Senate gives final passage to Contra aid bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate late Monday night gave final passage to a bill containing $10 million in military aid for the anti-Sandinista guerrillas in Nicaragua.

The aid was approved as an amendment to a State Department operations bill that passed 80-17. The bill will be considered by the House, pending action on the Contras.

As related stories on Page 5.

The House turns to the issue Wednesday in a critical test of President Reagan’s policies toward the leftist Sandinista government. The Senate in April approved non-lethal aid for the estimated 15,000 veterans who have been fighting in Nicaragua.

The Senate voted 55-42 last Thursday for the Contra aid amendment to immediately release $14 million in assistance and $24 million in the federal budget.

The aid is for food, medicine, clothing, shelter, green helicopters and possible radar equipment. But the aid does not inflict death or serious body harm. It calls on the administration to keep the request for Contra aid on the administration’s agenda.

The Senate earlier rejected efforts to deny the CIA any role in distributing the aid and repealed a law that bars any U.S. assistance for any group for military operations in Nicaragua.

These two conditions are major objections of Democrats in the House, who also propose to largely confine assistance to food, medicine and clothing and only for unarmed fighters outside Nicaragua.

The Senate also approved a non-binding resolution calling on Japan to expand its defense responsibilities to defend seacoasts 1,000 miles beyond its shores by 1990. Sen. Richard Byrd, D-Va., said Japan had failed "to bear a fair share of the common defense burden" with the United States.

The Federal Highway Administration has authorized the City of Carbondale to construct a pedestrian overpass connecting the east side of campus, said Eldon Gosnell, director of the Railroad Relocation Project.

The overpass will be built on the south side of the SIUC campus over U.S. 51 and the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad tracks, replacing the Ho Chi Minh trail.

The overpass is part of the Railroad Relocation Project and is expected to cost about $2 million. The major phase of the project is to depress the ICG tracks passing through downtown Carbondale into a 30-foot deep trench.

Gosnell said construction of the overpass is necessary before track depression work begins because the present underground utility lines from SIUC will be situated along the overpass.

The west side of the overpass will begin near the University's Stream Plant, across from McAndrew Stadium. When crossing the highway and the railroad tracks, the overpass will branch into two legs. One leg will run north to Trueblood Hall while the south leg will extend to Logan Drive.

The overpass will be 28 feet wide and will be similar to the pedestrian overpass on the north side of campus, Gosnell said. The design of the overpass will include accommodations for bicycles, the handicapped and emergency vehicles.

Gosnell said final plans for the structure will be completed in about six weeks. He said the federal government's approval was a major step forward in the project, but the Illinois Department of Transportation, SIUC, the City Council and the Illinois Commerce Commission — the body that oversees the construction — also must approve the construction maintenance agreement.

"Anytime you cross a railroad with a structure you have to get permission from the Illinois Commerce Commission," he said. Gosnell said a decision on the overpass from the ICC will take about 90 days.

Preliminary plans for the overpass were presented to the SIU Board of Trustees last year. The board has granted the SIUC president the authority to approve plans for the Railroad Relocation Project that involve SIUC. Clarence "Doc" Daugherty, SIUC vice president for campus services, said he has sent a draft of the construction maintenance agreement back to the city with some changes, although he anticipates final approval of the project after the changes are made. "I think it (the overpass) will be a great asset to the city," he said.

"We're trying to schedule a bid letting in September," Gosnell said. He said construction could begin by next winter and is expected to take about one year.

The total rail relocation project will cost $76.2 million. It is expected to begin after the track depression and widening U.S. 51 on the north side of the city.

Six captives are released; hijackers take off again

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Hijackers holding 74 hostages aboard a Jordanian jettliner released six captives and the plane took off Tuesday from Beirut International Airport for an unknown destination. Tuesday the hijackers, firing submachine guns, seized the jettliner carrying 21 people, including two Americans, and forced the plane on a 12-hour flight around the Mediterranean before returning to Beirut.

Soviets call SALT II proposal publicity stunt

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union charged Tuesday that President Reagan’s proposal to abide by the SALT II arms treaty was a publicity stunt designed to conceal U.S. violations of the pact and said it could spark “an unchecked arms race.”

Ethiopia ‘monopolizing’ foreign famine aid

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — A U.N. official complained Tuesday that Ethiopia is “monopolizing” foreign aid for famine victims while a more severe drought in Sudan could kill at least 400,000 children this year. Samir Basla, the representative of the U.N. Children’s Fund in Khartoum, capital of Sudan, told reporters he has received only $4 million this year for the development program in Sudan compared to the $18 million given to UNICEF in Ethiopia.

Terrorist says Soviets ordered pope attack

ROME (UPI) — Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca, who shot Pope John Paul II in 1981, told a Rome court Tuesday that the Soviet Union ordered and financed the assassination attempt. Agca, a Soviet diplomat helped him plan the May 13, 1981, attack in St. Peter’s Square. It was the first time during the trial that Agca has charged the Soviets with directing and financing the shooting.

Japanese bombing victims ask Reagan’s help

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Japanese survivors of the atom bomb asked President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev Tuesday to commemorate the 60th anniversary of the bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki to help rid the world of nuclear weapons. A group of “hibakusha” — representing more than 350,000 Japanese who survived the bombings — also laid a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier to appeal for worldwide peace and nuclear disarmament.

Gandhi visits Washington to ‘get acquainted’

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi arrived in Washington Tuesday for a three-day state visit billed as an opportunity to improve U.S.-India ties, but a senior administration official said no “dramatic breakthrough” is expected. The official called Gandhi’s trip “basically a get-acquainted” visit and indicated that the United States arranged a whirlwind tour of official and social events for Gandhi to “maximize” contacts with President Reagan and high-ranking officials.

Senate panel endorses local right-to-know plan

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — A Senate panel endorsed a House-sponsored community right to know “bill” Tuesday that would require the state to notify local governments what toxic chemicals are present in their communities. The bill would require about 7,800 Illinois businesses to file annual reports with the state Environmental Protection Agency estimating the amount of each toxic chemical they store on site or emit into the air and water.

Cheerleading camp stresses fitness, safety

By Elizabeth Cochran
Staff Writer

Cheerleaders work as hard as the athletes they cheer on, says Brian Hurd, former Florida State University cheerleader, who is now the head instructor of a Universal Cheerleading Association camp.

