the Dawgs defensive most valuable player.

“My first two years I had to play defense and I learned a lot from Kai,” Mahan said. “Kai is a good player who always worked hard. I learned a lot about the game from watching him play and talking to him. When I did get the opportunity, I went in there and tried to play well.”

To say Mahan has filled Numberger’s shoes would not be enough. His quickness and athletic talent on the basketball court allow him to excel on the offensive and defensive end of the court.

In guiding the Dawgs to a 12-4 start this season, Mahan is averaging 15.6 points, (tied for sixth in the Valley), 4.8 assists (first) and two steals per contest (first). His .491 shooting percentage is best among Saluki guards and seventh in the conference.

Against Murray State, Mahan hit a 25-foot jumper at the buzzer to send the game into overtime, a game the Salukis eventually won, 114-108 in triple-overtime.

With that shot, he tied his career-high of 24 points, which he established last season against Illinois State.

His shooting and control over the Saluki offense has put the Saluki offense at number one in the Valley, averaging 84.3 points, as compared to 73.8 last year.

Women’s basketball streaking in conference

By Greg Scott   Staff Writer

The Saluki women’s basketball team have found the right combination and the best may be yet to come according to coach Cindy Scott.

“We have a young team and they are just playing better and better each time out,” Scott said. “That is what you want.”

After losing their first two conference games of the season at home to Indiana State and Illinois State Jan. 2 and Jan. 4 respectively, the Salukis have won four consecutive games.

The Salukis started their streak with road victories at Bradley and Western Illinois.

Bradley, the Gateway Conference favorite according to the coaches pre-season poll, returned to the arena Jan. 11 and defeated Northern Illinois 78-59. They kept their winning streak alive with a 68-49 win over Drake Jan. 13.

The Salukis, who are 4-3 at the conclusion of the fall season, lost four consecutive games prior to their recent Gateway winning streak. This included losses to nationally-ranked Northern Illinois and Purdue on the road, and heart-breaking Gateway losses to Indiana State and Illinois State at home.

But thanks to the recent winning streak, the Salukis are back in the thick of the conference race. The Salukis and Bradley are tied for third in the conference standings with 4-2 records. Illinois State leads the pack at 5-0 and Southern Missouri is second with 4-1 mark.

“I think everybody is settling into their roles,” Scott said. “We are pretty comfortable with our lineup.”

Scott made a couple of lineup changes during the streak that boosted the Salukis play.

Sophomore center Kerri Hawes, a 6-feet-2 player from Effingham and Roegeau were inserted into the starting lineup.

In the Saluki victories over Bradley and Western Illinois, Roegeau found herself starting her first two starts of the season by averaging seven points and ten rebounds. She has found a home in the Saluki lineup since.

“Samantha (Hawes) is just going to get better and better,” Scott said.

Roegeau moved into the starting five by averaging seven points and six rebounds per game in Gateway play.

“Angel is really playing well,” Scott said. “By watching her play you wouldn’t know she’s a freshman.”

The Salukis are receiving better guard play from sophomore Colleen Heimstead and junior Alison Smith who is averaging over 10 points in conference games.

Heimstead is in control of her game now, Scott said.

“A big part of Colleen’s game is her confidence,” Scott said. “She is more relaxed now and that is a key in her game.”

Junior forward Amy Rakers, a preseason all-Gateway pick, has been on a rampage from the start this season. One of the most dominant forces in the conference, Rakers has averaged 23 points and 11 rebounds per game in league play. In the Gateway, Rakers is third in scoring, up to rebounding and second in field goal shooting.

“The girls are feeling good about themselves right now and they should,” Scott said.

Jesuit priest killings case turned over to civil court

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — The independent unit investigating the killings of six Jesuit priests turned the case over to a civilian court Tuesday, and eight soldiers suspected in the case were brought in to testify, Col. Guillermo Alfredo Rosasdivides, director of El Salvador’s Military Academy who is the highest-ranking officer named by President Alfredo Cristiani as a suspect in the case, was hustled into the San Salvador courthouse under heavy guard to appear before Fourth Penal Court Judge Ricardo Zamora.

Albanian leader denies reports of unrest

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Albanian leader Ramiz Ali, speaking amid new reports of mass detentions in his country, flatly denied Albania was under emergency rule and lashed out at Yugoslav news media for saying “filthy things” about the nation, the Albanian news agency ATA reported Tuesday. “The state of emergency, demonstrations, unrest and killings are found nowhere in Albania,” Ali said, referring Tuesday at an automotive plant in Tirana, the capital, according to an ATA report monitored in Warsaw.

Over 7,500 strike at five Polish coal mines

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — More than 7,500 coal miners walked off the job Tuesday at five mines in southern Poland in the inflation-plagued nation’s worst labor unrest since the election of a Solidarity-led government in June. Solidarity leaders at the mines said the strikes were caused by lower wages, although workers at some mines were protesting the removal of allegedly corrupt managers and changes in working conditions. Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki, moving quickly to end the strike, promised to meet Thursday with labor leaders.

Pirates suspected in deaths of 14 Vietnamese

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The bodies of 12 partially clothed or naked Vietnamese women and two boys washed ashore in southern Thailand, apparently stranded and thrown into the sea after a pirate attack on a refugee boat, police said Tuesday. “On Sunday and Monday we reported finding a total of 11 bodies floating near the shore,” said Lt. Col. Ratanak Kanjanachote, police chief of Tha Sai District, 386 miles south of Bangkok. On Tuesday, three more bodies — one woman and two boys — were found in the same area, apparently victims of the same incident, a police official said.

