By Nola Crowest
Staff Writer

It was a silver anniversary celebration Tuesday for the Student Center, which was originally dedicated June 10, 1961.

The rededication at the fountain court was attended by about 120 people, including President Albert Somit and Dorothy Morris, wife of former President Delyte Morris. During Morris' term as president, the 375,000-square-foot facility was planned and constructed.

Six million people use the Student Center and 8,000 events take place annually at the building, said John Corker, director of the Student Center. He said this reaffirms Morris' belief that the Student Center should be the crossroads of the campus.

The Student Center was designed to be built in stages, Somit said, adding that he is confident the building will be complete by its 50th anniversary. Work is presently underway to remodel the fourth floor to include the student-run cable radio station WIDB.

Somit also said that the Student Center was extraordinary when it was built, and is probably unsurpassed even now. The Student Center is the largest student union without hotel facilities in the nation. He called the building one of the most important on campus, second only to Morris Library.

Dorothy Morris shared reminiscences of the University and the Student Center, saying that when her husband assumed the SIU-C presidency in 1948, the University was a teachers' college with fewer than 3,000 students.

She said that until 1949, the only gathering place for students was Carter's Cafe, which was at the corner of Grand and University avenues. University officials started pushing for another place for students to congregate, so a facility behind Carter's Cafe was used.

When the Korean War ended in 1953, the University obtained 18 barracks from Camp Ellis, two of which were used for student activities until the Student Center opened in 1961.

Morris and Michael Zurek, chairman of the Student Center Board, cut a ribbon at the end of the rededication ceremony. The festivities moved to a reception in the Gallery Lounge, where a large cake shaped and decorated to resemble the Student Center was served.

Clarence Dougherty, vice president for Campus Services and the first director of the Student Center, said, "The Center is much more than a building. It is so many memories, so many events and so many people."

Corker added that the building takes on the personality of the population that uses it, saying the Student Center would have to continue to change to exist. Quality and stability of excellence is important, he said.

One important aspect of the building, Corker said, is that it is a place where students find a place to belong.

Gus says you could have had a piece of the cake of the Student Center—not exactly the same as a piece of the rock.

John W. Corker, Student Center director, and Campus Services, cut the cake shaped like C.G. "Doc" Dougherty, vice president of the Student Center.

New chancellor receives high marks from committee

By Catherine Edman
Staff Writer

The Board of Trustees' final choice for a new SIU System chancellor, Lawrence K. Pettit, has received approval not only from the trustees but also from the people involved in the interview process.

"He has a terribly good perception of where Southern is and where it should be going," said Harris Rowe, board chairman. "All the trustees agreed on him."

Currently the University System of South Texas chancellor, Pettit intends to assume his responsibilities July 1. He replaces Kenneth Shaw, who left the University earlier this year to become president of the University of Wisconsin system.

Rowe said Pettit has the "breadth of knowledge" needed to be chancellor.

Pettit has served as chancellor for two university systems and was involved in national education committees. His experience with politics stems from those positions and from his involvement in the political arena.

The 1980 candidate for U.S. Representative from Montana's 2nd District, Pettit also has managed an election campaign for a Montana governor and then served as his administrative assistant.

The trustees were impressed by Pettit's knowledge of how a university system operates as opposed to a college, Rowe said. Crucial to their decision, he added, was also his lobbying experience at the state and national level.

"He has served in Washington, D.C., and seen the working of Congress lobbying and also (lobbying) in Montana, which was very important," Rowe said.

Board member William Norwood said that Pettit was the best all-around chancellor candidate. The other trustees were unable to be reached for comments.

A 10-member committee composed of five staff, faculty and student representatives from SIU-C and SIU-E helped with the interviewing process.

John Meisel, leader of the constituent group, said that

Union officials say ruling change to affect SIU

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

A reversal of a ruling in a Board of Regents collective bargaining case will have an influence in the case for bargaining at SIU, say local union officials and organizers.

In a 2-1 vote May 30, the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Board voted to overturn a recommendation by hearing officer Judith Janssen last year that department chairs be excluded from proposed bargaining units at Northern Illinois and Illinois State universities.

The third school in the Board of Regents system, Sangamon State University, does not have department chairs.

The labor board, however, decided to uphold Janssen's recommendation that the three Board of Regents schools should be represented on a separate campus basis and that faculty and professional staff should not be included in the same unit because of a separate community of interests.

"It's a landmark decision," said Charles Zucker, representative of the National Education Association. "It sets a strong precedent that

Senator, ex-NASA official dispute blame

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress opened its own investigation of the Challenger disaster Tuesday and Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said he believed former NASA rocket official Lawrence Mulloy was guilty of "willful gross negligence" for his role in the accident.

"Let's be blunt about it," Hollings said at a Senate Commerce space subcommittee hearing. "I think his conduct was willful gross negligence."

But William Rogers, the former attorney general who headed the commission that investigated the accident, said he saw no evidence of gross negligence or basis for criminal prosecution as a result of the shuttle disaster.

"I have reservations from a standpoint of a prosecutor whether you'd ever have a successful prosecution of anybody," Rogers told Hollings. "You might be able to proceed but I doubt it. I don't think there's enough willfulness there.

"Secondly, I doubt that it would serve the national interest. I don't see what's to be gained by it. I mean everybody is on notice. People involved have suffered a lot.

"And I think it's a fault of a system. It's a failed system. And I'm not sure picking out any scapegoat and prosecuting would serve the national interest. I hope it doesn't happen."

Mulloy was chief of the solid rocket booster program at NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center when Challenger was launched. The Rogers Commission said Mulloy imposed launch restrictions because of booster rocket concerns and then removed them on every shuttle flight since last July, including the Challenger mission, without informing higher levels of NASA management.

Panel says Live Aid funds misused, leading to deaths

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Ethiopian government is misusing Live Aid proceeds and other Western relief money to fund a massive resettlement program leading to the deaths of thousands of people, a panel of African relief workers charged Tuesday. "These institutions make themselves accomplices of a genocide. The magnitude of the famine and human rights violations in Ethiopia can only be compared to the Khmer Rouge," said Dr. Rony Brauman, president of the French medical relief group Medecins San Frontiers.

Americans urge Israel to scrap Lavi project

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Members of Israel's parliament said Tuesday that U.S. officials are urging Israel to purchase advanced American jets and scrap its multi-billion dollar project to build a new fighter plane. Chief of Staff Moshe Levy, however, reaffirmed his commitment to the Lavi jet fighter project, which has been on the drawing boards for more than six years. He said in a speech that production of the Lavi can provide Israel with the "adequate response" to threats on future battlefields.

Rebels attack Angola economic mainstay

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — U.S.-backed Angolan guerrillas, fulfilling a threat made in Washington, attacked key Marxist government buildings in the capital of Angola's vital oil-producing Cabinda enclave, rebel and government sources reported Tuesday. However, there were conflicting reports on the extent of damage and casualties from the Monday pre-dawn attack by rebels in the Atlantic Coast city of Cabinda, where more than 200 foreign technicians — including 100 Americans — work in U.S. Chevron-Gulf offshore oil fields.

Poll shows AT&T losing $60 million daily

WASHINGTON (UPI) — AT&T's striking union released an independent poll Tuesday showing long-distance operator service crumbling amid daily losses of $60 million and demanded the company "get serious" in contract bargaining. James Irvine, a Communications Workers of America vice president and member of the striking union's negotiating team, said the phone survey conducted last week confirmed CWA reports on American Telephone & Telegraph Co. service.

Utilities say acid rain controls have pros, cons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Acid rain control bills pending before Congress would force utilities to reduce emissions by using inefficient pollution control devices and forgo development of promising new technologies, utility officials said Tuesday. The result, industry spokesmen told a Senate panel, would be the worst of all worlds — huge expenditures for devices that would provide limited environmental benefits and "rate shock" for consumers.

