Board considers raises for University workers

By Mary E. Gardner

The Board of Trustees has approved tentative guidelines for pay raises beginning next year which would bring SIU faculty and staff pay up to national levels and civil service pay up 40.89 per cent to the State Personnel Code level.

The recommended pay increases would take effect over a three-year period. Still subject to approval by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE), the guidelines set forth tentative pay increases which would begin July 1, 1977, for fiscal year 1978.

No final action will be taken by the SIU board until its September meeting. The recommendations for Civil Service personnel at SIU include an increase of 13.6 per cent, one-third of the 40.89 per cent by which University officials say the SIU-C workers are below the average salary of State Personnel Code employees.

In addition, the recommended increase includes 7 per cent for merit and 1.9 per cent for movement and 2.3 per cent for implementing the first year of a step plan—for a total of 22.5 percent next year. For SIU-E Civil Service workers, the recommended increase includes 9.1 per cent for equity, 7 per cent for merit and market movement and 2.3 per cent for the step plan—a total of 18.4 per cent.

The recommendations for faculty and administrative staff, the proposal includes 1.5 per cent as an equity factor to bring SIU-C up to the average of Category I public universities as reported by the American Association of University Professors for 1975-76 and SIU-E up to the average for Category II-A.

The guidelines call for a 5.5 per cent increase for merit and cost of living. Cost-of-living and merit factors would apply to graduates assistants salary base but the merit factor would not, University officials said.

Requests by SIU-C and SIU-E for funding to cover increases in operational costs were not approved by the board.

The board asked that the requests be resubmitted in July with more detailed information as justification for the increases and with closer agreement between the two campuses in the presentation of the request.

SIU-C's requests were for funding increases of 30 to 35 per cent for fuel and utility items, 15 to 18 per cent for equipment and library books and 10 to 15 per cent for other service items. The SIU-E requests were 10 per cent, 10 per cent and 3 per cent, respectively.

Enrollment is...

Summer enrollment for 1976 appears to be nearly as high as last year's 10,389 designated as University of Illinois State Scholarship students this summer.

At least 1,000 SIU students received Illinois State Scholarship funds during summer 1976, according to the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

Enrollment figures could still rise, but there will be no more freshmen entering SIU this summer. Summer freshman registration ended last week when University officials decided SIU could not accommodate more freshmen.

A tight budget and lack of housing were the reasons cited by SIU-C President Warren W. Brandt for the enrollment cut-off.

Four departments reported slight decreases in enrollment, and four classes had to be cancelled. Not all departments were contacted.

The Department of Cinema and Photography Chairman Peter Bukalski reported his cinema courses were cancelled, but this was done "not so much because of a lack of enrollment, but more for financial reasons."

Bukalski explained these courses required specialized films and a large number of students are required to offset the expense. He said 25 students signed up for C+ F 464, a cancelled course, even though only 10 students are required for a 100-level course to be taught.

Political Science Department Chairman Randall H. Nelson said no classes had been cancelled, but some classes did have low enrollments.

"So far, I'd say enrollment is down. I discussed the situation with the Dean of the College last week, but I have no explanation at this point," Nelson said.

"My first assessment would be that it's the economy—students had to make money for fall," Beth Haas, secretary to History Department Chair M. Browning Carroll, said there had been some "worrying" about enrollment, but no classes had been cancelled. "I don't think you could say there was a problem with it," she said.

The School of Journalism cancelled four courses. One cancellation was because there was no instructor.

Enrollment in JRN 300, a beginning course required of all journalism majors, was down about one-third from last summer.

Students living in on-campus housing increased from 525 to 615, according to Joseph W. Gasser, assistant director of University Housing.

By John O'Brien

A steady rain covered a traffic-congested Carbondale May 14, as SIU's spring graduates made their way to the Arena to gather the fruits of their academic efforts—a diploma.

Inside, proud relatives sought out that particular vantage point which would allow them to witness their own. As they entered, they could hear the cheers of the 2,500 graduates from 1976 and sat anonymously in the areas designated for their college while above the speaker's stage, the band tuned up for Pomp and Circumstance.

Somewhere graduation 1976 was very much like it was 50 years ago. In our modern age the ritual of graduation has weathered the storm of change, at least at SIU. Caps and gowns, and all the pageantry which are resurrected each year despite groans and grumbles from students who call it a farce and threaten not to attend. But they do attend and so do their parents and friends and if it seems a little ridiculous, the pageantry is nonetheless a certain air of accomplishment and pride among the graduates.

Graduation was divided into two sessions (1:30 and 5:30) to allow room for the friends and families of the approximately 1,900 graduates. The 1:30 ceremony featured an address by Gov. Daniel Walker.

By 4:00 p.m. most of a damp audience had taken their seats and the band began to play as the procession began led by President Warren Brandt, and a professorial Walker in cap and gown.

Behind followed the faculty members in their multi-colored gowns, indicative of their academic discipline, and accomplishments. The variety of color diminished through the ranks of the doctoral and master's candidates to the undergraduates, distinguished from one another only by the color of their dangling tassels.

Brandt got things underway with a little levity, reminding the parents and students that they had emerged from the burden of tuition and fees—a remark met with applause rivaled only by Walker's promise that his remarks would be brief and void of the "trite rhetoric" usually heard at graduation ceremonies.

Walker was brief as he wound into ominous remarks about the U.S. political system and attitudes. The governor spoke in lamenting tones of a government whose effectiveness was being threatened by a climate of distrust and cynicism.

Walker warned the graduates not to allow themselves to get caught up in a "destructive" attitude that has resulted in the election of candidates who criticize government the most.

Walker later touched the hearts of the audience when he left the stage to embrace his daughter Kathleen Vaughn, a member of SIU's first graduating law class.

An added attraction of the 1:30 ceremony was the presentation of an honorary doctor of law degree to...
A flying Chicago rain Sunday night coupled with a killer tornado, left the city to fight one of the worst traffic tie-ups since the giant snowfall of 71 and creating a night of terror for some motorists.

On the Dan Ryan Expressway, miles of cars and trucks which habitually leave on Sunday nights to avoid the early Monday morning rush, were stopped dead. Drivers were leaving their cars or sitting on their cars roof. Others had pulled off the road to wait patiently for the traffic to move or to stare dejectedly at their overbeaten engines.

Those who tried to stick with the expressway traffic inched along, covering approximately three miles in as many hours. But by 79th street, they were being turned back to go up the down ramps, forcing them to lake side streets which were just as congested in some areas as the expressway.

Here, bands of youths were reportedly preying on motorists who wandered away from the main road. One gang member stabbed and wounded a motorist and killed his wife for refusing to pay 80 to the youths to help with his stalled car.

Other motorists were attacked while their cars were helplessly stranded and stalled. "That's the way it is down there," said Joseph D'Leonardi, city homicide commander. He said youths were just trying to "find a chance to stick somebody up."