Israel would take aid cut under Dole plan

WASHINGTON (SHNS) — The Bush administration gave cautious encouragement Tuesday to a politically explosive suggestion by Senate Republican leader Bob Dole that U.S. aid to the Middle East and other countries be cut to provide more aid to Eastern Europe and Panama. Dole, R-Kan., suggested a 5 percent cut — about $330 million — in the $6.6 billion in U.S. military and economic aid to Israel, Egypt, the Philippines, Turkey and Pakistan. Together, the five countries receive two-thirds of the total 199.9 billion annual bilateral U.S. assistance.

‘Little war’ erupts at non-union coal mines

WORTH, Ill. (UPI) — Gunmen fired into a crowd of picketing coal miners Tuesday, killing one man and wounding two others at the mouth of two non-union mines in what one lawman called “a little war” in rural West Virginia. One witness told police more than 30 rounds were fired in the mysterious shooting around 8:30 a.m. on an access road to the two mines. Authorities said three pickup trucks drove by the second class mine workers, and then shots were fired from a section of woods above the intersection, about 200 yards away.

AT&T discovers blame for service troubles

NEW YORK (UPI) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co. long-distance service was disrupted nationwide Monday by a computer problem that triggered a false internal overload signal and blocked most customer calls from phoning out of their local calling areas.

Band offers alternative to Super Bowl

By Jeanne Bickler

Summit Brass ensemble scheduled to give concert at Shryock Auditorium

Summit Brass, the self-proclaimed “American Premier Large Brass Ensemble” will appear at Shryock Auditorium at 7 p.m. on Jan. 28.

The concert is being billed as an alternative to television on Super Bowl Sunday.

To date Summit Brass has released three albums, ranging from works of classical baroque, to Dixieland jazz, to patriotic marches. The program will feature the classical works "O Vex Omen" by Pablo Casals, "Overture To the Works" in the St. Louis Brass Quintet decided to get America’s finest brass players together to create Summit Brass in 1986.

Major orchestras represented in Summit Brass include New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Pittsburgh. Along with these members are top university music professors from Juilliard, Yale, DePaul, Rice, Carnegie Mellon and Manhattan School.

Summit Brass comes to SIU-C to give concert at SIU Arena on Feb. 23, with special guest Lenny Kravitz.

This tour is named after the band’s 1989 hit album "Fall Moon Fever." The album features such familiar hits as "Free Falling" and "Running Down the Dream." The unusual video for "Running Down the Dream" is animated, making Petty a cartoon character in an action/ adventure Alice in Wonderland type experience.

Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers also are responsible for eight other albums, some of which have achieved wide acclaim. The first album the band released in 1976 made a hit of Petty’s song, "American Girl.

The band’s 1979 album "Damn the Torpedoes" produced the group’s greatest number of hits with such songs as "Refugee," "Even the Les" and "Don’t Do Me Like That.

Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers have proven themselves to be a rock and roll band in the truest sense of the word, with incredible staying power which has brought the band from the 1970’s to the 90’s.

The opening act, Lenny Kravitz, currently has a single out called "Let Love Rule.

John Levy of Virgin Records (Kravitz’s label) said Kravitz plays "thought-provoking rock and roll.

Tickets for the show go on sale Jan. 20 at all SIU Arena outlets. They are $18.50 reserved.
To-do list necessary for University in '90s

Before classes become too demanding and work gets in the way, consider the state of the university. During the last half of the last decade, we witnessed tremendous advancements in the university's strengths. But we also saw its usual problems deepen.

On one hand, the university expanded its horizons and opened its doors in Japan; as England was in its prime, the sun never sets on SIU.

But we also can point to a lack of funds to stimulate and help strengthen existing programs. The status of those new programs born into poverty could slip easily from weak to worthless.

The multimillion dollar addition to the Recreation Center last fall has made indoor track meets possible at the University. However, the $6 million-plus price tag that will distinguish the Fitness Center from other recreation facilities nationwide has caused some students to question the school's priorities.

And what about our priorities? As a mass, we are capable of pitching in and working toward common goals. Let's do that once more by objecting and speaking in unison. If we can achieve cohesion, we can overcome some of the problems facing the university.

Below is a University list of things to do. While not comprehensive, it may include goals that can be attained by working together.

■ Seek better accessibility to University leadership, members of the Undergraduate Student Government to the chancellor. After all, they work for us by working with us.

■ Increase the overall graduation rate. In 1988, 48 percent of the student body graduated within the normal four year period. The lack of parking spaces on campus and use our feet instead of our mouths. As long as the arena parking lot remains relatively empty, our demands for creating new lots cannot be justified.

■ Recognize progress and treat it accordingly. Open minds are a necessity for a decade that promises change at home and abroad.

■ Strive for better study facilities on campus, such as establishing a better library budget. This may produce a wider assortment of periodicals and books and establish longer library hours.

■ Abide by the University's policy on sexual harassment. A survey conducted in 1988 at the University revealed that half of 230 students questioned knew at least one person who had been sexually harassed; 30 percent said they had experienced harassment first-hand.

■ Pressure Illinois lawmakers to settle on a workable solution to tuition hikes. The current answer from the Illinois Higher Board of Education is a tuition "freeze." This tactic to suppress tuition hikes will be put into action only if the General Assembly meets all budget requests by state universities. Should the General Assembly fail to dish out anything less than expected, universities likely will turn toward tuition hikes as a source of revenue. This is not an acceptable solution to the recurring problem of low funding.

■ Tuition control must be addressed in a manner acceptable to all aspects of the University. By raising tuition to help accommodate the 6 percent salary increase 10 percent, income statements may not be able to afford the rising costs of higher education. A permanent hike in income taxes to support these increases would be one alternative.

■ Fix the student renting program. Work toward more productive tenant-landlord relationships. Contact the student tenant union on campus for alternative solutions to housing problems.

■ Provide those members of the University community who have children, take advantage of the resources offered on campus. For instance, the Child Development Laboratory has extended its services to include evening child care from 5-44 p.m. Monday through Thursday. The Student Recreation Center also offers youth sports programs throughout the year to entertain and teach children at all levels.

