Georgia Winn who will play the role of Christ's mother in the forthcoming play "Family Portrait" next Thursday.

Will Use Three Stages In Summer Play July 26

Three separate stages will be used in the presentation of the annual summer play to be given outdoors in McAndrew stadium here next week. There will be two separate performances of the play, one Thursday, July 26, the second the following night, July 27.

All university students will be admitted free upon presentation of their activity ticket. All persons over 12 who are not university students, will be charged 25 cents.

Curtain time for both performances is 8 p.m.

The three stages, which will be placed side by side on the football field, will have a total length of 64 feet. This unusual—and expensive—staging is modeled after the medieval type of staging used hundreds of years ago in presentation of the "miracle" plays.

Lawrence Voss of the speech department is in charge of the stage construction.

"Family Portrait," a three-act play, is a story of Christ's family. Christ's mother, Mary, played by Dr. Georgia Winn, English teacher at SIU who is doing graduate work here this summer, and Christ's brothers are the play's chief characters.

TAKING FOR its theme Christ's words, "A prophet is not without honor, but in his own country, and among his own kin and in his own house," "Family Portrait" elaborates in the terms of an ordinary family which acts and speaks as people do today. It is a simple and reverent picture of the family of Jesus.

The play opens in Nazareth just as Jesus has embarked on his life's work. His brothers understand only that in the height of the building season He has left them and depleted the working force.

The play continues in Capernaum where tavern keepers and promoters have capitalized on His growing power and popularity. It returns to Nazareth and the disillusioning experience among His neighbors.

Then it journeys to Jerusalem where the fickle crowd has turned from its cries of "Hosannah" to shouts of hatred, and to the upper chamber where after the Last Supper, Christ's mother awaits His return from Gethsemane.

THE FINAL SCENE is laid again in Nazareth several years after the crucifixion where His family, except for Mary, still labors under the selfish and blind delusion that they have been disgraced.

"Family Portrait" was first produced at the Morosco theatre in New York City with Judith Anderson in the leading role. It was staged by the Margaret Webster group.

Below are some of the comments "Family Portrait" has received by newspaper drama critics:

"One of the most moving expressions of truth and beauty I have ever seen in the theatre."—Sidney Whipple, New York World Telegram.

"Lenore Coffee and William Joyce Cowen (authors of the play) have written a deeply poignant play—it asks a simplicity of acceptance to equal the simplicity and reverence of its writing."—New York Sun.

"AN HONEST AND straightforward simplicity, a tenderness of feeling. The authors are concerned with telling a great and poignant story in simple and earnest fashion."—New York Herald-Tribune.

"A simple and reverent picture of Christ. A stirring play . . . written with honesty, compassion, simplicity, and earnestness."—New York Daily Mirror.

" . . . fresh and poignant significance, particularly in the character of Mary, which has been lovingly written; it makes simple observations which are profoundly moving. For Mary talks of Jesus with the moving sincerity of a woman who desperately wants to understand her own son and who takes disarming pride in His apparent success in the great world outside."—New York Times.

"It is certainly grand to have such a show on Broadway at this time. It is very much needed."—Christian Science Monitor.

"To deal effectively with so compelling a theme without offending the beliefs of different groups within Christian life and within Jewish life is a task of tremendous proportion. It seems to me that this task, however, was

AFROTC Adds 60-Hour Course To Curriculum

Continental Air Command at Mitchell Air Force base, N. Y., has disclosed that a comprehensive 60-hour course in world political geography has been developed and will be included in the AFROTC study curriculum this fall.

AFROTC students at Southern will be offered a flexible world political geography course designed to show the relation of air power to the earth's material resources, factors of space, history, economics, and government.

In addition to this overall 60-hour course, which the AFROTC student will study in his freshman (air science one) year, he will be offered an additional 12 hours of closely allied schooling in his sophomore year when he studies air power concept, which prods into the strategic and tactical application of air power in various geographic areas. The basic two-year ROTC program will be required of all entering physically fit male students.

Holding that political geography is a "must" subject for today's potential Air Force officer, AFROTC officials at Mitchell Air Force base, worked out a world political geography program last year with the aid of two professional geographers, the Reverend Edmund A. Walsh, president of Georgetown university, and Doctor George T. Renner, professor of geography at Teacher's college, Columbia university.

Father Walsh is a recognized international authority on political geography and the author of a number of geographical works including "The Fall of the Russian Empire," "The Last Stand," "An Interpretation of the Soviet Five Year Plan," "Ships and National Safety," and the "Woodcarver of Tyrol."

Also a recognized political geography expert is Dr. Renner, who has held many important educational posts and is author of more than a score of geography books, among them "Human Geography in the Air Age," "World Map for the Air Age," and "Geographical Education for the Air Age."