"They are not just a bunch of girls jumping around. Their stunts require strength, flexibility, and coordination." Hurd, who has coached football and baseball on the high school level, said that he works his cheerleaders just as hard as he did other athletes.

The UCA is conducting a cheerleading camp session, with an enrollment of 300 girls at SIU-C this week.

During the 3-and-one-half-day session, the campers, ranging from junior high school to high school age, work from 8 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. with breaks for meals.

The sponsors of the squads are urged to start a program of exercise for their cheerleaders that will increase strength without decreasing flexibility.

Camp officials suggests that the sponsors purchase the Life Line Portable Gym to serve that purpose.

In addition to strength, flexibility, and coordination, cheerleaders must be aware of safety guidelines to prevent injuries.

"When they do their mounts, there are correct ways of constructing them so that the participants will not be injured." At all UCA camps, cheerleaders are taught to have their hands properly, and to have their mounts securely so that no one gets hurt.

The camp also recommends a particular brand of cheerleading shoes to prevent ankle injuries during stunts.

The two "wished to remain behind out of concern for personal business and the welfare of family members," a U.S. official said, adding they will be allowed to leave within two weeks if they choose. The others were overjoyed at their freedom, he said.

"When these individuals moved to the Western side of the Glienicke Bridge, they were very, very happy people indeed," a U.S. official said.

Most of the agents released by the Soviet side had been serving life terms in East German prisons for working for U.S. intelligence. Seventeen were Germans; the rest were unidentified Europeans.

U.S. officials said it took three years to arrange the swap with East Germany and that Moscow was only indirectly involved in the negotiations.

Spy exchange biggest in post-WW II Europe

BERLIN (UPI) — The United States traded four alleged East bloc spies Tuesday for 25 accused Western agents in a dramatic mid-afternoon spy swap on the same bridge where U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers was freed in 1962.

The East-West spy exchange — the biggest ever in post-World War II Europe — took place on Glienicke Bridge that links the American-occupied sector of West Berlin to East Germany.

Assistant Secretary of State Richard Burt, expected to be named ambassador to West Germany, looked on as 23 of the alleged Western spies walked across the bridge from East Germany and the four accused East bloc spies got out of a grey U.S. military van to cross the bridge in the other direction.

Tax reform plan should be equitable

REFORMATION OF THE TAX CODE IS AN IDEA that has come of age.
The current system — overcomplicated and laden with loopholes — has a glaring inequity in taxation rates and has not only burdened economic development, but also burdened society's underprivileged. Ronald Reagan's proposed tax reform plan has definite potential to be a step in the right direction, but that positive step cannot be taken until some deep wrinkles in the present tax structure are removed.

While the removal of federal income tax for individuals with an income level below the poverty line is an excellent move, the reduction of the upper-bracket tax rate from 56 percent to 35 percent is unacceptable. Remember, it was only in 1981 when Reagan pushed Congress to lower the upper tax bracket from 70 percent to 50 percent.

Reagan and his economic advisers say the tax rate reduction for the upper tax bracket taxpayers is intended to provide an incentive for economic development. That is, people will not have to worry about Uncle Sam taking all of their profits if they work hard and strike it rich. There is nothing inherently wrong with incentives for enterprise, but it also greatly distorts the distribution of the tax burden. The Reagan plan may save hundreds for those below the poverty line. But for those in the upper income bracket, it could save tens of thousands and even hundreds of thousands of dollars.

WHILE THE VERY RICH AND THE VERY POOR would receive some measurable break, it is middle America that would receive the smallest tax reduction and would thus shoulder the burden. This disparity in taxation is only one of the flaws in the Reagan tax plan. There are others, caused mainly by the pressure of special interest groups, and others are sure to arise. Congress, in reviewing and revising the plan, should not fail prey to the self-serving demands of special interest groups. It should work toward a plan that will maintain equity and thus encourage growth.

It is also important that the public, when judging the plan, keep in mind not just individual concerns, but the needs of the underprivileged and the unpowful as well. Their sacrifices are vital or break the national growth as well as the well-being of their poor and middle class. Let's hope Congress will not succumb to political demands and to the pressures of special interest groups, but will use this opportunity to reach for equity for all.

Coach choice illogical

It is not surprising that a former basketball coach who led his team to four championship games and returned with the state crown twice would have a present head high school basketball coach who reached for Champaign at least 21 times and either returned with the state crown or did not go at all.

But what is most astounding is that this is the natural growth as well as the well-being of his poor and middle class. Let's hope Congress will not succumb to political demands and to the pressures of special interest groups, but will use this opportunity to reach for equity for all.

Commitment to SIU-C, head basketball coach, was the primary consideration for the head basketball coaching position at SIU-C, then Hermann Williams should be in the running. Hermann Williams has proven his qualifications, his abilities and his capabilities as an outstanding coach right here at SIU-C. He is someone in from "up the road" or "halfway across the country" without a doubt considering Hermann Williams as a no-brainer. Too bad, Hermann — you should have a Jeff or maybe just walk it out.

Pro-choice supporters sacrifice privacy to speak out on abortion

Ellen Goodman

MAYBE IT was because she was pregnant in her clinic years ago, long before he'd turned anti-abortion. Maybe it was because she remembered what it was like to be a 23-year-old woman with a four-month-old son, and IUD that had perforated her uterus, and to be pregnant.

But when Ann Taylor saw a Bernard Nathanson's film, "The Silent Scream," she said to herself, "Why should a fetus be given a voice, even a scream, while the woman in whose body it resides has no voice at all?"

Later, when the pro-choice activists began their national campaign called "Abortion Rights: Silent No More," this Louisville, Ky., history professor decided to write down the story of her own abortion. At first, Professor Ellen thought she would sign the letter Jane Doe. "But then I thought, this is supposed to be a speak-out and it's not speaking out very loudly if I don't use my name."

"So, she began the process of organizing storytellers who are both single and married, pro-choice women who are leaders of their church and women who have absolutely no clout. She has asked other women to sign the letter. "I do not have to use my name," she said."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan’s push for aid to Nicaraguan rebels appears to be in trouble Tuesday as he will “pursue political, not military solutions in Central America” and not seek to overthrow the Sandinista government by force.

Moderates from both parties who backed the House-passed package of non-military aid for the Contra rebels said they stood a good chance of winning when the measure is taken up in the Senate. If it passes, Reagan’s written pledge not to use military forces will be in line with the Sandinistas’ military order.