Some commentators call it the "patriotic" people. The lawmakers call it "designation." Either way, the time to play is too good for Washington's latest power grab: its move to regulate takeover of day care.

Designation would forbid a state to make its day care rules more lenient unless Washington agreed. The plan, advanced by either house of Congress last session include this mistaken proviso:

Thus, if California — who, with bitterly regulates day care, should decide to require 14 in, 3 of the 15 preschool courses for certain supervisory positions, it would be impossible to get permission from the Secretary of Health and Human Services to make the changes.

The assumption here is Supreme wisdom in Washington. Both federal and California days were long ago, and have little to do with the issue at hand.

There is a disease slowly tightening its grip on this country that is more dangerous than cancer or even AIDS. That disease is simple, blatanτ apathy.

You'll need to start by defining the government or society for something, take a long look in the mirror, and realize you're a part of the government and society. Each of us is responsible.

Granted, there are very powerful people who may have the liberty to tamper with the rest of us. They may be the people (i.e. negligence) because we have voluntarily relinquished ours. We have done this by being lazy or not in the "Me" mentality of self and nothing else.

Ask yourself these questions and see where you stand.

■ Do you recognize a person who has had the opportunity, and, if so, do you understand the issues and know what the candidates stand?

■ When was the last time you were telephoned an elected official to tactfully, but firmly, inform him or her on your thoughts on an issue?

■ Can you name the elected officials charged with your representation in government?

■ Do you buy a newspaper just to read about the campaign, comics and Ann Landers before lining the cat's litter box?

The point, though, is all of us need to evaluate where we stand and what to do to make more of a part of the world that afflicts us.

Dole noted that a 5 percent reduction in the amount now going to the five major recipients, which includes the United States, would mean a loss of $30 million for Poland, Panama, Hungary and other countries "that understand we should not receive one penny of American aid."

"They must understand the government has got a big deficit," Dole told reporters. "Where are we going to get the money, where does it come from? It's far across the board. It is going to hurt to meet new obligations."

Israel benefits from a strong lobby in the United States, as do many of the other large aid benefici-ciaries, and Dole complained that called civil war," said Maj. General Yuri Kosolapov, commandant of the concern. The new round of clashes between Armenia and Azerbaijan was the worst ethnic strife since President Mikhail Gorbachev gained power in March 1985, and it raised to more than 200 the number of deaths since the violent dispute over the Nagorno-Karabakh enclave in Armenia erupted nearly two years ago.

Interior Ministry official Vahagn Aikazian said 96 people had died and 156 were wounded as fighting continued in the neighboring republics of Armenia and Azerbaijan.

occupants agree to allow smoking.

In approving the policy in 1988, Governor James R. Thompson said he too had the same concerns.

"Approximately 250 Illinois resdents die each year from smoke-erelated illnesses," Thompson said in his signing message attached to the bill. "An additional 20,000 Illinoisians die from smoke-related illnesses. House Bill 4555 (the Illinois Clean Indoor Air Act) will save lives."

The new law requires State and local government agencies, school districts and owners of public places to make reasonable attempts to prevent smoking outside designated areas by posting signs contacting law enforcement officers if the law is not observed.

Places in which smoking would be prohibited unless otherwise posted by the new law include: hospitals, restaurants, retail stores, offices, commercial establishments, elevators, indoor theaters, auditoriums, meeting rooms, nursing homes, educational facilities, public concert halls, libraries and art museums.

Five-year-old trapped in icy pond clings to life

FAIRFAX, Va., (UPI) - A 5-year-old boy who survived 40 minutes under water in an icy drainage manifold died Tuesday, and his doctor said the cocaine habit was breathing with the aid of a respirator.

Dr. Craig Fueneman said most of the boy's organs, including his heart, lungs and liver — had sustained damage. The primary concern was swelling of the brain of the boy, who fell through the ice on the reservoir pond Monday while with two of his cousins.

"It is impossible to tell at this time" whether any of the organ damage is permanent, Fueneman said. But he added that if Sader survives, the boy has less than a 2 percent chance of not having per-nal neurological damage.

"It would be extremely unusual as far as I'm concerned," said Dr. Fuer cer to recover completely, Fueneman said at a 2:15 p.m. meeting at Fairfax Hospiital. Fortunately, though, he does have the criteria for going downtown.

Sader was in a coma and on a respirator but he was breathing on his own. His body temperature, 90 degrees at the time he was brought to the hospital Monday afternoon, had risen to 102 degrees.

The physician added that the "pressure groups" have led Congress to lock in large sums of aid to certain countries that might be better used elsewhere.

"It shouldn't be whether Israel gives, it should be whether Congress goes along," Dole said. "We are a sovereign nation. That is a judgment we ought to make, rather than some lobbying group, whether it is Israel, Turks, Greeks, or the Philippines."

"It is a new ball game. We've got new players and we've got new obligations. We need to take a look at how we spend our money, and there's a scarcity of it. Maybe Israel ought to look at their economi and look at some of their inflation trends and how they can help us save some money." Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, objected, saying the needed money should come from "unnececessory weapons programs" as the Strategic Defense Initiative and the B-2 bomber.

The American Israel Public Affairs Committee, a potential lobb-

Yanchenkov said 28 of the dead were Armenians, 10 were Azerbaijanis, 16 were members of other nationalities and two were police officers. The govern-mate carried casuisty figures for Baku where the slaughter of Armenians first erupted Saturday. Some new reports had put the Baku death toll at 54.

Shatstein said one Interior Ministry soldier had been killed and 11 "badly wounded," and that four of his troops were missing. He said 49 "instigators of pogroms" had been arrested and hundreds of weapons were confiscated.