High radiation level noted in Finnish port

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — Finnish authorities Tuesday sought an explanation for unusually high radiation levels measured in a city 20 miles from a nuclear power plant near the Soviet border. Officials of the Finnish Radiation Safety Institute said that three radiation peaks, including one at 1,200 microroentgens per hour, were registered Monday night in the air in the port of Koika, 40 miles west of the Soviet border.

Lawyers to consolidate suits against airline

PADUCAH, Ky. (UPI) — Sixty-one lawyers representing the families of 248 U.S. soldiers killed in a plane crash in Newfoundland met with a federal judge Tuesday to consolidate some $80 million in damage suits against Arrow Air. Attorney Melvin Belli, who is representing 16 of the 77 plaintiffs, said the attorneys from around the nation met for three hours with U.S. District Judge Edward Johnstone in the first formal pretrial hearing.

Heart transplant recipients to tie the knot

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A wedding scheduled for June is believed to be the first ever to feature a bride and groom who are both heart transplant recipients. Gary A. Welp, 35, of south St. Louis and Susan L. Steffy, 36, of Mount Vernon, said Monday in a telephone interview with the St. Louis Post-Dispatch they plan to be married June 21 in Mount Vernon. "We both have that (heart transplants) in common, and we can communicate about it," Steffy said. "I hope that helps make for a good marriage."

Business incubator to be built on SIU campus

By Ellen Leong
Staff Writer

The site of a $6 million "incubator" building to nurture new and growing small businesses in Southern Illinois has not been determined yet.

Clarence Dougherty, vice president for Campus Services, said six possible sites on the SIU-C campus have been identified for the 30,000-square foot building. The SIU-C Board of Trustees approved the project in May.

Construction would be earmarked as a project of the state's Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, but SIU-C would own the building. The incubator would then lease space to small businesses to encourage growth.

The incubator idea, which SIU-C officials say has proven successful in other similar university-business alliances around the country, is part of the University's push to promote economic development in Southern Illinois.

Money to build the incubator will come from student housing fees and other housing funds.

Human rights group enters 25th year

THE TINY GROUPS SCATTERED throughout the Western world that make up Amnesty International have a common goal: to free political prisoners, prevent torture and end capital punishment.

Through frequent letter-writing campaigns, Amnesty's half million members have helped thousands of people. The Carbonde chapter of Amnesty International is currently working to free political prisoners in Yugoslavia.

Amnesty is celebrating its 25th anniversary this summer and the organization's leaders would like to increase public awareness of the group's achievements. Hence, this summer's Amnesty International tour was planned to draw attention to a group that was practically unheard of in the United States.

Amnesty was founded by a British lawyer in 1961, supposedly after he heard a tale of two young men in Lisbon who were imprisoned for seven years after offering a toast in a bar to freedom.

THROUGHOUT THE TURBULENCE of the 1960s, Amnesty drew little public attention because of its non-violence stance. The '60s were a time for action, not letter writing.

Amnesty began to grow after announcing its Campaign for the Abolition of Torture in 1972. Membership more than doubled in three years, and people began to recognize the organization as more than a bunch of pacifists sending postcards to Turkish prison wardens.

When Amnesty hears that someone has been arrested or has disappeared, the group's Urgent Action Network goes into battle, bombarding the offending government with telegrams and letters. The actions can be so embarrassing to a government that prisoners are quickly released. Amnesty members commit to writing twelve letters per year — one per month, — on behalf of a particular "prisoner of conscience."

In 1986, AMNESTY IS ON THE attack again. Last year, Jack Healey, Amnesty's executive director, approached the Irish band U2, asking them to participate in the 25th anniversary celebration. The group quickly agreed to donate the time needed for the two-week U.S. concert tour. Sting also joined the tour, which has been dubbed "A Conspiracy of Hope."

The tour began last week in San Francisco and ends with an eight-hour concert June 15 at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J., with the likes of Bryan Adams, Peter Gabriel and Lou Reed joining the six-date tour and the deluge of public service announcements by other top celebrities on MTV. Amnesty is indeed attracting a lot of attention. But Healey is not as concerned with the amount of money the concerts will raise as he is with the people added to Amnesty's ranks. Promoters hope to get at least 25,000 new people who will actively join in Amnesty's letter-writing campaigns.

Consider joining the force and do more than just listen to the music. Amnesty International in Carbonde can be reached at 549-4428. The international headquarters is at 800-253-1100.

Correction

Editor's note — The Doonesbury comic strip published on April 16, 1986 included a reference to John Horton among those Reagan administration officials who have, according to the strip, "left office amidst charges of unethical behavior or criminal wrongdoing." The John Horton referred to in the Doonesbury strip resigned from his position with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

It has come to our attention that in 1984 another John Horton resigned his position as the CIA's National Intelligence Officer for Latin America. We are certainly unaware that the CIA John Horton has ever been charged with unethical behavior or criminal wrongdoing, and he has advised the Universal Press Syndicate, which distributes Doonesbury, that his resignation from the CIA was due to professional differences with the Director of Central Intelligence. The reference in the Doonesbury strip published April 16, 1986 was to the John Horton who resigned from the EPA, and not the John Horton who resigned from the CIA.

Garry Trudeau, Universal Press Syndicate and this newspaper regret any confusion caused by the fact that there have been two Reagan administration officials named John Horton.

"Oh Phil, isn't it early in the day to start drinking?"
"Who's starting? I'm trying to taper off."

Buffy's mop of orange and green hair disappeared. I swiveled my chair around and stared out at the silver gray Capitol dome.

The phone rang. I picked it up. Sparlowe's name. Political intelligence's my game.

A young squeaky voice said, "Political intelligence is an oxymoron."

"What kind of moron?"
"A contradiction in terms."

"Oh yeah. Like budget surplus. Who is this?"

"This is Walter Imp. I'm running you know who's campaign."

"What do you want?"
"WE GOT A problem with selecting the rest of the ticket for our third party. HE suggested I consult with you on that. HE said you have your finger on the pulse of the bowling for dollars and boilermaker set."

"I love consulting. I get five bills a day plus expenses. What's the problem? The paper says you got lots of volunteers."

"That is the problem. Look, the original idea was to have these turkeys withdraw before the election. Now we can't do that. Unethical, HE says. So we have to choose unknowns who will not campaign and whose names will not attract voters. If we're not careful, we could screw up the whole statewide Democratic ticket."

"You wouldn't want to do that. Let me think about this. I'll get back to you."

I hung up and called out, "Buffy, get your pretty little ponytail in here. We've got work to do. I just got a job from a guy who's not carrying a full nerpack. And where's that coffee?"

AFTER FORTY-FIVE minutes of intense discussion, I called W. Imp and left a message. "We've made a start. We've found two candidates for you who are unknowns and whose names are positively designed to repel voters. We give you 'George Sangmeister' and 'Aurelia Pucirski.'"

Twenty minutes later W. Imp called back to tell me that was illegal. So I took a big swig of coffee and said, "Have you ever thought about this? Why not go for it?"

"What do you mean?"
"The best defense is a good offense. Go for total victory."

"We can't. We can't double cross the party."

"What party? It's just a bunch of factions fighting over the spoils."

There was a long pause. Then he said, "You've given me something to think about. Thanks for the advice."

That night I dreamed that I saw an announcement of the Stevenson for Governor Party: Adlai Stevenson for Governor; Michael Howlett Jr. for Lt. Governor; Clint "Make my Day" Eastwood for Attorney General; Jane Spigrel for Secretary of State; Sylvester "Rambo" Stallone for Comptroller and Arnold "The Terminator" Schwarzenegger for Treasurer.

How about that for ticket-balancing?

Former student, tenor offers opera scholarship

By Mary Wisniewski
Staff Writer

A man whose voice was once acclaimed throughout two continents is now keeping his ears tuned for new voices.

Former opera tenor Hubert Norville has established a scholarship endowment to encourage opera students, especially tenors, at SIU-C.

Norville, a charter member of the New York City Opera Company, and his wife, Phyllis, have given the SIU Foundation $5,000 to establish the Hubert and Phyllis Norville Opera Scholarship. It will be awarded through the School of Music.