Expected passage of the new bill and Reagan’s declarations represented a marked shift on both sides of the debate since the April vote that denied any aid to the rebels.

Earlier this year, Reagan said his aim was to have the Nicaraguan rebels’ “little green fatigues” gone from Central America after he left office.

But in a recent statement Tuesday with House members of both parties, Reagan gave his “strongest support” to the bipartisan proposal by Rep. David McCampbell, D-Okla., an opponent of aid in April.

“My administration is determined to pursue political, not military, solutions in Central America,” Reagan said in a letter to McCampbell. “Our policy for Nicaragua is simple: we support the Sandinistas of Nicaragua and all of Central America; to support the democratic center against the extremes of military force; to support the right and left, and to secure democracy and lasting peace through national dialogue and regional negotiations.

“We do not seek the military overthrow of the Sandinista government or to put in its place a government based on supporters of the old Somocan regime.

“The House bill Reagan supports would give $72 million in humanitarian aid to the Contra rebels through next March. The money could not be filtered through either the CIA or the Defense Department.

“The measure also urges Reagan to lift the economic embargo against Nicaragua and to end military maneuvers in Honduras if the Sandinistas begin a peace dialogue.

“A White House official said the president has “no problem” if the House passed Reagan’s plan. He said Congress could move ahead with the aid for Nicaragua.

“The Senate has approved $38 million in aid that could be used by the CIA over the next two years, and the administration has said it wants to keep the House restrictions in place, despite Reagan’s endorsement of the Senate.

“White House spokesman Larry Speakes said CIA control over the money is “the best and most efficient way to get it distributed.”

Ortega offers amnesty if Reagan stops rebel aid

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — President Daniel Ortega’s Nicaragua has offered a “conditional” amnesty if President Reagan stops supporting the Contra rebels, a Foreign Ministry official said yesterday.

The offer was rejected by the Reagan administration as “disloyal.”

Ortega’s offer was made in response to reports that Reagan had said “in the last week” that he would consider an amnesty offer from the Sandinistas.

Ortega said his government would accept the amnesty if the Contras stopped their “terrorist activities.”

The offer was an attempt to stop the Contras from engaging in guerrilla warfare.

The offer was also seen as a way to strengthen the Sandinista regime.

Deluxury, a rhythm and blues band from Chicago, will open the Sunset Concert series at 8 p.m. Thursday at Turley Park. The public has enjoyed the concerts every summer since 1979, when the program first began, Huebner said. "There was definitely a need for summer outdoor concerts," Rowe said. Park district and University representatives met in 1979 and decided to provide the community with summer entertainment, she said. The goal of Sunset Concerts was to provide people with a wide variety of music. "We wanted to have at least one type of music people would be interested in," she said. Michael Mason and his band will be playing jazz fusion July 11 at Turley Park. A trio of rock 'n' rollers -- Steve, Bob and Rich -- will entertain the crowd July 18 at Shryock with original music; and the New Arts Jazz Quintet, comprised of Buddy Rogers and four members from the Sunset Strip, will alternate each week between Turley Park and the steps of Shryock Auditorium.

Editor's note: Trudeau's Sinatra strip

FAIRWAY, Kan. (UP) -- A Utah newspaper executive said Tuesday he had canceled the "Doonesbury" comic strip because of a series which links Frank Sinatra to reputed mobsters. Several other newspapers have pulled the strip.

"I telephoned Universal Press Syndicate this morning and informed them they would be dropping the strip for cancellation," said Randy Hatch, managing editor of the Ogden (Utah) Standard-Examiner. Monday's "Doonesbury" featured Reagan praising Sinatra and then showed a photograph of Sinatra with members of the Gambino crime family, including informal Jimmy "The Weasel" Fratianne. Trudeau's "Doonesbury" included a photograph of Sinatra with Aniello Dellacore, described by Trudeau as an "alleged human,"charged "with the murder of Gambino family member Charley Cullinane. Sinatra issued a statement saying, "Garry Trudeau makes his living by his attempts at humor without regard to fairness or decency. I don't know if he has even made any effort on behalf of others or has done anything to help the less fortunate in this country or elsewhere. I am happy to have the president and the people of the United States judge us by our respective track records."

Several newspapers nationwide, including the Los Angeles Times, have yanked the week-long strip, which features Sinatra "doing it his way" with the mob. Lee Salem, executive director for the suburban Kansas City syndicate that distributes the strip, said Tuesday he was aware of nine or 10 newspapers that would not publish this week's strip, which is distributed to 65 newspapers.

The Dallas Times Herald said that, on the advice of an attorney, it would not run this week's strip. Instead the Times Herald ran an earlier controversial "Doonesbury" series on abortion. A number of other newspapers -- among them the Portland Oregonian, the Observer-Dispatch and Daily Press in Utica, N.Y., the Akron Beacon Journal and at least four other Ohio papers -- declined to publish this week's cartoon strip.

Regional artists to display work

The work of artists from Southern Illinois is featured in "Former Members and Contributors," an exhibit at the Associated Artists Gallery, 213 S. Illinois Ave, Carbondale. On display are pen and ink landscape studies by John Boyd: fiber works by Carolyn Dehoff; ballpoint pen drawings by Cleothes Hudson; tapestry weavings by Claribel McDaniels; kimono series work by Marilyn Bosson; batik and applique work by Millie Dunkel; hand-crafted furniture designs by Kyle Kinser; and Jane Lukench's notes on the Tuscan hills, done in pastels.

The exhibit ends June 29. The gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays. Admission is free.
Clinic space open at Eurna C. Hayes Center

Robert Stills, director of human resources

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) - Frenchman Patrick Baudry, scheduled for launch Monday aboard the shuttle Discovery, is a man who fits the right-stuff image of an astronaut better than many of his American counterparts.

He is a lieutenant colonel in the French air force, a devoted wine connoisseur, a race car driver, motorcycle enthusiast, mathematician and an accomplished jet pilot with more than 4,000 hours flying high-performance aircraft. He even trained as a backup crew member for a Soviet space mission.

I really love wine, you know, wine is really something. It's art and it's a human thing of people," Baudry said in an interview. "I have a cellar of something like 4,000 bottles, from California, from Texas, from the Soviet Union, from Australia, from France."

As for his more dangerous hobbies, like motorcycle racing, Baudry is understatingly reticent.