But these attacks were isolated incidents when looking at the chaotic scene. Just as in the snowstorm of 71 which paralyzed the city, there were people, both black and white, helping each other. And sharing jokes about the inept way the city was handling the emergency.

One fire hose was being used to siphon off hundreds of gallons of water and there was little traffic control. Cars came head on in the flooded area. It wasn't until 6 a.m. that traffic on the north bound lanes of the Dan Ryan were open.

First, 800 picks were reportedly entering the sewer system in an effort to relieve the flooding and pumping equipment was being used to clear clogged inlets to the sewers.

One person blamed the flooding on Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley. "If he'd pay more mind to the sewers in the area, he wouldn't have these problems," he said.

The tornado that struck the Chicago suburbs, killed at least 10 people and injured 23 others. Rescue workers continued to work through the night and emergency shelter was provided for those whose homes were demolished.

The hardest hit suburb was Lemont, where about 40 homes were destroyed and up to 500 people homeless, said Lemont Mayor George Bracken.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kenneth J. Gray, former Illinois 24th District Congressman said Monday he is meeting with Justice Department investigators to prove he could not have influenced support for the National Visitors Center by telling Elizabeth Ray to have sex with Sen. Mike Gravel.

"I've got my legs," said Gray, an Illinois Democrat. "I'm going to show them to the Justice Department. The record clearly and indisputably shows that on the 9th and 10th of August 1972, in public hearings, we were considering the Eisenhower Civic Center - not the Visitors Center. Ray has told federal investigators she had sex with Gravel, a Democrat from Alaska, during a small party on Gray's houseboat on the Potomac River the night of Aug. 10, 1972, after Gray told her to do so, a source said Saturday.

The source said Ray understood this to be an order. "That was for the National Visitors Center," the source said Ray quoted Gray as telling her afterward.

Neither Ray nor her attorney was immediately available for comment.

College education not for everyone

By Stewart Cohen

The last five years have always been two well known choices for high school graduates to ponder over. One is to go directly into the labor force and the other is to go directly into higher education. There is a third less traveled path. Many students can elect to attend college for a year or two, go to work and then return. It may take longer than a college degree, but for a person committed to career goals, getting his or her feet wet in both college and the labor force is an alternative. Very few people know exactly what they want to do upon high school graduation. Making a decision is a heavy assignment.

Former U.S. Commissioner of Education Harold Howe II says students go to college directly from high school for a number of reasons other than market is extremely tight and higher education without a real purpose, it isn't true.

The dilemma has no definite answer. It just has to do or because their parents want them to go. The they go to find their identities by themselves within institutions that have to a job. The is to enter the labor force and then go on with post secondary education whenever they need to do so for a well defined purpose, not only once, but perhaps several times.

Although too many undergraduates are adrift in higher education without a real purpose, it isn’t true that higher education is useless unless it pays out in dollar earning potential. John Hopkins University President Steven Muller stresses, “We live in a society so sophisticated technologically that it depends on a vast and complex array of highly developed skills.”

Many jobs demand an expanding variety of specialized skills. However, a mass of students have flooded institutions that have lowered or abandoned intellectual standards and sacrificed the teaching of civilization to concentrate primarily on the teaching of technical skills.

High school graduates are in a dilemma. The job market is extremely tight and college costs continue to increase. In the past a college degree was the key to a job. The U.S. Department of Labor predicts that by 1985, only 20 percent of all the jobs in the U.S. will require four years of college.

The dilemma has no definite answer. It just has alternatives.

University 'pays lip service' to student input on tenure process

To the Daily Egyptian:

Student input means nothing at SIU. It has been granted in name only, the University pays only lip service to the ideal.

Student input in tenure decisions is given little if any, weight. The administration seeks it out, then disregards it. One need only look at the recent tenure decisions imposed on the School of Journalism to see the truth in the above statements.

At the May meeting of the SIU Board of Trustees, the board voted unanimously that students have no rights in the tenure decision process. They refused to hear a presentation by the Journalism Students Association (JSA). The trustees—all of them, including the so-called “student” representatives—voted unanimously to ignore student input, to pretend it isn’t there.

“The board does not feel this is an appropriate matter to be brought by a third party,” Chairman Ivan Elliott, Jr. stated. This reflects the erroneous assumption being made up and down the bureaucratic line that tenure denials hurt only the teachers involved. When tenure is denied to excellent teachers, it hurts students, present and future. And it ultimately hurts the department and the university, too.

Sometimes a university is doing a teacher a favor by denying him tenure. A good teacher can get a good job, probably a better job, elsewhere even with today’s tight job market. Why stay where you’re not wanted or appreciated?

But what about the students? What recourse do they have?

DOONESBURY

by Garry Trudeau

The JSA chose to work within the system—follow channels. We didn’t picket in front of Anthony Hall. We didn’t walk off the Daily Egyptian. We didn’t hang Frank Horton in effigy. All those things were seriously suggested, but we put our faith in the almighty system.

Elliott said only the teachers involved could appeal their cases to the board which, admittedly, makes some sense. But when students asked whether they could address themselves to the second part of their complaint, general objections with Horton’s rotten tenure guidelines, the door was slammed again without justification.

“It’s not on the agenda,” Elliott said. “That matter is not before us.” But how can students get on the agenda? We followed board procedures. We discussed the guidelines with the dean of the college, the vice president for academic affairs and the president. Who’s left?

The teachers in the School of Journalism teach the ethics and ideals of our profession. The SIU administration teaches something else—cynicism. Democracy is a great thing in theory, but it doesn’t appear to be working in practice—not at SIU.

Parole request denied for youthful killer

CHICAGO (AP)—The Illinois Parole and Pardon Board Monday rejected a petition for parole by conviction murderer Todd Gorsuch and ordered him transferred to an adult prison when he reaches age 26.

Gorsuch was 14 in October 1979 when he allegedly murdered his sister Theresa, 12, and Becky Slaye, 10, a playmate. Both girls were shot twice with a shotgun. Their bodies were found in a woods behind the Gorsuch home near Princeville.

In a brief decision, the parole was denied "so that you can continue to receive supportive counseling to further develop emotional stability and have an opportunity to formalize future plans in a manner that will make you a worthwhile citizen in a free community."

The board acknowledged that Gorsuch had "made excellent progress in the rehabilitative program," but noted the seriousness of his offenses.

Though tried as an adult, Gorsuch has been under the jurisdiction of juvenile authorities and eligible for parole at all times. For the past year, he has been living in the Rockford Group Home, a halfway house for young offenders.

Department of Corrections counselors recommended that he be freed, citing his record of cooperation, volunteer work and scholastic achievement.

His petition for parole was opposed, however, by Becky Slaye's parents and the state's attorney in Peoria County, where the case was tried.