A principal source of officer procurement for the Air Force, the AFROTC program is supervised by the Continental Air Command at Mitchell Air Force base.

Currently conducted at 125 colleges and universities throughout the country, the Air Force ROTC unit at Southern is one of 62 units being activated at universities this September.

Any instructor without a room for a particular class is requested to check with Norma Mellon for assignment, in case a notice of meeting place is not received.

SIU and U. of I. Appoint Committees

A liaison committee composed of representatives of the University of Illinois college of agriculture and the Southern Illinois University department of agriculture has been named, with the approval of the presidents of the two universities, to explore and further the mutual agricultural interests of the two institutions for the particular benefit of southern Illinois.

In announcing the personnel of the committee, co-chairmen Dean H. P. Rusk of the University of Illinois college of agriculture and W. E. Keeper, chairman of the Southern Illinois University department of agriculture, said that the function of the group will be one of mutual advice and counsel rather than one of administration.

Considerable freedom of contact and counsel between the different areas of work at the two institutions is contemplated. A general annual meeting has been recommended, to which representatives of all phases of the agricultural interests of the two institutions will be invited for a general survey of the mutual problems concerning agricultural

Time!

The subject of classes held over the hour is a problem continually discussed by the students but seldom brought to the attention of the offending professors.

Before labelling the offenders we feel that it is necessary to commend those profs who are attentive of the time and dismiss their classes promptly. But for those consistently unaware of the time allotted them we have distinct categories—the well-meaning enthusiast, the proverbial absent-minded professor and the talkative egotist.

Least offensive of the three in the eyes of the students is the well-meaning enthusiast who consciously retains his students with a sincere intention of giving them their due. There are many times when a minute or two more would suffice to wind up a lecture or to clear up points of discussion. If it is an occasional event, the students do not object; when they woefully await it daily, it becomes another matter. Regardless of how well-meaning a prof may be, he asks for and receives time not due him.

The talkative egotist is not only unduly proud of his vast store of knowledge but usually has a lush crush on the sound of his own voice. In most cases involving members of this classification the students are eagerly awaiting the official end of the class ten to twenty minutes before it is due.

Our absent-minded professor is a victim of circumstances. Chances are students are not so hard on his name but are somewhat resentful anyway. More often he is of a pleasant nature and takes a hint the third time a notebook is slammed to the floor. Sometimes such a prof will request that someone remind him of the time several minutes before class is to end, but he does not do that as often as he should.

These teachers who abuse their time allotment take advantage of both the student and their colleagues. How many of these offenders display a sharply raised eyebrow when a student creeps in late? They are highly resentful of tardiness and at the same time are often the cause of it.

—The Cardinal, University of Louisville.

Letters To Editor

Dead Editor:

Under the heading "Into Each Life" in the July 6 issue of the Egyptian you make some interesting remarks about total precipitation in Carbondale during the past month of June. To get the record straight I think you should inform your readers that even though June 1951 was unusually wet it was not the wettest June on record. Permit me to cite June 1928 when we had 15.72 inches; June 1935 with 15.95 inches and June 1945 when we had 11.24 inches. Incidentally 1945 was a record breaker for total precipitation not only in Carbondale but for all the state when we experienced 74.50 inches of the wet stuff, which would class us in that respect with a true tropical rainforest climate like that of the Amazon Valley. Actually our past June was just a little over twice as rainy as a normal (which we rarely have) June.