"When I race, I don't tell my administration that I am racing," he says with an accent and a smile. "I can tell you in the last two years I didn't race once. I've already broken so many bones I prefer to wait until after the flight." Baudry had been scheduled for launch aboard the shuttle Challenger in February, but that flight was delayed into March and ultimately canceled because of trouble with a satellite that was to have been carried into orbit.

The Frenchman then was bumped to the flight of Discovery where he will join Prince Sultan Salman Al-Saud and five NASA astronauts for a seven-day mission.

"I am very pleased to be in this crew," Baudry said during a pre-flight news conference. "I am particularly pleased to fly with my friend Sultan Al-Saud. It will be the first trip for both of us and I enjoy it very much."

Baudry will act as a research scientist, operating two French experiments designed to explore how the human body adapts to weightlessness.

Baudry, 38, spent two years in the Soviet Union at Star City near Moscow training as a backup crewman to a fellow Frenchman who flew aboard the Soviet Salyut 7 space station in 1982.

He dreams of the day Europe will have an operational manned space station. He favors participation in the American space station program, but not at the expense of a manned space program in Europe.

"I don't agree much in cooperation in your space station that would make us completely dependent on your space shuttle. If you decide for any reason political, military, "we don't want the Europeans going on space shuttle", what do we do? Nothing."

"For me, the right way to think about cooperation for Europe is to cooperate in the U.S. space station, and in parallel to build a manned spacecraft," Baudry said during his first U.S. news conference.

Baudry was born in Cameroon, Africa. He entered the French Air Force Academy after two years of advanced mathematics and received a master's degree in aeronautical engineering in 1978.

He then spent six years assigned to different French air bases before attending test pilot school in Britain under an exchange program. The French space agency selected Baudry and Jean-Louis Chrisrleten as astronauts in 1980.

The duo spent the next two years in the Soviet Union for flight training, with Chrisrleten staying the nod for the Salyut mission.
Woody Cafeteria makeover plans nearing completion

By Scott Freeman
Staff Writer

Allen Haake, the University's supervising architect, said Tuesday that he hopes to complete the final design for the renovation of Woody Hall Cafeteria in time to receive contractor's bids for Board of Trustee approval in July. Haake said he is hopeful that the project can be completed by the end of the year. The cafeteria is to become a recruitment center for prospective students and their parents. "We hope this new facility will impress parents into enrolling their children at SIUC," Haake said. The renovation is a part of a $290,000 budget, according to the Board of Trustees office.

The new facility will house offices for counselors and other personnel, a cantineen area, a director's office and a video lounge. Haake said. The video lounge will be used for presentations to orient prospective students and their parents to the SIUC campus. Although the facility will no longer house a cafeteria, the canteen area will have tables and vending machines, Haake said.

Woody Hall Cafeteria is open this summer. Summer hours are 7:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, said Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services.

The cafeteria will close for good at the end of the summer term. Construction is slated to begin on the New Student Recruitment Activities Center after fall registration at the end of the summer.

Discovery set to launch communications satellites

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Space agency engineers Tuesday cleared the shuttle Discovery for blastoff Monday on a flight to launch three communications satellites.

The traditional flight preparations included a scrub day before the scheduled launch for reasons which were not disclosed at 1 a.m. Saturday.

A NASA spokes woman said no outstanding problems remain and if all goes well, Discovery will take off on the shuttle's 16th mission at 6:33 a.m. Monday. Landing is scheduled for June 31 on a dry lake bed runway at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Touchdowns at the Kennedy Space Center's concrete runway have been ruled out until the shuttle's landing gear system can be modified to reduce the brake and tire damage that has marred virtually every mission. Discovery's flight marks the first to include crew members from three nations. Free NASA astronauts, a Frenchman and a prince from Saudi Arabia.

On board will be commander Daniel Brandenstein, co-pilot John Creighbon, John Fabian, Steven Nagel, Shannon Lucid, Patrick Baubry of France and Prince Sultan Saliman Al-Saud, a nephew of King Fahd of Saudi Arabia.

The crew is scheduled to arrive at the Florida spaceport Friday.

Launch preparations have proceeded smoothly on the pad. Discovery's payload bay doors were closed for flight Sunday and rocket fuel was loaded into storage tanks at the launch stand as workers wrapped up last-minute items.

The primary goal of the weeklong mission is the launch of three communications satellites owned by Mexico, the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the Arab Satellite Communications Organization.

Sources say it is possible that the mission could be delayed if the NASA launch director finds a technical problem that he cannot fix.

'USA for Africa' makes delivery

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (UPI) — Singer Harry Belafonte and the "USA for Africa" team — greeted by tears, cheers and a sudden rainstorm — arrived in Ethiopia Tuesday with their first delivery of relief supplies bought with profits from the hit single "We Are the World."

The chartered Flying Tiger Boeing 747 cargo jet touched down at Addis Ababa International Airport as part of a 13-day African odyssey through Kenya, Tanzania and Sudan. They returned to the United States on June 25.

Belafonte said the sale of more than 11 million "We Are the World" singles and albums meant hope for some 8 million famine victims in Ethiopia.

"This is the realization of a dream that we had only some months ago to make a meaningful contribution to solving some of the problems here," Krugen said.

"This is the realization of that moment for us. It is a very emotional one for us."

The positions of code enforcement director and personnel office positions filled

The positions of code enforcement director and personnel office positions have been filled by current members of the city staff.

Acting Code Enforcement Director of the City, Col. John M. Daniel was named director of the Code Enforcement Division. Assistant Railroad Relocation Director Jeff Doherty has been appointed personnel officer.

McDaniel has pledged to continue efforts to upgrade the city's rental housing by inspecting rental units every three years and issuing code compliance certificates. Emphasis will also be placed on correcting health, safety and appearance problems that put the city, such as removing trash and cutting tall grass.

Doherty has worked for the city since 1976.

Thompson OKs funding for facility to study livestock

Funds for the first two phases of a livestock teaching and research facility and for two other capital development projects at SIU-C have been released by Gov. James R. Thompson.

Almost $2 million in Illinois Capital Development Board funds will be used for the livestock teaching and research facility, roof replacements at five buildings, improvements to the fire alarm systems in 16 buildings and installation of a microfilm storage vault.

Building plans for the projects probably will be scheduled in late winter, with work to get under way next spring, said David F. Grobe, director of facilities planning at SIU.

The livestock facility would replace and update current facilities on the University Farm. A beef finishing unit, a swine housing unit and finishing floor new, poultry center building and a reproductive physiology research center will be built.

