KERRY MALONEY - DAILY EGYPTIAN

Justin Hood, a senior in radio and television from McLeansboro, joins other members of the SIUC Polar Bear Club for a dip in Campus Lake Tuesday afternoon. The group was raising awareness about the annual Morris Library Technology Exposition.

Before submerging themselves into the frigid water of Campus Lake Tuesday afternoon, participants in the unofficial SIUC Polar Bear Club Jump kept as many articles of clothing on as possible.

Annual leap into Campus Lake promotes February technology expo

Justin Hood's lunch was interrupted by his roommate's invitation to join him in a plunge into the 40-degree waters of Campus Lake Tuesday.

So Hood, a senior in radio and television, joined Kevin Byron, a graduate student in public administration, and two others in an annual dip at noon by the self-named "SIUC Polar Bear" club. Byron described his exit from the lake as much more "painful" than his entrance, leaving his body slightly numb.

Whereas Byron and Hood had never jumped before, Recreation Center Director Bill McMinn and Aquatics Director Shane Ravellette were returning veterans.

The tradition began 14 years ago when one of the Recreation Center's lifeguards brought the idea to SIUC from his father's plunges into Lake Michigan with a similar Chicago group.

Since then, the SIUC plunge has been coupled with an effort to raise awareness about the annual Morris Library Technology Exposition, which will take place from about 3:30 until 7:30 p.m. Feb. 23 in the Recreation Center.

The exposition allows the library to showcase new distance learning and database technology to students and faculty who may not ordinarily frequent the library.

McMinn has been a "polar bear" since the SIUC group's beginning. He prefers the few jumps, years ago, when the weather cooperated, and the temperature reached 70 degrees.

"We have had as much as six inches of ice on the lake," McMinn said. "Then, it took us an hour to make a hole big

Candidates promise to improve University's image and aid enrollment

To Richard Falvo, one of the three candidates for interim vice chancellor of Academic Affairs and provost, improving SIUC's image to people outside of the college is a priority.

Nearly 40 people, including SIUC faculty and staff, were on hand to listen and question Falvo, Margaret E. Winters, and Kyle Perkins, all candidates for the position of interim vice chancellor for Academic Affairs and provost.

The candidates presented their cases Tuesday afternoon to a crowded University Museum auditorium.

"People who graduated from this University 25 years ago think SIUC is the greatest place on earth," said Falvo, a physiology professor. "Alumni who graduated 15 years ago don't feel that way. Something has happened to create that negative feeling."

Winters, an associate vice chancellor for Academic Affairs for personnel and student policy, also believes SIUC's image needs a makeover.

"We are gradually hiring people in faculty and administration who are proving themselves," Winters said. "We hope that later the Chicago papers will stop using [the University] as a whipping boy."

During the 45 minute time slot allotted to each candidate in the open forum, Falvo

President search team needs time

Interim may play role in discussions

ANDY EGENSE
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The search to find a permanent SIU president is still in the early stages, as executive meetings are slated to review the candidates' professional backgrounds, according to the president's office.

Sharon Habs, advisory committee chair of SIUE deans, said the committee has been asked to work quickly while locating a qualified candidate at the same time. She said it will take at least a few months to run through the proper procedures.

Habs could not comment on the specific qualifications the committee is interested in. The committee's ideal goal would be to have the permanent president in place by the tentative July 1 deadline.

"We will take as much time as we need," Habs said.

As of 10 days ago, a total of 45 people have applied for the permanent president's position. The number is a combination of both applications turned in and other nominations people have sent. The Presidential Search Advisory Committee last met Jan. 6 in Nashville, Ill., to review the applications.

Interim President Frank Horton said finding the right candidate to lead SIU would be a top priority during his six-month stay at the University.

IBHE recommends $14 million budget increase

Proposed increase would improve salaries and provide funding for maintenance projects

GINNY SKALSKI
AND KAREN BLATTER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTERS

The Illinois Board of Higher Education recommended a budget increase of more than $14 million in the fiscal year 2001 for SIU, aiding in increased salaries and deferred maintenance dollars for SIUC.

Interim Chancellor John Jackson said the budget increase is funding that SIUC needs to make necessary improvements.

"It's a very positive budget for this campus," he said. "This funding provides for salary increases that we need. It will give us a chance to make some good capital improvements."

Gov. George Ryan will review the budget Feb. 2. The recommendation of the board and Gov. Ryan will come before the Illinois General Assembly in mid to late February for final approval.

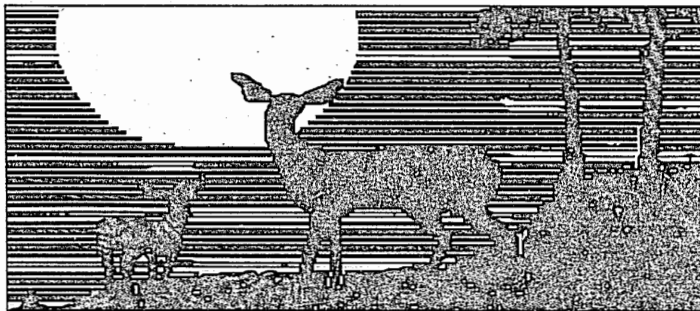

The budget increase would bring a 5.8 percent increase to SIUC, hoisting it above the statewide average for public universities.

The budget would provide funding that allows for salary increases totaling $8.6 million in the second year of a five-year plan to bring SIU salaries to the level of other equal universities. It's a

OUR WORD

Help wanted: leadership at SIU

"Southern Interim University" is not an image our school needs right now, but that's the name our University has become synonymous with. Having nearly shed our "party school" reputation, SIU does not want another stereotype negatively depicting our University. But for now there is no strong or secure leadership. It's interim leadership, which amounts to a flashing "DO NOT ENTER" sign for talented students, faculty and administrators.

The most recent interim leader to take the reigns at SIU is Frank Horton, who will replace the vacating president, Ted Sanders. This delay in appointing a permanent president makes a total of six top leadership positions patrolled by interims: SIU's president, the SIUC chancellor, vice chancellor for Academic Affairs and provost, vice chancellor for Institutional Advancement, Athletics Director and Dean of the Graduate School. To add to the dilemma, Joe Foote will vacate his position June 30 as the dean of the college of Mass Communication and Media Arts. What's next, our Saluki dog leaving only to be replaced with a Thompson Woods squirrel acting as an interim mascot?

In some cases, students who contemplate attending a university do not even know the chancellor's name, much less who fills every administrative position. But some do, including many parents who will be justifiably concerned at the rickety administrative structure at SIU. When a vast majority of the University's leadership is missing, replaced with glorified temps, there is bound to be uncertainty as to whether students will want to attend SIU. What's more, prospective faculty and administrators are not looking for a place to work where there is no strong leadership or direction.

But the leadership vacuum is a small part of a larger mess. The University is in a dire state of disrepair. As stated by the North Central Accreditation report, the buildings and grounds have deteriorated to an embarrassing level. SIU is lacking the adequate funds to jump start the University's aesthetic image, and we should be concentrating on moving forward to escape the current stagnant condition. With these pressing concerns, we need a strong group of vocal and enthusiastic leaders who want to improve the campus. However qualified the current interims are, there is only so much they can or want to do, knowing they will soon be replaced.

We applaud interim Chancellor John Jackson for recently filling the position of vice chancellor for Student Affairs — another vacant administrative position — with the seemingly qualified Larry Dietz. Jackson was also able to hire several college deans and Glen Poshard, who took the vacant vice chancellor for Administration position. But Jackson himself is an interim, and has yet to decide if he would accept the permanent chancellor position, if offered. Because we lack a single direction faculty and students can rally around, campus morale is wounded by not having anyone to identify with.

Where is SIU headed? Where is our leadership? Who wants to receive a diploma from a university where the entire administration is acting as fill-ins? These are questions everyone should be asking. It's time to fill these spots — and soon. Once these interim positions are filled, it will take some time for the new leaders to become acclimated to their jobs. This lengthens the amount of time it will take to stabilize our already shaky campus unity.