Edward Alkazzan, the Armenian government representative in Moscow, said only a few thousand Armenians remained in Baku from a total of 300,000 in the city of 1.7 million.

Alkazzan said 220,000 refugees from throughout Azerbaijan had fled to neighboring Armenia and about 100,000 had gone to the Islamic republic.

More than 300 Armenians stood in the snow in the front of the Communist Party headquarters in Moscow and screamed, "Shame on Gorbatchev."

The protests also carried huge black banners saying, "The slaughter of Armenians is on your conscience Gorbatchev" and "Don't forget you don't forgive Gorbatchev."

Legislature receives report cards

MARION (UPI) — A developer received Tuesday the final approval from the Southern Illinois District of Commerce to build a coal-fired power plant in a small community of 200, located south of Du Quoin. The developer, Madigan Power and Water Co., said he has plans to build a coal-fired power plant that would combine coal slurry with other industrial byproducts.

Madigan Power and Water Co. had announced plans last year to build a coal-fired power plant near the Illinois border. The company said it would be able to generate 1,000 megawatts of electricity by 2010.

The group state lawmakers on bills considered in the spring legislative session. Measures included workers compensation reform, family leave, affordable housing and tax increase legislation.

U.S. Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois made a Marion shopping plaza, has filed suit against the city of Marion for its use of TIF on the Illinois Centre Mall project.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — First lady Barbara Bush said Tuesday the U.S. invasion of Panama, although tragic because of the loss of American lives, was necessary and she supports women in combat if they are prepared.

She also said President Bush raced through the White House family quarters to tell her, "We got him," when deposed dictator Manuel Noriega surrendered to U.S. military authorities in Panama City Oct. 14 days after the invasion.

During an interview with wire service reporters as first lady, wearing a suit with a red jacket and plaid skirt, covered an array of subjects, including her health, her life in the White House and the strain on her family.

With a chiding reply of "nice try," she shrugged off questions about her position on abortion and gun control.

But in the interview near her first anniversary as first lady, Mrs. Bush did discuss the role of women in combat.

"If I thought a woman could physically pick up a person and bring them to safety or throw a hand grenade as far as a man, I'd say fine. I'm sure they can shoot or fly as well," she said.

The presence of women in combat areas, when it was revealed U.S. military women were engaged in incidents in Panama involving the Panamanian Defense Forces.

As for the Dec. 20 invasion of Panama, which she said she knew of hours in advance, Mrs. Bush said, "I thought it had to be done. ... It was tragic that we lost the lives we did. I thought it was important." The Pentagon said 23 American servicemen were killed in Panama.

Mrs. Bush, who describes herself as "George Bush's biggest fan," said she was "doubly impressed" by his level-headed approach to the Panama crisis.

"He told me before it happened," she said.

The first lady, who has suffered from blood-clot eyes and double vision caused by Graves' disease, or an overactive thyroid, recently underwent 10 radiation treatments. She said she has observed a slight improvement with less swelling of the eye muscles, but it will be two to four months before she is able to tell the results of the treatment.

She scoffed at a National Enquirer report that she was seriously ill.

"No, no, they're so fake," she said. "They don't tell the truth."

She also took issue with the fashion newspaper "W" for saying her English Spanish "Millie," was "out" this year. Millie, sleeping at the first lady's feet, seemed undisturbed by the publicity. "I don't think she gives a damn," Mrs. Bush said.

When asked whether she was concerned about her husband going to the Andean drug summit in Colombia next month, Mrs. Bush said, "I'm a little testy about all the letters I've been getting about it," which have expressed fear for the president's safety.

"I can't change his mind and make those decisions. I don't like it when he leaves the country," she said.

Supply craft crews to add women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Military Airlift Command is removing restrictions that prohibit women from serving on air crews on C-130 and C-141 transport planes that can be assigned airdrop missions, Air Force officials said Tuesday.

"The Air Force has always been a leader in humanitaries for women," said Gen. H.T. Johnson, commander in chief of the U.S. Transportation Command and Military Airlift Command. "Prior to this decision, 97 percent of Air Force jobs were open to women. Now we have pushed that door open even wider."

An Air Force official said the MAC decision had nothing to do with the role military women played in the Dec. 20 invasion of Panama, where some Army military policewomen were involved in direct combat.

Women are prohibited by federal statute from serving combat positions in the Navy and Air Force. The Army follows the same policy, though it is not covered by a specific federal law. The Air Force said that while developing plans for the new C-17 cargo plane, MAC officials reviewed aircrew assignment policies and took into account recent changes to the combat exclusion policy for women in the Air Force.

Discrimination in courts banned by revised code

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A gay-rights group announced Tuesday it has revised a draft of the American Bar Association's Model Code of Judicial Conduct to specifically ban discrimination within the court system against homosexuals.

The National Lesbian and Gay Law Association, which drafted the language, said the judicial code would apply to judges throughout the country and subjects them to discipline if they violate its ethical canons.

"Judges (and their staffs) across the country will be subject to disciplinary action if they do indeed manifest any sort of bias or prejudice against lesbians and gay men," said Suzanne Bryant, regional board member of the group.

"It sends a very strong, clear message to the judiciary that lesbians and gay men are to receive fair treatment under the law," she said.

The revised draft will be presented to the ABA's House of Delegates at its Feb. 10-11 meeting in Los Angeles. A final vote on the draft may not come until summer.

Last year the ABA House of Delegates passed a resolution saying the ABA endorsed any local, state or federal legislation prohibiting discrimination against gays.
Benefit album overlooked for nomination of Grammy

Album tribute to deceased rock musicians, legendary artists

By Curtis Wilston

The Grammy Awards' committee unintentionally snubbed the best performance of the year. A benefit album by various artists that features arresting, fresh performances of songs originally performed by rockers victimized by substance abuse.