Gorsuch has been an "A" student at a Rockford junior college and has been counseling high school students at a Rockford church for months. He had planned to attend Northern Illinois University or another four-year college if he were freed.

Carter speech to aid Howlett

SPRINGFIELD, (AP)—Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, the frontrunning candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, will be the chief speaker July 1 at a Chicago fund-raising dinner.

Carter, representing the gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett, was introduced Monday.

A spokesman for Howlett said he expects some 5,000 persons will attend the dinner held at the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

It will be the second major fundraiser for Howlett since the 61-year-old secretary of state defeated Democrat Gary Dern to win the Democratic nomination in the March 18 primary election.

No connection found in meningitis cases

GALESBURG (AP)—State officials say there is no apparent connection between three cases of meningitis reported in Knox County in the last six weeks.

Two of the victims, Elz Welch, 3, of Galesburg and Bradley A. Johnson, 2, of Gibson, died last week.

A third youngster is being treated at a Galesburg hospital but is reported improving, said Gary Gurian, a spokesman for the state Department of Health.

Gurian said all three cases involve different kinds of bacteria.

Prober to salute his target

SPRINGFIELD, (AP)—The legislator heading an investigation into allegations of unethical conduct by House Democratic leader Gerald Sheehan is also part of a group throwing a $10-a-head testimonial cocktail party for Sheehan next week.

Rep. Daniel L. Houlahan, D-Chicago, was named Friday as chairman of a six-member House committee to investigate Sheehan.

Houlahan is also listed as one of 28 representatives on a "salute to Gerald W. Sheehan" committee, which is throwing the cocktail party on June 26.

Aim of the party, according to a release, is "to offer thanks to Sheehan personally for his long hours and years of work.

House Speaker William A. Redmond, D-Bensenville, who appointed Houlahan to head the investigating committee, also is listed among those supporting the Sheehan cocktail party.

Houlahan said that the party is "really a courtesy thing. It's a bipartisan thing. It is not something I have any kind of active role in."

In a resolution introduced last month, Sheehan was accused of violating the state ethics act in his relationships with the Illinois Medical Society in 1973.

Red tape swamps summer students

By Les Chudik

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Those students who have not registered and paid or deferred their fees are finding themselves enticed in the usual beginning semester red tape. If students hadn't paid or deferred their tuition by Friday their registration has been cancelled. Those who plan on attending classes this summer must go through late registration, said Else A. Gebel, registration data supervisor.

To register late, the student goes back to his advisor and gets a new course request (registration) form which the college dean must sign. The form must then be brought back to the registration center, Woody Hall A-3, where the student registers, said Gebel.

Students can register until July 30 with the dean's permission. Fees are due the day a student registers unless he defers payment until July 22.

If the student doesn't pay his fees by July 22 he will be billed by mail," she added.

To defer tuition payment, a student must take his fee statement to the Student Life Office in Barracks T-40. He must present proof that he will be able to pay his fees by the 2nd. Student Life then notifies the Bursar of the deferment, she said.

The last day to add classes or change sections without the dean's permission is Friday. After this program changes can be made until July 30 with the dean's permission, Gebel said.

The deadline for withdrawal from the University is July 30. A student who is registered for eight-week courses and withdraws by June 25 will receive a tuition refund. Those who drop eight-week courses by June 25 are also eligible to receive refunds (see previous story).

July 2 is the deadline to drop a class without a grade and to change an audit, credit or pass-fail status.

After July 7 it is up to the instructor whether the student will receive a withdraw-pass or withdraw-fail for the course, she said.

Those who receive scholarships or grants after their tuition is paid can receive a refund by bringing their fee statements and proof of the scholarship or grant to registration data, Woody Hall A-16, she said.

Periodic invasion of locusts damages two area orchards

By Chris Mearick
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Chew... chew... chew...

The saw-like sound of the red-eyed "13-year locust" is familiar in the wooded areas of Southern Illinois.

Actually the insect is not a locust but the periodical cicada. Magicicada, a sucking-mouthed insect which is found in populations of varied sizes throughout the United States.

John McPherson, an entomologist in the Zoology Department, said, "The north is more likely to have the 17-year cicada, the south has the 13-year."

Climatic conditions may cause the difference in life spans but they both experience the same type life-cycle. The insect lives 13 or 17 years underground, emerges once every four weeks to reproduce as adults and then dies.

Underground life for the clawed cicada involves sucking sap from the roots of trees. Damaged to trees occurs when the immature cicada surfaces. transforms to an adult cicada involves sucking sap from small trees. Said his problem with the insect began about three weeks ago. The apple trees had damage to twig breakage as a result of cicada egg-laying.

The female cicada slits the twig with a "double-channel" egg-laying organ. She does not lay the eggs all at once but spaces them among many trees.

McPherson said, "The twig dies because of the puncture made by the female. loss of fruit is created from the twig breakage and damage." Joe Sawicki, Riker Orchards in Carbondale, said the main problem with the insect was in the older peach and apple groves. "We tried to get them before they laid the eggs," he said, and our timing was right because we knocked most of them out.

Cheese cloth or mosquito netting can be placed over the smaller trees for protection. The foreign cloth may confuse the female cicada and stop her from slitting the branches.

For larger, older trees a chemical, Sevin, can be sprayed. Fish, cats, and hogs eat huge quantities of the cicadas and predators reduce their numbers.

"Little is known on how much damage occurs when the cicada is underground for the 13- or 17-year periods. Barbara Weber, Forestry Lab researcher, said. "The long underground life cycle hampers research because of cost involved in conducting the study."

The dark brown to black cicada undergoes several molts during its underground phase. Chemicals, setting, and natural predators reduce their numbers. Birds, cats, fish, skunks, mice, and hogs eat huge quantities of the rare delicacy when the cicada surfaces through tunnels, furrowed by claws.

The surviving cicada climbs a vertical object and sheds their final skin. The cicada tribe in full cicada form, can be found attached to trees, shrubs and stems.

The number of cicadas varies from 1/3 of a tree in one location to an entire tree.

The female cicada lays the eggs in the soil. The eggs are laid during the day and the cicadas emerge at night.

The cicada's life cycle is from egg to adult cicada and back to egg. This cycle is repeated every 13 or 17 years. Whatever the reason, National Wildlife magazine reported the northern 17-year cicada has the longest developmental period of any known insect.

Campus delegation sought for World Game Workshop

By Michael P. Mallen

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Bill Perk, lecturer in the design department, is trying to organize an SIU delegation to attend the July 31 through August 1 World Game Workshop in Philadelphia.

The workshop, one of former SIU faculty member R. Buckminster Fuller's projects, is an exploration into comprehensive world planning and design.

"The workshop is an ongoing symposium," Perk said. "Problems are defined and the most efficient solutions sought."