With this in mind, the DAILY EGYPTIAN will continue writing stories about the administrative searches and penning editorials advocating the need to fill these vacancies until each position is occupied. We want to emphasize that if decisive action is not taken soon, SIU may need to start filling more vacant positions — the students. And these are positions not easily replenished with interims.

Thoughts on the observance of Martin Luther King Jr's birthday

Martin Luther King Jr. is the only American, besides George Washington, to have a national holiday designated for his birthday. Abraham Lincoln, Thomas Jefferson, Robert E. Lee and a few other birthdays are celebrated in some states, but not on a national level. That would certainly imply that he must have been a hero of the American people whose contributions have been well documented and whose legacy will continue to be studied and celebrated, right?

There were those however, who labeled King as a Communist, an agitator, or worse. No discussion of King's significance in this country would be complete without considering the relentless and intrusive campaign waged against him by the very government that designated a holiday in his honor.

Currently, there are many who fight for the same principles as King, and they receive about the same treatment he did during his life, albeit without the fame. Thanks to J. Edgar Hoover's COINTELPRO (Counter Intelligence Program), just about any individual, and certainly any movement that strives to shift the balance of power or challenges the status quo at any considerable level in this country, runs the risk of feeling the blows from the extremely long, and often corrupt, arm of the law. COINTELPRO, according to Hoover, was an FBI program designed to "expose, disrupt, misdirect and otherwise neutralize" activists and groups advocating social change in the United States and was ordered to disband in the 1970s after the U.S. Senate found the practice unconstitutional, though many think it is still in existence.

The Black Panther Party, the American Indian Movement, MOVE, Mumia Abu-Jamal and Earthfirst, are just a few who have been singled out for advocating and fighting for change. These and many other movements came into existence because of a little idea known as "equality." The so-called principles upon which this nation was founded, "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," and "all men are created equal," according to some subversive government ideology, only apply sometimes.

Defenders of our environment, Earthfirst, has been a target for its methods to protect trees, some of which are hundreds of years old, by any non-violent means necessary. These people defend the air we breathe and are willing to put their lives on the line to prevent the forests from becoming deserts, and yet they are deemed terrorists by our government! In 1990, a motion-triggered antipersonnel bomb exploded beneath the car seat of Earthfirst organizer, Judi Bari's car. The FBI not only failed to try to find the bomber, it had the activists in the car arrested and tried to frame them on charges of transporting the very explosives that were used in attempt to kill them.

As the Rev. King explained in his letter from Birmingham City Jail, there are two types of laws, just and unjust. He said that a person had not only a legal, but a moral duty to obey just laws. But that was no more true, or important, than a person's duty to disobey unjust laws.

When I think about Martin Luther King Jr., I think about all those who have fought and are still fighting for freedom. It took more than two decades for us to pay homage to the man by observing the anniversary of his birth. Will we someday honor Leonard Peltier? Mumia Abu-Jamal? Environmental defenders? I hope so.

"King was a political prisoner, even when not in prison, of the very same government that he fought, and died, to save."

MCMA dean's departure leaves big shoes to fill

Guernsey begins to form a search committee to replace department's first dean

ANDREA DONALDSON
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Since Joe Foote's announcement in November that he would be stepping down from his position as dean of the College of Mass Communications and Media Arts, interim Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs and Provost Tom Guernsey has provided a general job description, distributing it to the MCMA faculty for comments. Guernsey said search committee is currently in the process of being formed.

"The college operating paper requires a constituency based search committee — which means you have to get names from the Faculty Senate, the Graduate Council, the Undergraduate Student Government, the Civil Service AP," said Guernsey.

Guernsey hopes to have all of the representatives acquired in time for the committee to decide on a replacement prior to Foote's departure.

Foote, the first person to serve as dean for MCMA, will begin a year-long sabbatical leave to do research at the end of June.

After which, he will return to the college as a professor for the Department of Radio and Television.

"I am looking forward both to teaching and doing research," Foote said.

For the last 14 years, Foote served seven of them as the chair for the Department of Radio and Television, advancing to the dean of MCMA for the remaining seven.

Enrollment for the college has increased 30 percent in the past seven years with Foote at the helm.

But Foote does not take all the credit for the increase, saying many factors have led to the rise in enrollment.

"I believe the major factors in our enrollment increase has been, first of all, the quality of our academic programs," Foote said. "The reputation of those programs, the satisfaction of the students in them and the quality of the faculty. All of those things go together, and it's that reputation that has been the predominant motivation behind our incredible enrollment growth."

Foote said other factors attributing to the growth of the college have been the hands on experience, up-to-date technology and off-campus study programs.

"We've tried to offer programs that will excite students," he said.

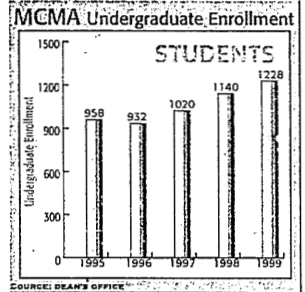

MCMA offers study programs in Hollywood, Chicago, Nashville and Britain. Foote and his wife, Jody, have set up one $1,000 scholarship given to students attending the British studies program.

During his time as dean, Foote has been a faculty associate for the college's academic emphasis floor in Kellogg Hall. Shannon Turk, a student on this floor, said Foote has made a remarkable effect on many students who live there.

"Dean Foote has made the department a lot less intimidating by making himself available to the floor," said Turk, a freshman in Cinema and Photography from Palatine.

Both students and faculty will be sad to see Foote step down. Guernsey hopes everything will fall into place and the committee will be able to have the position filled by the time Foote leaves.

"I'll probably have a closing date sometime in March for the position, and we still hope that the dean will be in place by July 1," Guernsey said.

With the strengths of the college, Foote does not think that there will be a problem in finding his replacement. He is optimistic about getting someone new.

"It's a good time to reevaluate, take stock and move forward to a new level," Foote said.

SIU police, University use $30,000 grant to promote assault awareness

Utilizing prevention programs, both groups hope to see an increase in reports

DAVID FERRARA
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Four different SIUC women reported sexual assaults to University police during the fall semester. In each case, the victim knew her attacker.

But no arrests were made in any of the incidents.

By the time the police delivered the reports to the state's attorney's office, the victims either decided not to press charges in the assault, the state's attorney decided there was not enough evidence to prosecute or, in one incident, decided that the sex was consensual. Alcohol was a factor in every case, police said.

SIUC Police Lt. Todd Sigler summed up concerns by saying, "It's frustrating."

But if the number of reported sexual assaults increases this semester, Sigler won't be disappointed.

Upon receiving a $30,000 grant in September, SIUC police, along with several on-campus and community groups, have been working to alleviate the frustration associated with sexual assault and increase awareness.

Sigler penned the grant last summer.

He says the primary concern is cementing the foundation for an avenue that allows victims to report the sexual attacks and feel comfortable doing so.

"We wouldn't be surprised to see some increase in the number of reported incidents," Sigler said. "That's not necessarily a bad thing. Ultimately, you want the numbers to go down. It's a significant number that are not being reported. That's a concern. It bothers me."

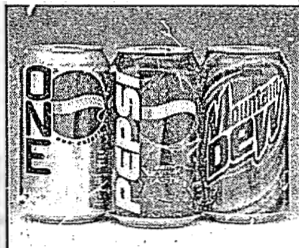

SIUC received the grant in September from a state-wide program called "Illinois Violence Prevention Authority." In 1998, about 40 sexual assault prevention programs were offered to SIUC students.

With the money from the grant, community and campus leaders are not only increasing the number of prevention programs offered to college

Coffeehouses cater to the tastes of culture and conversation

A black light bounces psychedelic colors off artwork hanging on the walls in the back room of Longbranch Coffeehouse — paintings by a 10-year-old boy.

Nearby, two men are intensely absorbed in a game of chess while a woman studies the mechanics of the game.

A group of SIUC students sit at a table inhaling the ambiance surrounding them. Some of them are a little wary, this being their first trip to such an establishment.