Education books highlight sale

Books dealing with education and psychology, will be featured at a Friends of Morris Library book sale July 11 and 12 at SIU-C.

Munic, West Germany (UPI) — The son of Josel Mengele said Tuesday his father died six years ago in Brazil, but that he kept silent to protect the people who hid the Nazi war criminal during the past 36 years.

Rolf Mengele, 41, a lawyer in Freiburg, said in a statement released in Munich he learned of the death of his father — a doctor at the Nazi concentration camp in Auschwitz, Poland — in 1973. He said he has no doubt the remains exhumed in Sao Paulo, Brazil, last Wednesday are those of his father.

The son said he confirmed the death Tuesday in a statement to the Frankfurter prospector's office, which has been hunting Mengele, the notorious "Angel of Death" who is wanted for complicity in the murder of 400,000 people, mostly Jews.

In a brief four-paragraph statement, the son said he went to Brazil in 1979 to confirm his father's death.

He said the Mengele family is ready to give any help it can to identify the body. He said he was sure that the forensic experts in Brazil now examining the body, which was buried under an assumed name, would confirm it as his father's.

The West German agency Deutsche Presse-Agentur reported the Mengele family will offer Brazil records of bone fractures, dental impressions and illnesses to help prove the identity of the remains.

The son ended his statement by saying, "My deepest sympathy goes to all his victims and their relations."

He did not elaborate but apparently meant the concentration camp inmates.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House and Senate budget negotiators began to talk Tuesday on how much to cut spending as the Gop leader Robert Dole suggested that President Reagan may have to take "some stage" in the budget talks to get the deficit — raising taxes — to significantly lower the deficit.

The first session of budget negotiations began calmly with the only overt discord coming over the Senate’s plan to scrap next year’s end-of-year living increase for Social Security recipients.

House Budget Committee Chairman William Gray, D-Pa., struck by the House majority’s staunch refusal to touch the program, but Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said he hoped the House Democrats would not take that "moment of grace" out of the table, especially taking it off with some kind of ultimatum that unless it’s off we can’t get a budget.

Both the House and Senate budget documents cut about $56 billion from the more than $200 billion deficit in fiscal 1986 but the Senate’s does more over three years — cutting $296 billion. The House would trim $228 billion in the 1986-1988 period.

The Senate’s larger cuts come mostly from eliminating popular federal programs that the House preserved and scrapping the scheduled cost-of-living increases for Social Security and other recipients of federal checks.

Dole, R-Kan., told reporters that if he can get the House to go along with the Senate’s budget cuts, and perhaps get a few more, it may be time to ask the president for a tax increase.

"I think we have to see if the House is serious about cutting spending," Dole told reporters. "I’m still convinced they can go above our level."

"If we do that, then this half will again as much package as if we can get to the president and put together a package that does the job," Chiles said.
Veterans lose extra-credit class benefits

By Justice Weathersby Jr.
Staff Writer

The Illinois Department of Veterans Affairs will no longer pay for extra credit hours for recipients of the Illinois Veterans Education and the MIA-POW Scholarship.

Perry Murray, coordinator of the Office of Veterans Affairs on campus, said the department announced the policy change effectively immediately.

Murray said about 120 veterans and veterans' dependents at SIUC will be affected by the new policy.

The IVS and the MIA-POW scholarships cover the cost of tuition and in some cases also pay the activity fee.

The scholarships allow for the use of 120 points that are applied toward the number of credit hours a student registers for. Each point is equivalent to one credit hour.

“Previously, usage of both scholarships could exceed 120 points if a student had at least one point of remaining entitlement at the beginning of a term,” Murray said.

Veterans receiving the IVS and dependents receiving the MIA-POW scholarship who had at least one remaining entitlement at the beginning of semester were allowed payment to cover tuition for 12 credit hours.

However, because of the administrative policy change, Murray said the IVS no longer pays in excess of 120 points. He said the student will be required to pay for the number of credit hours that exceed the 120-point scholarship limit.

For example, Murray said those students who have used 117 points prior to the current semester and are registered for six credit hours will be responsible for payment for the three hours over the 120-point limit.

Murray said although IVS points remaining won’t see any immediate billing changes on their bursar statements of account but students who don’t use all the credits have may see any potential billing changes on their statements.

Murray said the new policy is effective for the current semester, but is not retroactive and will not affect students who used the scholarships during previous semesters.

Berle doing well after heart surgery

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Milton Berle was reported recovering quickly from quadruple heart bypass surgery, his condition was being upgraded Tuesday to fair later in the day, a hospital spokesman said.

“Uncle Miltie,” as he was known to millions of television fans in the late 1940s and early 1950s, underwent a quadruple bypass at the University of Chicago Medical Center in “serious but stable” condition and “doing absolutely splendidly,” said spokesman Ron Wise.

The 76-year-old actor-comedian checked himself into Cedars-Sinai Medical Center last week and underwent four hours of surgery Monday.

“His condition will probably be upgraded to fair later in the day,” Wise said. “Everything seems quite positive. He’s been very good throughout the whole procedure and he’s been a great guy out of bed today.”

“He is doing very, very well.”

Berle went into surgery about noon Monday and the operation to repair four blockages in major arteries leading to the heart ended about 4 p.m.

“The surgery went very well. The prognosis is excellent. He came through it very well.” For the first 24 hours, patients usually are listed as in serious condition, Wise said.

Wise said Berle’s wife and son were with him all week and were “very, very positive” about the operation.

Microcomputer lab to be opened

SIU-C President Albert Somit will press at the ribbon-cutting ceremony the opening of a new microcomputer laboratory in Faner Hall at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

The new laboratory will add 75 terminals and 64 microcomputers to the Faner Hall computer facility. The facility currently has 33 terminals with access to the university’s mainframe computer.

The microcomputers are independent computers that can be individually serviced.

Leo Y. Min, director of the Office of Computing Affairs, said the microcomputers are particularly useful for design, graphics, word processing and animation.

Salt Lake City makes Olympic bid

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Salt Lake Winter Games organizing committee has adopted a statement from Mormon pioneer leader Brigham Young, opposing the holding of the Winter Olympics in Salt Lake City.

When Young came through the Wasatch Mountains into the Salt Lake Valley in 1847, legend has it he told his followers the time had come to build the city that was to host the Winter Olympics.

And the committee will tell the USOC Salt Lake City is the proper place to hold the games.