The album is dedicated to the memories of 35 artists who took their lives by their own hands. Not only are they rockers named, but it pays tribute to each as artists as well as counterparts legend Hal Williams, Stax vocalist Biffie Holiday and singer-songwriter Charlie Barber.

The album is the result of the Moscow Music Peace Festival, held in the Soviet Union's Lenin Stadium the summer of 1989. The theme of the concert was "anti-rock, anti-alcohol, and anti-drugs." According to publicists.

Proceeds from sales of the album are split between two causes:
the Make a Difference Foundation, a non-profit organization that presents rock stars and professional athletes as role models against substance abuse and the Rusljan's All-Union Society for Sport Friendship.

The attitude of the project is summed up best by Peter Bruce Fairbairn, who writes in the liner notes: "We just asked each group to record a song they've always wanted to record, written or performed by an artist or group who had been touched by drug or alcohol problems as have some friends or family members.

The album kicks off with "My Generation" as performed by the Soviet metal act Gotye Rock. It's the best song on the album, not only because of the song's authentic arrangement, but simply because it seems so appropriate for a Soviet band to be singing in this ever-changing times.

My Generation," written by Petey Greene and originally performed by The Who, served as an anthem for British teens in the 1960s.

The new version still features the singer muttering the lyrics, which Townsend intends to represent a young manamped up on amphetamines.

Why the Russians are starring the lyrics seems to be a mystery, but given the changes and turmoil in Soviet Bloc countries, Gotye Rock has made the song an anthem for to the present generation.

Townsend is one of the many living rock stars who have survived and kicked a substance abuse problem. He and The Who were devastated by the death of drummer Keith Moon, who died in 1978 of an overdose of a drug he was taking to help him kick a cocaine habit.

What the committee
ignored was a benefit album by various artists that features songs originally recorded by rockers who died
from substance abuse.

Another of Townsend's early year anthems, "I Can't Explain," appears as the third cut on the album and is performed cleanly by the Scorpions.

Without actually contributing anything to this album, Townsend's influence is felt on the second cut of the album as well.

Once upon a time, Townsend felt that punk rock's Sex Pistols should pick up where The Who left off as being Great Britain's hot, rebeltious young rockers.

The story is that Townsend, shumbling around the London club circuit one night in the 1970s, came across who he thought was Sex Pistols' vocalist Johnny Rotten.
"Johnny" turned out to be Paul Cook, the drummer, but Townsend didn't find that out until after he had roughed up Cook and told him what he thought punk rock should accomplish.

The Pistols never really lived up to Townsend's expectations,
Board to certify ballot, challenges not settled

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The State Board of Elections is expected to certify the ballot for the March 20 primary election without ruling on a Democratic petition challenge aimed at knocking Lyndon LaRouche followers off the ballot, an elections official said Tuesday.

"It's just about certain that case will not be settled (immediately)," Kel Hudson, the board's associate director of election information, said. The board is scheduled to meet on Wednesday.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Attorney General Neil Hartigan filed challenges in December against thousands of signatures on the nominating petitions of LaRouche opponent Mark Fairchild and other LaRouche statewide candidates running in the Democratic primary.

At a hearing last week, attorneys for Hartigan alleged the LaRouche militia misled people in several counties by misrepresenting themselves to voters who signed their petitions.

Voters who thought they were expressing support for social issues were actually signing petitions for the LaRouche candidates, the Democrats said.

The party also said the LaRouche candidate for state comptroller, Patricia Noble-Schekl, had not lived in Illinois long enough to run for statewide office.

The election board is supposed to rule on all 71 ballot challenges before certifying the ballot for the March primary. But Hudson said board members are still waiting for more information from county clerks on the alleged LaRouche deception before making a decision.

"We'll put the (LaRouche) candidates on the ballot but beside each name will be the word objection," Hudson said.

While that entire ballot will be sent to county clerks, Hudson said most clerks are likely to wait until a decision is reached so they will not have to print ballots twice.

Art professor wins contest

Harris Deller, professor of art and design at SIU-C, has received a gold medal in an international ceramics contest held in Mino, Japan.

Judges selected Deller's work, "Stacked Vessel," as best in a field of entries from 167 finalists during the Second International Ceramic Festival. Seventeen of the finalists were American.

Deller's gold award is worth roughly $7,000 in American dollars.

Made of glazed, high-fire porcelain, "Stacked Vessel" combines mechanical and hand-building techniques. Deller received a grant from SIU-C's Office of Research Development and Administration last summer to work on the prize-winning piece.

Deller has exhibited his work internationally and has won several top awards. He studied and taught in Seoul, South Korea, under a 1981 Fulbright Hays fellowship.

Police Blotter

Computer, television and video equipment in excess of $10,000 were discovered missing from Carbondale Community High School East, 1301 E. Walnut, Tuesday after a custodian discovered a broken window on the south side of the building.

Carbondale police said the burglary occurred between 7:30 p.m. Monday and 7:30 a.m. Tuesday. There are no suspects, and the burglary is still under investigation, Carbondale police said.

Former assistant faculty member dies at 86; served SIU for 30 years

University News Service

Winifred Burns, a member of the English department faculty at SIU-C for more than 30 years before her retirement, died Wednesday, Jan. 3, at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau, Mo. She was 86.

Burns had lived at the Chateau Girardeau retirement community in Cape Girardeau. She was an assistant professor when she retired at SIU-C in 1971.

Burns, who grew up in Eureka, joined the SIU-C English department faculty in 1939 after having taught in Illinois high schools and at Lindenwood College, St. Louis. She held memberships in the Modern Language Association, the National Council of Teachers of English and the American Association of University Professors. She was a lifetime member of the Presbyterian Church, which her father had served as a minister.