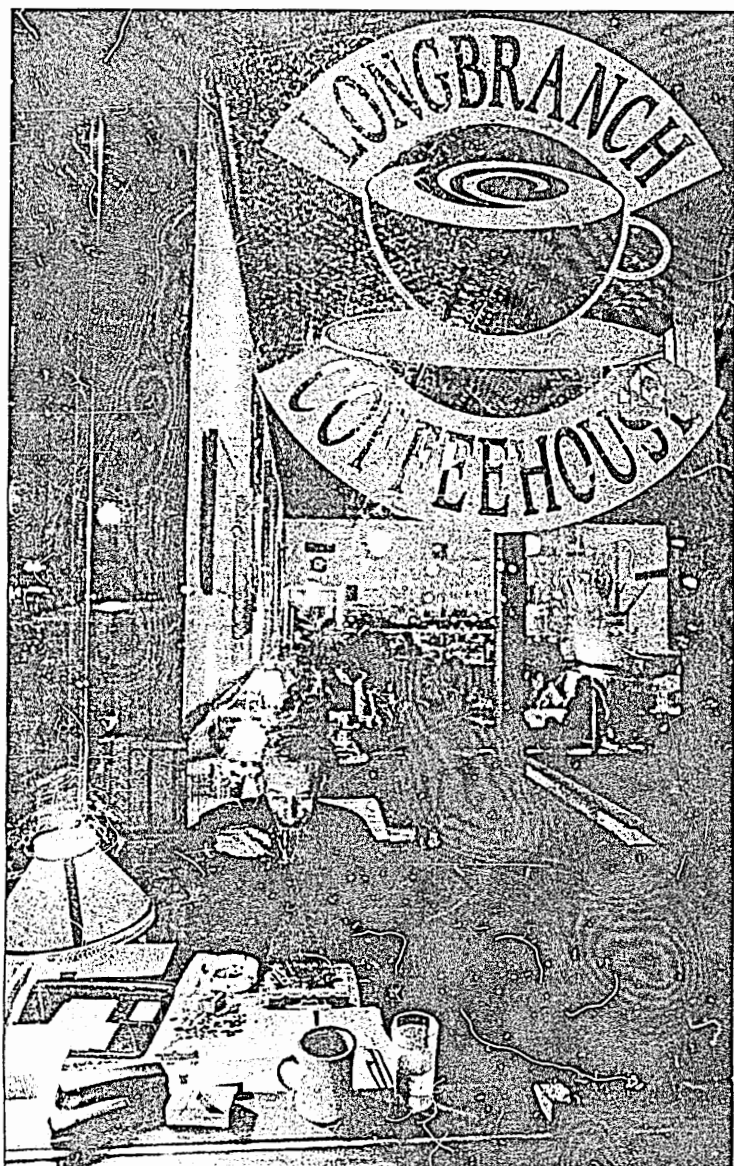

Across town, at Melange, 607 S. Illinois Ave., Roger Robinson and his wife, both SIUC faculty members, sit before a fireplace with their drinks listening to the jazz playing in the background.

The joining element, the common thread — a coffee bean.

"Coffee has evolved in that Americans have gotten on to good coffee," said Elaine Ramseyer, one of the owners and managers at Longbranch, 100 E. Jackson St. "They have learned what Europeans have known all along."

Coffeehouses in the area include Melange at 607 S. Illinois Avenue, Longbranch Coffee House at 100 E. Jackson St., and Gloria Jeans in the University Mall. For a cup of coffee on the run or between classes, try the Coffee Corner on the corner of South Washington Avenue and Route 13, or Jaguar Coffee in the Student Center.

"It's a real quiet place to read, study, sit, relax and hang out," said his girlfriend Amanda Dickson, who was sitting with Gullette Sunday evening.

A Brief History of Coffee

- 1000 AD: Arabs cultivate coffee for the first time on plantations. They also began to boil the beans, creating a drink they call 'qahwa' (literally, that which prevents sleep).
- 1453: Coffee is introduced to Constantinople by Ottoman Turks. The world's first coffee shop, Kiva Han, opens there in 1475. Turkish law makes it legal for a woman to divorce her husband if he fails to provide her with her daily quota of coffee.
- 1668: Coffee replaces beer as New York's City's favorite breakfast drink.
- 1773: Boston Tea Party. Americans revolt against King George's Tea Tax and coffee is proclaimed the national beverage.
- 1800s: Experiments made with brewing methods and steam pressure espresso is first produced.
- 1886: Former wholesale grocer Joel Cheek names his popular coffee blend "Maxwell House," after the hotel in Nashville, Tenn. where it's served.
- 1920: Prohibition goes into effect in United States. Coffee sales boom.
- 1942: During World War II, American soldiers are issued instant Maxwell House coffee in their ration kits. Back home, widespread hoarding leads to coffee rationing.

today. During the 18th century, there were more coffeehouses in London than there are currently. Across the United States, cities such as Seattle and New York have become coffee house meccas.

Coffeehouses in Carbondale draw crowds every weekend to enjoy a cup of java and the atmosphere that accompanies flavors and smells.

The Longbranch boasts more than 20 coffees to choose from, an array of books and magazines, guitars and board games as well as poetry readings and varying entertainment. Melange also serves a variety of coffee, as well as offering more than 30 magazines and newspapers and chess, backgammon and checkers boards.

"There are different scenes in Carbondale. Carbondale is eclectic because of the University," Ramseyer said. "This is the alternative to the bar scene."

Robinson, retired faculty member from the School of Medicine, comes into Melange coffee shop every weekday morning as well as various nights to read the Chicago Tribune and socialize.

"It becomes a little family," Robinson said. "It becomes comfortable."

The coffee and conversation associated with coffee houses have made Michael Finlay a Longbranch regular for two years. Coming to the Longbranch provides him with a comfortable setting to write poetry. But, the junior in theater from Chicago admits he has become a coffee addict, a coffee junkie.

"This place hasn't helped me kick that habit," he said.

Herrin family creates local auction website

Three generations of Cashions help local residents cash in on the web by selling, purchasing merchandise online

JASON COKER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Bicycles, computers and an assortment of other local merchandise are now available through a new Herrin-based online auction.

EloLa.com, a family-owned business, started last year as a way to localize the Internet for Southern Illinois and to bring a family closer together.

The Cashions heavily invested their money and time into creating their electronic local online auction (hence elola) that they hope will accomplish both goals.

Mike Cashion said the endeavor began last February.

"We were looking for something we could do together as a family project," he said.

Mike and his brother Mark approached their parents, Stanley and Rita Cashion, with the idea.

For the Cashions, trying to make this auction unique was their priority, but they also wanted to create a fun, vibrant vocation the whole family could enjoy.

"We really expect big things to happen once it hits the air," Rita said.

The teamwork led to a website accessible from any home, via a computer, in which a person can buy or sell items throughout the region.

EloLa.com is a closer-to-home version of ebay.com, a national online auction. However, only local items are for sale here.

To take part in the auction, which includes boats, motorcycles and even dogs, simply register at the elola.com homepage.

"It's really easy and we wanted to make something that's user-friendly for those not overly computer literate," Mike said.

If someone has an item to sell, register it on the site. The first 10,000 items listed are free to post. After that, there will be a fee of $1 to $3 depending on the starting bid. If the item does not sell by the end of the auction, it can be relisted for free.

Auction bidding can last between three and 28 days. The seller has the option of choosing the length of time for the bid. Some sellers have a "reserve price," the lowest price they will take. When someone bids on an item, the reserve price for the next bidder may increase. At the end of the auction, the person with the highest bid gets to purchase the item.

If the merchandise does not conform to the standards the seller has given, then a complaint may be made that would disqualify the seller from future auctions. This is meant to protect the consumer.

"It keeps everybody honest," Rita said.

In addition, the site includes an online store and classifieds for selling things without an auction or inquiring about finding a particular item.

USG Senate begins with vacant seats

Despite nine empty seats, the senate still plans to carry through with business

GINNY SKALSKI
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The Undergraduate Student Government Senate will begin the spring semester with at least nine of the 41 voting positions vacant, but leaders are not concerned.

USG Vice President Brian Atchison said the vacancies are normal at the beginning of a semester and, although he hopes the seats will be filled soon, he does not think it will affect the senate too much.