The scholarship will be given each year to a student majoring in opera, with preference being given to tenors. Norville also has donated a $10,700 music library to the School of Music and a $5,940 art collection to the University Museum.

Norville, who was born in Minneapolis, comes from a musical family. His father, German-born Oscar F. Nebelung, was a violinist and organized the first string orchestra in St. Paul, Minn. His grandfather was a tenor soloist in the German Court Choir and his great-grandfather played cello in the German Court Orchestra.

Norville began his education as a pre-medical student at the University of Minnesota. After deciding to pursue a career in music, Norville studied at several European institutions, including the Mozarteum in Salzburg and the Stats Academie of Vienna. He Biorgolli in Bologna and was the protege of Friedrich Schorr in New York.

Described by the October 4, 1945 New York World Telegram as having "a voice — a real voice — besides strong acting gifts," Norville enjoyed a successful operatic career throughout Europe and the United States. In addition to being the first tenor soloist hired by the New York City Opera Company in 1943, he was also the first American chosen for the Royal Opera at Covent Garden, London, after World War II.

In 1952, Norville was hired as artist-in-residence and Chairman of the Voice Department at Millikin University. He retired in 1972.

The Norvilles moved to Carbondale in 1985. Mrs. Norville said that she and her husband donated their resources to SIU-C because they want to be near their collection.

Hubert Norville describes the School of Music as excellent. But while an excellent school and scholarships may afford aspiring singers a solid start, Norville asserted that hard work was the only real means to a career in opera.

Liquor board recommends license

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

The Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board has recommended the approval of a Class A liquor license for J & C Inc., 519 S. Illinois Ave.

The board took the action at its meeting June 3. The Carbondale Liquor Control Commission will consider the recommendation and approve or deny the application Monday.

Class A licenses allow the retail sale of all alcoholic beverages, by the package or by the drink, for consumption on or off the licensee's premises. According to City Clerk Janet Vaught, J & C Inc. has plans to operate a bar with a limited deli menu.

John Alexander and Charles Cole, the bar's owners, plan to admit anyone, regardless of age, until 7 p.m., Vaught said. After 7 p.m. only patrons 21 years of age or older will be admitted to the bar.

In other business, the board recommended the approval of a request by The American Tap to construct a beer garden at 518 S. Illinois Ave. Vaught said the beer garden will be constructed on the lawn in front of the building housing The Tap and will consist of a concrete patio enclosed by a wooden fence.

David Vance of Cobden, who was planning to reopen the former T.J.'s Watering Hole, withdrew his application for a Class A liquor license. Negotiations on Vance's plan to purchase the establishment, which has been closed since last year, reportedly fell through.

The position also includes duties as the associate vice president of academic affairs and research.

A second candidate for the position, Ronald E. Barr, currently associate provost for graduate and research programs at Ohio University, was interviewed Tuesday.

Kenneth E. Templemeyer, dean of the College of Engineering and Technology, has withdrawn from consideration for the position.

Detailed vita and itinerary are available in the GPSC office and in the offices of the deans. Comments on the two candidates should be sent to Setting up a radio linkup between the SIU-C and Moscow State University campuses required more than just flipping a few switches.

To bridge the 5,000 miles between the two universities, campus technicians turned to broadcast coordinators from National Public Radio, a network of public radio stations.

In all, the services of six agencies were needed to transmit and receive the conversation between 30 students — 13 at SIU-C and 17 at Moscow State — that took place May 16. One of the agencies was NPR member station WSIU, the campus station.

RALPH WOODS, manager of satellite operations at NPR headquarters in Washington, estimated that there was a delay of no more than a half second between the time transmissions were sent and received.

However, words sent from Carbondale during the 10 a.m. to noon exchange were received in Moscow from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. because of an eight-hour time difference between the cities.

Michael Zelten, production coordinator at SIU-C for the broadcast, said that he had no problem in his job, which was making sure that a clear transmission of the conversation taking place in Studio A reached a portable "uplink" parked on the southwest side of the Communications Building.

THE UPLINK, which was contracted by NPR from Learfield Communications of St. Louis, beamed the broadcast up to Westar 4, one of the satellites in a system owned by Western Union.

Woods said that the Corporation for Public Broadcasting leases partial use of Westar 4 and the distribution division of NPR manages that satellite use.

From Westar 4 the broadcast was sent to NPR-affiliate WNYC in New York which relayed the broadcast to AT&T North Atlantic in New York. AT&T was connected to Gosteleradio studio, the Soviet Union's Moscow-based radio network, via international phone lines.

WHILE THE broadcast was being channeled through the airwaves, technicians at WSIU, NPR Washington and Gosteleradio were coordinating the broadcast through phone lines.

In addition to WSIU, which aired the two-hour exchange live, and Gosteleradio, which taped the exchange for a later broadcast, the program was offered to all public and commercial radio stations in the United States at no charge, Zelten said.

NPR Washington received direct transmissions of what was sent to Westar 4 from WSIU and Gosteleradio. NPR mixed the two broadcasts and transmitted them to member stations to air live or tape, if they chose to.

ZELTEN SAID at least 20 stations outside of Carbondale and Moscow carried the broadcast. Among those stations were KTOO-FM in Juneau, Alaska, KALW in San Francisco and WDUP in Pittsburgh, Pa.

During the few days prior to the exchange, Zelten said he was "a nervous wreck," in part because it was difficult to stay in contact with officials in charge of the Soviet end of the exchange.

No final confirmation of the broadcast came from Soviet officials until three days before it was set to air, he said.

SPOKESMEN FROM ABC later told SIU-C technicians that they are sometimes not sure whether a broadcast will come off until moments before air time.

Copies of telex messages sent between SIU-C and Moscow indicated that technical arrangements were still being made three days before the broadcast.

Despite the fact that "everything was basically last minute" and "so many things could have gone wrong," Zelten said that from where he stood the broadcast went perfectly.

"We received a lot of positive feedback" after the exchange was aired, he said. "Everyone I've talked to says 'That was incredible.'"

WOODS ALSO said that in the end the broadcast came off smoothly, although he said advance work on coordinating the hookup resulted in considerable nibbling.

During the broadcast the only problems that occurred were two brief "noise bursts" that together lasted no more than two seconds, he said.

Zelten said he is considering editing the two-hour conversation down to one hour and offering it to radio stations that did not air the longer version.

ORGANIZERS OF the exchange said there are no definite plans to stage a similar event in the near future or on a regular basis. However, both organizers and most of the students who participated in the exchange said they hope other universities follow SIU-C's lead by arranging similar exchanges and that more linkups are arranged at SIU-C.

Nick Earll and Cara Webster play George and Year. The play is the first of the Stage Company's Summer Dinner Theater series.

'Same Time Next Year' refreshingly contemporary

By Maureen Cavanagh
Entertainment Editor

The Stage Company production of "Same Time Next Year" makes the audience party to an affair that the straitlaced might view as illicit but that certainly is licit in the laughter it induces and the empathy it provokes for its characters.

This is no mere one-night stand but the story of the lives of George and Doris, who annually meet at the same California inn to continue a relationship that began, well, somehow when they found each other in bed.

IT OPENED last Friday at The Flight Restaurant at Southern Illinois Airport and will be performed June 13-14 and 20-21, as the Stage Company's summer Dinner Theater offering.

Nick Earll plays George, married man, father of three, with career worries, sexual hangups, an ordinary guy. Cara Webster plays Doris, housewife, mother, worried about money, with yearnings for emancipation from the humdrum and her assigned place in life.

WEBSTER AND Earll are well matched in this play by Bernard Slade that was a Broadway hit and a movie, in which Alan Alda starred.

Webster, an SIU-C journalism senior, has appeared in Stage Company productions of "Don't Drink the Water," "Crimes of the Heart" and "Angel Street." Earll, a psychotherapist at Anna Mental Health Center, is also a Stage Company veteran, having performed in "The Rainmaker," "Plaza Suite," "Bus Stop," "My Three Angels" and "The Odd Couple."