She was born April 4, 1903, in Homer City, Pa., to George G. and Ada Jameson Burns. She leaves two nieces and two nephews, Suzanne Grossman, Ashland, Ore., Elizabeth Leysen, Fullerton, Calif., Timothy Burns, Los Angeles, Calif., and James Burns, Tiao, N.M.
Soldier followed orders of Noriega, lawyers say

MIAMI (UPI) — The wife of a Panamanian military officer accused in Manuel Noriega's alleged cocaine trafficking operation testified Tuesday that her husband should be freed on bail, saying he is "an enemy of violence."

Tisa Jimenez del Cid, testifying in Spanish through an interpreter, described as a key hearing how her husband, Lt. Col. Luis del Cid, helped many people flee Nicaragua, which is governed by the leftist Sandinista party. He was always a man who was an enemy of violence," she said. "He helped whomever he could and they did not know how to express their gratitude." Del Cid testified that his husband surrendered to U.S. military officials after the U.S. invasion of Panama, on Dec. 10, because he had nothing to fear and he wanted to avoid a massacre.

Two Nicaraguan women now living in Miami told U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler how Luis del Cid helped them escape their homes, which relatives in Miami. They also said they would be willing to house del Cid in their home if he is released on bond and required to stay in Miami. After about the hearing's testimony, Hoeveler said the hearing would resume Wednesday afternoon.

Del Cid's lawyer, Samuel Burstyn, said later: that he did not have anywhere to go. "Flee to where?" he said. "He is certainly not welcome in Panama."

The defense hoped to debunk the government's contention that del Cid was an active participant in the deposed Panamanian dictator's alleged scheme to use Panama as a cocaine shipping station. "My client followed orders," Burstyn said in an interview Monday. "He was a middle-level officer." Burstyn also questioned whether he had been "deeply involved," as the government has alleged. del Cid headed Noriega's secret police.

"That's the cut false," Burstyn said. "We will also establish that the government's version was never a personal attack of Noriega."

According to a February 1988 indictment against Noriega and 15 others, del Cid was a liaison and courier between Noriega and Colombian drug traffickers. The indictment charges him with helping move cocaine from Colombia to Panama with the knowledge that it was headed for the United States. Another co-defendant, pilot Evaro Pardo, was donted bond Tuesday by U.S. Magistrate William Turneff.

The council noted CFC-113 already was restricted by the government.

Potential jurors questioned for trial of Mafia boss in New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — He is the reputed head of the nation's most powerful Mafia family, the subject of innumerable news stories and even of a Time magazine cover. But many potential jurors questioned at his assault trial Tuesday did not know who John Gotti was.

"At first, I thought he was theSUBJECT of some guy who shot people," a young woman, apparently referring to Bernhard Goetz, told the judge. "He looks a lot like a lot of potential jurors at the assault trial in state Supreme Court in Manhattan."

ANOTHER POTENTIAL juror in the Gotti case, a middle-aged man once employed as a 911 operator, speculated, "I'm just guessing, but he may be associated with the city's scandal that came out during the election last year."

In a case that could send Gotti, 49, in prison for life as a "presumed felon," the judge has taken extraordinary precautions to prevent jury tampering. He ruled jurors' first names will remain secret, and the panel will be sequestered as soon as it is sworn in.

Gotti, the reputed godfather of the powerful Gambino crime family, is accused of ordering a union official shot and wounded on May 7, 1986, in retaliation for vandalism at a restaurant owned by the Gambino clan. Also charged is Anthony Guerrieri, 60, a reputed Gambino family soldier.

GOTTI MADE international headlines last month when he grabbed the lapels of the Gambino family after "louc de bosses" Paul Castellano was gunned down in front of a Manhattan steakhouse in December 1985. Defense lawyers in the highly publicized case accused potential jurors of lying when they claimed Tuesday they did not know who Gotti was.

"They will give you any answer they think will get them on this jury," Gerald Shargel, an attorney for Guerrieri, complained to the judge. "I'm just very disturbed by what is happening here."

BOTH GOTTI and Guerrieri sat in the cavernous courtroom Tuesday while potential jurors were whisked into a jury room for individual questioning by attorneys for both sides. By 4 p.m., only two members of the jury pool of 190 people had been excused. Justice Edward McLaughlin said he expects it will take the rest of the week to pick 12 jurors and four alternates.

Most of the potential jurors described organized crime as a virtual fact of life in New York City. But many said they had no opinion on whether the man before them for trial on assault and conspiracy charges was, in fact, the godfather of the Gambino family.

"DO YOU believe he is a leader of organized crime?" Bruce Cutler, Gotti's gravel-voiced lawyer, asked one potential juror, a middle-aged man. "He may be. He may not be," the juror replied.

Cutler told the man he wanted to find out if he had any opinions of Gotti, whose flare for suits and diamond rings has earned him the nickname "The Dapper Don."

"Do you have any impressions of Mr. Gotti as he's been here in court?" Cutler pressed. "He's a well-dressed man," the potential jury member said.

condolences to the victim's family, said Mike Lynch, a spokesman for the mayor.

Asked if the visit took place before the victim's name was made public, Lynch said, "I'm not sure chronologically what happened."

Police spokesperson Jill Reilly said investigators were searching for four black teenagers who witnesses said fled the scene. Police said investigators had not established a motive for the assault and could not confirm reports Belmore may have been robbed.
Boxer-short clad suspect arrested while washing clothes at laundry

Money discovered inside man's shoes

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — A man suspected of robbing a bank was caught a few hours later with his pants down, police said.

Jeffery David Link, 14, was arrested on bank robbery charges Monday night at a laundry where he was washing his clothes, police said.

Link was wearing only his blue boxer shorts when police, acting on a tip from an unidentified informer, found him in a laundry bathroom and arrested him for robbing a branch of Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. at about 1:15 p.m.