Atchison said students interested in filling the vacant seats should pick up a petition from the USG office located on the third floor of the Student Center.

After receiving all of the required signatures, an applicant may speak on his or her own behalf at the next USG meeting.

Then, the senate may vote whether or not to appoint the applicant to the senate. A two-thirds senate vote is required for an appointment.

Despite beginning the semester with a smaller senate, USG President Sean Henry already has several issues he and other executive staff members are planning to bring to the senate, including reconstructing Greek Row.

"We feel that rebuilding Greek Row will improve enrollment and the greek life," Henry said. "It will also get more students to want to live there."

Presently, there are two vacant greek houses on Greek Row. Atchison was quick to point out that neither him nor Henry have had an opportunity to make any formal plans for their new ideas.

"It's just an idea at this point, we haven't spoken to anyone yet," Atchison said.

"We at least want to get the wheels turning and see what avenues we can take to get this started."

Henry said improving Greek Row will help recruit students to this campus and improve the greek system, but the first step will be to figure out how to raise money for the project.

Another USG plan this semester includes working with the Student Center to establish a lower fee for Registered Student Organizations who want to hold dances at the facility.

Henry said the fee for security and to rent a room at the Student Center for a dance is currently too expensive for most RSOs.

Atchison is also working on a recruitment program with New Student Admissions in which SIUC students return to their high school and present information about the University programs.

"I think future students need to hear from current students, not just recruiters," Atchison said.

Other USG business this semester includes evaluating the student fee levels and determining RSO budgets.

Atchison said he would also like to see more improvements made for disabled students on campus this semester.

Henry said he is looking forward to addressing these issues this semester now that the senate has had the fall semester to get into the swing of things.

"We have a lot more experience since the senators have spent a semester together," Henry said. "I look forward to having a good spring semester with them."

U. of Vermont cancels men's hockey

Officials impose punishment for hazing incidents

TRIBUNE MEDIA SERVICES

BURLINGTON, Vt. — Officials at the University of Vermont cancelled the remainder of the school's men's hockey team's season after they said players lied during an internal investigation of alleged hazing.

The team, which had 15 games left this season, draws the biggest crowds of all the university's sporting events.

The sanctions, handed down last week, follow a dispute that has resulted in legal trouble for the university. A freshman player complained about a party in October where, his lawyer said, first-year players were made to walk naked holding each other's genitals, eat seafood pie until they vomited and drink warm beer and liquor.

The player, who now attends another school, has sued the university in federal court.

Vermont officials, he claims, responded with "negligent supervision" when he informed them in September that the party was being planned. But university officials said they quizzed other team members about the party.

All reported that no such gathering was being planned and that no team members were being forced to do anything against their will.

When school officials later learned that the event had indeed taken place, they hired a law firm to investigate.

Many players finally confessed to the party and outlined the event for attorneys in greater detail.

When school officials learned the players had not been forthcoming initially, they imposed several punishments, including suspending each player for one game, requiring the team to attend educational programs about hazing and requiring the team to do community service.

However, when officials learned late last week that some players — they would not say how many — actually lied to them they decided to cancel the rest of the season.

School officials said they're giving the players another chance to correct the inaccuracies and in their initial statements.

If the players are "100 percent truthful," school officials say they will face no further discipline and will be allowed to retain their scholarships.

Fac Senate discusses direction of University

Group focuses on communication, academic standards and budgeting

BYRNN SCOTT
DAILY EMPIRE REPORTER

Faculty Senate members concerned about the present transitional state of the University are avidly discussing improving communication, academic standards and budgeting.

Being strictly an advisory body limits the senate from significant governing power, but Faculty Senate President Max Yen hopes to lead fellow colleagues to advance the University in those three major ways.

Communication among faculty, administration and the Board of Trustees is "weak," according to Yen and other Faculty Senate senators.

But casual meetings are now being planned between the groups.

The senate and the board will meet 5 p.m. Feb. 9 in a reception to discuss issues comfortably.

Faculty Senator Daniel Chavez said improved communication would help the board — who, according to Chavez, is fairly out of touch with the faculty — understand reasoning behind Faculty Senate suggestions.

"Although the board may listen to our suggestions, it generally does not value those suggestions unless they fit with its preconceived notion," Chavez said.

"The board should get faculty more involved in governing matters."

A suggestive document formulated by the Ad Hoc Committee on Strategic Planning and interim Chancellor John Jackson may be presented at the Feb. 8 Faculty Senate meeting, if finished.

The five-page plan may suggest the rise of entrance standards including ACT scores and grade point averages, implementing more technology curriculum and changing budget items.

Jim Allen, chairman of the committee, said communication between the committee and Jackson is helping the document develop more quickly.

"Considerable overlap between the chancellor and senate's ideas is there," Allen said.

Budgeting, another task requiring mutual transferal of ideas among faculty, administration and the board, is also a predominant concern.

Some senators question the budget in relation to cutting faculty lines.

Mary Lamb, faculty senator, suggests that the budget often digs into faculty resources unreasonably.

"The faculty is being led dry," Lamb said.

"This goes into a continuous circle which makes it harder to recruit students to SIUC and that results in a shortfall. We are headed into a downward spiral — that can be fixed."

The Ad Hoc committee is working on possible solutions sensitive to faculty this spring and will present ideas at the senate's first meeting Feb. 8.

Yen reemphasizes the suggestion he made to the board last month concerning the need for a flexible budget.

He also said a budget involving a "rainy day" pot would help improve the budgeting system.

"My biggest dream is to talk to a state governor when he would say, 'Hey, we have a few extra million dollars, take it,'" Yen said.

"But it's not going to happen."

FY2001 Budget Proposal for SIUC

- Salary increases totaling $8.6 million for the second year of a five-year plan to bring the weighted average salary for faculty to the median salary for peer institutions and to address salary deficiencies for non-faculty staff.
- Library cost increases at 5 percent, or $398,600. The increases were recommended to help the university keep pace with the increasing costs of library materials.
- Deferred maintenance dollars of $468,100 to help protect campus facilities from deterioration.
- Operating and maintenance funds of $833,300 for upkeep of new buildings and space, including the Pathogen Incinerator and the Library Storage Facility at SIUC.
- New programmatic resources totaling approximately $4.7 million for statewide and campus-specific initiatives.
- Capital recommendations totaling $25 million, including $18.1 million for regular capital projects and $6.9 million for capital renewal projects.

plan that Faculty Senate President Max Yen said is helpful for the time being.

"It is really important that the IBHE and University realize that we need to continue pay raises to catch up with the salary liking comparable to other peer institutions," Yen said.

Upon final approval of the funding, several new academic programs will be established, including a new doctorate program in environmental policy and resources.

The program, which has six concentrations, will replace the doctorate in geography and geology and include the college of Agriculture, which currently does not have a doctorate program

Chris Lant, chair of the geography department, said the program will be a great asset to the University.

If the budget is approved, the new program will begin in fall 2001.

"The program will teach how to continue to meet the natural resource needs of people while maintaining the environmental quality indefinitely."

Chris Lant, chair, geography department also give about $398,600 to the libraries to keep up with the cost of materials.

The program will teach how to continue to meet the natural resource needs of people while maintaining the environmental quality indefinitely.

Capital projects will be given $27 million under the proposed budget and more funds will be given to deferred maintenance and operating and maintenance.

On the capital improvements priority list includes the remodeling of Altgeld Hall, the Old Baptist Foundation, the Communications Building and expanding Morris Library.

No final answers to game shows' allure

BRIAN LOWRY
LOS ANGELES TIMES

HOLLYWOOD - Imagine you own the corner hardware store and wake up to discover major supermarkets are all suddenly making a big deal about carrying hardware. "New and improved hardware!" "Biggest selection ever!" "Hardware like you've never seen it before!"

Such would seem to be the fate of the Game Show Network, an unobtrusive cable channel available in a little more than a quarter of the 100 million U.S. homes that have television.

Owned by Sony, which produces the syndicated powerhouses "Wheel of Fortune" and "Jeopardy!" the Game Show Network came along five years ago, before the expression "final answer" was being imitated - badly at that - by half the commercials on radio.