A Review

UNDER DIRECTION of Jim Crowner, professor of special education who has Broadway stage credits of his own, and associate director Jeanne Derssett, a physiology researcher in the School of Medicine, Webster and Earll effectively portray the changes occurring in Doris and George over the years.

TICKETS MAY be purchased at The Stage Company box office, 101 N. Washington Ave., between 4 and 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 12 to 4 p.m. Saturday. They may be reserved by calling The Flight Restaurant at 549-8522, between 7 and 11 a.m. Monday through Friday.

Saluki women claim Commissioner's Trophy

By Steve Koulos
Sports Editor

Behind first-place conference finishes in outdoor track, golf, and basketball, the SIU-C women's athletics program was awarded the Commissioner's Trophy for the 1985-86 season.

Based on a point system, the Commissioner's Trophy recognizes the strongest athletics program in the Gateway Conference. It marked the first time in school history that the Salukis won the trophy.

The Salukis scored 33.5 points to edge three-time defending champion Illinois State, which finished second with 30.5 points. Western Illinois was third with 23 points.

SIU-C clinched the trophy by winning its first-ever Gateway Conference outdoor track title May 17 at Wichita, Kan. The track team is coached by Don DeNoon.

"Don's been with us for three years and he has always been a positive person, telling us we would do well," said Women's Athletics Director Charlotte West. "Winning the conference track meet was exciting because it clinched the Commissioner's Trophy."

The Salukis added second-place conference finishes in indoor track, swimming and diving, and volleyball.

Overall, it was an achievement-oriented year for the SIU-C women's athletics program. The basketball team, coached by Cindy Scott, went to the NCAA tournament for the first time in school history and finished 25-4 overall.

The swimming team finished fifth at nationals for the second consecutive year and Saluki first-year coach Bailey Weathers was named the NCAA Women's Swimming Coach of the Year.

"It's been an outstanding year," West said. "Since we've been so successful a higher goal for next season would be a hard direction to achieve."

Good start sparks Mayer to first place finish

By Steve Koulos
Sports Editor

For dirt bike rider Dallas Mayer, it was a matter of getting off to a good start Sunday in the Half Mile Motorcycle and ATV Races at the Williamson County Fairgrounds in Marion.

Mayer, a native of Makanda, led from start to finish to win the open pro division by a comfortable 10 yards over second-place finisher John Fleener of Mason. The races were sponsored by the Southern Illinois Dirt Riders, Inc.

Mayer said it was important that he took command of the race early.

"This is a narrow track and it doesn't leave a lot of room for passing," said Mayer, who drives a Can Am 500.

Mayer said winning his preliminary heat gave him a lot of confidence for the finals.

"You can't beat winning your heat and the final," he said with a smile. "Winning your heat helps psyche out your opponents a little bit."

The 23-year-old Mayer said he plans to run in a dirt race Saturday at Paducah, Ky. Three weeks ago, Mayer finished fifth in the Louisville Half Mile junior national.

The other division winners at Marion were Jeremiah Ray (Automatics); Mike Mayer (86-125 class); Chris Allen (201-250); Gary Wilt (126-200); Roy Hart, Jr. (Open Amateur); Mike Eaton (200 3-wheelers); and Mike Furlow (250 3-wheelers).

According to Southern Illinois Dirt Riders member Alan Dewey, the next races at Marion is going to be held on Sept. 1, the first day of the Williamson County Fair.

Dewey said prize money of $2,000 has been guaranteed for the races, which is going to be co-sponsored by the Williamson County Fair and the Southern Illinois Dirt Riders, Inc.

Good season for SIU-C baseball ends with great recruiting crop

By Steve Merritt
Assistant Sports Editor

A winning season is always good for luring prospective recruits, and the past season was no different for Saluki baseball coach Richard "Itchy" Jones.

Despite budgets cuts that will whittle Jones' number of scholarships from 11 in 1986 to 6.5 for next season, he managed to land a number of standout recruits for 1987.

In early May, Jones announced that he had signed two of the top names on his recruiting list, outfielder Doug Shields of Cincinnati and pitcher Aris Bend of Chesterson, Ind.

According to the latest issue of Baseball America, Shields is one of the top 40 high school players in the nation. A 6-foot, 175-pounder, Shields plays high school ball in the spring and Pony League ball with the well-known Cincinnati Storm in the summer.

Last year with the Storm, Shields collected 51 RBI in 69 games for a team that finished second in the nation.

Shields was not drafted in the recent amateur draft, mostly because he had set a minimum contract of six figures and wanted to be made a No. 1 or No. 2 pick by the team that drafted him.

The all-around athlete, who was also named Cincinnati's Football Player of the Year last season, received baseball offers from Kentucky, Michigan, Indiana State and Arizona as well as football offers from Ohio State and Kentucky.

Bend, a 5-foot-10, 165-pounder, throws with consistency at the 85 mph range, Jones said, and should be able to immediately help the pitching staff as the No. 4 starter. He was 13-1 with a stingy 1.29 ERA with 111 strikeouts in just 97 innings last season.

Bend throws a fastball, a curveball and a split-fingered fastball.

Another recruit who has the potential to provide immediate help to the Salukis is David Wrona, a 6-foot, 180-pounder from Lockport High School.

A switch-hitter, Wrona might play shortstop next season if freshman shortstop Joe

Softball season looks like roller coaster ride

By Ray Albert
Staff Writer

The 1986 SIU-C softball season might have been more like a roller coaster ride for head coach Kay Brechtelsbauer and her Saluki charges.

Granted, the women's team finished with a 23-21 record but, with a few breaks says Brechtelsbauer, that record could have been "much better." The Salukis lost 14 one-run games, including six by the score of 1-0.

The team's record in the Gateway Conference was 10-8, good enough for only a fifth-place showing but only three games behind conference champions Illinois State and Eastern Illinois in the conference tournament. SIU-C finished in a sixth-place tie with Wichita State.

"We were very competitive but we were disappointed in our finish and our overall record," Brechtelsbauer said. "We were never out of a single ballgame and we played with anybody we came up against."

The Salukis advanced for the first time ever beyond pool play at the Sooner Invitational, finished a respectable seventh in the 16-team Redbird Invitational at Normal but slumped to a fifth-place showing in its own six-team Saluki Invitational.

Against inter-sectional opponents, SIU-C won three of four games with Southeast Missouri State University, swept SIU-E, split with Arkansas State, but dropped a doubleheader to Evansville.

The up-and-down season saw the Salukis suffer three, three-game losing streaks and the team's longest losing skien was four. But SIU-C put together a seven-game winning streak in April, the longest of the season, then won six consecutive games prior to the conference tournament in early May.

The Salukis never lost by more than two runs during the entire season but rarely got the clutch hit they needed in those contests, Brechtelsbauer said.

"I felt we had runners in scoring positions many, many times and just didn't get them in," she added. "We didn't get the clutch hits from some of our returning players either."

The lackluster offensive showing overshadowed an excellent season by SIU-C pitchers, which boasted a collective 0.75 earned run average, third only to Illinois State and Eastern Illinois.

Freshman Lori Day and sophomore Lisa Peterson headed the Saluki pitching staff and both recorded earned run averages of below one run per ballgame.

"I think we were very fortunate to have the pitchers that we did have," said pitching coach Gary Buckles. "It is frustrating anytime you lose but on the other hand when

Itchy says thanks to Saluki baseball fans

Winning the regular season Missouri Valley Conference title and making a trip to the NCAA regionals highlighted the 1986 Saluki baseball season for head coach Richard "Itchy" Jones, but another highlight for the 17-year SIU-C skipper was the tremendous support exhibited by Saluki baseball fans.

"Our fans were great all year long and I'm glad we had a good season for them," Jones said Sunday afternoon while checking in players for the 14th annual Saluki baseball camp.

"The fans here are loyal and dedicated and we really haven't given them too much to cheer about the last couple of years," Jones said. "The players and myself are greatly appreciative for their support."