Police said they found money missing from the bank in Link's shoes. Link was being held in the Mecklenburg County Jail on $15,000 bond.

Police said an unarmed man walked into the bank, handed a note to a teller demanding money. The teller gave him an envelope of cash and the man said that was enough and ran outside.

After the robbery, police visited other businesses in the area to ask employees and customers if they had seen a tall thin man with a mustache dressed in drag.

An employee at a bowling alley went to a laundry under the lanes to tell the employees about the robbery.

"I went in and there was this man in his underware," said the bowling alley employee, who asked not to be identified.

"It was funny. There were two women standing there too. I acted like I was looking at my laundry and turned right around and went out to the parking lot and told police," the man said.

When police got to the laundry the suspect was gone but they found him hiding in a bathroom. Police and bowling alley employees searched garbage cans and bushes for the money but did not find it until they looked in Link's shoes. Police said that was the only place left that Link had to hide the cash.

Shelbyville bank robber has his day

SHELBYVILLE (UPI) — A man wearing pasty hose on his head declared "this is my day," displayed a gun and made off with an undisclosed amount of money in a robbery Tuesday at the First Trust Bank, authorities said.

"One white male entered the bank branch at about 8:45 a.m.," FBI spokesman Bob Grooms said from the agency's Springfield office. "He exhibited a small caliber handgun."

Shelbyville Police Chief Don Koonce said the tellers told his officers the man was wearing his nylon mask and waiting for them when they opened the bank branch.

"Ladies, this is my day," Koonce said the tellers quoted the man as saying when he announced the holdup.

In addition to the unusual headgear, witnesses described the gunman as wearing a tan overcoat, white shirt and black pants.

There were no injuries and Grooms said Link had even told the tellers they were looking for the getaway car, described as an older model luxury car.

East German government vows to dissolve secret police as several thousand protest communist rule in 12 cities

East German police building sustains millions in damage

The two-day meeting, the latest diplomatic effort to end the fighting in Cambodia, came amid a new Khmer Rouge guerrilla offensive against the Vietnamese-backed Cambodian government. French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas, who opened the meeting Monday, said "everything possible must be done to prevent the return of the Khmer Rouge to power."

The communist Khmer Rouge has been accused of killing a million Cambodians before it was toppled from power when Vietnam invaded Cambodia in 1978 and backed the current government. Dumas said the five Security Council members "hold special responsibilities in maintaining peace" and that "some have an important influence on the protagonists." The representatives met at the Kelet conference center, the site of last summer's international conference on Cambodia, which failed to reconcile the nation's four warring factions before the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia last fall.

The Security Council was presented with a new Australian diplomatic initiative calling for an enhanced U.N. role in Cambodia. The proposal would allow the United Nations to administer the country for at least a year until free elections can be held to select a new government.

It would also set up an international peacekeeping force and a control mechanism to monitor a cease-fire.

The day before today's meeting, the latest diplomatic effort to end the fighting in Cambodia, the U.N. Security Council met in a second day Tuesday to discuss peace initiatives for Cambodia after reaching a consensus on a traditional U.N. administration of the war-torn nation.

"We made a lot of progress" at Monday's meeting, said one diplomat. "We reached an understanding that the idea that the U.N. administration should have full powers." The idea that the U.N. would remain as mediator was discussed, but the Russians said that the U.N. should have full powers.

At the meeting, the ambassadors were divided on the issue of a two-day meeting to discuss peace initiatives for Cambodia after reaching a consensus on a traditional U.N. administration of the war-torn nation.

Mahan: Speedy leader with capacity to fire up teammates

By Kevin Simpson

Head basketball coach Rich Herrin is looking for Sterling Mahan to use "leadership by example" and guide the Salukis to the top of the Missouri Valley Conference.

With Mahan running the point, Herrin knows his team will have a good chance at pulling out a victory.

"When Sterling goes out and has a good night, it usually rubs off on the other players," Herrin said. "He does a good job of being the floor leader for us. He shows very good leadership and he's very talented."

Mahan, a junior point guard for the Salukis, is an integral part of the Salukis offensive and defensive scheme. After 16 games, his 15.6 points per game places him in a tie for sixth place in the Valley. His 4.8 assists and 2.3 steals per game lead the league.

With the 6-1, 187 pound sparkplug running the floor, the Salukis average 84.5 points per game while three other players also are averaging double figures.

Herrin said Mahan should end up in the Salukis record books when his collegiate career is over. With one full season remaining and half of the current season to go, Mahan has 678 total points. If Mahan breaks the 1000 point barrier, he also will enter the top 20 SIU-C All-Time Scoring list.

"He's having a very outstanding career for us," Herrin said. "He's been a very good scorer for us. He'll probably be a 1000-point contributor for us."

"Sterling has been a very steady performer for us all three years," Herrin said. "His academic achievements are more exciting than anything else."

Beyond his statistics, Mahan always tries to be a good role model and a team player.

"The majority of the time I just try and get everyone into the flow of the game," Mahan said. "I try to create opportunities for everyone, including myself. I want to be more consistent and hit the shots that the team needs. I try to set good examples on and off the court."

An 0-2 start in the Valley is included in the Salukis box column. Illinois State defeated the Dawgs 85-75 Jan. 6 while Drake downed them 79-71 Saturday.

Against Drake, Mahan said the team was spinning its wheels for much of the game.

"We were kind of sluggish," Mahan said. "We made some terrible decisions passing the ball and not getting back on defense. Drake really hurt us with that."

Although their backs are against the wall, Mahan remains optimistic about the Salukis chances for the Valley crown.

"We still have a chance," Mahan said. "We have 12 more games. We have to prepare ourselves and accept the challenge. I think we're going to meet that challenge. The chemistry among us, we just have to go out and play."