Suddenly, game shows are becoming the Scarlet Pimpernel of primetime: You see them here, you see them there, well heck, you see them everywhere. They begin, of course, with "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire" - which, as only success can do, almost overnight transformed ABC from the gang that couldn't shoot straight into acclamation of programming Einsteins.

At a time when networks are endeavoring to be more racially diverse, the quiz shows have been a boon to older white guys - hosted, in sequence, by Regis Philbin, Maury Povich, Dick Clark and Chuck Woolery.

The rap on game shows, in recent years, has been that they play primarily to an older and predominantly female audience, which doesn't inspire much enthusiasm among beer advertisers or those trying to target Gap ads to the "Felicity" crowd.

Panhellenic Council prepares for future, rush

New president plans positive change

JENNIFER WIG
LE EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Laesch, the new president of the Panhellenic Council, plans to reconstruct the council's chair positions to create a more effective governing body for the six sororities.

Panhellenic Council elected Laesch in late November for her first year. The council, which governs six sororities on campus, is planning to create six new events for the sororities as well as occasions for all students.

Laesch, a junior in hotel restaurant administration, will serve as president to help lead the council and the SIUC system.

Laesch's six chair positions include ethics, community service, public relations, scholarship, and fundraising. Laesch will combine some of the chairs to improve the efficiency of the council and the SIUC system.

kept in good order, officers do not plan budgets. Assigning the funds to a specific purpose ahead of time will save money, which can be spent on Greek events.

"Everyone is elected to do something and they want to do something, but sometimes it's just too much," Laesch said. "It's hard to find a date that works for everyone and combining events would definitely help out. We wouldn't eliminate anyone from office this semester, but we may work on it over the next year."

The Code of Ethics chair now keeps track of the newly written Code of Ethics. The code, previously unspoken guidelines, was committed to paper last fall by the Panhellenic Council to clearly define standards of etiquette for sorority members.

Laesch has also led the organization of this spring's rush week. Laesch, who was rush director of the Panhellenic Council last year, decided to improve recruitment numbers by coordinating the efforts of the individual chapters this semester.

The Panhellenic Council will also continue to work with the Carbonate Girl Scouts. The council plans an annual community service event with the troops.

Katie Semersheim, assistant director of Student Development, will meet with Laesch this month to discuss possible ideas for the year. Semersheim is looking forward to working with Laesch.

"She brings a lot of experience to the table," Semersheim said. "She excels in successfully meeting and achieving all the goals and responsibilities we keep track of our money in do more."

Panhellenic sorority rush begins Jan. 24, Interfraternity Council rush follows

RHONDA SCIARRA
STUDENT AFFAIRS EDITOR

Michelle Heinemann was terrified when she rushed SIUC's sororities her freshman year. But when she joined the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, she realized it was worth all her anxiety.

Heinemann, the rush director for Alpha Gamma Delta, said she looks forward to rushing next year because being Greek has enhanced her life by giving her a sense of family.

The Panhellenic Council, the governing body of the six sororities on campus, are planning rush for SIUC women from Jan. 24 until Jan. 28.

The council has not participated in an organized, informal spring rush since 1997. The five Panhellenic chapters who will participate in the spring rush are Alpha Gamma Delta, Sigma Sigma Sigma, Alpha Chi Omega, Delta Zeta and Sigma Kappa.

Heinemann said she does not regret her decision to rush because of the benefits sorority life has given her.

"It depends on what you put into it, but I wouldn't change a thing," Heinemann said. "You find everything there from learning etiquette to your best friends. It builds leadership and sisterhood. It's a home away from home."

The term rush is defined as one or more sorority members meeting together with a prospective rushee to

The first night of spring rush is designated for sign-up and information booths in the Student Center between 5:30 and 8:30 p.m. During the last three days, parties for each chapter are scheduled, allowing rushees and members to communicate.

Sorority chapters may present bids to women beginning noon Jan. 28.

Christine Pierre-Jerome, rush director for the Panhellenic Council, said the council is organizing a rush this spring to help each house attain their maximum membership of 75 women. Houses are always allowed to participate in continuous open bidding, but this process is geared toward attracting more women.

"It's a way to get organized in the spring," said Pierre-Jerome, an undecided junior from Mundelein. "You have a choice of what you want to see and do."

Amy Laesch, president of the Panhellenic Council, said the council's involvement before this year was discontinued because the combined effort was costing too much time and money while not attracting enough women.

Sniffing around for the scent of a Pez

The Pez Candy Co. introduces a new line of fragrances to match their candy

MELODY HOLMES
THE BALTIMORE SUN

For almost 50 years, Pez an abbreviation of "peppermint," the German word for peppermint has been as much a part of American childhood as diaper changes and kindergarten. The popular candies, eaten out of their even more popular dispensers, are consumed in the United States at a rate of 3 billion per year. Collectors have been snapping up the dispensers since long before Beanie Babies hit the scene (the online auction site eBay has its roots in Pez trading).

Now, the Orange, Coan-based Pez Candy Co. has signed a licensing agreement with a Florida perfume company that will let the candy's fans eat their Pez and wear it, too. Parlux Fragrances Inc. of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., has announced plans to introduce a Pez fragrance, with an eye toward a potential line of Pez cosmetics. We spoke with Scott McWhinnie, "President" of Pez Candy, and Frank Buttacavoli, chief operating officer of Parlux Fragrances, about the new venture: Q: How did the idea for a Pez perfume line come about? A: Buttacavoli: Really, the idea for the fragrance came from the (Parlux) chairman's son. (But) no, he won't be getting any royalties. He just wants the credit. Q: Is this a new sort of venture for Pez? A: McWhinnie: (Actually), we have so many of them, that this is not a big deal. We're happy to add another licensee to the Perzoster, (but) this is just one of 40-plus licensees. Q: Will anything be edible? A: Buttacavoli: I don't believe that would be an option. We're working on the engineering; maybe we'll have it so that you can lift up the head on it and spray the fragrance. Q: Do you eat Pez or collect Pez dispensers yourself? A: Buttacavoli: My kids use them, I use them. A: McWhinnie: Of course I do, My office is full of 'em.

SEARCH.

Scott Kaiser, assistant to the SIU president, said the Board of Trustees is looking for someone who can provide leadership to the University, and he expects Horton to get involved in the search process.

"I think he will assist in anyway the board asks him to," Kaiser said.

Hahs was not pessimistic about Horton's involvement in the search, but said that was not what he was hired to do.

"That's not his assigned role," Hahs said. "His assigned role is to keep the campus moving."

At the Jan. 6 meeting, the committee expressed the need for the interim president to serve the day-to-day operations of the University until the search process is completed.

Undergraduate Student Government President Sean Henry, who sits on the committee, expects Horton to be at the next search committee meeting, slated for Feb. 10. He said Horton will be a valuable contribution and bring prior administrative experiences to the table.

"He'll be more up to speed and bring in some vision," Henry said.

A.D. VanMeter, a board chairman, said he does not want to rush the process, in fear of placing the wrong candidate into the president's post.

"We are not setting any time limit," VanMeter said. "I've said it previously and I'll say it again. We will not have closure on the position until we find [someone] that the board and the Advisory Committee believes to be the proper person for that position."

The committee has been reviewing applications since Jan. 3.

students, but the leaders also plan to broaden their audience when they begin lecturing about sexual assaults to area high school students next month.

The grant encompasses on-campus efforts from: student affairs, public safety, student judicial affairs, the Wellness Center, the Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections, Women's Services, Campus Counseling Services and the SIUC School of Law.

Some community groups involved in the application for the grant include: the Carbondale Women's Center, the Carbondale Police Department, the Jackson County State's Attorney and the U.S. Attorney's office for the Southern District of Illinois.

Those involved also want to develop a comprehensive safety manual. Kelly Cichy, the program director of Rape Crisis Services in Carbondale, who has been working with the grant money, said the brochure might be called "Think Safe."

It will encapsulate the "best of what each of the departments does for the SIUC campus," Sigler said.