The 39-22 record for the Salukis was their best since 1982, when the Salukis went 32-20. In '83, SIU-C finished 23-18. Two losing seasons - Jones' first as SIU-C's coach - followed, with the Salukis finishing at 20-22 in '84 and 28-29 last season.

"By getting to host the MVC post-season tournament, we gave our fans a chance to see a lot of exciting, well-played baseball," Jones said. "I'm glad we had the chance to give them a little extra."

Jones said the only time his squad played in front of larger crowds than at Abe Martin Field was at the NCAA tournament and while playing in Miami on the spring tour.

Hall is moved to catcher for his sophomore year. Wrona played a major role in leading Lockport to a No. 1 seeding at the recent Illinois High School Association baseball regionals.

Wrona was recruited by Illinois, Northwestern and Mississippi State but chose SIU-C because he wanted a chance to start and contribute as a freshman.

Jones and his staff have also acquired the signatures of three area junior college players, including two from Rend Lake, where assistant coach Kirk Champion was at the helm last season.

Rick Gaebe, a second baseman, became the first-ever Rend Lake athlete to be named an All-American. A second baseman was high on Jones' list of priorities since the academic status of Terry Jones is unclear.

Gaebe's offensive skills helped Rend Lake to a 82-26 record last fall, and an examination of his statistics are mind-boggling. He collected 151 hits and scored 115 runs while batting for a .394 average and stole 61 bases in 68 attempts.

During his high school career, Gaebe hit for an incredible .522 average in four years and set national prep records for most runs scored in a season (73) and career (219), as well as setting a new career stolen base mark of 194.

Cliff McIntosh, a pitcher-designated hitter, was Rend Lake's top hurler last fall with a 13-4 record that included five shutouts. Combine that with a .341 average and 96 RBI, and one might expect McIntosh to contribute on the offensive side of the plate as well.

Another juco recruit is pitcher Rich Campbell from John A. Logan College, a righthanded starter-reliever. Campbell was moved from starter to reliever by JALC coach Jerry Halstead because Logan needed relievers more than starters. Campbell, like Shields, has also played for the Cincinnati Storm.

A recruit the Salukis lost is Darren Hursey of Urbana High School, who signed a pro baseball contract Saturday with the Detroit Tigers. Hursey had signed a letter of intent this fall to play football for the Salukis and had intended to play both sports at SIU-C.

Hursey had been clocked at around 90-95 mph and was drafted in the 17th round of the recent amateur draft by the Tigers. Jones said the loss of Hursey wasn't major since Hursey had not actually become part of the team.

"This is a pretty good recruiting crop," Jones said Tuesday. "They're all good athletes and good students. We think several of them may be an immediate help."

Jones said he hoped to sign a catcher to make his recruiting year complete and one of the best crops in recent years. Jones had earlier said the team needed two outfielders, two pitchers and a catcher. High on Jones' list is catcher Dan Hartleb, also of JALC.

With the overall baseball budget being cut and scholarships being reduced by almost half, Jones said next year's recruiting crop would definitely be affected.

"It's going to catch up with you sometime," Jones said. "The cuts will hurt our recruiting next season more than it did this season."

NEW YORK (UPI) — Running back Herschel Walker Tuesday described his transition from a University of Georgia football player to a $3.25 million star with the USFL New Jersey Generals in testimony at the USFL's antitrust trial against the NFL.

Walker's signing by the USFL before he completed college and the NFL Dallas Cowboys' alleged attempts to lure the record-breaking runner away from the Generals have been issues in the USFL's $1.5 billion suit charging the NFL with monopolizing the sport.

The day's session in U.S. District Court in Manhattan lasted about an hour, cut short by the illness of USFL lead attorney Harvey Myerson, who is reported to be suffering from a potassium deficiency.

Myerson is expected to return to court Wednesday when the trial is slated to continue with the testimony of USFL Commissioner Harry Usher and ABC executive Roone Arledge.

Myerson's absence apparently fueled rumors that a settlement was imminent. Both football leagues Tuesday denied a published report that said the NFL had offered to settle the case by paying USFL teams $20 million each and awarding franchises to six of the eight USFL clubs.

The Orlando, Fla., Sentinel reported in its Tuesday editions that a USFL owner and a ranking USFL official, both unidentified, had confirmed an NFL offer was on the table to settle the suit.

However, in the courtroom in New York, NFL spokesman Joe Browne dismissed the report.

"There is no settlement offer on the table. No settlement offer has been proposed, and no settlement offer is anticipated."

Usher issued a statement for the USFL, calling the report of settlement discussions "absolutely unfounded and untrue."

During his testimony Walker denied he had been offered a position during his junior year at Georgia to play with the USFL's Chicago Blitz, though he acknowledged "there was a lot of rumors" about such an offer.

Walker was a junior when he met with Generals' executives in Athens, Ga., shortly before the USFL's first season in the spring 1983. He said he signed a three-year contract paying $1 million each year in 1983 and 1984 and $1.25 million in 1985.

Walker said he had no regrets about signing the contract before finishing at Georgia. "When I made up my mind that I wanted to play pro football, that was it."

Legion baseball slated for Wednesday

The Carbondale Legion Post 514 baseball team, sporting a 2-1 record, hosts Herrin on Wednesday night at Williams Field. Gametime is 7:30 p.m. Carbondale, coached by Chuck Reno, has defeated West Frankfort (4-2) and Marion (15-1) and has lost to

Mt. Vernon (12-1) in its three games this season.

The top pitchers for Carbondale are Chad Vogt and John Jarvis, who each 1-0 records. Outfielder Paul Meiling is the team's leading hitter with a .350 average.

Jackson puzzled between choice of two sports

NEW YORK (UPI) — Auburn's Bo Jackson, still weighing offers from football's Tampa Bay Buccaneers and baseball's Kansas City Royals, admitted Tuesday he was still "lost" in deciding which sport to play.

"To make a long story short, I'm lost," said Jackson, the top pick in the NFL draft and a fourth-round selection in baseball's amateur draft. "I don't know what I'm going to do. I'm just taking it one day at a time."

Jackson, who won the Heisman Trophy after rushing for 1,786 yards last football season, said he would make a decision about his future soon. He gave no specific date.

"If I could work it out in some way, I would play both baseball and football," Jackson said. "I would love to, but I don't think that's possible."

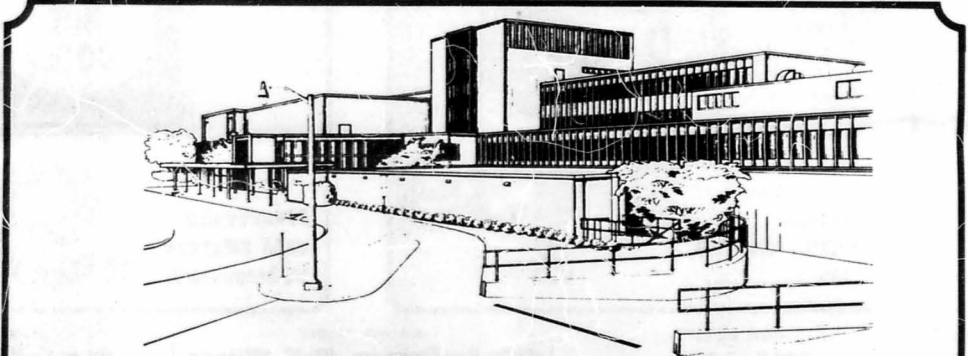

Jackson was in New York to receive the Tanqueray Achievement award for outstanding accomplishments in amateur athletics. Previous winners include runner Mary Decker Slaney, pole vaulter Billy Olson and skier Billy Kidd.

Buccaneers owner Hugh Culverhouse promised to make Jackson the highest paid rookie in NFL history at the football draft and repeated his claim after Jackson was chosen by the Royals in the baseball draft.

Jackson said his late selection in the baseball draft would not affect his decision.

"I'd rather be drafted in the fourth round by the world champions than in the first round by somebody else," he said.

Jackson also reiterated that he was leaving all his options open and that he would make the decision on his own.