Structurally the conference is divided into two parts: a one-week planning symposium, followed by a three-week workshop. The first week will be a unique orientation to design science and long-range planning. The focus will be on a series of interdisciplinary planning themes expressed in the viewpoints of the diverse group of speakers scheduled to address the workshop.

The second part of the event will be a workshop that will use the methodology of design science in specific case study applications. The participants will form a design team and focus their efforts on designing strategies for meeting specific needs in various parts of the world. "We've talked to the administration," Perk said, "and gotten a favorable response on the possibility of getting funds to help pay our way to the workshop."

Perk said no actual dollar amounts were disclosed, but that funding of some sort might be available for those who wish to attend the workshop world game. Perk is also trying to get members of the Carbondale community interested in sponsoring attendance in Philadelphia. "I was interviewed on WTAQ last week," Perk said, "and as a result of that we are getting some money from the station. We hope to get some help from others in the community."

Fuller will keynote the conference and address the participants at two additional times. Other distinguished speakers include: international planner Erich Jantsch from the University of California at Berkeley; Whole Earth Catalog Editor Stewart Brand; co-director of the Princeton Center for Alternative Futures Hazel Henderson; author Edmund-Schlossberg; and Howard Brown and Medard Gabel of Earth Metabolic Design.

Perk said that anyone interested in attending the workshop should contact him at the design department or by calling him at 453-5761, 356-2644 or 349-3002 for applications.

WIDB planning limited schedule for summer

"I feel that it will be in the best interests of the entire campus and the student body if the station is closed during the summer," Davis said.

Davis, a senior in Radio-TV, said station management during summer will be handled by H. Joe Spangler, former public relations director for the station.

Davis said the decision to stay on the air for the summer was a difficult one to make, as projected sales revenues for the term are not comparable to those earned during the regular school year.

"We are primarily a student organization and as such we must make every attempt to serve student needs," he said.

"We will need a substantial effort from all those staying to make this thing work," Davis said. "We have a fine staff and I'm sure we will have no problem maintaining the quality of our air sound."

Davis said Ann Kalonias, senior in Radio-TV, will act as production and continuity director for the term, Davis said.

Media aesthetics will be discussed

A seminar led by Paul Weiss, the Catholic University of America, philosopher, "The Philosophical Underpinnings of the New Media," will be held in the Communications Lounge of the Communications Building at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Weiss will explore the aesthetics of public visual media, trying to define and discover their potential for artistic expression, what art is and what the role of the artist is. There will be time for discussion.

Weiss, who is Heifer Professor of Philosophy at the Catholic University of America, is an author, lecturer, researcher and teacher. He is the author of "Cinematic" (1974), "Now Basic Arts" (1961), "The World of Art" (1961) and many articles and reviews.

The seminar is sponsored by the Department of Radio-Television, the Office of the Dean of Communications and Fine Arts and the Office of Research and Projects.

Nicholson, Brando crack in 'Breaks'

By Joseph Resniss
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carsons were never more active, arenas of death never more out of place. The current season of television “breaks” are more twisted than in the newest of the shock-em’ series, “Missouri Breaks.”

A Review

The “Breaks” features perhaps two of the least active in film business today. Jack Nicholson and Marlon Brando. Nicholson plays a somewhat passive horse thief, as only Nicholson can, and Brando plays a horse, which has fallen out of favor with the local rancho. "Missouri Breaks" is a showcase of "borrowings" of prime horse loot. Along with a horse thief, the forest is being sought out by a Brando, who plays a horse thief, and which is something more than a free lance hit man. The story is, in its most basic form, true. Five men steel horses and sell them, people are being battered in the horse thief and the stage is set. But add to that Nicholson’s nasty mind and the bizarre Brando personality together and you have perhaps one of the most interesting movie montages you have ever seen on the screen for a while.

Brando assumes a number of identities, one of which is that of an old lady, complete with voice and vernacular changes. His Irish brogue is not quite so hard to take, but his perfumed bubble bath scene in which his blubbery body appears in is another thing all together. Brando does not have the macho that is normally associated with horsemen. His renditions are private, but by the end of the movie he begins to lose his heavy polished exterior, and see him for the diagonal psychotic that he is.

Nicholson is ... Nicholson. In “Breaks,” that sick smiling crony that Nicholson seems to naturally portray comes out. It’s Nicholson and Brando to the finish, and the finish is both shocking and somewhat unexpected.

All in all, Missouri Breaks can be credited with being entertaining, but by no means an important piece of film.

There are some rather disgusting moments, particularly when Brando starts earning his wages for what he was paid to do. But the film is worth seeing, even if the script seems to be a last minute effort. After all, it will probably be a long time before Marlon Brando will ever wear a dress again.

FIRST EDITION

CHICAGO (AP)—A first edition book has not necessarily have special value.

The American Library Assn. says, "Indeed, for the majority of books, the first edition was the only edition. First printings of great works of literature, art, and science are usually sought by collectors."

Summer entertainment schedule slated

Two musicals, a children’s play and two film classics are the playground for SIUC’s Summer Playhouse.

Leading off the summer schedule will be “Little Mary Sunshine,” a musical adaptation of the music of East African operettas. Created in 1959 by Rick Jarratt, "Little Mary Sunshine" follows the style and form of the early 20th century operetta, the first form of musical theater in America. The play will be presented July 12, 13, 19, 20 and 21 at 8 p.m. in the University Theater in the Communications Building.

A cavalcade of American musical films is scheduled for the week of July 1. The film schedule is as follows: July 13, "Gold Diggers of 1933" starring Dick Powell in a Busby Berkeley spectacular; July 14, "Footlight Parade" starring Jimmy Cagney and Joan Blondell in another Berkeley spectacular; July 15, "Meet Me in St. Louis," a Vincent Minnelli production featuring Judy Garland and Margaret O’Brien; July 16, "An American in Paris," which stars Gene Kelly dancing to the music of George Gershwin; and July 17, "Singin’ in the Rain," with Gene Kelly, Donald O’Connor, Jean Hagen and Nina Foch. All movies are at 8 p.m. in the University Theater.

This summer’s Children Show is "The Jumbo and the Mutt," a musical lampoon of "BesQyan," "Little Mary Sunshine" and "Follies." All will be presented on Fridays at 10 a.m. in the Laboratory Theater in the Communications Building. The play, by Jack Stokes, follows the adventures of Fenda Maria, a Young Native American girl, as she undertakes a dangerous journey through the jungle in order to save her friend Ngana, the chief’s son.

The second play of the summer will be "Godspell," a musical set in the Gospels. This play was directed by Arnold Kendall, the exextraordinary characters of the New Testament in a way which .