The grant helped pay for a graduate assistant to work in the Wellness Center and paid for SIUC police officers to monitor the campus during late-night weekend hours in the East Campus residence area.

The grant was designed to be a three-year program and Sigler wants to use future money to get a self defense program for women in the residence halls.

"I want to be able to take this program, train police officers as instructors and bring them into the residence halls on a semester basis," Sigler said.

The second quarter of the report for the grant was due in Chicago Tuesday. Sigler mailed it last week and said he will soon receive the rest of the grant.

"In effect we've got half the grant to go," Sigler said. "But most of the money has already been earmarked."

Cichy wants to ensure victims are comfortable when reporting a sexual attack. Sigler says preserving evidence is key, and getting the victims to report an assault immediately helps "rather than have someone go back to their room, quietly pack their bags and leave SIUC because they feel like nobody's around to help them."

"That's obviously what we don't want," Sigler said.

He encourages victims to "report it. We can decide later on not to prosecute."

"While the victims are a primary concern for most involved in the attacks, Sigler has been increasing efforts in talking with men about sexual assaults, too.

"Sexual assault's not going to stop until men stop committing sexual assaults," Sigler said. "That's a very uncomfortable statement for a lot of men to hear because an enormous amount of statistics show that males are the offenders and females are the victims."

"I think that it helps hearing that message from another male."

While the number of reported sexual assaults may increase during this semester, Sigler and Cichy are hopeful that they can continue to receive the funds to perpetuate awareness.

"If you do a good job with the grants you received in the past, chances are good you'll get funded in the future," Sigler said. "They know this, they do their homework. They're not going to give the money to someone who's not going to take the responsibility."

RUSH

Sorority rush numbers are smaller in the spring than fall, with more than 100 women attending fall rushes, and between 10 and 20 women who rush each house in the spring. Fall greek rushes are more formal, with specific rules set by the National Panhellenic Council and the National Interfraternity Council. These rules dictate what must be done on certain days, what can be worn or said, and whether serving food is allowed.

The Sigma Alpha sorority is not part of the National Panhellenic Council and does not participate with the SIUC Panhellenic Council in rush events. Seventy percent of the women in the Sigma Alpha chapter must be enrolled in the College of Agriculture because it is a professional sorority. They begin their rush at 7 p.m. Feb. 8 in the Agriculture building, room 209.

"We can keep our cost down by just doing it ourselves," said Sigma Alpha President Amiee Janssen, a senior in physical therapy and community health education from Watseka. "But I don't think we reach the people across campus as well."

Heinemann recommends sorority life for those who want to meet people with common interests. Heinemann also offers advice for those who plan to rush.

"Pick a house where you know you'll feel comfortable walking around in your pajamas," Heinemann said. "One where you know you'll fit in."

The Interfraternity Council, the governing body of the 10 fraternity chapters on campus, is rushing between Jan. 31 and Feb. 4 and will follow a similar rush schedule.

of a position. I'm confident she will excel in the presidency," Sermersheim has no concrete plans for change this semester, but improving the image of greeks at SIUC is always on her agenda.

"It's an ongoing process," Sermersheim said. "Like positive public relations and letting people see the true things fraternities and sororities do. We always try to help [students] learn what [greeks] really are."

Changing the negative image is a component of Laesch's plan to involve other students in greek affairs.

"I'd like to get our events out there," Laesch said. "I definitely want us to grow in that way — work with people who are greek, but also those who aren't."

enough so we could get in.”
The event is a chance for the Recreation Center and Morris Library to attract students and faculty to the resources they provide.
“It is kind of an oddity for people from the Recreation Center to become polar bears for the library,” said David Koch, associate dean of Special Collections and Development for Morris Library. “It’s a nice way to celebrate the beginning of the spring term, but I leave all the swimming up to them.”

Chilling Facts about Polar Bear Clubs

Polar Bear clubs or “icebathing clubs” consist of groups of people who plunge into local bodies of water traditionally on the first day of the year or throughout the winter season.

In Belgium, the “Royal Swimming Club” also known as the polar bears regularly swim in ice-cold water. The swimming club has existed for more than 76 years.

Coney Island’s Polar Bear Club in New York was founded in 1903 by Bernard McFadden and is one of the oldest in the United States. The club swims every Sunday from November through April, at Coney Island, Brooklyn.

Members of the Springfield Polar Bear Club jumped into the 44-degree water in Lake Springfield. The Illinois club took their third annual winter dip Jan. 2. An estimated 35 to 40 people took the plunge, some as many as six times.

The Boulder Polar Bear Club in Colorado began in 1983. The club’s main event is the New Year’s day dip at which more than 200 ice bathers participate each year.

Every Sunday at noon, the Newport Polar Bears take the plunge into the Atlantic Ocean off of Easton’s Beach in Newport, R.I., in nothing but bathing suits. This past Sunday, the temperature in Newport was 34 degrees.

used his time to explain why budget considerations and communication would be two of the top priorities if he were to replace Tom Guernsey as vice chancellor for Academic Affairs and provost.
“The biggest challenge anyone would have as a provost... is the budget. We are given a very set piece of money and we must find the best way to deal with it,” Falvo said. “The other major aspect of the job is communication and it starts with the deans.”

To promote her views during the free forum, Winters said she wants to use her expertise in making sure the University is properly equipped to handle a wide range of student needs.
“Part of it is resources and we are working on getting the resources in the right places,” Winters said. “We want... money to go toward equipment for people who have been here for awhile.”

Although the three candidates agreed the image of the University needs improvement, Perkins chose to illuminate his goals on preparing graduates for the professional world.

Perkins, an associate vice chancellor for Academic Affairs for planning and budget, has held many administrative positions in his nearly 25-year career at SIUC.

“We also have the issue of making sure there are graduates who are ready to hit the ground running,” Perkins said. “We want to make it so they will not have to be re-tooled, re-taught and re-programmed by their employers in order to do the job well.”

“We haven’t had a great offensive team, but we get by with what offense we have and try to make up for it with our defense,” said third-year Sycamore assistant coach Dick Bender. “We just guard and use our mental toughness to hang in games when we are not scoring well.”

Sycamore head coach Royce Waltman could not be reached because he is under the weather.

The Salukis trail the Sycamores by only one game in the Valley standings. SIU overcame its own shooting woes and a two-game losing streak Sunday against Wichita State University led by senior forward Chris Thunell’s career high 28-point outburst.

Thunell, who struggled early in the season, leads the Salukis with 16 points per game while shooting 57 percent from the field in conference games.

Bender is concerned with how the Sycamores (11-5, 4-1) would match up with Thunell and senior forward Derrick Tilmon in the post. Bender also did not care to see freshman guard Kent Williams snap loose of his 2-for-23 shooting slump in recent games against Creighton University and Saint Louis University in Sunday’s game against Wichita State.

Williams scored 15 points on 5-for-11 shooting in the 87-79 victory over the Shockers.

The Sycamores lost only two players from last season’s roster, and have thrived on winning close ball-games this season. Last year the Salukis swept the season series, winning both games by a meager one point.

“For them, I know it was very disappointing losing last year,” Weber said.

Either of the losses may have withheld the Sycamores from an NIT appearance. Indiana State finished 15-12 last season. It is safe to say the Sycamores have not taken too kindly to the painful memories.

“Hopefully, the players feel that way, but that’s really an advantage to Southern,” Bender said. “SIU did some things last year that obviously caused us some problems, so I think Southern has the advantage knowing they beat us twice last year.”

Group calls burning of Lee banner a hate crime

CRAIG TIMBERG
WASHINGTON POST

RICHMOND, Va. The Sons of Confederate Veterans are demanding that Monday’s torching of a banner of Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee on a holiday in his honor be treated by police and prosecutors as a hate crime against Southerners.

“The city should not treat this as a normal crime. They should treat it as a hate crime,” said Brag Bowling, central Virginia commander of the Sons of Confederate Veterans. “The heritage of a lot of Southerners has really been violated. Richmond police say arson investigators have a suspect and are nearing an arrest in the crime, which happened shortly after 4 p.m. Monday at the city’s downtown flood wall. A gallery of banners there commemorates Richmond’s history.