Boosters name Scott, Weathers as Saluki Coaches of the Year

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

The Saluki Booster Club selected Cindy Scott and Bailey Weathers as "co-coaches of the year" at the 1985-86 season-ending Buffalo Tro

Scott, in her ninth year, coached the Saluki women's basketball team to an undefeated, first-ever Gateway Conference championship and first-ever NCAA tournament appearance in a 25-4 season.

Weathers, a first-year coach, guided the Saluki women's swimming team to the National Independent Championships title and a fifth-place national finish at the NCAA tournament.

It marked the second coaching award Weathers received this season. In March, he was selected as the NCAA Women's Swimming Coach of the Year for his team's performance at nationals.

The awards highlighted the Saluki Booster Club's annual Buffalo Tro, a banquet and coaches roast held May 6 at Touch of Nature.

The SIU Alumni Association presented the male and female academic athletes of the year awards to Gary Bockhorn, a baseball pitcher, and Claudia Zierold, a top-10 relay swimmer.

For athletics excellence, Women's Athletics Director Charlotte West recognized basketball standout Petra Jackson as Female Athlete of the Year; and Men's Athletics Director Jim Livengood recognized Robert Jones as Male Athlete of the Year. Jones is the baseball Salukis' career home run and RBI leader.

The SIU Alumni Association gave football coach Ray Dorra a certificate of honor for almost defeating the University of Illinois. The Illini withstood a late fourth-quarter rally by the Salukis to post a 28-25 victory.

Dorr thanked everyone and joked, "you don't receive many awards for getting beat."

New Booster Club president Cliff Phillips presented a special award of appreciation to departing president Jim McKinney.

Ed and Kay Knott of Carverville were named Boosters of the Year and Dean Stuck, who filled an interim position as special assistant for athletics, received a special award in appreciation of his services.

The Booster Club announced several additions to the Arena and Davies Gymnasium banners and honored departing Booster board members.

you're in every game and it's close it's always encouraging."

Although Peterson will return to SIU-C for the 1987 season, Day will not.

"We've never had a freshman who pitched so well," Brechtelsbauer said. "She had a couple of no-hitters and helped us with her bat. She had a terrific attitude and was a delight to coach."

Day is moving back to her hometown of Bloomington and plans on enrolling at Illinois State University, Brechtelsbauer said.

A total of seven starters will be among 13 returning players for the Salukis in 1987. But Brechtelsbauer will be forced to find replacements for Day, Rhonda Snow, Jan Vroman and Jane Elder.

Snow was the leading hitter for the Salukis with a .282 batting average, good enough for eighth on the conference list. She was also the only Saluki player to get selected to the all-conference team.

"Rhonda was a keen competitor who hit well in the clutch," Brechtelsbauer said. Newcomers already signed for the Salukis for 1987 include freshman Shelley Gibbs, a Carbondale native, and Kim Hulsey of Canton. Brechtelsbauer has also signed two junior college transfers, Theresa Smugala, of Forest Park Community College in St. Louis; and Karen Wilhelm, from the College of DuPage in Glen Ellyn.

Brechtelsbauer is looking forward to the 1987 season and thinks the combination of returning players and talented newcomers will make for a good season.

Zoning changes on Walnut to be voted on by council

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council will soon decide the fate of a proposed gas station, car wash and convenience store development that received a favorable recommendation from the Carbondale Planning Commission.

The American Gas & Wash, slated for location on the south side of East Walnut Street between Marion and Logan streets, would include eight spray-wand car wash stalls, one automatic car wash, an oil change stall, six gas pump islands and a convenience store.

REAL ESTATE agent Dick Hunter of Caldwell Banker Havens Budsick Realtors predicted the business would bring 65 full- and part-time jobs to the city and generate revenues of $5 million to $6 million per year. Developer Kim Rasnick, owner of American Gas & Wash of Marion, has "a very clean operation" in Marion, Hunter told the commission. "It's not something that anyone would be ashamed of" having in their neighborhood, he said.

City Planner Jim Rayfield said in his report to the commission that the business would replace lots along East Walnut that are vacant or occupied by "marginal" houses and trailers. He added that the development should enhance property values in the area and encourage other businesses to locate in the neighborhood.

COMMISSIONER Larry Hawse was the sole opponent of the resolution supporting the rezoning of 325 feet of East Walnut from R-3, high density residential and PA, professional administrative office classifications to a secondary business classification which would facilitate the development. Hawse said after the meeting that he opposed the move because he doesn't think "that part of Walnut Street should look like Main Street."

He added that the Planning Commission has always tried to "protect" Walnut Street as a planned business and high density residential zone. "I think it was worth protecting one more round," he said.

THE CITY COUNCIL will vote on the rezoning request at its June 16 meeting. Rasnick said that if the council approves the request, work on the project could begin in mid-July. Rasnick said that although at this point the project looks as though it will be financed privately, he may seek other funding.

Money from Gov. James R. Thompson's Build Illinois program may be one source of state funding and city revenue bond financing may be another, Rasnick said in a telephone interview from his Marion office.

THE PLANNING Commission also endorsed a request from city officials to rezone lots along both sides of West Main Street from R-2, medium density residential and PA, professional administrative office classifications to a PA-R, professional administrative office-residential, classification. According to press reports, the designation of the PA-R zone is the first in the city's history.

The city requested the rezoning to preserve the residential appearance of the area.

SEVERAL residents of the area, while not opposing the proposed zoning change outright, voiced concerns about the possible effect the change may have on the aesthetic quality of the area.

Glen Carter, who identified himself as a resident of 810 W. Walnut, asked that the commission pay more attention to the back parts of the property in the proposed new zone to preserve their "country-like atmosphere."

City Planner Tom Redmond informed the council that parking lots would not be permitted in the back areas and that the existence of a large drainage ditch in the back area would inhibit its commercial development.

DON MONTY, director of community development, added that existing landscaping ordinances and rules regulating heights of streetlights in city parking lots would protect the residential nature of the neighborhood.

R-T Department fills chairman post

By John Baldwin
Staff Writer

The Radio-Television Department has a new chairman for the fall semester after a one-and-a-half-year search.

Joe S. Foote, presently a visiting assistant professor in the Communication Arts Department at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., will begin work as chairperson of the Radio Television Department in August, replacing acting chair Randy Welker.

Foote's duties as R-T chair will include setting up budgets for salaries and other items, working with faculty members to maintain a quality curriculum and partaking in faculty recruitment and evaluation.

Foote received his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Oklahoma and his doctorate from the University of Texas at Austin. He was also a Rotary Graduate Fellow at the University of Bristol in Bristol, England, for a year between 1976 and 1977.

Keith Sanders, dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts, said Foote "has a lot of experience in the real world of mass communications."

Foote was press secretary to House Speaker Carl Albert from 1972 to 1976; administrative assistant to U.S. House of Representatives member Dave McCurdy from 1981 to 1983; foreign information specialist temporarily in 1972 for the U.S. Information Agency in Washington, D.C., writing news lineups and stories for Voice of America worldwide broadcasts from African and national desks; Oklahoma State Capitol and State University System news correspondent for radio station KTOK Oklahoma City. Foote has taught at several universities and worked four political campaigns.

Foote is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, Omicron Delta Kappa Phi Gamma Gamma, which are honorary academic societies.

"He is an excellent teacher and scholar," Sanders said. "I think Joe will find ways to make a good program even better."

Foote said Monday he is "eager to get (here) and get started" and hopes his experience in government and mass communication can benefit the department.

Welker said he didn't apply for the job because he didn't meet all of the requirements, and the department was looking for a person from outside SIU-C to fill the position.

Music camp registration deadlines announced

Registration deadline is Wednesday for the 22nd Annual Southern Illinois Music Festival camps, conducted in the SIU-C School of Music for junior and senior high school students in June and July.

Campers will stay in University dorms and will be staffed by faculty members of the music school and area instructors. Applications will be considered after Wednesday on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Weeklong camps are scheduled in band, chorus, vocal and instrumental jazz, stringed instruments and piano. Extra-class activities include swimming, boating, tennis and other recreational action, as well as nighttime movies, plays, recitals and concerts. Robert L. Weiss Jr., assistant director in the School of Music, said he expects about 300 students.