The Salt Lake City committee, in a statement to the USOC, said it was confident of its ability to host the Games.

The USOC said it would announce the sites later this week.

Wilson called Salt Lake City the "perfect place to host a Winter Olympics. If we had designed a city to host the winter olympics, we couldn't have done a better job."

Wilson said Salt Lake City's bid will be based on the "Olympic ideals" of amateur competition and brotherhood and on giving Utah's aspiring athletes "a chance to see the best there is in the world."

And Wilson said the delegation, dressed in red-and-white striped ties and blue blazers, will claim hosting the games will give Utah "a legacy of sports for generations to come."

The committee has predicted it could make a profit of $31 million in hosting the 1992 Winter Games. The money would be turned over to the city and state to fund sports, recreation and related programs, and most of the competition sites would be maintained through a separate $30 million endowment fund for the training of future Olympic athletes.

East St. Louis proposes four sites for Cardinal grid stadium

EAST ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A group of business, labor and government leaders in southwest Illinois have proposed four sites for a new St. Louis Cardinals football stadium.

The Southern Illinois Leadership Council, a group set up to encourage investment in the region, has been studying the idea for $100 million stadium complex.

The four sites are near East St. Louis across the Mississippi River from St. Louis.

McDaniel interested in playing for Seattle

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Seattle SuperSonics have not made a commitment to drafting Xavier McDaniel June 10, but the Wichita State forward says he be happy if they did.

McDaniel, who last season became the first major college player in history to lead his team in scoring and rebounding, came away from a Monday morning meeting with the Sonics General Manager Lenny Wilkens saying he enjoyed the upcoming draft.

"I'm just happy to be considered among the top five players in the draft," said McDaniel, who averaged 31.2 points and 14.1 rebounds per game last season.

McDaniel said Wilkens didn't tell him the Sonics would select him with their first pick in the draft; the fourth selection overall, but he said he thought he would enjoy playing for Seattle.

"I want to play for anybody who drafts me," he said. "I think I can adjust to Seattle pretty well."

New York is expected to make Georgetown center Patrick Ewing the No. 1 selection in this year's draft.

FORWARD WAYMAN Tisdale of Oklahoma and Creighton center Kent Benson are expected to go with the second and third picks by Indiana and the Los Angeles Clippers.

Seattle is said to be strongly considering McDaniel, forward Dellet Shermeph of Washington and Southern Methodist University center Jon Koncak.

Wichita State Coach Gene Smithson said McDaniel will make an impact on the NBA.

"He's the most talented basketball player I have ever coached," Smithson said. "That includes people like Antoine Carr and Cliff Levington (both now with Atlanta), Jeff Wilkins (Utah) and Orell Jones (San Antonio)."

Several intramural sports to be offered in summer
By Steve Merritt Staff Writer

Are you the athletic type, a jock or an arm-chair coach? Does your life seem unfulfilled or incomplete without the thrill of victory or the agony of defeat?

If the answer to any of the above questions is yes, then the Student Recreation Center could be the place for you this summer. The Office of Intramural Recreational Sports is offering a full lineup of summer events and activities for those currently enrolled in summer session.

Bill McMinn, coordinator of intramural sports, said that 18 different sporting events will be offered, most being broken down into separate classes for men, women and mixed divisions.

Following is a list of scheduled events with entry deadlines with all entries being due at 9 p.m. at Student Recreation Center Information desk unless otherwise noted:

12-inch and 16-inch softball, June 17 and June 24; 3-on-3 basketball, June 17 and June 24; tennis singles, June 18 and June 24, badminton singles, June 19 and June 24; coed ultimate flying disc, June 24 and July 1; co-rec 6-on-6 volleyball, June 24 and July 1; raquetball singles, June 25 and July 1; tennis doubles, July 2 and July 8; table tennis singles, July 6 and July 9; 18-hole golf tourney, July 8 at noon and July 9; raquetball doubles, July 9 and July 13; badminton doubles, July 10 and July 15; disc golf tourney, July 18 at 4 p.m. (tournament at same time): raquetball mixed doubles, July 16 and July 22; tennis mixed doubles, July 16 and July 22; badminton mixed doubles, July 17 and July 25; and 2-man cane race, July 29 at 5:30 p.m. with races at 4 p.m.

"I'm filling good, I'm getting better every year," said McGee, the former National League player of the week for his torrid performance at the plate against the New York Mets last week.

The 26-year-old Californian went 15-for-27 — a scorching .556 average, drove in six runs and scored four others. He also stole four bases.

McGee just doesn't expect to hit like that forever, however.

"I know the slump is going to come around," said McGee. But he does expect to keep improving dramatically from his first three seasons, when he batted .296, .286 and .291.

McGee is off to the best start of his career. Through the first 55 games of the year, the switch-hitter batted .360—.384 from the left and .311 from the right. He also had 27 RBIs and 25 stolen bases while committing only four errors.

As a result of the work and last year's experience, McGee says he feels like a new man at the plate.

"I'm not swinging at bad pitches anymore. I'm hitting the pitches I'm supposed to hit. I'm more disciplined at the plate. I'm waiting for my pitches instead of swinging at the bad ones."

Despite outstanding start, McGee says he'll improve

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Though most major league outfielders would give anything to play the way Willie McGee has since he came up in 1982, the Los Angeles Cardinals center-fielder says he is nowhere near his peak.

"I feel right now I'm getting better every year," said McGee, the former National League player of the week for his torrid performance at the plate against the New York Mets last week.

The 26-year-old Californian went 15-for-27 — a scorching .556 average, drove in six runs and scored four others. He also stole four bases.

Dan Zubic delivered a pitch during an intramural softball game last fall. Softball will be offered again in the summer.

Gretzky receives fourth Pearson

TORONTO (UPI) — Wayne Gretzky broke another record Tuesday by winning the Lester B. Pearson Award for the fourth time in a row, the National Hockey League Players' Association announced. The outstanding player in awarding Gretzky the trophy named for a former Canadian prime minister.

"Wayne has won the Pearson trophy four years in succession," said Alan Eagleson, the association's executive director. "It shows the respect his peers have for him.

About 85 percent of the players' votes went to Gretzky, who scored 73 goals and 135 assists for 208 points in 80 games this year, said Sam Simpson, association director, of operations.

In winning the award for the fourth straight year, Gretzky surpassed Guy Lafleur, who won the Pearson trophy three years in a row, 1977-79, Simpson said.