"I want to win the conference. That is the most important thing," Mahan said. "Creighton, Tulsa; we have to beat them. We had two tough games on the road that we should have won, but we didn't." If one of their last ten games on the road wasn't enough, the Salukis travel to Terre Haute Thursday to face a revitalized Indiana State team. Although the Sycamores won only four games last season, (0-14 in the Valley) they already have won seven games this season and are 6-1 at home.

The Salukis will host Tulsa, one of the favorites to win the Valley, Saturday night at the Arena. Mahan acknowledges the importance of coming home to a good crowd.

"It's going to help us out a lot," Mahan said. "Crowd support really gets you motivated. It's good to see people out there who really appreciate what you're doing."

His relationship with the head coach is a solid one and Mahan says he has a lot of respect for Herrin on and off the court.

"Coach Herrin is a good person," Mahan said. "He likes to see you do well. He likes to see everybody graduate. He doesn't get enough credit."

"He has taught me to work hard and never give up," Mahan said. "No matter what happens, keep playing hard. I really like that."

Being part of a team that has been rebuilt under Herrin, his staff and his players is important to Mahan. In Mahan's first year as a Saluki, SIU-C won 12 games, followed by 20. Now the team has the opportunity to go over the 20-win mark.

"It means a lot to me," Mahan said. "I think we're going to help the team improve. We're getting some good recruits in here and everybody has done their part and that helps. The program has gotten tenacious."

Wednesday's assistant relishes upset of Eagles

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

Monday night turned out to be a pleasant homecoming victory for Saluki women's basketball assistant coach Myra Fishback. The Salukis upset 18th-ranked Tennessee Tech 62-60 at Cookeville Monday. Fishback is an assistant coach at Tennessee Tech and a native of Shelbyville. The two towns are less than two hours apart.

"It was a great win for our program," Fishback said. "The girls really worked hard. They were down a couple of times, but they came back and pulled it off."

Fishback, in her first season with the Saluki coaching staff, has been associated with top basketball teams in Tennessee. She starred at the state's premier high school program, Shelbyville Central, from 1976-1980. Fishback played on Coach Rick Insell's first state tourney team and helped spark three straight 20-win seasons. Just before coming to Carbondale, Fishback was part of a coaching staff that led Tennessee Tech to a 22-8 record, an Ohio Valley Conference title and an NCAA Tournament upset of 14th-ranked South Carolina.

The game between the Salukis and Golden Eagles was a classic matchup between two of the all-time winningest teams in women's basketball history. The Salukis are the 12th winningest team with 382 victories and Tennessee Tech is the fourth winningest team with 438 wins. "It's always nice to beat a ranked team," Saluki head coach Cindy Scott said. "It's something the team wanted confidence in.

The Salukis have won two of three games with the Golden Eagles. In 1987 at the Arena, SIU-C defeated Tennessee Tech 76-65 Dec. 14 to average a 76-65 loss in Cookeville the year before which had snapped the Salukis' 18-game win streak.

Miller pacing Indiana; contending to end his team's All-Star drought INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Reggie Miller talks tough, shots long and drives to the basket much better than last year. As a result, the guard is a strong contender to be Indiana's first NBA All-Star Game representative since 1997.

The third-year guard averages 23.7 points a game and ranks among the NBA leaders in scoring, 3-point shooting and minutes played. Miller doubts he will be able to earn him a place at the all-star game in Miami.

"I know how this league is. It would never pick anybody from Indiana," Miller said. "I don't want to think about that. There are so many good guards in the Eastern Conference, so many guys deserving of a spot. I'm young and I will have more chances.

Miller also ranks among NBA leaders in talking to opponents during games, using his words as inspiration and aggravations or distractions to opponents.

"He's probably one of the cops in the league in talking trash," said teammate LaSalle Thompson.

"He's emotional. He likes to talk. Guys get frustrated when he's talking," said Indiana guard Vern Fleming.

Miller, 74, of Riverside, Calif., set career highs twice in three days last week, scoring 38 points in a loss at Philadelphia and then ripping Chicago for 44 points in a victory that snapped a live-game losing skid.

In four days later, Miller sank a 17-foot footer shot with one second remaining to lift Indiana past Milwaukee. His biggest goal was an NBA record for Pacier guards and the team's fourth-highest single-game effort in its NBA era.

He has arrived,' teammate Charles Shackleford said. "He's turned into such a great scorer, he has the freedom to do what he wants. He will make it (to the all-star game). If he doesn't, it's an injustice to Reggie. They've got to put him on the team.

Miller averaged 12.8 points through his first two NBA seasons and became known for his deadly 3-point shooting. Miller sank 61 3-pointers in his first season of breaking Larry Bird's rookie 3-point record, then made 98 last season. But when opponents guarded his long shots, he struggled.

So Los Angeles provides a summer workout area second to none, Miller found himself practicing his new moves on the NBA's best.

The win Monday night kept alive a five-game winning streak and gave the Salukis a 5-3 record in non-conference games. The non-conference schedule also included nationally-ranked Northern Illinois and Purdue.

"It was a struggle," Scott said. "I would like to have the Washington State and Creighton games back.

But with a young team and the tough non-conference schedule we have, we have to be pretty pleased with 5-3.

It was Tennessee Tech's second loss in their last 42 home games. The Salukis are gaining confidence with every game, Scott said.

"The kids are beginning to believe they can be good," Scott said.

Frisco signs MVP Mitchell to contract for 1990 season

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — National League MVP Mitchell MVP San Francisco Giants President and owner Don Nelson said have come to terms with the San Francisco Giants, the team announced Tuesday.

Terms of the deals were not announced. Mitchell made $500,000 last season.

"We are very happy to have him in the fold for the 1990 season," Giants President Al Rosen said. "Players who can play the kind of numbers he did last year don't come along that often. He was a major part of our success last year, and hopefully will be for years to come.