The schedule is:
June 22-28, Junior High Week: concert band, stage band and ensembles, general chorus, concert choir and swing choir.

June 29-July 5, Jazz Week: open to junior and senior high school students; concentrations in vocal and instrumental jazz, daily classes in improvisation and jazz theory, along with master classes in big bands, combos and jazz choir.

July 6-12, Senior High Week: band, chorus, string music and piano. The string program includes ensembles and chamber music with piano. Pianists will take part in a creative study of the classics and choral students will sing in concert, madrigal and swing choirs. Band instrument players will play in concert band, stage band and ensembles.

The weekly cost of $139 covers room and board, membership in music organizations and class instruction. The cost for commuters is $55.

Students attending two sessions will receive a 10-percent discount, and private lessons are available for $7 per lesson.

Applications may be sent to Robert L. Weiss, in the School of Music, SIU-C, Carbondale, 62901.

Patchwork hanging in there with paintings, sculptures

By Debra Keen-Cooper
Staff Writer

Paintings and prints by Cheonae Kim, ceramic sculptures by Matt West and handmade quilts by Oneta Macieski are on display in the University Museum in Faner Hall.

Kim and West's works will be in Mitchell Gallery through June 18.

Public receptions for the two exhibits will be in the Museum from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday.

Kim's paintings are acrylic media. The prints are lithographs. The paintings and prints deal strongly with space, light and scale.

West's work involves narrative sculpture as represented within an architectural format. The narratives are often presented within classical architectural shapes to provoke a relationship with the past. He says his narrative sculpture reflects his interest in mythology and contemporary social and religious issues.

Macieski's quilts will be on display at the through July 18. The exhibit features several patchwork quilts with historical significance, some of which took months to complete. Several traditional patterns are on display, including "Jacob's Ladder" and "Bear's Paw."

One quilt entitled "Bowtie" is on display courtesy of Senator and Mrs. Paul Simon. Quiltmaking was introduced in America by Dutch and

"crazy quilts."

Patchwork quilts are made by sewing pieces of fabric together with a running stitch on the underside of the fabric. The pieces are usually patterned into "blocks" which can range in size.

Baby Jesse receives donor heart

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Doctors in Michigan today announced they have a donor heart for Baby Jesse, a 2-week-old boy originally turned down for a transplant because his parents are unwed.

Doctors said the donor infant is being kept alive on a respirator at Butterworth Hospital in Grand Rapids pending transfer to Loma Linda University Medical Center in California.

The parents of the donor baby also are unwed.

"A couple days ago we heard about the baby on TV that needed a heart, so I thought we'd try to save it," the baby's father, Frank Clemenshaw, said in a news conference.

Deborah Walters, mother of tiny Frank Edward Clemenshaw, who was declared brain dead shortly after his May 25 birth, called it a "very tough" decision to agree to donate her baby's heart.

"At first especially it was very hard," she said.

But since her baby was already "dead," she said, "We feel very good about giving another child a chance - if he (Frank Edward) has a chance to help another baby live, part of him will live on."

Walters then broke down in sobs and was unable to continue.

Clemenshaw and Walters live in Wyoming, Mich. The unwed couple has two other children.

On her way to the news conference, Walters stopped by her baby's respirator to say goodbye. Relatives stood in the back of the room holding tiny stuffed animals.

Jesse's parents appearing live on the Phil Donahue television show, wept with joy when news of the donor reached them. The show's producers telephoned Butterworth and in front of a national TV audience confirmed the reports. The couple left soon afterward.

The 16-day-old baby is being kept alive by way of a surgical procedure performed last week and administration of the drug prostaglandin E-1, which aids in the flow of blood through the heart and lungs.

Abortion foes face NOW lawsuit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — NOW said Tuesday it filed a class-action suit in federal court against three leading abortion foes to force an end to a "nationwide criminal conspiracy" threatening abortion clinics across the country.

Announcing the suit, filed Monday in federal court in Wilmington, Del., Eleanor Smeal, president of the National Organization for Women, said the legal action was an attempt to focus attention on a national problem of harassment and often violent intimidation at abortion clinics.

The suit was filed the same day a large pipe bomb ripped a 10-foot hole in the front of a Wichita, Kan., clinic. Police said they would join anti-abortion lawsuits who often pick the same site.

At a news conference, Smeal said the suit, which is a unique attempt to invoke antitrust laws in a civil action to protect interstate business, said it was not aimed at bombings or arson, but at misdemeanor "day to day threats to people trying to use health services."

"This is clearly a nationwide criminal conspiracy, which the federal government has refused to treat as such," said Smeal. "We believe that this federal court action is necessary to put an end to this domestic terrorism."

The suit names as defendants Joseph Scheidler of Chicago and author of a book titled "Closed, 99 ways to Stop Abortion," John Ryan of St. Louis, and Joan Andrews of Newark, Del., now in custody in Pensacola, Fla. The Pro-Life Action League and the Pro-Life Direct Action League also are named.

"These individuals and organizations are at the forefront of a nationwide, concerted effort to drive women's health care centers that perform abortions out of business through a pattern of unlawful activity," NOW charged.

Scheidler, in Kansas City to protest a National Abortion Federation meeting there, said he was "pleased to be called a 'key extremist' in the nationwide effort to shut down the abortion industry in this country."

The suit, said Scheidler, director of the Pro-Life Action League, "will not slow down our efforts. We will simply increase our activities until every unborn child regains his right to life."

Mexican publisher can purchase UPI; Bankruptcy judge decides

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal bankruptcy judge Tuesday approved the sale of United Press International to Mexican publisher Mario Vazquez-Rana, who pledged to do everything possible "to make UPI the best news agency in the world."

In confirming the sale, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge George Bason praised UPI for a "truly extraordinary" recovery during more than a year of Chapter 11 proceedings.

"I'm enormously pleased and I believe that its future now is assured for the foreseeable future," Bason said.

In month-long balloting,

UPI's largest creditors voted 130-5 to support the $36 million to $40 million sale, which is expected to return about 45 cents of every dollar owed to major vendors and to fully repay employee claims and provide UPI with $15 million in working cash.

Lawyers had hoped to close the sale Tuesday, but a company attorney said that because the confirmation hearing extended into the afternoon the deal would not be made final until Wednesday.

Vazquez-Rana, appearing in court at Bason's request, testified through an interpreter that he has placed more than $29 million in a Washington bank to complete the transaction. Vazquez-Rana owns 62 newspapers in Mexico.

He said he is aware UPI has been losing money — company officials project losses of $5.2 million this year — but he said owning the news service is "one of the greatest dreams that I have."

Vazquez-Rana renewed pledges to ensure the editorial integrity of UPI, to always maintain its world headquarters in the United States and to "always guarantee" that its principal officers will be Americans. He has taken Texas businessman Joe Russo as a 10 percent partner.

Fundamentalist wins election amid Baptist doctrine debate

ATLANTA (UPI) — Southern Baptists, giving the fundamentalist faction its firmest grip ever on the nation's largest Protestant denomination, Tuesday elected the Rev. Adrian Rogers president of the 14.4 million-member church.

Rogers of Memphis, Tenn., was elected on the first ballot by 21,201 to 17,896 over his moderate opponent, the Rev. Winfred Moore, pastor of First Baptist Church in Amarillo, Texas.

Officials said 96.63 percent of the 40,462 messengers, or delegates, to the convention, cast ballots. Rogers received 54.26 percent of the total votes cast, compared with 45.78 percent for Moore.

Rogers succeeds the Rev. Charles Stanley, pastor of Atlanta's First Baptist Church, who earlier had urged delegates to stick with the fundamentalist leadership that has controlled the Southern Baptist Convention since 1979.

A leader of the fundamentalist faction in the strife-torn denomination, Rogers served a one-year term as president in 1979-80.