Cookout features wildfood forages

By Chris Mewisch
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Approximately 500 people sampled the wildfoods Sunday at Rent Lake Campground, sponsored by U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the Roadside Naturalists, featured forages from Rent Lake. Jefferson and Franklin counties.

Ben and Diane Larson mixed eggs, Dutch oven pancakes, sausage and potatoes for their friter specialty. They had the dandelions at 6:30 that morning, the only road runners that were also fritters.

Gail Bohaboh, University of Illinois graduate, traveled from Chicago for the event. She is the forager for sumac, berries, greens, and milkweed.

Diane Dare, a Roadside Naturalist member, brought her jellies and breads. A five-year wildfood hobbyist, she does her foraging in her hometown city park.

Doobies, Johnny Winter, Crosby, Nash among rockers to perform at River Fest

By Keith Thomas and Joan Pearlman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An entire spectrum of entertainment events will again be presented at the riverfront site and the SIU campus during this year's eighth season of presentations.

The events, which will be given at both the tent-topped festival site and the SIU campus, will include films, dance acts, dramatic presentations, and a variety of folk, rock, folk, symphony and popular music.

Two of the most popular acts appearing this season will be the Doobie Brothers and David Byrd, and Graham Nash.

The Doobies, who have received constant radio airplay since their inception in the early 1970s, and currently have both an album and single on the best-seller charts, titled "Taking It In the Streets." With a repertoire of songs spanning a decade, the group will display various pieces he worked on during his four-year art history program at the SIU, and will perform on September 24. The Doobies will perform at 7 p.m.

Graham Nash, who has been a member of Crosby, Stills and Nash since 1969, as well as portions of both CSN and the Hollies, has been a solo artist since 1974, and has a hit single on the best-seller charts. Both Nash and Byrd have been on the road since June 30, and Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons have been entertained with the Doobies. Nash will appear with special guest artist Emmylou Harris on July 4. Nash and his band have been together since 1974 and have gained a slowly-enlarging audience among progressive rock enthusiasts.

The Doobies and Nash will perform together at 7 p.m. at the Riverfront campus.

Disaster aid, loans sought

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Gov. Daniel Walker Monday asked President Ford to declare tornado-ravaged Cook and DuPage counties federal disaster areas and requested that the Small Business Administration make loans available to residents.

Walker also announced that he has declared the counties major disaster areas, making owners of damaged property eligible for property tax relief.

Two persons were killed in Lemont and dozens injured elsewhere when fierce tornadoes roared through the area Sunday. Damage was estimated at $1.8 million, according to the governor's office.

Under federal disaster assistance, residents would be eligible for grants up to $1,000, additional compensation if the disaster caused unemployment.

Imprisoned Marine alters view of U.S.

LUANDA, Angola (AP)—An ex-U.S. Marine sergeant on trial for his life as a mercenary testified Monday he "saw the light" in an Angolan jail and condemned American society as a "a monster of power seekers, status seekers, and wastemakers."

The Angolan prosecutor praised Gustave Grillo, an Argentine-born naturalized American from Jersey City, N.J., for his "truth and honesty" but cut him off when the defendant said "reading a Cuban military newspaper in jail" helped bring about his conversion.

There are 10,000-15,000 Cuban troops in Angola.

Recent diplomatic reports said Cuban troops were withdrawing from Angola but U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said he saw no evidence the troops were leaving.

Thirteen white mercenaries, three Americans and ten Britons, captured in the closing days of the Angolan civil war as they fought for the losing pro-West side, are defendants in the show trial in Luanda. Observers from many countries are attending the trial.

Grillo said that defendant Daniel Gorcehart of Kingston, Md. "never fired a shot" and that Gary Acker of Sacramento, Calif., was never harassed or mistreated anywhere.

He attacked the CIA as an institution of mercenaries that hires other mercenaries." He said America was "a place where they have restaurants for dogs, while you see people on the streets dying of hunger and cold in New York City."

Earlier Costas Georgiou, the "Colonel Callan," accused by other British mercenaries of ordering the massacre of 14 of his follows, took full responsibility for everything charged against those he commanded. He said he gave the orders and the others followed.

On the fourth day of the trial the five-member tribunal said Georgiou "might choose to do something unexpected in court."

Attorneys visiting the prisoners in their cells said Georgiou, who swaggered and smirked in court, taunted his jailer saying, "You can't shoot me now. You gotta wait."

McAndrew's turf goes bad, board approves face-lift, fix-up

By Mary Gardner
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Faults are showing up in the playing surface of the $97,000 Astro-Turf, which was installed in McAndrew Stadium in 1972, so Thursday the SIU Board of Trustees gave the athletic department the go-ahead to negotiate with Monsanto Chemical Co. for replacement of the artificial grass.

Even though the Astro-Turf surface is still under the remainder of its five-year warranty, which calls for free maintenance and repair, the board approved expenditures up to $60,000 for the replacement.

Money to replace the field will come primarily from donations to SIU athletic. No state money will be involved. Bill Brown, athletic director, said it isn't the Astro-Turf itself that's going bad, but the backing under the surface Brown said.

The single stabilized grass surface will be replaced by Monsanto with its improved double stabilized grass, said Brown. Monsanto could have just fixed the surface enough to last through the warranty year, Brown pointed out, but instead they offered to replace it entirely with a better field.

The new field can be expected to last 8 to 10 years, though there won't be a new warranty, said Brown. He said that Indiana State has had its field for 9 years.

When the board voted on the matter, student trustee Rusty Lightle, in his last appearance on the board, voted against the expenditure.

Board sends fund request for pilot, flight instruction programs to IHBE

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale hopes to start a new two-year pilot program designed to train students for jobs as commercial pilots and flight instructors.

It is one of 13 new and expanded academic programs proposed by SIU-C for the fiscal year starting in July, 1977, a package authorized Thursday by the SIVU-C Board of Trustees. It will be forwarded to the Illinois Board of Higher Education for final approval.

The School of Technical Careers told the board that the proposed new associate in applied science degree program is needed to fill a gap in the area. It is expected to draw 218 students next year. It would be offered at the school's Southern Illinois Airport facilities and would include flight courses through the commercial pilot certificate and instrument rating.

No additional money is being sought for the program, since faculty, courses and facilities already in existence will be used to start it.

Other new programs planned by SIU-C and authorized by the trustees:

- A new Center for Basic Skills, to help students deficient in reading, writing and mathematics skills improve their grasp of those essentials to levels acceptable for university work ($125,650). An associate degree in paralegal studies. It would train students to work in law offices and similar situations as legal assistants ($24,500).
- $604,500 for additional faculty for the SIU-C School of Law, law library materials and funds for clinical law operations in Carbondale and Springfield. ($603,800 for faculty and staff and additional equipment for the SIU-C Coal Extraction and Utilization Research Center; ($1,955,281) for continued expansion of teaching and clinical programs in the SIU-C School of Medicine. This includes new family practice programs at Decatur, Quincy and Belleville, and the cost of faculty and staff salaries now paid from state funds.
- A master of fine arts degree in cinema and photography to be offered by the College of Communications and Fine Arts ($12,760).