Police spokeswoman Jennifer Reilly said investigators will determine later if the burning, which destroyed the Lee banner, qualifies as a hate crime. “Right now it’s not being treated that way,” she said. An earlier banner featuring Lee at the floodwall sparked a racially divisive battle last spring. The resulting compromise had a banner of Lee flanked by a black union soldier and President Abraham Lincoln, but only the picture of Lee was burned.

The timing was especially upsetting to the Sons of Confederate Veterans because the burning happened on Lee-Jackson-King Day, a state holiday in honor of Lee, Confederate Gen. Stonewall Jackson and slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

It might be the last such holiday because Gov. James S. Gilmore III, (Republican) has proposed separating the holiday into two so King and the Confederate generals aren’t celebrated on the same day.

Bowling said that the burning of the Lee banner was part of a wave of anti-Confederate acts in Richmond recently. On Saturday, Confederate re-enactors camping and marching near the statue of Leonon Monument Avenue were met by protesters. Earlier this month, that same statue was defaced by graffiti, said Bowling.

“I promise you if that was the Arthur Ashe statue,” a statue honoring the late black tennis star, also on Monument Avenue, “there’d be some action,” he said.

Would you help a woman being raped by a stranger?

How about a woman being raped by a friend?

You're at a party. There's lots of drinking going on. Some guys are having sex with a woman whose drink they've spiked. You don't interfere thinking it's no big deal.

Well, the law sees it differently. Because if she's unable to give her consent to having sex, it's considered rape. A felony. Punishable by prison.

It benefits everyone for you to stop it from happening. You'll be keeping a woman from tremendous emotional pain if you do. And you could be helping your friends commit a crime if you don't.

SIU's goal: strive to surpass binding mediocrity

There are more than 300 Division I basketball teams in the country. A small handful are outstanding, a small handful are awful.

Then, there's the rest of the pack.

Jay Schwab
Sports Editor

About 50-75 teams behind the few elite squads are good enough to harbor realistic NCAA dreams. Is SIU one of them? Or do the Salukis fit more precisely among the couple hundred teams jumbled into the largest group of them all: the mediocre.

Heading into a home conference clash with Creighton Jan. 8, the Salukis seemed destined to rise above the heap. SIU had won four games in a row, and some thought head coach Bruce Weber's boys were ready to put a sluggish start behind them and start rattling off wins at a steady clip.

Didn't happen. The Salukis succumbed to a hot shooting bunch of Bluejays, then played a slopfest of a game against rival Saint Louis. Was it a bad sign that SIU played its worst game of the year on the same Kiel Center floor on which they'll play the Valley tournament?

Whether the loss to the Billikens was an omen or not, the season outlook dimmed considerably after the losses to Creighton and Saint Louis. Suddenly, the Salukis were slow instead of well-coached. Brick-layers instead of defensive-minded. Small instead of scrappy.

Sunday's 87-79 road win over Wichita State University stopped the bleeding, but questions still abound about the quality of the '99-2000 edition of Saluki basketball.

The overriding concern for SIU is a general lack of athleticism. Outside of guard Brandon Mells and forward Joshua Cross, these Salukis are not going to out-quick or out-jump many teams.

While the athleticism shortcoming was predictable at the season's outset, SIU's shooting woes have been somewhat surprising.

The biggest offender in the shooting department has been Chris Thunell, who managed to put up 28 points against Wichita State Sunday, but is still shooting just 39 percent on the year. Saluki fans hope the Wichita State game is a sign that the gutsy senior is ready to finish his Saluki career on a high note. A rejuvenated Thunell would do wonders for jump-starting an offense that desperately needs consistent production out of its seniors.

Thunell's cool shooting becomes even more of a problem because there is not a plethora of gifted offensive players suiting up for the Dawgs. Freshman guard Kent Williams is a skilled scorer, but his jumpshot still lacks polish. When you're banking on a freshman to lead the offense like SIU is with Williams, you're inviting problems. Williams has played well almost all season, but when he went into a funk against Creighton and Saint Louis, the Salukis had no answer.

The team as a whole, through 16 games, checks in with an unimpressive 42.5 percent shooting percentage.

So why is there still hope when SIU doesn't have an abundance of quickness, size, or shooting touch?

The answer may sound cheesy, but it's true. On the back of the shorts SIU wears in practice, it says: "Play hard."

And they do.

So hard, in fact, that they often play well in spite of not being blessed with overwhelming talent. Weber has the Salukis playing defense, hustling, and flying all over the court for loose balls. That's why they've been able to beat teams like UMass and UNC-Charlotte, and why some still believe SIU can contend for the MVC title.

As Weber recently said, the Salukis are good enough to be able to beat just about anyone, but are also vulnerable enough to lose on any given night. However, as SIU enters the meat of the conference schedule, the Dawgs can ill afford to be hit and miss.

The Salukis (9-7, 3-2 MVC) have a difficult challenge tonight. SIU is at Indiana State, and will try to steal a win at what will be a noisy Hulman Center against a solid group of Sycamores. To win, the Salukis will be forced to rely on playing smart basketball and out-working the Sycamores.

It won't be easy, but the game is winnable if a few Salukis find their shooting touch. A victory would allow the squad to forget about its recent two-game skid, and keep SIU in the thick of the Valley hunt with a home game against Bradley set for Saturday.

Otherwise, the Salukis will do little to dispel the notion that they are a hard-working bunch of competitors, doomed by a lack of physical ability to be mediocre.

Women's swim team: strong, yet weary

Puerto Rico training tour leaves swimming and diving team too tired for Kansas

ANDREA DONALDSON
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The constant chanting of "go, go, go" could be heard throughout the Recreation Center pool area as the women's swimming and diving team competed against the University of Kansas Saturday.

The team tried to "go" as best as it could, but SIU fell short of a victory against the Jayhawks with a final score of 174-114. The Salukis swam well despite being tired and worn out from an intense 11-day training session in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

SIU coach Mark Klumper did not go into Saturday's meet expecting his team's best swim. Instead, he was looking for swimmers that would give him their best efforts.

"For us to beat a team like Kansas, we have to get everything to fall into place and really swim top notch all the way through," Klumper said. "We're capable of doing that if everything comes together and if it's the right time of the year. But coming off our trip to Puerto Rico, that wasn't likely to happen.

There were many swimmers who pushed aside their ailments and swam extremely well for the Salukis.

Sophomore Brooke Radostis stood out in Saturday's meet, taking first place in the 100 (58.51) and 200 backstroke (2:05.10). Freshman Amber Mullin took second place in the 1,000 freestyle (10:32.37) and third place in the 500 freestyle (5:10.44).

SIU (3-6) had just returned from Puerto Rico where they attended, what Klumper called, an outstanding training camp. There, the team stood victorious in a meet against Allegheny College.

"We swam one meet down there, but that was secondary," Klumper said.

"The main reason we went was to train. It's a chance to really get them in great shape heading into the last month and a half of the year.

"It was an outstanding training camp. It challenged them very, very hard and they responded and gave us great effort in practice every day. So we accomplished what we wanted to in Puerto Rico."

Swim note: Seniors Meghan Krauss and Mary Beth Wehner were honored at Saturday's meet.

Despite limitations, Salukis succeed

Men's swimming and diving team swims past adversity, Kansas

ANDREA DONALDSON
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The SIU men's swimming and diving team was victorious against the University of Kansas despite having to overcome the loss of forfeiting all its diving points because of the absence of a diving coach.

The Salukis pulled out their second victory Saturday over the Jayhawks this season in the Recreation Center, 150.5-143.5.

"To have beaten a top-25 team like that, after making up what many points, is outstanding," Walker said. "I've felt we've always been that good. From the team standpoint, it's very encouraging."

The foursome of Chris Papachrysanthou, David Parkins, Matt Munz and Herman Louw claimed first place in both the 200 and 400 medley relays. Louw also took first place in both the 200 freestyle (1:38.87) and the 200 individual medley (1:53.98).