Hailed as a "peace candidate" by nominator Nelson Price of Marietta, Rogers is expected to continue the fundamentalist effort to wrest control of the denomination's 20 seminaries and program agencies and to name members of boards who share his ultra-conservative biblical and political views.

Moore, nominated by the Rev. Richard Jackson of Phoenix, Ariz., was described as exemplifying "the Baptist way" and is a man "who knows the truth, preaches the truth, lives the truth and, above all else, tells the truth."

Price praised Rogers for his "proven leadership" and said his "clearly stated stance will give us stability."

Ken Chafin, a professor at Southern Seminary, Louisville, Ky., and a leader of the moderate faction, said Rogers' election means "more of the same" fundamentalist leadership of the last seven years, "but with more intensity."

The fundamentalists, who hold that the Bible is literally true and who lean politically to the ultra-right, charge that the more tolerant and flexible moderates have allowed "liberalism" to infect seminaries and mission programs.

the IELRB will follow in its decision for SIU."

Bob Jensen, representative of University Professionals of SIU, an affiliate of the American Federation of Teachers, said the decision to include department chairs in a bargaining unit "reaffirms what we've held all along, that chairs are faculty members who present concerns to the administration as faculty and not administrators."

The Illinois Educational Labor Relations Act, passed in 1983, excludes from a bargaining unit those employees who hold managerial or supervisory positions. The labor board has been hearing testimony since February on whether department chairs at SIU spend the bulk of their time performing supervisory duties.

The Board of Regents, IEA, AFT and the American Association of University Professors filed petitions with the labor board in February 1984.

In that case, the Board administration and the AFT filed for a systemwide unit, professional staff and faculty to be represented in the same unit and chairs to be included in a bargaining unit.

The IEA filed for separate campus units, professional staff and faculty in separate units and chairs included in a unit. The AAUP filed for an exclusive unit for faculty at each of the three schools and separate campus units. Its petition also said that faculty and professional staff should be represented separately.

Jannsen's recommendations were made in July 1985. The IEA appealed her 62-page report because of the exclusion of chairs.

The labor board's decision, Jensen and Zucker said, shows that at two major universities, chairs function in the same way that they do at SIU. "I can't see any other way that the labor board will vote than to include chairs at SIU," Zucker said.

In the SIU case, which has been before hearing officer Ira Epstein since October 1985, the administration filed for a systemwide unit; the IEA for campuswide units, separate groups for professional staff and faculty and the inclusion of chairs; and the AFT for separate campus units, professional staff and faculty in one unit and chairs included.

AAUP has filed to represent only SIU-E faculty and faculty at the Dental School in Alton.

Jensen said that even though the labor board's decision shows a preference for separate units for the two constituencies, AFT will "continue to operate in the same manner, having representation for both professional staff and faculty, no matter what the hearing officer's decision is."

The Board of Regents case has been in limbo since appeals were made last year. The reversed decision "comes at the right time" because the SIU case is in its last stages of testimony, Zucker said.

Attorneys representing the four groups will present their briefs to Epstein in the next few weeks.

Epstein is expected to make a decision late this summer, Zucker said. It is likely that some key issues in dispute may be appealed, which will delay an election until early 1987, he said.

Golf course plan hits hazard

By Carolyn Schmidt
Staff Writer

Financing for the Carbondale Park District's proposed public golf course will not come out of district tax increases or cuts in other park district programs, says George Whitehead, park district director. However, some area residents are skeptical of the proposal.

The park district plans to use contract installment financing for the estimated $2.1 million project which would pay for itself by generating profits within four years of operation, Whitehead said.

THE PLAN also would give the park district more flexibility in paying off the debt by allowing it to draw from bonding ability, general revenue ability or private donations, he said.

A 750-name petition submitted on May 14 to the park board by Jack McElroy of Carbondale called for a referendum allowing Carbondale residents to vote on whether to construct the golf course. McElroy said the board will probably call for a tax increase in the next four or five years if the park district goes ahead with the plan.

ONGOING programs that benefit children in the area would also suffer, he said.

"They're selling bonds to get revenue to operate," McElroy said. "If they don't have the money to operate now, and they add a $2 million golf course, how will they continue to operate without a tax increase?"

A market feasibility analysis compiled by William L. Harrison & Associates Inc., outlines realistic and achievable target figures that indicate how the project will turn a profit by the fourth year of operation, Whitehead said. "All that information is here on file for public inspection," he said.

MCLEROY SAID the report is more than three years old and has not been updated, so the project will probably cost more than originally estimated.

He said there is no guarantee that the golf course will be self-sustaining, and that the only public courses sustaining themselves are in much larger population areas.

"When the newness of the golf course wears off they'll be looking for business," McElroy said.

Park board members have responded to the petition by asking petition signers their opinions of the proposal. Board member Paul Lindberg said "the majority of people are not for or against it, they're just upset about not getting to vote for it."

LINDBERG SAID the number of people for or against the course development is about equal, adding that he has not yet formed an opinion about the referendum. By state law, a referendum is not required unless there is a tax increase and the proposal does not call for one, he said.

Board member Joe Lenzini said he has explained to several petition signers why the referendum is not required by law. Although the petition does not state the pros and cons of the golf course, "most of them think that the public should have some input in the decision," he said.

WHITEHEAD SAID the need for a public golf course in this area was measured against the national standard which calls for a minimum of 16 holes of public golf for every 25,000 people. The nearest public course is Rend Lake, some 40 miles away.

Whitehead said the proposed golf course, which would be located on the west side of New Era Road, could serve up to 200,000 people in Jackson County and a portion of Williamson County. "We can't limit our scope to Carbondale. We serve a regional population base as well," he said.

THE PLAN eventually calls for a 27-hole "golf center" providing a needed area for beginning golfer, said Whitehead. The complex would include practice driving and putting ranges, a scaled down golf course for practice and a short nine hole course for intermediate players and those who want to play a short game.

"We've changed the concept of golf course to golf center with an emphasis on golf instruction and player development, Whitehead said.

William James Spear, architect for the golf course, could have preliminary estimates for the first phase of development completed by July 15, Whitehead said. A $70,000 contract with Spear could be terminated if the park board decides the contract is not feasible.

THE FINAL decision of whether to construct the golf course tentatively will be made in March 1987 when bids open for construction, Whitehead said.

Hostel I.D.s ready

Applications for international student identity cards and hostel membership cards are available at International Programs and Services, 910 S. Forest, or 603 S. Oakland.

The identity cards verify student status and allow students to obtain reduced rates on transportation, accommodations and admission fees for travel abroad.

The cards cost $10 are valid until Dec. 31 and are renewable each year.

when the strengths and weaknesses of the final candidates were considered, they were all qualified for the position.

The nationwide search to find a replacement for Shaw produced 101 candidates. Of the final 15, only five were interviewed and three withdrew their names.

Three factors were important to the constituent group's support of Pettit, Meisel said. Pettit had the proven ability to work with a legislature, he has demonstrated a strong past com-mittment to affirmative action and the academic background needed to do the job.

Pettit's personality was also a consideration, Meisel continued. He has the ability to listen to and consider both sides of an argument before reaching a decision. He has a strong personality but is not domineering, Meisel said.

A main factor in the choice of a chancellor was the realization that the SIU campuses have separate identities.

"He had a good concept of the separate identities of the two campuses," Meisel said.

Joann Marks, staff secretary for the College of Liberal Arts dean's office and a member of the constituent group, said she felt that Pettit was highly qualified.

Along with having the experience needed to be a chancellor, she said that Pettit "had the enthusiasm and the interest in the job that is necessary."

There won't be the drawback of having to learn the system that sometimes happens, she said, because he is familiar with similar situations.

Harvey Welch, Jr., dean of Student Life, said that Pettit was his "number one choice."

He agreed that Pettit "has the political and high education experience that is needed as a chancellor."

"He has an understanding of our University," Welch said. "I saw more of this in him than in the others."

"I could clearly get the idea that he was interested in the position to advance not only himself but also ideas he has that an institution should follow," he said.