Sexual needs group planned

A sexual assertiveness training group is being set up to help women identify their sexual needs and be able to meet them by communicating their desires to their partners and turning down what they don't want. Says Laura Brown, a graduate student in clinical psychology who is coordinating the group.

The group is open only to women and will meet Wednesdays from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Only 10 women will be able to join the group, Brown said. There will be no charge. Interested women may call Cheri May, at 453-5721 to arrange for an interview.

Environmental group ‘cleans up’ in local ecological study

By Chris Moesch
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Twenty ecology students picked up approximately 200 pounds of glass, paper, plastic, and metal from a one block Carbondale business district, last Saturday.

The teachers, administrators and environmental education coordinators that made up the group, are part of a three week Institute in Environmental Education offered through the Science Education Center, Department of Curriculum, Instruction, and Media.

Last year the Illinois Office of Education asked every Illinois district to name an environmental coordinator for their district. The institute will give elementary and secondary educators an insight on how to set up environmental courses.

Harold R. Hungerford, Director of the Institute, said, "We are trying to do our part in facilitating Illinois with environmental education.

The Board of Trustees gave the SIU-C College of Education the go-ahead to expand its business education program to include a specialization in the area of business and industry.

The new business occupations teaching specialization in the Department of Vocational Education studies will be geared to the needs of individuals who wish to teach accounting, data processing and other skills in business, industry, proprietary schools, and community colleges, according to Marcia A. Anderson, coordinator of business education programs.

"Many people who are experts in such areas as data processing and accounting are interested in acquiring the teaching skills we have to offer," she said. "This program is designed in completing teacher certification requirements," said Mrs. Anderson.

Degree candidates in the new program will complete a core of basic vocational education studies courses, as well as courses from their specific areas of specialization, according to Mrs. Anderson.

Five new courses have been proposed to complement ones already being offered.

Udall, Church free delegates; Carter closer to nomination

NEW YORK (AP) - Jimmy Carter moved ever closer Monday to the Democratic presidential nomination as Sen. Frank Church withdrew from the race and urged support of Carter while Rep. Morris Udall said "a vote for Jimmy Carter is a vote for a party unity.

Meanwhile, a third rival, Fred Harris of Oklahoma, has sent telegrams to 18 delegates he had won in four states and urged them to support the former Georgia governor, his campaign manager confirmed.

Church, D-Idaho, said his delegates were "free agents" and urged them to vote for Carter, who is less than 20 delegates shy of the magic number of 1,365. The Associated Press count shows Church has 79 committed delegates, some of whom have not yet been named. By his own count Church has "nothing over 100."

Udall, the Arizona congressman who commands 33 delegates, said delegates "were free to vote for him or anyone they choose." But said he was not making a "blanket release."

Udall, who was a consistent second-place finisher in the primaries, said there were "some technical reasons" - including those of a platform committee - that prevented him from throwing his support to Carter. In Washington, a Democratic task force considered whether the party should support a publicly financed national television campaign and voted to amend a proposed platform plank which failed to say how the financing of such a plan should be handled.

There was disagreement on the platform drafting subcommittee over whether the financing of such a plan should be public, private, or a combination of both. Udall was in New York where top state Democrats turned out to endorse Carter.

Gov. Hugh Carey, New York Mayor Abraham Beame, former Mayor Robert Wagner Jr. and other local leaders held a news conference with Carter to call upon other Democrats to unite behind the frontrunner.

Only 13 delegates are legally committed to Carter in New York. Beame then introduced Carter to the 25th convention delegates as the candidate.

The New York delegates gave two standing ovations to Carter, but they reserved their loudest applause and cheers from California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who appeared immediately after the Georgians.

Brown was interrupted by applause when, in an apparent reference to Carter, he said "it's going to take more than an invitation - more than an invitation to love - it's going to take economic planning like we've never seen before to deal with these problems" such as those of the cities.

Joseph Crangle, a New York delegate, said New York would not up solidly behind Carter despite the cheers for Brown and Udall.

Udall, potentially available to Carter from New York are 65 delegates, 190 short of the number needed to nominate. Despite the withdrawals of major rivals and Udall's decision to become an inactive candidate, Carter could not necessarily count on all of his rivals' delegates.

Checks with some Udall delegates in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts showed that there was clearly no disposition on their part to immediately climb on the Carter bandwagon.

Most of those interviewed said they would stay committed for now; several mentioned hearings toward Brown and said they preferred anyone to Carter.

On the Republican side, President Ford's campaign manager, Rogers C. B. Morton, announced appointment of nine regional chairman to keep Ford delegates in line and said he still expects the President to win the nomination on the first ballot.

GOP challenger Ronald Reagan, was in New Hampshire this week in seclusion on his ranch near Los Angeles. He is not scheduled to leave the state until Friday when he goes to Des Moines for Iowa's delegate caucus.

'Positive thinking' improved area growth

By Timothy Tucker

In 1972 he was voted Southern Illinois Man of the Year for the influence he had in bringing economic and industrial development to the area.

For 22 years he served as creative director of Southern Illinois area development agencies composed of 25 area chambers of commerce and service agencies in the Carbondale area.

Today Geoffrey Hughes is retired and lives in his home, Hughes spoke with strength about his accomplishments and the role he played in making the area a better place.

"Southern Illinois is an area of great opportunity as well as being a very pleasant place to live," he said. "But for a long time industry stood away from here because they didn't think the labor force in this area was suitable to their needs."

Southern Illinois was a depressed area both economically and socially. Hughes said, "I'm sure that more than 100,000 persons moved out of the area in the 1940-50 period."

"The general depression of that period disturbed me," Hughes said in a solemn voice, "because I knew that the possibilities for social and economic growth existed here."

"When I became executive director of Southern Illinois Inc. in 1961, I realized that I had to change the negative attitude that people held toward Southern Illinois."

"I have always considered myself a positive thinker," he said, and in recent years with local residents and prospective clients I always tried to stress the positive rather than the negative."

Hughes said that when he was recruiting an industrialist to the area, he established two rules for himself. "Always be honest and truthful in your presentation, and never let your promises exceed your performance."

When I was making a presentation to a client I always gave him honest facts. If they wanted to know about taxes or labor prices I always gave it to them straight and didn't try to sugarcoat the information in an attempt to persuade them," Hughes said. And then with a smile he added, "And more often than not I was successful."

The fact that over 15,000 new jobs were created during the past 3 years that he served as director of Southern Illinois Inc. indicate that Hughes method did indeed work.