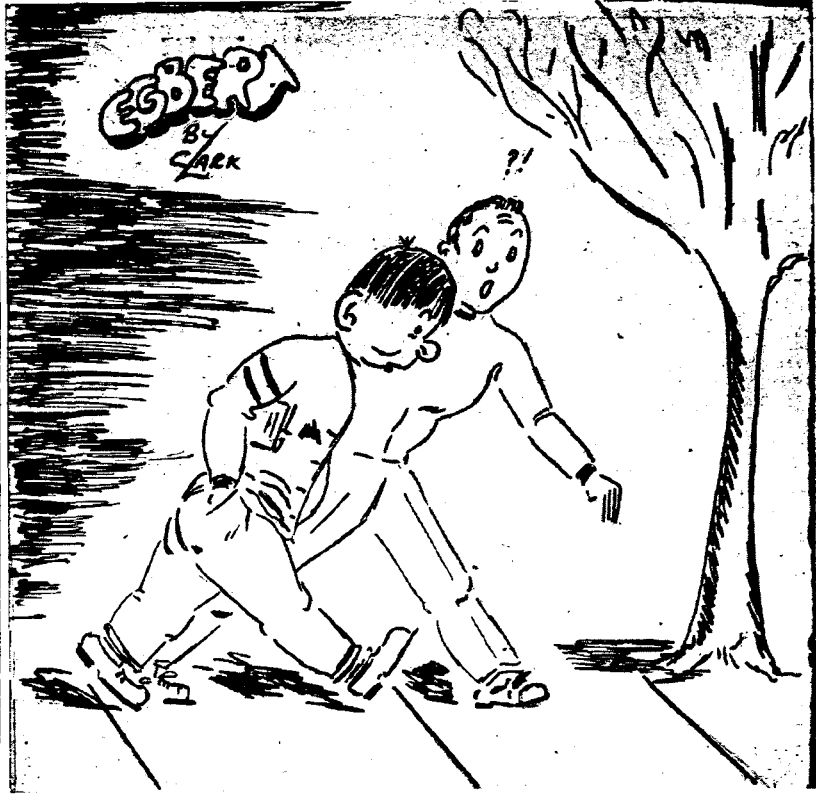

Sincerely yours,

 "Well," commented his friend, "you couldn't have picked a better time!"

Three ways to avoid embarrassment when you fall on the dance floor:

1. Get up gracefully.
2. Just lie there, they'll think you fainted.
3. Start mopping up the floor with your handkerchief; they'll think you work there.

 "No."
 "I can shine 'em so you can see your face in 'em."

Paintings Hung In Student Center

Examples of the early painting of some of America's leading contemporary artists may be seen in the SIU Student Center on Harwood Ave.

The work of such artists as Aaron Bohrod, Raymond Breinin, Gertrude Abercrombie, and N. Zirioli are included in the 21 paintings which have been assembled and hung at the recently opened campus recreation center.

"Although not of tremendous value, these paintings are interesting samples of the early work of some of our better artists of today," says Burnett Shryock, director of the SIU art department. Shryock obtained the paintings on loan from the Works Projects administration.

One water color and one oil by Aaron Bohrod are included in the group. Bohrod was artist-in-residence at SIU in 1942 and 1943. Breinin, who followed Bohrod at SIU as artist-in-residence, is represented in the group with one water color.

ALICE RECTOR INITIATED INTO KAPPA DELTA PI

Alice Rector, assistant to student life deans at Southern Illinois University, was initiated Tuesday evening into Beta Upsilon chapter of Kappa Delta Pi at Washington university, where she is enrolled in the graduate school.

Kappa Delta Pi is an international honor society in education. It is composed of a laureate chapter of outstanding men and women in the field of education, as well as alumni and institutional chapters.

Howard Jayne, brother-in-law to SIU president Dr. D. W. Morris, also was initiated at the same time. He is working toward his master's degree at Washington university.

John Wailey, Charles Sebree, Malcolm Hackett, Harris Kohn and Eleanor Wen.

Miss Emily Farnham, assistant professor of art, also has selected paintings by four of her former art students. Miss Audrey Sheets, Alton, has two oil paintings and a water color in the group. Bill Platzer, Vienna, is represented by an oil portrait and James Friedline, Carbondale, by an oil abstraction.

Dirksen Will Speak at Summer Commencement

Everett M. Dirksen, U S senator from Pekin, will deliver the Southern Illinois University summer commencement address at 7 p.m. (CST) August 3.

In addition to serving as chairman of the National Senatorial committee, Senator Dirksen is a member of the senate Banking and Currency committee and the Civil Service committee.

A VETERAN of eight consecutive terms in congress prior to his voluntary retirement in January, 1949, Dirksen was elected to the Senate last fall. He is a former vice chairman of the Republican National committee and in 1944 was endorsed by more than 40 members of the House of Representatives for a place on the national ticket.

Governor Adlai Stevenson will give the dedicatory address for the new SIU Training school Nov. 16. Senator Paul H. Douglas was the SIU commencement speaker in June, 1949.

Radio Department Offers Many Services

By Jim Fecho

In the midst of microphones, recording machines, turntables, and sound-deadening backdrops is the center of Southern's radio department. This comparatively new department formed in the fall of 1950 is located in barracks 1C on the SIU campus.

The radio department has as its objectives several points: first, to furnish services to the surrounding area, such as musical programs, special events, agricultural services, speeches, and other events which the people in the area would miss if it were not for the SIU recording service, which records these programs and then relays them to the area stations. Second, the department furnishes information to the area about what the school is doing. Third, the department trains personnel, but according to Buren Robbins, assistant professor of speech, all the men and women trained by the school cannot be placed in the surrounding area, because the facilities aren't available.