The first Pearson award was given in 1976-77 to Phil Esposito of the Boston Bruins.

The association did not provide a breakdown of votes.
DeNoon signs throwing specialists

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

Audra Colson and Shelly Wickman, a pair of throwing specialists, are expected to team with redshirt freshman Rhonda Colson to provide SIU-C with what DeNoon says will be one of the top throwing trios in the nation.

“There’s not a meet in the country where I would be afraid to take our throwers next year,” DeNoon said. “Most schools have a maximum of one outstanding thrower or two fairly good throwers. I don’t think any school has a trio this good.”

Colson, who hails from Tinton Falls, N.J., recently won the shot put, discus and javelin events at the Penn Relays, a major meet which attracts some of the top athletes from the East Coast.

DeNoon said Colson is the defending New Jersey high school champion in all three throwing events. Her best performance this season was 156 feet in the javelin, 140 feet in the discus and 8 feet in the shot put.

Colson was ranked among the top ten nationally in javelin among high school students by Track and Field News. Her personal best of 136 feet in the event is 6 feet better than the SIU-C record set by Sue Viscione in 1977. It is also 6 feet under the NCAA qualifying standard.

“In Audra, we’re talking about someone who could meet the NCAA qualifying standard this year before he sets foot on campus next fall,” DeNoon said. “She is a potential NCAA qualifier in indoor and outdoor track for four years.

Colson chose SIU-C over Indiana, Rutgers and Louisiana State among others. She plans to major in athletic training.

Wickman, who lives in Milwaukee, was the Wisconsin private school champion in shot put this year. Her personal bests include a 41-foot, 1 inch throw in the shot put and a 120-foot, 8 inch throw in the discus. Wickman will compete in all three throwing events at SIU-C.

Wickman has never competed in javelin, but Saluki assistant coach John Smith said she should have no problem adjusting to the event.

“Rhonda (McCausland) had never thrown javelin before she came to SIU but she developed into the best in the country,” Smith said. “The key is both Shelly and Rhonda have a good background in softball. A person who can throw a softball well can t-throw aelin well.”

Wickman, an undecided major, selected SIU-C over Wisconsin, Iowa and Louisiana State among others.

DeNoon said the addition of Colson and Wickman should help the Salukis in the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference standings next season. The Salukis finished fourth in the GCAC this year.

“There’s no doubt in my mind that we will win all three throwing events at the conference meet next year,” he said. “Needless to say, that would be a very firm foundation for a conference championship.”

Vogel adds all-around strength with recruits

Herb Vogel, SIU-C women’s gymnastics coach, has announced the signing of two high school recruits who will compete for the Salukis next fall.

Vogel has landed Cheri Crosby, who attended Northeast High School in Lincoln, Neb., and Rhonda Colson, who attended Curtis High School in Staten Island, N.Y.

Crosby was the runner-up in the all-around competition at the 1980 United States Gymnastics Federation Region III Championships. Crosby has also received specialized instruction at the Nebraska School of Gymnastics, where she was coached by Peggy McCune and Marybeth Pecor.

Romero’s high school didn’t have a gymnastics team, but she competed as an independent gymnast and was coached by Mark and Ann Marie Hendrickson. She has competed in several New York city, state and regional meets.

“Cheri and Dawn are both capable all-around gymnasts,” Vogel said. “Their skill level as entering equals with that of Michelle Spellman and Lori Steele when they came to SIU.” Spellman and Steele were the top all-arounders on this year’s Saluki team.

Vogel said he considers Crosby to be his prize recruit of the season. Crosby chose SIU-C over national powers Alabama and Penn State, as well as Auburn, Colorado, Indiana and Northern Illinois.

Romero chose SIU-C over West Virginia, Temple, Rutgers, Pittsburgh and New Hampshire.

Vogel expects both recruits to contribute immediately next season. The pair will team with returning seniors Spellman, Jennifer Moore and Gina Rew to provide SIU-C with a capable front line of four-event gymnasts.

Vogel said the duo should strengthen a team that failed to qualify for the Regionals for the first time in Vogel’s 22 years at SIU. Vogel’s team have captured 10 national championships during that span.

Injuries last year forced us into some lineups where some specialists were having to compete in all-around. - Vogel said. “With Cheri and Dawn, we will have quality all-around depth.”

Cooper returns to old form

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Not only is Cecil Cooper back, he says he’s going home left.

Going into Tuesday night’s game against the Boston Red Sox, Cooper was tied for second among American League first basemen with 233 batting average. Last season he hit .275.

That’s a decent year for Howard says there is no question he was sub-standard. “I’ve had a lot of seasons. There are some seasons that you look back on and say why?”

Everybody said he had an off year last year. Well, he hit 275 and drove in 67 runs. By virtue of his two complete game victories, for the weekly league honor.

Cooper returns to old form

Cooper says he never had a season he thought we couldn’t come back (against Toronto on Saturday and Sunday) like we did.”, said Gibson, who contributed to the Tigers’ series split with a first-inning three-run home run Saturday and a two-run triple that put Sunday’s game away. “This team showed a lot of character,” he said. “It’s tough. Those of you who were here are going to be a part of it.”

For Detroit to be in it, Gibson will have to play a vital part. The big horse of the Tigers hit .360 (4-for-11), with three doubles, a triple, three home runs and 12 RBI for the June 19 week. He had a .392 slugging percentage and .484 on-base average.

Gibson edged Boston’s Dennis Boyd, who included a shutout in his two complete game victories, for the weekly league honor.

It was an up-and-down week for me,” Gibson said. “But I do have some exceptional games. I was happy to be a part of it.”

The week feels real good about things now,” he said. “We would have liked to have won two more in Toronto — but I’m sure they would have liked to have won two more, too. I’m real happy we’re back.”

Gibson’s week, plus his hit for-3 Monday, lifted his season’s average to .276. He has 10 home runs and a team-leading 39 RBI.

Cooper’s week, plus his hit for-3 Monday, lifted his season’s average to .276. He has 10 home runs and a team-leading 39 RBI.

“Maybe we won’t win it, but I think we’ll be in it,” he said. “I think several teams are going to be in it.”

Men's track team loses 3 sprinters

By Mike Frey

Sports Editor

When Bill Cornell inherited the reins of the SIU-C men's track and field team at the beginning of last season, he was faced with huge rebuilding tasks.