In addition to bringing industry to the area, Hughes, along with former Congressman Kenneth Gray, was instrumental in the development and construction of Reelf Lake.

"The area needed a way to impound water, so Congressman Gray took our proposal to build Reelf Lake to Washington. The people in Congress approved it and as a result we were able to build a lake that supplied sewage water to more than 40 towns in Southern Illinois," Hughes said.

After a brief pause Hughes exclaimed in his chair and said, "As I'm talking I hear myself keep saying, I did this or I did that but I want you to know that wherever I say it refers to Southern Illinois Inc. I simply represented the organization and made the initial contact with clients and then referred them to the proper people."

"As I look back upon my life, Hughes said, "I realize that I don't have that fat of a bank account but I do have a lot of friends and I think that I have been able to bring some happiness to the lives of others."

A plaque on the living room wall of his home indicates that Hughes is modest in his self-appraisal.

The plaque reads: "The officers and Board of Directors of Southern Illinois Incorporated do hereby express sincere gratitude and appreciation for 22 years of outstanding service to Southern Illinois by presenting you with this, the first annual Geoffrey Hughes Southern Illinois Citizen of the Year Award." GOOD ENOUGH SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—A "fine" man has been succeeded by a "good enough" man as a member of the Farm Credit Board. Retired is Golden Pine of Yuba City. His successor is Donald Goodenough of Fillmore.

New course offered on communications arts

Creating awareness of ethical and aesthetic issues in the communications arts is the goal of a new course to be offered next fall.

"Value in the Communication Arts," Liberal Arts 311.

Another objective of the course will be to interest majors in communications in the humanities, said Robert Trager, associate professor of journalism and one of the six instructors of the introductory course.

Short stories, novels, poetry, photographs, particularly films will be used as discussion springboards in the course. Both the substance and structure of the media will be studied, Trager said.

Area mining unit opens

A new U.S. Bureau of Mines research unit which will employ 100 persons at its outset and be in operation at SIU-C by late 1977, is to center's acting director.

Donald Bogich, acting director of the planned Bureau of Mines Carbondale Mining Research Center (CMRC), said the unit could be "in operation" by the fall of 1978, although it probably will be another year beyond that date before all research equipment is installed and the staff is at full strength.

Bogich said the center's Carbondale area will call for 100 Bureau of Mines to move out of the center, which is to be located in the center's budget of approximately $3.7 million.

Citing the center's SIU-C location as ideal for coal mining research, Joseph Yancik, assistant director of the Bureau of Mines for mining research, noted that 60 per cent of all coal is mined within 80 miles of Carbondale.

"The proximity to this intensive area will provide specific findings to those programs which relate to the mining of coal in this area," Yancik said.

National parley to study creativity

More than 100 scholars from across the United States are expected to gather at SIUC in a conference Friday through Saturday to study the nature of creativity.

Dedicated to the memory of the late Henry Wieman, a leading scholar of the philosophy of creativity and distinguished professor of philosophy at SIUC, the three-day meeting will be a forerunner of an international conference on "Philosophy in The Life of a Nation" scheduled in New York City, Oct. 7-10.

Issues emerging from the Carbondale sessions will be used in a series of panel discussions scheduled as part of the Bicentennial philosophical conference in New York City, according to William S. Minor, director of the Carbondale-based Foundation for Creativity Philosophy.

Sig Kap’s return to row

Members of Sigma Kappa Sorority will be returning to a new house in the fall. The sorority, which at present does not own or occupy a group facility, has been granted leasing rights at 107 Small Group Housing, or formerly occupied by the Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority.

Robert Saung, adviser for fraternities and sororities, said that when the Tri Sigma’s decided not to reoccupy the facility for the next year, several groups expressed an immediate interest. The selection of Sigma Kappa sorority was based upon a first come, first served basis and approval from the University Housing Office. In addition, a majority vote of the Sigma Kappa Alumni Board Corporation Board was necessary.

"We are extremely pleased with the decision made by Housing and the fraternities and sororities office", said Carol Coventry, adviser to Sigma Kappa sorority and assistant coordinator for student activities.

The sorority, which presently has 19 members, will assume a first year lease of $16,000. President Joan Kroll stated that moving back on the row and setting up a new house will require time and patience. The Sig Kap’s previously lived on the row until 1973, when a membership decrease forced them to release the 102 Small Group Housing facility presently occupied by Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity.
To Nanci, her dad is 'Man of the Year'

By Tom Chesser Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Three sons, four daughters and eight grandchildren age to Harlan Mendenhall, journalism lecturer, decided to settle down and become a family man. This week he was one of a handful of area residents selected as a 'Man of the Year' contest conducted by the Southern Illinois University.

"If the people that I knew him in their way," said his daughter Nanci Ward, "he would be selected 'Man of the Year'."

Mendenhall wrote the letter that got her father selected. "My father should be 'Man of the Year'. I hesitate to even mention the fact that he is my stepfather because he has been more of a father to me than my own, as well as a father and a friend to many of my friends and most of us students."

"He teaches at Southern Illinois University, among other duties there, he always has time to talk to his students, colleagues and former students. He takes time to keep an active correspondence with many of his former students, like myself of those increasingly rare people who genuinely cares about his family and friends. He is never too busy to listen, counsel or console."

When my mother remarried, I was a most shy and insecure child. He gave me two brothers and me the security and confidence that all children need.

If he is not voted 'Father of the Year' for last year, then this year's literary talents I will not be dismayed. One of his favorite sayings is, 'Do the best you can with what you've got.'

"I have new vote for a father who is 'The Best'." Harlan Mendenhall should not only be 'Father of the Year' but Man of the Year.

The native Oklahoman, who says he is 50 and one-half years-old, has been teaching public relations and electronic journalism at SIU for eight years and a half.

Many of his past and present students agree with his daughter's opinion that he be "Man of the Year."

Walls of his home are flecked with photographs showing his involvement with his students and family. Except for daughter Nanci living in Murphy-shores and his 29-year-old mentally retarded son living at Anna, the rest of his children have moved to other parts of the country, from Oregon to Florida.

Mrs. Ward who still refers to her father as "daddy," said the one lesson she learned from father was to learn from mistakes.

"When my mother became an invalid when I was a teenager, she had to take on the role as adviser and counselor, too. He was pretty permisive. He'd give us advice on things we'd go do what we felt like anyway. Later we'd find out that he was right." QUlTTERS REWARDED

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) Five employees of a Phoenix firm quit smoking their tobacco habit and received a combined cash reward of $1,440 from the firm.

In an incentive program designed by Eugene Kadish, president of the Arizona chapter of a national anti-smoking organization, the employees agreed a year ago to quit smoking and let the company deduct from their paychecks an amount equal to what they would have been spending on cigarettes.

"We deducted a total of $1,440 and we are paying it back plus $1,440 more," Kadish said.