The equipment in the studio is first-class and is better than in most of the local stations. The big drawback is the location of the studio. Located in the barracks, it is vulnerable to all sorts of noise. An attempt has been made to deaden the sounds in and out of the room by festooning parachutes around, but noises from outside still slip through—sometimes with a bang that ruins a recording. Nearby classrooms, and a gravel parking lot outside are the main noise makers.

Future plans for the radio department call for the use of the small white brick building on Thompson st., just south of the Cafeteria, now occupied by the art department. This building can be divided into air-conditioned, sound-proof rooms. The department plans to have an office, rehearsal room, and production rooms.

At the present time, the radio service here furnishes programs for six area radio stations—WCIL, Carbondale; WGGH, Marion; WMOK, Metropolis; WFRX, West Frankfort; WROY, Carmi; KSGM, St. Genevieve, Mo.; and a new station WAVA, Ava.

Robbins stressed the fact that the radio services are available to all of the University, and is not a monopoly of the speech department. Many opportunities for using

"Fame is the Spur"

To be Shown Wednesday

"Fame is the Spur," the last in the series of free movies sponsored by Audio Visual Aids and the Lectures Entertainment committee will be shown next Wednesday in the Stadium.

This movie unfolds the story of England's industrial unrest of the 1870's to Ramsay MacDonald's first National government. The rise of liberal spokesmen, the struggle for women's rights, and the growth of the British labor groups are the setting for the personal story of a Manchester mill town boy who became a Cabinet minister and eventually a Peer and shed his ideals and principles on the road to power and riches.

recordings are available in a modern educational system. No matter what occupation a person selects the services of radio and a knowledge of how to use radio will greatly enhance their chances for success. Today, ministers, politicians, farmers, agricultural county farm agents, and even housewives are making use of radio.

Yes, since the fall of 1950, the radio department has grown, and no doubt in the future it will expand even more rapidly while rendering a valuable service to both University and area alike.

Tudor Returns from 5-1-2 Months in Greece

The influence of Southern has been extended to Greece through the activities of Dr. William J. Tudor, who has returned from a five and a half-month stay in that country.

Serving as a Fulbright professor of agriculture at the Agriculture college of Athens, Dr. Tudor taught a course in rural sociology. Although early Grecians—Socrates, Plato, and Aristotle advanced some of the basic theories of sociology, Dr. Tudor taught the second course in sociology to be offered in Greek schools.

While in Greece, Dr. Tudor also served as co-ordinator of rural projects for the Near East foundation, consultant for the Marshall plan in Greece, and advisor to the Greek minister of agriculture.

In these capacities he instituted a study of social and economic life in rural villages to serve as a basis for a program of village re-development especially in connection with American aid to Greece. There were almost no social statistics available, and to provide a detailed account of all aspects of village life, Dr. Tudor and his assistants personally visited ten villages in different areas.

Conditions in a few of the villages were fairly primitive. For example, in one village, inhabitants wore shoes only twice a year, on Easter and Christmas. Evidences of World War II tragedies, while not frequent, were still apparent. The population of one village was almost entirely feminine because 300 male inhabitants had been shot by the Germans in a mass killing.

The study revealed that sanitation and water facilities are lacking in rural Greece. Although malaria has been reduced, tuberculosis, diphtheria, and other diseases continue to kill many persons annually. The Greek people have made tremendous strides forward in their redevelopment. Cities such as Athens, Salonika and Patras are quite modern with good food, water, and hotel accommodations so that Americans can live quite comfortably during visits to these cities.

Concerning communism in Greece, Tudor remarked, "The people are not at all interested in adopting communism. As long as we keep them well-informed and give them an opportunity to secure food and clothing, there is little danger of internal communism in Greece." The army has occasional clashes with border raiding parties from communistic Albania. The Greek government drafts all young men for a three year term in the armed forces.

When asked about the effectiveness of American aid to Greece, Tudor stated, "While mistakes have been made in our assistance program to Greece, there is a very strong effort being made now to correct these conditions and to cut waste. I feel that the Greek people are really being helped by American aid. I was particularly impressed with the work of the American voluntary agencies; especially with the work of the Near East foundation."

Two More Campus Offices Move

Along with other changes on the campus, the Placement service has joined the ranks. Because the old building on South Thompson street is to be moved to accommodate university expansion, the Placement service has moved its quarters farther south on Thompson street in Barracks H.

The new building is more spacious than the old one. Because of this, there is more room for individual conference rooms, as well as more general work room. This is very important for the sake of efficient operation of the service, whose business it is to get jobs for graduates in teaching and industry.

Eventually with the expansion of the service, a vault will be installed in the building for the storage of records. This will give protection to valuable records and at the same time place them close at hand.

The Extension service, which was in the same building with the Placement service, has been moving into the office formerly occupied by the director of teacher training, Dr. Charles Neal. This is in the barracks where the of-