Cornell replaced Lew Hartzog as coach after Hartzog had directed 24 years with the Saluki mentor. Hartzog's last team finished fifth nationally, and he was named the National Track Coach of the Year in his final season.

Fifteen seniors left with Hartzog, and Cornell filled the void by bringing in 16 freshmen for this season. Cornell's young team is still trying to find its legs, losing the Missouri Valley indoor and outdoor track championships for the first time since SIUC joined the league in 1966. The future looked bright, however, as the team made steady improvements throughout the season.

A dark cloud may have been cast over the future recently when Cornell learned that three of his top freshman sprinters — Steve Breathett, Eric Gray and Victor Dubois — will be academically ineligible to compete next season.

With the graduation of world-class sprinter Michael Franks and Mark Hill, also sprinters, Cornell is left with one sprinter from this year's team — Connor Mason. Philippe Martin, a junior college transfer who was redshirted last year, is expected to return, but that won't be enough to replace the void created by the loss of five sprinters.

"We're in the recruiting race right now and need to get some sprinters," Cornell said. "We're awaiting word from several recruits right now."

Cornell has recruited only two athletes thus far, but neither are sprinters.

The loss of Breathett will likely hurt the Salukis the most next year. Breathett, a native of Kankakee who Cornell said was the whip of his first recruiting class, was being groomed by Mike Franks as SIUC's top scorer.

Breathett was not only an outstanding sprinter, he also served as the Salukis' best long jumper. Her recorded a team-best distance of 24 feet, 4.75 inches in the event this year.

Breathett had times of 10.54 in the 100-meter dash and 21.64 in the 200-meter dash, second best on the team behind Franks. His fastest time in the 400-meter dash was 48.28, third best behind Franks and Hill.

Breathett and Gray, another Kankakee native, teamed with Franks and Hill to give the Salukos a conference championship in the 4 x 400-meter relay. The quartet's best time was 3:06.06.

Gray also had times of 22.24 in the 200-meter dash and 48.34 in the 400-meter dash.

Dubois came to SIUC as a walk-on from Wayzata, Minn., he had the team's third best time in the 200 with a 10.75 and had a time of 21.86 in the 200-meter dash. Dubois also joined Breathett on the Salukis' 400- and 800-meter relay teams.

European attempt to curb soccer violence

AMSTERDAM, Holland (UPI) — European sports editors Tuesday warned of a tough new regime of measures to curb crowd violence at new stadiums throughout the continent to avoidлагообразные фанаты, which could escalate to prohibitory levels. The measures include a ban on sale of alcohol, restriction ticket sales and introduction of new security measures.

Ministers and senior officials from seven European countries called for a convention to establish legally-binding rules.

The meeting, initiated by Dutch sports minister Joop van den Hoogen, followed a riot in Brussels May 25 when 38 fans were killed and more than 450 injured at the European Champions Cup final between Liverpool of England and Juventus of Italy.

"International cooperation, and more particularly European cooperation, is essential both at government and footballing levels," British sports minister Neil Macfarlane told the meeting.

"We must have firm rules and guidelines on the precautions and actions which all concerned must take," he said.

Macfarlane was careful to apologize on behalf of Britain for the way its fans behaved at the Brussels match.

"Those who took part in the violence bear a terrible personal responsibility. On behalf of Her Majesty's government and myself, I want to reiterate to our compatriots here today our condolences and sympathy for the bereaved and injured," Macfarlane said.

Gaetano Adinolfi of Italy said the new convention should adopt measures to ensure careful pre-match planning.

NHL, Ralston go to court

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Ralston Purina Co. violated the rules of the popular National Hockey League by trying to sell the St. Louis Blues to Canadian investors who did not have the financial backing to support the team, a lawyer said Tuesday.

Herbert Dym, an attorney for the NHL, told a federal court jury Ralston executives were concerned only with "making a profit" when the company tried to sell the hockey franchise in 1982 to a group of investors from Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, for $11.5 million.

Dym made the comments during opening remarks in a lawsuit filed by Ralston Purina against the NHL. Ralston wants $12 million in actual damages and the rest in punitive damages.

The company claims the league illegally rejected Ralston's plan to sell the team to the investors. Since then, the NHL has sold the team to Harry Ornest, who kept the Blues in St. Louis.

The NHL has filed a $75 million countersuit against Ralston, saying Ralston put pressure on the league to move the team to Saskatoon.

The suit also claims Ralston took four proposals from investors interested in keeping the team in St. Louis and falsified information in an effort to make the Saskatoon deal seem more attractive to the league.

Dym asked the six-member federal jury to consider awarding "upwards of $6 million in actual damages" to the NHL for the "large sums" of money the league lost by Ralston's "bad mouthing" of St. Louis as a "hockey town" and the sport itself.

"I want everybody to raise their hand who participated in the trial that court observers say could last two months," Dym said. "The NHL would show that a hockey franchise could make a profit in St. Louis, despite claims by Ralston that it was losing money.

"A well-run hockey team can operate in the city," Dym said. "The league didn't want a team in Saskatchewan."

In addition to those being no stadium in Saskatchewan, Dym said, the league concluded that a hockey franchise could not operate profitably in a town of 100,000 residents.

Lakers honored by fans

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More than 35,000 people yesterday most ever to line a Los Angeles parade route to honor a champion basketball sports team flooded downtown streets Tuesday for a raucous ceremony saluting the National Basketball Association champion Lakers.

However, the celebration was tempered by unruly behavior that had to be cut short as many people lugged forward to catch a glimpse of the champions. The parade was most ever to line a Los Angeles parade route to honor a champion basketball sports team. It was also the largest street festival in Los Angeles history.

Sixteen people required medical attention — the most seriously, a woman who was trampled in a wall of fans. A 16-year-old youth fell to a tree and suffered possible neck and spinal injuries.

Chlad in gold T-shirts, the Lakers players, elated after their victory ride down Broadway, waved and smiled as the fans cheered and raised their hands in elation. "We're number one," they sang.

At the rally, Magic Johnson put on a show for the screaming fans at the noon-hour ceremony.

"Did you have fun Sunday?" Johnson screamed as he danced in cadence with the chanting Onlookers.

"I want everybody to raise their hand who partied Sunday," he yelled, referring to the fans who were the defending champion Boston Celtics that clinched the title.

MVP Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said the fans were partly responsible for the successful season.

"We know how much it meant to you, it meant as much to us," he said. "From us to you, thank you."