Danila Luna clinched first place for SIU in the 200 backstroke (1:54.01) and second in the 100 backstroke (53.19). Sophomore Come Prozesky grabbed first place in both the 100 breast stroke and 200 breast stroke.

Parkins also helped the cause, with a first place finish in the 50 freestyle (21.39) and a second place finish in the 100 freestyle (47.37).

The Salukis (5-1) had just returned from a training session in San Juan, Puerto Rico. While in Puerto Rico, SIU swam a victorious meet against Allegheny College 58-43. Walker said he is very pleased about the training and its benefits for his team.

"The training was probably the best training, training conditioning and experience level that I've ever had as a swimmer or as a coach," Walker said.

Seven seniors, Chris Gilbertson, Jason Corrigan, Gustavo Leal, Louw, Randy McPherson, Craig Quarterman and Troy Sayers, were honored Saturday as the team swam their last home meet.

The distance runners made an impressive mark in the meet for the Salukis as well, with senior Jenny

5,000-meter run, senior Erin Leahy (5:12.13) placing second in the mile, and senior Joy Cutrano (10:29.82) finishing second in the 3,000-meter run.

"[DeNoon] had high expectations for the distance runners during winter training," Monaco said.
"So most of [the distance runners]

Even though DeNoon was disappointed with the results of the meet, he said having more time training as a team may help to bet-the McDonald's Invitational, Jan.

"They are better athletes than

Series Notes

SIU leads the series, which started back in 1917, 59-32. The Salukis won both meetings last year by one point. In Carbondale, the Salukis won 63-62 and in Terre Haute, Ind., the Salukis defeated the Sycamores 64-63.

The word on the Salukis:

Senior forward Chris Thunell is fresh off a career high 28-point performance in the Salukis' 87-79 road victory at Wichita State University Sunday. If Thunell can keep up his solid play in the Valley, the Sycamores will have a hard time stopping the 6-foot-9-inch O'Fallon native.

The word on the Sycamores:

The Sycamores have won nine of their last 10, including a 63-60 upset of Indiana University at the Indiana Classic Dec. 11 in Bloomington, Ind.

Projected SIU starting lineup:

	ppg.	rfp.
#5 G - Ricky Colium (Sr.)	5-11	9.7 4.3
#3 G - Brandon Mills (So.)	6-1	7.1 3.4
#3 G - Kent Williams (Fr.)	6-2	13.1 2.6
#32 F - Chris Thunell (Sr.)	6-9	11.4 7.5
#42 F - Derrick Tilmon (Sr.)	6-7	10.0 5.1

Projected ISU starting lineup:

	ppg.	rfp.
#5 G - Michael Menser (Jr.)	5-11	10.5 3.3
#14 G - Kelyn Block (So.)	6-2	12.1 3.0
G - Nate Green (Sr.)	6-5	14.1 4.4
#32 F - Matt Reno (Jr.)	6-6	10.1 7.6
#3 F - Djibril Kante (So.)	6-7	4.8 3.8

Miscellaneous:

Coming off the bench against Wichita St. Sunday, juniors Josh Cross and Abel Schrader along with freshman Jerome Deaman combined for 30 points on 10-15 shooting, pulled down eight rebounds and made four steals for Saluki head coach Bruce Weber.

Bottom Line:

The Salukis won their second straight MVC road game Sunday. They'll need to repeat that solid offensive performance against a stingy Sycamore defense if they are to win a third.

Sycamores: They are not just a Green team

The Salukis will have to worry about more than just Sycamore guard Nate Green.

COREY CUBICK
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

A casual follower of Missouri Valley Conference basketball has probably heard of Indiana State University's senior all-everything guard Nate Green.

Naming another player on the Sycamore roster imposes a more daunting task. Yet, Green and his supporting cast have won nine out of their last 10 games and sit in a two-way tie atop the MVC standings at 4-1 with Southwest Missouri State University.

Indiana University head coach

Bobby Knight learned of the Sycamores the hard way after they stunned his Hoosiers 63-60, Dec. 11, in the Indiana Classic in Bloomington, Ind.

The SIU men's basketball team intends to cease the merry times in Sycamore-land at 6:05 tonight in Terre Haute, Ind.

Green, an all-MVC performer, leads his squad in a wide range of categories that include: scoring (14.1 ppg), assists (3.6 apg), steals (3.2 spg), blocks (2.0 bpg) and field goal percentage (46 percent). He also ranks second in rebounds at 4.4 per game.

"Green is their top guy, their other guys are just good solid players," said Saluki head coach Bruce Weber. "Defensively, they'll mix their presses. They keep you off guard."

Leading the supporting cast is 6-foot-6-inch junior forward Matt Renn, an inside-outside threat who averages 10.1 points per game and leads the team in rebounds (7.6 rpg). Junior guard Michael Menser (10.5 ppg) can light it up from beyond the arc, shooting 40 percent from three point range this season.

"Renn is one of the more underrated players in the conference," Weber said. "He's like a poor man's Larry Bird, he's just maybe a little smaller."

The legendary Bird played for Indiana State, wore No. 33 and led the Sycamores to the NCAA title game in 1979. Renn dons jersey No. 32.

Similar to SIU (9-7, 3-2 MVC), the Sycamores count on their in-your-face team defense to carry the load against the more athletic ball clubs. It also makes up for their lack of offensive production, something they've struggled with at times this season.

Lack of training prevents women's team from first-place finish

CHRISTINE BOLIN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

There was something about the SIU women's track and field team's second-place finish Saturday head coach Don DeNoon was less than pleased with.

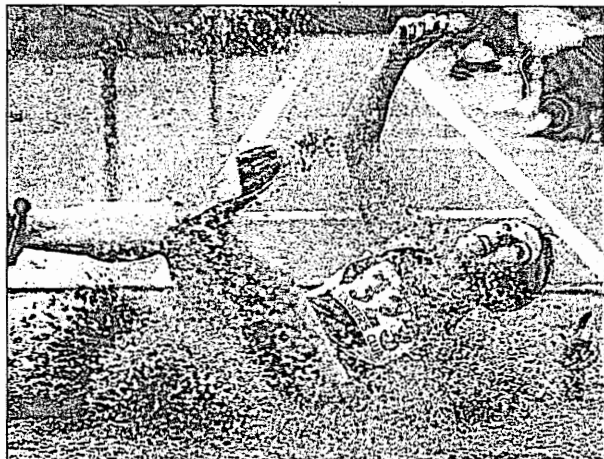

"I was not happy with what I saw, even though some athletes stepped up for us," DeNoon said. "However, some [athletes] showed evidence they did not practice over Christmas break, and ignored all the training. We just can't tolerate that. We are so much better than what we did."

Out of eight teams competing in the Saluki Booster Club Invitational at the SIUC Student Recreation Center, Mississippi State University emerge from the group with a score of 134 for first place, 27 points better than SIU's 107.

Southeast Missouri State University was close behind in third with 103, followed by the University of Mississippi with 96.

Senior Joe Parks, Salukis claim victory in the final race of the day

CHRISTINE BOLIN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

With one event remaining in the Saluki Booster Club Invitational Saturday, SIU men's track and field head coach Bill Cornell was hanging on to the hope senior distance runner Joe Parks would come through, and ensure the Salukis a first-place finish.

Sure enough, Cornell's best distance runner came through for the Salukis winning the 3,000-meter run.

"It was a very exciting meet with Mississippi and Mississippi State," Cornell said. "The lead kept changing throughout the meet. Joe stepped up for us, and we came back to win first."

Parks (8:36.24) scored the Salukis' final 10 points, sealing SIU's victory over eight teams, including the University of Mississippi (130), followed by Mississippi State University, who came in third (125).

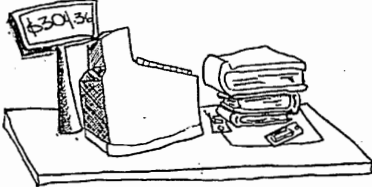

Other prominent-placing Saluki distance runners included senior Matt

McClelland (2:28.10), who finished first in the 1,000-meter dash, senior Brian Burren (15:26.28), who won the 5,000-meter run, and junior Chris Owen (4:27.32), who earned second-place in the mile run.