Illinois Senate votes to eat its words

SPRINGFIELD, (AP) Last week Illinois Senate majority leader Robert Mitchell wished Sen. Robert Michel a happy 70th birthday, saying his motion to reconsider Monday the Senate took the unusual step of voting to eat its words. "A rather sad attempt at humor," one member commented as the Senate voted to delete from its official record the birthday resolution approved Friday.

The #23 vote came during an hour-long debate and series of parliamentary maneuvers usually reserved for the fingerprint section on birthdays.

The resolution noting the 56th birthday of the Oswego Republican was passed with a voice vote in the closing minutes of Friday's floor session.

The 1970 Illinois Constitution requires that a journal of official proceedings be published. But on Monday Sen. David Regner, R. Quincy, said at the opening of the session, the resolution, made a series of moves to keep the official journal of the Senate.

The resolution referred to Mitchell as a "peripatetic peckish" and said the fact that he has been re-elected since 1965 is "living proof of the time honored expression, 'The Messers are Ansar in the thirtieth-Disney, if nowhere else.'"

Sen. Harber Hall, R-Bloomington, one of the original co-sponsors of the resolution, said there was never any intention that it pass.

The Republican Senate leader, William C. Harris of Pontiac, said the official journal is often altered and "shall be what the majority of the body wants it to be.""If the dignity of one of the members of this body ceases to be important, it will be a tragic day," Harris said.

Liddy appeal rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court on Monday rejected an appeal by convicted Watergate burglar G. Gordon Liddy for a retrial of his sentence.

In a brief order, the court declined to hear Liddy's argument that he was denied due process of law by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

Liddy contended Sirica improperly took into account his refusal to cooperate with investigators in arriving at a sentence.

Liddy was sentenced to 30 years in prison and fined $40,000 for the 1972 burglary and bugging of the Democratic Party's headquarters in the Watergate building here.

The court also ruled that his sentence should be reduced to take into account a separate 18-month sentence which he served on a contempt of court conviction arising out of the Watergate case.

Letter bombs hit N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) - A letter bomb - one of three found in Manhattan business offices - reportedly injured four women workers in an office building here, Monday, and a breakage firm, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith in the New York financial district.

The injured women were taken to a hospital for treatment. The explosive device was not im-

Other letter bombs were sent to the Exxon Building, 626 Avenue in midtown and the Bunge Corp., also in the financial district.

The bomb squad went to the Exxon Building, and to the Bunge Corp. offices, because of the suspicious looking letters. Police said the letters were found between 1 and 2 p.m. The bomb squad sent a team to check out a post office in the financial district at 2:30 p.m. to check out a report of a suspicious looking letter there.

In each case the "bomb" was a three-by-five-inch envelope containing a small amount of white powder, a small metal coil, electric battery and an electric blasting cap, police reported.

Authorities said the postmarks on the letters showed they came from Texarkana, Texas.

Country music goes ‘Hollywood’

By C. G. McDaniel

CHICAGO (AP) — Country music “is going Hollywood” and that’s going to be its undoing, says a pop culture scholar.

Madison Avenue marketing techniques are destroying country music, he said, citing the decline in popularity of singer Johnny Cash.

The scholar, Michael Scott Cain of the Catonsville, Md., Community College English division, presented his study at the recent annual convention of the Popular Culture Association.

The association’s members, representing a number of academic fields, study fashions, heroes and villains, comic books, films, photography and other contemporary topics.

Country and western singers are the victims of hucksters who try to create images of the singers which are out of keeping with their real image, Cain averred.

He said, for example, that the image created for Johnny Cash is that of “ex-con, ex-junkie, freezing outside,” but he is not, and never has been an outlaw and has been in legal trouble only once, over drugs.

As a performer gains increasing visibility, reality shows through and if the reality of the performer’s life does not fit the image, then the performer dies, Cain said.

He said Cash’s decline began with his television show which increased his visibility and allowed viewers to see that his image was unreal.

The new Johnny Cash “is infinitely more interesting than the image created for him,” Cain said.

“Country music is still naive about the price it’s going to have to pay,” he said.

Once a performer is made into a product, the performer will wear out, just as a toaster wears out, he added.

At one time country music was true to tradition and had the most loyal fans in the world, he said. But “image-mongering, the big buck, the quick buck,” have taken over and are destroying the art of country music, he said.

Recording company executives are concerned about “how to package a performer,” the kind of image they can create for him or her to attract a mass audience fast, Cain said.

“The fans might buy it for a while,” he said. “Then the Johnny Cash syndrome sets in.”

Cain said Johnny Cash wanted to be the man Johnny Cash wanted to be,” one who served three prison terms and lived in dire poverty as a child. Cash said, adding that Haggard “has refused to be pigeonholed.”

Singer Merle Haggard “is the man Johnny Cash always wanted to be,” Cain said.

Haggard has refused to be pigeonholed.

Haggard has not worked to create an image of himself other that what he is, he said.

Cain said the growth in popularity of country music as a “natural, real, vital alternative” to the Top 40 was welcome.

Demonstration herb garden project blooms behind Agriculture Building

Two SIU plant and soil science students are establishing a special demonstration garden of herb plants on a lawn behind the Agriculture Building.

Working on the project are graduate student Judah "Woody" Paut, a M.A. graduate of Oberlin College (Ohio), and Roger Freiberg, a senior in plant and soil science.

The garden at present contains plantings of about 40 different herbs gathered from friends and suppliers in three states. Plant said, if it features a deep mulch planting system for minimum care and good growing medium. Stones arranged in an English garden design provide paths for visitors. The students expect to add other varieties of herbs.

Buffalo owner divulges intended franchise sale

RYANNEYS, Mass. AP-Paul Snyder, owner of theBuffalo Braves of the American Basketball Association, said Tuesday that he has received several offers to purchase his team, which is expected to be sold for between $20 million and $40 million.

Snyder said he is considering several offers from professional investors, including a group of wealthy executives from New York and New Jersey.

The Braves, however, have not yet announced any decision on the sale of the team.

Snyder said he would like to see the team remain in Buffalo, where it has played since 1967.

The team, which is one of the oldest in the league, has a long history of success in the city, including a trip to the NBA Finals in 1976.

Snyder said he would like to see the Braves stay in Buffalo, but he is keeping his options open.

He said he would not rule out the possibility of selling the team, but he would like to see the team sold to someone who is committed to keeping it in the city.

The Braves have a loyal fan base in Buffalo, and Snyder said he would be willing to consider any offer that would allow the team to remain in the city.

Snyder said he is not interested in selling the team to a group that would move it to another city.

He said he would prefer to see the team remain in Buffalo, but he is open to the possibility of selling it to someone who is willing to keep it in the city.

Snyder said he would be willing to sell the team for a price that would allow the team to remain competitive and continue to attract fans.
